Britt Airways begin replacement negotiations

by Jane Meyer

Britt Airways of Terre Haute began negotiations with Coles County Airport authorities Tuesday night to replace Ozark Airlines.

"We're familiar with the reputations of at least a dozen different airlines although Britt Airways is the only serious one that we are dealing with at the present time," Harry Larson, airport authority chairman, said Wednesday.

Larson added that he expects Britt to be the airport's commuter service barring a major catastrophe.

Although other airlines have been in contact, Larson said none has shown interests on the level of Britt Airways.

Larson said he is uncertain about whether costs for the commuter service will be cheaper than those offered by Ozark, although commuter services usually are more fuel efficient.

"The larger airlines contract the fuel in large quantities about a year ahead of time and they pay about 70 cents per gallon while the commuter service end up paying around $1.15 to $1.20 per gallon," Larson said.

William C. Britt, president of Britt Airways and Britt Airlines, has notified airport authority officials that he will be "ready, willing and able" to take over the service when Ozark leaves in April, 1980.

Mike Covalt, Coles County airport manager, said Britt operates two separate corporations, Britt Airlines, which is contracted commuter for Allegheny Airlines, and Britt Airways.

Authority members said tentative plans include Britt flying four daily round trips from Coles County to Chicago with a stop at Champaign. Airport officials said that depending on the demand, the Champaign stop may be eliminated on some trips.

Britt will mainly be flying Beechcraft

99s which are 13-passenger planes requiring two pilots. Covalt said all of the Britt planes have been built since 1970.

Airport authority members said they hope Britt will be able to pick up a portion of those people from Coles County who fly out of other airports. Currently, nearly 60 percent of county residents opt for other airports. Officials said that one major reason why many county residents opt for other airports is the inconvenience of Ozark's schedules, which are determined by mail connections.

Explosion rattles Gano Welding Supplies store

by Dylan Higgins

A fire and explosion injuring one person occurred Wednesday afternoon at the Gano Welding Supplies at 320 Railroad Avenue, Charleston.

The explosion, which occurred about 2:30, happened in the basement of the factory where several chemical cylinders are stored.

Fire Chief Melvin Taylor said the cause and the amount of damage are unknown. Taylor said he would release a formal statement Thursday morning.

Gano worker Mike Prince said he believed the injured man, Rod Franklin of 1514 12th St. had been working with one of the ethylene cylinders when it exploded.

Prince said he had no idea how the explosion happened.

"The three of us (Prince and two other workers) were standing outside when we heard this loud noise, and then felt a rush of hot air which knocked me down the drive. After I fell, I went in and tried to get Rod out," he said.

Prince said that Franklin was burned, but that he walked out to the ambulance.

A spokesman for Sarah Bush Hospital said that Franklin was in satisfactory condition. She declined to make any comment on the extent of his injuries.

Rathskeller reports profit increase of $13,800

These students munch on sandwiches and hot plates served in the Rathskeller daily. Besides providing food services for the students and faculty, the Rathskeller is also the scene for the University Board-sponsored Coffeehouse among other events. This year the Rathskeller reported a 53 percent increase in profits from last year. (News photo by Bob Kasinecz)

by Dyna Cole

The Union addition Rathskeller's profit this year is approximately $13,800 ahead of last year at this time, head of union food services John Hall said Wednesday.

At the end of October, 1979, the Rathskeller showed profits of almost $39,000, 53 percent more than the figures for the same time period in 1978.

Hall said the closing of the Union Cafeteria last year and the expanding of the Rathskeller menu were two causes of the boom in business.

"The cafeteria closed, so more students came to the Rathskeller. We added hot entrees to the afternoon menu. The Rathskeller is making money," Hall said.

"As it stands, out of every dollar, eight cents is profit," he added.

Hall said approximately 350 students eat in the Union per day and about 170 eat there on Sundays.

President Carter said Wednesday the Iranian crisis is "a vivid reminder of the need for a strong and united America" and proposed a five-year boost in defense spending.

Carter said his proposal is designed to meet Soviet challenges and allow quicker U.S. reaction in remote trouble spots.

In his first policy address since the crisis began, Carter said the United States "must be prepared to deal with hostile actions against our citizens or our vital interests."

Richard L. Jones, a financier on trial for fraud, claimed his California partner misled him into writing a $1.68-trillion IOU that Jones acknowledged was "worthless," testimony given Wednesday in the federal trial showed.

Jones, 41, of Bloomington, told a grand jury probing the case last spring that he was the victim of fraud, not the perpetrator, a portion of the grand jury transcript read in open court showed.

South Korean security forces seized the country's martial-law commander Wednesday after a blazing gunbattle and held him for questioning in the assassination of President Park Chung-Hee, informed sources said.

Park's admitted assassin, former Korean CIA chief Kim Jae-kyu, gave secret testimony apparently implicating the commander, Gen. Chung Seung-hwa, in the plot that led to Park's death Oct. 26, the sources said.

The State Department on Wednesday ordered the expulsion of 183 Iranian diplomats from the United States within five days.

The order made it clear that the action was being taken as a result of the continuing crisis in which Iranian militants have held 50 Americans hostage in Tehran since Nov. 4.

Revenue officials decide on tax reduction products

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The one-cent Illinois sales tax reduction on Jan. 1 will apply to dandruff shampoo, vitamins and pregnancy testing kits, but not to hair tonics, beauty shampoo or disposable diapers.

The consumer will get a reduced tax on corrective eyeglasses but not plain sunglasses, on Band-aids but not on non-sterile cotton swabs, on artificial limbs but probably not on artificial breasts to compensate for a mastectomy.

These are some of the decisions state revenue officials were faced with in devising regulations to implement the new law providing a sales tax reduction on food, medicine and medical appliances.

The law, passed this fall by the Legislature, will reduce the 4 percent state sales tax to 3 percent on such items intended for human consumption or use. However, it leaves intact local add-on sales taxes of from 1 to 2 percent. The measure is expected to save a family of four an average of about $36 a year in taxes. The proposed regulations were made public Wednesday by the state Department of Revenue, which had to wrestle with deciding what would qualify as food and medicine and thus the reduced sales tax.

"It's a real interesting thing to do, when you consider all the bizarre products there are," said James B. Zagel, state revenue director.

Caterpillar nears strike settlement

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Buoyed by two days of progress, the chief bargainer for the Caterpillar Tractor Co. said Wednesday he will present "a complete proposal for settlement" Thursday morning with hopes of ending the longest strike ever against the firm.

Cliff Hathway said after contract talks recessed Wednesday that the company's proposal will cover all issues in the proposed new three-year pact with the United Auto Workers. He indicated the two sides are moving toward settlement but cautioned that several major issues still need to be resolved.

Students more open sexually: Woods

by Susan Schlanser

College students' attitudes toward premarital sex are becoming increasingly more open, but they are not as promiscuous as the media portrays them, human sexuality instructor Susan Woods said in a University Board lecture Tuesday.

Woods said many people believe college students do "just about everything with just about everyone."

But actually, "what's increased is a revolution of openness in attitude," Woods said.

Woods said she compared a collection of studies presented in the textbook used in her human sexuality classes and found the increase in the number of college students having intercourse from 1959 to 1979 is not as great as many people believe.

Woods said the studies taken in 1959 showed approximately 54 percent of the men and 37 percent of the college women had intercourse at least once in their lives.

She said the 1979 figures show 66 percent of the college men and 63 percent of the college women have had sex.

She said the 26 percent increase in women is probably because the double standard of "what is right for men is not right for women" is equalizing.

Woods said 20 years ago men were more likely to have sex with someone who they had no affection for. She said this could have been a result of many men's needs to have a virgin as a wife. She said today this need has decreased and men are more likely to be emotionally involved with their sex partner.

In understanding sexual relationships, Woods said people should not push anything and should try to understand each other's life styles.

She offered six questions a person should ask himself before he does anything.

1. Are you able to choose freely?
2. Have you considered all the alternatives?
3. Have you considered all the consequences?
4. Is your choice consistent with your own values and principles?
5. Do you feel good about what you are doing? If you don't, don't do it.

6. Are you willing to take the risk?

Woods said monogamy is our culture's ideal for a sexual relationship.

"Ideally we want one person we can be close to," she said.

However, Woods presented studies which showed that today, 70 percent of the men and five percent of the women have at least one sexual relationship with a person outside their marriage within the first ten years of their marriage.

Woods also said homosexuality has not increased and is only becoming a more open topic of discussion.

She said according to a study done by Masters and Johnson, the percentage of homosexuals has not changed since 1900.

She said 15 to 20 percent of college students are homosexually orientated.

She also said Eastern is very much like other colleges in its percentage of homosexuals.

Other statistics Woods found in the human sexuality textbook on the sexual behaviours of college students included those on masturbation, erotic dreams, petting, including everything short of intercourse and oral sex.

Susan Woods

According to the 1979 statistics, 95 percent of the men and 82 percent of the women masturbate, 99 percent of the men and 70 percent of the women have erotic dreams, 93 percent of the men and 90 percent of the women have petted, and 60 percent of the men and 32 percent of the women have had oral sex.

These studies are taken from people who have done these things at least once, she said.

Students can return textbooks to Buzzard

Students can return this semester's textbooks at the new location of the textbook library in the north gym of the Buzzard Education Building, Director Richard Sandefer said Wednesday.

Sandefer said the library will be open through finals week from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

EditorialStudent government must follow up on its projects

It appears the Student Senate will end this semester and the decade facing perhaps its most challenging semester.

The senate, under the administration of Student Body President Bill Houlihan has started some projects which have been proposed under the past two administrations.

The legal service was proposed originally as a 'students helping students' program which would have pre-law students giving advice on legal matters. The refinements to the idea which were made under the Houlihan administration has made the present legal service plan stronger and possibly more beneficial. The legal service has come closest to other plans to actually implement the services; since approval by the Board of Governors is the final step before the service can be implemented.

The escort service is another proposal for which the need had been recognized by previous administrations, but until this year nothing much was done about.

And, of course, the Higher Education Conference sponsored in November by student government had the potential for improving the relationship between students, student government, and elected officials, who in turn have a direct effect upon the state of higher education. We believe the idea of an annual conference of this sort can work.

This is not to say, however, that the organization within student government has been the best, since student senators have been blasted for being un-cooperative and disinterested. There also were minor problems about election conduct and the personal conduct of some of the student government members.

So student senators have a reason to be pleased; they have done their semester's work well. But we would caution them not to rest while there still is work to be finished.

Other issues must be dealt with, such as student apathy. Innovative programs possibly could get them involved.

We acknowledge that the present administration has performed an admirable job, but as long as students do not vote and remain unmotivated, there is room for improvement.

Letters to the editorLetter rebuttal

Editor,

Well, well, well! I'm glad to see Eastern has a self-professed "Expert on Iranian politics" — a title which the author of "Wrong moves" implicitly ascribed to himself in his recent letter to the editor. He very neatly foisted in his personal dissent under the pretense of concern about student apathy. I'm not writing this letter to score a low blow, but rather to rebut the letter which I feel was grossly out of line.

We have all heard the allegations concerning the shah; and for now that's all they are — allegations. The Iranian people and the Khomeini regime have access to the greatest forum available to any nation in the world — the U.N. Security Council. This represents the chance for them to vent their proverbial spleens about the shah and the United States.

Why don't they do it? Because they must stonewall enormous problems engulfing the Khomeini regime; problems of still further revolt, of a faltering economy, of pressure from the outside world, and of a dubious leadership, that's why. The latest example which supports this statement is the allowance of the oh so timely interview of an American hostage — an obvious attempt to minimize attention given to the anti-Khomeini uprising in northern Iran.

Right now they have a safe bet. We're not about to give back the shah as long as our people are held hostage, and they know it. That buys Khomeini some time to think (maybe even to act) while they divert as much attention as possible away from more pressing problems. No one can dispute the fact that the return of the shah is not nearly as important to Iran as restoring law, order, and stability within its borders.

As far as the United States (and, for that matter, the rest of the civilized world) is concerned, the shah's guilt or innocence is not the issue. What is the issue is the flagrantly terroristic methods used to Khomeini and company to coerce the United States to return the shah. The taking of hostages can in no way, nor for any reason, be justified as a viable channel by which a nation can achieve its goals or settle its vendettas. It would be a foolish move indeed for the United States to return the shah in exchange for our people. This would unquestionably invite similar incidences.

No, our citizens must be returned — unconditionally — before any action against the shah is considered. If that means giving Khomeini the time he so desperately needs, then so be it.

As world pressure mounts, internal unrest worsens, and his country's economy decays; the good ayatollah may well find himself between a rock and a hard place. With Iran's problems resting squarely on his shoulders, he will have to give ground — one way or another.

James A. Mitchell

Iran protesters

Editor,

On seeing two men out on the library quad Tuesday morning cleaning graffiti off the sidewalk and Fine Arts Building, I was reminded to write concerning our campus protestors against Iran.

At least they call themselves protestors. I call them meatheads — typical college students who like to use dirty words and display their 8th grade mentality.

I was really appalled when I read the Monday paper's column about the signs in the Thomas Hall windows. I wasn't on campus over the weekend, I haven't seen those signs, and I don't care to remember the names of the three residents interviewed. As a halfway intelligent person, these are not people with whom I would like to associate, nor ones whose opinions I would respect.

If "Iran sucks s..." is the "American way" of putting a thing, then all the world is uncivilized and I'd sooner be Iranian — at least they know how to protest.

Politics isn't a joke, but these people seem to think it is. If we want the world to take us college "kids" seriously, we're just going to have to resort to using decent English.

Do the U.S. a favor: don't go to Iran to fight. just grow up.

Name withheld

Lack of focus

Editor,

Had I known that I was risking the scathing wit of Paul Pinderski, "easily the funniest man at the Eastern News," I might have thought twice about my letter on the anti-Iranian demonstrations.

At the risk of further satire, however, I have a couple of observations occasioned by his editorial comments.

Although I realize that staff changes make it hard to generalize, two factors have characterized the Eastern News' editorial policy for as long as I can remember: 1) lack of focus, and 2) failure to stand for anything.

The editorial on the anti-Iranian demonstrations clearly showed the lack of focus so often seen in the News. This editorial talked around the issues instead of addressing them. If I drew the wrong conclusions from this piece, the Eastern News is at least partly to blame.

For years the News has been concerned with what have been called "school lunch and canoe safety" editorials: the non-controversial stands that pose the least danger of offending anyone.

Worse, whenever pressed on an editorial stand, the News begins a stream of journalistic cant to escape responsibility for its opinions.

I've often felt that the paper's policy should be clearly printed on the editorial page: "Views expressed on this page do not necessarily represent the views of the editors, the staff, the copy desk or the receptionist. We do occasionally get an idea or two from the man who empties the trash but it's not his fault, either. Most editorials you can chalk up to deliberate sabotage, marsh gas or computer error."

Robert Singleton

Support ERA

Editor,

This is an open letter to the student body of Eastern Illinois University:

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the U.S. or by any state on account of sex."

This is the proposed 35th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. It can change the lives of both men and women in the future but it can't do it without your support.

A committee, by the name of the Equal Rights Action Committee, has been formed on Eastern's campus to insure passage in 1980 of the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois. If you believe in human rights, then we feel you should believe in the amendment.

This letter was signed by 80 ERA supporters

Protesting News

Editor,

I don't see how the Eastern News can say that painting anti-Iranian slogans on campus property is a welcome sight. It isn't because it defaces property and shows ignorance on the student's part and the Eastern News for saying it's a welcome sight encouraging students to do more.

I also can't see the Eastern News interviewing people in Thomas Hall who put signs up in their windows when one of the rooms did it just to follow the other rooms. But at the march, the reporters asked questions to the group of eight, one of which was me. They should have talked to us individually or asked for a representative of the group.

I would also like to give a few words to Robert Singleton who wrote there was lack of substance and understanding of the situation by us demonstrators. Well, we know the situation and understand it, that's why we went out to show our support. I can't see how he said it was the same juvenile frustrations that also sustain panty raids and fraternity initiations.

I've taken part in race riots at Marquette Park in Chicago, disco demo night at Sox Park, panty raids and fraternity initiations and the anti-Iranian march here last Sunday. I think all have real meaning and backing except for panty raids and disco demo night. The rest were support to protect something, or just show support for hostages. Fraternity initiations have meaning to all who are in them so don't put them down either.

You think we should send the shah back after all he did for the people of Iran then turn on him and want him dead. He might have been corrupt but Iran was moving forward in the economic world not backwards like now under the ayatollah who is probably worse to the people than the shah was.

Also the shah was one of our best allies who let us set up a radar and other observation equipment to keep track on the Russians. He made his country an island of stability in that part of the world for United States to be in and possibly use. And you still say send the shah back. Never. Think it over.

If anybody reading this feels the same, come to the anti-Iranian march Friday at 3 p.m. in the South Quad.

Union to offer recreation for students during finals

by Laura Rzepka

The University Union will be the center for food, study, cartoons and free bowling and billiards during finals week, Graduate Assistant Kathy Hewing, coordinator of marketing and promotion for the Union said.

"The Union should be a part of the educational program. Students need a break during finals," Hewing said.

Recreation activities include free bowling and billiards from 4 to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday in the Union bowling alley. Students need their I.D. card and can also borrow shoes free, Hewing said.

The turnout of students will determine how many games each student can bowl, she added.

Videotapes of "Rocky the Flying Squirrel" and "Bullwinkle the Moose" will be shown in the Union walkway lounge, she said.

The "heart of the program" is the study area which will be open from Sunday to Tuesday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

Free coffee will be served all night, Hewing said.

The Union addition vending lounge will remain open until 7 a.m. on Wednesday and Thursday and will also have free coffee.

The Union addition Bookstore will give away free pencils with any purchase from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Energy food can be purchased at the Lobby Shop during the week. One-quarter pound of French burnt peanuts will cost 25 cents.

The Panther Lair will offer two pancakes, two pieces of bacon, orange juice and coffee for $1.25. This breakfast will be served starting at 7 a.m. Monday through Thursday.

The Union cafeteria, which has been closed all semester, will offer a noon buffet on Thursday and Friday. The buffet will include three types of meat, vegetables, salad and beverage for $2.50, Hewing said.

This is the first year the program has been offered, she said. Steve Grove, director of Union operations had the idea of the Grand Ballroom study area and Hewing came up with the rest of the program.

UB Open Stage performance set

The University Board will feature Open Stage as its Thursday coffeehouse presentation, UB Coffeehouse coordinator Jan Knoche said Wednesday.

The performances will be held every five minutes from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Union addition Grand Ballroom, Knoche said.

Those performing include Quantel Mathis, Al Hibbert and Mike Latinette, Bill Burt, Jay Botsch, the group, "Montage," Stuart Haughee and Tim Sheffield, Todd Carrier and John Kleinstieber, Jenny Graham, Diane Druffel, Bill Minott and Elise Hempel and Dean Nelson.

Admission price is 50 cents.

Katherine and Petruchio, alias Donna Perone and Peter Samuel will be headed for Northern Illinois University in January to present the Taming of the Shrew at the regional College Theater Festival. This year marks the fourth time in four years Eastern has been invited to perform at the festival.

'Shrew' production slated for Northern arts festival

by Juli Wahlund

Eastern's theater arts department has been invited to present "The Taming of the Shrew" at the regional College Theater Festival, Director E.G. Gabbard said Wednesday.

The presentation will be given on Jan. 31 at Northern Illinois University.

The invitation to perform came during last Sunday's matinee, Gabbard added.

This will be Eastern's fourth appearance in the Festival since 1976, he said.

The winner of the regional competition will then appear at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington next spring, he said.

Gabbard said he was pleased at the invitation. "This is my first Shakespeare and I'm delighted with the outcome," he said.

Nominations for the Irene Ryan Acting Award were given to Peter Samuel, who portrays Petruchio and is being nominated for the third time, and to Randy Haege for his portrayal of Grumio, Gabbard said.

Final presentations of "Shrew" will be Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre.

J. Sain of the theater department said plenty of tickets are available for both performances.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for youth and senior citizens and $2 for students. They can be purchased at the Fine Arts ticket office between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. and at least one hour before the performance, Sain said. Phone reservations are also being accepted, he added.

Drinking water tested for bacteria

by Dru Sefton

The water Eastern students drink is tested 13 times a month by the Eastern water quality laboratory to comply with standards set by Environmental Protection Agency guidelines, William Weiler of the botany department said.

Weiler, director of Eastern's water quality laboratory, said Charleston tests its water 23 times a month to meet the requirements established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Weiler said the EPA tests the first six samples free, and Eastern's laboratory does the rest.

Steve Buxton, supervisor of the Charleston water works, said his workers draw their samples for the EPA during the first week of the month, send six to the EPA, and the results are back "within about a week."

"But if we felt something was wrong, we could get the results back as soon as 24 hours," Buxton said.

Weiler said Eastern's lab is certified "strictly for bacterial work, not for toxic chemicals."

Although it is not certified to do toxic chemical research, Weiler said the lab is capable of this kind of work, but the results are not official.

"We have facilities to test for flouride, nitrates, ammonia, Ph level and hardness," Weiler said.

Weiler said for business testing there is a fee, but the testing of private wells is done "as a public service" by the lab.

"We realize very little money," Weiler said. "When we do charge, it is a very nominal cost."

Weiler said the lab sometimes tests disinfecting systems for businesses like Culligan, and occasionally tests campground water and swimming pools.

Weiler said the standards set by the EPA "are such that there is almost no chance of the transmission of disease" if the water sample passes the test.

"The chances of the water even being slightly contaminated is one in hundreds of thousands," Weiler said.

Most of the bad samples Weiler had "were attributed to faulty collection," such as through a dirty tap, Weiler said.

Weiler said if a bad sample is ever received and confirmed by the EPA, a boil order is issued to residents in the area, urging them to boil water before drinking it.

CAA to act on class changes

The Council on Academic Affairs will take action Thursday on proposed courses in history and geology and on the Council on University Planning and Budgeting mission and goals statement, Chairman Stephen Whitley said.

The history course, history 2100, "Afro-American History" will be part of course revisions slated for the Afro-American studies major this year.

The new geology course proposals include geology 3410, "Petroleum Geology," geology 3490, "Coal Geology," and geology 4480, "Optical Mineralogy."

Athletic director screening, search process set

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin Wednesday announced a two-tier screening and search process for the athletic director to replace Mike Mullally.

Mullally accepted the AD position at California State-Fullerton last week.

Marvin said he wanted to conduct the search for Mullally's replacement "as quickly as possible while at the same time providing means for an appropriate input from the campus and to the community."

The university president said he hoped the search process' first tier, a seven-member screening committee, will be able to recommend to him candidates for invitation to the campus by the first of February.

The second tier, which will include the screening committee, coaching staffs, a group representing campus at large and another including the alumni and community representatives, will then interview several candidates, and then Marvin make the final decision by the first of March.

Jimmie Franklin, Eastern's NCAA

Marvin prefers outsider for AD

Current members of Eastern's athletic department probably do not have much of a chance at the vacant athletic director's position.

President Daniel E. Marvin said Wednesday he "preferred to go off-campus for the man to replace Mike Mullally.

Eastern head football coach Darrell Mudra said last week he planned to apply for the AD post, but Marvin, who has the final say after a two-tier screening and search process, said he does not favor hiring anyone currently faculty representative, will head the seven-member screening committee.

Other members are Lewis H. Coon, faculty co-chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletic Board; James Borschel, student co-chairman of the IAB; Associate Athletic Director Joan Schmidt; Student Body President Bill Houlihan, women's basketball coach at Eastern.

"What we want is someone with fresh ideas and some new contacts," Marvin said. "We've already got all the contacts Mike Mullally had, but if we get someone new, we'll have all those contacts plus those of new man."

Marvin also said he wanted someone "who has experience at running a program or someone who has been an assistant at a large university."

"I think we'll be okay as far as applicants are concerned," Marvin added.

Bobbie Hilke and a member of the men's coaching staff to be named.

Assistant Athletic Director Ron Paap said some of the men's coaches were not present at a meeting Wednesday, so the representative of the men's coaching staff will be selected after all the coaches are contacted.

Paap will be responsible for men's athletics until the new athletic director is named, while Schmidt will be in charge of the women's program, Marvin said. Franklin will serve as liaison between the two directors and the president's office.

Public Service and Development Director Wayne Owens, will coordinate and assist Paap and Schmidt with the annual athletic fund-raising campaign.

The 12-member campus-wide interview committee will include three faculty members to be named by the Faculty Senate; three students to be selected by the Student Senate; one staff member each from Housing, Student Activities and University Relations and Alumni Services; and three persons appointed by Marvin.

Marvin said he will appoint the members of the community interview group after consultation with alumni officials and representatives of the Panther Club, an athletic booster organization.

Panthers rout NEMO 85-51 for fourth straight

Craig DeWitt shoots for two of his game-high 17 points in Eastern's 85-51 romp over Northeast Missouri State Wednesday night at Lantz Gym. DeWitt also led the Panthers with 10 rebounds. Eastern will compete in the Illini Classic in Champaign this weekend before returning to Lantz Gym to host Armstrong State, the nation's top-ranked NCAA Division II team on Monday night. by Andy Savoie

Eastern's basketball team tuned up for its Friday night battle with Illinois State by bombing Northeast Missouri State 85-51 Wednesday night for the Panthers' fourth victory in as many tries this season.

"I thought it was a pretty solid game," Panther head coach Don Eddy said. "We were kind of flat in the first half, but our defense was pretty consistent."

The Panthers never trailed in the one-sided contest, but had to struggle to a 37-26 first half lead before blowing out the Bulldogs in the second half.

"We had size on them inside. They just kind of went cold and we got some nice fast break baskets," Eddy said.

Indeed, a good majority of the Panther scores came on fast breaks, many of them courtesy of Eastern center Dennis Mumford, who scored 13 points and had seven rebounds.

But Mumford was just one of four Panthers in double figures on the evening, as forwards Craig DeWitt and Ricky Robinson tallied 17 and 13 points while guard Warren Patten chipped in 12.

Eastern's women's basketball team was defeated 77-61 by intra-state rival Illinois State Wednesday at Lantz Gym.

The Panthers jumped to an early 8-5 lead four minutes into the game, but soon fell behind and never caught up.

Cold shooting and 23 turnovers plagued the Panthers in the first half. Eastern hit 12 of 33 field goal attempts to fall behind 39-28 at the half.

The poor shooting continued into the second half, except for 5-foot-6 freshman guard Nancy Kassebaum, who scored a game total of 22 points.

"Our shooting percentage stunk," coach Bobbie Hilke said. "We were averaging 74 points a game, which is a

"I thought Mumford and Robinson had pretty good games, and our guard play was solid," Eddy said.

Northeast Missouri's rather haphazard offense, on the other hand, shot an anemic 31.2 percent from the field. This enabled the Panthers to amass a whopping 52-34 rebounding advantage, and these rebounds were the starting point of many of the Panthers' breakaway baskets.

"They create that (type of play)," Eddy said. "You're going to have some turnovers, but you'll get the cripplers too."

These cripplers also helped the Panthers recover from a sub-par first half to post a respectable 51.4 shooting percentage from the field.

"We were sluggish offensively early, but our defense held up pretty well the whole game," Eddy said.

higher average than Illinois State had. We should have put them away."

Although Hilke wasn't pleased with the offense, she felt the Panther defense was exceptional.

"I was really pleased with our defense. They didn't lose concentration at all. The defense is what really kept us in the ball game," she said.

Eastern outrebounded the Redbirds 34-27.

Eastern had only nine fouls called on them the entire game, yet five of those fouls cost the Panthers the help of 6-foot-1 center Jo Huber.

Huber left the game with a total of 12 points with 8:06 left in the game.
