Sig Taus head blood donors list

by Jean DuBrave

Sigma Tau Gamma captured first place in the fraternity division of Eastern's Spring Blood Drive with 97.1 percent of their members donating, Walter Lowell, blood drive adviser said Monday.

Lambda Chi Alpha came in second place with 57.5 percent and the Beta Sigma Psi fraternity took third place with 38.5 percent.

Lowell said that statistics from the Red Cross show that only four percent of the American population give blood.

"It is really surprising to find that here at Eastern 14 percent of the students have given blood twice in the last six months," Lowell said.

Lowell said that out of the 1,397 pints donated this spring, 1,100 of the donors were campus students.

The top three women's residence halls and their percentage of blood donated include: McKinney with 26.2 percent in first place; Lincoln with 22.4 percent; and Pemberton with 22.1 percent.

Winners in the men's residence halls are East Hall, 22.2 percent; Stevenson Tower, 20 percent; and Weller Hall 16.1 percent.

Sorority winners include Kappa Delta, 50 percent; Alpha Sigma Alpha, 45.5 percent; and Alpha Phi, 23.3 percent.

Lowell said that the name of the top ranking organization in each of the four categories will be engraved in a plaque displayed in Old Main.

The award ceremony will take place at 4 p.m. March 21 in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon Room.

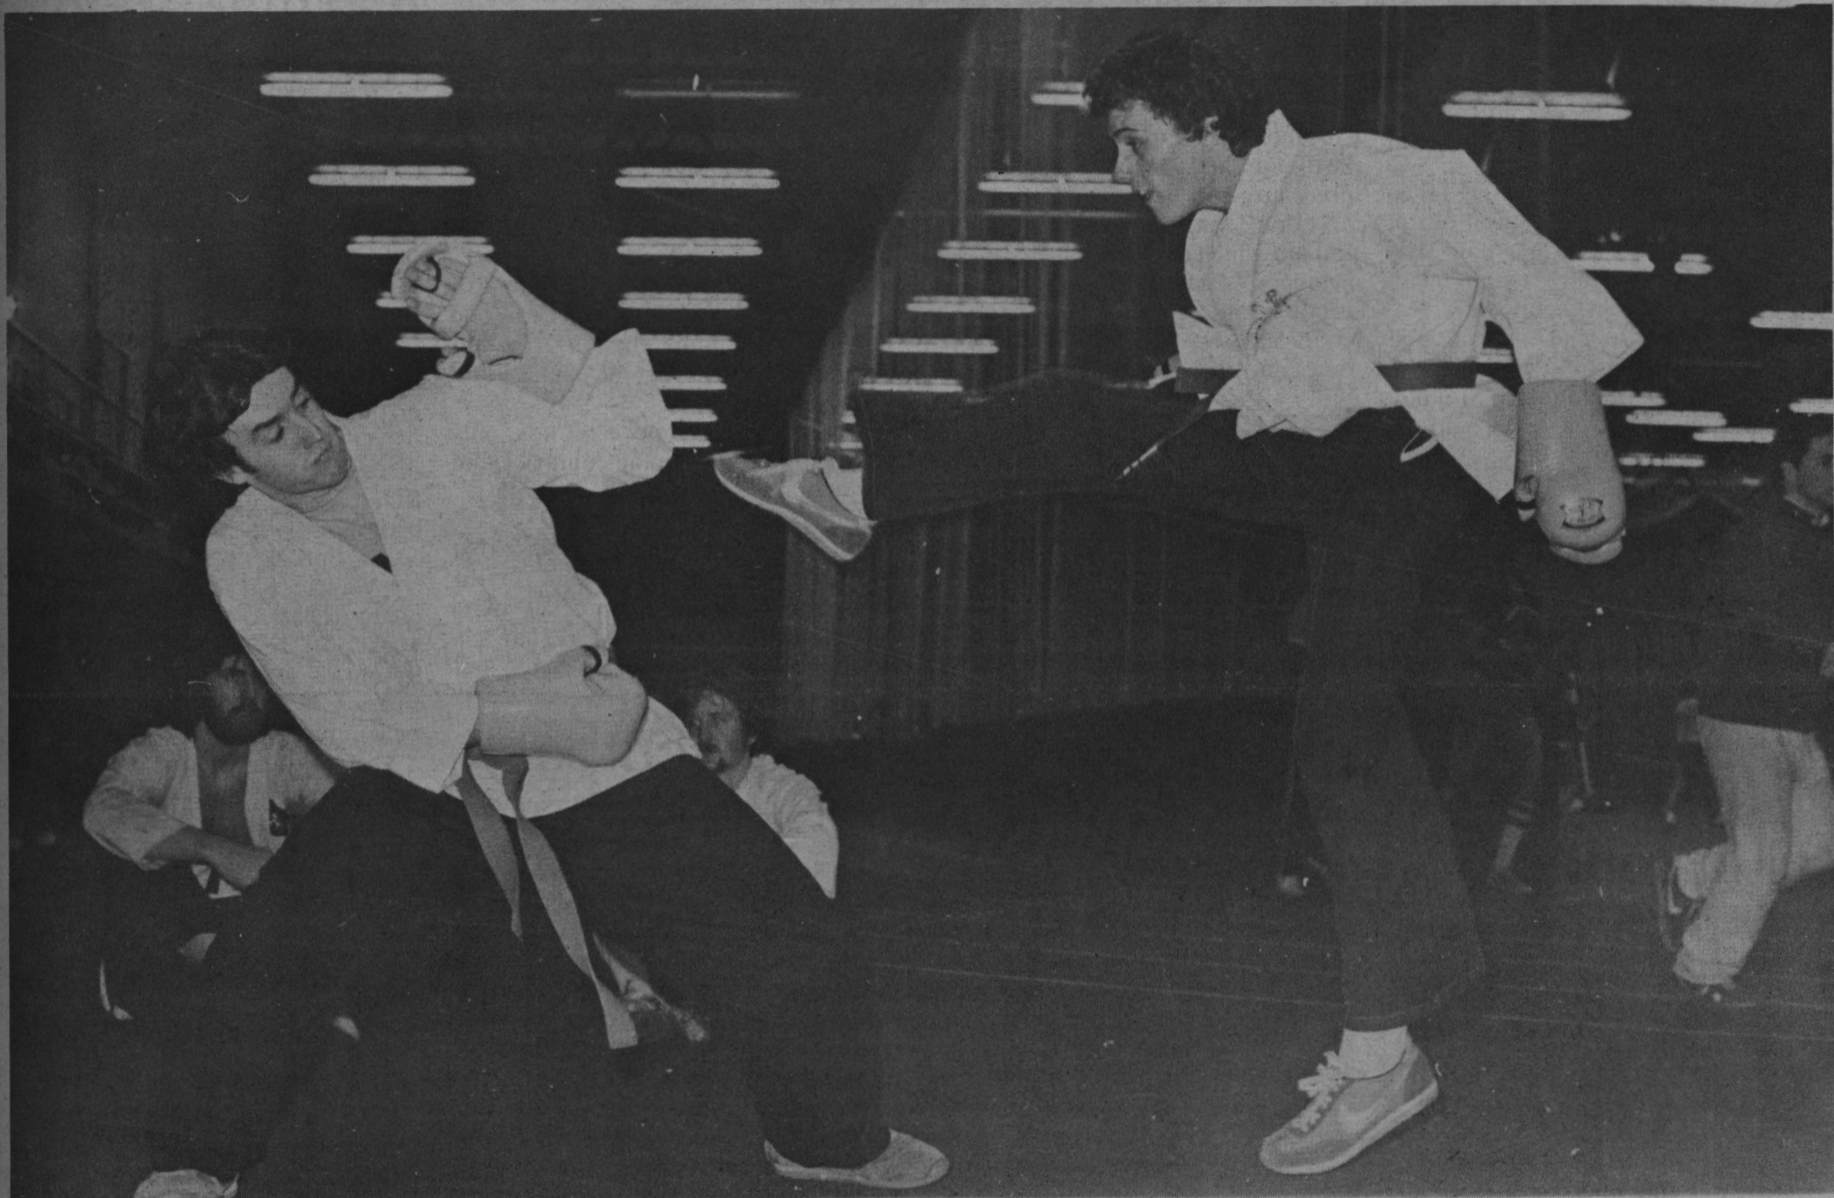

The ceremony will be open to the public, Lowell said.

Carter to revisit Cairo for more peace talks

CAIRO, EGYPT (AP) — President Carter will return to Cairo from Israel Tuesday for further peace talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the official Middle East News Agency reported Monday.

Carter, the agency said, had told the Egyptian President in a telephone call from Jerusalem Monday that he will make a stopover in Cairo on his way home.

Sadat and Carter are to hold talks at Cairo airport, the agency said.

Sadat spent Monday praying for a peace treaty at a small mosque, while the Egyptian media blamed Israel for haggling and official Cairo radio said Israeli leaders must "raise their heads from the sand."

As Egyptians awaited word on the outcome of President Carter's talks with the Israelis, the most vigorous reaction came from the radio which spoke of a "last chance to save the peace process" and hinted strongly that Carter now must choose sides.

Israeli leaders "cannot have peace without withdrawal from all occupied Arab land and the establishment of a Palestinian state as a basic right," Cairo radio broadcast.

President Sadat stayed in seclusion at his villa near the Nile and drove himself to a mosque in a small white car.

On the way he passed tattered banners that proclaimed, "Welcome Carter Man of Peace,"— reminders of his three days of peace talks with President Carter.

An aide described Sadat's mood as "neutral."

But on the streets, the mood was far different.

"I feel very sad for President Carter," said donkey driver Safwad Mohammed. "He will go home with a broken heart."

But nobody blamed Carter, who left Cairo for Jerusalem Sunday night after receiving the cheers of the Egyptian public.

"We have sown the seed of the tree of peace. Now the world sees the Israelis trying to water it with poison," said Ibrahim Saber, a butcher.

"Sadat trusts in God, and he will be victorious no matter what the Israelis do," said coffee shop proprietor Ali Marzouk. "He has decided on peace, and we will follow him, but if he decides on war we will stand behind him."

Some were optimistic, surveying American and Egyptian flags.

"I feel good when I see those American flags fluttering side by side with our flags. They seem to speak to me that peace is coming," said laundry deliveryman Mohammed Ibrahim.

But when it became clear that peace was not so easily in hand, Egyptians didn't give up.

Merchant Rashad Ahmed said, "These Jews are masters of bargaining. They insist on a high price until the buyer gets up and leaves the shop, then they call him back and settle on a much lower price."

China to occupy land in Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand—Chinese officials were quoted Monday as saying their troops would occupy some territory held by the Vietnamese before China's invasion of Vietnam.

Bangkok analysts confirmed that the Chinese slowly are pulling out of Vietnam. But one highly placed source said Chinese officials here told diplomats that their forces would occupy some "bases" from which the Vietnamese allegedly staged raids into China.

Meanwhile, Vietnam, after recalling some 10,000 troops from Cambodia and units from Laos and southern Vietnam, appeared to be reaching the peak of its military build-up in the north.

In the multi-faceted Indochina conflict, there also were reports from Vietnam of Chinese troops massing on the Chinese-Laotian border.

China said the Laotian government had demanded the withdrawal of Chinese experts and an end to Chinese aid.

And the ambassador of the fallen Cambodian regime of Premier Pol Pot claimed Monday that Vietnam has reinforced its invading troops with three new divisions in Cambodia.

In an effort to put its battered economy on a wartime footing, the Vietnamese also announced Monday that virtually every citizen would be required to perform daily military duties.

The Chinese announced March 5 that they would withdraw their invasion force of 100,000.

But the Vietnamese moves of troop buildup and citizen mobilization probably were triggered, analysts said, by fear of a Chinese "trick" and because heavy Vietnamese casualties made Hanoi feel vulnerable.

Prison control still in danger

SPRINGFIELD—Street-gangs could continue to control Stateville Prison at Joliet despite a massive weapons shakedown unless prison guards with gang affiliations are weeded out, the former state correction director said Monday.

"You can shake down every day and it's not going to make any difference," Charles Rowe said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Your institution is only as good as the people who staff it."

(A) News shorts

Rowe, 38, was fired from his post in December by Gov. James R. Thompson.

Thompson appointed his chief adviser on prison matters, Gayle Franzen, 34, to replace Rowe. Rowe's job became the center of controversy last summer following a July 22 inmate riot at Pontiac Prison in which three guards were killed.

Franzen ordered the biggest shakedown for weapons and contraband ever conducted in the state on Feb. 24 at Stateville.

Search teams, aided by dogs, have found about 600 weapons, drugs, gasoline and alcohol, said Woody Mosgers, corrections' public information officer.

Rowe said that whether the Stateville shakedown will wrest control from Chicago street-gang members depends partly on how many of 200 guards hired since July belong to those gangs.

"I don't know if we're ever going to find out which of these guards are gang members," Mosgers said. "It's a situation that we doubt we are going to be able to stop—but we hope to put some controls on it."

Iranian women march in protest

TEHRAN, Iran—About 10,000 chanting Iranian women, guarded by armed Marxist People's Fedayeen militiamen, marched in Tehran Monday in the fourth day of protest against loss of freedoms under Iran's new Islamic rulers.

In an apparent effort to defuse the protest, a deputy prime minister said women civil servants would not be required to wear traditional dress, and Dariush Forouhar, minister of labor and social welfare, said women factory workers would continue to enjoy equal rights and "to be able to be elected to office."

Moslem zealots, who attacked several women in a Friday protest in Tehran, stayed behind cordons strung by men accompanying the marchers. The zealots, some wearing the traditional head-to-ankle black "chador," carried posters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khoemini and shouted "prostitutes" and "naked women" at the marchers.

Several chador-clad women passed out handbills condemning the marchers' Western-style dress and their wish to compete with men.

Several dozen women were reported to have broken a car's windows near the offices of Iran's national radio and television.

FAO calls for poverty assault

ROME—The head of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization said Monday that more than a billion people live in "absolute poverty and destitution" and said the problem is getting worse. He called for a worldwide "direct assault on poverty."

"We must design and implement a comprehensive strategy which would have a direct impact on economic growth and alleviate poverty," Director General Edouard Saouma of the FAO said in an address to food officials from more than 100 nations discussing agrarian reform and rural development.

"We find that poverty not only persists in all developing countries, but is actually increasing in most," Saouma said.

"It is a tragic anachronism that more than one billion people in the rural areas endure lives of absolute poverty and destitution. More than 450 million people suffer severe undernutrition."

Energy cutback not working out

WASHINGTON—Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Monday that attempts to encourage voluntary energy conservation are proving unsuccessful and mandatory steps—beginning with temperature controls on public buildings—may be invoked this summer.

Schlesinger also told the Senate Energy Committee there may be serious shortages of heating oil, gasoline and jet fuel, despite the resumption of oil exports from Iran.

Inventories of heating oil are below where they should be for this time of year, he said, spelling potential shortages for next winter and "spot shortages" in the coming weeks if there is another cold spell."

And in a heated exchange with Senate critics, Schlesinger denounced what he called "demagoguery" on the Iranian oil crisis and disclosed he had several times tried to resign.

President Carter last month urged all Americans to observe the 55 mph speed limit, eliminate discretionary driving, turn thermostats down to 65 degrees and turn off lights and appliances when not in use.

But, Schlesinger told the committee, "the call for voluntary conservation is not working effectively." He said U.S. daily oil consumption has reached 31 million barrels a day—an all-time high.

Hospital says it can make babies

SPRINGFIELD—A Chicago hospital claims it has the medical know-how to produce "test tube" babies.

The medical procedure, which last year produced the first known test-tube baby has spawned debate in Illinois that promises to grow more heated.

An Illinois House committee last week approved legislation to study the ramifications of procedures that bear children in other than traditional methods.

"This is not in keeping with the laws of God," Rep. Penny Pullen, R-Park Ridge, said of recent medical experiments with "in vitro fertilization" conception outside the womb.

"Maybe instead of studying it, we ought to ban it," Mrs. Pullen said last week, just before the House Human Resources Committee approved a bill creating a commission to study the legal implications of test tube babies.

Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago already has the equipment and medical know-how to experiment with reproducing human life through the process that has come to be known as test tube birth, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

British doctors last year announced the birth of Louise Brown through test tube conception and sparked a controversy centered mostly around moral and religious grounds.

The technique involves impregnating a female egg with male sperm outside a human body and then implanting the embryo inside a woman's womb until birth.

Prokos cites reasons for missing BOG talks

by Pat Sheehy

Eastern's student collective bargaining representative said Monday he missed two American Federation of Teachers—Board of Governors contract negotiations due to circumstances beyond his control.

Dean Prokos said Sunday he was "shocked" at a Student Senate resolution which requires him to present a report on his job performance, but he plans to comply with the request.

The senate passed a motion last Thursday which requires Prokos to appear before the senate with a report summarizing his actions over the past two months or face possible impeachment.

Dean Prokos said, "I've had transportation difficulty, trouble with the weather and communications in Springfield.

"I turned in car requests 12 days in advance only to have them approved and then taken away the day before I'd planned to leave," he added.

"I contacted Dr. Soderberg, assistant to Thomas Bond, Eastern's vice president of Academic Affairs and explained my problem-but she had already made her travel plans," Prokos said.

"I then contacted the bargaining rep from Western and explained the situation to him. He offered to send me his notes," he said.

"I wasn't notified about the recent meeting on Friday, and I called Dr. Soderberg to find out what was going on. We then found out that the office in Springfield had lost my information and were unable to notify me of upcoming events."

Prokos added, "Dr. Soderberg told me it really wasn't necessary that I attend the meeting since the articles they were discussing had no relevance to the students."

"In the near future the AFT-BOG will be discussing the really tough issues and I'm sure it would have helped us if I'd have been present in the past," he said.

Even though I haven't been in attendance I've supplemented my duty by reviewing the minutes and notes," Prokos said.

"How am I to blame if there was no transportation for me to fulfill my obligations?" he said.

The student bargaining representative attends Board of Governors and American Federation of Teachers Contract Negotiations meetings. He is a non-voting member and attends the sessions to provide student input.

Prokos said the job requires confidentiality and added that he would only hurt the students if he went before the senate and gave details.

"I won't jeopardize my position or the students. This job requires a large amount of confidentiality. It is essential," Prokos said.

"The nature of my position is not fully understood. I feel I'm innocent," Prokos said.

Senate speaker Kevin Sandefur defended the Senate's right to know the result of Prokos' efforts.

Sandefur said, "There are ways Prokos could let us know. He can talk in a general sense and let us know how it is going. There's a lot of information he could give us."

Model U.N. recruiting today

by Phil Vettel

The University Model United Nations is looking for a good few ambassadors.

Participation in the model Security Council, scheduled for April 27 and 28 in the University Union, is open to any student, adviser John Faust said.

The club will hold an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Coleman Hall Room 205. Country assignments and topics will be discussed.

The club stages a model Security Council session each semester, Faust said. Two students are assigned to each of the 15 member countries and present their viewpoint on a number of resolutions, Faust added.

Extensive knowledge of world affairs is not necessary to participate, Faust said. Research materials such as general assembly speeches and country voting record will be provided.

Faust said the experience would be very beneficial to students.

"You become more knowledgeable about contemporary crises, and more familiar with different points of view," Faust said. "It's an educational experience," he added.

"Simulation expands your appreciation of these issues more than listening to a teacher's lecture would," Faust said.

Program to be held for high school recruitment

by Melinda DeVries

Plans for a high school recruitment program are in the making, Student Body President Bob Buckley said Thursday.

"Our original idea for the recruitment was to invite huge groups of high school students so that each department could show what they have to offer," Buckley said.

"We were thinking of making it into a big flashy program," Buckley said.

"After talking to students, I decided that maybe a big program is not what we need," he said.

"We are more of a personal school and I think kids like that. That is why I think some type of small, personal program would be better," Buckley explained.

"We could invite a few hundred high school juniors and seniors who have not yet decided where they want to go to college. Then we could divide them into groups according to their major interest so they can talk to those in that department," he added.

"I think we should focus more on the individual and give him personal service," Buckley said.

Although the recruitment is in the planning stages, Buckley said he does not think a recruitment program can be scheduled until next year.

"If we are going to put on a good program I think we are going to have to wait until next year to schedule it," Buckley said.

Liquor hearing set for tonight

The Charleston Liquor Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the city council chambers for its second public hearing.

This hearing will give student and non-student residents a chance for public input on tentative recommendations proposed by the Liquor Commission, Mayor Bob Hickman said.

Hickman added that the hearing should be interesting because "there are radicals on both sides (of the fence)."

One of the recommendations proposed in a commission report is longer bar hours on weekends.

EFS to show Spillane film

The Robert Aldrich film "Kiss Me Deadly" will be shown at 5, 7, and 9 p.m. Tuesday in the Booth Library Lecture Room.

"Kiss Me Deadly" is the Mickey Spillane flick to end all imitations," Eastern Film Society adviser Frank Stokes said recently.

The film stars Ralph Meeker and admission is $1, he said.

For the record

The Eastern News incorrectly stated Monday that the Student Senate voted to join the Illinois Student Association.

The senate voted to make the $200 membership fee available if they do decide to join.

The News regrets the error.

Salary issue demoralizes our best resource

The most vital educational resource Illinois has is being demoralized by the shortsighted budget policies of the state's leaders.

Our faculty members, on whom society depends to educate its members, are finding it increasingly difficult to make a living from teaching in Illinois. Some are leaving. And when we look at why they are leaving, we almost cannot blame them.

This year the salary increase approved by the Board of Higher Education was far below the level needed for faculty to keep up with or catch up to inflation.

Thompson has said only limited funding exists for faculty salaries. That statement is laughable in light of the recent pay increases he and the legislature received.

Although the BHE had originally recommended a 7 percent increase, the board agreed under protest to cut its total budget to meet Gov. James Thompson's lower recommendation, and said it would continue to lobby for its original request. However, the board should have asserted itself in the beginning to adamantly demand higher salaries for faculty.

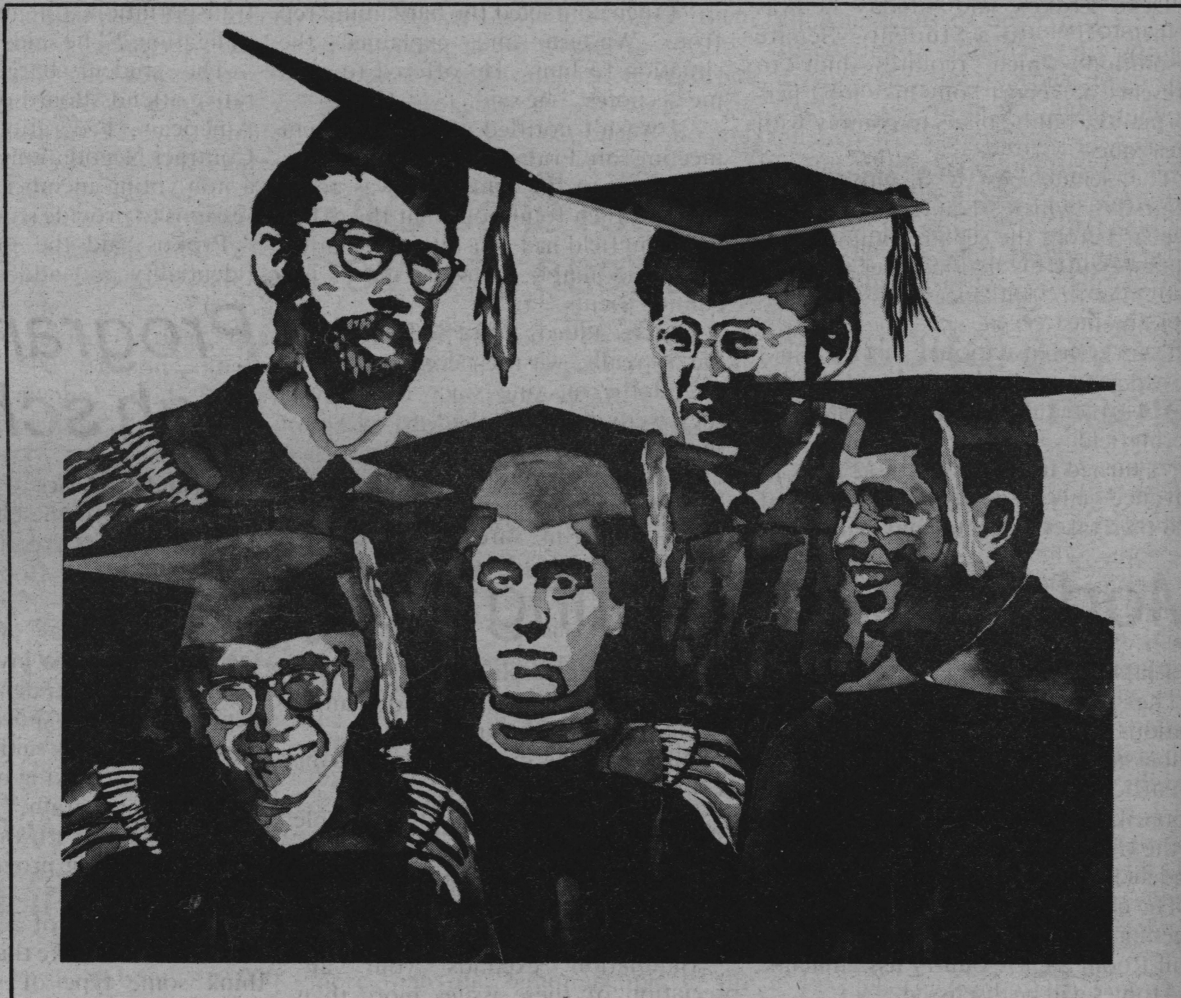

The faculty's only hope of receiving a 7 percent increase lies in $10.2 million in lapsed funds now available for allocation in next year's budget.

We hope Thompson lives up to his past statements that he would give any extra money to faculty salaries and that the BHE's commitment is to lobby strongly for the extra funds.

However, faculty should not have to depend on extra money to fund their salary increases. Those increases should be included within the regular budget and should reflect, at the least, the current cost of living.

Finally, as the BHE's chairman, William Browder, was recently quoted as saying, "there is no economic basis (for the 7 percent limitation in education). It's psychological, political, symbolic. And the faculty have to suffer as a result."

Faculty are not the only ones who will suffer, and the state needs to realize just what its stake is in keeping high caliber faculty here.

The quality of a university depends on its faculty. The learning process is generated by teachers, and the results are directly felt in society. When the excellent teachers leave, the excellent students will begin to follow. They will go to states with a stronger commitment to the education of their citizens, and Illinois will be left with those with weaker preparation and training.

Even though Illinois ranks nationally at the bottom in funding education, the state still has managed to retain good teachers. That will not continue, however, unless Illinois joins the more progressive states in education funding.

We realize the state has only so much money and several areas are clamoring for extra funding.

As a leader, Thompson must choose where the money would be allocated best, and the given the size and needs of Illinois, those choices will not be easy ones.

Thompson's vision must include the importance of education and the corresponding need for adequate money.

As University of Illinois President John Corbally said Saturday, the country cannot afford an uneducated citizenry in today's world.

We agree. We also cannot afford to have a state government whose priorities are so dangerously misplaced.

Letters to the editor

Clarification

Editor:

Please note two corrections of your article on Covenant House (News, March 7, 1979).

First, Mary Smith is mistaken or misquoted in saying that Covenant House is not affiliated with the university in any way. The fact is that Covenant House is operated by the Christian Collegiate Fellowship, an officially recognized organization at Eastern since 1970.

Second, it is not strictly accurate that a resident must be a professing Christian. Rather, each applicant must simply agree to the purpose of the house and to the five points of the covenant: (1) to serve one another and to seek to realize the meaning of our common life in Jesus Christ; (2) to accept responsibility for the functioning of the household (the residents make all their own house rules); (3) to eat two meals together each week; (4) to engage in weekly Bible study and prayer; and (5) to be faithful in Christian worship and ministry with the Christian Collegiate Fellowship — or other congregation or fellowship.

Robert Ross
Adviser to CCF

Public thanks

Editor,

I would like to extend my congratulations to the members of the political science department for the excellent public administration conference held on campus last week. I found the presentations to be highly informative and interesting.

Special congratulations should be accorded Dr. Richard Goodrick, the coordinator of the conference. The event was well-organized, efficiently managed, and a valuable educational experience.

The conference marked its fourth anniversary this year and appears to be growing. It is this kind of activity that enhances the academic reputation of EIU, and I strongly encourage students to attend next year's conference.

The best thing about the event is that it is free to students - a bargain which should not be passed up by anyone.

Jim Curtis

Net bias

Editor,

I maintain that it is not true that grades at this university are inflated.

Of the four institutions with which I have been affiliated, this is the only one which allows drops without a report on passing or failing status beyond the first few days, although I understand this is being shortened.

The student has more time here to discover whether he/she is going to do well or poorly in a course. Consequently most of the weaker students whose poor grades would otherwise be reflected, drop the class, leaving only those students who are doing average work or above.

Forensic squad's successes not debatable

by Heather Ayres

Resolved: Eastern's debate team is one of the most successful teams on campus. For evidence please note the teams record and the trophy case in the first floor, northwest corner of Coleman hall.

Further evidence to be noted is the top team of seniors, Jim Curtis and Al Bucknell, who last week received a bid to the national tournament in April. The tournament will be held at the University of Kentucky.

This bid makes the team one of the top 16 teams in the country and allows them to skip the district tournament to be held at Butler University in Indiana, Bucknell said recently.

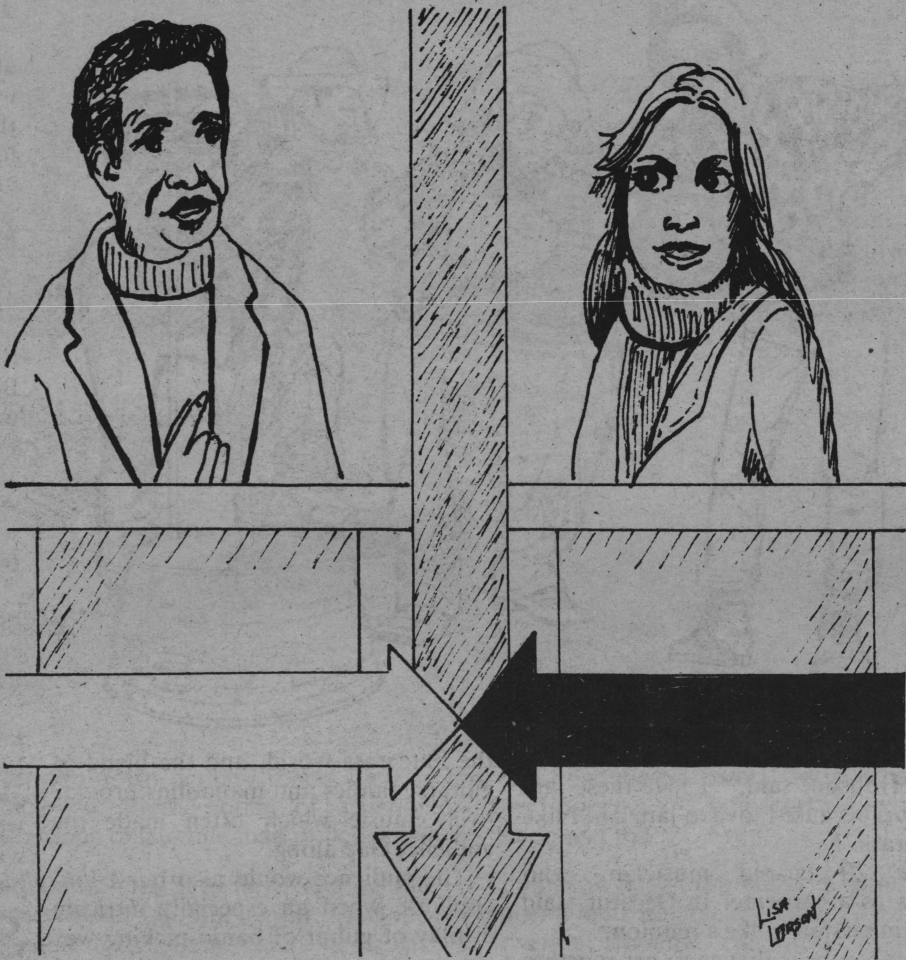

For the past seven years the debate team has gone to national's and three of those trips were by a national bid. Jim Curtis and Marian Bollinger last year were the most recent Eastern participants at the tournament.

The debate squad is comprised of 13 members and each team is made up of two people. The teams work together and practice together but do research and plan argument blocks individually.

Each varsity team has won a major tournament this year and at least one team has placed in the top five in the last eight tournaments.

These wins have included first place out of 32 teams at Ohio State University and fifth out of 63 teams at Fullerton University.

One squad member attributed a team's success to knowledge of each other's thought processes so partners do not contradict one another in a round.

Doug Heise, a junior, said the team has intra-squad competition which helps them to become better debaters.

Curtis and Bucknell describe debate as "an exercise in advocacy where one team develops arguments to support a position and another team develops arguments to support the opposite position."

Debate teaches a person many things, squad members said, including diplomacy and the ability to look at an argument critically. It also helps students to get over shyness, develop original thoughts and think clearly.

Most of the team agreed debate skills are useful in school now and will be of extra value when they enter the business world or go to law school.

Other members said they gained knowledge they normally would not receive. Research required for debate familiarized the team with topics like economics, foreign policy and the employment situation, they said.

The team members spend various amounts of time preparing for a tournament. Bucknell said he spends approximately 30 hours a week and his partner Curtis, spends 20 to 25 hours a week. This large amount of time includes doing research, practice rounds and argument writing, he said.

Another team, comprised of Heise and his partner sophomore Karen Stein, said they spend 20 to 30 hours a week in preparation.

Everybody on the team is expected to hand in evidence regularly, David Svaldi, head debate coach, said.

Squad members agreed debate is not a spectator sport. Eastern's team gets more support from its students than other schools, Curtis said.

Unlike the basketball and football teams, the debate team does not have the budget to fly to distant meets, so they often spend hours upon hours traveling by car, seventeen hours were spent each way traveling to one tournament, they said.

COTE to review program

The Council on Teacher Education will begin its review of all academic programs Tuesday with the elementary and junior high education programs, COTE Chairman Kathy Shank said.

The council will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Tuscola Room.

This will be the first in a series of reviews by the council to determine the effectiveness of the programs and make recommendations for changes, Shank said.

The decision to review programs periodically came after the council was asked at its Feb. 13 meeting to review and make recommendations to Vice President for Academic Affairs

Thomas Bond.

The council was forced to pass all programs with a status quo rating because it did not have adequate time to review them properly, Shank said.

The elementary and junior high education programs will be reviewed first because they had their guidelines set up, which is necessary before the review begins, Shank said.

Bluegrass fest a chance to do more than jam

by Theresa Norton

Three times a year bluegrass musicians from all over central Illinois and Indiana gather together in Eastern's University Union for one of their favorite activities—the Bluegrass Jam session.

Sunday morning over 200 musicians and bluegrass aficionados gathered in the Union Ballroom for an entire day of jamming together, learning new tunes and meeting old and new friends.

The Bluegrass Jam Session is held the second Sunday in March, November and August each year and is organized by Jerry Ellis of Eastern's chemistry department.

The bluegrassers are reached either by fliers through the mail, posters hanging in area music stores or simply by word of mouth.

The bluegrass musicians filled the union, gathering in groups to exchange a bit of gossip, or to pick out some songs together.

Besides the small groups gathered in the stairwells, hallways and various lounges were the groups who played for 20 minute spans on a makeshift stage.

"These sessions are a lot of fun. You get to meet friends you haven't picked with in a while," guitarist Daryl Jones said Sunday.

Attired in a red plaid flannel shirt and blue denim overalls, 19-year-old Jones added that he sometimes gets job offers from participants in the bluegrass festival.

Jones, a mechanical engineering major at Rose-Hulman University in Terre Haute, said he plays in local bars and taverns there each weekend with a band called Hickory Hollow.

A banjo player from Blue Mound, Russ Hobson, said, "I love these jam sessions because I love to jam and I like bluegrass."

The 20-year-old musician, who works as a carpenter in Decatur, said the jam session is like a reunion.

"It gives us a chance to get together and I usually learn a lot of stuff from other guys," he added.

Some of the more popular bluegrass songs include such numbers as "Turkey in the Straw," "Sally Goodin'," "Rocky Top" and a number of hand-clapping songs without lyrics—and some even without names.

Electronic instruments are taboo in the bluegrass world, and the blend of guitars, fiddles and mandolins provide lively music which often made the audience clap along.

The audience would also burst into applause when an especially intricate display of guitar or banjo picking was shown.

Bluegrass attracts fans of all ages and types. Mingling through the Union were older men sporting cowboy hats and boots; women of all ages, some in their Sunday best, others just in jeans; numerous Eastern students and many children.

Tapping their shiny, black patent leather shoes to the beat of the square dance bands were two young girls dressed in similar flowered dresses.

Debbie and Angie Baker, aged 13 and 10, said they first became really interested in this type of dancing when they attended a bluegrass jam session in Clarksville, Tenn. with their grandmother and her friends.

"We would dance practically 24 hours a day," Debbie said. "We'd go to the hotel and jam and dance all night—it's a lot of fun."

The girls from Neoga also danced to the music of the Indian Creek Delta Boys, the only local bluegrass band, who basically play square dance music, which does not have lyrics.

One of the Eastern students who wandered into the Union Ballroom was sophomore health education major Denise Murphy.

"I came to avoid studying," she said, adding, "I really like bluegrass, even though I only listen to it when it's here."

The grand finale of the day was the last jam session in which anyone could take part. Eleven men and two women got on stage and played some of the well-known bluegrass songs together, while the audience still left in the ballroom clapped along.

Silverman's play to be presented

Opening night for "Sometimes A Great Notion" is at 8 p.m. Friday in the Dounda Fine Arts Playroom.

Other performances will be on March 17th, 19th, 20th and a Sunday, March 18th performance at 2 p.m., Jay Sain, theatre department spokesman, said recently.

The book, which was adopted and directed by P.A. Silverman for interpreter's theatre, is about a family, the Stampers, who move from Kansas to the pacific northwest.

The family runs into trouble internally and externally when the family refuses to join a state-wide lumberjack strike, Sain said.

The characters include Henry Stamper, his two sons, Hank and Leland, and his wife, Viv.

Tickets will be on sale at the door for all performances and are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for children and senior citizens and $1.00 for students with ID.

Housing problems to be topic of seminar

by Gwen Paglia

The Student Senate Housing Committee will host several guest speakers who will discuss various aspects of landlord/tenant rights at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon Room.

"The purpose of this meeting is to inform students of what they are getting into when they sign a lease," John Grant, committee co-chairman, said.

So many students are involved in conflicts which an initial understanding of lease obligations could have prevented, Grant said.

The landlord from University Village was the only landlord who responded to the committee's invitation to speak, Grant said.

Also speaking will be Charles Hollister, political science department pre-law adviser, who will discuss the legal aspects involved in renting.

In addition, Terry Sharp, of the city housing commission, will define the housing codes and standards Charleston requires and Mary Smith, director of student housing, will outline student obligations to the University-controlled housing, Grant said.

The committee will also distribute pamphlets and conduct a survey to study the housing dilemma.

Grant said that the seminar is open to everyone and there will be an opportunity to ask questions and discuss specific problems.

Charleston not to be threatened by flooding

by Paul Pinderski

The possibility of heavy flooding throughout Coles County is no real threat, Mark Besekrus, county emergency services coordinator, said recently.

Besekrus said the current flooding is occurring in the low-lying flood plains of Lake Charleston and the Embarrass River.

He said Charleston is not threatened by flooding because of its higher elevation.

"The only time Charleston has flooding is during heavy rains when the sewers overflow," Besekrus added.

He predicted that only a few low-lying country roads and rural bridges would be affected by the spring thaw and that the present situation "is back to normal."

He said at one point several rural bridges and roads were closed, but are now open.

Individuals with questions on flooding can refer to a new state program that was finalized last week.

Governor James Thompson announced last Tuesday the creation of a new Flood Help Program, to help provide information and assistance to victims of floods.

A statewide toll-free number was Driving down country roads such as this one near the Embarrass River south of Charleston has become hazardous of late because of flooding in low lands and the announced on Saturday. The phone information hotline will include flooding predictions, and status of floods and flood insurance information.

Thompson also appointed a nine member Flood Emergency Task Force to oversee flooding conditions and provide assistance where possible.

Appointed to the governor's task force include John Kramer, secretary of transportation and E. Ernie Jones, director of Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

Survey reveals county bridges need repair

by Terry Lahr

A recent survey of Coles County bridges by the Illinois Department of Transportation indicated that between 50 and 90 of the county's bridges are in need of repair, County Board Road and Bridge Committee members Larry Moore and Jackie Record said.

"There is an ongoing program to repair and replace bridges in the county," Moore said.

"To fix that many bridges would require a great amount of money. We have a fund for bridge repair from county fuel taxes and other incomes, and we hope to get some Federal Emergency Aid."

"But unless we get an awful lot of federal aid, we won't have enough to fix all of the bridges," he added.

It is the job of the county highway superintendent to inspect bridges and arrange for their repair.

This position has been unfilled since the former highway superintendent, Seneca Abell, retired at the beginning of the year.

Randall Malone, former highway superintendent in DeWitt County for 11 years, was recently hired by the County Board. He will begin his job on April 1, Moore said.

"The bridges are first on his list of things to do," Record said.

She added that after examining the bridges and reading the bridge survey results, Malone will set a priority list of which bridges to fix first.

"We will fix as many bridges as we can with the money we have," Moore said.

Hussey gives resignation after three years

by Julie Penne

When most people think of badminton, they picture the game being played at picnics, family reunions and the beach. But for coach Bob Hussey and the Eastern badminton team, it means plenty of hard work, travel, the state championships and national competition.

Hussey, who has submitted his resignation as coach of the shuttlebirds because of health reasons, has led the Panthers through three winning seasons.

In 1976, Hussey debuted as coach at the state tournament when his team captured third place. He followed up with a fifth place finish at the national meet.

Last year proved to be the most successful for the Panthers. Hussey and his team came away with the state championship and second place at the national meet.

“That was a most rewarding season for the team and myself,” said the head mentor. “The hard work we put into our individual games paid off with the successes we had.”

Though not quite as successful this season as in the two previous meets, the Panthers still made their presence known. Eastern placed third at both the state and national tournaments.

Hussey attributes his success as a coach and as a builder of the strong badminton reputation held by Eastern, to the Illinois high schools’ programs. Though badminton is presently concentrated in the Chicago area and restricted only to girls, Hussey believes that the sport is expanding to include men and is slowly moving downstate.

“The northern schools have very good badminton programs and they are growing even more,” Hussey said. “The competition at this level readies them for the college level of play.”

All but four of Hussey’s shuttlebirds from this season’s roster are from the northern part of the state or the Chicago suburbs. Three of those four, number one player senior Kay Metzger, her sister, freshman Marcia and freshman Susan Spinner, are from Pana and the fourth is Hussey’s daughter, Erin, a Charleston native.

Besides turning out this year’s number one Eastern player, Kay Metzger, Schramm helped to produce Mary Stupek, who graduated last year. Stupek was state singles champion last year.

Softball umps needed

The Intramural office is now accepting applications from anyone interested in being a softball umpire. Applications can be picked up in the IM office and are due March 21.

Besides scheduling inter-varsity competition, the high school program also has a state tournament to close the season. Hussey does his major scouting at the state tourney, though according to state high school regulations, the coaches cannot talk to the athletes about their respective universities.

Hussey currently has three top state finishers on the team, including last year’s number two player in the state, Lisa Young. Young, from Mt. Prospect, played number two for the Panthers this year. Also finishing in the top six in the state were Sue Gonnella and Janet Haberkorn. Gonnella, filling in for injured senior Sue Field, teamed with Becky Stuckwisch to take the state doubles title this year. Haberkorn, coming in as a freshman also, played number six for the Panthers. Gonnella is from Niles and Haberkorn is from Arlington Heights.

In addition to their playing in high school, three of the seven freshmen on the team this season, Gonnella, Haberkorn, and Nancy Szarzyski of Wheaton, attended a badminton camp last summer. Hussey said that Eastern is the only school in the state that has such a camp.

The camp, in its fourth year, operates on a “first come, first serve basis,” Hussey said, and the number of those attending is limited to 56. The players are on the court seven hours a day for five days. Hussey is the principle instructor with a number of assistants aiding him.

As for enthusiasm, Hussey seems to have enough of it for the entire team. In fact, that’s one of the things that lured sophomore Cathy Oltman, from Joliet, to Eastern.

“Dr. Hussey is the most enthusiastic coach, with an inspiring attitude that is passed on to all of us on the team. We’ve been fortunate to have him for a coach,” she said.

Golfers take fourth in 12-squad Gulf Coast Classic

PADRE ISLAND, Texas—Eastern's golfers placed fourth behind three NCAA Division I teams last week in a 12-squad Gulf Coast Classic.

Entering the meet with hardly any outdoor practice under their belts, the Panthers linksters "played better than we expected," senior team member Tom Richey said.

"We didn't play at all until we got to Texas," Richey said. "We practiced on Sunday and then played a qualifying round on Monday, and that was it. So I think we did pretty good."

Western Michigan, Michigan and Nebraska all finished ahead of Eastern, the meet's top Division II finisher.

The six-man Panther squad scored a 1,251-stroke total in the four round tourney.

Eastern finished ahead of Coffeyville Community College, the third place finisher in last year's national junior college finals, plus seven other squads, including second units from the top three Division I schools.

Eastern was led by junior Kelly Spaulding, who had a 306 stroke total to finish 13th among approximately 60 golfers. Spaulding, a transfer student from New Orleans, had rounds of 79, 71, 76 and 80 on the par 71 course.

Junior Steve Spitler was 17th in the field with a 308 score, and seniors

Kenne Ludwig and Richey tied for 23rd with 314's.

Eastern's other golfers were Steve Replogle, who had a 331, and Doug Sandell, who scored a 347.

Weightlifting club finishes second again

by Bill Jeffers

CHAMPAIGN—For the third consecutive year Eastern's weightlifting club came away from the Illinois Intercollegiate Powerlifting Championship with the second place trophy.

Eastern had second place all to themselves Saturday, with 22 points, after tying with Western for the second spot last year. Illinois walked away with the title for the second straight year finishing with 34 points while Western took third with 17 points.

A new record was set as 70 lifters competed in this meet making it the largest turnout for a weightlifting meet ever in the state of Illinois. The previous record was set last year when 50 lifters competed in this tournament.

Eighteen teams were represented at the meet.

Lifters who placed in the tourney for Eastern were Jay Economy, Cathy Cranfill, Bob Buckley and Tom Bardusch.

Jeff Orr was once again the pace setter for the Eastern club as he defended his championship at 181 pounds. This was the third straight year that Orr has won the 181 pound weight class.

Buckley, spokesman for the lifters said that this was one of the more exciting meets he has ever been involved in.

"We made an excellent showing but there were too many good lifters from the other schools. They were very tough.

"This was the first time ever for women to compete in weightlifting competition. The girls did an excellent job," Buckley said. "And so did all of the new members. Everyone did their best.

This was the last meet for one of Eastern's best lifters, Louis Paul.

"Paul did not do well, despite his hard work of the past summer," Buckley said. "He really worked hard and deserved better."

Cheerleading tryouts to be held

by Yvonne Beeler

Students interested in trying out for the basketball and football cheerleading squads for the 1979-80 school year should attend the workshops scheduled Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Tuesday's workshop will be held at 4 p.m. at the Lantz Gymnastic Room. Wednesday's and Thursday's workshops will be held at 7 p.m. at Buzzard Education Building's South Gym. Ewen Bryden, temporary cheerleader adviser, said Monday.

Final tryouts will be at 7 p.m. Monday at the Buzzard Gym.

"We have lined up several male and female faculty members to serve as judges at final tryouts," Bryden said.

"The tryouts will be conducted by myself and retiring cheerleaders," he added.

Students do not have to attend all workshops.

"Students should just show up and we will sign them up as they arrive," Bryden added.

"We will be judging the students on two characteristics. Enthusiasm will be first and gymnastic ability will be second," he said.

due to their excellent physical condition.

The spring practice will culminate with the annual alumni game on May 5, and Mudra said some new players participating in that contest may have a chance to win a starting position next year.

Among the newcomers Mudra noted was quarterback Jeff Goldthorpe, a native Californian and a Thorton Junior College transfer.

Mudra said Goldthorpe "has a real fine throwing arm, and will be an excellent passer for us."

To sum up the very bright outlook of Eastern football for next fall, Mudra said that although only two starters graduated from last year's national championship team, "the starters that are coming back will have to fight for their lives" to keep their first string positions.

Clinton happy but not satisfied with season

by Keith Palmgren

An eighth place finish in the NCAA Division I championships and second in the Division II tourney, plus an undefeated season would have made most coaches overjoyed, but not Eastern's Ron Clinton.

Clinton is head coach of the wrestling team, and although his team is coming off the best finish ever, he is still not satisfied.

"We wrestled badly at both championships," he said. "If we had wrestled well just think what would have happened."

Clinton agrees that this season has been a surprise to him and to some of the wrestlers.

"At the start of the season I thought we would go undefeated and take conference and possibly win the Division II crown," Clinton said.

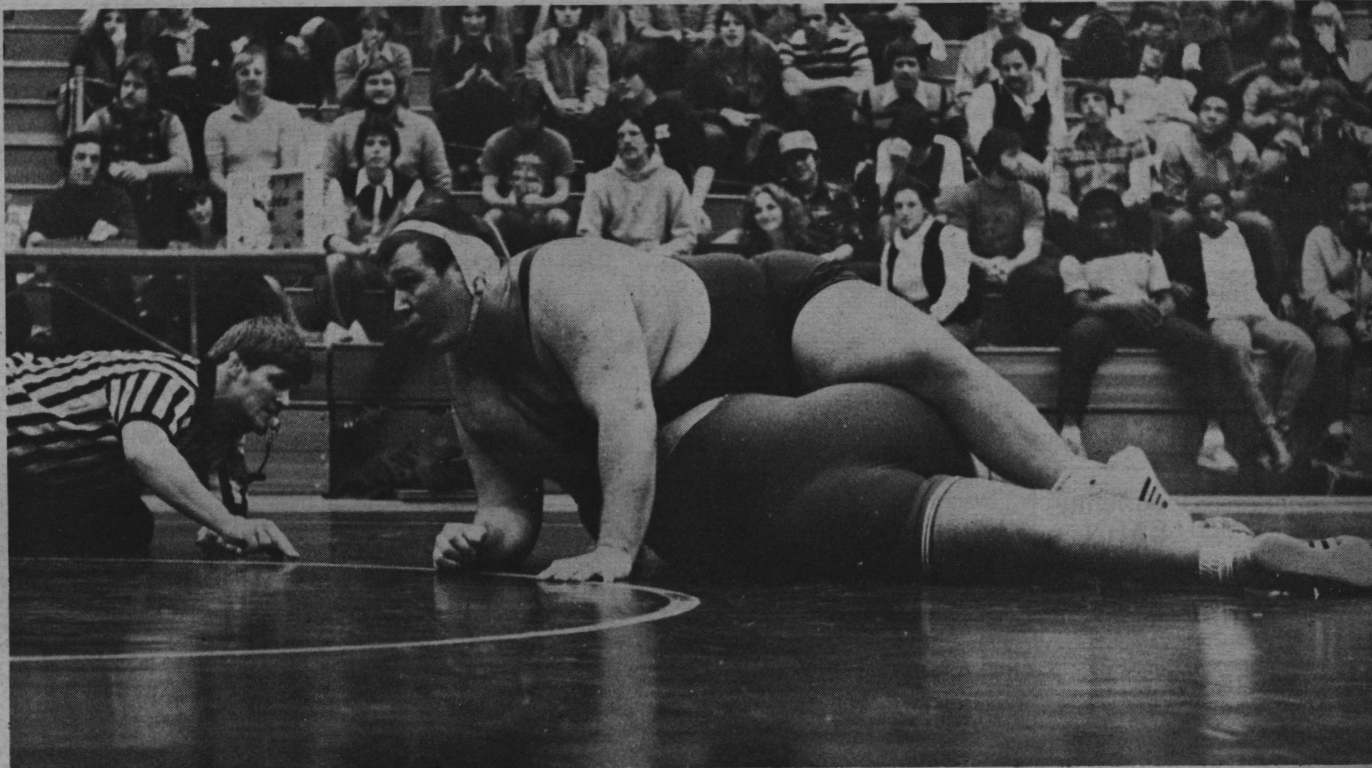

"We finished higher than I ever anticipated," he added.

Eastern won conference over last year's national champion Northern Iowa and finished a quarter of a point behind California-Bakersfield for the Division II crown.

Eastern would have finished ahead of Cal-Bakersfield if Division II teams would have been counted in the official standings.

Clinton said that there was really no revenge motive at the Division I championships over Bakersfield, but did say he was pleased that Eastern finished ahead of them in the standings.

"We would have beaten Bakersfield 99 out of 100 times this season. There is no way we should have lost to them at the Division II championships," Clinton said.

Clinton has collected, shaped, and molded his men into a championship team. Although the team is losing three seniors Clinton does not appear to be worried.

"We have a good stable of horses already, but we can strengthen that stable," Clinton said.

Clinton believes the program can get stronger and that it will continue to grow, and although they had a spectacular season Clinton looks forward for the program to improve.

Eastern produced three All-Americans in the Division I championships in Dave Klemm, Bob Holland and Geno Savagnago. Clinton said that they did a "tremendous job."

"Most schools would be delighted to have one All-American, we have three and that says something about our program.

"People are talking and writing about us on a national level. A lot of people were very impressed with the way a small Division II school like Eastern can perform at a Division I tourney," Clinton said.

Gridders' off-season a time for winter drills

Eastern football players run through drills in an early spring practice session. The Panthers are currently working out six times a week to prepare to defend their NCAA Division II national championship. (News photo by Mary Hudack)

by Andy Savoie

The off-season may be a time of rest and reflection for some football teams, but the work never ends for Eastern's 1978 NCAA Division II national champions.

The Panther gridders are currently participating in six day-a-week winter drills which head coach Darrell Mudra said are designed to improve "speed, strength, agility, and all of the fundamentals that make a good football player."

Mudra said the drills have alternate days of emphasis, with the speed and agility workouts on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and weightlifting on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

The speed and agility workouts, held in Lantz Fieldhouse, are highly intense, extremely well organized 60 minute practices. A typical workout begins with the entire squad doing 10 minutes of stretching exercises, then dividing up among what Mudra termed "4 stations," called power running, the wrestling room, the ropes, and agility.

Assistant coaches supervise the activity of each station, while Mudra roams from station to station and oversees the entire practice.

"He's sort of like a general," said player Joe Sambucci of Mudra's role.

Each group works at a station for exactly 10 minutes, then immediately run to their next station to continue.

But perhaps the most tiring part of the practice occurs during the last 10 minutes, during which Mudra explained everyone is required to "run 10-200 yard dashes in 10 minutes, with 30 seconds in between dashes."

No contact drills are taking place at the moment, Mudra said, because NCAA rules prohibit the use of equipment until April 2, when the Panthers begin their official spring practice.

But Mudra said once the spring workouts begin the squad would "start contact drills the first day" of practice

Class A tickets on sale

Fairfield will take on Madison at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Lantz Gym in one of eight Illinois High School Association Class A Supersectional games to be played throughout the state.

Tickets for the game will be sold from 1 p.m. through game time at the Lantz Building, Eastern Assistant Athletic Director Ron Paap said Monday.

All of the tickets allotted for Eastern have been sold, but the two schools must return their unused tickets to Eastern at 12 noon. The tickets will then be sold the remainder of the day.

Fairfield won the Bridgeport Sectional last week, and Madison was victorious in the Vandalia Sectional. The winner of the game will advance to Champaign to the quarterfinals.
