Union Board initiates budget talks

The Union Board began its budgeting process for fiscal year 1981 Thursday night with discussion on various portions of the proposed budget that if passed as it stands would mean an increase of $1.45 in student union operations fee.

Union Board Chairman Bill Clark stressed that the $1.45 figure was merely a "working figure" that could vary according to how the Board passes the 1981 budget.

He said the operations of the Union are all "inflation driven," meaning that union cost increases mirror any increase in inflation.

However, he pointed out that with an inflation rate of more than 12 percent during the past year, the $1.45 increase would cover only about 4.9 percent of the total increase in operational costs for the Union.

If the budget is passed the way it stands, Clark said, there would be a $28,000 deficit. However, he said a deficit budget can not be forwarded for approval, so the $1.45 would cause an income increase of $19,500.

Clark said the proposed amount could be decreased, if needed, by changing the costs of certain Union services.

As an example, Clark said the union check cashing charge could be increased from the present 10 cents per check to a possible 15 cents. He said this additional income would allow the board to decrease or eliminate a fee increase.

Union Board member Bonnie Bijak submitted a proposal asking that any increase recommended by the board be put to student approval in a referendum.

"I recognize the function (of the Union)," Bijak said. "I feel any increase should go before the students."

The board agreed to discuss the proposal after the entire budget had been reviewed, with Clark pointing out that all fee increase proposals must be on Vice President of Student Affairs Glenn Williams' desk before Feb. 15.

Eastern has the lowest union and student center fee of any Illinois university with a per semester fee of $30.15.

Tarble Arts Center cleared for construction

by Jane Meyer

CHICAGO—With the Board of Governors' approval of final bids Thursday, construction of the Tarble Arts Center could begin as early as March, a project architect said.

L. Eugene Dillow, of Salogga, Bradley, Likins, and Dillow, the architectural firm for the project, said he expects the contract signing for the project to take place within the next two weeks.

Groundbreaking ceremonies would be set by Eastern administrators with construction beginning toward the middle of March, he added.

The center will be located south of the Buzzard Education Building, with the public entrance on Ninth Street and a student entrance on Seventh Street.

In presenting the lower bid requests to the board for final approval, President Daniel E. Marvin said the original estimate of the project — $1.4 million — was "pretty darn close to being on target," of the now projected $1.47 million amount.

He assured the board that funds for the project are now available.

"All the funds necessary for the project are either already available cash-in-hand or investments or have been guaranteed to the university through the university foundation," Marvin said. "All funds are private and all funds are available."

Marvin said he was pleased about how the final and original estimation "unfolded."

Marvin said that once construction of the project begins, completion should take about 18 months.

Low bids accepted for the project were for general work, plumbing work, heating, piping, refrigeration and automatic temperature control systems, ventilating work and electrical work.

Newton Tarble, an Eastern alumnus, left $1 million in stocks to build a cultural center after his death in 1978.

Three flu virus strains hit Eastern campus

by Holly Headland

The flu season has hit Eastern's campus hard, with the number of students ill up 20 percent from what is usual for this time of year, Jerry Heath, director of the health service, said Thursday.

The health service has been aiding over 350 students a day this week, and at least 10 to 15 percent of them have been suffering from one of the three main viral infections that are causing the outbreak of sickness, Heath said.

One of the reasons the flu has been so prevalent on campus is that, "everyone from all the different areas came back and mixed their germs after break and a week or so after people come back people start getting sick," Heath said.

The main strains of flu hitting Eastern are the Hancock, Brazil and Singapore. All have the common symptoms of a temperature, cough, aching and chills, Heath said.

"Since the flu is a viral infection, we have to take throat cultures and other tests. We don't get the results back from the state for two weeks and most people are already healthy again. The flu just runs its course and we can't really do anything more than the students can," Heath said.

Heath said the fever usually breaks after two days and the next four of five days the student will feel pretty bad, suffering from many or all of the symptoms.

"You have to drink a lot of fluids and take aspirin for the fever but if the flu goes into a pneumonia or other complications then its time to come see us," Heath said.

The Health Service had a vaccine to help prevent the flu available to students this fall, Heath said. The vaccine is still available to anyone who wants it, as it has been in past semesters.

The vaccine takes two weeks to work and if the person who receives it is already getting the flu it will make them even sicker, Heath said. But, Heath added if you are perfectly healthy it would be safe to get.

Resident assistants in some of the residence halls noted that the flu is taking its toll on their floors.

Rhea Wade, resident assistant from third floor Andrews Hall, said there have been about 12 people sick on her floor this past week.

Six out of the 48 students of Bill Burt's Carman Hall second floor have also been hit by the flu.

"At the beginning of the week they were missing classes, but most of them are better now," Burt said.

Heath said he was not sure if the flu had hit its peak at Eastern yet. "Who knows if it's at its peak? In the country there are outbreaks as well as in the cities and you never know when it hits its peak," he added.

For those students who have been lucky enough to remain healthy so far this semester, Heath gave some advice on how to remain feeling good: "Take care of yourself. Eat properly and get lots of rest."

Legislators move to back renouncing of Iran pact

WASHINGTON—Lawmakers of both parties Thursday proposed to tell President Reagan he would have congressional support if he decides not to carry out the agreement that resulted in release of the 52 American hostages in Iran.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said he wants to wait until "the wound heals a little" before a decision on whether to honor the agreement.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., introduced resolutions pledging support to Reagan amid congressional outcry over new disclosures that the hostages were abused during their 444 days in captivity.

DeConcini's resolution would put the Senate on record as supporting any decision Reagan "may make in refusing to carry out the agreement."

DeConcini urged Reagan in a letter to announce that the United States "is not legally bound by the agreement negotiated" by former President Jimmy Carter.

"It is an established matter of criminal law that agreements made under the duress of blackmail have no legal validity," DeConcini said. "Rewarding terrorists and blackmailers is a dangerous precedent."

Hostages spend their first day of freedom relaxing

WEISBADEN, West Germany—A U.S. Marine sergeant from Illinois says he and many of his fellow ex-captives spent their first day of freedom "taking showers and telling stories."

Paul E. Lewis, 23, of Homer, a central Illinois community of 1,400, sounded happy and well in a brief telephone interview Wednesday, a few hours after the freed hostages touched down in West Germany.

"I feel very good," Lewis said. "I feel better than

Friday's

(AP) News shorts

I've felt in a long, long time, and I'm ready to go home."

He refused substantive comment about his 14 1/2-month ordeal and said he had no further information about when the 52 Americans would fly to the United States.

Lewis, a four-year Marine veteran, arrived at his new post at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 3., 1979, a day before Islamic militants stormed the embassy and took hostages.

It was his second embassy guard post—he earlier served at Budapest since being graduated first in his class at the marines' embassy guard school.

Reagan redeems pledge to cut government spending

WASHINGTON—President Reagan, saying he is redeeming his pledge to force government to "live within its means" issued orders today to slash government travel by 15 percent, cut outside consultations by 5 percent and stop buying office furniture.

Reagan, in a memorandum to department and agency chiefs, said he was taking the actions because "coping with runaway deficits in the current and pending budgets is one of the most urgent tasks before us."

And he told his Cabinet members to set an example by avoiding unnecessary expenditures in setting up their personal offices." Appointees, Reagan directed, "are not to redecorate their offices."

Reagan issued the memo shortly after meeting with his economic policy group. He was meeting with congressmen who head economic-related committees in the afternoon.

A fact sheet distributed by the White House said the travel reduction this fiscal year is directed at trips "that are not essential to the performance of agency missions."

The five percent outside consultation reduction also applies to management and professional services and special contract studies and analyses. The furniture moratorium also applies to office machines, data processing equipment and other equipment "that is not needed for the national defense or to carry out other essential activities."

Medical journals squabble over flow of medical news

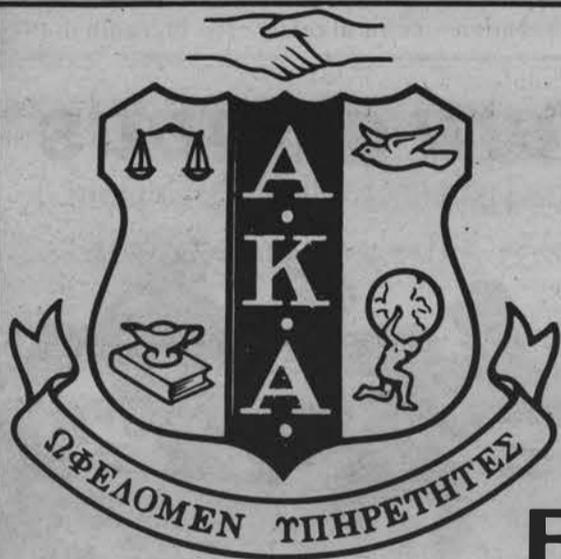

BOSTON—The nation's two major medical journals have turned their gentlemanly rivalry into a bitter public squabble with one accusing the other of suppressing the free flow of information in the medical world.

At issue is the New England Journal's long-standing policy of refusing to publish studies that have been reported elsewhere, including newspaper articles based on interviews with the researchers.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, known as JAMA, says that policy is "unrealistic and elitist." It says that because of this "attempted information monopoly," doctors refuse to discuss their work before it is published, resulting in incomplete and inaccurate reporting of the latest medical developments.

JAMA blasted the New England Journal and its editor, Dr. Arnold Relman, in two sharply worded editorials published in Friday's issue. In an interview, Relman responded that the criticism was "misinformed and misguided."

The JAMA editorials, written by staff editors Gail McBride and Dr. Lawrence D. Grouse, complain that scientists are afraid to talk to reporters about their work, even if chances are slim that it will ever be published in the New England Journal.

Next BOG meeting critical for faculty raises

by Melinda DeVries
 CHICAGO—The upcoming month will be critical in determining if Illinois faculty will receive a salary increase, a Board of Governors official said Thursday.
 "Next month will be a critical window and this particular session (the Board of Higher Education's February meeting) will be an anguished one," BOG Executive Director Donald Walters said.
 Walters said "the big ticket item" at the IBHE's Feb. 3 meeting is faculty salaries.
 The BOG's fiscal year 1982 operating budget recommendations included a salary increase recommendation of 10.5 percent for faculty.
 The salary increase recommendation for faculty includes a 1.5 percent "catch-up" factor. The "catch-up" percent was designed to begin to make some progress toward restoring the competitiveness of faculty and staff salaries, Walters said.

 "That (the 10.5 percent increase) does not come anywhere near to what it should be," Walters said.
 He added, however, that it would be a step in the right direction, if it is the first in a multi-year increase.
 Since Gov. James Thompson will be at the IBHE's Feb. 3 meeting to address the board on how much of a higher education budget he will support, Walters said the meeting will determine how much of an increase faculty will receive.
 "Our hope is that the governor will come closer to our needs," Walters said.

 In addition to Thompson's address to the IBHE affecting faculty salaries for FY '82, his address will also affect BOG universities' tuition.
 Walters said, in a presentation on tuition, that the "IBHE says tuition should be based on the economy's inflation, but ought not to be increased every year—only to adjust for inflation."
 While showing a chart comparing the inflation rate with recent tuition increases, Walters said, "Tuition increases have not clearly kept pace with inflation."
 In other business, Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin told the BOG that in order to make the quality of education better at Eastern, "our plan is to reduce enrollment by about 200 students."

 Marvin warned the board about the possibility of instituting a cut-off date to fulfill the plans to reduce enrollment and said, "When a cut-off comes to be, you are going to hear from someone, 'Why can't my kid go to Eastern?'"
 He added that the institution of a cut-off date may be close.
 The BOG also approved Eastern's request to ask the Federal Communication Commission for an FM radio station license.
 Although Eastern is "several years away from making an FM station," Marvin said, it will have the board's approval to ask for a license when "the time comes."

Tenants call Brittany conditions 'unlivable'

by Susan Schlanser
 Though some student tenants at Brittany apartments are trying to terminate their leases by claiming "unlivable" apartment conditions, manager Bill Gilmer said Thursday he does not have the authority to dissolve the leases.
 The students are claiming water pipes at Brittany, which froze and broke over Christmas break, have caused unlivable conditions in the apartments.

 The broken pipes have resulted in damage to the apartments, including backed up drains, water shut off and damage to the interiors of apartments that were flooded over break.
 Two students who recently moved out of their Brittany apartment, Dave Stephenson and Tom Roberts, said they moved because refuse had backed up in their sinks and bathtub for a week. Roberts said they were without water for one day, but even after the water was turned on it was impossible to use it because of the conditions of their sinks.

 Roberts added the lease for the apartment has a clause in it which requires the apartments to maintain a sanitary code and he said his apartment's conditions were clearly unsanitary.

 Roberts said before he and Stephenson left the apartment they were instructed by the manager to give him a letter explaining the reasons for their leaving. Stephenson said as he understood it, the letter was all that was required for them to terminate their leases.
 Another resident who is planning to move out of Brittany said she has discussed the legal aspects of breaking her lease with Steve Davis, director of the Campus Legal Service. She said Davis has advised her she has a good case because her apartment has been without water since Jan. 4 and is thus

Publications board OKs budget

by Crystal Schrof
 The Publications Board passed the 1981-82 budget Thursday, asking for a $35,000 increase in student fee support over the previous year's budget.
 The total proposed budget for the Eastern News, Warbler and Vehicle publications is about $268,000. The major components of the proposed budget allow $35,000 for newsprint, a 5-year equipment purchase program and a circulation subscription revenue of 15 percent.
 "This budget is an attempt to give stability to student publications," David Reed, adviser to student publications, said.
 To fund the proposed budget, Reed suggested that a $3.50 increase in the amount of fee support from the student activity fee be given to student publications.
 "It has come to the point where we need more funds just to keep publishing," Reed said.
 Currently, full-time students pay $3.50 per year to maintain student publications, which include the Daily Eastern News, the Warbler and the Vehicle.

 If approved, an increase would raise that amount to $7 per student, per year, which would be divided equally between the News and the Warbler.
 Reed justified the budget proposal by noting that the publications' budget for the current year is $4,000 less than it was in 1972-73. This budget is just an attempt to regain some of the money lost by publications in previous years, Reed said.

 "This year the paper is running at a 48 percent advertising rate," Reed said. "In past years we have run at a 43 percent advertising rate." An increase is necessary to avoid an even higher percentage of advertising next year, he added.
 The publications' budget will now go to the Apportionment Board for consideration.

Hostage cruelty angers Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tales by the former American hostages of brutal treatment at the hands of their Iranian captors angered President Reagan and Jimmy Carter on Thursday, and prompted plans for Senate hearings to lay the story before the American public.
 In a hand-written report on his emotional visit with the freed hostages Wednesday in Wiesbaden, West Germany, Carter urged Reagan to abide by the U.S. agreement with Iran, "but never do any favors the hoodlums who persecuted innocent American heroes."

 Vice President Walter F. Mondale delivered Carter's report to Reagan at the White House Thursday morning. Reagan was said to be "outraged" and "deeply upset" after reading it an hearing Mondale's account of mistreatment of the American captives.

discussed the legal aspects of breaking her lease with Steve Davis, director of the Campus Legal Service. She said Davis has advised her she has a good case because her apartment has been without water since Jan. 4 and is thus "uninhabitable."
 The resident said she has not yet discussed her plans with the Brittany management, but Davis has advised her to write them a letter listing her grievances.
 However, Gilmer said the only thing he could do with letters such as theirs is turn them over to an attorney, since he only manages and does not own the apartments.
 "I can't advise them to stay or not to stay," Gilmer said, "but it is not my authority to let them out of their leases."
 Tom Jeter, a representative from Property Investment Services, which owns Brittany apartments, said he has not been informed of any tenants trying to get out of their leases. But he added he did not think the tenants would have a very good case.
 He also said the manager is not the person who is responsible for terminating leases.

Hours should be cut, not jobs

Since student workers are now earning the minimum wage of $3.35 per hour, the university financial offices must make cuts in the payroll budget somehow.

We believe that cutting the hours of student workers is a better alternative to eliminating the number of jobs available.

Since the wage hike came in the middle of Eastern's fiscal year, additional funds cannot be acquired for the present.

The financial office is trying to pay students with a budget that was based on the old minimum wage rate of $3.10 per hour.

With that additional 25 cents per hour, students will use up the allotted funds before July 1, when the fiscal year ends and a new budget accounting for the new minimum wage rate will go into effect.

But now cuts must be made in the student payroll budget.

We believe that it is a viable part of a student's college life to be able to have a job and make money.

It is especially a viable part in the financial dilemma that most students find themselves in today.

If students lose out on the opportunity to have a job, then the subsequent loss in income will put many students in a severe financial bind since many students rely on their jobs to help put themselves through school.

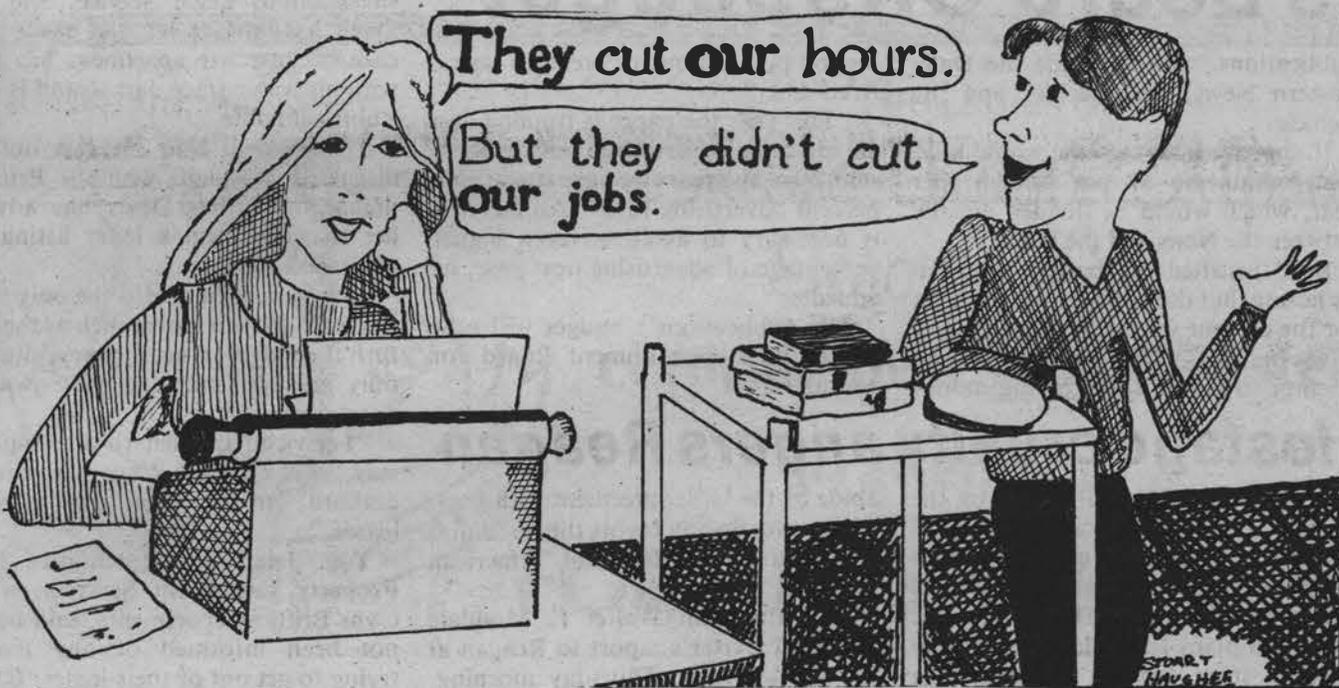

Even with increased wages, students will barely keep up with the steadily rising inflation rate. But to cut jobs would be penalizing certain students.

The fairest way to cut the payroll is to have all students share in it instead of a few unlucky ones.

Administrators should do everything they can to aid students in getting the best possible benefits from this pay boost.

Since the money is being used up quicker, job hours should be spread around instead of eliminating jobs altogether.

Departments on campus should work out the best possible plan that would best suit their respective needs and concentrate on giving student workers every possible advantage.

Students: Raise the fees, hold tuition

It seems that all I've been reading about lately is student proposed increases, not to mention a few proposals from the administration.

There are athletic fee increases, textbook rental fee increases, legal fees, activity fees, union operation fees and now a possible publications' fee. I guess the thing to do around here if you want something is to propose a new fee or increase existing ones—which comes out of the students' pockets.

What will be next? A sidewalk fee to repair walkways? An add-drop fee to pay for the cost of add-drop cards and slips? And what about a bathroom fee to cover costs of toilet paper? I'm sure someone would agree that these are also worthwhile fees.

I suppose I would not be so upset about all these fees (which really start to add up to a lot of money once you think about them) if it weren't for the fact that everyone is making such a fuss about the tuition increase.

The cost of higher education is rising. It's rising in tune with inflation. Students will be finding it more difficult to meet the costs of college, even at a four-year public institution like Eastern.

These students will also find it harder to get financial aid as the ISSC enforces stricter guidelines and other financial agencies try to survive on tight budgets. I wonder how many people know that although the ISSC currently pays for student fees, it is not legally bound to do so, and in the near future may indeed stop this benefit.

Viewpoint:

I don't think students realize the financial impact of new or increased fees when they come in small amounts of $7, $9 or $14. Yet students do object to a $61 tuition hike.

Students protesting the tuition increase are doing so because they say it is not fair and they can't afford it. Well, I too will have trouble affording the increase, but I will also have a hard time paying for all these student fees—and they seem a little less necessary.

Eastern students should make up their minds. If they want a championship athletic program, comprehensive legal service, and efficient student publications, they should also be willing to pay for a tuition increase for continued quality education.

Suggestions for reducing bar crowds

How crowded are the bars in Charleston on a weekend? Well, let's put it this way. During peak hours, patrons can move through certain drinking establishments and not have their feet touch the floor.

Congestion in the local bars is approaching the danger level. Just imagine the carnage that would ensue if someone muffed while free basing a la Richard Pryor in Roc's.

After hearing of the regrettable disaster, the Illinois General Assembly would order that anyone possessing a college ID would not be allowed to enter any drinking establishment and that "people counters" be installed at all entrances to assure that the bar would be closed when the "state recommended" human capacity overflowed.

Everyone has the right to enter a bar and play ring-around-rosie in an effort to find eternal happiness. However, unlimited access to the local bars is dangerous and we should try to prevent any mass tramlings.

So, here are some suggestions for limiting the influx of customers into the bars:

1) Enforce the 21-year-old drinking law to the letter. (Forget it! After eliminating two-thirds of their patronage, some of the overexpanded bars like Roc's, Mother's and Sporty's would go out of business within a few weeks.)

2) Submit a request to the Bureau of Tobacco, Alcohol and Firearms for an emergency loan. It could go under the category: "Potential disaster area prevention allocation." (Probably wouldn't work, but if it did we could have additional floors added to the most cramped bars.)

3) Require that no one could enter a bar on the weekend unless they had attended said bar at least one night during the week. (Has promise. But, it may cause overloads on certain week nights as large groups of students would attend their favorite bar to be assured of a weekend of eligibility for bar hopping.)

4) Install trap doors throughout certain areas of each bar. The trap door lever would be controlled by an innocent looking attendant hidden in a dark corner of the place. Whenever a drunken customer meandered over the trap door—Slam! Whoosh! Bam! The unfortunate sot would slide down a chute and end up in the back alley. (Kills two birds with one flick of the wrist. Disposes of potential troublemakers and gets rid of the excess mob. However, trap door attendant must be trustworthy and not be sadistic in his attempt to oust customers.)

Although these methods of bar depopulation will probably not be instituted because of the profiteering attitude of the bar owners. Just be sure to look in the back alley of the bar when you suddenly find your drinking buddy has disappeared from sight.

CAA forms committee to study academic list

by Laura Henry
A subcommittee was appointed to look into the problems of proposed academic achievement lists and a statement by member Dave Buchanan outlining the Council on Academic Affairs' views on semester length was presented at the CAA meeting Thursday.

CAA chairman Ron Wohlstein appointed a subcommittee to deal with the confusion over how requirements for making the Dean's list, University Scholars' list or Honors list will be implemented.

Wohlstein said the subcommittee will help make the council's proposal more clear.

CAA member Phil Settle and student member John Guite were appointed to meet with Eastern's Assistant to the Vice President of Academic Affairs Margaret Soderburg to "clarify what we want and if at all it can be done," Wohlstein said.

The three lists would be used to recognize Eastern students for achieving academic excellence.

"The Dean's list would be the top five percent of each school or college and a 3.5 (grade point average) or above for declared majors. The Honor list would be the same as the Dean's list but is for students with undeclared majors. The University Scholar list is for the top ten percent of the graduating class," Wohlstein said.

Wohlstein said the CAA is having problems because "some people say there are too many lists and it is hard to clarify what the top five percent means."

"After the subcommittee meets with Dr. Soderberg, she will talk to the various people involved with the implementation of the lists, like Computer Services," he said.

Also at the meeting, Buchanan presented a resolution to observe a 15-week semester.

Buchanan prepared the resolution after he "became aware that some instructors were having to rush class material or cut something out to fit into the existing days."

According to Buchanan, Eastern has only "42 or 43 instead of 45 class days during some semesters," which "should make students angry for paying for a full term."

"This (spring) semester is the shortest I've ever run across," Buchanan said.

Buchanan said that one reason why this semester is short is the Illinois State High School Association's state track finals scheduled at Eastern for the end of May.

"I think it is worth it for the university to bring in the boys' and girls' state track here. It's a great method of recruitment but recruitment stands second to academic quality," he said.

AB approves ad hoc report

by Cathy Crist

The Apportionment Board unanimously approved Thursday night a document prepared by a special ad hoc committee that responded to a memo sent to the AB by Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin.

The memo, sent last July, questioned the AB on several issues such as its fiscal responsibilities, relationship to the Student Senate and the board's procedures.

The AB determines allocations of student fees to certain student organizations.

The committee was set up, headed by Vice President of Student Affairs Glenn Williams, to examine these questions and make a report to Marvin.

The report was submitted to Marvin Dec. 2, who in turn returned it to the board for its review.

The document includes a flow chart that allows a set system for determining which organizations are eligible for funding.

The proposed system would allow any group to apply for AB funding. A group would first have to go through a series of channels including administration, Student Senate, a student referendum.

University Union Area Head Bill Clark said, "This doesn't mean that because a group is made eligible, the board has to allocate it money. This power is still left to the AB."

Todd Daniels, financial vice president, said the AB needs this power because it knows how much money is available to allocate.

"If we don't have the money for a group made eligible by this system, we just don't have the money," he added.

Daniels also said he felt this system will be more fair to all organizations, as all would go through the same process to determine eligibility.

He said problems that came up last year with various organizations, such as the Model Illinois Government, could be avoided with the new system.

The committee report also settled the relationship of the AB as being separate from the Student Senate and will next go back to Williams.

"We don't know where it will go from there," Clark said.

Rathskeller plans specials for Superbowl

The University Union Rathskeller has specials planned to help celebrate "Superbowl Sunday," Bill Behling, food service director for the Professional Food Management, said.

Behling said the large television screen will be raised 18 inches to watch the game.

"In the past people who sat toward the back of the room had problems seeing the screen and this will allow better viewing for the game," he said.

Food specials are also planned for the event.

Submarine sandwiches will be sold by the inch and a bowl of chili will cost 25 cents, he said.

"A portable food tray will be set up near the television screen so food can be purchased without missing any of the action," he added.

The Rathskeller will extend its regular Sunday hours of 11 to 3 p.m. to 11 to 8 p.m. to provide viewing of the Superbowl, Behling said.

New staff takes over CSU Tempo operation

by Jane Meyer

CHICAGO—A new staff has taken over the operations of the Chicago State University student newspaper Tempo as of Monday.

Michael Cotter, a former Tempo reporter and news editor, was appointed editor in chief of the weekly paper Monday following the resignations of all five editors a week ago.

The former editors resigned in protest of the replacement of 13-year adviser James Friend a week earlier.

The editors who resigned contend that Friend's replacement came as a direct result of their failure to allow prior viewing of published articles that were critical of CSU administration.

Benjamin Alexander, president of the university said the replacement was an "efficiency move."

Ulysses Chambers, assistant to the vice president was subsequently named the new adviser of the paper as well as overseer of the school's other student publications.

Named as managing editor of the paper was Edgar Lucas, one of the original five editors to resign and who has since come back to the publication.

Cotter filled the remaining editorial positions on basis on scholastic achievement and writing ability through names submitted to him from Chambers.

Cotter said the eight new members of the staff, including himself, are either English or business majors.

He said he was sympathetic to the former editors' plight but he thought their actions were a bit premature.

"I knew James Friend as an adviser and faculty member and have great respect for him," Cotter said. "I feel most of the concerns of the former staff were too premature. They acted before they gave Chambers a chance to prove himself."

"I think they (the former editors) were afraid that this was a plot by the administration. I don't feel this is the case. Don't let that fool you. I have integrity as a writer and feel comfortable with the present position."

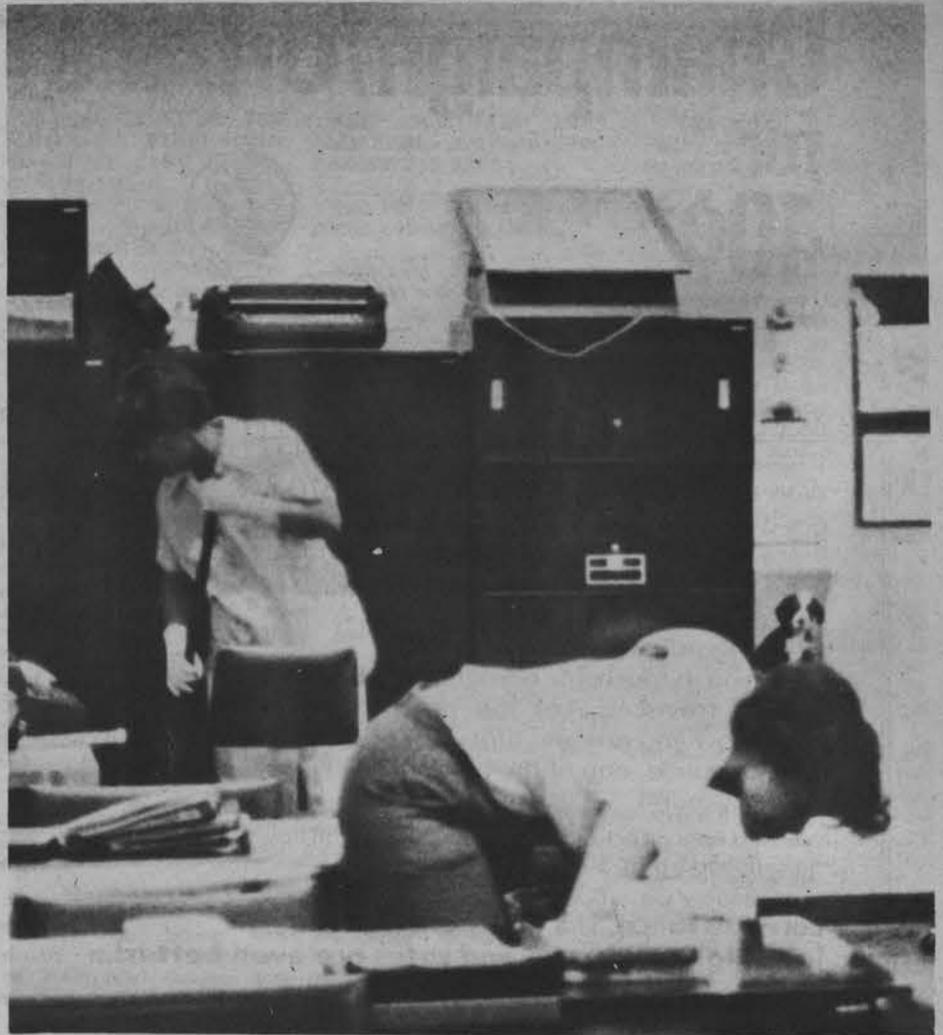

Members of the Board of Governors said they were aware of the resignation issue but one official said the issue is a "dead one."

"We have no evidence to support that the CSU administration censored the news," BOG Executive Director Donald Walters said at Thursday's BOG meeting at Chicago State.

Walters said the board is not going to take any action on the matter and that the only action that could possibly be taken is by the faculty union if they wish to support Friend.

Bernadette Dunn, former editor in chief of the paper, said that she has contacted the Student Press Law Association in Washington, D.C. for an inquiry into the case. Dunn said the association suggested that the group retain a lawyer in the Chicago area, someone who could be close to the situation.

Dunn said she also plans to contact the American Civil Liberty Association about the matter.

The newsroom of Chicago State University has undergone a more radical change than a recent cleaning. Five editors quit the paper after the dismissal of paper adviser James Friend. Newly appointed editors began their jobs Monday. (News photo by Melinda DeVries)

Tankers expect close meet against WKS

by Cathy Crist

Despite recent team illnesses, Eastern's men's swim coach Ray Padovan hopes to have a "very close" meet against Western Kentucky State University at 1 p.m. Saturday in Lantz Pool.

Western Kentucky beat the Panthers last year, and is a very powerful team, Padovan said.

He added the school usually defeats such strong teams as Indiana State University and Illinois State University.

Last Saturday the Panthers thumped Indiana 65-48 on a road meet, where Tom Hussey set a new pool record in the 200-yard backstroke with a time of 1:59.3.

Padovan said, "Hopefully they won't be really ready for us, as we are not in top shape just now. We've just come from break, classes beginning, and several illnesses, so we don't have our full strength."

The team has been working out more than usual this past week to ready themselves for Saturday's meet. Padovan said they have had 10 workouts in the past six days, and have had four double-practices this week.

"This should prove worthwhile at the meet," he added.

Padovan said it is difficult to predict who will win the meet. "If one team is really strong or one is especially weak, you can usually tell who will win."

He added that in this case (Saturday's meet) the result is unpredictable, as both teams are about equal.

"It's going to be an excellent meet—it will be a real toss-up," Padovan said.

there, we're always doing the same thing," Samuels said.

Injuries again will sideline guard Chuck Turk and forward Jim Williams, in addition to Warren Patten, who will be out for the season.

Joining Ellis and Smelter as probable starters Saturday night will be high scorer Ricky Robinson, center Jeff Jacob and forward Ricky Serkin.

"I think we'll be ready to play against Youngstown. There's room for us to improve. We've got a lot of new people playing and we've got to realize that we can improve on how we've played," Samuels said.

Although Youngstown holds a 5-6 overall record, with recent victories against Ashland and Gannon Colleges, Samuels believes the Penguins' record is deceiving.

"Youngstown is a young team but they have some talent. They've played some people close and some of the games they've lost they had big leads in the game. I know Ashland has had some good programs in the past," Samuels said.

Gridders honored

Eastern's NCAA Division II runner-up football team will be honored by the university and Charleston community at halftime of the Panthers' basketball game with Youngstown State Saturday night.

The Panthers, who finished 11-3 last fall, reached the championship game of the Division II playoffs for the second time in three years, losing the title to Cal-Poly/San Luis Obispo, 21-13 on Dec. 13.

Participating in the halftime ceremony will be the Panther coaching staff along with Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin, Athletic Director R.C. Johnson and Charleston Mayor Bob Hickman.

Recruiting schedule set by NCAA Council

Editor's note—This is the fourth in a series of five articles dealing with the proceedings of the 1981 NCAA National Convention held in Miami Beach, Fla. The following deals with the recruiting guidelines which were set by the Convention.)

by Dave Claypool

With recruiting guidelines broken year after year, the NCAA National Convention took it upon itself to attempt to curb the illegal means by which student-athletes are taken in.

Among the measures passed by the Convention was a recruiting season for football and basketball.

The NCAA Council recruitment amendment stipulates that any representative of a Division I or II institution's athletic interests desiring to evaluate a prospective athlete must do so within a prescribed period of time.

The convention voted to allow actual contact with a recruit to occur between Dec. 1 and March 1, with an evaluation period—a time span when coaches could watch an athlete play but not talk to him—set for Aug. 1 to Dec. 1.

NCAA convention wrap-up

In basketball the period is between June 15 and Aug. 1 for evaluation, and Dec. 1 through March 1 to actually talk to the athlete.

"The proposal that passed was the NCAA Council's," Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said. "We were in favor of the NCAA proposal and believe it will be a great thing."

"The evaluation period was a good thing to pass," Johnson said. "The limitation to three months which you can go out and physically talk to a recruit was also good."

Also passed by the delegates to the Convention was an amendment allowing just one national signing date for athletes disclosing which school they will be attending.

"With this there is no more conference letters of intent," Johnson said. "I think that's good because so many times a big school will sign a kid to a conference letter of intent, which isn't binding, but the athlete feels compelled to go to that conference, even though he thinks he might be happier somewhere else."

Johnson said cancellation of the conference letters was largely due to the Convention's concern to cut recruiting costs.

"This has alleviated some expenses," Johnson said. "Plus it will give smaller schools like Eastern a better chance at landing better quality athletes."

Johnson said that minor proposals were stricken from the books such as the amendment to allow schools to give prospective athletes $20 instead of the current $10.

Currently, schools are allowed to give an athlete $10 for spending money when they visit a university.

"There were a lot of little things like that," Johnson said. "But the overall recruiting news was the time periods for basketball and football."

Ill-stricken tracksters host dual

by Dan Brannan

Eastern's flu-stricken men's track squad will entertain two strong opponents Saturday when it hosts Southeast Missouri State and Indiana State at 2 p.m. Saturday in Lantz Fieldhouse.

Eastern's men's track coach Neil Moore said four or five of his team members are in the process of recovering from the flu, causing some realignment in his lineup.

The Panther track coach said one change will be moving sophomore Mpaka Fyeface out of the 600-yard dash and into the 440-yard dash.

In place of Fyeface he will move last week's 440 winner, Merrill Kaney, to the 600.

"I think this is going to be a real tough meet," Moore said. "The mile relay may decide the meet."

Moore said Indiana State will be strong in the pole vault, triple jump, the 440 and the 600.

"Indiana State has a 50.2, 440-yard dash man named Williams," Moore said. "They also have a good 600-yard dash man named Nick Edwards."

Moore said Indiana State also has some standout 880 runners along with two excellent 2-milers named Tobolski and Gottardi entered in the 3-mile run.

Gottardi has run a 9:13 two mile, and Tobolski has recorded a 9:16 effort for the same distance.

Moore said Southeast Missouri State has a lot of new people this year.

"Southeast will be very tough in the sprints," the coach said.

Moore said Reynolds is Southeast's best sprinter with a top time of 6.3 in the 60-yard dash.

Southeast also has a 60-yard high hurdler named Presberry, who has recorded a 7.5 time, and a man named Green in the 1,000-yard run, Moore said.

Moore said Green has recorded a 2:15 this season in the 1,000.

A bright spot for Eastern is the return of senior Reo Rorem.

Bum hired by Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Folksy Bum Phillips, fired as coach of the Houston Oilers on New Year's Eve, signed a five-year contract Thursday as coach of the New Orleans Saints.

He is the eighth head coach in the team's 14 years in the National Football League.

Contract terms were not disclosed.

Phillips' hiring by the Saints was not unexpected. Team owner John Mecom Jr. said the 57-year-old Phillips became his leading candidate when he was fired by Houston after the American Football Conference wild-card game, which the Oilers lost to the Oakland Raiders.

"We've kept this as good a secret as we did our game plans for the 1-15 season," Mecom joked.

Continuity sought by cagers against YSU

by Steve Binder

Eastern's basketball team will again try to establish offensive continuity when they take on what head coach Rick Samuels termed "a real test" in conference opponent Youngstown State at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Lantz Gym.

Eastern holds an 0-2 record in the Mid-Continent Conference, while the Penguins are 1-1.

Both teams have shared a mutual opponent this year in Western Illinois University. The Panthers lost to the Leathernecks 92-91 in double-overtime at Lantz Gym, and Youngstown subdued Western 78-73 at Youngstown.

"It will be a real good test for us. It's an important conference game, but also it is an important game over-all. We're at the bottom of the MCC and that's not where we want to be," Samuels said.

Even though the Panthers are averaging 74 points a game and shooting 48.4 percent from the field, which is ahead of last year's record setting 47.7 percent, their offense has lacked the fluidness Samuels hopes his squad will obtain Saturday night.

"We've been concentrating this week in practice on offensive rhythm," Samuels said. "They (the Eastern players) have to start staying within the context of our offense and not try to do too many things on their own. They have to start doing the expected.

"We have to be conscious of the fact that we are not executing to the best of our abilities on offense. We've been doing pretty good on defense and we have had some good execution on offense, but we still have not reached our full potential," Samuels said.

Indeed, the Panthers have been doing well on defense—allowing opponents just 70 points a game. And defense is what Eastern will need, especially from guards Rico Ellis and Vincent Smelter, against Youngstown.

Even though the Penguins are a relatively young team they boast experience in guards Bruce Alexander and Bob Carter.

Alexander leads Youngstown in scoring with 18 points a game.

"It will be a good challenge for Rico and Vincent. It will be a key in the game if they can stop them defensively and keep them below their averages and keep them out of the tempo of the game.

"For the rest of the season, defense will be the key for us. Because of the injuries we've had, it doesn't hurt you as bad when you have new faces on defense. Because no matter who's in

Grapplers edge out Bison in final match

by Steve Binder

Geno Savegnago's 11-3 heavyweight decision over Steve Pfeiffer capped a climatic 22-18 Eastern wrestling victory over North Dakota State Thursday at Lantz Gym.

The meet was tied 18-18 going into the heavyweight match before Savegnago decided Pfeiffer to secure the Panthers of the hard-fought win.

"This is just what I expected, a good competitive meet. I didn't think it would be that close. I thought we might have won by about six or eight points," head coach Ron Clinton said.

And at the outset of the meet, it appeared as though it may not be even as close as the score indicated.

Eastern's 118-pounder Bryan Murphy, who was tied 5-5 in the second round with North Dakota's Pat Halloran, pinned his opponent at the 2:04 mark to give Eastern a 6-0 lead.

"I thought Murphy wrestled a strong match. He did an excellent job," Clinton said.

The Panthers continued to dominate as 126-pounder Derek Porter and 134-pounder Doug Schafer both decided their opponents, building Eastern's lead to 12-0.

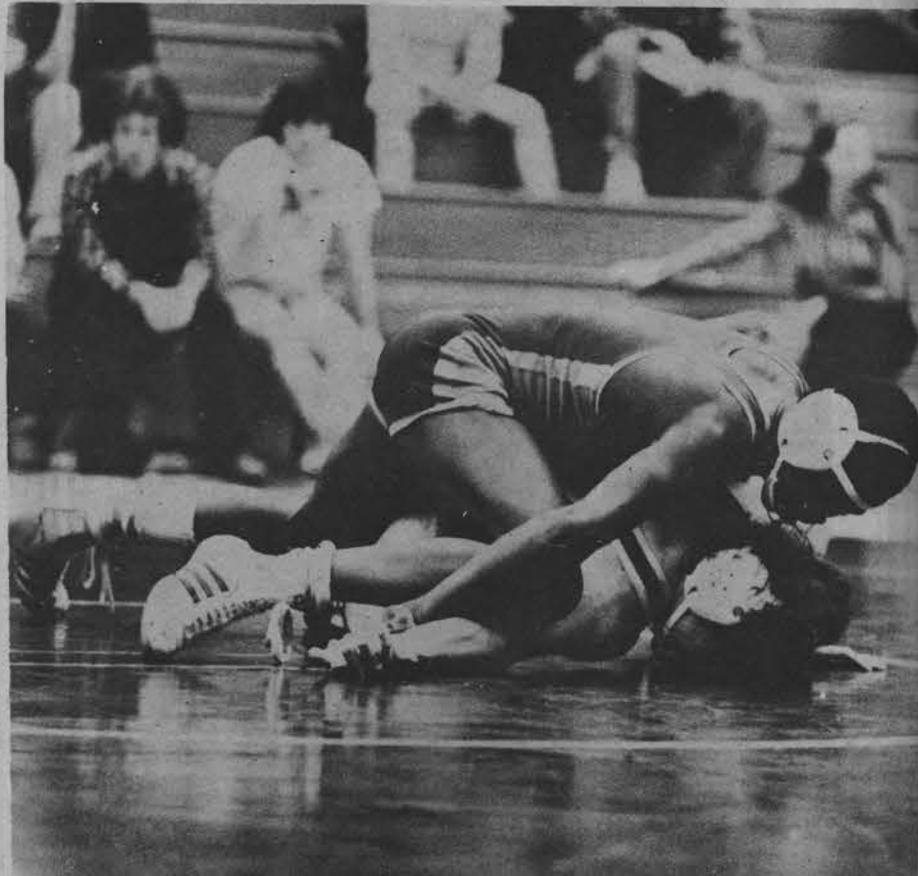

"Porter did a real good job and this was Schafer's first meet, so he looked a little rusty, but I thought he did a pretty good job," Clinton said.

Then the Panthers' middleweights ran into trouble.

Eastern's 142-pound freshman Bob Ryan, senior 150-pounder Ken Blackman and 158-pound freshman Dan Sanko all were decided—knotting the score at 12.

"I was expecting a little better performance from our middleweights, but I thought the freshmen did a good job," Clinton said.

Junior Mark Gronowski, wrestling at 167, grappled evenly with Steve Hammers, but at the end pulled out an 8-5 decision to put the Panthers in front of North Dakota 15-12.

Freshman 177-pounder Earl Edwards then boosted Eastern's lead to 18-12 with a last-second reversal that gave him a 10-9 decision over Hugh Trowbridge.

"I think Earl's a good competitor. He'll get some points scored against him, but then he'll always come back and get the points against his opponent," Clinton said.

Tight budget for 'Blues?' You bet your $40 million

by Laura Ziebell

Talk about confidence. Universal Pictures put more than $32 million worth of it in director John Landis after his outstanding track record for "The Blues Brothers Movie."

The 28-year-old director can only boast of three films, the first being a small-scale monster flick. Landis then directed "Kentucky Fried Movie" which grossed about $45 million.

It was his next feature that made him a legend, though. "Animal House," the 1950s frat-club comedy starring John Belushi was made for less than $3 million, yet earned a whopping $160 million. Figures like that gave Landis carte blanche on "The Blues Brothers," his newest feature starring Saturday Night Live veterans Belushi and Dan Aykroyd.

Since the sky was the limit as far as money went, one stunt the filmmakers pulled was to drop a Ford Pinto into downtown Chicago from an altitude of 1400 feet. But first two test Pintos had to be dropped to prove to the Federal Aviation Administration that no one would be killed. This was the sort of thing that gave the film its astronomical budget.

Of course high-scale promotion had to be included which brought the final price tag to about $40 million, but that just may prove the old Hollywood motto: Think BIG.

The highly-budgeted, highly-claimed movie will be shown 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Friday in the University Union addition Grand Ballroom. Admission is $1.25.

Lennon's last 'Heart Play' records marriage

Though artistically slim, Double Fantasy is a warm, often light-hearted record of marriage and parenthood. Subtitled "A Heart Play," the album's 14 songs are evenly split between John Lennon and Yoko Ono.

John celebrates the idea of family in "Cleanup Time:"

*However far we travel
Wherever we may roam
The center of the circle
Will always be our home*

Of course, the Lennons aren't singing about just any family; they're singing about their own. Upon his retirement five years ago, John let Yoko take care of business while he raised son Sean and baked bread, becoming, in his phrase, "a househusband."

*The queen is in the counting home
Counting out the money,
The king is in the kitchen
Making bread and honey*

But not all was bliss in Lennonland. The down side of marriage is recorded in the companion pieces "I'm Losing You" and "I'm Moving On," songs of loss, loneliness, and pain.

But "All you Need is Love" as John sang in 1968. The majority of Double Fantasy's songs are intimate messages between John, Yoko and Sean.

The Lennons sound contented and cozy. Though it seems too traditional a statement for them, the album offers the old-fashioned family unit as the solution. Throughout his career, John's songs have either cut through hypocrisy or offered hope. These are songs of hope—a hope that a return to family can bring the world the peace the Lennons have found.

The music itself is a celebration, a festival of life and rock history. Over a hard rock beat much of the layered guitars, horns and vocals are Fifties rock and roll.

Rock Revue

by John Stockman

While John's songs sound traditional, Yoko's show her avant-garde tastes. Her screeching of previous years influenced artists like Lene Lovich and the B-52's, but here she is less radical, singing her songs straight, though sometimes off-key.

But Double Fantasy's light-hearted tone is due to the Beatlesque sound effects and the kidding around. Yoko's wonderfully campy "I'm You're Angel" is full of "tra la la la's;" the end of John's "I'm Losing You" says "I love you, Yoko" in synthesized Morse code.

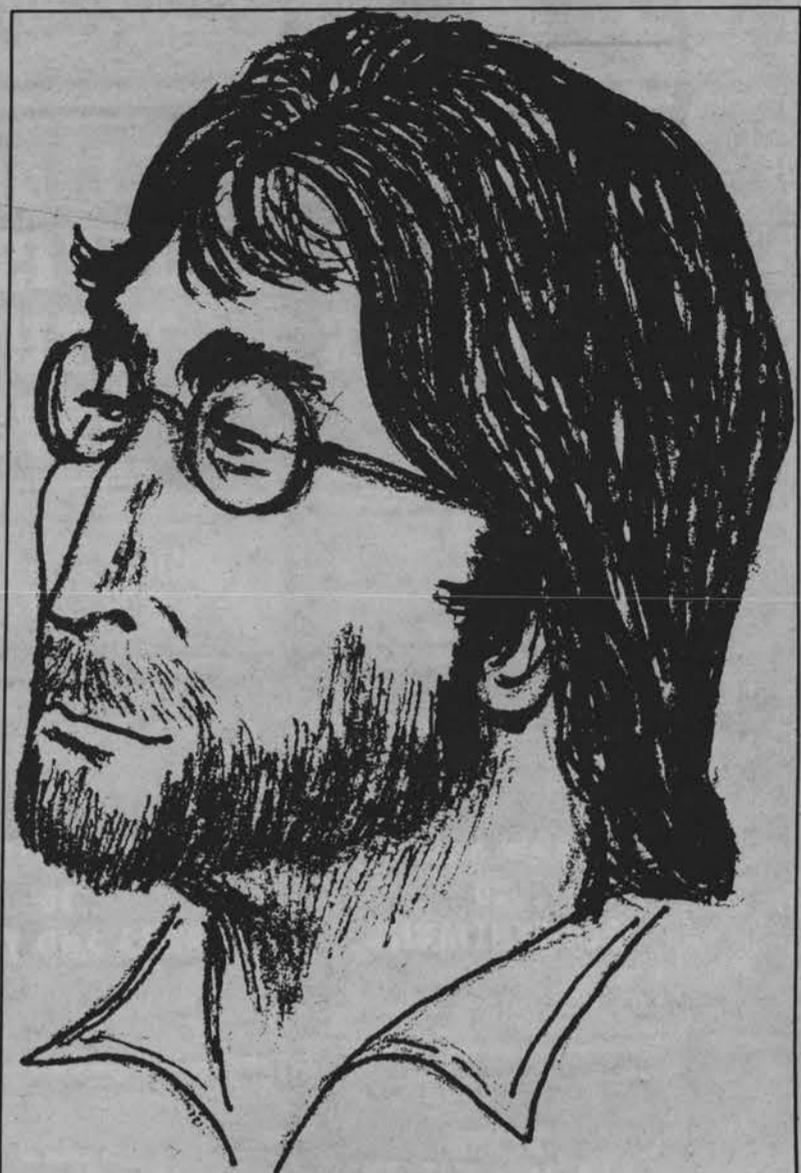

The best song here is "Watching The Wheels," John's statement about his retirement. The song has the best vocal on the album and a melody and piano line reminiscent of "Imagine."

Very simply, Double Fantasy is a warm message of family—a message John Lennon doesn't take for granted (his father ran away when he was two and when he was 16 his mother died). The last five years with Yoko and Sean seem to have washed away much of the insecurity and bitterness that marked his character.

He was perhaps happier in the last few months of his life than he had ever been. Double Fantasy is not a great record, but it showed great promise. For all of us it was going to be just like starting over. But it was not to be.

In "Beautiful Boy" John tells Sean about life—and death.

*Life is what happens to you
While you're busy
Making other plans*

Legal hassles

Steve Davis of the Student Legal Service and Coles County Public Defender Loren Lutz discuss how a student may get in touch with the legal system and use it.

by Laura Ziebell

Legal trouble is not something that a college student usually plans on, but at least free assistance or advice is available through the Student Legal Service or the Coles County Public Defender's office.

According to Student Legal Service attorney Steven Davis, the five-month old service has had a good beginning.

"On the average about 100 students contact us a month," Davis said. "Most complaints are about housing, lease and landlord-tenant problems."

The legal service program which began on August 15, 1980, is funded by Eastern students who pay a fee of two dollars per semester. The office is located on the University Union Mezzanine and is open at 8 a.m. with appointments beginning at 9 a.m., and closing at 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Davis may not represent students with complaints against the University, the Board of Governors or the state of Illinois.

Personal business affairs or family problems are also not handled by the service.

Although this may sound as if off-campus students may be more eligible for representation than on-campus students, Davis said he believes these students have a higher chance of confronting legal problems.

"A few students have common concerns about such things as loans, housing and the textbook but I feel the personnel at Eastern is cooperative with the students," Davis said. In these cases, Davis said he gives the student advice or contacts the university office to alert them of the problem.

On the other hand, some landlords do not have such an interest in the student. "In fact, some landlords have said they hate students," Davis said.

The three main problems a campus student may run into are agreements on the condition of an apartment, getting released from an apartment and receiving deposits.

"These are the most common problems where college students seem to lack knowledge of the law," Davis said. "Some of these apartment leases are not fair and equal to the students' rights. A student should not rely on their landlord's word in the fixing up an apartment."

Settlements between landlord and tenant should always be written in a lease, Davis stressed.

If a legal problem should arise, Davis usually acts as mediator between the landlord and the student tenant. Some

Students encounter a number of legal problems, and may be unaware of the various help available in court where Davis said the success rate has had a high success rate. consumer problems may also be handled by the service. One student sought advice when a local car repair shop failed to make correct repairs. Consumer problems can end up in court where we can possibly help the student," Davis said. "But the average student usually doesn't seek help for any large consumer problems until after they are out of college."

Students are also placed on criminal charges for money-making, bankruptcy, drug offenses, real estate, probate and other legal matters. The service staff may not draft any legal documents such as mortgages, installment contracts, real estate titles or divorce decrees. The main reason we have limited staff is so that we can serve as many students as we can. Legal proceedings usually demand a lot of time and attention," Davis said.

That reason, students involved in criminal offenses or felonies are required to appear at a hearing where a lawyer is needed with the student. If the student is unable to pay for legal representation as shown by his income statement and whether he has been represented by the public defender, the student may be eligible for representation by the public defender.

Each student may be eligible for representation by the public defender, County Public Defender Lonnie Lutz. His services also have some limitations. Offenses like speeding tickets, accidents and city ordinance offenses cannot be represented by the public defender because the maximum punishment is a fine payable by the student if he is judged guilty, Lutz said.

Lutz only represents those who are charged with Class A misdemeanors. Retail theft, reckless driving and disorderly conduct are among the Class A misdemeanors and are punishable by a possible jail term.

"I've represented people from the ages of seven to 70," Lutz said. "Although I don't know if the Eastern students that come to me have already sought council first at the Student Legal Service, I would guess that most of them have."

The most common charges that college-age people are brought up against are retail theft, disorderly conduct, criminal trespassing, criminal damage to property and deceptive practices, Lutz said.

Besides a $30 misdemeanor-$70 felony court costs fee, adults may receive the public defender's services free of charge. Juveniles under the age of 17 are charged an extra $25.

Davis said he feels the service at Eastern has made a good beginning and he believes the students who have had the need to contact the service feel it's worthwhile.

"The majority of students will never need legal advice," Davis concluded. "But if and when it happens, I'm sure they're glad we're here."

Discoers are now dancing to big bands

by the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Where have all the dancers gone, now that disco's bubble has burst? A group of big band leaders, left out in the cold by two solid decades of rock dominance, is seeking to fill the boogie vacuum—and getting unexpected support from young audiences.

"Disco music is fading, but it created a whole group of dancers," says veteran trumpet player and bandleader Ray Anthony. "And dancers want to keep dancing once they get going. . . . It's the ideal time to come up with something new."

So Anthony founded Big Band '80s, whose members include such big band figures as Harry James, Les Brown, Alvino Rey and Buddy Rich. Originally the group's efforts were aimed at promoting members' recordings on radio stations; recently, they've set up a mail-order record club to sell directly to consumers.

Their records are by no means on the verge of the multimillion sales commanded by a Fleetwood Mac or Eagles album, Anthony acknowledges. But there are unmistakable signs of a renaissance—more radio stations playing the music, more demand for live big bands.

And for the first time in quite a few years, Frank Sinatra—that most enduring of big band singers—came up with half a dozen Grammy nominations for his "trilogy" album and its jaunty "New York, New York" track.

Anthony, sensing that something was afoot when he started getting enough jobs to reassemble his band after almost 20 years, decided to do something to nourish big band listenership.

"So I called a group of local bandleaders who were hungry," he says. "We started out with 10, we eventually got it up to around 35."
