County Board votes not to apply for CASP

by Chris Koester

The Coles County Board voted Tuesday not to apply for a controversial anti-drunk driving program dropped by the city of Charleston last year.

The possibility of the county receiving the Comprehensive Alcohol Safety Program grant ended with the board's 7-5 vote. The action came despite Coles County Sheriff Chuck Lister's strong support for the program in recent months.

With the vote, the board decided not to apply for the CASP grant, which would have funded additional sheriff's police patrols assigned specifically to crack down on drunk drivers.

"I'm not really surprised (the board voted against it)," Lister said. "However, statistics and my own experiences have shown there is a very real drunk driving problem in the rural areas that the program would have helped address."

The CASP grant was used by the Charleston Police Department last year, and resulted in a rise in drunk-driving arrests and decrease in car accidents. However, city officials decided not to re-apply for the grant this year because of the "fatigue" it caused officers on the overtime patrols.

Lister later suggested a CASP program on the county level, and the proposal lived through the county board's finance and law enforcement committees before the board itself killed it after nearly two hours of debate.

Although Lister said he wasn't angry with the board's decision to kill CASP, he did question the board's reasons for doing so.

"A whole bunch of people who want to impress the public will say they are against drunk-driving," Lister said. "In their hearts however, they are against it as long as it doesn't affect themselves or their relatives."

Lister said another reason CASP was voted down was because "it was not politically good" to support the program. "I think we never will know what gets us votes."

Tom Michael, county board member and former law enforcement officer, said he voted against CASP because he didn't think the public wanted it.

"The only people who talked to me were against the program," Michael said. "Not one person talked to me who was for CASP."

"I want to see drunk drivers off the road too," Michael explained. "I still feel, however, that the sheriff's department can enforce the law while performing their regular duties."

County board member Larry Moore also voted against CASP because he was uneasy about the way the program is structured.

"I am opposed to the quota system," Moore said. "CASP wanted a person stopped every 60 seconds (for DUI) and someone arrested every six hours."

Moore also said that, because the county is dry and cities issue all liquor licenses, city rather than county police should bear greater responsibility for (See COUNTY, page 8)

United States, Soviet Union begin nuclear arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union began their nuclear arms talks Tuesday, with the chief Soviet delegate making it clear that he had received his instructions from Mikhail S. Gorbachev four days before taking over as Kremlin leader.

President Konstantin U. Chernenko died Sunday. But Victor P. Karpov, the leader of Moscow's delegation to the Geneva talks, told reporters Gorbachev "presided over the meeting of the Politburo that approved the (negotiating) instructions last Thursday."

Gorbachev, 54, succeeded Chernenko as general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party Monday.

As Vice President George Bush left Geneva for Moscow to attend Chernenko's funeral, he hinted he would try to set up a meeting between President Reagan and the new Soviet leader.

Bush said he would deliver a letter from Reagan. Asked whether Reagan was ready for a summit meeting, Bush said: "We'll talk about that after an agreement is reached with the Soviets on what we are going to disclose."

At the Soviet mission, in an unusual exchange with reporters before Tuesday's initial round of talks, Karpov declined to reply to a question as to whether the health of the 73-year-old Chernenko had been too poor for him to become involved in arms talks

Subcommittee OKs MX missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House appropriations subcommittee fired the first shot in the congressional battle over the MX missile Tuesday by voting 7-4 to accept President Reagan's recommendation for spending $1.5 billion to produce another 21 of the long-range nuclear weapons.

The panel, meeting even as the arms control negotiations were getting under way in Geneva, opened what is forecast as a close and bitter battle in both the House and Senate later this month.

A subcommittee member, Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-Pa., said if Congress voted to stop MX production now, "It would be devastating to the purposes of arms control.

preparations.

Karpov said simply, "That's quite enough."

But Karpov seemed in a conciliatory mood. He said if both sides wanted an agreement "you can do that on the kitchen floor, here or somewhere else."

Karpov warmly greeted the U.S. delegation leader, Max M. Kampelman, saying he hoped Tuesday's session would be "one of the first in a series that we will negotiate, and reach an agreement." The next session is scheduled for Thursday.

After the nearly three hour meeting, Kampelman read a brief statement to a jammed news conference, saying the

"The place to settle this is at the talks in Geneva and not at the table in this committee room," McDade said.

But Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., the subcommittee chairman, said there are enough of the 10-warhead missiles already approved by Congress to permit the United States to produce the 100 sought by Reagan even if the arms negotiations go badly.

The Senate is expected to vote on the missile about March 20, with the House following on March 25.

Tuesday's vote was required under a congressional decision made last fall which in effect postponed the MX fight.

two sides "had a serious and businesslike discussion of the issues." Citing an agreement with Karpov on "confidentiality" of the negotiations, Kampelman declined to answer questions from the lectern.

But when a reporter asked Kampelman later if Karpov had been the only Soviet negotiator at Tuesday's session, Kampelman nodded. The point may indicate significant difficulties ahead during the negotiations.

Under the formula devised in January for the Geneva talks, the two sides agreed the negotiations would deal with three issues—long range and medium-range missiles and space arms.

Since then, the Soviets, on the other hand, say if agreement can be reached on one question, it should be put into effect immediately.

At a pre-negotiating meeting Monday of delegation aides, the Soviets sent only one official, while the United States had one official dealing with each of the three negotiating issues.

Besides being delegation chief, Kampelman will discuss space arms. John G. Tower, a former Texas senator, will handle long-range missiles, and Maynard W. Glitman, a career diplomat, will work with intermediate-range rockets.

Both Tower and Glitman were with Kampelman at the opening session Tuesday, but Karpov was the only Soviet negotiator present. Karpov will deal with long-range missiles, Yuli A. Kvitinsky with space weapons and Alexei Obukoy with intermediate weapons.

Gunmen blast way into embassy

OTTAWA—Gunmen claiming to be members of an Armenian terrorist group blasted and shot their way into the Turkish Embassy on Tuesday, killed a security guard and held a dozen people hostage for about four hours before surrendering.

Ambassador Coskum Kirca jumped from a window to escape the intruders, breaking his right arm and leg, Ottawa Police Inspector Wilfrid Longchamps said. The ambassador's wife and daughter, who were among the 12 hostages, were released unharmed.

Police negotiated through bullhorns with the three gunmen for about an hour before they agreed to surrender, police Sgt. Garry Rae said.

The three men, who said they were members of the Armenian Revolutionary Army, were taken to police headquarters for questioning. At a news conference, Inspector Wilfrid Longchamps refused to identify them and said he did not know what charges would be filed or when.

Longchamps said the men were "heavily armed" with shotguns and handguns. After they surrendered, armed forces specialists were called in to defuse explosives the gunmen had left in the embassy, he said.

Farmland values resume drop

CHAMPAIGN—The drop in value of top Illinois farmland is not over but "we're much closer to a bottom now than we were a few years ago," according to John Scott, a University of Illinois agricultural economist.

"Where it will end is difficult to predict," said Scott, a specialist in land prices, in a recent interview. "We have an oversupply now. Prices certainly won't bottom out until the oversupply is gone."

The value of the state's best farmland has fallen 33 percent since 1981, according to surveys of agricultural bankers in Illinois. Prices fell 16 percent in 1984 alone.

Scott said the belief that the drop in price will lure more outside investors into buying farmland is a misconception.

Freshmen have multiple failures

CHICAGO—Nearly 40 percent of Chicago public school freshmen failed two or more classes last academic year, according to figures released by Superintendent Ruth Love.

A report Miss Love delivered to the school board, made public Tuesday, indicates that 38.9 percent of the system's freshmen had multiple failures in the school year that ended last June. The report said the multiple failure rate for freshmen the previous year was 36.8 percent.

In 18 of the city's 64 high schools, more than half of last year's freshmen failed two or more courses last year.

The multiple failure rate for all students was 28.7 percent in 1984, amounting to 28,327 students, up from 26.9 percent in 1983.

School officials said the rate declines sharply through the four years of high school, reflecting the fact that many of the students doing the worst work eventually drop out.

Bush takes peace message

MOSCOW (AP)—A "young and energetic" Mikhail S. Gorbachev, in firm command of this mighty nation, looked back to mourn his predecessor Tuesday and ahead to his first head-to-head summit talks with world powers.

Vice President George Bush, landing in the frigid Soviet capital for Wednesday's funeral for the late President Konstantin U. Chernenko, declared that he was bringing a "message of peace" from President Reagan.

The United States "has no greater hope and no greater goal" than improved relations with the Soviet Union, Bush said.

In Washington, the White House said Reagan would consider meeting with the new Kremlin chief sometime in the future if "it would be beneficial to the cause of world peace."

Gorbachev's first planned talks, however, were with France's President Francois Mitterrand. A presidential spokesman in Paris said Mitterrand, attending Chernenko's funeral, would sit down with the new Soviet Communist Party general secretary after the Red Square burial.

Meetings with Bush and others among the world leaders streaming into Moscow remained uncertain.

This gray, damp city was enshrouded in the colors of mourning Tuesday as hundreds of thousands queued up in central Moscow to file past the flower-draped bier bearing the body of Chernenko, who died Sunday at age 73 of lung, heart and liver ailments.

Gorbachev led the Kremlin vanguard in paying their respects Tuesday, just as he had done Monday night.

The 54-year-old lawyer and agricultural specialist, youngest member of the 10-member ruling Politburo, was announced as the new party general secretary within hours of Monday's announcement of the death of Chernenko, who had been president and party leader. Gorbachev can be expected to eventually take on the less important presidential title as well.

Committee approves pay freeze

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Budget Committee, continuing an open rebellion against President Reagan, voted Tuesday to maintain the federal revenue sharing program for one more year while it ratified a call for a one-year pay freeze for civilian and military government workers.

The action came as the administration launched a pre-emptive strike designed to head off an expected move in the committee for higher taxes, with White House spokesman Larry Speakes saying Reagan was "strong as 10 pounds of onions against it."

"If I were a betting man I'd give you about 100-1 that he'd veto" a tax increase. Speakes added in sentiments seconded long-distance from Geneva, Switzerland, by Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

The vote in the Republican-controlled committee overwhelmingly supported the pay freeze for government workers. The lawmakers in effect ratified decisions they had been making as they reviewed spending on dozens of federal programs. In addition, the committee called for a two-year freeze in civilian employee hiring within the government.

The votes on revenue sharing and federal pay set up a showdown over taxes, with Democrats Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina each proposing large tax increases beginning in 1986.

Reagan, Mubarak continue talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan said Tuesday that Egypt's formula to rekindle Middle East peace talks is "a positive contribution" but does not go far enough, and observed that Israel and its Arab neighbors "are still a long way from the negotiating table."

After two hours of talks with Reagan, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak insisted that "a golden opportunity for peace is emerging."

The Egyptian leader said a recent agreement between King Hussein of Jordan and Yasser Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization for pursuing peace was "a major development that should not be discounted or discarded."

"We cannot afford another missed opportunity for peace, and not during your presidency," Mubarak cautioned.

The Egyptian leader pressed his plea for an $870-million increase in American aid for his country and his plan for the United States to meet with a delegation of Palestinians and Jordanians as a first step toward Israeli-Arab peace talks.

On the question of aid, Reagan promised to give the request a sympathetic hearing. However, an administration official, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Reagan noted that the United States has budgetary problems of its own.

On the second point, the official said nothing would be gained by a U.S. meeting with a Palestinian-Jordanian delegation—a panel which the administration suspects might be a cover for members of the PLO.

Zordani appeals to student court for Collard's ouster

by Lori Edwards
and Amy Landers

An appeal asking for the removal of Teresa Collard from Student Senate was filed with the Student Supreme Court last week by sophomore Bob Zordani.

Zordani, who was a write-in candidate in the executive vice president special election, said he wants Collard removed because, "Student Senate acted unethically in making the decision to keep Teresa Collard as chairman of the senate university relations committee."

The senate by-laws state that the elections chairs and committee members shall conduct elections in a fair and impartial manner. This is the clause which Zordani said Collard violated.

However, the Chief Justice of the court said Zordani will not have a case.

Grant Sterling, chief justice of the Student Supreme Court, said, "I know after initially looking at the case how it will turn out. We don't have any constitutional authority to do it."

An elections committee hearing found Collard guilty of an election violation last week under the same section of the by-laws.

However, senate is the only body which can take any action against Collard.

Collard was asked to resign from her elections committee chairmanship and then was appointed to the university relations chair which many senators said was no more than switching seats.

Zordani said, "I think Teresa should be out of there, you can't break laws and expect to hold a position of responsibility."

He added that it was a question of ethics, and if Collard would resign from senate, he would drop his case.

Collard said, "I will not resign. If he wants a fight, he's got one in me. I've worked too hard in the last two years to just quit. I told him it will be a fight to the death and it will be."

"He made it clear earlier that he would appeal," Collard said. "I think you can carry a thing out too far, eventually he'll get as far as he can go."

Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said, "Teresa made a mistake, and I wish she could take ten seconds back because she has done a lot of good things."

"I think she'll perform well for the students. If she doesn't, then I'll be on her—but I don't think she'll let me down," Wesel added.

Zordani said the appeal is mainly against people who voted that Collard should stay in the relations post.

"Wesel is a pretty good friend of Collard's. He honestly believes she's the best person for the job," Zordani said.

Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said, "It is just a thing of circumstances, if it had happened last fall I would have asked for a new election."

"To have a new election now would be ideal but unrealistic," Wesel said. "The earliest possible date would be the first or second week of April and the regular election to fill that seat (executive vice president) is held the third week of April. It's illogical."

But Zordani said he was not asking for a new election because he knew it was unlikely that he would get one. He said he just believes Collard should be removed from her position or from senate.

Wesel said, "Anybody can appeal any decision made by senate, that's why we have that check there. I'm glad to see he's using the proper channel to get his point made."

"The supreme court is not a higher body than the senate, it's equal to the senate," he added. "Their power rests in whether or not the senate made a constitutional decision or not."

"If they (supreme court) feel that senate acted unconstitutionally then they can act," Wesel said.

Sterling said a hearing date has not yet been set for the appeal hearing. He added that he will try to fit the appeal in either later this week or next week.

Police investigate co-ed attack

by Andrew Leyden

Campus Police are currently investigating the reported attack of a 19-year-old Eastern co-ed which occurred late Monday night near the Tarble Arts Center.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said the victim, whose name was not released, reported she had been attacked at about 11:15 p.m. Monday while walking home from Booth Library.

Larson said the student was approaching the west entrance to Tarble Arts Center and was attacked by an unidentified white male who grabbed the student's shoulder and struck her face with his hand.

The student was able to free herself from the attacker and ran back to the library. Apparently, Larson noted, the suspect ran towards Ninth Street.

"The attacker was described as a white male, 5-foot-8-inch to 6-foot tall, and approximately 22 to 25 years old," Larson said. "The victim didn't believe her attacker was a college student."

The attacker was reported as wearing a dark jacket, black leather gloves, blue jeans, and a blue stocking cap. The student noted that she could smell alcohol on the attacker's breath, he added.

"This attack is classified as a battery, we can't prove sexual intent," Larson said. "Sex may have been the intent but we are not sure because the victim was able to get away before anything happened."

Although there are no leads in the case, Larson noted that anyone with information about the attack or who was in the vicinity at the time of the attack, should contact Campus Police.

ISSC to study budget request

by Lori Edwards

Illinois State Scholarship Commission will consider Wednesday approval of a budget request from Illinois Designated Account Purchase Programs.

IDAPP, which is a division of the ISSC, serves as a secondary money market for lenders in the guaranteed loan program, Eastern Financial Aid Director John Flynn said.

ISSC spokesman Bob Clement said IDAPP can buy a loan from a bank when the loan goes into default.

Flynn said through this program the state issues bonds to pay for loans which banks have given to students.

Banks which sell their loans to the state must then use the money received for increasing the money supply available to students for loans, he said.

He added that banks then only have to keep one amount of money tied up in the guaranteed loan system.

In addition, ISSC, which will meet at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room, will discuss rules for a newly proposed Merit Recognition Scholarship.

The scholarship will provide $500 to the top 5 percent of each high school graduating class who are Illinois residents and plan on attending a qualified Illinois university.

Flynn said ISSC must publish the proposed rules in the Illinois Register, allow time for public comment and then present them to ISSC.

He added that this will be the second review of the rules.

Football adds up to dirty deal for the campus

An old song says April showers bring the flowers that bloom in May.

But these days showers have caused a whole new phenomenon at Eastern. It seems that February and March showers bring football players who play in mud.

In a way, the practice makes sense. Students were locked away in their rooms for months because of a cold, snowy winter. Since the mercury has risen and the snow has been washed away by rain, students can now go out and release their energy.

Now, an estimated one percent of the student body has chosen to throw on old clothes and play football in the mud. There is nothing wrong with this group deciding to get some fresh air into their lungs and fresh mud on their bodies. But the fact remains that their frolicking is going to cost Eastern some money.

It's also going to take up the time of the grounds workers.

It has been calculated that repairs to the Library Quad alone will add up to $50. This may not sound like a lot of money, but the thought that any money at all should be allocated to such a project is distressing.

Students should respect the property of this school, especially since it is financed through their taxes and checkbooks.

In addition, grounds workers—when they could be doing something else—will be forced to clean up the mess which students have created.

Everyone deserves a good time, but it should not come at the expense and time of others.

Support for Choate

Editor:

A friend of mine asked me to work for mayoral candidate Murray Choate. I told my friend I was too busy. But then I met Choate. He impressed me very much, and I am now volunteering time for his campaign to be mayor of Charleston.

Murray Choate is just the person students at Eastern want for mayor of Charleston. He is the associate director of admissions; therefore, he works with students everyday and recognizes that they and Eastern could be two of the most important forces in Charleston.

This mayoral race is important to Eastern students. Most of us spend four years of our lives in Charleston. What the city government decides affects us directly as far as housing, water expenses, liquor problems and police affairs. If you have a complaint, this is your chance to speak out.

Choate can handle the job. His administrative skills are well-developed as the result of his management position at Eastern, and from being commander of an Air Force Reserve unit at the Wing level.

He is also quite familiar with the people and government of Charleston. He is chairman of the Liquor Advisory Commission and the city's Board of Zoning Appeals and Planning.

You have an opportunity to meet Choate and learn what he is all about. Watch for information concerning times and dates of appearances.

Get on the boat—support Murray Choate.

Senate petition info

Editor:

I wish to bring to the students' attention that Wednesday petitions will be available for senate and executive offices at Eastern.

The only requirements are to be a full-time student and have a grade point average of 2.0 or above.

Any interested students should go to the Student Senate office and ask for the petitions for the April elections. Petitions are due April 2, and must be handed in for your name to be on the ballot.

In the past elections, candidates for the senate and executive seats have run unopposed. Let's not have this happen again.

Senate has a strong voice at Eastern. It's your right to be represented by senators who are acting in your best interest. Please keep informed of events, listen to the issues and vote for the people that you want to represent you at Eastern. If there are any questions, my number is in the book. Thank you.

Senior slump instigated by spring

Senior slump has arrived.

As I sit on my front porch watching all of you drive by trying to impress each other with your loud, music-equipped, T-top cars, I cannot help but find myself without a purpose in life.

I suppose it happens to everyone at this time of year thanks to the onslaught of warm weather. But this year, it seems worse than ever for me.

You hear about this senior slump business from those who have been there and know about it.

Basically, senior slump means finding new and creative ways to blow-off class and not study for mid-term exams. The purpose of this is to find more time to sit around, listen to loud music and count the days until graduation. By the way, graduation ceremonies are only 59 days away.

The weather, as far as I can determine, has a lot to do with the declining morale of many seniors. A week or so ago, when it seemed winter was a 12-month ordeal, it was fairly easy to go to class on a somewhat regular basis.

While going to class had its merits, like passing the time of day, senior slump was still there. Oh, it wasn't as obvious then as now, because it was still in the infant stages. But every once in awhile, like when there was a lack of girls to look at in the library, senior slump would creep out in disguise.

Sometimes it took the form of the no-job blues, the I'm-out-of-money syndrome, or the old, what-am-I-going-to-do-with-my-life? complex.

But now, just when you thought the famous Ice Age was going to make a comeback, little spurts of warm sunlight somehow manage to bend themselves around all of those orbiting satellites, bringing warmth to dismal little Charleston.

Through the lens:

Brian Ormiston

Spring, in it's most primitive stages, sets in. The gets the snowball in motion for senior slump to control college campuses across America.

It's a fantastic sight. People start taking off the clothes and begin to dress as if it's 106 degrees out. Which, of course, starts to worry most of our fashion-conscious females.

It seems to me, an observer of oddities, that there is a trend to start changing one's skin color about the time of year.

Many women out there seem to think that by sitting in a tanning booth for hours upon hours will make them look more attractive. Now—besides the fact that these tanning booths are a waste of time and money—changing your skin color as fast as a chameleon seems a bit odd.

Anyway, what I'm getting at is that the weather is causing this widespread apathetic trend I've dubbed senior slump. And instructors who give quizzes, tests and term papers around this time of year are ruthless, unsympathetic workaholics.

What we should do to these "adults" is lock them in a room, deep in the caverns of Booth Library where Evangelist Brother Max makes his annual appearance. This will deprive them of the basic physiological need known as fun.

I mean, weren't these teachers ever young once? —Brian Ormiston is a staff photographer and regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Charleston taxi service plans tentative opening

by Michael Clark

Eastern students may have an easier time getting to Mattoon's train and bus stations as a new taxi service is tentatively scheduled to open next week in Charleston.

The new taxi company will be owned and operated by Thomas Jaco and his daughter Susan Webb, both of Mattoon.

"We are estimating that a trip between Charleston and Mattoon will cost approximately $9, while rides around Charleston will cost $3," Webb said Tuesday.

A tentative license for the business was granted Monday by a review board composed of members of the Charleston Fire and Police Board. Jaco plans to convert two cars—a 1979 Buick and a 1974 Ford Station Wagon—to taxicabs before the license is formally approved.

"We are undecided on the initial date the company will start business because we are trying to buy the Yellow Cab building," Jaco said, but added, "It could be as early as next week."

The new business will replace the Yellow Cab Company, which began operating in 1977 by Larry Kuhl. Kuhl was in the process of purchasing the Yellow Cab Building and its equipment from the former owner when he apparently left town.

Charleston City Administrator Mike Steele said, "The board which reviewed the application seemed to respond favorably to the business intentions (of the new company)."

The license tentatively approved for Jaco and Webb costs $100 and will be effective through July 1. Board members approved a tentative license saying the family lacks experience in operating a taxi service and should have a trial run before receiving a year-long lease.

The service will be available 24 hours a day, Webb said.

"Right now, we're going to run it as a family matter," she added.

Panel views women's life Lecturers present suggestions

A three-woman panel gave its views on today's women during a Tuesday night town-hall discussion as part of Women's History and Awareness Month.

The three women, Mary Lee Sargent, Leota Didier and Sheila Ruth, gave their views and suggestions for women in today's society in the group lecture sponsored by Eastern's Women's Studies Council.

Mary Lee Sargent, a history instructor at Champaign's Parkland College and a feminist activist, said her activist role has enhanced her involvement in history.

"My thoughts from studying history most of my life and my political activism affected my history involvement," she said.

Sargent noted there are three choices for today's women.

The commitment factor, Sargent said, means more women should become involved in the women's movement, and they should be willing to be associated with the movement.

She also noted women do have the choice to take a break from the activist role, since many women experience burnout because they feel they are unable to take a break.

Women have the ability to take direct action, Sargent said, adding she believes in confronting the controlling power "face-to-face."

In addition, Sargent said she believes women should be committed to a belief in non-violence. This advice comes in the wake of Sargent's arrest last summer after protesting at Springfield's Old State Capitol.

Leota Didier, an ordained Presbyterian minister from Urbana, said she believes there are three directions in which women are going.

The first direction Didier noted was women as scholars. More and more women are becoming academicians,

Women's History and Awareness Month

but are receiving less pay for equal work.

Women should also be political activists, such as Sargent, Didier said.

But Didier's third position was that of women as post-Christians. She questioned the role of women in religion, saying in the past, women did not play a big role in the history of religion.

Sheila Ruth, author of Issues in Feminism and a professor of philosophy in women's studies at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville, mentioned several choices and conflicts women face in today's society.

She said women need to recognize they have the right to make choices and they have to make a choice which will result in their happiness.

Women have the right to grow and to change, she said, adding women have control of their lives.

Her mother taught Ruth early in life to avoid making choices and Ruth compared herself and other women to Cinderella.

Ruth's mother had taught her the difference between the good girl-bad girl syndrome, saying a bad girl was one who made decisions and it was improper for girls to make choices, she added.

A main conflict in today's world is many women avoid a confrontation with choice, she said.

Ruth said choices should be confronted—not avoided. She added women who are changing themselves are helping to change to change the world.

Prominent author gives lecture

by Pete Cassano

The author of The Cinderella Complex will speak Wednesday night about women's search for their identities.

Colette Dowling, author of the best-selling book, will lecture at 8 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom as part of Women's History and Awareness Month.

Aspects of Dowling's presentation will deal with how women are to succeed in life, relationships and career goals.

"She will speak about women finding themselves," Mary Gaulke, University Board lecture coordinator, said.

These topics all tie in with the subject of Dowling's book, which was a best-selling book for 26 weeks.

Because she wrote a book and has researched women's searches for their identities, Dowling is a good source of information on the topic, Gaulke said.

"This will be a lecture of good quality," she added.

Gaulke said the event, sponsored by University Board and Panhellenic Council, is not only for women.

"Men deal with women everyday: women teachers, girlfriends or girls that are just friends," Gaulke said. "It is beneficial for men to realize the conflicts women face as well as it is for women."

Although Dowling is on the lecture circuit, she is also planning to continue with her research while at Eastern.

Dowling is starting a new book dealing with mother/daughter relationships and will be conducting interviews with selected Eastern students Wednesday.

Wednesday . . .

What does it take for a woman to succeed? Are women angry to stay behind or frightened to move ahead?

Colette Dowling, the author of the best-selling book The Cinderella Complex, will be speaking on what it takes—for a woman to succeed. The lecture will be Wednesday, at 8:00 in the Grand Ballroom.

Dowling traveled around the country interviewing professionals who work with and study women in hopes to see if there were others, like herself, who felt “caught in the middle.”

Her book The Cinderella Complex uncovers the roots of women's inner conflicts and shows how all women can achieve a real and lasting liberation. The success of The Cinderella Complex can be accounted for the fact that she doesn't patronize women. . . nor does she speak from a pedestal, but from directly in front of the readers, eye level.

Dowling has been writing compellingly about women's issues for years. Whether her articles were part personal or part reportorial, her pieces have always brought huge quantities of reader mail.

This shall prove to be an interesting and knowledgeable evening for all. Admission is $1.50 for E.I.U. students with I.D. and $3.00 for general public.

Housing names "Quiet Lifestyle" floors for next fall

by Annette Seymour

A total of four floors in three of Eastern's 14 residence halls will be turned into Quiet Lifestyle floors next fall according to Housing Director Lou Hencken.

Hencken said the Quiet Lifestyle floor will be a "typical floor", but a "little quieter."

He added the floors will be geared toward students who prefer more peaceful surroundings for studying, sleeping or living in a more subdued, unobtrusive setting than a residence hall usually provides.

Out of the 89 floors available, ninth floor Lawson, fifth floor Taylor North, fifth floor Taylor South and first floor Thomas North will be designated as Quiet Lifestyle floors, he said.

The idea stems from a November 1984 housing survey, Hencken said, in which the second most responded to question was one asking whether or not residence hall rooms were conducive to studying.

While most respondents were satisfied, he said, some angrily replied that for the amount of money they were paying for housing, they should not have to go to the library for quiet.

He noted a survey was then conducted through the food services to determine whether students would change residence halls to live on a quiet floor.

Hencken said the answers ranged from, "Yes. Excellent idea." to, "This is the dumbest thing you've come up with yet."

Leslie Garrigan, Residence Hall Association president, said she has heard no negative comments from RHA members about the Quiet Lifestyle program.

She added it is "necessary to offer it on any campus" to provide students a choice.

Hencken said about 240 students indicated they'd like to move onto a quiet floor.

The four floors were chosen, Hencken said, because the highest number of students saying they would not change residence halls to be on a quiet floor were from Lawson, Taylor and Thomas halls.

He added other reasons for choosing these halls were because all are air conditioned and students will not need their doors open to circulate air in the warm months.

Also, Hencken said, these halls are large enough that it will not be necessary for some of these students to change halls, and they will still be able to live on a quiet floor.

Although some students who will live above or below a quiet floor expressed concern that it will affect the accepted noise level on their floor, Hencken said, it will not be affected.

If a student chooses not to live on a quiet floor, it will be "business as usual," he said.

Life on a Quiet Lifestyle floor will not be much different from regular floors. It's "no monastery," Hencken said. "It's not as though they'll have to take off their shoes to walk down the hall."

During the week courtesy hours on quiet floors will be from 4-7 p.m. On weekends, they will be from 4-10 p.m.

The main condition will be that any noise in the student's room cannot travel to their neighbor's, Hencken said. If, after a few warnings over a period of time, the student persists in being noisy, he or she will be asked to leave the floor.

In addition, Hencken said Quiet Lifestyle floors are nothing new to public, four-year institutions. Other schools, like Northern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and Illinois State University, have "had them for years and rave about their success."

Illinois State has about 2,000 quiet spaces—compared to Eastern's 240—because of popular demand and have had to increase the number each year.

Hencken said the only institution Eastern consulted that had no program like this was the University of Illinois.

During the week of April 8, residence hall students will receive housing surveys in the mail, asking where they intend to live next year and informing them of the Quiet Lifestyle program, Hencken said.

Although he is not anticipating all 240 students who said they were interested to sign up, Hencken said he expects the applications received from off-campus and incoming students will fill any possible vacancies.

Since this will be the program's first year, Hencken admits that it might "fall on its face" and if so it will go "back to the drawing board."

In addition, the Housing Office may try a few changes and alterations, such as carpeting, to act as a sound barrier from surrounding floors, Hencken said.

enforcing drunk-driving laws.

County Board chairman Tim Yow said he voted in favor of CASP and believed the program "would have been money well spent."

"I feel it's a sheriff and law question," Yow said. "The statistics showed that it would have benefited the county. However, they (board members) didn't see it that way."

Yow said he thought board members who voted against CASP did so because Charleston dropped the grant earlier. He added that there was also a question how the grant would be administered.

Yow said there were no future plans to obtain an anti-drunk-driving grant. However, he said he expects the sheriff's department to continue with its efforts to curb drunk driving.

Senate considers funding

by Amy Landers

Student Senate will decide Wednesday whether or not to approve a recommendation from the Apportionment Board which continues funding senate from student fees.

Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said any proposal made by AB must be approved or disapproved by the senate. Senate voting on the proposal is "just going through the proper channels," Wesel added.

AB made its decision after a petition, signed by 1,035 students was turned into the senate by senior John Prendiville asking for a referendum to be placed on the Feb. 19 special election ballot for the abolishment of student fee support of senate.

Senate turned the petition over to AB and now, before a recommendation can be made to Eastern President Stanley Rives, the AB's recommendation must pass through senate.

In addition, senate, which meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room, will be voting on a proposal made by senator Joe O'Mera which calls for a senate by-law change to include a secret ballot option, Wesel said.

The secret ballot could be implemented for voting on all student body referendums and all presidential and speaker appointments, Wesel said.

In other business, a proposal will be made by senator Larry Markey, elections committee co-chairman, to only list names of candidates on an election ballot and exclude party affiliation, Wesel said.

Wesel said that while party affiliation promotes competition in real life, Markey believes that it has a reverse effect at Eastern.

Damages cause shuttle delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—It will take a week to 10 days to repair damage done to space shuttle Discovery by a falling work bucket, putting off until mid-April its flight with Sen. Jake Garn in the crew, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today.

The agency also said Discovery definitely will fly the mission. Officials had considered substituting sister ship Challenger.

Specialists have completed an assessment of damage done to Discovery last Friday when a 2,500-pound bucket used to transport workers broke loose and smashed into the ship, leaving two deep gashes in the ship's left cargo bay door and breaking a workman's leg.

The reported damage was limited to two punctures in the graphite-epoxy honeycomb structure of the door. There was no damage to the frame.

A NASA statement said the damaged material, measuring about one square foot in each puncture area, will be removed and replaced. The replacement material is being made at the Rockwell International plant in Tulsa, Okla., and will be flown here Wednesday or Thursday, the statement said.

The space agency said it would not set a launch date until the repairs are completed. But sources who asked not to be identified said if all goes well with the repairs, liftoff will be about April 19.

Garn, who is flying on the mission as a congressional observer, has had tough luck making his long-sought trip into space.

Baseball owners submit letter to players' union

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Major league club owners on Tuesday predicted a future of "deterioration" of baseball's finances, with operating losses that could top $150 million by 1988, if management and the union cannot come together on a plan "to safeguard" the game.

Representatives of the 26 club owners presented a five-page letter to the major League Players' Association Tuesday, outlining what management says are "financial operating problems" of the teams.

While full financial statements were not available for all clubs for 1984, the reports said 18 of the 26 clubs showed operating losses totaling about $66 million in 1983. That represented an average of $2.5 million in losses per club. Of the eight clubs showing a profit, five clubs reported gains of less than $1 million.

The report said 11 clubs had returned financial statements for 1984, nine of which showed losses of more than $27 million, an average of more than $2.4 million per club.

The letter, signed by Player Relations Committee President Lee MacPhail, was delivered to union executives during a meeting at a downtown hotel. Don Fehr, acting head of the union, said the report lacked certain details that would help negotiators understand the problem entirely.

"What was apparent immediately is that we had no information that we could look at and understand without more details," Fehr said as the two-hour session dispersed. "We have asked for more details."

A Wednesday meeting with the management team was cancelled to allow the Player Relations Committee, the owners' bargaining unit, time to provide the information.

Although MacPhail said the letter "speaks for itself," he indicated his committee would try to supply the union with the information it needs to get the talks rolling again.

"What we've done is give them a historical accounting of what has happened along with the projection of some things to come," MacPhail said.

Troubled Pirates to use new sales promotions

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, for sale after a reported $6 million loss and the National League's worst attendance last season, are "obviously in a struggle for our lives here," team treasurer Douglas G. McCormick said Tuesday.

Team officials said the Pirates have not increased advance ticket sales over last year and have received only one offer to keep the team in Pittsburgh.

The Pirates announced four sales promotions Tuesday, including a "Family Section" for fans who want to avoid beer-drinkers, that officials said were a "start... in an obviously long tunnel" to return fans to Three Rivers Stadium.

"It's a trial balloon we're sending up," McCormick said. "We're trying to dissect our (attendance) problem into little parts. . . I don't think any of these programs, by themselves, will save the Pirates."

The Pirates drew only 773,500 fans at home last season as the team sank to a 75-97 record. The attendance at Three Rivers Stadium was last in National League East and the second-worst in the major leagues, trailing only the Cleveland Indians.

NFL to speed up games

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The National Football League's competition committee formally unveiled Tuesday plans to bring the league into the space age by wiring players' helmets with radios and receivers that will help them overcome crowd noise in stadiums.

The new hi-tech transistor helmets, which if approved in voting by the NFL's 28 teams to take place Wednesday and Thursday, will be used in the season this year by the San Francisco 49ers and Seattle Seahawks, then into general use in the 1986 regular season.

The helmets were unveiled by the NFL's competition committee, which also presented its "pace of the game" package, a series of rules changes and interpretations designed to make the average NFL game next season 10 minutes shorter than this year's three hours and nine minutes.

Group signs contract to buy NFL's Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A group of businessmen led by automobile dealer Tom Benson have signed a contract to buy the New Orleans Saints for $64 million in a sale that calls for a 40-year lease in the Superdome.

Benson, at a news conference with Gov. Edwin Edwards, said the sale was contingent on four things—the new lease, approval by the National Football League, a virtual donation of state land across Lake Pontchartrain for a training facility, and removal of taxes on all Superdome events.

He and the governor said there appeared to be no problems with getting these points worked out.

Benson, the spokesman for the group of investors, said there will be no personnel changes right away. Bum Phillips remains coach and Eddie Jones team president, he said.

"I know a lot about automobile dealerships but I have never coached a team and I don't want to start now," Benson said.

Those changes include nothing revolutionary. But they do include a half-dozen minor changes that would keep the game moving more quickly and perhaps cut down on penalties, including the controversial pass interference calls caused by incidental contact.

"The thing we're all concerned about is the cheap calls," said Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula, who presented the report at a President Tex Schramm and Eddie LeBaron, general manager of the Atlanta Falcons.

Schramm, the chairman of the committee, said that the speed-up idea was the desire of the television networks to cut games to three hours rather than by the fans.

IHSA Super-Sectional

Madison saves its best for last

by Jeff Long

When things got down to the nitty-gritty in the Class A Super-Sectional Tuesday night at Lantz Gym, Madison head coach Rodney Watson decided it was time to call upon his "great black hope."

Senior Deloyd Williams was the man Watson was referring to. The 6-0 guard put the last points of the game on the board with six seconds remaining to give Madison a dramatic 47-45 victory over Flora.

Trailing 39-28 with 6:39 remaining in the fourth quarter, Madison proceeded to outscore the Wolves 19-6 from that point on.

But it wasn't until the final ten seconds that Madison grabbed its first and only lead of the evening.

After Flora's Steve Gragert missed the front end of a one-and-one situation with :39 seconds left and the score tied at 45, Madison wound down the clock to ten seconds before calling timeout.

Enter Williams. It took Madison just an inbounds pass and a pass to Williams at the top of the key before a swish had given the Trojans their revenge from last year's blow-out loss to Flora.

"When I let go of the shot I knew it was going in," a jubilant Williams said at center court following the game. "I'm the leader, and when the fourth quarter came around they looked to me."

"We felt if we stayed close, anything could happen," Watson said of his team, which trailed by 8-10 points throughout the game. "We knew we had to cut it one basket at a time and keep chipping away."

Williams, who hit on only three of 10 shots for the game, said it was the confidence Watson showed in him that made the difference.

"He's our (the team's) great white hope," Williams said. "He's such an enthusiastic coach and that spills over onto us."

"Well he (Williams) is my great black hope," Watson joked. "That's kind of a mutual thing between us."

Flora, 28-2, was plagued by poor free-throw shooting, particularly late in the game. The Wolves, normally an excellent team from the line, converted only 11 of 20 for the game.

Madison, 22-7, now moves on to the quarterfinals in Champaign on Friday, when they play Chrisman, a 57-45 winner over Mt. Pulaski Tuesday in the Decatur Super-Sectional.

Cagers' season was a real treat

Looking back at the 1984-85 men's basketball season is quite a treat.

The Panthers finished 20-10, their best finish since Eastern was 22-7 and in the midst of its sixth national appearance in Division II in 1979-80.

It seemed for a while that the 1984-85 Panthers were going to choke on their expectations.

With six starters returning, Eastern was expected to be a strong contender for the title. The league's coaches picked them to finish a close third behind University of Illinois-Chicago and Cleveland State.

Three-straight losses to Long Island University and American University in the First Federal Classic at Lakeland, Fla. over Christmas break and an overtime loss to AMCU foe Cleveland State left the Panthers 4-5 overall. It wasn't looking to good, but the ball began to roll.

In the next game, Eastern's Jon Collins, who eventually was named the Association of Mid-Continent Universities' Player of the Year, made a last-second shot to win 78-76 over Pan American University. The victory was bittersweet, because it was learned the next day that Tim Dykstra, a senior who sat out 1983-84 to compete for the U.S. Olympic handball team, broke his right wrist and would be lost for the season.

Dykstra missed the next 15 games, but to the surprise of all, including Dykstra, he returned for the final five games and helped Eastern finish with 20 victories and an AMCU post-season tournament title.

The Panthers rose to the occasion by defeating Northern Iowa, Western Illinois and finally Southwest Missouri in the tournament last week to take the crown.

The victories were especially sweet. Western had beaten Eastern twice in the regular season and the Bears, who had just disposed of No. 1 seeded Cleveland State, won at Springfield, Mo.

The Panthers wasted no time in their final game to show the hometown crowd and the small group from Springfield what Eastern basketball was all about.

Eastern shot 78.2 percent in the first half and coasted to a 75-64 victory.

Congrats, to all, especially Eastern's seniors Dirk Androff, Tim Dykstra, Steve Hopkins, Paul Neidig, Troy Richardson, who finished their collegiate careers as winners.

Conquests of Troy

Troy Richardson finished the season as the league's player in assists and steals. The senior guard, who led in categories for almost the whole season, averaged 11.8 assists and 2.7 steals. He set school record in assists with 197 assists and 80 steals in one season. He also finished with a 9.2 steals average.

Dirk's deeds

Dirk Androff finished the league's best field shooter. The senior power forward finished with a 12.1 percent average with 65.6 percent shooting accuracy. The established school and conference records. In addition, those single-season marks set a school record for career shooting percentage. He shot 61 percent in seasons. Androff also was named to the All-AMCU second team.

Collins' court

Jon Collins finished the season as the AMCU's Player of the Year and second league scorer. He averaged 11.8 points. The junior completed the season with 558 points, which gave him 1,061 points in his two-year career at Eastern. His 558 points was all-time third best single-season total.

He is No. 15 on the all-time scoring list. He needs 11 points next season to become the second-best scorer in Eastern's history, and 22 points to become the No. 1 scorer in the Panthers' history.

Sir Duck

Kevin Duckworth, who missed played sparingly in the final seven games of the season after he broke a bone in his hand, finished the season as the conference's pre-season shot blocker. The 7-0 center averaged 11.8 points, 7.2 rebounds, and 1.5 blocks per game. Duckworth, a junior, only needs 56 points to join Collins in the 1,000-point club. He also has 577 rebounds.

Postscript

Eastern finished with a school-record mark in goal percentage. The old record was 50.5 percent in 1980. The record now is 52.8 percent.
