Ticket prices for Carlin concert set

By TONY CAMPBELL
Staff writer

Tickets for comedian George Carlin's Oct. 14 performance at Lantz Gym will go on sale Tuesday, if all goes as planned.

David Milberg, director of student activities, said "if there are no major disasters" the tickets will go on sale at the Union Box Office at noon Tuesday for $12.

Milberg said the tickets are being printed and should get to the University Board soon.

There is no distinction between the cost of a student price ticket and a general public ticket. "There's really no reason why the ticket prices were set that way, that's just the way we decided to do it," Milberg said.

Milberg said there won't be a circular stage for the performance. "It will be the usual set up," he said. The stage will be constructed at one side of the gym floor and a section of seating will be reserved.

The final contract has not been signed yet, but there are no problems expected in finalizing the deal. "We still have to make some revisions and send the contract back to the agent," Milberg said.

The contract is in the process of being revised by the UB, and the contract will then be sent to the agent. If the agent agrees to the revisions, the contract will be signed and the deal finalized. Milberg said there will be no major revisions in the contract.

Carlin left a date open in his schedule for the Eastern performance.

"I don't think I've ever had a contract turned down after it has been revised," Milberg said.

Milberg said the ticket prices were set to allow the UB to break even after sales reach 60 percent. With the seating in Lantz Gym estimated at 5,600, the UB will need to sell 3,360 tickets to reach the break-even point.

With the cost of the tickets at $12, the UB would generate $40,320 if they sold 3,360 tickets. The cost to bring Carlin to Eastern was $29,500. The extra money would be used to pay for other costs, such as lighting and stage construction costs.

"I don't think we'll have any problem (selling tickets), the indications I've gotten from faculty and students, they seem to be very interested," Milberg said.

"Everybody, especially the UB, is very excited about it," he said.

Senators disagree over flag issue

By MATTHEW MAYNARD
Senior reporter

Illinois' senators disagree on the controversial statute passed Tuesday in the House that would make desecration of the flag illegal and punishable by one year in prison and a fine.

The statute is set to go to the Senate Judiciary Committee on Sept. 21., and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who sits on committee, is in favor of the legislation.

"I hope the Senate will join the House in passing legislation to strengthen the federal flag desecration statute in light of the Supreme Court ruling," Simon said.

But Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., supports a constitutional amendment with stipulations. "I believe one can disagree vigorously with the policies of the United States and yet need not desecrate the flag to make one's point," he said.

Simon agreed with the problem, but not with Dixon's handling of it. "Before we tinker with James Madison's handy work on the Bill of Rights we ought to try to solve the problem by changing the law," Simon said.

Dixon said he "believes the passage of a constitutional amendment to prevent desecration of the flag protects a unique national asset while not encroaching on rights of free speech."

However, Simon defended his stance on the issue. "I am a strong supporter of the right to free speech, and if someone wants to make a speech denouncing the flag, as much as I disagree with that speech, I will defend that person's rights to make the speech. But burning the flag is another matter," Simon said.

"The House's action to rewrite federal law was a wiser course than attempting to amend the Constitution," Simon said.

Still, virtually everyone on Capitol Hill agrees that something needs to be done to protect the flag, though there is sharp disagreement on how to achieve that end.

One school of thought is to make flag desecration an illegal act by federal statute, which is the legislation just voted on by the House and currently waiting to be reviewed by the Senate Judiciary Committee. This form of flag protection is the general Democratic line, but this issue threatens to split the party.

Skeptics argue that a statute is likely to fall under Supreme Court judicial review and be struck down as unconstitutional, just as the court did recently to a similar state statute against flag burning in Texas.

The Court said that burning the flag was a form of symbolic speech and therefore protected by the First Amendment.

The second school of thought, which is supported by President Bush, hardline Republicans and many veteran groups, is to protect the flag by constitutional amendment. This would take a two-thirds majority in congress, which is highly unlikely, but it would protect it from judicial review.

Insurance funded by student fee money

Students pay $96.80 for medical coverage

By JENNIFER HALT
Staff writer

Eastern students pay a mandatory student fee of $96.80 each academic year for insurance coverage, and some students may not know what that insurance covers.

Students are covered by Blue Cross/Blue Shield for the maximum coverage of $10,000. "I wish it were more coverage, but then there would be more premiums," Financial Aid Director John Flynn said.

A $25 deductible is required and all health and accidents are covered through a 24-hour period. "This mandatory fee is assessed to all full-time students and graduate students," Flynn said.

Flynn said students are able to get a refund if they can prove they have equal to or better coverage than the university offers. And on an average, the university gives refunds to about 470 students a semester, he said.

Some elements of the coverage are surgical procedures, which are paid on a schedule, and pre-existing conditions, such as asthma and allergies. The insurance does pay for hospitalization for up to the maximum amount of the policy.

The Board of Governors wanted to make sure that each student has minimal coverage, Flynn said. He added students usually say an accident won't happen to them, but just in case the policy covers the student if an accident does occur.

The BOG is the governing board for Eastern, Governors State University, Chicago State University, Northeastern Illinois University and Western Illinois University.

In a normal case, not all medical emergency students have to be admitted by a doctor for them to be covered, said Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs. "Hospitalization occurs very rarely nowadays."

Although the mandatory insurance coverage is minimal, the insurance is there in case an accident would happen, Flynn said. "It is still a good idea for the buck."

At the other BOG schools, Chicago State and Governors State do not require any insurance fees for their students. However, at Northeastern, students are required to pay $191.20 every year, and at Western, students are required to pay $95 per year.

At the larger state schools, such as the University of Illinois at Champaign/Urbana, students are required to pay $112 each year. At Northern Illinois University in De Kalb, students pay a mandatory insurance fee of $157.08 each year.

Lecture to focus on higher education

By RANDY BRUCKNER
Staff writer

Calvin Schrag, professor of philosophy at Purdue University, will present a lecture on "Liberal Education Across the Disciplines" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Buzzard Auditorium.

Schrag is an author of many books and articles on post-modern thought, the philosophy of the human sciences and the role of the humanities in the modern university.

Schrag has taught at Purdue for 57 years, and has taught as a visiting professor at other institutions including Northwestern, Indiana University and U of I. He has also represented the staff at Harvard, where he received his Ph.D.

The most recent of his many books, "Communitive Praxis and the Space for Subjectivity" has been the cause for a great deal of conversation in the philosophy field. His other books include: "Existence and Freedom, Experience and Being, Radical Reflection, and the Origin of the Human Sciences."

Schrag travels often. Later this month, he plans to visit Tulsa, Okla., the University of Iowa and Staten Island. Thursday's lecture will be his first visit to Eastern. "I'm looking forward to the visit," Schrag said.

Pertaining to the topics of the lecture, Schrag said he will "emphasize the interdisciplinary nature of higher education," and will also address the threats to higher education, including the "tendency to relativism and academic anarchy in terms of setting up programs of study."

Schrag is also the chairman of a blue ribbon group set up at Purdue to study the revamping of core curriculums.

Carol Schmudde, president of Phi Beta Kappa Alumni Association of East Central Illinois, said, "We expect Dr. Schrag to raise some provocative questions about the goals of higher education."

Minority greeks set rush dates

By SUSAN THOMAS
Staff writer

For some students, finding a social outlet at Eastern can be easy, but a minority of students might not agree.

That's why Eastern's National Pan-Hellenic Council united Tuesday evening for its third annual all greek rush themed "Uplifting as We Climb in 1989." Over 60 students attended the informal rush in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union to learn more about Eastern's nine predominately Afro-American greek organizations.

Members also were given the opportunity to take the stage and talk a little about the character of each organization.

Eastern's first predominately black organization, Alpha Phi Alpha, was formed at Eastern in 1969, and the national organization was the first of its kind when founded in 1906.

Noted for community service, Alpha Phi Alpha's motto is, "First of all, servants of all, we shall transcend all." The organization is planning a formal "smoker" at 7 p.m. Thursday at 2204 9th St., Apt. 304.

Kappa Alpha Psi, founded at Eastern in 1972, prides itself on being an organization dedicated to "achievement in every human endeavor." The group has scheduled a formal "smoker" for 7 p.m. Thursday in the Afro-American Cultural Center, 1525 7th St.

The men of Omega Psi Phi, founded in 1911, believe their fraternal life grows from the seeds of friendship and is nourished by the four cardinal principles of manhood, scholarship, perseverance and uplift. With this goal, they hope to enrich the social and intellectual aspects of college life. Sororities also have rushes each semester. Delta Sigma Theta sorority, founded at Eastern in 1971, has over 750 chapters accross the nation. The Delta sorority has scheduled its fall rush for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Union's Kansas Room. For more information concerning the rush call 348-1382.

Sigma Gamma Rho sorority is an organization devoted to motivating youth to greater achievements, wholesome living, inspired actions and exploring new horizons. Interested females should be on the lookout for postings of a scheduled rush.

Zeta Phi Beta sorority has been service oriented since its 1927 start at Eastern. Zeta Phi Beta will hold a semi-formal rush at the 8:30 p.m. Sept. 24 in the Afro-American Cultural Center. Refreshments will be served. For more information call 348-1262.

Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, a brother organization to the Zeta, believes their potential members "should be judged on individual merits rather than family background or affluence...without regard of race, nationality, color or texture of hair," says member Tony Campbell. Their informal "smoker" will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union's Kansas Room.

Eastern's newest fraternity, Phi Theta prides itself on being in existence only a few years, yet surpassing many organizations with well over 30,000 members since 1963. The fraternity has been at Eastern since 1981. "Building a Tradition, not Resting on one." A tentative rush date has been set for Tuesday at the Afro-American Culture Center.

TO THE VERY BEST . . .

Eastern faculty pleased by Chanute study

By DAVE PATTERSON

Staff writer

Some Eastern faculty members are pleased with U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce's initiation of a study to determine alternate uses for Chanute Air Force Base in the event the base is closed sometime in 1990.

Eastern faculty members from several departments on campus teach about 38 extension courses at the Air Force base located in Chanute, about 50 miles north of Charleston.

The extension classes are part of the School of Adult and Continuing Education, which offers the classes and workshops to the military personnel of Chanute and other non-Eastern students, said William Hine, dean of the School of Adult and Continuing Education.

A recent newsletter issued by Bruce, D-Oleney, outlined a

"We want Chanute to stay open and we're very supportive of every effort to keep it open."

William Hine

$120,000 contribution toward a study by the Urban Land Institute to find alternate uses for the base in the event it is closed.

In addition to the study, the General Accounting Office has been commissioned by Congress to determine, through another study, whether the base and others like it should be closed at all, said

Mike Casey, assistant press secretary for Bruce. A number of bases like Chanute have been targeted by the U.S. government to be closed because of financial and other difficulties.

"We want Chanute to stay open and we're very supportive of every effort to keep it open," Hine said. "It would be quite a loss for the community and for the university."

Kenneth Matzner, a professor with the department, said Chanute is critical to Rantoul as only about one-third of the students there are military personnel.

If Chanute does close, Hine said alternative sites for the classes have been discussed. However, Hine said he would like to keep the classes at the base if at all possible.

"A lot of what we do depends on what comes into the base," Hine said. "I've heard so many scenarios on what may move in."

Hine added he heard at one time the base was being considered as a site for an airport.

Eastern faculty members have taught extension courses at Chanute since the 1960s, Hine said, and about 425 students are currently enrolled in the undergraduate and graduate level courses.

"The University of Illinois does not offer this particular program; at least not a master's program," Hines said. "There's a bit of a vacuum and that's what we're attempting to fill."

Phillip Morris Companies and its Illinois-based Kraft General Foods subsidiary donated the money to the Urban Land Institute, an independent non-profit organization based in Washington D.C.

"They look at the cost of closing the base compared to the money which will be saved over the long run," Casey said. "They have an excellent reputation of fairness as far as I know."

Casey said the results of the studies are not due back until at least next fall.

In addition to Bruce's efforts, lobbying efforts to save the base continue in several cities, including Urbana and Champaign. However, according to an Associated Press report, Urbana has rejected a proposed donation of $10,000 to go toward saving the base.

Despite Urbana's rejection, city officials in Champaign have voiced plans to donate $15,000 toward saving the base, the AP report said.

Rantoul officials have also rejected a request of $5,000 toward lobbying efforts. However, city officials said this was because the fund from which the money would come is prohibited from helping federal lobbying.

Video festival to be held at Tarble Arts

By MATTHEW MAYNARD

Senior reporter

The Tarble Arts Center will host the 14th Festival of Illinois Film and Video Artists from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

The festival originated from Columbia College in Chicago. All but two of the 10 pieces shown Thursday will be works from Chicago artists.

The videos and films are all winners in their respective categories that include animation, documentary, experimentation and narration and are being shown free.

Titles include "The Yuppie," best film award; "Do I Look Alright?," experimental; "Life Stories," documentary; and "Indecision," experimental, along with several other categories and films.

Donna Meeks, curator of education at Tarble, said, "To my knowledge this is an exclusive to East Central Illinois."

"Some of the pieces are strong. Several are challenging," Meeks said.

Although the video medium is rarely new as an art form, Meeks said she thought people would like it.

"The interesting thing about video as art is it appears to be more accessible," Meeks said. People already know how to watch TV. It's also a chance to meet the avant-garde."

The animated piece, "Hotel Du Heartbreak," is particularly interesting Meeks said. It involves a car, Elvis and self-mutilation.

"Peat Bog Soldier" was directed by Diane Weyermann of Chicago and won an award in the documentary category. The story is about a man living in Chicago who lost his left hand fighting in the Spanish Civil War. The eight minute film allows a veteran to tell his story of how he taught himself to play piano one-handed while at the same time explores his 27-year heroin habit and the ups and downs of being a reformed drug addict.

Weyermann also said this art medium is growing in popularity. It's visually alive, interesting and stimulating. It tells a story."

Student Senate fills seats on CAA, AB

By RUDY NOWAK

Government editor

The Student Senate approved the selection of the student members to the Council on Academic Affairs and the Apportionment Board Wednesday.

The Apportionment Board, which handles the allocation of student fee money, will have eight new student members.

The new members are John Lopez, Steve Beamer, Ken Wasetis, Joseph Adke, Tony Alcazar, Todd Cameron, Bonnie Eaton and Kendall Schwab.

The Council on Academic Affairs, which reviews academic policy and makes rulings on them, will have three student members and one alternate member.

The new members are Reginald Herde, Brian Moushon and Milena Radjenovich with the alternate being Kris Quandt.

Senate also seated 10 new senate members chosen to fill empty seats.

The three off-campus seats were filled by Tammy Henderson, Pete Chorney and Tiffany Points.

The four at-large seats were filled by Brian Riordan, Martha Riordan, Kelly Belva and Joel Warneke.

The three residence hall seats were filled by Amy Jobin, Blake Wood and Tom Drone.

In other business, senate approved a change in its constitution that allows the Student Body President to appoint a chairman to head the constitutional revision committee.

"I think Kristy (Koch) has more time and would do an excellent job," Student Body President Patty Kennedy said.

Financial Vice President Tom Jewison, who is the chairperson for AB, announced the first meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Summit to address tuition increases

By KELLY SEIFERT

Staff writer

College and university student leaders from around Illinois will meet in Springfield Sept. 22 to 24 to discuss tuition hikes at public universities for 1991.

The Illinois Student Association (ISA), an organization representing students in state government, is sponsoring the "1989 Student Summit," which will be at the Lincoln Plaza Hotel.

This is the fourth summit conference of this type sponsored by ISA, said David Starrett, ISA executive director. ISA sponsors two conferences each year.

The conference will address the issues of setting a strategy of freezing tuition hikes in public universities and making higher education more cost efficient.

"The first session of the summit will discuss the organization of higher education; from there it will move into more specific issues," Starrett said. Workshops included in the conference will involve improving disabled access on campus, gaining control of student fees, and discussion of a tuition freeze, Starrett said.

The conference will allow students to discuss the topics with other students as well as a number of legislators that will attend, Starrett added.

Dan Riordan, Board of Governors representative, said that he would be interested in attending the summit conference and will look into the possibility of having Eastern represented.

"Eastern is not a member of ISA, but I think it would be an asset for us to attend," Riordan said.

Everyone is welcome to attend this summit conference, Starrett said. However, there is a $20 charge for schools that are members of ISA and $25 charge for non-member schools.

Among the universities attending the conference are University of Illinois at Chicago, University of Illinois at Champaign/Urbana, Northern Illinois University and the College of DuPage County.

"We have good workshop people," Starrett said. "I expect to get about 100 people to attend."

Council to review study's language requirements

By PHILLIP LAIRD

Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs will continue its discussion of the undergraduate general education requirements at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Arcola/Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

According to Terry Weidner, CAA chair, the agenda covers the topic of foreign language requirements for graduation. Weidner said he does not think any decisions will be made on the matter because the discussion on the foreign language requirement is just beginning.

Weidner also said this will be the first meeting attended by the new student members.

Weidner wants the students to become accustomed to the working of the council before asking them to vote on important issues.

The council's discussion on the foreign language requirement is a continuation of a review of general education requirements suggested in the Study of Undergraduate Education report.

The report, completed last September, was presented to Eastern President Stan Rives and has been the subject of review by the council for the last year.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education requested that all state institutions look at their undergraduate program and make improvements.

The issue of general education requirements will also be the topic of a lecture by Calvin Schrag, a professor of philosophy at Purdue University, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Buzzard Auditorium.

Exxon should finish cleanup in Alaska

As early winter sets in on Alaska, Exxon has begun to pull out thousands of workers who were assigned to clean up the oil spill from the Exxon Valdez in March.

The Valdez struck a reef in Prince William Sound on March 24 spilling nearly 11 million gallons of oil in the nation's worst oil spill.

Editorial Since that time, Exxon has had workers scrubbing the beaches, saving what wildlife they can and trying to contain the spill.

The company claims it has cleaned up more than 1,000 miles of coastline, but Alaskan authorities say the company has grossly overstated how much work it has done and say Exxon is leaving before the job is done.

The federal government seems to agree with Alaskan officials' assessment and has stated that Exxon will have to finish the cleanup next spring or pay the government to do the job.

The Sept. 18 issue of Newsweek said the estimated cost of the cleanup to Exxon is $1.28 billion. The cost to wildlife: 33,126 dead birds, 138 dead eagles and 980 dead sea otters. Federal wildlife biologists have said the spill may end up affecting as many as 400,000 birds, otters, bald eagles and other creatures.

Exxon said it plans to watch the shoreline during the winter and return if the Coast Guard makes what Exxon thinks is a reasonable decision that more cleanup work is needed.

The company also is counting on a harsh Alaskan winter to aid in the cleanup effort.

Exxon was responsible for the spill and has pumped millions of dollars and thousands of workers into the effort to clean it up. If the job isn't done then Exxon should return to finish it or pay the government to do it.

Exxon owes at least that much to Alaskans and Alaskan wildlife.

Brother still trying to escape

It seems some people are only in school to get a degree. They just take the classes and put in the time. Not everyone is like that, but there are those who don't seem to really respect knowledge. It's taken for granted.

I know what knowledge can do for a person and what just going through the motions can do also. So I respect it and I kind of think my brother is the reason.

My brother is 23, less than a year younger than I am, so we've done quite a few things together.

Of course we grew up together. We played together on the same Khoury League team. We tried to go hunting together a couple of times but we had different ideas on how to get the game.

When I moved away from home, he left with me — two teenagers trying to make payments and barely getting by. But what the hell, we had our fun. We double-dated together, got drunk together, laughed together and sometimes passed out together.

We never got stoned together. For me it was just experimentation. For him, though, I think it was an escape. I didn't plan on working fastfood for the rest of my life, but maybe my brother knew he didn't have much choice. I think I finally figured out why — I use to call him stupid.

It probably started when he had to repeat second grade (he wasn't good with numbers or reading.) He told everyone he was held back and I would stand there and say he flunked. After that it was downhill for him.

I would ask my parents to play boardgames and when they asked why I didn't play with my brother would say because he's stupid. He could be standing right there, but I didn't care. I'd say it to his face (wasn't I a little S.O.B.) When we did play, I almost always won. He could barely move his game pieces eleven spots or count the play money. And he could barely understand the rules when he read them. I could do what I wanted (I also was a manipulative little S.O.B.)

What could he do but believe what I was saying was calling him stupid and he couldn't even win at a stupid boardgame. Why should he even bother trying? So he never really did. And I grew up thinking maybe I was a genius with no real respect for knowledge.

That is, until I got out of grade school. I found out wasn't smarter than anyone else. It was a humbling. After all, my two best friends were probably the smartest people in high school. One was a valedictorian and the other one could have been if he wanted to. So I wasn't as smart as I thought I was.

I did learn that just because I wasn't as smart as someone else, it didn't mean I wasn't stupid. Why can't kids in second grade learn this.

My brother didn't graduate from high school, but he did get a G.E.D. He never did do well in school but found out he may have been mildly dyslexic, and I guess he never got over me calling him stupid.

He works at a printing company, putting rubber bands around bundles of paper. He told me the other day he needed to see a doctor because working with rubber bands is making his arm swell.

He also told me he's still getting stoned.

I guess he's still trying to escape.

Student petition denied by senate

Dear Editor:

Recently there was an ad in The Daily Eastern News about petitions being available for Student Senate seats. According to the petition that I received, they were due on Sept. 5 at 5 p.m.

When my petition was turned in by a friend with 29 signatures at 4:15 p.m. of said date, it was thrown out.

My friend was told that all seats had been filled. My question is why was there a deadline if the speaker of the senate wasn't going to abide by it? I think this is unfair and ignorant of the speaker of the senate for him not to accept my petition.

I don't know why this happened but I think it should not go unnoticed because all students should know about the incompetence of our beloved Speaker of the Senate, Brett Gerber.

Letter policy

The Daily Eastern News welcomes letters to the editor from any reader addressing issues relating to the campus community, local, state, national, international and intergalactic affairs.

The name and telephone number of at least one author must be submitted with each letter to the editor.

Letters generally should be restricted to 250 words in length.

Only the first three names of letters containing more than three authors will be published unless further specified.

Campus groups promote peace and awareness

By PENNY N. WEAVER

For students who want to actively promote peace and raise awareness of worldwide conflicts, there are three campus groups that do just that.

Amnesty International, Eastern Illinois Students and Community Concerned About Peace (EISCCAP) and Students In Solidarity with the People of Central America (SISPCA) are groups formed to raise awareness about global and international issues.

Amnesty International is a worldwide movement concerned with freeing political prisoners, said Sara Crerar, president of the organization.

"We have chapters in every country," Crerar said. Chapters of Amnesty International write letters to help free "prisoners of conscience" or political prisoners held on the basis of sex, religion, or race. These people are not violent, Crerar said.

The group takes one case at a time. Combined letters from all Amnesty International chapters create political pressure and help to free the prisoners, she said.

"We're a real personal group," Crerar said of Eastern's branch of Amnesty International.

Amnesty International members meet every other week on Tuesday nights she said. In addition to writing letters, Crerar said the group presents guest speakers and will take part in Peacefest, a day set aside on campus to promote peace.

The current project for Amnesty International is a demonstration they would like to hold before the end of October. The group has invited Sen. Paul Simon (D-Ill.) and 1990 gubernatorial candidates Jim Edgar and Neil Hartigan to Eastern to speak at the demonstration.

EISCCAP is another group on campus that is concerned about peace.

"We're basically an anti-nuclear weapons group," said Ron Keller, president of EISCCAP.

EISCCAP is a lobbying group that keeps its members abreast of what is going on in Congress, Keller said. They will also participate in Peacefest this year, he said, and they are hoping to have some kind of fundraiser soon. The group meets every other week on Wednesdays and will show films and have speakers, he said.

"We'd be really glad to have some new members," Keller said. Right now, Keller said the group is very concerned with the proposed low-level nuclear waste dump in Martinsville.

"There are a lot of worries about this," he said. He added that EISCCAP members will be writing letters to the state legislature and Gov. James Thompson to protest the dump and call for more tests on the site.

A third group for students interested in the turmoil in other countries is SISPCA.

SISPCA is concerned with the problems in Central America, especially in Guatemala, Nicaragua and El Salvador, said SISPCA President Antoinette Spinner.

"We want to raise awareness on this campus and in Central Illinois (about Central America)," Spinner said. "We do care about what goes on down there."

SISPCA this year plans to have several fundraisers including a walk-a-thon to distribute flyers in order to raise awareness about problems in Nicaragua and other Central American countries.

SISPCA meets every other Thursday.

Faculty workshop to focus on legality of copyrights

By AMY JOBIN
Staff writer

Many instructors unknowingly break copyright laws by using another person's work for use in the classroom.

"What Every Professor Should Know About Copyright," a workshop sponsored by the Office of Faculty Development, will attempt to inform professors and instructors about what copyright materials may be used legally in the classroom.

The workshop will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Martinsville Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

James Tidwell, an attorney and associate professor of journalism at Eastern, will present the workshop.

Tidwell said he developed an interest in copyright laws when other teachers and professors began asking him questions about copying materials for classroom use. He pursued this over the past summer when he took a course concerning copyright laws at Harvard Law School.

Tidwell will answer questions about fair use, what materials can be copied and who can copy them for classroom use. Tidwell said that he will also talk about universities claiming ownership of research that professors publish.

If you have not registered and would like to, call the Office of Faculty Development at 581-6041.

Revised handbooks available on campus

By PAUL HANSELL
Staff writer

Due to changes in university policy and graduation and admittance requirements, Eastern has updated its Student Handbook.

The handbook, which contains information ranging from grade appeals to sexual assault counseling to Booth Library's hours, can be picked up at the Sugar Shack in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union, the ticket booth, also in the Union, Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn William's office in Old Main, and the Student Activities offices in the Union.

"The reason behind this year's new handbook was that this was the year that the EIU student catalogue (which lists the courses offered at Eastern and graduation requirements) was also updated, and there were several changes made," said Union Director Joan Gossett, who is also in charge of putting the handbooks together. "Consequently, the handbook had to be updated so as not to contradict the catalogue."

The handbooks will be available as long as supplies last, that there is only one copy per student.

Faculty artists to display work at Tarble Arts Center Friday

Recent works by the faculty of the Art department will be on display in the Main Gallery of the Tarble Arts Center starting Friday.

The 1989 Faculty Art Exhibition is an annual show which gives the faculty members a chance to display work completed during the year.

Katherine Bartel, the newest addition to the Art Department faculty, will present a display of her sculptural work, which depicts the human form in ceramic and in cast paper.

The exhibition will include a wide variety of styles and forms, and there will be several displays of abstract imagery.

Exhibition pieces often include drawings, painting, prints, fibers, ceramics, graphic designs, metals sculpture and installations.

RHA plans outdoor excursion

By ERIC FULTZ
Staff writer

The Residence Hall Association is preparing a trip to Lake Shelbyville, which will give members a chance to learn about each other and the organization.

RHA president Kim Bergemann said the organization will be discussing the fall retreat in Lake Shelbyville at Thursday's meeting in Carman Hall. The retreat is scheduled for Sept. 22-24.

The purpose of the retreat is to bring members closer together so they are able to work more effectively as a group, Bergemann said.

RHA will finalize specifics of the retreat at the meeting.

In other RHA news, Bergemann said the RHA will decide what events to participate in during Homecoming week.

Since RHA has not participated in Homecoming events for the past two years, a decision on what events to participate in must be made. Bergemann said the RHA will do its best to show unity during the Homecoming events.

She said the RHA members will participate in icebreakers during the meeting to familiarize the members with each other, allowing everyone to give a little history on themselves.

UB looking to recruit new members

By STEPHANIE CARNES
Staff writer

The University Board recruitment night will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 21 in the Rathskellar of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The University Board gives students a chance to help bring entertainment to Eastern that everyone can enjoy.

Recruitment night involves all of the UB officers, coordinators and anyone who would like to get involved in university activities.

Committees that make up UB are: concerts, lectures, movies, Homecoming, special events, graphics, performing arts, Subway, videos, human potential, production, public relations, mainstage and summer programming.

UB Chairman Missy Boehm said, "UB is a really fun board to be on. It can prove to be a valuable experience, especially for public relations majors."

Boehm said that at the meeting each coordinator will give the audience an overview of the committee he or she leads.

Thousands take part in historic freedom march

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — More than 20,000 peaceful protesters sang songs of freedom and waved banners denouncing police brutality on Wednesday in the biggest anti-government march ever performed in this country.

Police stayed out of sight as marchers — led by black leaders and Cape Town's white mayor — clogged a mile-long route leading from St. George's Anglican Cathedral to City Hall.

Organizers described the march as a historic occurrence in this racially divided nation.

"We have scored a great victory for justice and peace," Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu told a crowd of 1,800 black, white and mixed-race marchers who packed City Hall while thousands of others stood outside.

He said acting President F.W. de Klerk should have been present "to see what this country is going to become ... a technicolor country." The absence of police contrasted sharply with protest marches two weeks ago in Cape Town that were broken up by riot squads using whips, batons and a water cannon that sprayed purple water.

"It is important to know we could have this peaceful march toward freedom," said the Rev. Frank Chikane, secretary-general of the South African Council of Churches. "Once that has started today, no one can ever stop it again." Protest demonstrations normally are illegal in South Africa, and the Cape Town police commander, Maj. Gen. Phillip Fourie, said last week he would stop Wednesday's march. But de Klerk announced Tuesday evening that the protest could proceed because he had been assured it would be peaceful.

House rejects arts funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Thursday rejected a Senate effort led by Jesse Helms to prohibit federal funding of sexually explicit or blasphemous art.

The Senate had amended a spending bill so as to prohibit the National Endowment of the Arts from awarding grants for art judged to be obscene or offensive to religious and racial groups.

But the House, on a 264-153 vote, sidestepped a Republican congressman's motion to have the House accept that Senate provision when negotiators from the two bodies meet to work out differences between their two versions of the bill.

The vote, in effect, told House negotiators to oppose the North Carolina Republican's measure.

Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., the endowment's chief supporter in the House, said the Helms measure amounted to censorship and would produce a "lingering death" of the 25-year-old agency.

Endowment critics, upset over federal funding this year of photography exhibits that included a picture of Christ on a cross in a jar of urine and photos of homosexual acts, denied there would be censorship. They argued that people have a right to be upset about tax dollars being used to subsidize art they abhor.

"The question is sponsorship, not censorship," said freshman Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., who led the fight on the House floor on behalf of Helms' Senate-backed amendment. "Artists can do whatever they want on their own time and with their own dime." Democrats united behind Yates, however, voting against accepting Helms' measure by a margin of 212-38. House Republicans, whose campaign committee already has used the issue against incumbent Democrats, supported Helms' measure 116-52.

Drug plan could cost Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — Illinois could lose approximately $1.8 million if Congress agrees to take money from various federal programs to pay for President Bush's anti-drug campaign, according to a study released Wednesday.

In order to pay for the $7.9 billion plan, the Bush administration is suggesting that lawmakers cut immigration-assistance grants, shift public housing subsidies and trim business programs and some criminal justice aid.

"Most of these reduction proposals have been made a number of times and rejected by the Congress," said the Federal Funds Information for States, or FFIS, an arm of the National Governors' Association.

Bush's drug strategy could give Illinois an extra $27.5 million over the administration's previous drug-fighting allowance, the FFIS study said.

But the state could lose $29.4 million to pay the total bill, the study said.

Immigration assistance would be reduced by about $16.8 million, the state's share of money from the Economic Development Administration by $5.9 million, juvenile criminal-justice grants by $1.9 million and roughly $4.7 million would be shifted within public housing programs, the study said.

"It's not like they looked to screw Illinois," said Doug Richardson, who runs the state's Washington office. "What they're doing is going after parts of the budget that everyone has tried to cut, and I mean Democrats as well as Republicans."

"The man on the street does not want to see his taxes raised," Richardson said. "We'll talk to the (congressional) delegation and try to find other programs but it all has to come from the budget."

IHSA coaches may not need to be teachers

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — High school athletic coaches would no longer need to be teachers, or even college graduates, under a proposal approved Wednesday by the Illinois High School Association's legislative committee.

It is now up to the association's 782 member high schools to decide if teaching credentials and a college degree are essential to coach at the high school level.

The proposal to relax the coaching requirements comes at a time when schools throughout the state are being forced to cancel some sports programs because they can no longer find qualified people to coach them.

"The proposal seeks to liberalize the coaching qualifications," said Jim Flynn, assistant executive secretary of the association.

"Finding coaches is a growing problem in all sports at all schools, across the board. The pool of qualified coaches just doesn't exist. It's a problem nationwide."

Flynn said schools have 30 days to vote on the proposal. If approved, it will take effect Nov. 13.

The committee voted 18-2 on Wednesday to endorse a proposal to drop the current requirement that a head coach at an Illinois high school must be a college graduate and a fully certified teacher.

Current rules also require that an assistant coaches be a college graduates and a certified substitute teacher.

Instead, the proposal sent to high school administrators for final approval would allow college graduates to be head coaches without holding a teaching certificate. It also would permit people without college diplomas to serve as assistant coaches.

"Under the proposal, anyone interested in coaching would be required to spend a day in classes pertaining to coaching," Flynn said. "They would then be required to pass a written test."

Jack Milam, principal at Dunlap High School in a west Peoria suburb, said he has mixed emotions about bringing non-teachers into the educational environment, but he also has had problems finding a boys swimming coach and a freshman basketball coach.

"We are placing more and more demands on our teachers in the classroom and it's getting harder to find people willing to spend three or four hours a day on the court or field," Milam said. "We'd like to find someone on staff or in the school district. But when no one's available, you have to look at alternatives."

FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK

After two weeks of Gateway Conference competition, Eastern has some statistical leaders.

Jamie Jones leads all rushers with 187 yards, strong safety Daryl Holcombe is the leading kickoff returner, averaging 34.3 yards per attempt and kicker Ray D'Alesio leads the Gateway in both field goals and scoring, kicking five field goals and scoring 20 points. "20

Other Panthers among the Gateway leaders include quarterback Eric Arnold, third among conference passers with 27 completions in 53 efforts for 365 yards, good for a rating of 127.5, Jones and receiver Jason Cook are among Gateway leaders with seven and six receptions respectively and punter Brian Pindar is fourth in the conference with an average of 37.4 yards per punt.

... Although he probably won't start, backup John Sengstock may see some action in Saturday's game at Southern Illinois.

"He will hopefully be able to make the trip," said Eastern coach Bob Spoo. "He did a lot in practice, except contact. It would be a relief to know he would be able to go with us."

Sengstock has been sidelined with a fractured left foot, and the early prognosis was that he could miss up to six weeks.

Spoo said Sengstock will most likely not see action at fullback, but may find another method of playing time.

"There are a lot of ways to get guys into games, not the least of which is special teams," Spoo said. "And he's done that for us in the past."

... While the Panthers got some good news about injuries, they also got some bad news.

Junior tight end Mark Grady has broken his foot, and may be out for the rest of the year, furthering the Panthers' tight end problems.

"We feel we need three at least to get into the goal-line offense," said Spoo, whose other tight ends include Tim Moore and converted linebacker Stan Milan. "We're really down to about one-and-a-half tight ends if you will; it's not a good situation."

"Now we must prepare for what they do do, which is throw the ball. That's not always an easy thing to do either."

The Panthers may not find the going easy, but Lance said he at least would like to put everything else aside and see the defense do what it does best — become absorbed into the action.

"If we can just get mentally into the game and go back to flying around and hitting people we'll be OK," Lance said.

Saluki quarterback worries Panthers

By AL LAGATTOLLA
Staff writer

Although he leads a team that has loped to an 0-2 record, Southern Illinois quarterback Fred Gibson is an imposing figure in the eyes of Eastern's football squad.

"We're looking for their quarterback to try and throw," said Eastern nickel back Tim Lance of this Saturday's Gateway Conference showdown in Carbondale. "He's a heck of a quarterback, and he can run."

In the Salukis' two games, Gibson has completed 28 of 49 passes for 235 yards, but has lost 12 yards on the ground.

Saluki coach Bob Smith is making a gradual transition from an option to a more pro-style offense, which has reduced Gibson's overall role in the Southern Illinois offense.

But Eastern coach Bob Spoo is not digging Gibson's grave.

"That's (the option) where Gibson excels the most, he has the ability to run the ball," Spoo said. "They still run the G-option, or what we call the belly option, but they don't use it to the same extent as with the veer or the wishbone."

"... But he's a threat; Fred Gibson's a threat."

A season ago, Gibson gained 322 yards on the ground, and connected on 63 of 105 passes for 742 yards in seven games.

The Panthers are worried that Gibson may revert to his form of a season ago.

"We're going to try to stop the passing attack and contain him," said Lance, who has 13 tackles in the season, 11 in last week's win against Northwestern Louisiana.

Lance said that Gibson's reduced yardage has nothing to do with his physical condition.

"We watched him on film," Lance said. "He hasn't slowed a bit."

Two years ago, Gibson had a 62-yard run in an Eastern-Southern Illinois contest to set up a touchdown to set up a score that put the Salukis to within one point of the lead. The Panthers ultimately were defeated.

Spoo remembers that game from his first season at Eastern, repeating the warning of "he's a threat."

But now Eastern can anticipate a different Saluki team and a different Fred Gibson.

"By virtue of the fact that he's not involved in running the ball so much, it's helpful," Spoo said.

Smith giving Southern little chance against Eastern

By DAVID BRUMMER
Staff writer

Bob Smith is not surprised.

He left a resurging University of Illinois football program last spring to become head coach at struggling Southern Illinois. He knew what he was getting into when he took the Southern job and he knew what he left behind as an assistant at Illinois.

Now, with the Fighting Illini ranked 10th in the country and whispering "Rose Bowl," Smith is trying to regroup his Salukis after an 0-2 start.

"(Illinois') great. But I expected that," Smith said. "Nothing unexpected has happened at either place."

Smith is trying to develop his own system at Southern with essentially someone else's players. He took over for Rick Rhoades, an option-oriented coach who left after one year to become an assistant at Alabama. And now Smith has got option personnel for a pro-style attack.

Right now, it's like a jigsaw puzzle with pieces that don't fit.

"I'm not disappointed," Smith said of the Salukis, who'll host Eastern 3 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium in Carbondale. "We knew exactly how far we had to go when we got here last spring. We knew where we were."

His master plan will take five years, Smith says, acknowledging that it will take that long to recruit and develop the type of players he wants for his system.

But the present concern for the Salukis is Saturday's game with Eastern, where Smith is playing his team's role as the underdog to the hilt.

"I'm sure we're the caliber of team that's not going to scare Eastern at all," Smith said. "... It stacks up, in all honesty as a game that's going to be very tough for us to win."

Actually, Southern won't be that much of an underdog when it hosts Eastern, who hasn't played in Carbondale for three years. Even though the Salukis lost at Nevada-Reno 41-3, they only lost 14-7 to Gateway foe Western Illinois, in a game postponed last Saturday with Southern leading 7-0 and continued Sunday.

"Our defense hasn't done so bad," Smith said. "They did well against Nevada Reno (where Southern was shutout 34-0 in the second half), but we gave up three big plays in the second half."

"I thought we played really well in the game against Western Illinois."

And Smith expects Eastern to give Southern's defense another big test.

"They (Eastern) look on film like a team with a lot of big-play capability," Smith said. "That's the thing that scares me. They got that (wide receiver Ralph) Stewart. They've got some speed, which is what we're concerned about."

"We'll just play a little deeper than what we usually do in the secondary and try and rush the quarterback. Of course, Eastern's got a fine offensive line. And when they get possession of the ball, they've got that little Jamie Jones back there."

Offensively, Smith said his team also will be looking for the big play.

"We'll have to keep throwing the ball deep," Smith said. "We have to try to make something that resembles a big play.

"We'll have to do a little better job in pass protection. We'll try to remedy that this week. We may leave two backs in to block if we have to and see how that works."

Cubs sweep Expos

CHICAGO (AP) — Scott Sanderson, making his first start since Aug.

18, allowed no runs in 5 1-3 innings, and the streaking Chicago Cubs completed a three-game sweep with a 3-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Wednesday night.

It was the first-place Cubs' fifth straight victory and dropped the fourth-place Expos seven games out in the National League East.

Sanderson allowed six hits, all singles, and struck out three to improve to 11-8. Les Lancaster finished for his seventh save, allowing three hits in 3 2-3 innings.

The Expos snapped a string of 19 consecutive scoreless innings in the eighth inning when Dave Martinez singled, moved to second on a grounder and scored on Tom Foley's double.

Jerome Walton had two singles, a stolen base and made an outstanding catch in center field to prevent an Expos' run in the sixth.

Joe Girardi's infield single off Kevin Gross, 11-11, scored Vance Law from third with Chicago's first run in the second inning.

In the fifth, Andre Dawson's single over the outstretched glove of second baseman Rex Hudler into short right field scored Ryne Sandberg from second.

Gross gave up seven hits, including three infield singles, in six innings.

The Cubs scored a run in the bottom of the eighth off Zane Smith on Shaw Dunston's RBI single.
