Three-day liquor licence pending

By BRIAN HUCHEL
City editor

City officials are mulling over a compromise that would end a summer-long disagreement concerning the use of alcohol at non-licensed businesses.

The compromise, now open to public examination at the Charleston City Clerk's Office, would allow businesses without liquor licenses three opportunities to serve liquor at business parties over the course of a year.

In addition, a provision in the compromise will state the compromise does not restrict the personal use of alcohol by employees at the business to only three times each year.

The compromise, which the council unanimously voted to put on record for public scrutiny at the Aug. 15 Charleston City Council meeting, is the result of a summer of arguing between the business community and the city administration.

The controversy began when bar-owner Mike Bickers rented his liquor license-free building, Capone's, along Illinois Route 130, to an Eastern fraternity for a private party. Bickers was arrested on charges of violating a city liquor ordinance.

The ordinance states alcohol can be served at a private party in a non-licensed commercial establishment. However, several restrictions are

Merrifield's raise leaves mixed feelings with staff

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Administration editor

Eastern Lobbyist Chris Merrifield's $15,000 raise announced at last Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting has been met with diverse reactions.

Merrifield, who was hired last February at a $35,000 yearly salary, has been given a new yearly salary of $50,000 which is retroactive beginning July 1.

"It seems like money well earned in an important position that probably was low in salary to begin with," said senate member Joan Schmidt.

Board of Governors Spokeswoman Michelle Brazell, who has worked with Merrifield since February, said Merrifield's raise is well within the scope of competitive salaries.

"Eastern is getting quite a deal for (Merrifield) at $50,000," she said. "With her experience and (political) contacts she is well worth it.

According to Jill Nilsen, special assistant to the president, Merrifield's raise was warranted by the termination of the BOG, Eastern's governing board, and the additional duties her position will entail because other political liaisons assisting through the BOG will no longer exist.

"Because the liaisons at the BOG will be gone, she will be working alone," Nilsen said. "Now she is responsible for all legislative duties at Eastern."

The money funding the $15,000 raise is from a transition grant allocated by the state to aid in the university's adaptation to individual boards.

The BOG will be terminated Jan. 1 and individual boards will be formed for the five BOG schools.

Senate member Roger Beck agreed that Cracking down New law should lower campus hazing incidents

By SCOTT MURPHY
Staff writer

Greek students say a new state hazing law will be effective in decreasing the number of hazing incidents on campus.

The legislation, which was signed by Gov. Jim Edgar, makes hazing a Class

4 felony if it results in death or great harm to any individual. A Class 4 felony is punishable by up to three years in prison.

Stephanie Crase, a Delta Zeta sorority alumnus and former academic affairs director of Eastern's Panhellenic Council, said this law was overdue and will be beneficial to the greek system on campus.

"The law is an excellent decision and a necessary step," Crase said. "Hopefully this law will help keep the greek system united and strong."

Edgar stated in a press release that no person should be exposed to the physical harm that could result from hazing.

"Students who wish to join fraternities, sororities or other student organizations should not be subjected to ridicule or activities that can cause great injury or even death," the release stated.

The new legislation defines hazing as knowingly requiring a student to perform an act in order to be admitted into a school-associated group if the act is not sanctioned by the school and it results in bodily harm to any person, according to the Edgar release.

The law is due to go in effect Jan. 1, 1996.

Other members of Eastern's greek system agree the law is necessary and are also against the idea of hazing.

"This law is very necessary because I don't understand why a friend or classmate would want to inflict injury on each other," said Lori Girardini, a junior speech pathology major and a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Cameron Hill, a junior zoology major and also a member of Alpha Phi, said the state has a right to interfere in university policy, when hazing is concerned.

"Hazing is unnecessary and it is incorrect for people to get hurt," Hill said.

One student said the law might not be harsh enough because students will haze anyway.

"Fraternities and sororities will still try to get away with it," said Tracee Baum, a senior journalism major and a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

"Not all hazing incidents will be reported and therefore the law cannot be fully effective," Baum added.

Ceci Brinker, assistant director of student life, said people should not relate hazing to just fraternities and sororities.

"Hazing does not just happen in the greek organizations, but other organizations as well," Brinker said.

Brinker said she does not condone hazing and says the state is correct for getting involved in the issue.

"It is good the state is taking this matter seriously and that it is willing to go a step further," Brinker said.

Brinker said hazing incidents on campus has decreased the last few years because of increased responsibility of the university and greek organizations.

"The decreasing number of hazing cases says a lot about the greek system," Brinker said. "The greeks are holding themselves accountable for their behavior and people should take note of that."

Rep. Tom Cross, R-Oswego, was the individual who introduced the bill and said

hazing should not be tolerated in any way.

"There is no room for any physical harm inflicted to people by acts of hazing," Cross said.

Cross said it is important for the universities and the state to work together to prevent hazing acts. He said hazing occurs primarily with greek organizations.

The bill was introduced by Cross after a Western student was killed during a rugby team hazing incident.

invoked, including the inability to have a cover charge, serve food or be in the business of serving alcohol somewhere else at the time of the party.

The Coles County Circuit Court found Bickers not guilty.

City Attorney Brian Bower said the new liquor ordinance was passed earlier in the summer after it found that the proprietor of a commercial establishment would have no liability if an individual consumed alcohol on the premises.

Bickers' attorney, Greg Bonelli, said the council also has expressed anxiety to him over the possibility of underage consumption at private parties held in Bickers' establishment.

Bowers said the original ordinance, as it was discovered during the Bickers trial, would have been unable to limit the number of parties held.

The city council then tried to rewrite the ordinance, trying to institute a one-day liquor license idea. This idea, however, met with resistance, as three members of the city council voted against the rewrite.

"I feel what I do behind closed doors is my business. It is too intrusive to force the business community to buy a license."

- Greg Stewart
City Commissioner

City Commissioner Greg Stewart, who voted against the idea, said he and Tonya Wood, owner of Lincoln Book Shop, 619 Monroe St., and an opponent of the one-day license, said they thought the ordinance was an intrusion on the community.

"I feel what I do behind closed doors is my business," Stewart said. "It is too intrusive to force the business community to buy a license."

Stewart said it appears the current proposal has enough support to receive a passing vote at the Sept. 5 council meeting.

granting such a raise was justified in order to keep Merrifield's services.

"If she's really that good she'll get ($50,000) somewhere else," Beck said. "With a little more explanation most will see the raise justifiable."

Senate chairman John Simpson, who choose not to comment on the raise, said the Faculty Senate will invite Merrifield in the near future to meet with senate members about a variety of issues.

Other senate members were not as welcoming to Merrifield's salary increase.

"She may be worth ($50,000)," said senate member Lankford Walker. "But on the other hand that is a huge increase, and I really don't know the extent of her increased duties.

"A lot of people would like a better justification for the raise," Walker added. "And I don't think the jury is in (on the raise's public approval)."

Senate member Hal Nordin also thought the raise was too steep.

"We (faculty) get 3.3 percent and (Merrifield) gets 43 percent and that is quite a difference" Nordin said. "And how do we really know how effective she is?"

Nordin said he questions how much of an impact Merrifield actually had in gaining funds for Eastern in her short tenure here.

"Who's to say we can attribute so much of our success to her doorstep?" Nordin asked. "But I don't think it is over with in the Faculty Senate and hopefully it will be cleared up."

Road tripping through the summer

Vacations allow Eastern students to visit all corners

By JOHN BATES
Staff writer

Some Eastern students spent their summers working hard to pay bills and increase their measly bank accounts. Some hung out with friends and relaxed. Others hit the road.

Mary Stanley, a freshman chemistry major, was one of many students taking vacations this summer. She made her way out of the country and into warm and sunny Cancun, Mexico.

Stanley enjoyed dancing nearly every night at bars, which she wasn't old enough to do in Illinois, and she took the advantage of an exchange rate that was in her favor.

"I bought two T-shirts for 40 pesos (about $6)," she said.

Taking in sights at the U.S. Capitol was Matt Shanks, a freshman engineering major, who was performing there with his high school band in front of the White House.

"We played three times and screwed off the rest of the week," he said.

And the Federal Government must have shut down when Shanks and his band went to Washington D.C. — they didn't see any famous politicians.

Todd Brennan, a sophomore elementary education major, stares across the waves as he enjoys his summer vacation to Florida.

"We didn't even see Socks (President Bill Clinton's cat)," he said.

Travelling south, Todd Brennan, a sophomore elementary education major, enjoyed sun and swimming for three weeks in Naples, Fla., with his dad and two brothers. Brennan and his family also went to the Florida Keys for several nights.

But no matter where you are or how much fun you're having, something is bound to go wrong. "I was walking into the ocean," said Brennan, "and a huge stingray came up and bit me. I was in so much pain you wouldn't believe."

Brennan received nerve damage in his ankle from the fish, which Brennan said was the size of a garbage can lid.

These vacationers who escaped the mundane life of hard work exchanged their money for memories.

Organization takes AIM at Eastern

By BETSY COLE
Campus editor

The Eastern Illinois chapter of the American Indian Movement will meet 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Arcola/Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. Union.

AIM is an American Indian activist organization with chapters and members across the United States, said Tom Leonard, a Saginaw Chippewa Indian and head of the Eastern chapter. Leonard is also a building service worker for Weller Hall.

The meeting is open to anyone and refreshments are provided.

Topics of discussion for the meeting will be an explanation of what AIM is and what future plans the organization has, including being involved in the homecoming parade, Leonard said.

"We also want to discuss some Indian religious rights," he added.

This is the first AIM meeting on Eastern's campus. Leonard said he chose this location for the meeting because of the convenience and the comfort provided in the University Union.

Student Government to seek campus opinion about hikes

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Student government editor

Executive members of Student Government say they plan to reach out to the campus to gather students' opinions on the proposed tuition and fee increases.

The final proposal for next year's tuition and fee increases will be presented at the Aug. 30 Student Government meeting. The Student Senate will have to vote on the proposed increases by Sept. 20.

The Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, will vote on the final increase proposal at its Sept. 21 meeting.

Lou Hencken, vice president of Student Affairs, addressed the senate Wednesday on the increases but failed to cite any figures as to how much of an increase would be implemented. Hencken said the increases are calculated according to the current inflation rate.

Michelle Gaddini, student body president, said once the senate members know the increase amounts, they will try to speak to as many of their constituents as possible.

"We plan on going to different organizations' meetings and try to talk to students," Senate Speaker Kevin Picket said, adding he will also try to speak to students in all areas of the campus.

"We want a lot of oral communications with the students," Picket said.

Picket said students will also be able to E-mail Student Government at its new address which he said is going to be established soon.

Jason Anselment, vice president for public affairs, has no voting capacity in the Student Senate, but he said he would try to talk to as many students as possible and try to act as a sort of resource center for the senate members when dealing with the proposals.

Gaddini said because the senate has to vote on the proposals earlier this year than in previous years, they will not have enough time to conduct a survey of the student body.

Gaddini said she encourages students to attend upcoming Student Senate meetings to find out more about the increases.

"Student Senate should also be considered weekly forums," said Anselment, adding that students will be able to hear all the arguments for and against the proposals at future senate meetings.

Picket said the senate will probably not have time to conduct a student forum for students on the proposed increases.

Correction

Thursday's edition of The Daily Eastern News erroneously reported that the Student Government would be voting on tuition and fee increases Aug. 30.

The senate has not set a specific date to vote, but said it will vote on the increases before Sept. 20.

Two other sororities of Black Greek Council have moved into Greek Court and were overlooked.

These sororities are Sigma Gamma Rho and Zeta Phi Beta. The Daily Eastern News regrets the error.

Honors plan to study overseas shouldn't fly

A new proposal that would require honors students to study abroad for a semester is ambitious. Unfortunately, that's about all it is. Herb Lasky, the director of the honors program, proposed honors students here be required to spend one semester in another country as part of the curriculum. The student would study in another country and receive 15 hours of credit, according to the proposal.

While it may be a good idea, Lasky is proposing an idea that costs too much for the state or the students. Unless Illinois gets rich fast, the plan should be scrapped indefinitely.

Lasky's plan would require all honors students to spend a semester in a non-English-speaking country. The student would receive 15 credit hours for the work, and classes would be double counted to fill core requirements and not slow the student's graduation.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education would provide the money, Lasky said.

But where will the state of Illinois get the money? Eastern has more than 300 honors students. In a state that already underfunds education and faces deficits in places such as the Chicago Public School system, the legislature would be hard pressed to find funds for a program that can only be considered a perk for the honors program.

If the burden fell to the students, the honor program would become an honors program for the rich. Low-income honors students could never consistently afford a semester abroad.

Either way, the study abroad plan can't work here.

Any extra money should go to all students and not to boost the honors students experiences. Additional money for Booth Library, more electives and other all-around academic programs are more valuable in the long run.

Maybe at another time this idea would be feasible. Sending students abroad teaches them about new cultures, broadens their horizons and adds depth to their characters. Every student should give thought to studying abroad.

But should it be required and paid for by the state? That's questionable – if not impossible.

The mayor needs to take a journalism class

As a new fall semester begins, students, faculty and administrators alike are asked to begin the new year with a fresh outlook on life, dismissing any unpleasanties or difficulties that dampened the past. Disruptive students, unmerciful instructors and polarizing administrators are supposed to be forgotten.

Unruly roommates, embarrassing bar incidents and a nearly-diminished bank account are meant to be discarded as the new year brings new opportunities and chances for each and every person on campus.

But, even more important, long-standing grudges are supposed to be nothing more than immature incidents of misunderstanding.

But, as you all know, we do not live in a utopia – anyone who knows our current city skipper, Mayor Dan Coughill, knows that grudges and vendettas are trademarks of “Chucktown.”

Once again, Coughill decided this week to bury his head in the sand and hide from the watchful and resourceful eyes of The Daily Eastern News.

Since early in the fall of 1994, Coughill has refused to talk to The News, claiming our paper lacks editorial integrity and professionalism.

Coughill's temper tantrum was the result of a series of columns and news stories that confronted the fact that he refused to follow through on his campaign promise to not raising the bar entry age from 19 to 21.

First of all, Coughill has no reason not to talk to the current staff at The News. Since March, the paper has been under a new administration and editorial staff.

The current staff was not responsible for the columns and stories that were critical of Coughill's obvious lack of integrity when backing down from his campaign promise.

With a new staff brings new ideas and new opinions on every issue, even the mayor's competence.

Secondly, the fact that Coughill was a former high-ranking military official does not give him the right to bark at The

DAVE HOSICK
Regular columnist

“Finally, before being upset ...Coughill should face the grim fact he has no idea how the modern media functions.”

News staff as if it was a regiment going into battle.

In an attempt to efficiently inform the public, The News has continually tried to make peace with Coughill and start the year fresh. But, once again Coughill has refused to negotiate, as if the newspaper was the enemy threatening him with an all-out assault.

Neither The News nor this campus will allow Coughill to demand that we accept his stern and unruly interaction with the university. We refuse to believe we must follow his orders as the makeshift leader in this community.

Finally, before being upset at trivial events that have happened in the past, Coughill should face the grim fact he has no idea how the modern media functions.

The News features an unsigned editorial and a personal column everyday on its editorial page. Editorial topics are chosen by an editorial board consisting of six members of The News. Columns are strictly the opinions of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of The News staff as a whole.

When columnists were critical of Coughill's actions – as they were compelled to be at the time – they were representing themselves. The News never once acted without integrity when criticizing Coughill's actions – some columnists perhaps – but not The News as a whole.

Just to make it perfectly clear, the criticisms in this column are my opinion and my opinion only.

I was not coerced or coached in any way as to what to say about the city or Coughill's administration. The criticisms in this column are simply repeating the fact that Coughill has continually dodged The News, the only medium not afraid to rattle his cage and seriously scrutinize his actions.

I think that Coughill is nothing more than a scared little school bully who is trying to blindside this campus into becoming a dormant piece of an otherwise uneventful ghost town. But that's just my opinion of course.

Punishment for having, using fake ID cards not worth experience

Dear editor:

I am writing in regard to my recent court case dealing with my possession of a false identification card. I bought the ID in St. Louis in the summer of 1994. I used it one year ago this month in Charleston at Gateway Liquors, but the workers there kept it because they could tell it was fake. I went to court in May of this year and pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of false identification, which is a misdemeanor. I was fined $500, placed under court supervision for a year, and my driver's license was suspended for one year.

Fake IDs are a problem that need to be stopped and the courts are only going to get tougher on offenders. I can definitely say that purchasing and using a fake ID are not worth the risk. I advise anyone who has a fake ID or is thinking about getting one not to, especially if you cannot handle the consequences. Don't be stupid. Think twice before you get yourself into unwanted trouble.

Eastern's Cheerteam wins at summer camp, ready for a great year

Dear editor:

I am writing this letter because I feel it is very well deserved! Earlier this month, the Eastern Cheerteam; our wonderful adviser, Andrew White; and I went to Northern Illinois University for cheerleading camp. During our stay, the Cheerteam competed five times. Each of those five times the team received a blue ribbon. (For those of you who don't know, blue is superior – the best you can get!) This great group of cheerleaders also won five trophies. The Eastern Cheerteam was voted out of the whole camp as being the “Most Collegiate” squad. They were also voted on by the other squads who attended the camp as being the squad who showed the most “leadership.” This terrific group of cheerleaders is probably the best squad to ever come through Eastern, in my opinion! I know that the 1995-96 school year is “our” year, not only for the Cheerteam but for the rest of Eastern's athletic teams. Good luck!

Motorist upsets two students

By THERESA GAVLIN and BRIAN HUCHEL
Staff writers

A motorist allegedly wearing no pants stopped his vehicle Wednesday evening to ask two female Eastern students for the time of day while fondling himself.

A Campus Police report said the two students, who asked to have their names withheld, were walking at 8:45 p.m. along Garfield Street, north of Coleman Hall, when the unidentified man drove up and asked them what time it was.

One of the women could see that the man was wearing nothing from the waist down. According to the police report, the other woman, who wasn't standing as close to the car as the other, couldn't verify the incident.

However, the one witness stated in the police report the driver appeared to be getting sexually aroused and was "flipping" his genitals around with his hand.

The driver then sped off and looked back as if to watch the women's reactions, the report said.

The two students, who live in Lincoln Hall, said they got a good look at the man and, if caught, would press charges.

In other campus and Charleston police reports Thursday:

- A computer, keyboard, display screen and jet printer were stolen out of 103 Klehm Hall at approximately 5:45 p.m. last Wednesday.

The total loss is estimated at $1,703.

- Anthony Gilio, of 1415 Ninth St., was arrested by Campus Police at 12:42 a.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Fourth Street and Grant Avenue on the charges of driving under the influence of alcohol.

- Neal Arnett, of 310 Thomas Hall, reported to Campus Police at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday that his brown leather wallet was missing from his room.

Arnett last saw the wallet on his bolster when he left the room to attend a floor meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Stephen Franklin, Arnett's

roommate, left the door open to be able to hear the phone ring because he was expecting a call, the report said.

Arnett didn't notice the wallet missing until 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The wallet's contents included $115 in cash and several credit cards.

- Daniel J. Hannon, 19, of 1627 Seventh St., was arrested by Charleston police at 12:40 p.m. Tuesday at his residence on the charges of illegal purchase or acceptance of alcohol.

- Kara A. Kabat, 19, and Elizabeth N. Branley, 20, both of 1109 Third St., were arrested by Charleston police at 11:50 p.m. Saturday along the 1500 block of Third Street on charges of illegal purchase or acceptance of alcohol.

- Tammy M. Claypool, of Charleston, was arrested by Charleston police at 2:23 a.m. Wednesday along Illinois Route 16, one-quarter mile west of Douglas Drive, on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Claypool was also arrested on charges of driving an uninsured motor vehicle and improper lane usage.

Soccer team ready for preseason opener

New coach Fabiano gets first

By BRIAN LESTER
Staff writer

The men's soccer team will get their first taste of action tomorrow afternoon when it travels to Illinois Benedictine College for a 3 p.m. exhibition game.

While it is only a practice game and could easily be labeled as meaningless, coach Troy Fabiano is hoping to use the contest as a measure for the upcoming season.

"We are basically just going out there to test out different formations and tactics that will be used during the season," Fabiano said. "I would also like to get an idea of how our players adjust to different game situations."

Fabiano realizes this game won't count in the record books, but he does intend on winning tomorrow's contest.

"Although it is an exhibition game, we are going out there to win," Fabiano said. "But my main objective is to see where I can put different players and get an idea of how they perform at certain positions. Basically, I want to get a grasp of what some players can and cannot do."

The team is also going to be well prepared for the game, Fabiano said. He believes practices have been going well and that the team is heading in the right direction.

"Practices have been going really well this past week," Fabiano said. "Their fitness level has improved tremendously since practice began and now we're starting to focus on tactics."

Shawn Johnson, a transfer from Lincoln College, also believes that practices have been moving right along, and he is confident that the team will be successful.

"I feel that the practices have been a little on the serious side, but the guys seem to be putting a lot of effort into them," Johnson said. "I think the team is looking good right now and we should play pretty well Saturday."

While practices have gone well throughout the week, coach Fabiano feels that there are still a few areas that need to be worked on before the season officially begins next weekend.

"I feel we have a quality 12 or 13 players but we still need guys that can come off the bench and give the starters a break," Fabiano said of his team's current problem. "At this point we just don't have the depth that we need."

In addition to a lack of depth, third-year player Greg McDonald believes tactics and positioning are a couple of areas still needing improvement.

"We have basically gotten the physical part out of the way since the team is in pretty good shape," McDonald said. "Right now it is just a matter of learning different tactics and getting our positions down."

If all goes well tomorrow the Panthers should be one step closer to a promising season, and Johnson feels that team chemistry is a key to this year's success.

"I think the team is gradually getting to know each other," Johnson said. "I feel that once we get to know each other, everything will really click and we should end up being a really good

Defensive line recharged for new season

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Sports editor

With the loss of two defensive linemen to graduation last year, and another pair declared academically ineligible, the defensive line of Eastern's football team was looking a bit suspect for the 1995 season.

But good spring drills, and a continuation of quality workouts into the preseason, have given coach Bob Krieger something to be optimistic about.

"We had a great learning experience in the spring. We got beat up a little bit (in practice) but learned from it and took advantage of it," Krieger said. "We came back in the fall, and we have now got five defensive ends, and four or five defensive linemen, that can step in and play a part of our defensive role - and not miss a beat."

The graduation of defensive linemen Chris Wilkerson and Kevin Zeng from last year's squad put a question mark on the D-line for this year.

Wilkerson and Zeng started every game last year at defensive tackle and defensive end respectively. They combined for 144 tackles (10 for losses), eight quarterback sacks and a pair of forced fumbles.

But that was then.

Wilkerson is back with the Panthers, now on the staff as the restricted earnings coach assisting with the defensive unit.

And the void Wilkerson and Zeng left has been filled by quality players, Krieger said.

"We're going to be strong with whoever we put in," Krieger said. "Of course we have some exceptional athletes."

Among those "exceptional" athletes are Curtis Price, Brian McGavock and Kevin Ellison, Krieger said.

"Those are all veterans that have come back and shown the leadership that it took to get where we're at right now," Krieger said.

Price returns for his senior season after starting every game at tackle for the Panthers a year ago. He collected 44 tackles and tied for the team high with six quarterback sacks.

"Curtis has tremendous work ethic and just great quickness for a defensive lineman," Krieger said.

Price, a Mattoon native, is not sure an "inexperience" label being put on the defensive line is a fair thing to do.

"A lot of people say we don't have a lot of experience on the D-line, but we have Kevin Ellison who has been starting since his redshirt year," Price said. "He had some injuries slow him down but he's back full force."

"Brian McGavock also started and both of them are playing great ball right now." Ellison, a junior from Mt. Vernon, Ind., played in only one game last season but has come back to reclaim a starting spot.

McGavock returns to a starting spot after serving a one-year NCAA suspension. He started seven games for Eastern back in 1993, recording 42 tackles.

Krieger said Ellison and McGavock have not missed a beat since returning to the lineup.

"They both had exceptional springs," Krieger said. "McGavock is probably our quickest off the ball. And Kevin has a natural ability to be able to absorb blocks, and come off and make the tackle. He's a great play maker."

One of the new additions to the defensive line is tackle Brandon Schild, who comes to Eastern after an All-Conference performance at Harper Community College in Palatine.

"He (Schild) stepped in and has done very well. He'll see a lot of (playing) time," Krieger said.

A number of people have stepped up to give Krieger what he believes is a solid backup group.

Tackles Reggie Scott and Mike Shea, and defensive ends Jerry Guzaldo, John Moyer and Ethan Banning will be challenging for starting spots.

Guzaldo started the first two games last year but an injury caused him to miss the rest of the season.

Banning is a player Krieger calls "the most improved lineman."

Whatever the starting four is for the season opener, Krieger said there will definitely be a solid group behind them.

"I don't know when we've been able to rotate a complete, quality group into the lineup to keep our starters fresh, like we've been able to do this year," Krieger

Manuel leads group of inexperienced receivers

By DAN FIELDS
Associate sports editor

Catching only three passes for 23 yards last season, Anton Manuel was in the shadow of Eastern's leading receiver Greg Jensik.

Now a sophomore, Manuel believes he is up to the task to be the Panthers' top receiver, even amidst confessions that last year wasn't any indication of his true playing ability.

"I accepted my position as a backup because Greg Jensik was the best," Manuel said of the now graduated Jensik, who led the team in receiving with 692 yards.

Manuel had a rough entry into Panther

Football, but understood his mistakes, as well as not making excuses for his actions.

"I think I got rid of all the pressure last season when I was fumbling the ball," Manuel said. "Last year I was nervous, but now I'm taking everything in stride."

Although not an upperclassman, Manuel hopes to encourage others by his play instead of verbal communication.

"Being a sophomore, I'm not looked at as a leader - even though I'm the best receiver here," Manuel said.

Offensive coordinator Roy Wittke is ready for Manuel to step up this season, and he's confident that Manuel will be ready to perform when called upon.

"Anton has worked extremely hard (in the preseason)," Wittke said. "He's going to be our go-to-guy in the clutch."

Although Manuel may disagree, Wittke explained that Manuel "has developed into a strong leader. He knows what we expect of him."

Also returning to the lineup is senior tight end Rick Mullen who caught 9 passes for 142 yards last season.

Other individuals Wittke said "have stepped forward" are junior college transfers Jinho Ferreira, Tom Hess and Bob Rosenstiel.

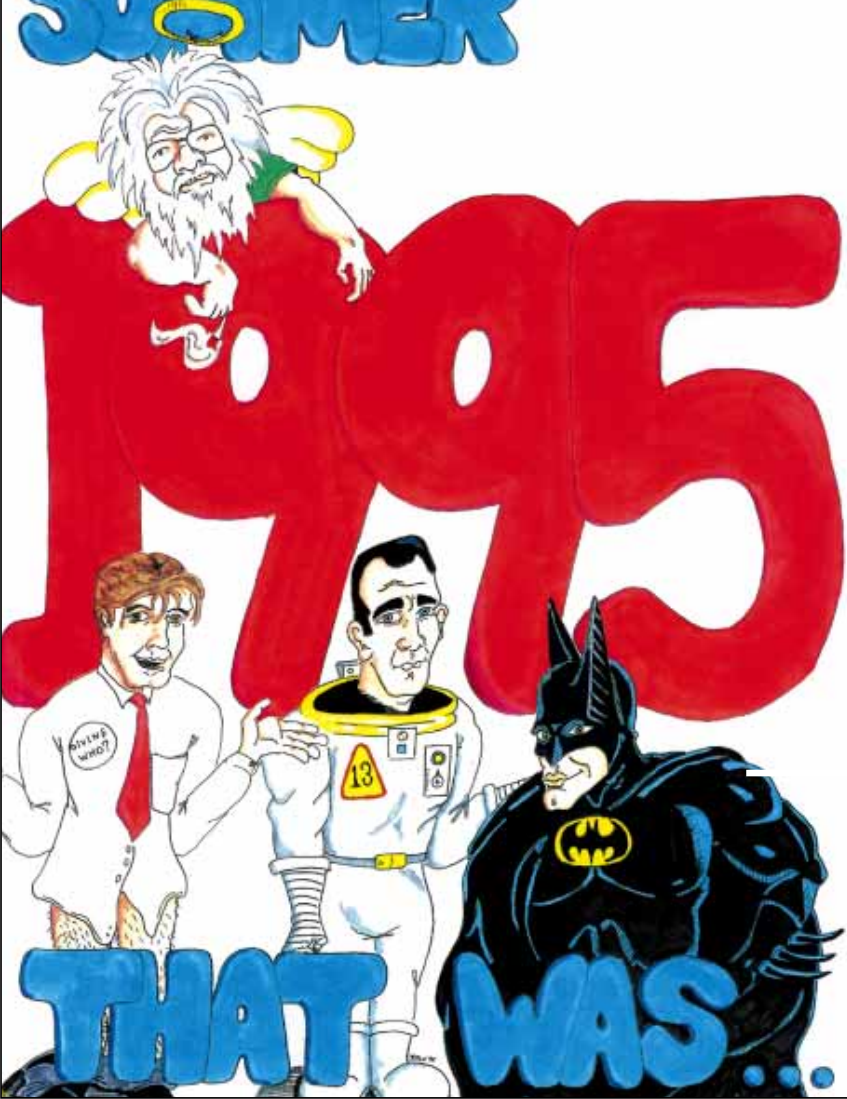

All three attended junior college in California, as Ferreira went to Contra Costa while Hess and Rosenstiel both attended the College of the Siskiyous.

"All of these guys are older and have had experience. It's going to be a great challenge for this particular group," Wittke said. "They are looking for a challenge and they're excited about getting to go after

Welcome to The Verge's first-ever summer retrospective. Featuring movie and music reviews, scathing commentary and a little Divine intertary and a little Divine intertary, it will hopefully make you feel as if you're back on the beach, enjoying a cool breeze. Yeah, right.

THE SUMMER

BY ADAM McHUGH

From the bawdy antics of an Englishman who went up a hill but wound up in jail due to Divine Brown intervention to the untimely but not surprising death of a road-weary Dead Head, this summer offered a slice of surreal entertainment as well as the normal fare of films with stoic bats and stylish terrorists who can never win a la "Batman Forever" and "Die Hard with a Vengeance."

In a summer without the doltish anecdotes of "Forrest Gump" or the roar of a blockbuster like "The Lion King," the summer in film was characterized by many flicks in the $100 million club, including "Apollo 13," "Batman Forever" and "Pocahontas."

The summer in music ranged from Michael Jackson returning with "HIStory," to the anthem of dumped girlfriends around the world with Alanis Morissette's single "You Oughta Know."

Jackson's release was overshadowed, however, by an overhyped interview with Diane Sawyer - with his new wife right at his side. While Jackson came off as a sensitive musician extremely hurt by the 1993 accusations of molestation, his wife, Lisa Marie Presley, dominated much of the hour-long interview, ultimately coming off as a snarling sex kitten with an abrasive, world-be-damned attitude.

This summer didn't have mono-syllabic dialogue between Sandra Bullock and Keanu Reeves. It had sophisticated but just as meaningless dialogue between Judge Lance Ito and O.J. Simpson defender Johnny Cochrane.

But the staff of On the Verge of the Weekend is not devoting an entire issue to the summer that was 1995 because of these events.

Truthfully, we are doing this retrospective because another semester has loomed upon us like a dark cloud of doom, and remembering the seemingly short summer should bring a smile to everyone's face.

If it doesn't, all we have to say is, "Who knew?"

Inside:

'Batman Forever' and 'Apollo 13' blast off at the box office.

Movie soundtracks dominate airwaves this summer.

Q&A

Here are some of the people and issues which made the news this summer. For Q&A on Q&A see page 4.

- 1 After years of drug abuse, Grateful Dead lead singer Jerry Garcia, 53, succumbed to the lifestyle Aug. 9.
- 2 After years of drug abuse, Rolling Stone Keith Richards is still going strong, vowing to outlive the cockroach - even if a nuclear war occurred.
- 3 Want to know when a comedian's career is coming to a dreadful end? Denis Leary can tell you in three words: "Operation Dumbo Drop."
- 4 Former Playboy model Anna Nicole Smith's rich husband J. Howard Marshall died last week. She mourned the loss by getting in a bitter probate battle with his family. But she married him for his body, right?
- 5 Energizer should get O.J. Simpson to sell batteries for them. Strap some fuzzy, pink ears on him and he and the case will keep going, and going...
- 6 "A Current Affair" promises to cut down on yellow journalism. They're adding blue so it makes green. They'll call it Ziploc journalism.
- 7 Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley looked as comfortable together as a dog and a mace-toting mailman in their interview with Diane Sawyer.
- 8 Free Willy 2 - I didn't think Jason James Richter (that little whale-loving land lubber who makes Willy cry) could get more annoying than the original. I was wrong. I'd cry too if I had that little brat dragging me into a sequel.
- 9 Julia Roberts returns to rave reviews in "Something to Talk About." Critics call it her best since "Pretty Woman." That isn't saying much.
- 10 You thought I'd leave Hugh Grant off this list? Foolish kiddies. I think that incident was best summed up by Jay Leno: "What the hell were you thinking?"

Video made the radio star Soundtracks dominate summer playlists

By ADAM McHUGH

What do the songs "Ghostbusters," "Take My Breath Away" and "Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me, Kill Me" have in common?

All of them received much airplay in the summer months of 1984, 1986 and this year due in major part to the successful films they were featured in.

This summer was definitely soundtrack driven, as "Batman Forever," "Don Juan DeMarco" and "Clueless" all spawned major to moderate hits for artists U2 and Seal, Bryan Adams and Chicago natives Smoking Popes, respectively.

The "Batman Forever" soundtrack boasted a veritable cornucopia of alternative artists, including tracks from the Offspring and the Flaming Lips.

The soundtrack for "Batman Forever" saw producers opting for a more bang em' up sound than the previous two installments, which mainly used the original score by "The Simpsons" and "Darkman" composer Danny Elfman.

Disney's "Pocahontas" also created a major hit for Vanessa

Williams with "Color of the Wind." With hits by Williams, Elton John and Celine Dion, Disney has cemented its reputation as the motion picture soundtrack power of the 1990s.

While soundtracks dominated record sales charts off-and-on for much of the summer, it was a four-man band from South Carolina which consistently remained in the top ten on the pop albums charts.

When they came to Eastern last April, Hootie and the Blowfish were a little-known, even less listened-to band touring with Toad the Wet Sprocket.

However, with a combination of frat-rock style and solid, heart-felt lyrics from frontman Darius Rucker, the band saw amazing success this summer, coming up big with "Hold My Hand," "Let Her Cry" and "I Only Want to be With You."

Their Atlantic Records release "Cracked Rear View" has been on the charts for 56 weeks, moving in and out of the top spot several times this summer.

Another band which played at Eastern in 1993 is not seeing as much success as Hootie and the Blowfish, as Blind Melon's sophomore offering "Soup" is as plain as a cup of chicken broth. This album only confirms the plasticity of their unintelligible hit "No Rain" two years ago. It makes you wonder if people actually liked that song or simply became enthralled by the plight of that little bee girl.

For those reasons, The Verge gives Blind Melon both "Worst Album of the Summer" honors and the "Has Been de jour" award.

"Best Album of the Summer" goes to the "Batman Forever" soundtrack, as it featured an eclectic group of today's up-and-coming artists.

Finally, The Verge gives Alanis Morissette's "Jagged Little Pill" the "Breakthrough Album of the Summer" award, as her bitter and powerful "You Oughta Know" made ex-boyfriends cringe with lyrics like, "Everytime I scratch my nails down someone else's back I hope you feel it."

Ouch!

Editor's note: Music reviews of local bands can be seen in upcoming Verge editions. So watch for it!

Just what is this 'Q & A' anyway?

Greetings and salutations to the masses upon your return to this mecca of higher learning we call Eastern Illinois University.

As editor of On the Verge of the Weekend, I, Adam McHugh, would like to announce an addition to the pages of this publication.

"Q and A" will be a weekly fixture on page 2 which points out campus, national and international events and issues people are intimately chatting about that week in dormitories, the Student Government office and fine drinking establishments everywhere.

For those of you worried this new feature will mutate into previous years' "Talk is Cheap," I have this to say: "Fear not, little ones."

I want to promote a kinder, gentler gossip forum. Each week there will be a list of 10 events, issues and people who are making news - good or bad.

Make no mistake, campus and national evildoers will fear The Verge. "Q and A" will focus the spotlight on these people. But we will also applaud those random acts of kindness which make this politically correct world livable.

And let me be the first to say, welcome back, get to work and, most important, trust no one!
