New senate bylaw sparks conflict

by Michael Kuo

Recent controversy over a proposal to eliminate the student senate administrative assistant for collective bargaining position is due to a "desire to protect" the off-campus student housing association, Student Body President Terry Teele said.

Last Wednesday, the senate added to its bylaws an addition making the administrative assistant the chairman of the off-campus student housing association.

"The Student Senate feels the association is more important than any project we're working on, and we want to protect the organization," Teele said.

Senator Tom Flynn said, "I think they're trying to add those duties to the bylaws so those of us who want to get rid of the assistant's position will have difficulty."

Housing Committee Chairman Glenn Good said in order to give the association authority, it was necessary to "have this down in writing somewhere."

Flynn said, "My understanding is the executive's plan is to have the association on its own after a semester or two, so I don't see why the bylaws need to be changed."

However, Teele said in order to give the association momentum, it was necessary to give its leadership clear authority.

But, Teele said he was not concerned that the assistant's position may not exist next year.

By next fall, he said, he plans to have the association "on its own."

Teele said he will ask the senate this Wednesday to add a clause to the additions approved last week which states the assistant will only chair the association until the Spring 1983.

"We're going to start work on a proposal stating the association be an indirect organization of student government by the beginning of fall semester, 1983, and we'll write a constitution," Teele said.

"We made a commitment to do everything we could to make the assistant's position deserving of a salary for Bob Erio's term in office," Teele said.

Whether or not the senate decides to eliminate his position, Bob Erio will remain as Eastern's assistant for his full elected term, Teele said.

Proposal filed for inspection

by Gene O'Shea

The Charleston City Council voted Tuesday night to place on file for public inspection a proposal that would issue Charleston real estate developer John Young $2 million in industrial revenue bonds.

Young requested the bonds in order to construct a Wal-Mart store on the lot adjacent to the Eisner-Osco shopping center on Lincoln Avenue. Young owns the property.

Industrial revenue bonds carry a lower rate of interest for the holder and do not fluctuate with other market values. The bonds are tax exempt for the purchaser.

Randy Anfinson, owner of Unfinished Unfinished, 518 Sixth St., said issuing industrial revenue bonds was "giving subsidies to multi-million dollar corporations."

He called the bonds a "rip-off program of the public."

"Let's not, for God's sake, pay them (Wal-Mart) for coming into town," Anfinson said.

Bill Strong, owner of Benedict's Wellworth Store, 613 Monroe Ave., said, "Why would a company that has made $48 million in six months try to take $2 million from a small town like Charleston?"

Young, however, said, "The question here is whether or not to continue growth in Charleston."

Young added that industrial revenue bonds "do not raise taxes but lower them."

Joe Ethridge, a Lincoln Avenue merchant, said, "Ultimately, we the tax payers, are going to pay the bill."

Randy Laney, spokesman for the Wal-Mart corporation, said the company was "excited" about coming to Charleston.

"Our company has its roots in small communities," he added.

The city council also heard the results of a telephone survey sponsored by the Charleston Chamber of Commerce and conducted by the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program.

City Planner Larry Stoeber said the survey results indicated 52.17 percent of the people asked were not in favor of the use of tax-exempt bonds to finance the construction of a Wal-Mart store.

But Stoeber added the survey revealed that 81.5 percent of those asked do favor having a Wal-Mart store in Charleston.

Wayne Lanman, the only commissioner who voted not to table the proposal, said, "I think if Wal-Mart can make $47 million in six months it would benefit the community for them to build the store themselves."

Candidates for Attorney General discuss tax system

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of four stories on candidates for Illinois executive offices who appeared in Decatur over the weekend.)

by Linda Fraembs

Daily Eastern News correspondent

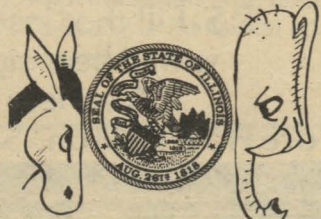

DECATUR—Illinois treasurer candidates Republican John Dailey and Democrat James Donnewald expressed their opinions on the state tax system and the treasurer's office Friday.

Dailey and Donnewald were questioned by a panel of three press representatives at a convention of the Illinois Press Association.

Some government officials, Donnewald said, wrongly assume that "a tax freeze is like apple pie and motherhood."

Donnewald said he would be reluctant to support a tax freeze because the people of Illinois are "morally and legally obligated" to care for the underprivileged as well as to provide funding for education.

'82 State Candidates

A closer look

"If I can be absolutely sure these groups and others won't be damaged by a tax freeze, then so be it," he said.

Although Dailey said the state should consider placing a ceiling on taxes, "I have never throughout the 14 months of this campaign talked about a tax freeze."

He added that he would not advocate such a freeze, but stressed that some tax reform other than just increasing taxes is needed.

"We can no longer just patch on Band-aids," Dailey said.

When considering where tax dollars should be spent, "we have to deal with the priorities," he stated. Dailey said the General Assembly should use care in deciding where tax money is needed the most.

Dailey said that if he is elected, he will work to make the state treasurer a more visible and important part of state government by "adding another dimension of responsibility" to the office.

"The treasurer can be more than just a cash manager," he said.

Dailey said the "involvement role" of the treasurer has become more important in recent years.

"Twenty years ago it was a mere patronage position," he added.

He said the state treasurer position needs to remain elective because "at least one financial officer who puts his name on that check must be separate from the governor."

If he is elected, Dailey said, he will not be afraid to speak out on issues and will "try to articulate positions that aren't universal."

Donnewald said his plans for office include expanding the state's link deposit program, in which money is deposited in small banks, which then can be used as funding for small businesses.

The link program is a way of "priming the pump to get the economy going again" by creating more jobs in Illinois, Donnewald said.

"I will expand the investment of Illinois money in Illinois jobs," he added.

However, Donnewald declined to give details on how he would expand the duties of the office past what they are now.

"I can't really answer that until I am elected and am in the office," he said.

Democrats ignore present woes

WASHINGTON—House Democrats are preparing a pre-election economic manifesto that looks past the nation's current woes and ignores past party calls for full employment. Instead, the thrust will be on long-term investments in economic growth and a call to rebuild the country's transportation and water systems, according to Democratic sources.

The report, which the House Democratic Caucus plans to release this weekend, stakes out a middle political ground on which party liberals and conservatives alike can stand for the November congressional elections, said the sources, who insisted that their names not be used.

Pilot made life or death choice

SPAIN—The pilot of a DC-10 jet that crashed in flames, leaving at least 50 dead, said Tuesday he made a life-or-death choice to abort his takeoff but isn't sure if he "killed people or saved a lot of people."

"I had to choose between trying to fly, knowing that we all might die, or trying to fly, knowing that we all might die, or trying to keep the plane on the ground to try to save lives," said Capt. Juan Perez, pilot of the jumbo jet chartered from the Madrid-based Spantax Airlines for a flight to New York.

State employees face layoffs

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois will start laying off a small number of state workers Wednesday because the largest public employee union has refused Gov. James R. Thompson's proposal that its members skip five days' pay, administration officials say.

"We had to go through with the process. We can't delay it," Thompson spokesman David Fields said Tuesday.

The state also will start sending out notices of further, and more massive, job cuts next month, Fields said.

Ex-film star Princess Grace dies from injuries suffered in crash

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP)—Princess Grace, who gave up her career as Oscar-winning film star Grace Kelly for a storybook marriage to Prince Rainier of Monaco, died Tuesday night of injuries suffered in an auto accident. She was 52.

The official Monaco government press service announced in a statement from the palace that Princess Grace died of "an intra-cerebral vascular hemorrhage."

On Monday, it had been announced that she had suffered a broken leg, coming down from the French town of La Turbie. Her younger daughter, Princess Stephanie, was also in the car, which plunged 120 feet off the road, but Stephanie escaped with minor injuries.

The official statement said that Princess Grace's health "deteriorated during the night" and on Tuesday.

"At the end of the day all therapeutic possibilities had been exceeded, and her Serene Highness The Princess Grace died," it concluded.

Princess Grace, daughter of a Philadelphia bricklayer-turned-millionaire, made just 11 movies before she gave up her acting career in 1956 to marry Monaco's Prince Rainier and move to the small seaside principality wedged between the French and Italian Rivas.

She won an Academy Award as best actress in 1955 for "The Country Girl" in which she starred with Bing Crosby.

She was also a favorite of director Alfred Hitchcock, who preferred statuesque blondes for his movies. She appeared in three of his films—"To Catch a Thief" with Cary Grant, "Dial M for Murder," with Robert Cummings and "Rear Window," with James Stewart.

Bomb kills Lebanon president

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—President-elect Bashir Gemayel was killed Tuesday in a bomb blast that shattered his Christian Phalange Party headquarters in east Beirut.

Earlier reports had said Gemayel survived, but eight of his party members perished and at least 50 others were wounded.

The sources said Gemayel's body was found in the rubble of the building on Saissine Square a few hours after the explosion at 9 a.m. CDT. It occurred as the 34-year-old president-elect prepared to address a rally of 400 of his followers.

The Phalange Party's radio station had reported earlier that Gemayel survived unscathed and walked away from the rubble. It said cheers went up from a crowd in the Christian neighborhood, church bells rang and Phalangist militiamen fired their guns to celebrate the report that Gemayel had survived. It even attributed a quote to the president-elect, reporting he said, "I'm safe. Thank God this incident is past."

The radio station went off the air several hours as reports raced through the war-ravaged city that the president-elect was dead.

UB updates 'bug stuff'

by James Talley

What has four wheels, a windshield and any number of arms and legs? A car stuffed full of people.

In celebration of the Union's 25th anniversary, the University Board sponsored a "Volkswagen Stuffing Contest" Tuesday to commemorate the time period of 1962 to 1966 in the Union's history.

The idea of sponsoring a car-stuffing contest, a very popular tradition with the college campus during the 60s, was initiated by Assistant Student Activities Director Booker T. Suggs.

A five-minute time limit was allotted to the participating groups. A 1966 Volkswagen was brought over from a local salvage yard and the windows were removed for safety.

First prize was claimed by Sigma Kappa sorority with a total of 23 women in the car. The winners and runners-up received coupons for free food from Hardee's On Campus.

Michele Maier, a Sigma Kappa member said, "It's a lot of fun and I'm having a great time."

Sigma Chi member Tim Lavert said his reason for submitting to being squished was for "publicity and laughs," before he entered the car. Afterwards, however, he said, "not worth it, but lots of fun!"

In addition to Greek organizations, residents of Weller Hall and Stevenson Tower showed up for the fun.

Five females and 16 males from Weller Hall were able to fit in the Volkswagen.

Class controversy sparks debate

by Mary Holland

Controversy dominated Tuesday's Council on Teacher Education meeting as physical education department members and their dean disagreed over faculty's rights to decide curriculum matters.

The council decided in favor of the department, as they voted unanimously with one abstention to require all physical education majors seeking teacher certification in grades six through 12 to take a modern dance class, Physical Education 2230 "Techniques and Theory of Modern Dance."

However, the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation believes the class should not be required for students seeking teacher's certification in grades six through 12.

"This is a sad day for all PE majors," Dean of the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Walter Lowell said after the vote.

The vote was a culmination of a controversy that began last April when senior physical education major Lori Edwards wrote a letter to The Daily Eastern News stating that women were being discriminated against because they were required to take the modern dance class, while men were not.

Pat Flaughner of the physical education department said, "The issue is whether a department should be required to determine their own curriculum."

However, Lowell said his private conversations with students indicated that they did not want or need the class.

"I have always supported my faculty. I would like to support my faculty always and continuously," Lowell said. "But it is my sincere belief that students do not want this course...and that they should be allowed some other avenue."

Yet, department members at the meeting said their departmental curriculum committee overwhelmingly voted to require the class for both men and women. They said their vote was continuously overruled by Lowell and the school's curriculum committee.

"Why should a faculty, a department of professional faculty, spend so many hours in deliberation, if their ultimate decision does not count? This is demoralizing to the faculty and debilitating to the democratic process," Flaughner said.

Lowell responded by saying the interest of the students take precedence over the rights of the faculty.

"If this case boils down to what is good for the students and what are the rights of the faculty, I would like to remind each and every one sitting here, that without students in the classroom, we would not have a job at Eastern Illinois University," Lowell said.

Throughout the meeting, department members maintained that the class had an aesthetic value that justified keeping it as a requirement.

Faculty member Larry Ankenbrand said, "When you get depressed and have those downers, sign up for a modern dance class and see if you don't feel better."

One COTE member, Jill Nilsen, said she was hearing more emotionalism than concrete reason at the meeting for keeping or not keeping the class as a requirement. "I'm not sure that this matter of principle belongs here," she said.

After the meeting, Lowell said he will attempt to have the council's decision repealed. "I'm going to the vice president and the president and ask them to ignore this decision and take mine."

Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives said the council's action is final unless Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin decides to veto the decision. However, Rives said Lowell can ask the president to reconsider the action.

Court date set for five students

Five Eastern students who were charged Thursday with the theft of an American flag will appear in Coles County Circuit Court Thursday.

The students, Mark Mungai, Lane Gredzieleski, Michael G. Willard, Sharon Karmis and George Karmis were arrested Sept. 6 for allegedly stealing an American flag belonging to the Paul McVey Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1592.

Coles County Assistant State's Attorney Janett Winter-Black said, "We (the defendants and I) have discussed a possible plea agreement that will be proposed to the judge hearing the case. Whether or not the proposal will be accepted is up to the judge," she added.

Winter-Black said she was not at liberty to discuss the details of the possible plea arrangement.

Student Senate to debate probation policy change

by Michael Kuo

A proposal which would change Eastern's current academic probation policy will be discussed by the Student Senate Wednesday.

A proposal by Susan Grah, Council on Academic Affairs student member, would allow students with 15 semester hours or fewer to maintain a 1.70 grade point average, while students who had completed 16 to 30 hours would need to maintain a GPA of at least 1.85. All other students would be required to maintain a 2.0.

Last Wednesday, the senate voted that the Student Senate Academic Affairs Committee study the proposal.

Student Body President Terry Teelé

said he will request the senate make a recommendation on the proposal this week.

In other business, the senate will discuss a proposal to eliminate the position of the administrative assistant for collective bargaining, Student Senate Speaker Terese Lang said.

In addition, Teelé said he will announce his appointment of Bob Erio, administrative assistant for collective bargaining, as the student government representative to the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Student Senate will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Senate should drop executive office

A proposal which could eliminate the administrative assistant for collective bargaining office is again being considered by the Student Senate. And this time, the senate should finally drop the position.

Last spring, Student Senator Dianne Darran made a proposal to eliminate this executive office position. However, the senate voted to table the proposition until this fall.

In addition, the senate voted just last fall to expand the assistant's duties to make the job more important in student government. The current supposed need for another revision in the assistant's duties points out that the duties are still not clearly defined.

Currently, this executive officer's main responsibility is attending all faculty contract negotiations during the summer months.

According to senate bylaws, the duties of the assistant are also to act as an assistant to the student body president and officially represent the president at any formal function or meeting if the president or executive vice president are unable to attend.

Other duties include chairing executive commissions, serving as coordinator for all special projects undertaken by student government. In addition, the senate has received a proposal to make this executive officer head of the student-tenant union.

Editorial

The Student Senate should consider eliminating the position because it appears the position has become a catch-all for duties the other student government members do not want. In addition, any other responsibilities the job holds now could be assumed by student senators.

In addition, special projects could be assigned to the current senate committees or additional ad-hoc committees with separate could be formed.

Student representation at faculty contract negotiations could be divided among the other four student government executive officers. The negotiations take place every three years, so delegating responsibility would not be too time-consuming for the officers.

Eliminating a paid student government executive officer position would save student money which could be used in other areas more practical and beneficial to students.

The Student Senate needs to give careful and thoughtful consideration to eliminating the administrative assistant for collective bargaining position.

The issue of dropping the office has continued for too long and the decision to eliminate the position would be a wise one.

IGLP proposal unfairly classifies loan applicants

If a proposed change in the Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program is accepted, students will have to be at least 23 years old to qualify as independents for student loans.

If you're younger than 23, the IGLP wants to classify you as a dependent. And dependents already have a tough time qualifying for student loans.

Currently, to qualify as an independent, a student must answer "no" to three questions on a financial aid form for two consecutive years.

The questions deal with parental support, which we believe is a good way to measure how much financial aid a student needs.

But if the proposal is accepted, those three questions will be eliminated, and students' financial needs will be determined, in part, by their age.

We believe such a criterion is unfair to the students who will be stuck between a rock and a park bench. How can students' ages possibly justify their financial status?

Also, there are a few 23-year-old undergraduates on this campus compared to the number of students younger than 23 who are in need of financial aid.

It appears as if the proposal would be saving money for the IGLP—money that plenty of students could use.

But wait, don't bail out yet...wait a couple of months. The federal government is attempting to help "dependent" students by providing a new loan that parents would have to begin paying back after 60 days.

The Parental Loan for Undergraduate Students offers a $3,000 loan to parents. But we think many students won't be able to talk their parents into taking out this loan, which has a 14 percent interest rate.

The PLUS idea is okay for the parents who can afford the immediate pay-back schedule. But the students who don't have financially capable parents seem to be getting the greasy end of a real short stick.

While you sit with your calculator trying to make the negatives come out positives, we think a possible, more acceptable route for the IGLP to take is to make the three questions a bit stiffer.

Major changes show keen self-perception

The word "major" seems to have a different meaning for everyone. And until college, the word "major" to me, was either an adjective describing something of great significance or a military title preceding Margaret Houlihan's name.

However, at this point in many students' college careers, the word "major" has become synonymous with change, uncertainty and overall indifference.

Freshman year began with confidence. A student signed up for his first semester classes with certainty. He wanted to become a nuclear physicist and his decision was final.

He planned to take the required courses for his major, graduate in four years, get a decent-paying job, raise a family with three children (maybe a dog) and live happily ever after.

He never thought twice about his plan.

But, by second semester sophomore year, classes became a little more difficult than he expected. Maybe nuclear science was not for him...he always did like psychology...

Sound familiar? It should. According to Vice President of Student Affairs Glenn Williams, many students change their majors from "dip to bop to bodley to dip." Williams said a little more than two-thirds of college students change their majors at one point in the course of their four-year education.

And why can't we decide upon one major from the beginning? It would save money, time, effort and most of all—frustration.

Insight/Outlook

Denise Skowron

What's worse is parents, faculty and the few non-major-changing students who just don't seem to understand. They believe that changing a major indicates lack of self-direction, poor career preparation and maybe even weakness of character.

That's all wrong. It actually indicates the opposite. Changing one's major, not repeatedly, but say, once, demonstrates a student's keen perception that he or she does not belong in a particular field. Having the courage to risk losing academic credit hours as well as money already invested is a quality to be respected—not a vice to be looked down upon.

I am not advocating that everyone, right now, head toward the advisement center and apply for a change of major. But if you already have or are considering a change, it doesn't mean you are unsure of yourself. It takes self assurance to make a change as major as one's career.

Faculty evaluations

Senate requests research

By Keith Clark
The Faculty Senate voted Tuesday to request that research be done on the reliability and validity of student evaluations of faculty.
The request will be sent to Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives.
Last week, it was reported in The Daily Eastern News that the request had already been approved, but that report was incorrect. Instead, the senate voted last week to table the motion for further discussion.
William Roberts of the psychology department spoke briefly to the senate about the evaluations, emphasizing the point that there are "grounds for concern over the issue."
Roberts added that a "purpose needs to be defined" concerning the evaluations.
Senator Joe Heumann suggested that students write evaluations in essay form.

Roberts agreed that essay evaluations would aid teachers in personal improvement, but said the use of personal comments would be difficult to implement into a committee's evaluation of an instructor.
He added that reading every essay evaluation would be difficult because of the time factor involved.
Roberts said he supports the motion of sending the matter to Rives for study because he is not sure what faculty evaluations accomplish.
Senator John LeDuc questioned whether students realize the importance of the evaluations.
LeDuc said he was aware of a faculty member who decided to let students take evaluations home so they could think more about their answers before completing the forms.

Woodyard urges student voting

by Mary Hendricks
"You are the most powerful political force in this country," State Rep. Harry "Babe" Woodyard (R-Chrisman) told students Monday night.
Woodyard spoke at a meeting of the College Republicans.
Woodyard, who is serving his second term as state representative in the 106th district, was recently named the outstanding state legislator by the Illinois Junior College Association.
One of the biggest problems facing Illinois today is voting apathy, he said. He is especially concerned about getting more students registered to vote.
"From 1968 to the present, voters in Illinois have the average drop-off rate in a non-presidential election of 1.4 million voters," Woodyard said.
"We need to develop some enthusiasm or at least get these people to the polls," Woodyard said to the group of about 15 College Republicans.

Senior citizens, for example, can come to the Legislature and get anything they want simply because they vote, he added. Senior citizens have "political clout."
Young people would have clout also if they would vote and "pull together" as a group, Woodyard said.
By pulling together as a group, there are many things students could accomplish, Woodyard said.
The tuition hike is an issue which concerns most college students and they should go as a group and present their views to the Legislature, he said.
College students have just as much political voice as anyone else, he added.
"All you have to do is take the first step and become a registered voter," Woodyard said.

events before bill's defeat

by James Talley

Members of the Grass Roots Group of Second Class Citizens, an Equal Rights Amendment support group, will visit campus Thursday for a public viewing of a news coverage videotape of their involvement in Springfield.

Bernice Carroll, a GRGSCC member, said she and "a few other members" will visit Eastern to "inform and clear up some of the misunderstandings" related to the events which occurred in Springfield when ERA was voted on and defeated in the Illinois legislature.

During the public meeting, Carroll said, GRGSCC members will show

Paper recycling project begins

by Hank Price

Eastern students will be able to discard old newspapers and magazines when Eastern's Project Recycle kicks off this week.

Bob Erio, administrative assistant for collective bargaining, said newspapers and magazines can be dropped off behind the Computer Services Building or Buzzard Building.

All papers must be bundled by either being tied with string or put in a sack. No loose papers will be accepted, he said.

During three days in October, a semitrailer also will be located on campus to deposit papers, Erio said. The dates when the semitrailer will be on campus have not been set.

Also, during those three days, the semitrailer will be used to pick up papers upon request in the Charleston area, which will give residents in the community an opportunity to drop off their discarded paper, Erio said.

"The paper drive is a good way for students and citizens of Charleston to put to use—by recycling—old, discarded paper which otherwise would have been thrown out," Erio said.

This semester's Project Recycle will end Dec. 18. Money made from the paper drive will help pay for cost and storage of the paper and also for expansion of future paper drives, he added.

how they dramatized the struggle for equal rights by using chains as symbols of the inequalities women suffer.

Carroll added they intend to demonstrate that women care intensely about what has been going on and are willing to undertake actions such as the ones used in Springfield to reach their goals.

"Under certain circumstances where it is needed, it may be necessary to break some laws," Carroll said. "Not reckless law breaking, but actions that are chosen for certain symbolic reasons, such as members of the group writing the names of ERA opponents in blood on the marble floors of the state capital building."

Carroll said the group originated when a few friends agreed that something more needed to be done than what was presently being done by the National Organization for Women and other women's groups.

In the future, the GRGSCC's goal is to elect political leaders who will be more supportive of legislation for women's rights.

The group's presentation is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Charleston-Mattoon Room of the Union addition.

New carpeting for Booth Library, a clothes dryer exhaust system for Thomas and Taylor halls and data processing equipment are among items for Eastern the Board of Governors will take action on at their meeting Wednesday and Thursday.

Other items include a replacement cooling tower for Blair Hall, a dual storage controller, a Xerox copier and a station wagon, Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said.

The BOG will decide whether to approve funds for each of these items Thursday.

Eastern will request new carpeting for the periodicals section of Booth Library and also will request approval to lease a Xerox copier for the library to be used by faculty, staff and students.

Funds for a dual-storage controller, dual-density disk and a line printer will be requested for Eastern's computer services. The equipment is expected to expand the storage capabilities of the present system and to print administrative reports and records.

The clothes dryer exhaust system is needed in Thomas and Taylor halls to improve fire safety and increase the efficiency of the dryers.

Replacement of the cooling tower near Blair Hall is necessary due to the deterioration of the present tower which was installed in 1966.

The trade-in of a station wagon is being requested for staff use in the Senior Nutrition Program.

In other business, Marvin will request approval of Eastern's 1983-1984 university calendar.

Marvin also will report to the BOG on his planned trip to Poland in October and the dedication of the Tarble Arts Center scheduled for later this month.

In systemwide business, Executive Director Donald Walters will recommend that the BOG approve fiscal year 1983 budgets for each of the five universities that are controlled by the BOG.

The BOG will meet for an executive session on Wednesday and a public meeting on Thursday at Northeastern Illinois University in Chicago.

Debate team offers styles

by Paul L. Smith

Eastern's debate team is offering two styles of debate this year and will travel Friday to its first meet of the season at Western Illinois University.

Team coach Mike Shelton said the team is offering two debate formats for students this year.

The first tournament debates will be in the more traditional National Debate Tournament style, while a new debate format also is being offered as an option for students with less time or background in the sport, he said.

"We will provide the opportunity for those students (with less time or background) to participate in the new Cross Examination Debate Association style debate," Shelton explained.

The CEDA format sparked controversy last year when some team members opposed a proposal to make CEDA the team's sole debate style. Several members threatened to transfer to other schools if the format was adopted.

However, Shelton said both styles will be offered and the team is "simply offering CEDA as an option for people who are interested in that format."

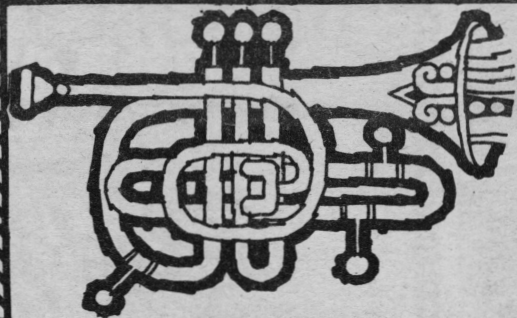

The difference between the two styles, Shelton said, is chiefly that they "employ different topics."

"Generally, the topics in national tournament style debates are policy questions such as 'such and such action should take place.' Topics in CEDA are primarily questions of value—not a discussion of specific questions. There is also a difference in presentation style," Shelton said.

"CEDA tends to put more emphasis on strictly oratorical skills, while traditional debate places more emphasis on argumentation skills and techniques."

The national topic for CEDA tournament debates has not been announced yet, so those tournaments will not begin until later next month, Shelton said.

He said this year's national debate topic, chosen earlier this year through a vote of participating universities, is "All United States military intervention into the internal affairs of any foreign nation or nations in the Western Hemisphere should be prohibited."

Two UB events canceled

by Terry Moore

A period fashion show and a lecture by "E.T." co-star Robert Macnaughton scheduled for this month by the University Board have been canceled, UB members learned at a meeting Tuesday.

The fashion show was scheduled for Thursday but had to be canceled due to a lack of funding from Union programming, Human Potential committee coordinator LaJoyce Hunter said. The show was to be part of the 25th anniversary celebration of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Robert Macnaughton's Sept. 21 lecture has been canceled because he recently became ill and was hospitalized, resulting in the cancellation of his entire college lecture tour, lectures committee coordinator Greg Zaccagni told UB members. That committee will

Center slates skills seminars

Becky Lawson

Effective time management and good study skills are qualities many college students have not mastered and the Counseling Center is offering two seminars geared to improve both skills.

"It is a basic human need to have play time," counselor Genie Lenihan said. Getting "play time" is one of the aims of the life skills seminar, "Time Management," scheduled for Wednesday. The seminar's aim, she added, is to help students use their time more efficiently.

A workshop, scheduled for the same day, is titled "New Ways to Hit the Books" and will be directed toward dealing with improving study skills.

The workshop will cover listening, note-taking, outlining, managing time and test-taking techniques, she added.

Both the seminar and the workshop have been scheduled during the beginning of the year, Lenihan said, because students should brush up on these skills now and not after midterm.

The time management seminar is slated for noon Wednesday in the Charleston-Mattoon and Greenup rooms of the Union addition.

The workshop, "New Ways to Hit the Books," is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Wednesday and Sept. 22 in the Counseling Center.

Road work end may be in sight

Ninth Street construction may be finished "within a week," Commissioner Wayne Lanman said at the Tuesday night Charleston City Council meeting.

Officials for Huckaba and Sons Construction Co., the company contracted for the project, said they expect to finish the project within a week, pending good weather.

In other business, the council decided to consider the possibility of adding lanes for bicycles on Ninth and Tenth Streets, north of Lincoln Avenue.

A letter was submitted by citizens concerning the safety of school children who travel on Ninth and Tenth Streets, Commissioner Olga Durham said.

The citizens said their children "need the added protection of bike lanes," Durham said.

The council considered the possibility of adding bike lanes to Ninth and Tenth Streets in 1978, but took no action towards construction.

"I'd look into it again," Commissioner John Beusch said. "I think there are problems."

attempt to book another lecturer for a later date, Zaccagni added.

In other business, special events coordinator Carol Poppeck announced that the committee and Busch beer will sponsor a tug-of-war open to any Eastern club or organization at 4 p.m. Oct. 5 on the library quad.

The videotape committee is showing tapes this week in the video lounge in the Union as part of the anniversary celebration. The tapes, including the Woodstock concert and movies such as "Animal House," reflect time periods in conjunction with Union's anniversary.

Videotape committee coordinator Dave Fike said the committee is currently waiting for other ordered tapes to arrive from New York so it can start a regular video programming schedule.

In final business, UB members formally approved Tina Dvorak as the new communications coordinator. Dvorak was selected from applicants for that position Friday by a six-member panel of UB members including Steven E. Jones, UB chairman, and Cheryle Petrik, vice chairman.

Coles County United Way sets goal of $65,000 for year's drive

by Matthew Krasnowski

The Eastern Coles County United Way has set a goal of $65,000 for this year's fund drive.

United Way President Dave Riddle said the organization would like to raise $12,000 in contributions from Eastern employees, faculty and students. Last year, $11,000 was collected from Eastern.

"The remainder we will collect from local businesses and industry employees in local communities," he added.

"Students can help, if not by contributing money, through volunteer work for some of the charities," Riddle said.

The United Way distributes money to charities such as Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Charleston Area Senior Activities, Help Line, Coles County Task Force against Domestic Violence and Coles County Women Against Rape, he said.

"The official drive will last until the end of November," Riddle said. "But we get contributions usually until the end of the year."

"Last year our goal was $60,000, which we beat with the help of the Linder Trust fund," Riddle said. "The trust fund is administered through the Charleston National Bank which meets the contributions which have been collected up to that time," he added. "This year we are uncertain if we'll get that kind of help."

Riddle said a percentage of the contributions are used by the United Way to cover expenses, including costs for an audit, bookkeeping, insurance, campaign materials and postage.

The group also gives 1 percent of its contributions to the National United Way, which is used for advertising and other needs, he said.

The organization has received about $1,000 at this time, Riddle said. "But it is early. We hope to make a dent in the goal by the end of the month."

"STUDENTS PROGRAMMING FOR STUDENTS"

Appearing Tomorrow . . .

Chicago City Ballet

by Maggie Kennedy

Eastern will host The Chicago City Ballet Thursday, Sept. 16, when they perform in the Dvorak Hall as part of their tour through central and southern Illinois, according to Diane Capranica, UB Performing Arts Coordinator.

Capranica said two performances will be held: a children's matinee at 1:00 p.m. and an 8:00 p.m. performance open to students and the general public.

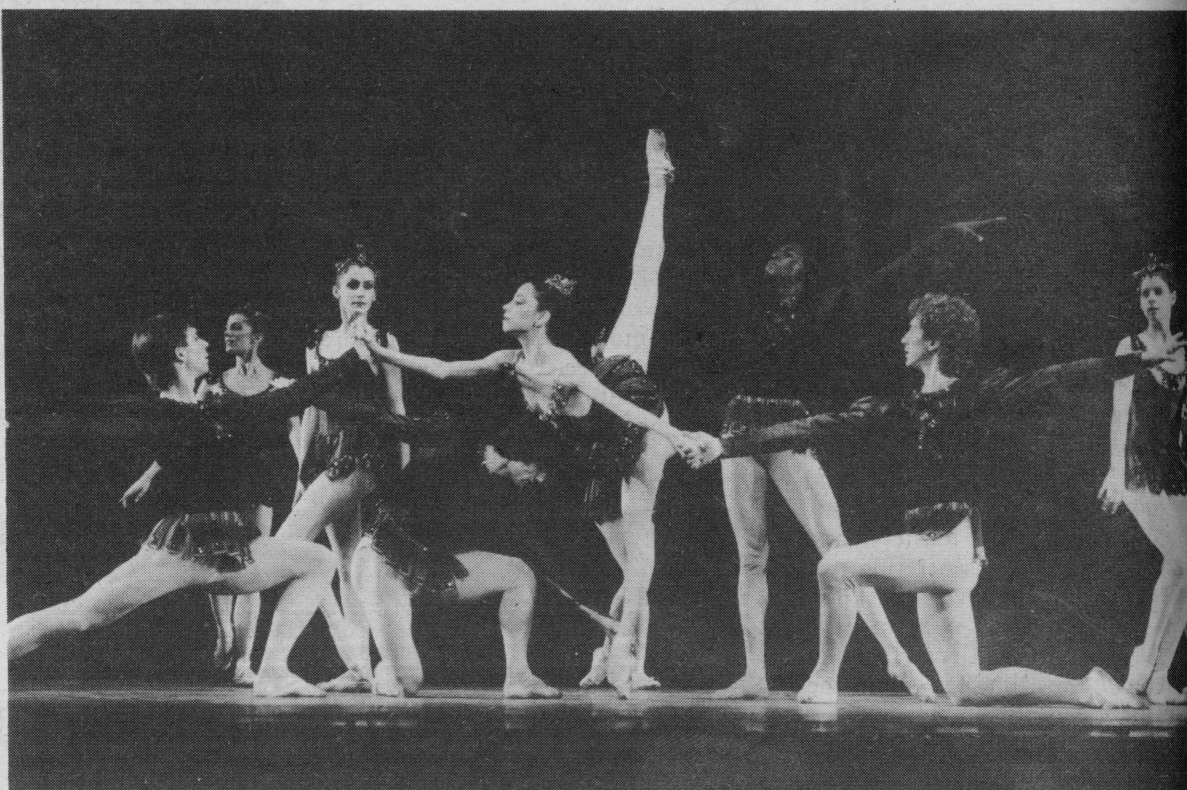

The program will contain performances by a list of excellent dancers and will include musical works by Balanchine, Robbins and Mejia.

The Chicago City Ballet was originally established in 1974 as the Ballet School of the Lyric Opera of Chicago. They separated from the Opera in December, 1979, and officially became The Chicago City Ballet.

The company, under the direction of Maria Tallchief, America's first prima ballerina, has established itself in the dance community and was recently invited to dance at Sadlers Wells Theatre in London for two weeks in May, 1982.

Admission is free to EIU students and $1.25 to the general public.

Anyone showing a program from The Chicago City Ballet when purchasing a ticket for the Ballet Metropolitan on September 29 will receive twenty percent off the ticket price.

In a scene from Balanchine's "Rubies," the Chicago City Ballet corps exhibits the form which has established them as a fine showcase for the famed choreographer's work. The ballet, taken from the full-length "Jewels" is danced to music by Igor Stravinsky.

Chariots of Fire

by Suzie Newkirk

"Chariots of Fire," the exhilarating, true story about the 1924 Paris Olympics and winner of four Academy Awards, will be shown on Friday, Sept. 17 at 6:30 and 9:00 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 19 at 2:00 p.m. in the University Grand Ballroom.

"Chariots of Fire" is a "gutsy, emotional movie about what it really takes to be a hero," says Rona Barrett of the Today Show.

The contenders are two British runners with totally different psychological and emotional reasons compelling them to win. One, a Jewish student, is driven to excel as a means of disproving the anti-Semitic sentiments he encountered at college. The other, a deeply religious Scotsman, believes his athletic achievements pay tribute to God.

This compelling film won four Academy Awards including: Best Picture, Best Original Screenplay, Best Original Score, and Best Costume Design.

Don't miss this exceptional film — it's brought to you by the University Board's Movie Committee.

MASH 4077 To Be Shown

by Toya Teat

MASH, the movie, will be shown Wednesday, Sept. 15 in the Grand Ballroom.

The famous surgical staff unit MASH 4077 faces the Korean War problems with comedy, laughter and fun. Their pranks range from exposing a straightlaced major while she takes her daily shower to hosting the funniest football game ever played. MASH stands as the most comical war series ever made.

This two-hour movie will inspire you. It will make you laugh and it will fill your heart with joy. Admission is $1.25.

Macnaughton Cancelled

The Robert Macnaughton lecture scheduled for Tuesday evening, September 21, in the Union Ballroom, has been cancelled, according to Greg Zaccagni, UB Lecture Committee Coordinator.

Macnaughton was hospitalized earlier this week and will be unable to appear as scheduled.

Greg Zaccagni later stated that the lecture will not be rescheduled in the future.

Progressive Country

Whiskey Jack, a progressive country band, has been scheduled to appear Sunday, Sept. 19 from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. in the Library Quad, according to Bruce Quihlan.

In case of rain the performance will take place in the Union Grand Ballroom from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. Admission is free — plan to attend.

Rally boosts spikers to sixth straight win

by Susan McCann

TERRE HAUTE—Eastern's volleyball squad rode the crest of a third-game rally to a four-game victory Tuesday over Indiana State University. The Panther spikers recorded the triumph by winning the first two games by 15-8 and 15-3 scores, and taking the fourth game 15-7.

Although the Eastern spikers dropped the momentum-turning third game 15-10, they had trailed by 12-2 and 14-4 margins.

But the Panthers came back with six straight tallies, just as they have rallied from opening-game defeats for three of their six victories.

"We won two games and we really let down," Panther coach Carol Gruber said, but "the group of kids I've got really pulls together when the going gets tough."

"We kept that high from the comeback in the third game," she added. "We knew if we wanted to go home after four games we were going to have to play good ball."

Her players responded with a decisive 15-7 victory in the match's final game, although the Lady Panthers fell behind 2-0 before Sycamore Julie Thomas' error put Eastern on the board.

Stacy Cook then notched a solo block of Indiana State's 6-foot-2 Lori Fishburn to pull the Panthers back into battle.

Cook killed her next offering, which put the spikers on top to stay. Eastern moved out to an 8-2 lead on two tallies with Rhonda Morel serving and four service points by Donna Uhler.

The Sycamores managed to pull within 8-4, but Eastern again forged ahead and grabbed a 12-4 lead when Bonnie Fisk blocked ISU's Kelly Denon's spike.

Morel scored the final Panther point on a spike that landed just inside the baseline, sending Eastern home with a 6-1 record and a six-game winning streak.

The victory upped Eastern's Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference mark to 4-1, while Indiana State fell to 0-1 in the league and 5-1 for the season.

"There were some wonderful individual efforts on the court tonight," Gruber said. "There were some excellent defensive digs and some excellent solo blocks."

"We had a little trouble blocking their hits early in the match," she said. "They were hitting away from the net and we had to block late. But we finally were able to adjust."

Cook almost single-handedly iced the second-game win with three solo blocks of Sycamore spikes, scoring the Panthers' final three points.

Offensively, Cook and Uhler scored 13 kills each, with senior Cathy Dolan adding nine kills in only 18 attempts.

Junior Gretchen Braker saw her first action of the young season, starting the match in place of Kathy Briggs.

For their next match, the Lady Panthers drew Southern Illinois University-Carbondale for the first round of Friday and Saturday's Saluki Classic.

Gruber said the teams represented there will be tougher opponents than any squad her players have met this season. But she added that her spikers have gained valuable experience in their first seven contests.

"The teams we've played have been good, solid Division I programs," Gruber said. "We've been fortunate to have excellent early matches to build confidence and to learn what we can do."

"They (the Panthers) are continuing to learn from their mistakes and continuing to gain experience playing together to know what their teammates are going to do on the court," Gruber said.

Lady Panther netters post third consecutive defeat

by Scott Mountford

Eastern's women's tennis team dropped its third consecutive match Tuesday, losing its home-opener to a quick Illinois State squad 6-3 at Weller courts.

The Panthers posted two singles victories and notched one doubles win.

Patty Kearns, a freshman from Palatine playing at the No. 3 singles position, needed three sets to dump her Redbird opponent and registered a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory.

However, although the Redbirds tallied the team victory, Kearns said she felt satisfied that Eastern turned in a respectable performance against a traditionally sound Illinois State tennis program.

"We really didn't know what to expect," Kearns said. "But we did have a couple real close matches."

Nancy Abney, at the No. 5 spot, recorded the other Panther singles victory.

Eastern's No. 1 singles player, Kristen Peterson, dropped a close decision to the Redbird's Jackie Brenne by the score of 7-5, 7-5.

Sally Stout, at No. 2 singles for the Panthers, also played a close match but came up without a victory. "We felt like we were pretty evenly matched," Stout said. "But we all had confidence that we could take the match."

Physical plant schedules facelift for woodchip trail

by Kirby Flowers

Students who are accustomed to taking their daily jog on Eastern's woodchip trail may have been surprised this week to find major renovations to the two-mile course.

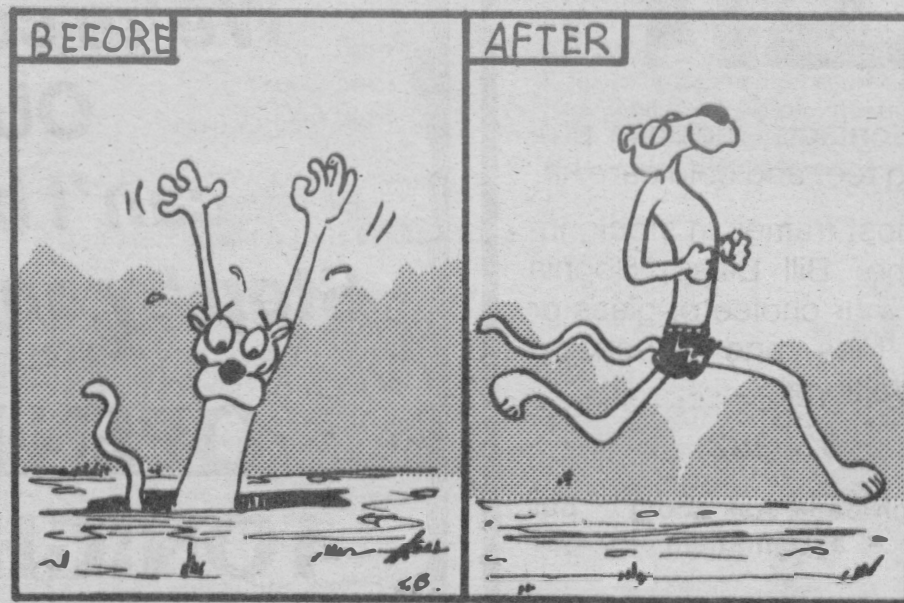

After two years of service to Eastern students and faculty, the trail, which is used by about 400 runners per day, is being renovated by physical plant workers.

Tom Woodall, the trail's founder, said the path was becoming overgrown with grass and unsafe for joggers. As a result, workers began to resurface the path last week.

"Two years ago I dreamed up the idea of a woodchip trail," Woodall said. "And at the time we didn't realize the wear and tear the weather would cause on the trail. Thus the trail has become overgrown and unfit for use."

Woodall and local volunteers put the chips on top of the path because they felt the rain and snow would not wash them away. But the unpredictable midwestern weather has washed most of the chips from the course, he said.

"The rundown of the trail is in no way attributed to the physical plant workers," Woodall added. "They have volunteered their services to help on the path as an extra duty and are in no way responsible for the maintenance of woodchip."

Woodall said the trail's poor condition was due mainly to the way it was built two years ago.

Woodall said the only way to stop grass from growing up the middle of the path would be to use a chemical method which requires more money than Woodall can receive.

"In order to stop grass from growing up through the chips, we must put some type of a chemical underneath the path," Woodall said. "Unfortunately we have no funds to do this so we will probably have to do the course over in two more years."

Woodall said physical plant workers will mix the chips together with the soil, which may help retain the woodchips.

"The reason I thought of the trail was to give the community and the students a place to get back to nature while keeping their bodies fit and healthy," Woodall added.

The course provides the campus and community with an alternative to the track surfaces located at O'Brien Stadium and Lantz Fieldhouse. In addition, the trail saves wear on the university track.

Woodall said he is not certain when the renovations will be completed. However, he said he hopes the trail will be completed before winter.

Although workers are renovating the trail, the two-mile course will remain the same. Woodall said the major changes will be adding new chips and smoothing out a few holes.

Golfers fair well despite first loss

by Scott Mountford

Although the University of Illinois turned back Eastern's golf team in its season opener Monday, Panther coach Kevin Anglin said his team played much better than it did last year.

Illinois coach Ed Beard agreed and said, "Eastern's golf team is much improved over last year. They really impressed me."

Anglin attributed the 442-473 defeat Monday to his squad's poor putting, but he said he expected it because the team was only able to get in three days of practice before the match.

"The putting should come along with the more we play, and with our busy schedule we should be right in there," Anglin said.

Team captain senior Kevin Strothmann lead the Panthers by shooting a three-under-par 74.

"Kevin has consistently been shooting 74s," Anglin said, "and if he can continue to do this for the rest of the season, he'll have an outstanding year."

Mike Wendlant followed Strothmann with a 78, with Jay Lavick firing a 79, just two shots over par. Ronald Huffman finished with an 80 and Mark Ferris and Dave Ransom tied with 81s.

Jim Jessen's 83 and an 85 by Doug Wilmert rounded out the Panther scoring.

Eastern's next outing will be Thursday at Indiana Central. There will be 19 teams competing at the meet, including golf stronghold University of Louisville.

Meetings slated

Eastern's women's and men's track teams have slated organizational meetings for any interested students this week at the Lantz Building.

Women's coach John Craft will meet with prospective women runners at 7 p.m. Wednesday in room 304, while men's coach Neil Moore will meet with the men 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lantz lounge next to the pool.

Scoreboard

Scoreboard is published on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. All results should be phoned in or delivered to the sports desk by 2 p.m. one day prior to publication.

Cardinals beat Phils; hold top spot

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Darrell Porter's two-run homer in the fourth inning and the combined five-hit pitching of John Stuper and Bruce Sutter carried St. Louis to a 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night and sent the Cardinals back into first place in the National League East.

The Phillies had taken over the lead Monday night behind Steve Carlton's 20th victory of the season. With the win, the Cards hold first place by one-half game.

Stuper, 7-6, was knocked out in the eighth after pinch-hitter Bob Molinaro walked with one out and advanced to second on Pete Rose's single, the fourth hit of the game. Reliever Bruce Sutter gave up an infield hit to Gary Matthews to load the bases.

But he got Mike Schmidt to bounce back to the mound into an inning-ending double play and finished up to record his league leading 32nd save.

Mike Krukow, 12-10, who had two of Philadelphia's five hits, allowed seven hits in 7 1-3 innings.
