50s rocker substitutes for concert

Chuck Berry will perform at Parent's Weekend concert instead of Fats Domino and Jerry Lee Lewis, Student Activities Director Anita Craig said Tuesday.

"We are extremely pleased to have Mr. Berry's confirmation of appearance," Craig said in a press release. "Everyone loves Chuck Berry's music, especially 'Johnny B. Goode.'"

Craig said a telegram was received Tuesday afternoon guaranteeing Berry would perform for the slated Nov. 7 Parent's Weekend concert.

"We have the telegram. The contracts are on the way (to be signed)," Craig said in a Tuesday evening phone interview.

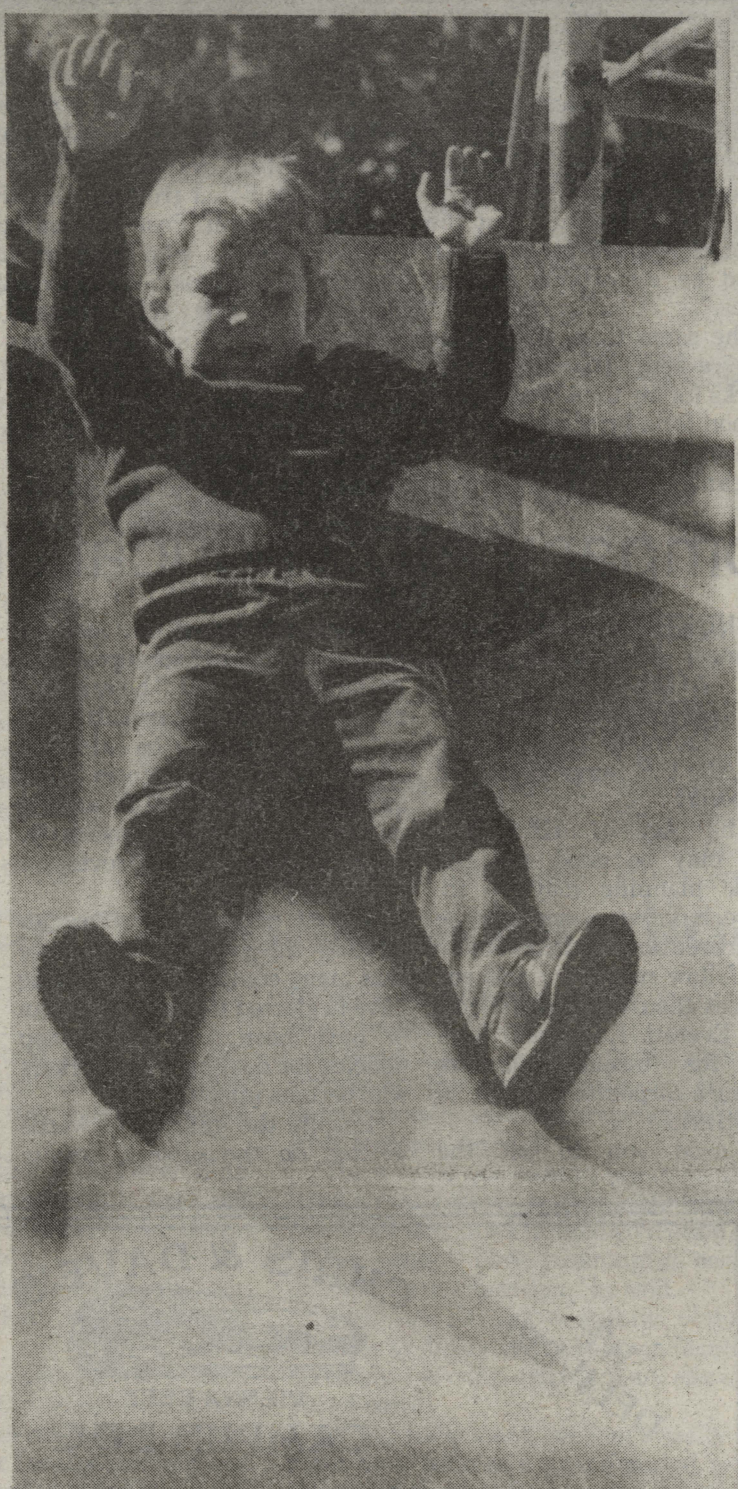

The "Hall of Famers" performance of Domino and Lewis was to be scrapped following an announcement that Domino was suffering from diabetes.

Willard Alexander Inc., a Chicago-based agency, is responsible for scheduling the performance of Berry. An estimated $25,000 was being sent to bring Domino and Lewis to Eastern.

Concert Committee Chairman Ducey could not be reached for comment Tuesday night.

In addition, the press release stated that Parent's Weekend ticket orders will be filled this week, and a flier stating the change in performers will accompany tickets.

Ticket refunds may be obtained before Oct. 30.

Tuition increase comparatively low

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

A proposed mid-year tuition increase at the five Board of Governors schools will be lower than hikes at other state universities, but not by much, Eastern President Stanley Rives said Tuesday.

Although Rives declined to reveal the amount of the recommended increase agreed upon Monday by BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell and the five BOG presidents, he said, "This will be the lowest of all recommended increases."

The lowest increase approved so far is at Southern Illinois University where the Board of Trustees approved a $100 per semester increase earlier this month. The University of Illinois and the Boards of Regents system have approved $150 per semester increases.

Rives declined to reveal the actual amount of the increase, adding those figures must be released through the chancellor's office. However, he said the figure would be less than what is needed to bring funding up to original fiscal year 1987 levels.

Layzell declined to comment, adding that he wished to make a presentation to board members first. Jim Perez, a BOG spokesman, said the figure will be released Monday.

However, Layzell said at September's meeting a 17 to 18 percent increase, about $95 per semester, would be needed to bring funding up to the level appropriated to BOG schools last year. Rives predicted in September that the increase would probably range between $50 and $75 per semester.

The proposal also includes plans for a tuition waiver for students receiving financial aid from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

A waiver plan is needed to balance the need for revenue for quality programs with the effort to keep college accessible to students, Rives said.

"It was terribly important to do it (give waivers)," Rives said. "You don't want to penalize the student in need."

"The waivers will lower the dollar amount we will raise, but we must balance access and quality."

Last year, 1,910 students received awards through the ISSC's Monetary Award Program.

However, there is no provision for "rolling back" the hike should the legislature provide supplemental funding. But, Rives said the board and chancellor will probably take "another look" at the hike if more money is found.

Student leaders, including Eastern BOG Representative Mike Riordan, have said they will only support a tuition increase if it contains a provision for eliminating the increase should the legislature provide more funding, either through an override of Gov. James Thompson's budget cuts or with a supplemental funding bill.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education's Student Advisory Committee has supported a tuition hike, as long as it

Quiet weekends set Booth Library hours

JEFF BRITT
Reporter

Booth Library doesn't open on Friday and Saturday nights because of a lack of student interest and funds to pay personnel, said Paladugu Rao, acting dean of library services.

"When we open the building (on weekend nights), we don't get enough students," said Rao, adding, "We don't have the staff to cover those hours."

The library is open until 11:45 p.m. on weeknights, said Bill Isom, head of circulation. It closes at 5 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

On the weekend before finals, the library will remain open until 9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, he said.

Isom said the library opens at 9 a.m. on regular Saturdays.

"We used to open two weeks before finals," he said. "Two members from the Student Senate came over and talked to the dean of library services."

That meeting got the library open the Monday morning before finals instead of the full two weeks.

"I might add some university libraries in Illinois, because of the budget difficulties, are staying open longer hours," Isom said.

"We are open approximately 85 hours a year now," Rao said. "We simply don't have the money" to stay open for more hours.

"We are working on a new building plan (in which) part of the library can be open on a 24-hour basis," he said.

He said currently, the entire building has to be opened to use any part of it.

Eastern has more than 10,000 students. "The building we have here is designed for only 6,000 students," Rao said. "Our building is not adequate to satisfy the needs of the students. That's why we are looking into this new building program."

"We're open until midnight on Fridays and midnight on Saturdays," said Betsy Wilson, head of the undergraduate library at the University of Illinois.

She said it is the largest of the 35 libraries on the U of I campus, and it remains open until 1 a.m. on weeknights.

"We have probably 400 people on a Friday night," she said. "On a typical night, we have 1,700 at any one time."

The undergraduate library's hours have been extended from 10 p.m. on weekends until 12 a.m. During finals week, it remains open until 2 a.m.

The Bradley University Cullom-Davis Library is open until 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, but the reserve room is open until 11 p.m., said Jean Gove, administrative assistant to the library director.

"The main reason for keeping it (the reserve room) open is the computer terminals and the reserve materials," she said.

"We keep that room open until 3 a.m. during the week," Gove said. However, the main library is only open until midnight during the week.

Sangamon State's library, like Eastern's, closes at 5 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, said Wanda Perkins, administrative assistant to the library dean.

"We watch our head count here, and that's the reason we close at five," she said. "The interest is not there."

"It would cost quite a bit more money (to keep it open), because we've got to have students and faculty... to man the circulation desk and the 'get help here' desk."

Northern Illinois University has no such problem. It remains open until 10 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

"The attendance is a lot less on these nights," said Sharon Wentz, chief clerk of circulation. "It's pretty dead in here."

The NIU library had 490 students visit it last Friday night between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m., said Tom Dick.

Ives cancels appearance

By WENDELL HUTSON

Burl Ives, one of Eastern's more famous alumni, has canceled as the grand marshal for Saturday's Homecoming parade.

Ives announced Tuesday he would be unable to attend the event because of a sudden family illness.

"Due to the sudden illness of his daughter he has canceled out," said Art Tate, Eastern's assistant director for university relations.

"At first it was indeed a shock, but under these conditions it's understandable," Tate said.

Acting Alumni Director Audrey Dumentat said, "As of yet there is no replacement for Ives as grand marshal, but who ever it is you can bet it will be an alumni."

Ives was also scheduled to sing the National Anthem and Alma Mater, at the Homecoming football game against Indiana State.

Dumentat said Eastern President Stanley Rives may possibly be an alternative as grand marshal for the parade.

Missile strikes Iraqi school, kills 32

BAGHDAD, Iraq—A missile fired from Iran exploded at an elementary school Tuesday morning as pupils filed into the building for classes, killing 32 people and wounding 218, nearly all of them children, officials said.

Shrapnel, shattered concrete and shards of glass flew through the playground of the Monument of Martyrs school, witnesses said. Textbooks and school bags lay strewn about.

The force of the explosion blew down parts of the building, Principal Ismael Ghetan Jassim said, but "Thank God it didn't hit the classrooms complex itself or casualties would have been much higher."

Neighbors said 12 members of one family were killed in the house on which the missile made a direct hit.

Baghdad radio said the missile destroyed 16 other buildings in the heavily populated area when it struck just five minutes before the school bell, but only three of those killed were adults. All but 22 of the wounded were children, the radio said.

It was the fourth Iranian missile to strike the Iraqi capital since Oct. 4, the first to cause major casualties.

Iran has lobbed more than 30 missiles into this city of 5 million people and dozens more have hit other cities.

Arias awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway—President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica won the Nobel Peace Prize on Tuesday for a Cenral American peace plan that he fashioned and persuaded the region's other leaders to adopt.

Selection of Arias was a surprise, and unusual because the choice was based at least partially on accomplishments after nominations closed Feb. 1. There were 93 candidates, including 15 organizations.

President Reagan, who has called the Arias plan "fatally flawed," said Tuesday: "President Arias fully deserves the Peace Prize for having started the Central American region on the road to peace."

The Norwegian parliament's Nobel Committee cited Arias, 46, as "the main architect" of the plan the five Central American presidents signed Aug. 7 and now are putting into effect.

Committee Chairman Eoil Aarvik told reporters the award was meant to add impetus and be "a support for the democratic process in the whole region."

Reagan abandons harsh rhetoric targeted against Bork opponents

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan today abandoned plans to launch a harsh attack on tactics used to derail the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, dropping language from a speech that accused Bork's opponents of waging a "sophisticated campaign of smears and lies."

Instead, Reagan said in revised remarks prepared for delivery to a New Jersey audience that the confirmation hearings had been "marred by distortions and innuendos."

At the same time, the White House asked the broadcast networks for air time Wednesday afternoon for a brief presidential address on the Bork battle.

Reagan, in the revised prepared remarks, said "Judge Bork and I agree that there are no illusions about the outcome of the vote in the Senate but we also agree a crucial principle is at stake."

The president said the principle at stake "is the process that is used to determine the fitness of those men and women selected to serve on our courts."

Reagan quoted from a column by Washington Post columnist David Broder, who said that "watching these tactics applied to judges is scary. . . . It should send shivers down the spine of anyone who understands the role of the judiciary in this society."

The president said that he agreed and that when he nominated Bork he thought the confirmation process would go forward "in a statesmanlike manner with a calm and an exchange of views. That is the case."

"The hearings have been marred by distortions and innuendos," he added.

The revised remarks, which cut the final four paragraphs of Reagan's speech, were distributed at the White House. Reagan flew to New Jersey for the early afternoon speech to the state's Chamber of Commerce in Somerset.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the Reagan text had been revised to reflect Bork's own desire for a less strident debate.

Company AIDS education urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Companies must educate employees about AIDS to prevent "groundless hysteria" when a co-worker contracts the deadly disease, the U.S. surgeon general said Tuesday.

"In the 'Age of AIDS,' our science may be good and our strategic planning may be innovative, but if we cannot get the AIDS prevention message across to our fellow managers and our employees then we have failed," Dr. C. Everett Koop said at a forum for business leaders preparing a corporate response to the AIDS crisis.

"We need you to set the example for being fair and objective and for not succumbing to groundless hysteria," he said in a speech to about 200 executives.

"We need you to be informed about AIDS, to inform your employees about AIDS and to encourage your employees to exercise appropriate preventive measures."

Several of the executives attending the two-day conference said many companies nationwide have neglected the AIDS problem or have been slow to develop policies for dealing with workers who become infected.

"Despite the millions of words written on the subject, despite the human and financial costs, American business has been strangely silent on the subject of AIDS," said Herb Lister, chairman of Allstate Life Insurance Co., which organized the conference.

Lister said a recent survey of 100 Fortune 1000 companies found that only 29 had policies for dealing with AIDS in their employees.

On Wednesday, the business executives planned to develop specific AIDS policy recommendations. Officials plan to reconvene the conference in Washington in January 1988.

Men plead not guilty to charges

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

Two men, who were arrested following a Sept. 12 party at which two Charleston Police officers were injured, pleaded not guilty to charges of mob action stemming from the incident.

A 10 a.m. Nov. 30 calendar date was set for Mark Carney, whose attorney entered a plea of not guilty Tuesday in the Coles County Circuit Court to the charge of mob action.

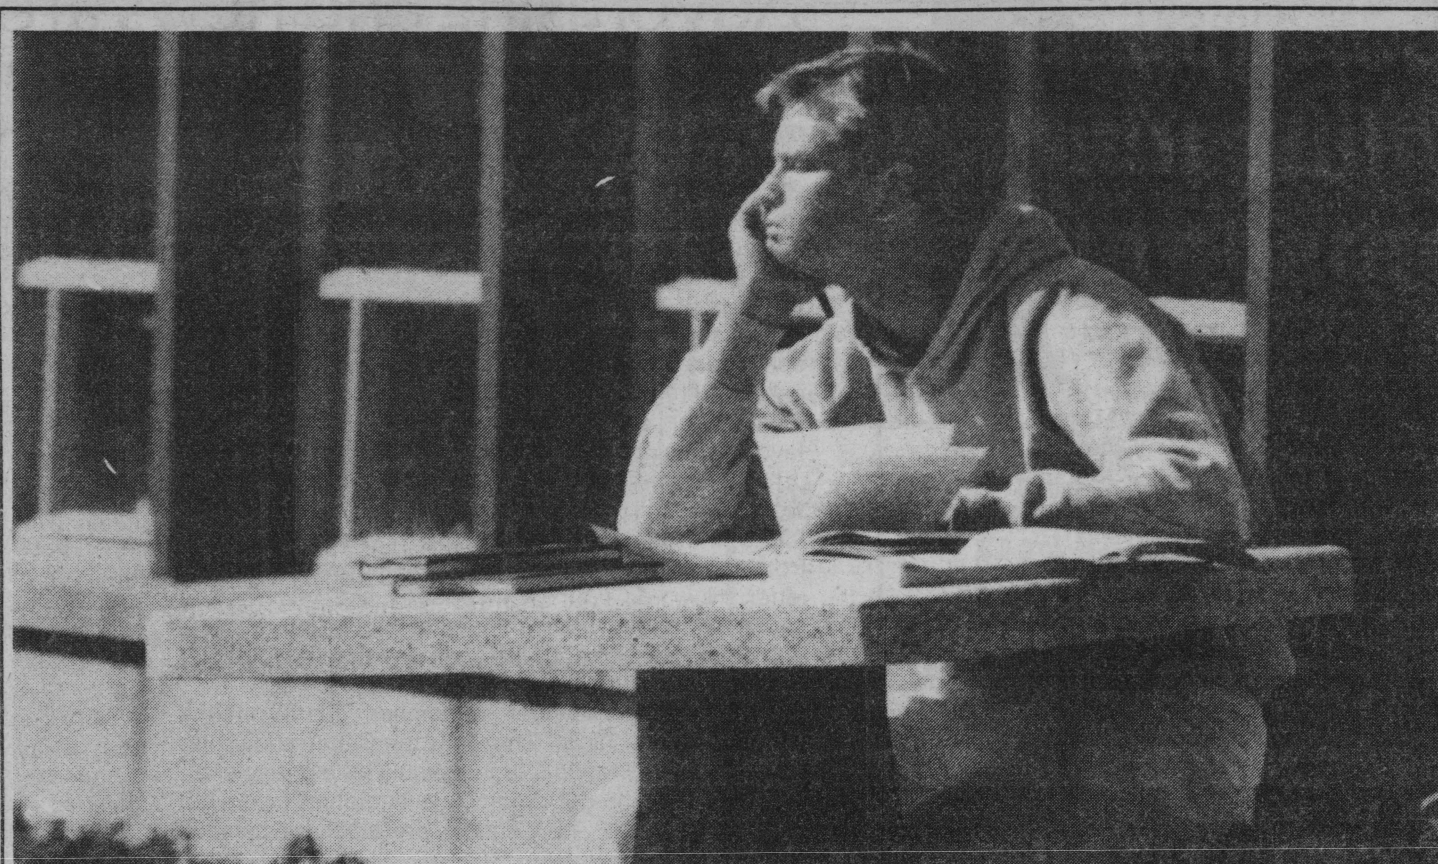

In addition, senior Tom Carroll, also arrested in connection with the Sept. 12 party, was docketed for jury trial Nov. 30.

Carroll, however, is also being charged with resisting a peace officer in addition to the charge of mob action.

Former Eastern student Terry Zeman's preliminary hearing, to answer charges of mob action, was rescheduled for Nov. 6.

Avery Gerstein, Coles County assistant state's attorney, said Zeman's first appearance was postponed because the case is still under investigation.

Gerstein said, however, that he expects formal charges to be filed sometime before the Nov. 6 appearance.

Gerstein also said he expects the arraignment proceedings, at which Zeman will plead guilty or not guilty, to take place Nov. 6.

Zeman was arrested at 1605 Ninth

St. where a party became violent and two Charleston Police officers were injured when they tried to confiscate the keg of beer.

Both mob action and resisting a peace officer are misdemeanors, punishable with up to one year in jail and a fine of up to $1,000.

Mob action, however, can also in some instances be handled as a class four felony.

Little chance of higher education budget override: Rives

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

There is little chance the state legislature will override cuts in higher education budgets, Eastern President Stanley Rives told the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

"The general sense we are getting is that even if an override is introduced in the legislature, it does not really stand a great chance of success," said Rives, who meets with the senate monthly.

"So, we'll most likely pursue supplemental appropriations, but they're not likely to be approved until the spring," Rives added.

With the start of the state legislature's veto session just days ahead, the majority of the senate's questions concerned Gov. James R. Thompson's budget, and the effect those cuts will present for faculty staffing and wages, faculty support and university growth.

"Have you got any good news for us, President Rives?" said senate member Larry Janes.

"I don't think so, these are tough times," Rives said. "But I feel it's a good sign that despite all the trouble we're experiencing financially, we're still functioning as a university everyday."

Because a veto override holds little probability of success in the state legislature, it is necessary to pursue supplemental appropriations, and eventually, a tax increase, he said.

"There is no question in my mind that you have to have a tax increase in this state to provide adequate public service, not a limited education.

"We cannot have meaningful economic development without education," he said.

Rives said if the economic outlook for faculty remains as dismal as it has been, faculty members will certainly look for employment elsewhere, including out-of-state.

"In my judgement, we can't really determine that right now because a year's period is indecisive. But there's no question in my mind that the faculty will be looking elsewhere.

"If this continues for any period of time, it will be devastating," Rives said.

Senate member Anthony Schaeffer asked if funding continues to be dismal, if there is a possibility enrollments of all the state universities could be cut, with allocations spread evenly throughout the state.

"Our view as an institution is to walk a careful line and control enrollment where it is right now (with about 10,000 students)," Rives said. "We pay attention to retention and we graduate a higher percentage of students.

"We are in less danger of losing tax dollars because this is the most cost-effective university in the state," he added.

Even if the financial situation brightened, Rives said he still felt there would not be a chance for growth on campus.

"I don't think we would grow very significantly at all because of the budget, and because we don't have the physical facilities. We simply do not have those facilities," Rives said.

He said at this point, applications for next fall's semester have doubled from last year, and Eastern may have to establish earlier cutoff dates than before.

800 students watch as king and queen named

By BETH CARLSON

About 800 students were present Tuesday night in the Union Grand Ballroom to witness the crowning of the Homecoming queen, king and freshman attendants.

Jennifer Engels, sponsored by Delta Zeta, was chosen as the 1987-1988 Homecoming queen, and Vince Macciocchi, sponsored by Sigma Pi, was chosen as the 1987-1988 Homecoming king.

"I can't believe it. It's so exciting. This is the peak of my senior year," Engels said after being crowned.

Macciocchi agreed that the crowning was very exciting.

"I'm proud to represent Sigma Pi. I would like to thank my Sigma Pi brothers for choosing me," he said.

Freshman attendants elected were Jamie Sidwell, sponsored by Delta Zeta, and Mark Luczak, sponsored by Carman.

In the freshman attendant elections, there were 13 women and four men competing.

In the queen and king elections, there were 17 women and 12 men competing.

Students lose when advisers step out of role

Higher education is a process of advanced learning involving practical exercises and experiences—both good and bad.

While Eastern can boast having an increased enrollment over all previous years, it cannot boast that all students are receiving the same quality of higher education.

Most notably this inequality can be seen in the students who actively pursue the fruits of higher education by becoming leaders of campus projects and organizations.

The students who work to become the leaders of these groups learn through practical experience. The student who wishes to learn more about management may join the University Board. The student who wishes to learn how to plan and enact a large-scale project may join the Parent's Weekend Committee.

However, one critical ingredient is being omitted from these educational experiences—student judgment.

Case in point, Concert Committee Chair Diane Ducey has in effect given up her reins of the Parent's Weekend concert after the cancellation of scheduled performer Fats Domino.

"When everything is taken care of and squared away. . . Anita Craig will tell you," an agent, who is supposed to be working through Ducey, said of the Parent's Weekend concert.

Craig, Eastern's student activities director, denied that she is in charge of the project. But her influence is evident when Ducey asked, "What did Anita say?" before answering a reporter's questions about finding a replacement for Parent's Weekend.

Ducey and those involved in student activities are forgetting that the mistakes they may make in college are learning experiences.

When Craig is allowed to voice opinions in more than an advisory nature, the whole system loses out. The adviser's sole responsibility is to do just that—advise, not act. The adviser should answer questions, not perform the duties of the appointed committee chair.

When the capacities of these students are limited, the students in effect learn they are not responsible for their actions, and a valuable function of higher education is lost.

Advertising and news are different

If I've learned anything since I have been employed by this newspaper, it's that we don't cover the people or groups that really deserve coverage and if by chance we do, we don't do it correctly.

Of course, those are not my feelings, rather sentiments expressed to me since the semester began via telephone calls, letters to the editor, public harassment and my personal favorite, unsigned letters.

I love it. Take the time to really work yourself up about an issue, a story idea or, God forbid, a mistake in the newspaper. Wait until you are frothing uncontrollably before you sit down to pen this letter. Now, as your face reddens and you start to sweat profusely, grab a sheet of typing paper. Yes, you must type. In fact, use someone else's typewriter to be sure no one can trace the evil letter to you.

While at the typewriter, remember, this is not the time for helpful hints. The only thing that should be pounded on the Smith-Corona should be a cheap shot. Don't worry if it's not a complete sentence or even a complete thought. Then, send it, preferably via campus mail, to the editor.

If you are one of those people who do this (and yes, it happens regularly) explain something to me: Why take the time to write a letter and then not sign it?

My guess is that it's because it's very easy to hide behind an anonymous letter. While we appreciate correspondence, an unsigned letter is useless to us because we can't publish it, and we don't know to whom to address a reply.

Usually, the "suggestions" we receive from mystery writers don't warrant a response.

However, some queries, usually in the form of letters to the editor or phone calls deserve a response.

Jean Wright

The question as of late seems to be, "Why don't you cover us? We're important." Well, sometimes the inquiring minds are right, and sometimes they aren't.

Like real newspapers (since we all know The Daily Eastern News is just a toy for students who want to be journalists when they grow up) we cover even the most obscure groups or people when they are newsworthy.

The fact that an organization simply has and continues to exist normally is not news. However, when that same organization does something that affects a lot of people, does something it has never done before or maybe does something that is just plain interesting, it breaks into the realm of newsworthiness.

When this happens, we try to cover the event. Sometimes we fail. And when we do, we take our lumps. Like an instructor of mine once said, "The only newspapers are the only organizations that regularly print their own hate mail."

So basically, whether we agree with the hate mail suggestion or not, we usually print it.

But those that take the time to call or write get irate when they don't see their suggestion followed up.

They'll call back and say, "Why haven't you done a story on us yet? We called you a week ago."

And I respond, "Well, have you done anything since we talked to you last?"

"Yeah, we're still here," they respond.

"So, what you're saying is, you've been on campus for awhile doing the same thing you've always done, but you want a story about it."

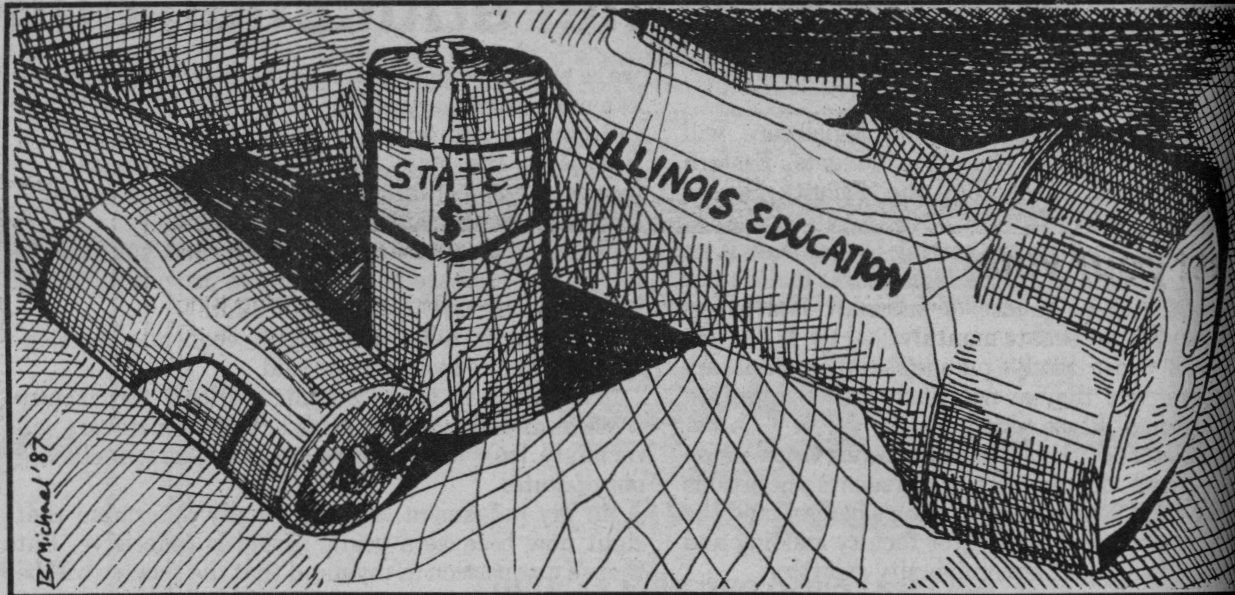

"Right," cheerful voices respond.

"Wrong," I respond.

"What do you mean? It's your job as the campus newspaper to keep reminding students what's on the campus."

"Hang on a minute, let me connect you with the advertising department."

Your turn

On what is news and what is not

Editor:

I wish to give The Daily Eastern News a few suggestions in regard to its coverage of last week's Student Senate meeting (articles Thursday and Friday). First of all, if the News is going to continue covering senate meetings it should clear up any ambiguities that evening, instead of catching up on the facts the following day, after its first report has already been printed. If it were truly a competent newspaper, its writers would have spoken to me after the senate meeting to get the facts straight then and there. If it had done so it would have realized that as the speaker of the Student Senate, I am required to take a roll call vote when division is called by any of the senators. The News is not responsible for knowing parliamentary procedures to report on our meetings, but it should be aware that we do follow Robert's Rules of Order and if it does not fully understand something we do, then it should ask before reporting. The News also would have realized, had it spoken to me Wednesday night, that the roll calls were very close, one of the counts being 13-12, and that there were only three roll calls, not four as first reported on Thursday.

Secondly, the News should cover the content of the meeting, which it failed to do, and which should be its very purpose. There were many matters discussed which concern the student body of Eastern and which I feel they have a right to know about. For example, Tim Taylor presented a bill (supported by Vice President for Academic Affairs Robert Kindrick) concerning persons on academic probation. Whereas, currently, a student on academic probation can only register for a maximum of 14 hours and most academic classes are three credit hour courses, Student Senate supports increasing this maximum to 15 hours. Students need to be aware of this, so that they can voice their own opinions and lend support to this bill.

Also passed at this senate meeting was a resolution, submitted by John Cosenza, supporting "A Day of Action" on Oct. 21, in Springfield. This concerns every student on this campus and should have been top priority. It was at this meeting that we discussed having tables in the Union lobby Oct. 13-20 where students can sign up to make a trip to Springfield to rally on the capital and to lobby for greater funding for higher education. The students need to be aware of the News chose not to report.

Also discussed at this meeting were other programs senate is currently working on, that have everything to do with Eastern's students. Nov. 2, the Student Legislative Committee will sponsor a lip-sync contest at E.L. Krackers as a fund-raiser. With the support and efforts of E.L. Krackers and Miller Beer, the proceeds will go toward the POW/MIA presentation on Nov. 11 in honor of Veteran's Day and to the POW/MIA League of Families. Students can register for this contest in the student government office. While the News may not feel this is newsworthy, we do.

I think the News needs to think twice next time about what concerns the student body and what does not.

Denise M. Wase
Student Senate Speaker

Weaver to speak on budget cuts

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, will give the Student Senate an overview of how the General Assembly expects to handle Gov. James B. Thompson's recent budget cuts during the veto sessions later this month.

The senate will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

"We're just expecting him to give an overview of what the state legislature is going to do with those budget cuts," Student Body President Deb Camren said Tuesday.

Despite the legislature's action, more than five state universities and several watchdog organizations are planning to gather on Oct. 21 on the steps of the capitol building in Springfield to pressure state legislators into allotting more funds for higher education.

Officially dubbed, "Day of Action," the statewide protest is expected to draw a similar crowd at the State of Illinois Center in downtown Chicago.

In other business, Senator Grahame Wilkin will submit his second bill of the semester, proposing that any student who works for The Daily Eastern News for one semester, be entitled to one academic credit hour, not to exceed three credit hours.

"It would work similar to the way it works for marching band members right now," Wilkin said. "If they are on marching band for one semester, they get one academic credit hour."

"The reporters and some of the other personnel who work at The Daily Eastern News do not get paid, and this would make it worthwhile for them to work there."

Homecoming points up for grabs

By ANNA YEE
Staff writer

Eastern students have yet another opportunity to compete for Homecoming spirit points during the annual bonfire and pep rally at 8 p.m. Thursday on the Lawson/Taylor tennis courts.

The evening will begin with a pep rally, where the Pink Panthers, Eastern cheerleaders and Panther Marching Band will perform, said spirits co-chair Julie Ryan.

Band Director Tom Brawner said the band will play the fight song and a couple of pep tunes to enhance school spirit and enthusiasm.

Also Coach Bob Spoo and several football team members will give a short speech, Ryan said.

A total of 21 organizations are involved in this year's Homecoming, but only 15 are participating for spirit points at the bonfire and pep rally, Ryan said.

She said a good way to earn 40 spirit points is to participate in the activities.

Each organization or group involved in the bonfire and pep rally will be awarded 10 points in each category, including:

- attendance at the bonfire
- performing a cheer
- making an effigy (a mock representation of Indiana State's mascot)
- making a spirit banner

Homecoming coordinator Lisa Mariani, a senior, said, "Everyone gets the same amount of points and are not judged on which group is better. It's not a competition."

The bonfire and pep rally are to get many students involved to promote spirit for the school and football team, Mariani said.

Spirit points can also be gained by participating in other Homecoming activities, including the window painting competition, Homecoming parade floats, coronation and the football game, she said.

Ryan said after the pep rally the cheerleaders will lead everyone to the bonfire, where each group who made an effigy can toss it into the fire.

"We're expecting a really good turnout with the residence halls," Ryan said.

BOG to discuss economics

By BRUCE UNDERWOOD
Staff writer

A panel discussion titled, "Developing Illinois' Economy: A Statewide Perspective" will begin at 8 a.m. Friday at Governors State University, University Park.

The discussion will include input from the five Board of Governors universities; Eastern, Governors State, Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago State University and Western Illinois University.

The BOG is the governing body for all five universities.

Each panel will share ideas and experiences about how the universities can contribute to the economic development of their respective regions.

The panels consist of representatives from government, media and university faculties.

Eastern panelists include Rep. Michael Weaver, R-Charleston.; Bill Lair, managing editor of the Charleston Times Courier, and Ted Ivarie, dean of the Lumpkin College of Business. The moderator for the panel will be Thomas Scism, professor of political science.

"Everyone from the president on down is involved (in economic development)," Ivarie said.

He said Eastern contributes to regional economic development through programs and the expertise of university personnel.

Biden backers join Simon

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Several former key Iowa backers of Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden on Wednesday will announce they are joining the presidential campaign staff of Sen. Paul Simon, political activists said Tuesday.

The major new campaign additions will include 1986 Democratic gubernatorial candidate Lowell Junkins and long-time political adviser Mike Lux, Biden's Iowa campaign manager. David Wilhelm, will endorse Simon, though he won't formally join the campaign staff, the activists said.

In addition, a group of field organizers will jump from Biden's campaign to Simon's, said the activist, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Junkins also will bring with him a core group of organizers and aides who had worked for Biden, they said.

Joining the switch will be activists like Bruce Koepol and Larry Grisolano, both seasoned organizers well-known in Democratic circles.

"I think he (Simon) provides a way to unify the party," Koepol said, confirming the Biden activists would switch to Simon.

"After getting through the pain and bitterness of the Biden thing, I was impressed with Simon."

Koepol also said Simon has the best realistic chances of winning the Iowa Democratic caucuses.

Arms race lecture set for Wednesday

By JUDY WEIDMAN
Activities editor

Lawrence D. Weiler, who has spent 25 years in arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, will lecture on the arms race at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Science Building's Phipps Lecture Hall.

Weiler, who served as a special assistant for the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency from 1978-81, said the medium and long range missile treaty, that soon may be signed, will remove missiles with a range of between 300 and 3,500 miles.

"The treaty will affect about 3 to 5 percent of the nuclear missiles, and there are about 10-to 11,000 war heads that aren't covered by them (the treaty)," Weiler said.

He said the United States and Soviet Union have been negotiating since 1981 and that major stumbling blocks were the Soviet's insistence that the French and British be included in the treaty and that SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative) not go beyond the defense against anti-ballistic missiles.

"It's basically a political agreement more than a military agreement. It really doesn't do anything to stop the arms race, but it's better than nothing," he said.

Faust said they chose Weiler because the arms control topic is important and it is a current issue.

"Another reason we chose him is that he's well informed and qualified," Faust said.

Weiler said other aspects of his lecture will include:

- Strategic systems
- Star Wars
- Test bans
- Chemical negotiations
- Anti-satellite talks
- The role of the citizens

Spanish speaking meeting scheduled for Wednesday

JACKIE LA SPESA

There will be a meeting for Eastern's Spanish speaking group, "Hable Ud. Espanol," from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Life Science Annex, room 226.

Psychology instructor Jaime Pera, organizer of the group, said the topics covered range from music of Latin America to political issues, cities of Spain and great Mexican films.

The group, in its second semester at Eastern, is open to faculty, students and local residents who speak any level of Spanish.

Maya said the group will try to cover information on all Latin America and Spanish cultures.

During various meetings, the group will host a Mexican tour guide and present slide shows or Mexican films.

He said everyone attending a session should bring a topic of his choice to present and discuss in Spanish and a lunch.

"The purpose of this group is the dissemination of the culture and the language," said Maya. "Everyone is welcome who speaks any level of Spanish, but Spanish must be spoken and is spoken."

Haitian political leader shot

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Police shot and killed on Tuesday a presidential candidate who was demanding in a speech near police headquarters that an alleged political prisoner be released, witnesses said.

Plainclothes police walked out of the station, approached Yves Volel of the Christian Democratic Rally, beat him and then shot him, a reporter from Haiti said.

In a communique from police headquarters, police did not address allegations that they had shot Volel. They said he had been armed and that they were looking for "his accomplices."

Police cleared the area of bystanders and reporters, and confiscated the film, cameras and equipment of photographers, witnesses said.

In the statement, police said, "Yves Volel presented himself at police headquarters with a group of armed men and made a 10-minute speech. Several shots were fired, Yves Volel carried a Colt .45 pistol."

Commenting on the statement, Jean-Claude Bajoux, co-leader of the main opposition group, the Front for Concerted Action, said; "That is the whole world turned upside down. They do what they want. All the army communiques are lies."

Louis Rov, one of the key drafters of the constitution, said the slaying was part of a plan to create insecurity that would make the holding of fair elections in November difficult.

"Today it's Volel. Tomorrow it will be somebody else," he said.

Volel is the second presidential candidate to be slain in the past three months.

contains a rollback provision. "The prospects for an override are slim," Rives said. "I think the presidents and the chancellor would be in favor of taking another look at the increase if there is one."

The board must still vote to approve the increase at its meeting Oct. 22 at Eastern. Rives predicted the board will approve the increase, but only after a lively discussion by the board and the non-voting student members.

Even if the increase is approved, the legislature still has to say when the money appropriated by the hike is appropriated to the universities. However, there is little chance that will happen, Rives said.

"I don't see the legislature voting over the increase,"

Rives said. "The legislators I have talked to have generally expressed the view that the universities don't have any alternatives (except to raise tuition)."

The tuition hike will not generate enough money to fund a much-needed faculty salary increase, Rives said. The money will be used to offer as many sections of courses as possible during the spring semester, as well as for library books, additional laboratory equipment and other items cut from the budget, he added.

"We would need appropriations beyond last year's levels to provide a salary increase," Rives said, while the proposed tuition hike doesn't go that far. "I think it would be unrealistic to seek an increase (under these conditions). It would create the kind of situation going on now in Chicago where they are cutting teaching positions in favor of a salary increase. That hasn't been the position of our faculty."

The BOG and members of the University Professionals of Illinois agreed last month on a contract extension holding faculty salaries at fiscal year 1987 levels. The contract contains a provision for negotiations to be reopened should there be a legislative override or a supplemental funding bill for higher education.

The tuition increase should not trigger that provision, Rives said.

Womens club groups offer scholarship opportunities

writer

By joining a campus organization, Eastern women may be able to obtain a variety of scholarships.

William Greathouse, business director and coordinator for Business in Professional Women's Club, said joining the club opens the door for a number of scholarships that are awarded to women.

The Business in Professional Women's Club, which provides $150,000 in scholarships annually, meets on the fourth Tuesday night each month at the Charleston Country Club," Greathouse said. A $10 membership fee gives members in the local, state and national organizations.

Joining gives the student an opportunity for receiving the scholarship," Greathouse said. The scholarship for local organization members is available.

The opportunity to meet with women in different occupations is a good experience, she said.

The Charleston organization has more student members than all the rest of Illinois," Greathouse added.

A variety of scholarships are available through the women's club and cash awards are available, Greathouse noted.

Through the Business in Professional Women's Career

Advancement Scholarship, women 25 years of age or older can be awarded a scholarship.

Several other scholarship opportunities include Clairol, which awards $50,000 annually in scholarships to women 30 years or older.

The Avon Products Foundation Scholarship is offered to women interested in careers in sales. It is awarded to women of households who are supporting one or more dependents and are currently pursuing a degree that would lead to a career in sales.

Avon awards scholarships amounting to $50,000 annually.

New York Life Foundation offers $50,000 annually for women seeking the education necessary for a career in the health-care field.

Scholarships are awarded to full-or part-time students. Programs of study may cover academic, vocational or paraprofessional curriculum.

Other qualifications women must meet to be considered for the scholarship includes being over 25, a U.S. citizen, demonstration of a critical need for financial assistance, officially accepted into an accredited course of study, graduating within 24 months and training or degree received must lead to entry or reentry into the work force or better chance of advancement.

Total amounts for individual scholarships range from $500 to $1,000 for one academic year. Funds are awarded to cover costs of tuition, fees and school related expenses, such as child care and transportation.

However, the Business in Professional Women's Club scholarships do not cover doctorate level study (except law and medical students) or correspondence courses. New York Life Foundation scholarships do not cover study at the graduate level.

Women qualify may obtain application forms between Feb. 1 and April 1, or July 1 to Sept. 1. Deadlines for application are April 15 and Sept. 1.

Business and Professional Women/ Sears Roebuck Loan Fund for Women in Graduate Business Studies provide $75,000 annually to women seeking their master's in business administration.

Study may be full-or part-time, but the applicant must carry at least six semester hours or equivalent during each semester for a loan request. Loans up to $2,500 are made for tuition and fees for an academic year.

If more information is needed concerning the scholarships, Greathouse said Eastern women may also write to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, 2012 Mass. Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Senior running back DuWayne Pitts shoots through an opening in the offensive line during Saturday's 21-12 loss to Western Illinois at O'Brien Field. Pitts rushed for 140 yards on the evening on 23 carries and one touchdown. Eastern hosts Indiana State in the Homecoming contest Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at O'Brien Field.

Replacement Bear hoping he'll stick with real team

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Defensive end Sean McInerney of the replacement Chicago Bears looks like a player more than a doorman, though he prefers to be called a blatter.

In two games with the Bears, McInerney has a total of 10 tackles and 5½ sacks although his only previous professional experience was with Washington of the indoor Football League.

Like many of the players put together on makeshift teams lining up for the regular NFL players who are on strike, McInerney hopes to land a job in the league.

Whether they make it or not, McInerney and his new teammates have not tarnished the reputation of the real players. They have played a tough defense in adding two carries to the regular Bears' previous victories for a 4-0 record.

"We're not here to lose," said McInerney, who led the way in today's 27-7 victory over the Minnesota Vikings with 3½ sacks.

"This team was on too and we want to keep it that way until the regular Bears return. We want them to go to the Super Bowl and maybe be a part of it."

If the replacement Bears play against the New Orleans Saints Sunday, it will be their third game and qualify them for players' shares if the Bears make it to Super Bowl XXII.

"I heard something about that," said McInerney. "I wouldn't mind that at all."

Before joining the Bears, McInerney, who has a degree in marketing from Frostburg State in Maryland, did a little bit of everything: sales, coaching at the junior college level and working in a night club.

"Not exactly a bouncer, more of a doorman who enforced the dress code," said McInerney. "If it came down to rough stuff, we'd call the police. The dress code was white sneakers of leather and stonewashed jeans."

McInerney had a choice of joining several teams and had also been contacted by the Washington Redskins and the Detroit Lions.

He chose the Bears because he knew some of the other players coming to the team including quarterback Mike Hohensee and had contacts with some members of the coaching staff.

"I didn't want to go somewhere where I didn't know anybody," said McInerney. "I'm glad I came here. We're winning and my confidence level is up."

"I didn't come here to take anybody's job. I came here for the opportunity to play, to show what I can do. I'm just trying to do my job."

As to making the Bears on a regular basis, McInerney said "It's always in the back of my mind."

He is looking forward to playing against New Orleans since the Saints have a number of regular players on their roster.

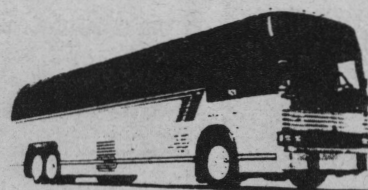

"It's a bigger challenge playing against a team with veteran players, we can show we can play against them and win."

Cardinals shut out Giants 1-0 to draw even in NLCS

ST. LOUIS (AP)—John Tudor, Todd Worrell and Ken Dayley shut down the San Francisco Giants on six hits Tuesday night and a fluke triple in the second inning set up the only run as the St. Louis Cardinals held on for a 1-0 victory, forcing the National League Championship Series to a decisive seventh game.

Tudor worked around six hits and two walks in 7½ innings. Worrell came on to finish the eighth and struck out Will Clark leading off the ninth. When pinch-hitter Harry Spilman was announced, Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog brought in left-hander Ken Dayley and put Worrell in right field.

Dayley struck out pinch-hitter Chris Speier and got Jose Uribe on a grounder as the Cardinals avoided elimination.

A noisy crowd of 55,331 also got into the action, throwing a cowbell and a drink at Giants left fielder Jeffrey Leonard. The game was stopped twice while umpires and security officials sought to find those tormenting Leonard, who made derogatory remarks about St. Louis fans last week.

Standout defensive plays by center fielder Willie McGee and third baseman Terry Pendleton frustrated the Giants, thwarting their first trip to the World Series since 1962.

The Giants' defense made one mistake, and it was right fielder Candy Maldonado's slip on a line drive by Tony Pena leading off the second that cost them the game. Maldonado sunk to his knees, having possibly lost the ball in the lights, and it sailed over his head for a triple.

New England Pats get QB Flutie in trade for draft choice in 1988

BOSTON (AP)—The New England Patriots acquired quarterback Doug Flutie, who won the Heisman Trophy while playing at Boston College, from the Chicago Bears Tuesday for an undisclosed draft choice.

Flutie is expected to play for the Patriots in Sunday's game against the Oilers in Houston, New England spokesman Jim Greenidoe said.

"We're trying to do everything we can to win under the circumstances," Patriots' Coach Raymond Berry said. "We need to improve our quarterback play."

He added that the Patriots, who have three quarterbacks on their active roster, will keep four after the NFL players' strike ends.

Bob Woolf, Flutie's attorney, said the Patriots are optimistic rosters will be expanded from 45 to 49 players after the strike.

Woolf said discussions with the Patriots began after they received permission from the Bears to talk with Flutie and called the player Monday night. Flutie, who grew up in the Boston area, then contacted Woolf.

"We had about 40 conversations with the Patriots," Woolf said.

They involved Flutie's desire not to displace any of the Patriots' regular quarterbacks—Tony Eason, Steve Grogan and Tom Ramsey—and Flutie's insistence that the Patriots were the only team he would accept a trade to during the strike, Woolf said.

Discussions with the Patriots ended at about 10:30 a.m. today, he added.

"It's something that Doug always wanted," he added. "He never would have done it with any other club."

El Club banner stolen at contest

Associate Athletic Director Ron Paap has announced that an El Club banner was stolen during Saturday night's Eastern Illinois-Western Illinois football game at O'Brien Stadium.

The banner, which was valued at $100 by Paap, was located near the tennis courts behind Lantz Fieldhouse and faces the football stadium.

The banner belonged to EI, a club made up of former Eastern athletes.

Paap asked that the banner be returned to the vicinity it was taken from and no questions will be asked.

Spiker Knoke makes smooth position change

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Staff writer

Changing positions in volleyball is tough enough without being a lefthander, but Gina Knoke seems to have made the transition from outside hitter to middle hitter quite smoothly.

Knoke had the biggest match of her career in the finals of the Central Florida Tournament, the fourth tournament crown captured by the Panthers this season.

Knoke nailed her first nine attempts to the floor on the way to a .615 hitting percentage for the match.

The reason behind her performance may well have been her stay on the Panther bench.

"She probably wanted to be a starter again," said coach Betty Ralston. "Trying to regain a starting spot was the biggest motivator behind her performance."

Knoke agreed with Ralston's assessment for the most part, but added that a desire to win was another incentive.

"I wanted to play, but I mostly wanted to win," Knoke said.

"Nick (assistant coach Nick Cheronis) said that I had better get tough and start putting the ball away, and I did."

Knoke's adjustment to middle hitter began last spring when she approached Ralston about playing there.

"When I recruited Gina, I projected her as a middle hitter at some point in her career," Ralston said.

Gina Knoke

"Last spring she came to me and said, 'Coach I'd like to try to be a middle hitter,' so we let her work there all spring and she did a good job."

Being left handed doesn't help her much either since the offense the Panthers run is primarily for the right handers on the squad.

"I'm left handed so it was hard for the setters to set me, so it was a lot of practice with the setters mainly," Knoke said.

Ralston said she thinks one area Knoke could work on is the mental aspect of the game, though.

"If she does something bad early she tends to get down and stay that way for a while instead of going on to the next play," Ralston said.

"The fact that she did very little wrong Saturday probably helped her play the best she's played since she's been here."

Knoke attributes her play to the toughness of the position.

"My position is hard to play, and I'm new at it," Knoke said. "I want to do the best I can, and when I make a mistake it makes me mad because I know I can do better."

Knoke is hitting .268 for the season with 112 kills and 51 blocks, 25 of which are solo. She is ranked eighth in the Gateway Conference in blocks per game with a 0.94 average.

"If we keep playing like we have been we'll do fine," Knoke said. "I think we have a really great chance to go all the way to the final four (of the Gateway Conference Tournament)."

Blues, Canadiens exchange veteran players

MONTREAL (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens acquired defenseman Larry Trader from the St. Louis Blues in an NHL trade for defenseman Gaston Gingras Tuesday.

The two teams also agreed to switch third-round draft choices in either the 1988 or 1989 NHL amateur entry draft.

Trader, 24, a third-round draft pick of the Detroit Red Wings in 1981, was traded to St. Louis in August 1986. He appeared in only one game for the Blues this season. Last year, he spent most of his season with the Canadian Olympic team, scoring four goals and 16 assists in 48 games.

Gingras, 28, was Montreal's first-round draft choice in 1979, and was with the Canadiens' organization until 1982-83, when he was dealt to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Players

have new proposal

ROSEMONT, Ill.(AP)—For the second week in a row, the striking-NFL players union has come up with a plan that may avert the mass defections that had been predicted for this week.

But once again, the owners may reject it, setting up a third week of games played by replacement players and those who choose to cross the picket line.

"No," Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council replied early today when asked if he thought the council's executive committee would approve the proposal when it met Tuesday afternoon in New York.

Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, among the first to arrive for the meeting, said he was "encouraged" by the union's proposal, but said he was opposed to anything to do with arbitration, a key part of the players' proposal to end the strike.

"I think it's something we should look at very seriously," Rooney said of the union proposal. "I'm encouraged because they have tried to do something to take a step toward us."

Rooney is considered a moderate on the council's executive committee, and he played a major role in helping end the 1982 strike.

Panther QBs react to switch

By BARRY BOTTINO
Sports editor

Despite earning his first start in Panther uniform for Saturday Homecoming game against Indiana State, freshman redshirt quarterback Eric Arnold remaining relatively keyed.

"I'm glad to get an opportunity to play. I'm just sorry the offense wasn't able to do anything" in the previous two games, Arnold said Tuesday.

The 6-5, 205-pound Pekin native said he wasn't surprised by head coach Bill Spoo's decision to switch quarterbacks, though.

"It's not really (a big surprise) because coach Spoo had mentioned it," Arnold said.

"I'm just going to try to go in with the same confidence that I have during the past two games (against Akron and Western Illinois)."

Versus Akron on Oct. 3, Arnold completed one of six passes for 10 yards during 1:03 of playing time in the fourth quarter.

Arnold entered Saturday's 21-12 loss to Western Illinois with 11:20 to play and threw four completions on 10 attempts for 56 yards.

"The way I look at it," said junior quarterback Kurt Simon who was replaced in favor of Arnold, "is that coach Spoo has been in football for a long time, and he's coached some good ones and he knows what he's doing."

"There's not much I can do about it," said Simon. "I just have to be ready when they need me."

But Simon didn't think Spoo's decision was based solely on the previous two Eastern losses in which the junior threw four interceptions and fumbled four times.

"It wasn't just the losses," said Simon, who threw 82 completions on 160 attempts (.513 completion percentage) for 819 yards, two touchdowns and five interceptions.

"It (Spoo's decision) had a lot to do with productivity. The offense just didn't click. Things just haven't gone our way."

Spoo also ruled out the option of platooning the two quarterbacks.

The first year Panther coach had downplayed a dissention among team members over the decision, saying, "The first consideration was the team."

"It's going to be different because we're getting most of the reps in practice this week," said Arnold. "But I don't think it will disrupt the team."

Homestand continues

Eastern booters to host Wright State Raiders

By BRENT FEENEY
Staff writer

Eastern's soccer team resumes its homestand on Wednesday, hosting the Wright State Raiders of Dayton, Ohio. Game time is 3 p.m. at Lakeside Field.

It's an important game for the booters, as they can't afford to lose many more matches in their quest for a berth in this year's NCAA Soccer Championship.

"Sunday's match (a 1-1 draw against Northwestern) was a setback for us," said Panther coach Cizo Mosnia. "We weren't happy with the outcome at all. A loss would be very damaging to our playoff hopes."

While a loss would weaken their chances, the Panthers are still alive in the region.

"Right now, it's all up for grabs in our region," Mosnia said. "Everybody has been beating each other. However, the Midwest teams have not been able to beat teams from outside the region. The selection committee can only take a minimum number of teams from our region."

The Panthers enter the match at 6-3-3, a record Mosnia thinks could be better. "We've played to the level of our competition. That's something we shouldn't do. We should be able to beat the weaker teams on our schedule," Mosnia said.

The Raiders, on the other hand, have a record of 9-2-2, having lost to Wilmington College of New Castle, Del., 2-1 in overtime Saturday.

The Raiders' leading scorers are Gregg Harlow, who has 10 goals and nine assists for 27 points; Paul Shaver, who has hit the cords five times and added five assists for 15 points; and John Gibbs, who has four goals and six assists for 14 points.

Sophomore David Kompore leads the Panthers with 10 goals on the year. He scored the only Panther goal in the draw against Northwestern. Sophomore Garry Laidlaw remains second with eight goals.

The injury report on Wednesday's match looks like this: Kompore suffered a bruised thigh against Northwestern, and Laidlaw is suffering from a nagging ankle injury. Junior Mark Noffert has not played since suffering a hamstring injury against Illinois State.

Both Kompore and Laidlaw are probable for Wednesday's match, while Noffert is doubtful.
