Senate votes down policy . . .

by Crystal Schrof

The Student Senate Wednesday voted not to support a proposed academic dismissal policy which would allow Eastern students with less than 30 semester hours to maintain a lower grade point average.

For the past three weeks, the senate has debated whether or not to support an academic dismissal policy proposed by Council on Academic Affairs member Susan Grah.

However, the proposal could still be approved by the CAA. Senator and council member Ann Hoy said the CAA will take action on the proposal Sept. 30.

Grah's proposal would allow students with 30 semester hours or less to maintain a lower GPA.

Currently, Eastern's academic probation policy places students on academic probation if their cumulative GPA falls below 2.0.

The proposal states a student who has completed 15 semester hours or less must have a GPA of 1.70, while a student who has completed between 16-30 semester hours must have a GPA of 1.85. A student who has accumulated more than 30 hours must maintain a minimum GPA of 2.0.

Financial Vice President John Cole said during the meeting an Eastern administrator had said the university would lose about 600 to 700 students if the one-semester academic probation proposal was put into effect.

However, Grah said her proposal would lower the amount of students dismissed from the university.

Earlier, Student Body President Terry Teele said adopting the proposal would be lowering Eastern's credibility as an academic school.

Teele said Grah's proposal would be "degrading to our (Eastern's) academic standards."

. . . new guidelines proposed

by Michael Kuo

Financial Vice President John Cole proposed guidelines for funding Student Senate banquets and awards at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

However, action on the proposal was tabled for one week.

Problems with funding student government banquets and awards arose last year, when former Student Body President Bob Glover failed to ask senate approval for award expenditures.

Also, Glover neglected to collect enough money to cover banquet expenditures incurred for the spring 1982 student government banquet.

Student Activities Director Donald Cook said payment of the spring 1982 banquet bill was made with unused student activity fee money from last year's student government budget.

Cole's proposal would establish a student government checking account at a private bank in the name of "banquet account," with deposits into the account to be made by a banquet coordinator.

Under Cole's proposal, the banquet coordinator would be the senate banquet committee chairman, or the chairman of an ad-hoc committee created by the senate speaker.

The proposal also states checks for banquets would be made payable only to "banquet account," and not to private parties.

"With this proposal, student government is strictly responsible for student government; the business office is not involved, and Eastern cannot be held responsible (for financial mistakes)," Cole said.

Currently, student government banquets are paid for by the business office with money from the student government budget.

In other business, the senate took action to finalize the Off-campus Student Housing Association (OCSHA).

Last week, the senate approved an addition to the student government bylaws which gives the administrative assistant for collective bargaining the power to "organize, maintain, and be chairman of" OCSHA.

The senate voted to add the words "until the conclusion of spring semester 1983" to last week's bylaw amendment.

Student Body President Terry Teele said the addition was made to make certain OCSHA is "on it's own by next year."

Comptroller candidates in conflict over role of office

(Editor's note: The last in a series of four stories on candidates for Illinois executive offices who appeared in Decatur over the weekend deals with the candidates for state comptroller.)

by Madeleine Doubek
Daily Eastern News correspondent

DECATUR—Illinois comptroller candidates Republican Cal Skinner and Democrat Roland Burris disagreed on the role of the comptroller and condemned each other at a press conference Friday.

Skinner and Burris fielded questions from a three-member panel of journalists at an Illinois Press Association convention.

Skinner said the comptroller's office should challenge and question the expenditures it processes.

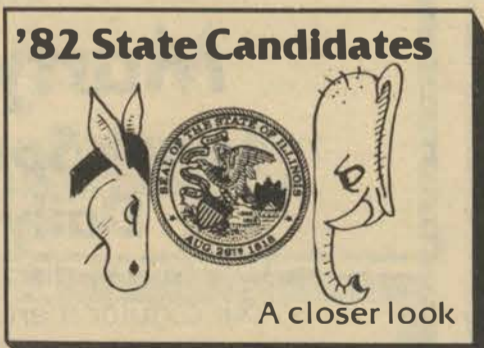

The office "ought to be an institutional furr under the saddle of the administration," he said.

"Burris has not been the taxpayer's watchdog," Skinner added.

Burris, who currently serves as state comptroller, said the purpose of the office is "not to be a controversial, grandstanding one."

He said he has caught waste and fraud, but added "we do not hold a press conference every time we do it."

If elected, Skinner said he would "test the parameters of the office. The powers of the office are awesome."

He stated that if all the comptroller does is process checks and sign vouchers, the post should not remain elective.

"In three and one-half years, if I have done as little in this office as the incumbent, I hope everyone in this room would move to make the position appointive," Skinner added.

"Find more savings, Roland, or the taxpayers won't believe you when you say you've saved them money," he stated.

However, Burris said he has been finding those savings and listed cutting waste, fraud and mismanagement among things he will continue to do if re-elected.

He also said he would continue to process checks faster and would send out monthly reports to the taxpayers of Illinois. Burris added he has already saved taxpayers over $1 million through a new program to screen vouchers and has plans to complete a new accounting system in the office.

"The comptroller is elected to serve citizens in an honest, efficient way," Burris noted.

Also at the conference, Skinner accused Burris of accepting campaign contributions from churches totalling $2,100.

"I don't think someone who accepts money out of the collection plate of a church should be an elected official," he said.

"He's a lawyer—he should know better," Skinner added.

"I have not accepted one illegal contribution in this campaign," Burris replied. "The fact that people have sent these checks show they have confidence in me."

He countered Skinner's remarks by saying that Skinner has been in trouble with the law in the past. "He has very little regard for the law. He was convicted for practicing law without a license and he pestered police officers when he was given a traffic ticket," Burris said.

Skinner did not reply to Burris' allegations during the conference.

Abortion amendment postponed

WASHINGTON—Senate leaders agreed Wednesday to put off until next year a debate and votes on a constitutional amendment designed to limit or eliminate legalized abortions.

Meanwhile, there were indications that a filibuster against a second anti-abortion measure may be drawing to a close.

As Republican leaders grew increasingly impatient with the pace of the debate, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said he would abandon efforts to get a constitutional amendment through the Senate in the waning days of the 97th Congress.

Monaco mourns Princess Grace

MONTE CARLO, Monaco—The stunned people of Monaco, suddenly bereft of their storybook princess, filed in mournful lines past the former Grace Kelly's coffin Wednesday, in the hilltop palace where the fabled Hollywood beauty first joined them 26 years ago.

"She seemed almost as if she were alive," 22-year-old shop employee Pascale Feles said tearfully after viewing the body in the chapel of the sand-hued castle. "She was a marvelous woman."

Princess Grace, the American-born actress who won an Oscar in a brief but triumphant film career, died late Tuesday of a cerebral hemorrhage at age 52, about 36 hours after plunging down a ravine in her automobile.

Protesters arrested at dumpsite

AFTON, N.C.—Protesters confronted a cordon of state police guarding a toxic chemical dump Wednesday and more than 100 were arrested as North Carolina began cleaning up polluted roadsides.

About 200 demonstrators singing "We Shall Overcome" and vowing to block trucks hauling dirt tainted by PCBs were met at a controversial Warren County landfill by about 35 troopers brandishing billy clubs.

Faced by a line of officers, the demonstrators yelled, "Let us through. We're going through."

Two teacher strikes left in state

With the first full day of classes in session Wednesday following a 10-day teacher walkout at the Wheaton-Warrenville Unit District west of Chicago, only two strikes lingered in the state, both in Southern Illinois.

A mediator arrived at the scene Wednesday at the strike-bound East St. Louis District 189 where 20,000 pupils have been out of classes since 1,300 teachers walked out on Aug. 31.

A six-member negotiating team from the Illinois Federation of Teachers Local 1220 set an afternoon meeting in East St. Louis with superintendent Leroy Duckworth and two other members of the school board.

Israel opens fire on west Beirut after bombing death of Gemayel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Israeli tanks and troops surged into west Beirut Wednesday and their gunboats opened up with missiles in a new offensive against Lebanese leftists and Palestinian guerrillas following the assassination of President-elect Bashir Gemayel.

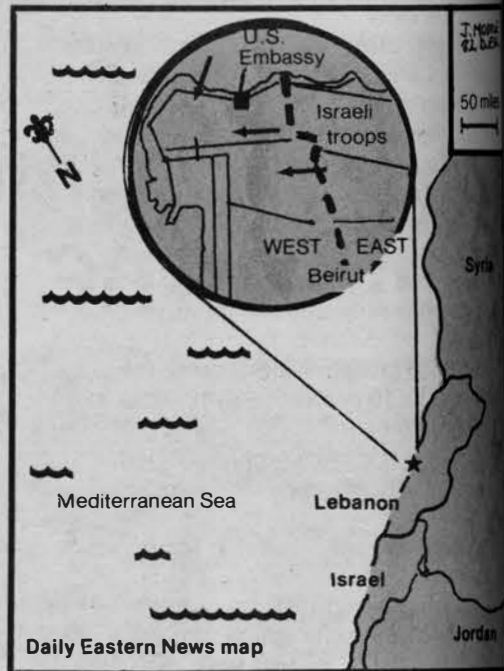

The gunboats opened fire on the oceanside neighborhood of Rouche and the Carlton Hotel area after a ground penetration of about 2.5 miles into west Beirut that the Tel Aviv command said was aimed at preventing a dangerous new linkup between the leftists and some 2,000 PLO guerrillas reported still in the city.

It was the first time the Israelis had gone into west Beirut in force since they invaded Lebanon 14 weeks ago to rout the PLO. Several thousand guerrillas are still in the country, many of them in the eastern Bekaa Valley, camped with some 25,000 Syrian troops whom the Israelis also want out.

The Moslem half of Beirut was shaken by the naval bombardment as Gemayel's funeral was conducted in a solemn Maronite Christian rite at the packed church in his hometown of Bikfaya, 12 miles east of Lebanon's capital.

The death of Gemayel, who was to become president next week, threatened to plunge Lebanon into a new round of warfare. The presence of Israeli troops and Syrian forces in eastern Lebanon also carried the threat of a new confrontation between those two countries.

Weeping bodyguards in the brown uniforms of Gemayel's Phalange Party threw themselves across his flag-draped coffin as the Mass was read in Arabic at Bikfaya's St. Abda's church.

The wooden casket was then placed on an army gun carriage and taken in a slow-moving procession to the cemetery. A 21-gun salute echoed across the mountain peaks of central Lebanon as the 34-year-old slain leader was lowered into his grave to the drumbeats of an army band.

U.S. presidential envoy Morris Draper traveled from Israel to Lebanon in time for the funeral.

Brezhnev presents Mideast plan

MOSCOW (AP)—President Leonid I. Brezhnev laid out a six-point plan Wednesday for bringing "lasting peace" to the Middle East—based on creation of an independent Palestinian state in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Brezhnev called President Reagan's Mideast peace plan "basically vicious" for denying the Palestinians the right to an independent nation. Reagan has proposed establishment of a Palestinian state in association with Jordan, incorporating territory now occupied by Israel.

The Soviet leader called for a sovereign Palestinian state on lands to be vacated by the Israelis, specifically the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. He said Palestinian refugees must be given the opportunity to return to their former homes or get "appropriate compensation for the property they left."

In addition, Brezhnev said, the Arab eastern sector of Jerusalem must be returned to the Arabs "and become an inseparable part of the Palestinian state. Free access of believers to the holy shrines of the three religions must be ensured in the whole of Jerusalem."

Speaking at a Kremlin dinner for South Yemen's President Ali Nasser Mohammed, the Soviet leader said all lands occupied by Israel since the 1967 Middle East war—the Syrian Golan Heights, the West Bank, the Gaza Strip and areas of Lebanon—must be returned.

Reduced gymnastics space draws safety hazard charges

Sharon Bray
 Students using the combined gymnastics-weight room in Lantz Gym run a greater risk of being injured than when all of the room was used for gymnastics, Gymnastics Club President Gary Baker said. The old gymnastics room was reduced to 30 percent of its original size on Sept. 2 when weightlifting equipment was moved into the remaining 70 percent of the room. Baker said gymnastics coach John Schaefer has made attempts to improve the situation. Baker said Schaefer's original proposal was to divide the gymnastics room using the same ratio, but devote the 70 percent to gymnastics and the 30 percent to weightlifting. "They reversed it completely. I don't think they are paying any attention to him (Schaefer)," Baker said. Schaefer was not available for comment Wednesday. The former weightlifting room has been converted into an intercollegiate athletic weight room and a cardiac rehabilitation laboratory. Baker said the new size of the gymnastics room, which is 27 feet wide by 50 feet long, is too small for safe practice, as well as not being big enough in which to practice thoroughly. "The big thing is it's very dangerous. You have to constantly be watching out for someone else," he said. Baker added, "We (gymnasts) can't get better if we don't have room to work." Baker said Dean of the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Walter Lowell said only about 15 people used the gymnastics room every day. However, Baker said the figure indicates only the number of people who use the room during the one hour set aside for intramural use. About 300 people actually use the room every day, Baker added. Lowell said the reason for reducing the size of the gymnastics room was primarily due to the fact that gymnastics enrollment has decreased drastically and therefore the gymnasts are a minority. "I want to save gymnastics, but realistically there needs to be more room for the more popular activities such as weightlifting," Lowell said. In an effort to make better use of the gymnastics room, Lowell said he recently increased the room's hours from 3 to 8 p.m. to noon to 8 p.m. He also is proposing a schedule for next semester which would have only one activity, gymnastics or weightlifting, using the room at one time. Lowell added there is "no way" the gymnastics room will be moved into the south Buzzard Building gymnasium, one of the alternatives Baker suggested. "Buzzard is used for elementary physical education and dance classes. The (gymnastics) equipment would be in the way of those classes," Lowell said. He added, however, that Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin is in favor of moving the gymnastics room into the south Buzzard gym, where the equipment could be moved out of the way when aerobics classes and Pink Panther practices are in session. Lowell said he wanted to have the weightlifting room moved into the Buzzard Building's north gym last year. However, the space was allocated to The Daily Eastern News. Gymnasts are not the only students who use the gymnastics room. Cheerleader Joe Schmeier said there is not enough room for the cheerleaders to practice tumbling when they are forced indoors by bad weather. He added that the cheerleaders currently do not practice in the gymnastics room, but the majority of the cheerleaders agree that the room should be bigger. "You can only do one or two tricks before running into a wall," Schmeier said. He added that if there was more room for a bigger mat or to add more mats, tumbling would be safer. Schmeier said the approximate size of the mats being used now is 12 feet by 30 feet. Previously, gymnasts were able to use one large mat that measured 60 feet by 60 feet. One of the problems with not using the larger mat is that there are cracks between the mats being used now, Schmeier said. He added that a bigger mat enables gymnasts to take a running start and do their routines from corner to corner. A running start is necessary to do an effective routine, Schmeier said, "unless you are really good, which most people aren't." Baker said the weightlifters support the gymnasts and have been cooperative. He added that "a lot of people see something is wrong. There's a lot of people mad about this." Weightlifter Jeff Lyons said the room is "a little crowded on both sides" and "they should do something." "There's just not enough room," he said.

Faculty reallocation a sensible plan

Eastern's administration's practice of reallocating faculty openings to departments with greater faculty need is a responsible and cost-saving way to cut down on waste and keep up with changes in academic interests.

The administration recently announced that when faculty positions become vacant in the future, those positions will be reviewed to determine if an instructor is needed in that academic department or if the faculty position should be moved to another department.

For example, if a position were to be vacated in the mathematics department, and demand for mathematics classes was dropping, yet there was great demand for another faculty member in the accounting department, the math position would be closed and another would be opened in accounting.

Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives said this transferring of positions and the funds for them from areas of lower need to areas with a greater demand is not a new practice at Eastern, but may be used more in the future due to tight budget restrictions here.

The reallocation process is one which should be used to the fullest extent because money is wasted when new positions are created and old ones which are no longer needed are filled again.

In addition, the practice is beneficial because its flexibility allows for positions to fluctuate in correlation to student interests.

For instance, enrollment in Eastern's School of Business has increased markedly in the last few years. The reallocation practice could allow for creation of positions needed in the business school if a position is not needed in a different school or department with lower enrollment figures.

The flexibility of reallocating positions is also advantageous because Eastern will make use of it only when necessary. If enrollment in a department does not change much from one year to the next, reallocation will not be necessary.

Faculty should also be pleased with the reallocation theory because it calls for careful review of all positions before cutting any. We urge Eastern's administration and faculty to continue honest, competent reviews of all positions before making a decision to eliminate or retain a position.

In addition, positions will not be reviewed until they become vacant when a faculty member retires or leaves school. This means that instructors in lower-demand departments will not lose their jobs to a higher-demand curriculum.

At a time when Eastern must make do with a tight budget, Rives was correct in saying the faculty must have the flexibility and capacity to move all resources financial as well as human to the area of greatest need.

Eastern should use reallocation to its fullest potential. If we aren't resourceful now, we will certainly run short of resources in the future.

Your turn

Tenants need attention

Editor:

(This letter was written before the porch in back of the apartment next door to us collapsed, but the letter was not turned in until later.)

As an open letter to Mr. Young and other landlords, I hope this letter serves as constructive criticism with which you can work positively instead of regarding it as just another complaint letter.

Through recent experiences of my own and my friends, I realize that you are content to collect our rent money, make our mortgage payments, build on or lease more of your land and yet you seem reluctant or unwilling to fulfill the basic (and sometimes not so basic) needs of your tenant.

Although you may not want details and lists of such problems, I don't feel that is what is necessary to solve these problems. As tenants, we don't ask to be treated as VIP's, but we would like the minimal courtesy and cooperation out of all of you. Most of us in Youngstowne have never even seen Mr. Young. How can you be an effective landlord if you rarely communicate with your tenants? With a little communication, cooperation and work (there is no need to take a full year to fix screens or get rid of ants in the apartment), we can have a peaceful tenant-landlord relationship.

Mark Demos

Re-examine position

Editor:

This letter is in response to Tuesday's article regarding disagreement with a statement about the position of a student representative.

The article is misleading in its opening statement: "Board of Governors and faculty union officials disagree with Eastern's Student Senate speaker's statement that student representatives at contract negotiations rarely have a voice because the unions are too strong." The reporter did not cite any person in the article who was an official of the Board of Governors.

Miss Lang's assertion was basically correct. The student's role is "necessarily limited" due to "the nature of the process," as Carol Elder said.

Negotiations take place all summer. When the date for the current contract expiration comes near, negotiations start in the early morning and adjourn late at night, during days in which school is beginning at Eastern. This makes it difficult for the student representative to attend negotiations for even half the time.

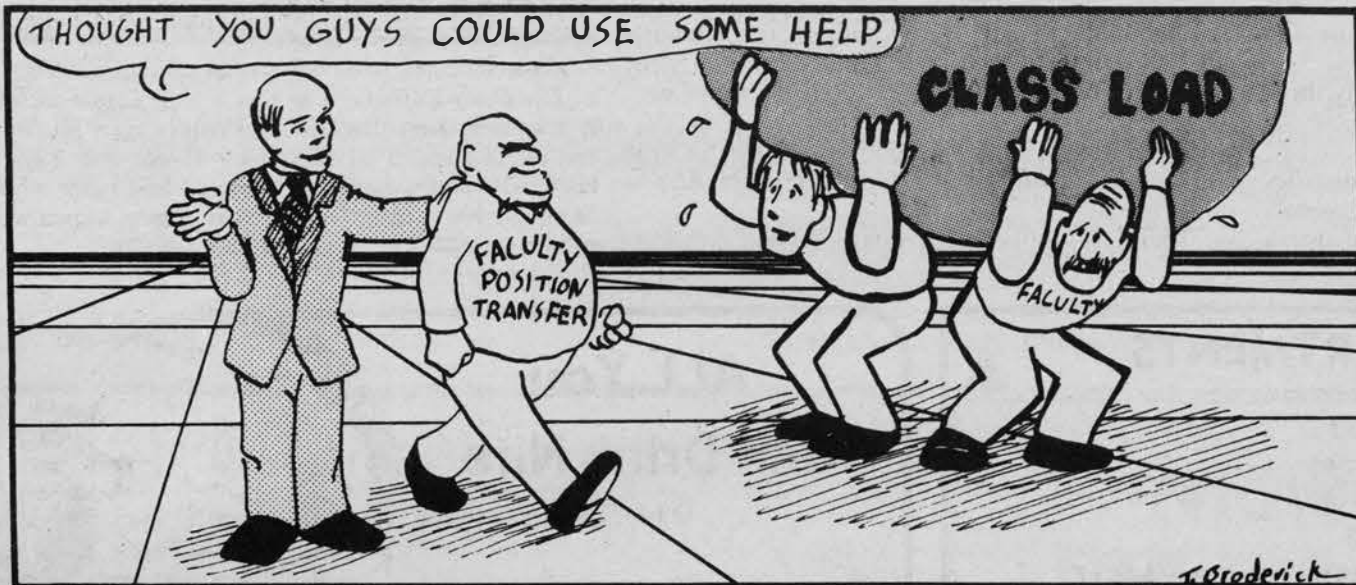

This position needs to be looked into fully, not just smoothed over in the way that last fall's senate did.

Apathy not cause of low turnout at games

Sometime during every football and basketball season, many students are forced to endure a tirade about their apathy towards going to games. Not only are they degraded for their non-attendance, but when they do show up, they are reprimanded for not showing "proper school spirit."

"It isn't like it used to be," we are constantly told. We are reminded of how successful our teams are, how hard the athletes work and how we should show appreciation for their work by attending sports events.

I don't disagree with how hard athletes work. I know several players on the football team and know how much effort they involved.

But what it comes down to is this: it's their choice if they want to be on a team. No one forces them to play.

We, as students, also have a choice. No one should force us to go to games. We don't force athletes to go out for sports.

I can't understand why students are blamed for not attending football games. Just as the athletes enjoy belonging to an athletic team, many students also have other things they enjoy outside the realm of sports.

After being cooped up in a classroom and residence hall room most of the week, a student can go to Fox Ridge on Saturday and throw a frisbee around and just relax.

And what about studying? As the semester wears on,

Personal file:

Keith Clark

many students are forced to use the free time they have towards doing well in classes.

Another reason for not wanting to attend football games is fairly obvious—take last week's game.

Contrary to all glorified reports, the game was extremely boring. Even though I am an avid football fan, I found myself wishing I were somewhere else during the first three quarters of Saturday's game.

"It's never over 'til it's over," Yogi Berra said. It's a good thing that 7,000 fans kept that in mind Saturday.

Why doesn't someone commend the people who stayed for the whole game? It was definitely an exercise in patience and persistence.

Added to the fact that most of the game was boring was the half-time show. The Pink Panthers did practically the same routine they have been doing for the past three years and the band played many of the same songs we have already heard countless times.

Wal-Mart store favored, rejected

by Frank Garvin

Two recent surveys on the proposed construction of a Wal-Mart store in Charleston have yielded different responses, raising the question of whether the omission of one question made the difference.

A Chamber of Commerce poll asked respondents whether they favored the issuance of industrial revenue bonds to finance construction of the store, while a student-conducted poll did not.

And an Eastern instructor has questioned the validity of the latter poll—conducted by students in Eastern's management and marketing department—because it did not ask respondents whether they favored the issuance of industrial revenue bonds to finance the store's construction.

According to a survey headed by management and marketing instructor Gary Clark, 62 percent of the 702 polled favored the construction of a Wal-Mart store, while 16 opposed it and 22 percent had no opinion.

A Chamber of Commerce poll indicated that 81.5 percent of those asked do favor having a Wal-Mart store in Charleston.

However, the results also indicated that 52.17 percent of those polled were not in favor of the use of industrial revenue bonds to finance the construction.

Johnetta Jones, a sociology instructor, said, "If he (Clark) didn't mention revenue bonds, he's got a problem—that's the controversy. He got results—he just didn't ask the right questions," she added.

Jones added that she "was not making a value judgment on the instrument used."

Jones made the comments during her course, Sociology 3681, "Public Opinion and Propaganda." The class has been discussing the content of surveys and polls.

But Clark disagreed with Jones.

"The bonds are really not part of the issue for two reasons," Clark said. "Most Charleston residents are uninformed on the revenue bond issue, so they couldn't make an accurate answer. Also, it is really up to the city council to decide on the revenue bonds, not up to the residents."

John Young, developer of the proposed Wal-Mart, has requested $2 million in industrial revenue bonds to construct the store on the lot adjacent to the Eisner-Osco shopping center on Lincoln Avenue.

Some local merchants have expressed opposition to the issuance of the bonds because they carry a lower rate of interest for the holder and do not fluctuate with other market values. The bonds are tax-exempt for the purchaser.

Young said most people polled by the Chamber of Commerce asked that revenue bonds be explained to them.

"When some of them understood that the bonds will actually lower taxes instead of raise them, they had second thoughts about objecting to Wal-Mart," Young said.

"I wanted to put the question about the bonds on the questionnaire, but Dr. Clark didn't think it (would be) wise. He felt people were too uninformed to make a good answer."

Chamber in favor of student input

by Jeanne Patterson

Members of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce are looking forward to having Eastern students represented in the group, chamber President Martin Owens said.

"Eastern is a member of the board and a great resource to the commerce. We are looking very forward to student participation," Owens said.

Eastern's student government recently paid $40 in membership fees for a seat on the board.

Bob Erio, student senate administrative assistant for collective bargaining, and Student Body President Terry Teele will attend chamber meetings each month.

Erio will be the student representative and will work on problems that affect students living off campus.

"Eastern has approximately 80 students living in the Charleston Holiday Inn," Erio said. "I'd like to let them have a voice in the Chamber of Commerce when problems arise."

"We are a major part of this community," Teele said. "It's about time the students and the community accept one another as a part of Charleston."

Owens explained that the Chamber of Commerce serves as an "umbrella organization" for Charleston area residents as well as students.

"It is funded by membership which includes various individuals, businesses, doctors, lawyers, CPAs and other members of the community," he said.

Teele noted that the Chamber of Commerce helps businesses in a number of ways. Constructive criticism from the chamber, for example, can help businesses improve.

"The chamber also opens the doors of communication between Charleston and the student community," Teele added.

In addition, the Chamber of Commerce publishes Who, What, Where, a book that provides information on the city and its highlights.

In the publication, the chamber lists some of its main functions. These include providing information to businesses and area residents on subjects such as business trends and taxes; acting as a spokesman for residents presenting individual points of view at legislative hearings and budget sessions; and attempting to draw new business into the city.

Faculty takes part in planning for future

by Brenda Davidson

Eastern's department chairmen and individual faculty members will be asked in about a month to participate in academic planning for the future, an Eastern administrator said Thursday.

"We want the department as a whole to examine the kind of service role it performs for students in other majors, in addition to satisfying general requirements," Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives said.

"Our hope is that individual faculty members as well as chairs involve themselves in effective planning for the future," he added.

Rives said the need to meet one of two financial possibilities makes the academic planning necessary.

"If the university does have additional money, the departments must determine how they will use it," he said. "If the university does not have additional money, the department must determine where it could best afford to take the cut in its needs."

The data to be collected for the planning will come from individual departments, 10th-day student rosters and from the planning and budgeting office, Rives said.

"We will ask the departments to assess their highest priority needs whether it is equipment, staff or something else," Rives explained. This information will form Eastern's external needs.

The actual forms and data the departments will use are still being compiled, he said. The departments will receive the forms and begin to assess their needs in about a month.

'Horseplay' leaves two injured

by Denise Skowron

Two Eastern students were treated and released for injuries Tuesday night at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center following an incident involving a broken glass door in the Fine Arts Building, a campus police official said.

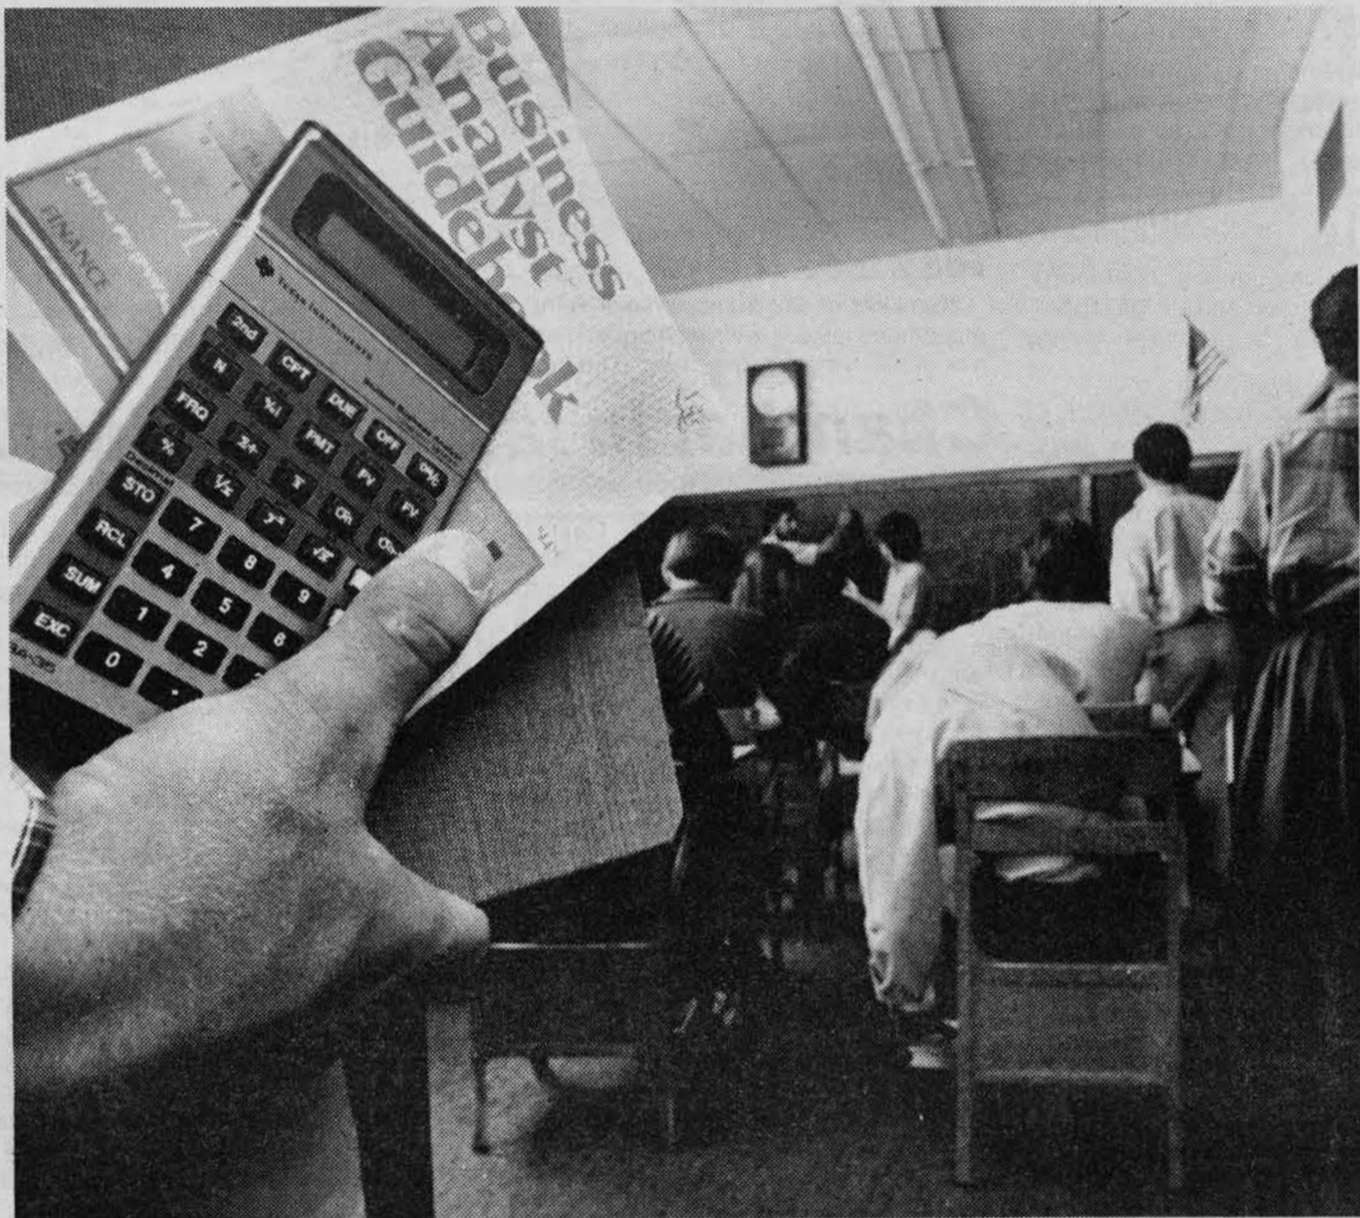

Capt. Jack Chambers, investigator for campus police, said both students, Eric Mason and Charles Williams, were injured after the glass door of the Fine Arts Building Room 13 was broken at 10 p.m. from what "started out as horseplay."

Both students had attended a meeting in the building before the door was broken, he added.

Chambers said the damages totaled $80, but added, "Since I don't see any criminal intent, I'm going to turn it over to the Judicial Affairs (Office) and they can seek restitution. I don't expect any charges to be filed at this point."

Director of Judicial Affairs Keith Kohanzo explained that Eastern's judicial system "deals with alleged infractions of university behavioral standards" but he could make no comment on what action might be taken in the case.

Geologist to talk on exploration

Petroleum exploration and chemical exploration will be the focus for a set of lectures to be given by William Harrison, a geologist-geoscientist.

Harrison's first lecture, "Tar Sands," will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Physical Science Building Room 322. Alan Baharlou, geography and geology department chairman said.

Harrison, who was formerly employed as exploration geologist with Shell Oil Co., will discuss the processes involved in extracting petroleum and the potential of tar sand for petroleum exploration, Baharlou said.

"Geochemical Exploration for Stratigraphic Traps," Harrison's second lecture, will be at 9 a.m. Friday in the Physical Science Building Room 322, he added.

During that lecture, Harrison will explain "the latest and most sophisticated methods for discovery of the most difficult oil traps," Baharlou said.

Harrison's lectures, which are open to the public, are being sponsored by Eastern's Geoscience Club, he added.

Group schedules organizational meeting

The Women's Student Caucus, an informal interest group for Eastern students, has scheduled an organizational meeting Thursday, Chairman Mel Parrott said.

Parrott said the Women's Student Caucus is a broad interest group for all students, not just women, although the group tries to meet the needs of women students.

The group plans to schedule conscience-raising seminars on topics which relate to all students, Parrott said.

In addition, the Women's Student Caucus will be working on the possibility of having on-campus mail depositories installed in the Union, Parrott said.

The Women's Student Caucus will meet at 4 p.m. in the Women's Resource Center located in the Union.

RHA to discuss haunted house schedule

Plans to schedule a haunted house on campus during the week of Halloween will be the main business for discussion at the Residence Hall Association meeting Thursday, RHA President Lynn Vokac said.

Location of the haunted house will be decided at the meeting and the sites include Pemberton Hall, where it has been in previous years, or Fox College State Park, Vokac said.

RHA members also will continue discussing Eastern's Whistlestop program. At previous meetings, RHA decided to order more whistles, bringing the total of whistles available to 455.

The whistles will be sold to students for use in summoning help in case of an accident or attack.

The meeting is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Stevenson Tower.

Committee to be chosen to review probation policy

by Audrey Dumentat

A subcommittee will be appointed to investigate Eastern's policies on academic probation, dismissal and readmission at Thursday's meeting of the Council on Academic Affairs.

The three-member subcommittee will review the current policies and proposed changes in the policies and is then expected to make a recommendation for a new policy by Sept. 30.

CAA student member Susan Grah recently proposed a change in Eastern's probation policy which would allow students who have completed 15 semester hours or less to have a grade point average of 1.70, while a student who has between 16 and 30 semester hours to maintain a GPA of 1.85. A student who has accumulated more than 30 semester hours must maintain a minimum GPA of 2.0.

Currently, Eastern's academic probation policy places students on academic probation if their GPA falls below 2.0.

In addition, Grah's proposal would reduce academic probation from two semesters to one.

Any policy changes would be published in Eastern's 1983-1984 general catalog and would affect all new students, CAA Chairman David Buchanan said.

The CAA also will discuss its procedure for the approval of proposed honors courses.

The proposed courses are not new but are enriched sections of existing courses. Therefore, the basic courses have already been approved by the departments.

Presently, the CAA does not go through departmental and college curriculum committees for approval of new honors courses, Buchanan said.

Any possible changes in the procedure will not affect existing honors courses.

"I don't get any feeling from CAA members that we should go back and change any courses," Buchanan said.

In other action, the CAA will discuss the content of an experimental course in political science and the proposal of independent studies in sociology and anthropology.

A non-teaching interdisciplinary minor in anthropology and a new course in history also will be proposed, Buchanan added.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Tuscola Room.

CIPS gives aid recipients break

by Len Krasnowski

Students who live off-campus and receive Social Security or Veterans Administration benefits are eligible for a 10-day extension after the due date on their electric bill, a Central Illinois Public Service official said Tuesday.

Reg Ankrom, CIPS public service information supervisor, said the "preferred payment date" program allows students who receive benefit checks after the bill due date to set a later date for payment.

The program lets the customer decide when to pay his bill according to the date he receives his benefit check, Ankrom added.

Students who may be eligible for the preferred payment program are those who receive benefits that usually do not arrive in the mail until the second or third day of the month, and have a bill due at the end of the previous month.

"We want to try to eliminate the penalty," Ankrom said, referring to the five percent penalty charged for late payments.

Students who think they may be able to participate in the program should visit the Charleston CIPS office, 614 Sixth St., and verify the date of the arrival of their check, Ankrom added.

Norm Spear, a superintendent at the Charleston CIPS office, said, "There are six categories of public, state and federal aid that qualify for this program."

Of these six, only two are received by Eastern students—Social Security and VA benefits.

Eligibility for the preferred payment date program does not require a special age category, which makes students eligible, Spear said.

Chicago City Ballet to perform Thursday

The University Board's performing arts committee will host a performance of the Chicago City Ballet Thursday.

The ballet company will perform at a children's matinee for Charleston grade school students at 1 p.m. Thursday and for students and the general public at 8 p.m. in Dvorak Concert Hall in the Fine Arts Building, Diane Capranica, UB performing arts coordinator, said.

Tickets for the performance are $1.25 for the general public and free to students when they present their validated Eastern I.D. cards.

Advanced tickets are available from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Union Box Office and also may be purchased between 7 and 8 p.m. Thursday at the door, Capranica said.

The performance is being sponsored by the Illinois Special Events Commission.

Field hockey team ready for action despite stolen net

by Denise Skowron

Although two field hockey nets were stolen recently, the women's field hockey team will be able to play its first home game Saturday.

However, due to the theft of the two nets, the team will not use the nets during practice, but only during games.

Women's field hockey coach Beth Reichel said in a letter to The Daily Eastern News Monday that a new net would be difficult to order and receive in time for the team's first home game Saturday.

However, John McLaughlin, women's sports information director, said a pair of new nets were ordered immediately following the disappearance of the first net and they arrived early this week.

Although only one net needed replacement when the order was placed, two were ordered because they can only be purchased in pairs, McLaughlin said.

Reichel said the second net was reported missing on the same day the order arrived. "We were really lucky we ordered two."

Reichel said the first net was reported missing Sept. 6, while the second net was discovered missing Tuesday and as a result, the nets will be taken down after each game.

McLaughlin said Ball State University's field hockey team takes down its nets following each game as a precaution against theft or vandalism.

"But that's Indiana," he said. "I kind of thought that here in Charleston you shouldn't have to take a net down after each game."

Women's Field Hockey Co-Captain Mary Ohl said it takes about one hour to properly erect a hockey net. The first net was "undone" loop by loop, she added, but the second net was apparently cut down.

Both nets have cost the university $127, McLaughlin said.

Local Help Line lends kind ear when needed

by Erin Powers

Students in need of understanding with no one to talk to can seek help from the Charleston Help Line.

The Help Line is a service organization run by volunteers and funded entirely by the United Way. It has been in operation in Coles County for eight and one-half years.

"Three-fourths of the volunteer workers are Eastern students," Virginia Davis, Help Line coordinator, said.

Davis said some of the students volunteer in conjunction with psychology and sociology classes while others just want the experience.

Rape victims, victims of domestic violence, persons contemplating suicide, and those suffering from loneliness can call the Help Line at 345-2162 in Charleston, or 235-4179 in Mattoon from 3 p.m. to midnight daily.

Individuals calling the Help Line for assistance may be referred to another service organization which specializes in their type of problem, she said.

Help Line cooperates with other organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous, the Hour House (a center for alcohol and drug rehabilitation), Coles County Women Against Rape, the Mental Health Service, Family Planning, Parents Anonymous, and the Central Illinois Food Bank, Davis said.

"Help Line sits at the hub of the wheel. We send calls out which make up the spokes of the wheel," Davis said.

Davis also said the Help Line helps to create new programs by reporting what the county needs.

"Coles County is the model county in the United States in services offered to its residents," Davis said.

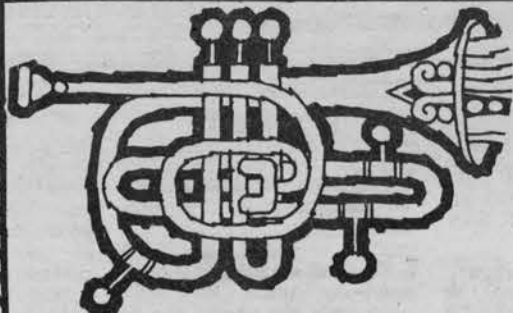

In emergency cases, the Help Line has a telephone bridge line to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center.

The Help Line is also the Coles County rape number. Callers may remain anonymous and may or may not speak with police, she said.

More workers are needed to operate the Help Line. Anyone interested in volunteering should contact Davis at 345-5974.

Volunteers receive two and one-half hours of intensive training. After training, workers are assigned to one shift per week. The shifts are 3 to 5 p.m., 5 to 7 p.m., 7 to 9 p.m., and 9 p.m. to midnight.

"Conflicts that arise in work hours can be ironed out—we're flexible," Davis said.

Men harriers seek top efforts

by Rhea Nall

Eastern's men's cross country team will be out to avenge last season's 16-44 setback to Purdue Friday when the Panthers face the Boilermakers in West Lafayette, Ind.

"We have to get up and go after them. And even if we don't win we can come away with a good feeling after last season," assistant cross country coach Tom Akers said. "This is a really good meet to get us going for the season."

Purdue dominated the Panthers last year in placing four runners before Eastern's first runner finished. This time around, Akers said that even though Purdue is tough he doesn't see the total domination they showed last year.

"Purdue will be a very tough team to beat," Akers said. "Last time they really dominated us, but that shouldn't happen this year with our top three runners (Perry Edinger, John Gassman, and Tim Warneke) being strong."

Akers added he expects his team to show improvement from their 27-28 win over Southeast Missouri last Friday. In addition, Akers said he is hoping to correct the team "packing" problem.

"We cut back on mileage this week so we should be fresh and should have everyone improve their times," Akers said. "We will hopefully correct our mistake in the last two meets of getting our middle runners spread out in the first and second mile."

Akers added that it will take a total team effort from his squad Friday to beat Purdue.

"We have got to cut down the gap between our number three and four runners. There is about a minute gap between them which is just too much," Akers said. "For our team to be successful we have to a good effort from all of our runners."

STRIDER NOTES...The meet which was scheduled as a triangular has been changed to a dual meet. Indiana State was scheduled to participate in the meet but had to withdraw due to financial problems... Nick Whiteside and Bob Beine will not run in Friday's meet due to injuries. Whiteside is sidelined for three weeks with a separated shoulder and Beine is out due to a bruised shoulder.

Television suit filed against NCAA

OKLAHOMA CITY AP - A federal judge has thrown out the college television contracts negotiated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, holding that the NCAA had violated antitrust laws in selling game rights to television networks.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga of Albuquerque, N.M., filed in the federal court here Wednesday, held that the individual colleges may sell their football rights to television and prohibits the NCAA headquarters in suburban Kansas City said the organization's lawyers would seek an immediate stay of the order through the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

After holding that "the right to telecast college football games is the property of the institutions participating in the games, and that right may be sold or assigned by those institutions to any entity at their discretion," Burciaga ordered that:

"The contracts for the televising of college football for the 1982-1985 seasons between National Collegiate Athletic Association and American Broadcasting Companies, Columbia Broadcast System and Turner Broadcast system violate ... the Sherman Antitrust Act ... and are therefore void and of no effect."

He also enjoined the NCAA, "its officers, agents and employees," from attempting to keep member institutions from selling their football TV rights.

The suit was brought against the NCAA by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association. They claimed the NCAA violates the Sherman Antitrust Act in controlling the televising of college football and asked Burciaga to allow them to make their own deals despite the NCAA's $263.5 million contracts with ABC, CBS, and Turner.

Sox win toss in case of tie

NEW YORK (AP)— The Chicago White Sox and the Milwaukee Brewers won coin tosses Wednesday and will get the home field advantage in one-game playoffs should the American League division races end in ties.

The White Sox, in third place in the American League West, won flips with both the front-running Kansas City Royals and second-place California Angels and will host playoff games on Monday, Oct. 4 tie, the game will be played in Kansas City.

In the event of a three-way tie, Kansas City would play at Chicago on Oct. 4 and the winner would host California on Oct. 5.

In the East, the first-place Brewers would be at home on Oct. 4 to Boston or Baltimore. A Red-Sox-Oriole playoff would take place at Boston's Fenway Park.

In a three-way playoff, Milwaukee would be at Boston on Oct. 4 and the winner would be the home team against Baltimore the next day.

Orioles tighten pennant race in AL East

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Baltimore Orioles, tightening the American League East pennant race notch by notch, are on another September streak - their 13th red-hot season climax in Manager Earl Weaver's 15 seasons.

Following a doubleheader sweep of the New York Yankees Tuesday night, Orioles had compiled an 11-3 record since the beginning of the month and narrowed the Milwaukee Brewers' division lead to a game and a half.

Weaver, who will retire as the Baltimore manager at the end of the season, said Wednesday the Orioles' streak follows simple baseball logic: "In September, you're using the people less who are not so hot. You settle on the people who are having success."

Still, Weaver added, "When a team is winning, everyone out there is doing a job. One or two people can't do it."

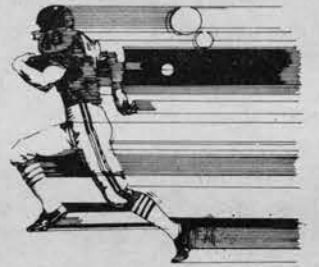

Weaver indicated he may miss the joys and rigors of the stretch run next year.

"Pennant races are trying," Weaver said. "But you want to be in it. That's the object of the whole season, why you put the uniform on at the beginning of spring training."

Team spirit is surging along with batting averages and the won-less percentages in this year's version of the patented stretch drive.

"They've always played well in September," said team spokesman John Blake. "This is going to be back to the '60s."

Harriers will test talent at ISU meet

by Kirby Flowers

Eastern's women's cross country team will face some national powers Saturday at the 20-team Illinois State invitational at Normal.

The meet includes the University of Iowa and the University of Missouri, teams which Eastern head coach John Craft said are favorites to contend for meet honors. Purdue and Indiana State are also entered.

"The University of Iowa and Missouri are always tough," Craft said. "Purdue and Indiana State, both of which beat us last week, will also be strong."

Purdue, a tough early season unit, took last week's meet easily while Indiana State edged Eastern by two points.

"The competition is going to be really tough, but we have been working hard this week. "We are excited about the upcoming meet," Craft said.

"We placed fifth in the contest last year and are hoping to at least match that performance," Craft added.

The key to the harriers' success this year and Saturday will rest on the performances of Gina Sperry and Margaret Smith, Craft said.

"Gina and Margaret are the heart of our team," Craft said. "They work out together and push each other to become better runners. The teams' success depends a lot on these two."

Craft said his squad has been working hard the past few days and that they are anxious to see what they can do on Illinois State's course.

"ISU's course is the type of route we like to run on," Craft said. "The course is smooth with few hills and should improve our times.

"The girls have really pushed themselves in practice the past three days," Craft said. "Now we will lighten up a bit and rest for the meet."

Craft said he believes that regardless of the course the times of his runners will continue to get better.

"The girls are building on their times from one week to the next," Craft said.

"The girls show a lot of spirit and determination during practice as well as meets," Craft added.

Staple, Nixon notch spots in NCAA rankings

by John Humenik

Despite having to struggle at times this season, Eastern's football team is statistically close to where head coach Darrell Mudra said he thought his team would be after two games.

Consequently, Mudra said he was not surprised Wednesday when the Panthers received seven National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I-AA rankings in the NCAA's weekly survey.

"We're really pleased with the rankings, but I think we're even more happy that we got through the first two games," Mudra said. "We all feel good, but we weren't surprised."

Running back junior transfer Wes Nixon and Kevin Staple each received two of the Panthers' rankings, while cornerback Randy McCue also notched a ranking. Eastern ranked in rushing offense and in kickoff returns.

Nixon ranked 11th in all-purpose running with 342 yards for a 171 average per game. Nixon was three yards short of ranking eighth on the list. Staple placed 21st with a 143.5 average and 287 total yards.

Leading all Division I-AA runners was Jeff Sanders from William and Mary with a 303 average after one game. Northern Illinois' Pete Roth ranked 10th with a 172 average.

Nixon also ranked eighth in kickoff returns with a 27.2 average. Nixon has registered 136 yards in two games. Heading the list is Lamar's Herbert Harris with a 39.7 average.

Staple, who jumped from sixth to fourth on Eastern's all-time rushing list Saturday, was ranked eighth by the NCAA in rushing with 266 yards and a 133-yard average.

Jerry Butler from Southeast Louisiana ranked the best with a 172 average after one game. Roth also ranked 11th in rushing with a 128

McCue's three interceptions this season ranked him 13th among I-AA cornerbacks. Louisiana Tech's Doyle Adams ranked first with two interceptions after one game this season. Southern Illinois-Carbondale's Terry Taylor ranked ninth on the list.

As a team, Eastern ranked eighth in rushing offense with 239.5 yards a game. Massachusetts ranked the best with a 327 average.

In addition, the Panthers ranked ninth in kickoff returns by averaging 25.3 yards a game. Miami of Ohio fared the best with a 55.5 average. Akron, an Eastern opponent, ranked sixth with a 27.3 average.

Mudra said the rankings can ruin a team, because some players take them too seriously.

He added that the Panthers may have been thinking about the statistics too much in their victories over Illinois State and Northeast Missouri.

"I really don't think they mean a lot," Mudra said. "However, I think the players worry about them too much. The best thing now is to let the stats take care of themselves."

"We're pleased and we hope we'll have people up there at the end of the season," Mudra added. "The major thing we need to concentrate on is not allowing some areas to get better than others like our rushing as compared to our passing game."

PANTHER NOTES...The Mid-Continent Conference rankings come out following Saturday's contests and the Panthers are likely to lead in many categories...The MCC season opened last Saturday with Northern Iowa defeating Southwest Missouri 10-0...Following their game with Wayne State Saturday, the Panthers will open MCC play at Northern Iowa Sept. 25...Starting weakside linebacker Reggie Taylor is out for approximately three weeks with a broken hand...The Panthers have yet to lose a fumble after two games.

Spikers seek revenge at SIU invitational

by Susan McCann

Eastern's volleyball team will have the opportunity to avenge two 1981 defeats Friday during the Saluki Invitational at Carbondale.

The Panthers open the five-team tournament with a 4:30 p.m. match against SIU-Carbondale, followed by a 6:30 p.m. meeting with Missouri.

The spikers lost to both squads last season, dropping a 15-9, 2-15, 3-15 decision to the Salukis and falling to Missouri by a 9-15, 3-15 score.

The University of Louisville and Memphis State will also be represented at the tournament and will square off with the Panthers at 10 a.m. and noon Saturday, respectively.

Eastern coach Carol Gruber, whose team boasts a 6-1 record, picked the Salukis as the team to beat at the tournament, but she said her squad has prepared to defend against Southern's strength.

"We're going to try and block as much as possible," Gruber said. "If we can take away their strong middle attack and dig well, we'll put the ball back across the net. Hopefully, we can tire them out."

The Salukis, who sport a 4-2 record entering Thursday's match with Minnesota, are paced by senior Sonya Locke, who Southern coach Debbie Hunter described as "SIU's most physically skilled player of all time," and "one of the top 30 collegians nationally."

Locke, an AIAW All-American last season, has chalked up an outstanding 57 kills in only 132 attempts to lead her squad offensively.

Junior Mary Maxwell anchors the Carbondale defense and Bonnie Norrenberns boasts an excellent serve. She notched 11 aces last season, while committing only 37 errors in 544 serving attempts.

Inside Seeking revenge

When Eastern's men's cross country team meets tough Purdue Friday, the harriers will be out to avenge last year's defeat to the Boilermakers.

Season's styles dressier for men

by Dana Eastridge

Old jeans and T-shirts just might be on the way out of fashion, local men's clothiers said, who agreed the in-look for fall is definitely dressier than last year's styles for men.

"People are dressing up more this year," Sue Leathers, manager of Dale Bayles on Campus in University Village on Lincoln Avenue, said.

Rick Ross, manager of Ross Clothiers, located in the Cross County Mall in Mattoon, agreed. "The excitement is in sport coats this year."

"We're selling more slacks than jeans. Jeans are still important, but slacks are really coming on," Ross said. "We've got a lot of tweeds and herringbones showing with cords and sweaters."

Dale Bayles' salesclerks also are selling a lot of fashionable wool sport coats to be worn with flannel pants, Leathers said.

Ross added that many students are buying sport coats to wear to parties or on dates with jeans or corduroys. As the fall weather becomes cooler, a sweater can be added under the coat.

Earthy colors, including khaki, green and brown, are the style for men to wear in the fall, Ross said.

However, Leathers said maroon-colored shirts and sweaters are making a comeback and gray also is popular, while colors in men's casual clothes are more pastel.

"Pastels are selling like hotcakes...lavender, yellow, light blue and white in T-shirts and sweats," she said.

A new feature in men's casual wear this year is "workouts," Leathers said. "They're very casual cotton twill (material) with an elastic waist...very comfortable."

She added that painters pants and Levis are "still going strong."

Bertie Sprietler, manager of the Sycamore Shop in the Charleston Plaza on Lincoln Avenue, said, "We're showing a lot of the collegiate look."

Jeans and pants have a straighter leg and shirts have an Oxford collar, she added.

Leathers agreed that the more-dressy Oxford collars are popular. "Button downs are almost all you see," and monogramed sweaters are becoming fashionable among men.

Style key for women: variety

by Dana Eastridge

Variety is the key word for women's fashions this fall with "in" styles ranging from business-like suits to lacy Victorian blouses, local women's clothing store managers agreed.

"Suits for women are making a great comeback this year," Bertie Sprietler, manager of the Sycamore Shop in the Charleston Plaza on Lincoln Avenue, said. "They (suits) have a short jacket worn with an A-line skirt."

Kathleen Downs, manager of Ruthie's, a new women's clothing store in University Village on Lincoln Avenue, said, "The prairie skirt is pretty popular now. It's a real full skirt worn mid-length between the knee and ankle, and it has a type of petticoat under it that hangs about an inch below the skirt."

Another popular item this fall is the tuxedo look in pants and shirts,

The pants are straight-legged, zipped in the back and have a cummerbund waistband that "helps make the waist look super-small," she added.

She said that while tuxedo pants with satin waistbands are for dressy occasions, the same style also can be found in a cotton material to be worn casually.

Ruthie's carries five or six styles of blouses to be worn with tuxedo pants, Downs said.

Skirt lengths this fall can range from mid-calf to an inch below the knee, Sprietler said, while Downs agreed, adding, "Mini(skirt)'s are going to try to come back."

In other skirt fashions, circle skirts have replaced pleated skirts, Sprietler said, adding straight and A-line skirts are still in style and jumpers are making a strong comeback.

Taffeta dresses and skirts are very fashionable for more dressy occasions. The skirts are worn with "real feminine, real lacy blouses with high necks—real frilly," Downs said.

Colors in women's fashions are bright and vivid, including jade and red, Sprietler said, adding, however, that "a lot of black is being shown" and stripes are in.

Casual wear for fashionable women means at least one new look for fall. Long sweaters, "like sweater dresses," worn with tights or straight-legged jeans are in style, Downs said.
