Let's get fired up

The cause of a fire that broke out at 714 Fourth St. Sunday is still under investigation. Firefighters battled the blaze, which destroyed much of the front portion of the vacant house, for several hours. The fire, which started at about 2 p.m., was reported by a Liberty Cable Co. employee. The structure is owned by Robert Livingston (News photos by Brian Ormiston)

DOC official: work-release will bring jobs

by Kevin McDermott

The Illinois Department of Corrections' proposed work-release program for Charleston will eventually be accepted by the community if it is housed here, a DOC official said Monday.

DOC Public Information Officer Nic Howell said the current outcry in Charleston against the program will end if the state decides to locate the program here.

"Everybody is in favor of locking up criminals," Howell said, "but nobody wants a work-release program near them."

Howell added, however, "the community will respond favorably once we're there, and they see the positive effect...of a virtually free work force."

Howell said the program will create jobs for local residents in numbers "from double digits to triple digits," depending on the size of the facility.

"Many people are needed to staff a work-release program," Howell said. "Everything from security to office work to cooking."

Howell added that communities which house work-release programs soon forget that the program exists.

"The release program is not a new concept," Howell said. "Some of these facilities have been around for as long as 20 years."

The state-wide program was first discussed at a Charleston city council meeting two weeks ago, at which Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer explained to the council that the program would house non-violent inmates during the last six months of their sentences.

The prisoners would be housed in a local building at night, and released during the day to do work around the city. At this time, the proposed Charleston location is the old Hickman Ford garage at 1600 Lincoln Ave.

However, education officials have objected to prisoners being housed in the Hickman Ford garage because it is near Charleston High School, as well as a junior high school and an elementary school.

Howell said he could not go into the specifics about the Charleston proposal because it might jeopardize future negotiations with property owners as well as other procedures which will need to be conducted if Charleston is chosen as a site for the program.

Inmates involved in the program are in the last months of their sentences, Howell said. "The concept of the work-release program is to gradually integrate an individual back into the community—a community which he'll be going back into soon anyway."

Other communities which now house work-release facilities include Aurora, Decatur and Carbondale, as well as several in Chicago, Howell said.

He added, "Charleston is only one of a number of places we're looking at."

The exact number of new facilities which will be set up in Illinois is still not known, he noted.

Petitioners think Pfeiffer decision brought attention to liquor problem

by Kevin McDermott

Three of the Charleston residents who signed a complaint against Gateway Liquors said they believe the recent hearing brought attention to the problem of underage drinking among college students.

The complaint was presented to Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer by Ron Tarvin, who rents to Eastern students, at a special hearing regarding the possible suspension of Gateway's license for selling liquor to minors. Tarvin was the only signer of the complaint who was present at the hearing.

The complaint alleged alcohol had been sold to minors at the store and requested that the store's liquor license be suspended for three days.

Pfeiffer later decided not to suspend the store's license. He said his decision was based on a specific format established to deal with liquor violations in a consistent manner.

Under the format, an employee selling liquor to a minor is fined $250 for the first offense, $500 for the second offense and the store involved is closed after the third offense.

William Wood, one of the petition's signers, said a "liquor problem" definitely exists in Charleston.

"The biggest cause lies in a mish-mash of procedures in handling liquor violations," he said.

However, Wood said he was "not dissatisfied" with the outcome of the hearing.

"I wasn't looking for a fine on (Gateway owner Jerry) Nikitas as much as an establishment of good city policy," he said.

"My hope was that having this infraction called to the public attention would set a precedent," he added.

Royce Marble, who also signed the complaint, said underage drinking by Eastern students is the "major (liquor) problem" in Charleston.

Marble attributed the problem to peer pressure. "It's become the thing to drink," he said Sunday.

Marble added that he was not disappointed with Pfeiffer's decision regarding the Gateway incident.

Although he said he believes the city's policy is too relaxed, he added, "If that's the policy, I don't think (the decision) was wrong.

"If you murder someone, you're breaking the law and you're punished," he said. "Why should (liquor laws) be any different?"

Royce added that he believes the policy of allowing a liquor store three offenses before suspending its license should be changed.

"If you're caught selling liquor to minors, you should lose your license (on the first offense)," he said.

Another Charleston resident who signed the complaint said that underage drinking is "probably not the major problem."

The resident asked not to be identified because she believes the Gateway issue is "a thing of the past," but she said she was anxious about the overall liquor problem in Charleston.

"I think the use of alcohol with large parties is a problem," she said, adding, "I'm not opposed to social drinking."

However, she said that she was not disappointed with the result of the hearing. "I think (Pfeiffer) took a good look at (the issue). We brought attention to it."

Gas explosion causes fatalities

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A natural gas explosion ripped through a crowded grocery store Monday, setting off a raging fire, and a sheriff's spokesman said many people were killed.

Bob Ellis, an administrative assistant with the Kanawha County sheriff's department, said rescue crews at the Foodland store were "projecting somewhere around 70 dead," but he said that "could vary by 20 or 30 either way."

He said the estimate was based on interviews with witnesses and the number of cars in the grocery store's parking lot.

"We can't give any number because we can't get into the building," he said. "The fire is still fully committed. It's being fed by a natural gas leak."

Lewis' trial jury selection begins

CHICAGO (AP)—Jury selection began Monday in the attempted extortion trial of James Lewis, who is accused of trying to exploit last year's Tylenol murders by demanding $1 million from Johnson & Johnson to "stop the killing."

U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr warned nearly 50 prospective jurors that Lewis, who recently was sentenced to 10 years in prison in an unrelated case, had not been charged in the Tylenol deaths.

"He's not charged with poisoning anybody," said McGarr. "You have to keep that very straight in your mind."

Outbreak of botulism suspected

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A suspected outbreak of botulism put 10 people in hospitals, three in critical condition, and health officials were studying the possibility Monday that tainted cheese, hamburger or pickles served at one restaurant may be to blame.

Seven of those stricken over the weekend were on respirators because of breathing difficulties, said officials of St. Francis Hospital and Methodist Medical Center. Seven of the 10 were in serious but stable condition.

All were being treated with an anti-toxin flown in from Washington, D.C.

The breathing difficulties are caused by paralysis, which is one symptom of botulism, said Alan Folkens, a microbiologist and bacteriologist at Methodist Hospital.

Reagan 'favorite' for re-election

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, still refusing to say whether he will run for re-election, became a presidential candidate Monday "in the eyes of the law," and his campaign chairman said he was "a solid favorite" to win.

The president signed two letters at his desk in the Oval Office. One authorized Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., to establish a campaign committee. A second informed the Federal Election Commission that he was "hereby authorizing this committee as my principal campaign committee..."

While Reagan refused to say whether he will seek a second term, his senior aides and advisers have said they have no doubts.

The president told reporters who witnessed the signing that he might announce his intentions "by the first of the year." Asked whether his signature in black ink on the letters meant that he was running, the president replied with a smile, "in the eyes of the law."

After the president signed the letters, Edward J. Rollins, his assistant for political affairs who is leaving the White House staff to direct the committee to re-elect Reagan and Vice President George Bush, said, "We're 100 percent confident the president is running."

Larry Speakes, the president's spokesman, said he interpreted the step Reagan took Monday to mean "he's running and the only thing that remains is the formal announcement."

Moslem slums site of outbreak

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Artillery and small-arms battles broke out Monday in Christian and Shiite Moslem slums south of Beirut, and U.S. Marines at the airport eased an alert and evacuated two wounded men from front-line bunkers.

Residents in Ain Rummaneh, a Christian area along the old "green line" that bisects Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors, reported a Lebanese army tank fired its cannon on the neighboring Shiite sector of Chiyah.

Sniper fire and artillery barrages also were reported in the surrounding Shiite areas of Bourj el-Barajneh, Sfeir, Metahan, Sannin and Barid.

There were no immediate reports of casualties. Smoke hung over Souk el-Gharb, the mountain-ridge town held by the Lebanese army above the Marine base, and the sound of heavy artillery and rockets could be heard from the airport below.

Mortar shells fell about a half-mile from Marine positions in the area between Lebanese army posts in Khalde and the Druse-controlled town of Shweifat.

Israel avoids stock market crash

JERUSALEM (AP)—The Israeli government and private banks reached an agreement Monday intended to avert a stock market crash. The head of the Stock Exchange said trading—halted for seven business days—will resume Thursday.

Deputy Premier David Levy, speaking on Israel radio, said the government agreed to guarantee 85 percent of the dollar value of the bank shares if they were held for five years.

Before the agreement, bank shares were expected to drop by 15 to 30 percent on the first day of resumed trading. Levy warned the public not to panic and sell their bank shares now that the government has underwritten their value.

Yossi Nitzani, general manager of the Stock Exchange, said on the radio that trading in bonds would resume Thursday and general share trading would begin again Sunday.

The stock market was closed after panicky Israelis, having lost faith in the country's economy, rushed to sell their stocks and buy foreign currency—especially dollars.

Bank shares account for more than half of the shares traded on the Tel Aviv stock exchange. Until this month's crisis, they had been considered a safe investment and a good hedge against Israel's inflation, now running at 131 percent annually.

President Rives 'meets the press'

by Linda Wagner

Eastern President Stanley Rives will greet the media and public through a "live-televised" press conference at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday from the Radio-Television Center studio.

Harry Read, Eastern's director of information and publication, said the conference will be telecast over Eastern's Liberty Cable Premium one, channel 12.

"We have never had a chance to do something like this before," he said. The program will be on the air for one-half hour but will continue until all questions from the media are answered.

The format of the conference is set up so that representatives from the various media may ask questions after Rives calls on them, Read said.

The conference will allow the new president a chance to get "acquainted with the media."

Media invited to the press conference include The Daily Eastern News, The Decatur Herald, The Charleston Times-Courier, Champaign channels 3 and 15, Decatur Channel 17, Terre Haute channels 2 and 10, WLBH Mattoon, WEIC Charleston and Eastern's campus radio station WELH.

John Beabout, director of Eastern's radio and television center, said the main reason for televising the conference "is to share things happening at the university with the community."

The press conference will be made into a "video-archive" for record keeping purposes, he added.

Anyone with a cable hook up will be given a "great opportunity" to gain first-hand knowledge through the live telecast.

Student security patrol idea to be discussed

by Jeff Connaughton

The campus security commission will meet Tuesday to discuss the possibility of implementing a student patrol to improve security on Eastern's campus.

Commission Chairman Meg Hart said Monday that the Eastern student patrol would consist of eight students patrolling the campus each night. Students would patrol Monday through Friday from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Four students would patrol the campus in two hour shifts, she said.

Student patrollers would be equipped with reflector vests, whistles and flashlights, she added.

Commission member Scott Helen said he is working on the possibility of having the student patrollers supplied with walkie talkies.

The commission will also discuss lighting conditions on campus, Hart said.

In other business, Hart said a meeting will be conducted for students interested in becoming student patrollers. The time and location of that meeting will be announced, she added.

The commission is scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. in the Union addition Casey room.

CAA controversy may be avoided

by Craig Gaumer

The recent controversy regarding the Faculty Senate's proposed restructuring of the Council on Academic Affairs may have been avoidable.

According to the current Faculty Senate constitution, the senate does not have the power to enact any legislation, such as their proposal to restructure the representative distribution on CAA.

The constitution states the senate exclusively has the power to make recommendations regarding any proposed changes of other university councils.

The CAA revision proposal, authored by senate member Lewis Coon, states the senate as "parent group to all university boards" has the power to restructure the CAA.

However, CAA chairman Pat Wright said the senate no longer supervises the CAA.

"Before 1980, the Faculty Senate served in that capacity," Wright said. "However, their input was dissolved three years ago and the only function that the Faculty Senate serves in relation to the council is in their capacity to conduct CAA faculty member elections."

Faculty Senate Chairman Richard Goodrick said that because of constitution revisions "the parental role of the senate was dissolved."

According to the new constitution, the Faculty Senate is the representative voice of the faculty except in matters involving collective bargaining. Collective bargaining matters are determined by the Board of Governors Regulations for Collective Bargaining by Academic Employees.

The constitution was rewritten in 1980 as a result of agreement by Eastern faculty to alter the role of senate.

The Faculty Senate's position as the top university council system was eliminated in the revised constitution by a Board of Governors' request to establish a structure of university committee equality.

However, the senate still retains a small portion of its former power.

The constitution does grant the senate power to initiate any recommendations and consider matters affecting the welfare of the university.

"It is Article II that gives us the power to consider Dr. Coon's proposal," Goodrick said. "We can decide if a proposal has any merit and take any appropriate action we deem necessary."

In addition, the constitution allows the senate to make recommendations to the university president, including the restructuring the CAA.

As a result, the proposal would then be subject the president's approval or rejection.

Newly-appointed Eastern President Stanley Rives said during his campus presidential interviews that he prefers the CAA structure as it currently stands.

With presidential search over, portrait search begins

In a drawing from a baby picture donated by an unidentified member of the Marvin family, note the development of the definitive feature that would mark him as a leader among men—the mustache on his forehead.

...In his later years, Marvin was influenced by parts of many great men—including Gregory Peck's chin.

The Presidential Portrait Committee is looking for an artist to paint a portrait of former President Daniel E. Marvin.

The committee is currently soliciting donations for the painting and about 35 schools and museums have been contacted for suggestions of artists, Committee Chairman Daniel Thornburgh said.

Other schools?!

Why contact other schools when obvious choices currently reside at Eastern? The Daily Eastern News' cartoon staff hereby offers their renditions for the committee's careful consideration. The photo above, taken when Marvin announced his resignation, serves as a reference for comparison.

...As indicated in this rendition, Marvin quickly matured in his position as president of Eastern Illinois University. He later resigned.

When Marvin is honored for his many achievements he will be cast in bronze. And as a tribute to his dedication and fortitude, an "eternal cigar" will forever burn.

Your turn

Column misses point

Editor:

I would like to take the time to reply to the Oct. 11 Personal file entitled "Crusader will give Charleston 'new image.'" The article, written by editorial page editor Gary Burrows, downgrades Ron Tarvin's efforts to get liquor and state ordinances enforced in Charleston. The advice from Burrows to Tarvin was to "grow up."

My first question is how did your Personal file get into publication? It is obviously written by a non-professional person who likes to use printed media to relay his own personal emotions. Says Burrows, "Will he not stop until he has run every college student out of Charleston?"

Without question, the entire point has been missed. Court records show a Gateway employee sold alcohol to a minor—for the second time within a year. A city resident testified at the hearing that her 15-year-old daughter, on a dare, bought alcohol at four different establishments on at least ten different occasions. This problem obviously doesn't just concern the Eastern students, who seem to take offense when compliance with the law is generally enforced.

For those who do take offense, think back about 18 months ago when two Eastern students were on trial for home invasion, aggravated battery and robbing an 81-year-old Charleston woman. Carlos Johnson and Paul Rathgeb had been illegally served alcohol, and with some marijuana, committed the acts. They tried to say they were so bombed because of the drugs' effects that they shouldn't have been held accountable for what they did. They are paying with 10- and 14-year prison terms.

Tarvin's point is well taken—as all he and many others want to see is the present laws being upheld. I don't think he wants all the students run out of town even if it could be done. I also hope these Personal files are a little more thought out and researched before hitting the paper.

OCSHA provides help

Editor:

We are writing this letter to inform the students of Eastern of an organization that can be of service to them. OCSHA, the Off-Campus Student Housing Association, provides many services such as answering questions dealing with off-campus living and any legal problems that might arise concerning their contracts.

OCSHA also offers a list of available housing, subleasees, and roommate request cards that are posted on the bulletin board in the Student Activities office in the Union.

Our goal is to provide a working relationship between students living off campus and the landlords and managers of Charleston off-campus housing.

Since this is OCSHA's second year as a student service we are working to establish a solid foundation. The recruitment of members is one of our goals at the present time. We invite anyone interested in becoming a member to come by the OCSHA office located in the Student Activities office (581-5522), or by attending our next meeting 6 p.m. Oct. 26 in the Union Martinsville room. We encourage everyone to take advantage of the services offered by OCSHA.

Rape group is a reality

Editor:

We would like to respond to the editorial concerning the reality of an anti-rape group on campus. We are currently student members of the Coles County Women Against Rape. This group is a reality. A portion of the editorial stated that "there has yet to be an intense campus-based attack on the problem of rape." We would like to share with you a few statistics regarding our work on campus during the 1982-83 academic school year.

- We presented 30 programs in which we spoke to over 1500 students on campus.

- We showed prevention movies, distributed brochures, and taught basic self-defense techniques.

- CCWAR has also helped to train resident assistants, hall counselors and other Eastern staff members.

- There are daily ads in the announcement section of The Daily Eastern News.

We want Eastern students to know that our organization, which was formed in 1977, is a reality and provides free and confidential help. If you would like someone from CCWAR to speak to a group or organization, or if you or anyone you know has been sexually assaulted, please call CCWAR at 345-2162 between 3 p.m. and midnight.

Zap nuclear compact

Editor:

For those of us who live in rural areas, Illinois' membership in the Midwest Nuclear Waste Compact poses a serious threat to us and our future generations' health and safety. This compact, which would dispose of radioactive waste by shallow-land burial, could create another—or several additional—Sheffields here, as Illinois is likely to be chosen as "host" state.

These wastes, called "low-level," are actually a highly toxic mix; they include plutonium and uranium isotopes which remain toxic for several thousand years.

It is time to contact our state senators and urge them to vote against State Bill 1081.

Fraternity conducts campus-wide energy use audit

by Becky Tinder
and Don Leonard

A professional energy management group, Beta Tau Upsilon fraternity, is currently conducting an energy audit of Eastern in hopes of making students more aware of energy consumption on campus.

Abdol Gholamnezhad, Beta Tau Upsilon adviser, said group members will make recommendations to students on how to avoid wasting energy.

Marty Ignazito, coordinator of the energy conservation task force and assistant Physical Plant director, said the energy audit is "the inventory of building equipment in use."

Ignazito said the auditors will be looking for solar potential, lighting, heating, ventilation, air conditioning and how well campus buildings contain their energy.

In addition, he said the audit "is more than what one person can handle, and it would be too expensive to hire professionals."

Mike Berauer, Beta Tau Upsilon fraternity member, agreed that Eastern will pay less money to have the fraternity work on the project. It would cost more to have professionals conduct the audit, he said.

Ignazito said he suggested the fraternity take on the energy audit project.

He said the energy auditors will receive a valuable educational experience and they will also receive funds that will be used for fraternity activities, such as speakers, trips and energy awareness week.

"Since we have these people on campus that are studying this particular thing, I figured that it would be a good idea if we had them do it. After all, they would be participating in part of a learning experience that happens to be something that needs to be done," he said.

Ignazito said the audit "was something that had to be done."

"If the university wants to apply for grants from the state, we have to have a copy of the audit on file," he added.

In addition, George Miller, vice president for administration and finance said the project would qualify Eastern for federal monies from the institutional grants program.

Ignazito said the energy audit will be conducted on weekday afternoons and on some weekends.

He noted that group members will be wearing badges that will indicate they are with the energy audit.

In addition, the Physical Plant will give assistance, information and the use of their facility to the audit group, Ignazito said.

No party arrests this weekend

No party-related arrests occurred in Charleston this weekend, Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said Monday.

The lack of party-related arrests this weekend is "unusual," Johnson said. "Maybe the kids are trying to work with us."

"We advised them to quiet down and they did," he noted.

"I think the students are seeing the light. We don't want to arrest them but—if we're pushed into a corner—we've got to," he said.

However, Johnson said the department received two or three complaints regarding loud noise. The complaints were not serious and mainly involved loud stereos, he added.

Yearbook receives sign-up fee approval

by Peter Swanberg

The Publications Board on Thursday approved a $2 yearbook registration fee that will be implemented this year.

David Reed, student publications adviser, said the additional $2 will help override rising costs, while registration will show how many yearbooks will have to be ordered.

Board Chairman Daniel Thornburgh said that last year 6,500 yearbooks were printed and 200 to 300 were left over.

Reed said, "There's no way we can accurately predict just how many students will want yearbooks. In the past we've just gone by how many were taken in previous years."

Last year, the yearbook cost $3.50 and was primarily funded through student activity fees and revenue from photography, he said.

Even with a $2 registration fee, Eastern's yearbook is still less expensive than yearbooks at other universities, he noted. "Our system (taking money from student activity fees) makes it a great deal less expensive."

For instance, he said, Western Illinois University students pay $18 to $20 for a yearbook.

Warbler Adviser Mary Wohlrabe said the yearbook registration should begin within the next few weeks and be completed by Nov. 11 so publications deadlines can be met.

In other business, elected as Publications Board officers were Thornburgh, chairman; Kim Ward, vice chairman; and Denise Skowron, secretary.

Faculty Senate

Executive session slated

The Faculty Senate will meet in executive session Tuesday to discuss Affirmative Action and obtain "a better understanding" of the program, Senate Chairman Richard Goodrick said Monday.

Judith Anderson, of Eastern's Affirmative Action office, will discuss the program, Goodrick said. Affirmative Action ensures "everybody has equal chance" when applying for staff or faculty positions, he said.

The senate has to move into executive session because members will discuss "specific instances (concerning personnel) when Affirmative Action has or has not been used."

The Faculty Senate meeting is scheduled for 3:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville room.

UB to discuss concert success

The University Board Tuesday will discuss results of the Tubes and The Romantics concert, Acting Chairman Nancy Martin said.

"John (Karol), concert coordinator, will give us the results from the concert and tell us whether or not it was a success," she said.

Karol said although he had not received the financial results of the concert, he said he believed the results were "good."

The UB is scheduled to meet at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Paris room.

Charleston council to vote on resolution concerning lighting

The Charleston City Council will vote on a resolution concerning street lighting at its regular meeting on Tuesday.

In addition, the council will discuss resolutions concerning the Division Street railroad crossing and street closings for Halloween.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Council Chambers.

Tae kwon do self-defense class offered

by Diane Nowak

What would you call a sport that is somewhat like karate and somewhat like kung fu? Tae kwon do.

Robert's School of Tae Kwon Do, 219 Sixth St., opened three months ago and offers classes in tae kwon do, a sport owner of the school Kevin Roberts said can be used for self-defense and exercise.

Roberts said tae kwon do is a style of karate from Korea using joint locks and about 80 percent kicking. It is a little different from karate and judo because it does not require the hand techniques of karate or the throws of judo, he added.

"It builds the body and mind together through concentration," he said.

In addition, tae kwon do can be useful in developing self-control and temper control, he added. "One can learn to concentrate and deal with it (anger) rationally."

Steve Roberts, Kevin's brother, and Eastern student Hoe Yoon also help out with the classes. Yoon has two degrees in black belt, Roberts said.

Roberts said he hopes the class encourages people not to fight. "I think it is important to teach peace in the world today."

Roberts said that he first taught for the Charleston Recreation Department and most of his students are from the recreation center.

Tae kwon do is taught to people of all ages, he said. Some aspects of the sport are learned individually, while other aspects such as self-defense are learned with a partner, he said.

Roberts said students may take one free session before they permanently register for the class. "I wouldn't want someone to get into something they don't want to get into," he added.

The tae kwon do classes cost about $30 a month, but fewer class sessions can be taken for a lower price, Roberts said.

The classes are conducted at various times Monday through Friday.

Teachers report progress in strike talks

CHICAGO (AP)—As the Chicago teachers' strike entered its third week Monday, negotiators for the first time reported some progress in a wage dispute that has kept 436,000 students sidelined in the nation's third-largest school district.

Representatives of the school board and the Chicago Teachers Union returned to the bargaining table at noon Monday. Following a five-hour Sunday session, Jacqueline Vaughn, CTU vice president, said, "There has been some progress, and we're happy that we're talking."

It was the first time since the strike began Oct. 3 that union leaders reported any progress. But none elaborated on what it was.

The two sides remained far apart on the salary question, but the gap has closed a little. The board has raised its offer from 0.5 percent to 1 percent, and the union has lowered its demand from 10 percent to 9 percent.

The board maintains that any salary increase beyond that already offered will require non-salary contract concessions: cutting medical benefits and increasing class size, which would result in the firing of teachers.

The union has vowed not to make any concessions.

Teachers will miss a scheduled payday Friday but will be eligible for some financial help from the union. The CTU's credit union will offer interest-free $500 loans, and payments will not be due until four months after the walkout ends, said union spokesman Chuck Burdeen.

"I'm weakening financially but not mentally," said Mary Melody, a high school history teacher.

Brenda Ford, a fourth-grade teacher, said, "I'm hurting right now. I'm not able to buy anything. It's a subsistence living."

She said teachers have no choice but to continue striking unless they get what they want.

"It's either have dignity or else stay in and take what is given to you," Ms. Ford said.

"I will stay out as long as it takes," said Bruce LaForce, a biology teacher. "As for contract concessions, when you take it out of one pocket and put it in another, what have you gained?"

Tentative settlement was reached Sunday after schools had been closed four days. Superintendent Mardell Parker said the three-year contract calls for 6 percent increases in the first and second years and a wage reopener in the third year.

Third world upheavals outlined

Rajanikanta Verma, consul-general of India at Chicago, will discuss Third World countries' current relationships with the world's superpowers—the United States and the Soviet Union.

Rajendra Sinha, president of the association of international students, said a question and answer session will follow Verma's speech "Upheavals of the Third World."

Sinha said Verma joined the Indian Foreign service in 1965. He has served as Indian consul-general in Moscow, Canberra, Australia; Thimphu, Bhutan; Colombo, Sri Lanka; and New Delhi, India.

The free lecture is slated for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Physical Science Building Phipps Auditorium.

Supreme Court to decide NCAA television conflict

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court said Monday it will tackle a billion-dollar dispute over whether the National Collegiate Athletic Association or individual schools should control the televising of college football games.

The justices, in a case they were told might revolutionize sports on TV, agreed to review rulings that the NCAA's 30-year control violates federal antitrust law.

The court's decision is not expected until next year and therefore will not affect contracts, worth $74.2 million, for the current football season.

The NCAA's television contracts over the next three years are worth more than $200 million, indicating the court's decision could have a billion dollar impact over the next decade.

In the NCAA case, a federal trial judge and the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that centralized control over the selling of television rights to college football games violates the Sherman Act, a major antitrust law.

Those rulings came in a lawsuit filed by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association, whose lawyers say the two schools could make more money making their own deals.

Most immediately, the lower court rulings threaten the NCAA's $207 million worth of contracts with ABC, CBS and Turner Broadcasting Systems for the next three football seasons.

NCAA lawyers told the justices that many other televised-sports arrangements are jeopardized by the rulings. "The list of endangered arrangements could go on and on," their appeal said.

Monday's high court action keeps alive the NCAA's hopes of overturning the lower court rulings. Had the justices rejected the appeal and simply let those rulings stand, the legal status of this season's contracts with ABC, CBS and Turner Broadcasting would have been thrown into confusion.

over Davidson College Saturday.

Rounding out the top five I-AA teams in the nation are Jackson State and Holy Cross universities at the No. 3 and 4 spots, respectively.

Jackson State, 7-0, shut out Southern University 31-0 to remain the nation's No. 3 unit, while Holy Cross downed Connecticut College 20-16 to hold on to the No. 4 spot.

Eastern's No. 9-ranked Panthers also trail Northeast Louisiana State, North Texas State and Furman universities.

Northeast Louisiana, 5-1, moved from the No. 8 spot to No. 6 following a 47-27 trouncing of Nicholls State University and North Texas State jumped from No. 9 to 7 with a 17-10 win over McNeese State University.

However, Furman dropped from the No. 5 position to No. 8 after suffering a 17-17 tie to Western Carolina University last Saturday.

made sure they realized that before Saturday's kickoff.

"He came over to me before the game and joked 'All I have to do is sweep the sweep'," Staple said. "He didn't make a big deal out of it, but he knew he was thinking about it.

"We knew they weren't good, but they had the coach," Staple added. "Sometimes a coach can change the game. He must have had a good game plan, he held us to 13 points."

Eastern volleyball team to face struggling Illini squad

by Kathy Leahy

Eastern's volleyball team will face a struggling University of Illinois squad in a 7:30 p.m. contest Tuesday at Lantz Gym.

The Panthers, 18-6, will be matched against an Illini unit which has won only three games all season. U of I sports a 3-15 overall record and a 2-4 slate in the Big Ten Conference.

However, Eastern head coach Betty Ralston said she believes Illinois' record is not indicative of its capabilities.

"They have played some tough competition, including Hawaii and Illinois State which are both nationally ranked," Ralston said. "So their record is a bit deceiving."

"Although their match against Hawaii did not show us much, their match against Illinois State showed they have some talent," Ralston said.

Ralston said she is also concerned with the Illini's speed and their ability to react to blocks and hitting.

"I was very much impressed with their quickness. They reacted very well," Ralston said. "They saved a lot and kept a lot of balls in play that might have fallen to the floor."

However, Ralston said Illinois has a weak middle and she hopes her squad can capitalize on the weakness.

"They have a big freshman playing in the center and they looked weak there," Ralston said. "We will concentrate on attacking in the middle."

Ralston said she will utilize Tuesday's match as a final "tuneup" before beginning Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference play Friday night at Southwest Missouri State.

"I think we have our starting lineup for conference play and this will give them a chance to play one more match before then," Ralston said.

Ralston said probable starters for Tuesday's contest include seniors Steve Cook, Bonnie Fisk and Kathy Brink and sophomore Judy Planos. In addition, senior Gretchen Braker will handle the setting duties.

Junior Donna Uhler, who was the Panthers' regular starting setter, will secure the sixth spot. However, Uhler is recuperating from an ankle injury and Ralston said she does not expect Uhler to be at full strength.

"Donna is still not 100-percent mobile," Ralston said. "She'll be there as our universal player, but she won't be setting very much. We're holding off on that."

Panthers grab No. 9 ranking

by Kirby Flowers

Eastern's football team continued to climb in the NCAA I-AA rankings Monday and now have moved among the nation's top 10 teams.

The Panthers, who blanked the University of Northern Iowa 13-0 Saturday and improved their record to 6-1, advanced from a 14th-place ranking last week to a ninth place tie with Idaho State University Monday.

In addition, the Panthers are one of five teams listed in the NCAA's top 15 which have six or more wins this season, and one of nine teams with only one loss.

"Certainly we are glad to move up," Eastern head coach Al Molde said. "But each week presents another challenge for us, and one slip could put us out of it."

Movement in the I-AA rankings for Eastern is critical during the final weeks of the season, because the Panthers will look to land one of the at-large playoff bids.

"It is nice to know you are ranked at this point, but the most important poll is the final one at the end of the season," Molde said.

Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, 7-0, which handed Eastern its lone 17-14 setback, remained second to defending I-AA champion Eastern Kentucky, 5-0, for the second straight week.

The Salukis' 28-6 victory over Mid-Continent Conference member Southwest Missouri State University last Saturday allowed them to retain their No. 2 ranking, while Eastern Kentucky was idle last Saturday.

"Southern is a very good ball team," Molde said. "Their defense is particularly good and their specialty teams have come up with the big plays this season."

Southern Illinois' No. 2 ranking will be on the line next week when the Salukis play Indiana State. The 5-2 Sycamores defeated Wichita State University 24-22 last Saturday and moved from 16 to 14th place this week.

In addition, Tennessee State University, 5-2, which ousted Eastern from last season's playoffs, moved to 12th place nationally with a 30-9 win over Citadel.

However, Colgate University made the biggest drop in Monday's poll as the Red Raiders fell from seventh place last week to 13th, following a 29-26 loss to Rutgers University.

In addition, South Carolina State University, 6-1, moved back into the nation's top five after a 19-7 win

Emotions mixed for Mudra's return

Behind the byline

John Humenick

Darrell Mudra sat in the visitors' coaching box Saturday at O'Brien Stadium like he belonged there.

However, some of Mudra's former players said he belonged with them instead of league foe University of Northern Iowa. Mudra, who resigned 10 months ago after five seasons at the Panther helm, returned Saturday as an Eastern rival.

"We were glad that Mudra came back, because we really wanted to beat him," Panther senior full back Wes Nixon said. "But he left us, when this was his year too."

Standout half back Kevin Staple agreed. "I was figuring maybe he should have hung around with us this year because of all the talent we had coming back."

"But I understand him as a man, because when opportunity knocks you have to go with it," he continued. "I'll miss him, and I can honestly say he was the best coach I've ever had."

The Panthers advanced to the I-AA playoffs last season with the belief that they were one big family under Mudra's wing. Consequently, this season was to be an extension of last season's success.

However, a major coaching shake up followed the 1982 post-season I-AA tournament as Mudra and assistant coach Chuck Dickerson left Charleston for greener pastures.

The Panthers' family ideal was shattered and Saturday Mudra faced those who were once on his side, defensive coordinator Cal Jones and 16 Panther returning starters.

"We split up and it took a while before we got the new system down," Staple said. "Now the close is coming back. It had to if we were going to be a winning season."

Currently wrapped up in a second straight playoff drive, Eastern's players and head coach Al Molde turned Mudra's homecoming into a big emotional boost.

Since his departure, Mudra had gone from coaching hero to a deserter in some of his players' minds. "Mudra was a man we had to beat to win," Nixon said.

"I really didn't have a grudge against him Friday night," Panther defensive captain Ron Williams said. "I wanted to get them (Northern Iowa) to the endzone and let them taste it."

Nixon added, "Molde kept telling us don't let what they (Northern Iowa) did to us last year (tie). He was talking to us like we should come and open it up and let them have it."

But one of the few advantages Mudra had Saturday was his insight into the Panther program, helping 21 of Eastern's starters to their current positions.

Molde and his players knew they weren't going to put much past their former head coach, and Mudra
