CAA passes new classes for seminars

by Craig Gaumer

An array of new courses dealing with contemporary issues were approved as senior seminars Thursday by the Council on Academic Affairs.

Senior seminars, which fall under the course number classification of EIU 4022, are offered in a number of subjects and disciplines each semester. Each is organized around a particular subject/issue judged by instructors to be important to contemporary society.

The courses approved by the CAA include "Women and Technology," "Leisure Time: The American Perspective," "Origin and Extension: The Universe and Man," "East-West Relations in the 20th Century," "War in the Modern World: The Falklands' Experience" and "Labor and Management in American Education."

Senior seminars are required by several departments as partial fulfillment for graduation.

However, students graduating under the 1980 Eastern Catalog are not required to take senior seminars.

Students are given a variety of seminars to choose from and many courses, such as "Women and Technology," are designed to emphasize class participation and interaction in addition to lecture and research work.

Eastern's coal project moved up; bids to be taken six months early

by Amy Zurawski

Eastern's coal conversion project schedule has been moved up six months by the state Capital Development Board.

George Miller, Eastern's vice president for financial affairs, said bids will be taken for the construction and coal supply beginning in October 1984, Miller said. The project is hoped to be completed by October 1986.

Senior Project Director Gene Barish said the project was moved ahead because project funding was approved earlier than expected.

Miller also said the latest estimates of the engineers indicate that the project will be completed within the $8.5 million budget.

In addition, the CDB recently decided that Eastern will employ oil or natural gas rather than coal as its standby fuel after the completion of the conversion, he said.

"After a careful study, the (CDB) engineers found that there was no significant difference between costs for oil or coal standby facilities," he said.

Oil or natural gas will be used as a "back-up fuel" to avoid the environmental problem of storing 4,000 tons of coal on campus, he said.

In addition, "There won't be a big building anywhere on campus with 4,000 tons of coal sitting in it," Miller said.

Tanks for natural gas or oil will not be visible because they will be underground, he noted. The 16,000-gallon oil tanks, used for standby fuel, will be located across from Seventh Street on university property.

Although the coal bunkers will hold five days worth of coal, Miller said, he doubts a situation will arise where back-up fuel will be needed.

However, he noted that if a problem did arise, the decision of whether to use oil or natural gas would be decided by the supplies available.

"The scale of this project is enormous," Miller said.

The scrubber, baghouse, mixers, fan enclosures and three-story collection building will be large enough at the first level for a 30-50 ton truck to drive through, he said.

"This will all be located in the area between the steam plant and the Student Services Building," Miller added.

"Parking will be severely affected to the west of the steam plant," Miller said, adding, "additional parking will be provided in the vicinity of the two oil tanks."

Eastern's academic probation policies differ from other Illinois school policies

by Len Krasnowski

Academic dismissal policies at other state universities differ from Eastern's dismissal policy and officials' opinions about the success of their policies varied recently.

Eastern's revised dismissal policy caused 84.6 percent more students to be dismissed after fall semester 1983 than after fall semester 1982.

The newly-instituted policy requires students to show satisfactory progress if their grade point average falls below 2.00 and they are placed on academic probation.

Satisfactory progress is determined by a graduated scale which requires a student to achieve a certain GPA to remain in good academic standing. If the GPA is not attained, the student is dismissed.

Larry Quane, assistant dean of undergraduate instruction at Illinois State University, said Illinois State's academic probation and dismissal policy, started in 1981, requires a student with 30 credit hours or less to maintain a minimum cumulative grade point average of 1.8.

Students with more than 31 credit hours must maintain a 2.0 cumulative GPA or they will be placed on academic probation, Quane noted.

Sue Doderlein, assistant dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Northern Illinois University, said their policy has worked well since 1978.

Doderlein said Northern's academic policy requires students to maintain a cumulative 2.00 GPA, except first semester freshmen, whose cumulative GPA can drop as low as 1.60.

"If a student is put on probation, he is required to come in to the advising office and review his academic record to see where he needs to make improvements," Doderlein said.

Roy Twilley, dean of admissions and records at Western Illinois University said Western's probation policy, started in 1978, is a "rolling policy."

Twilley said the "rolling probation policy requires students to maintain a cumulative GPA of 1.70 for their first semester, 1.75 for their second semester, 1.85 for their third semester and 2.00 for the fourth through eighth semesters.

"Any term you fall under those numbers, you go on probation," Twilley said.

Some officials said they have had to dismiss many of the students who are placed on probation.

John Fairman, director of public affairs at Western, said there were "very few" academic dismissals in the 1982-83 school year.

"Last year there were just over 1,000 students dismissed, 400 in the fall (out of 11,306 enrolled) and 600 in the spring (out of 10,052 enrolled)," Fairman said.

"In addition, 200 students were re-admitted through the appeals process in the fall and 400 were re-admitted in the spring," Fairman added.

Quane said he believes the 2,500 academic dismissals every two semesters at Illinois State is too high.

"2,500 dismissals out of 33,000 students enrolled for fall and spring semesters is a lot," Quane said, "but what can you do about it?"

Eastern Registrar James Martin said 371 students who were on academic probation or who failed to achieve a satisfactory grade point average were dismissed at the end of the fall semester.

Some officials outlined the dismissal appeals process and said they believe their appeals process makes the dismissal policy more flexible.

"You have to take into account how deep in the hole the person is when they were put on probation, how much improvement they showed and what kind of classes they were taking before you dismiss them," Fairman said.

Northern also lets students in their college appeal the dismissal, Doderlein said.

"In each of our college of fices we do review the records if a student feels he should not be dismissed," she said.

"The dean decides if a student in their college should be dismissed," Doderlein added.

Twilley also said a student at Western must reach a required GPA for the following semester or they will be dismissed.

"A student can appeal the dismissal to the Council on Academic Affairs and receive another term on probation," Twilley said.

Quane said an Illinois State student may remain on academic probation for two semesters and must achieve a required GPA in that time or they will be dismissed.

Soviet hierarchy falling in place

MOSCOW (AP)—Mikhail S. Gorbachev gave crucial endorsement to Konstantin U. Chernenko and is now the No. 2 man in the Kremlin, a highly placed Soviet source says.

The 52-year-old agriculture specialist, the youngest man on the ruling Politburo, was reputed to be Yuri V. Andropov's choice as his successor.

With Chernenko selected to lead the country as general secretary of the Communist Party, Gorbachev's powerful new role was first suggested by his position next to Chernenko at ceremonies to honor the late Andropov.

Then it was announced on television Wednesday night that Gorbachev had made a previously undisclosed statement at the Central Committee plenum Monday that named Chernenko leader.

Gorbachev's statement appears in a brochure of speeches obtained by the Associated Press Thursday in advance of publication. The brochure indicated Gorbachev, speaking "on behalf of the Politburo," closed the meeting with an endorsement of Chernenko.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda made it clear that there would be no relaxation of Soviet bloc unity under Chernenko, who traditionally endorsed the doctrine of his mentor, Brezhnev.

A highly placed Soviet source told a Western delegation in Moscow for Andropov's funeral Tuesday that Gorbachev was now, effectively, the Kremlin's No. 2 man.

Chernenko's policies were outlined in detail on Thursday in a two-column editorial running the front page of Pravda.

The bulk of the article was devoted to domestic issues and made clear that the party under Chernenko would continue to enforce Andropov's watchwords of increased efficiency, order and discipline.

On foreign policy, Pravda said that the Soviet Union will work "with all states that are prepared to help by practical deeds to lessen international tension."

Pravda held out little hope that superpower relations, which deteriorated to their lowest point in decades under Andropov, would improve soon.

Statistics: more women working

WASHINGTON—According to the latest government labor statistics, in January women comprised 43.6 percent of the some 103 million Americans with jobs. In 1972, women held 38 percent of all jobs.

Thousands more women are preparing to move into the high-paying, high-prestige jobs of law and medicine.

In the 1982-83 school year, women held 19,627 of 66,886 medical school seats, representing 29.3 percent of the enrollment, according to the American Medical Association. In the 1972-73 academic year, women constituted only 12.8 percent of some 47,500 enrollees.

The American Bar Association said that of some 127,200 people enrolled in approximately 170 law schools last year, 47,980 were women. In 1979, the earliest year for which the ABA has such figures, women occupied 38,627 of some 123,000 seats in law schools.

Jackson catches up with Glenn

DES MOINES, Iowa—With only one weekend to go before the presidential nomination season begins in earnest with the Iowa precinct caucuses, a poll published Thursday showed the Rev. Jesse Jackson has caught up with Sen. John Glenn in the fight for second place behind front-runner Walter F. Mondale.

Mondale, the heavy favorite to win the balloting Monday night in Iowa, returned to the state Thursday for a final push.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado also brought his campaign here for a final four-day push designed to boost his own claim as Mondale's prime challenger. Former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern and former Florida Gov. Reuben Askew also crisscrossed the state in search of votes.

U.S. wins two Olympic golds

Sarajevo, Yugoslavia (AP)—Bill Johnson, hurtling down Mount Bjelasnica at an average speed of 63 mph, ended European domination of Olympic gold medal domination of the men's downhill skiing as he won America's first Alpine Olympic gold medal ever Thursday at the XIV Winter Games.

Johnson, 23, of Van Nuys, Calif., has virtually conquered downhill skiing in over a month. On Jan. 15 he stunned Europe's best by becoming the first American ever to win a World Cup downhill skiing race. Now he is the first American ever to win an Olympic downhill gold.

"Finally the string is broken," said the brash, confident Johnson, referring to the nine previous Olympic downhill, all won by European skiers, "We can win a lot more."

In other Olympic action, Scott Hamilton, dressed in the colors of the U.S. flag, won America's first men's figure skating gold medal in 24 years.

In winning the gold medal, Hamilton, 25, of Denver, a three-time world champion, did not skate his best. Had he not been winning by such a large margin after the compulsory figures, he may have lost the medal that America had expected him to win for some time.

Search for lost toddler goes on CRETE, Ill.—Their ranks swelled to about 300 people, police and volunteers continued their search Thursday for a 2½-year-old boy who apparently wandered away from home.

"They're out there on dirt bikes, motorcycles, horses, three-wheelers, up in helicopters," said Karen Kinney, dispatcher for the sheriff's department's substation at Crete. "But so far, there's nothing new to report."

Searchers were buoyed Thursday by the belief that relatively mild overnight temperatures—upper 30s and low 40s—improved young Michael DesForges' chances for survival.

Oscar nominations announced

BEVERLY HILLS (AP)—"Terms of Endearment," the funny-sad story of an eccentric mother and a willful daughter, scored top honors Thursday at the 56th annual Academy Award nominations, receiving 11 nominations in nine categories.

"The Right Stuff," a panoramic view of America's first space travelers, followed with eight nominations. "Fanny and Alexander," which Ingmar Bergman says is his last movie, placed third with six.

As expected, "Terms of Endearment" dominated the nominations, collecting for best picture and four performers.

Stars Shirley MacLaine and Debra Winger will be competing against each other for best actress, and Jack Nicholson and John Lithgow will be competing for best supporting actor. The film was also nominated for best direction and writing by James L. Brooks.

Also nominated for best picture were "The Big Chill," "The Dresser," "The Right Stuff" and "Tender Mercies."

A prominent omission was Barbra Streisand, who received no nominations for her producing, directing, co-writing and starring in "Yentl."

Area landlord suggests campus newsletter idea

by Bill Wilson
 Area landlord Herb Beurskens suggested Thursday that members of the Off-Campus Student Housing Association publish a newsletter to keep area landlords informed of campus events.
 Beurskens said OCSHA could communicate with landlords through a "newsletter to keep them (landlords) informed of events happening on campus."
 Keeping the landlords better informed of events such as the upcoming Housing Fest and housemate agreement would be the purpose of a newsletter, he added.
 Beurskens, who supported both the housemate agreement and Housing Fest, suggested that the housemate agreement be well-publicized.
 "Even though landlords are not affected by the agreement they should be notified. It is an answer to many problems," he added.

 The housemate agreement is a contract between roommates which would specify the responsibilities of each roommate. This includes bills and living conditions.
 The Housing Fest, a forum to present available off-campus housing, is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 14 in the Union.
 In other business, four new OCSHA delegates were approved. The delegates include juniors Terra Yarbrough, Lisa Millner and Judy Mangos and senior Jane Ericson.
 In other action, OCSHA decided to conduct a workshop to inform students about OCSHA. The workshop is scheduled from 4-6 p.m. March 11.

Police arrest underage drinkers

Four minors were arrested for underage consumption of alcohol and two bartenders from Marty's, 1666 4th St., were arrested for alleged sale of liquor to minors, Assistant Police Chief Herb Steidinger said Thursday.
 Steidinger said the minors were arrested Feb. 9 on the 1100 block of 4th Street after a patrolman noticed one of the minor's truck running a stop light. After the minors had been pulled over, they "advised the officer that they had been drinking at Marty's," Steidinger said.

 The minors positively identified two bartenders who allegedly had served them alcohol while at Marty's, he noted.
 Steidinger said charges against the bartenders will be determined at a Feb. 28 court hearing.

posed instructor of "Women and Technology," said, "This course is to explore some of the myths that limit women on the basis of psychological and social issues."
 "We are attempting to deal with how women and men can meet these issues," Felstehausen said. "Through class discussion we hope to set up a dialogue in which students can discuss these issues and deal with the course."
 Senior seminar courses also attempt to weave a wide spectrum of disciplines into course material, many seminar instructors said.
 Wolfgang Schlauch, instructor of "East-West Relations in the 20th Century," noted that he intends to structure his course not only for history and political science majors, but to "gear the course to concerned students who are outside the history or political science fields and need to have a comprehension of contemporary east-west relations."

 In addition, several senior seminars in the EIU 4022 classification were approved last week.
 Courses approved by the CAA last week include "Frontiers of Communication," "Plant and Civilization," "The Black Woman: Myth and Reality," "Sociobiology: The Biological Origins of Social Practices," "Social Movements" and "Crowds and Violence."
 Only one senior seminar, "Perspectives on Women's Issues," was not approved by the CAA.
 CAA student member Gail Redeker said "Perspectives On Women's Issues" was tabled until the course instructor "redefined and narrowed the course content."

Congressional candidates to debate freeze

Democratic and Republican congressional candidates from the 19th district will square off Sunday to debate the nuclear freeze issue.
 The nuclear freeze debate, sponsored by the Coles County Grassroots Peace Initiative, will feature Republican Max Coffey of Charleston and Democrats Eric Jakobsson of Urbana, Tom Lindley of Danville and Terry Bruce of Olney.
 19th district incumbent Dan Crane, R-Danville, declined to attend or send a representative.
 Judy Chapman, coordinator of the peace group, said Thursday, "It is beneficial to put on the record the official positions of all the candidates for U.S. Congress in the 19th district."

The debate will focus on related topics such as the defense budget, the federal deficit and new weapons systems such as the MX and the B-1 bomber, as well as the relationship between nuclear forces and conventional forces, Chapman noted.
 "All candidates are for peace and reducing nuclear forces," Chapman said, "but they need to be pinned down to specifics—then the real differences will come out."
 The debate is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Otterbein United Methodist Church, 2175 E. Harrison.

Rives heads up lecture series

Eastern's chapter of the American Association of University Professors will start off its 32nd public lecture series with Eastern President Stanley Rives.
 Dee McNutt, who is helping organize the three-speaker series "New Beginning," said Rives' lecture is titled "University and Illinois and Eastern."
 Rives' lecture is scheduled for 2 p.m. Feb. 19 in the Booth Library lecture room, she said. The lecture will be followed by a reception in the library staff lounge.
 Future speakers for the series include Eastern instructors James Pearce and Carol Holden.

Hyndman reaches 'goal' at SMU

Eastern's soccer team lost only one regular season game last season, and that loss was to Southern Methodist University.

Now, SMU has dumped the Panthers again. But this time, the Mustangs' victory cost Eastern its soccer coach.

Booster coach Schellas Hyndman said he will leave Eastern for a better deal at SMU, and he should not be cursed for leaving.

When he departs, Hyndman will join a long list of talented Eastern coaches—those who recently left include basketball expert Don Eddy, football mentor Darrell Mudra and wrestling wizard Ron Clinton—who were lured to universities with bigger programs, larger budgets, higher enrollments and fatter paychecks. And one cannot blame talented coaches—and teachers—for leaving Eastern to spread their instructional intellect at larger universities for more money.

And Hyndman was truly a talented coach. In his seven years here, Hyndman coached 133 games. He won or tied 109 of them.

Each year, his Panthers were consistently ranked as one of the best soccer squads in the country and last season, he steered Eastern to its best regular-season record ever, 18-1-1.

So as Hyndman leaves Eastern, players and fans should not be angry—as some were—for his desire to coach at a larger school for more money.

Eastern is a relatively small school, and unfortunately, Eastern and other Illinois public universities provide faculty salaries that are 7.6 percent lower than the median of similar institutions in other states.

Eastern is not a major university or a sports powerhouse, even though we have been blessed with many fine teams and professors. Our school is a stepping stone for many coaches and teachers.

All that soccer players and fans can do is hope that Eastern gets someone as talented as Hyndman to head the Panther program and wish Hyndman the best of luck at SMU—except when his opponent is Eastern.

Forget the courts; populace pursues personal justice

Justice is a highly subjective term; it deftly defies description. Like love, power and wealth, justice conjures up a boatload of varying conceptions among the masses. And when one's expectations of justice go unfulfilled, there is anger, resentment, frustration.

On those rare occasions when someone gets what they want, their greed feeds on success and breeds like rabbits.

So, no one really gets what they want. But, it's not the government's place to make everyone happy. It's the government's job to make sure that everyone doesn't starve, live in the streets and take others' lives or ideals too lightly. This is difficult to accomplish, because our government keeps itself busy enough trying to keep other governments toeing our democratic line.

If real, concrete justice could embody the ideals of all the people, our society would be close to that spiritual image of the tall guy with the white beard at the gate, handing out harps and wings.

But, the corporeal practice calls upon people to police themselves and be honest and compassionate enough to make sure someone doesn't get expectorated upon.

The United States can pride itself in its intricate form of checks and balances. With the passing of the First Amendment, our government saw the need for the press to become "watchdog" over government, barking at any injustice.

Lawyers, however, are the referees. They interpret the laws that are laid down. They are looked upon as saviors and paid handsomely by the meek who know nothing about the law, but for some reason the masses are dragged into the hallowed courts where they are helpless to the proceedings and red tape.

If lawyers are clever with their craft, a noted loophole in a law, the slip of a governmental lip or a typographical error can send a self-serving, gun totin' maniac gleefully back out on the streets. And shysters can always find high-paying work as a corporate lawyer.

Law is a dedicated profession; pseudo-justice will always win out, but only at the cost of those who must endure unrighted errors in the law. What is the cost?

Well, if you've got the money, you can do better than a lawyer. If you can't plant enough money down to buy a government official, or if you can't find one dishonest enough (Sorry folks, Abscam candidate, Senator Harrison Williams is out of the running) you can plant some money down on an interest group that will put bugs in the ears of many government officials.

First, however, you have to find some way of making oodles of money before you can pull such a productive stunt. So, try telling the starving this is how they get something done. Try getting contributions for the American Civil Liberties Union from the big city slums.

So, this leaves death as a means to who's right. Frighteningly, this method is becoming immorally popular. School kids are wasting unliked school teachers. Husbands and wives are engaging in conflicts far more critical than shooting their mouths off. Friends, neighbors, enemies, practically everyone is solving problems with cheap weapons which are becoming as common in the household as table lamps.

Of course, you can buy bigger, more elaborate weapons. Our government sells them to other countries, why not to any terrorist with the bucks? After all—labor will assure you—the making of the weapons keeps people employed.

And the public needs their paychecks to buy justice in whatever form.

ISA president to be elected by Vicki Vass

The Illinois Student Association will elect a new president Feb. 18.

In a letter sent to ISA members, former President Mark Hurley wrote that he resigned earlier this month for academic reasons.

ISA representative Audrey Dumentat said the ISA Board of Directors, student body presidents from member schools, will elect a new president to take office immediately.

"I hope we get a new president who is really going to work hard," Dumentat said.

The ISA will also write a platform explaining its goals and views on higher education. "This way we will have something specific down in writing," she noted.

ISA is also going to establish specific committees to work on ISA-related projects, Dumentat said.

In other business, Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said member schools' constitutions will be studied to find ideas which may improve ISA's constitution.

Also, Wesel said a number of Eastern student senators will attend the meeting to determine whether they believe ISA is effective.

In other business, Dumentat said the ISA will discuss its upcoming Lobby Day in Springfield.

"If we take action sooner, we can set up appointments with the legislators. Maybe then we can get some real talking done and show our concerns," she said.

Women face top field

Dobie Holland
Eastern senior sprinter Gail Stephens enters Saturday's 12-team Illini Invitational with probably the Panthers' best shot at meeting an NCAA indoor qualifying time.
Stephens, who will face some tough competition, needs to trim her 600-yard dash time from 1:22.7 to 1:22.1 to qualify for the Division I finals March 10 at Syracuse University's Carrier Dome.
"It wasn't enough to concentrate on Stephens and teammates Barbara Anderson, Lauren Lynch, Renee Anderson look to qualify in the mile relay.
The quartet needs to improve their time from 3:51.1 to 3:46.2 to qualify for the finals.

Overall, the Panthers will face some of the Midwest's top women's squads Saturday. Drake University is expected to lead the field. Eastern head coach John Craft said Drake "has some exceptional runners."
Big Ten conference powers Michigan State University and host University of Illinois should round out the invitational's front group, Craft said.
Also entered Saturday is Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference defending champion Illinois State University.

Despite the tough competition, Craft said he expects his squad to place well although he is not making many predictions.

"I don't like to make predictions," Craft said. "It doesn't bear good fruit."

"...play a little better at home."
Mackey said winning a third-straight conference game Saturday will be enough.
"I think Eastern has outstanding talent and winning on the road is always tough," Mackey said. "We definitely will have our hands full."
The rookie coach singled out Panthers Jon Collins and Kevin Duckworth as players the Vikings must control on Saturday.
"With Duckworth they have the luxury of a 6-11 center that we don't and Collins is an instant offense-type player," Mackey said.

Offensively, Cleveland State is led by a pair of forwards in 6-foot-8 Dave Youdath, 14.4 points per game, and 6-foot-6 Clinton Ransey, 12.8 points per game.

Samuels said Youdath, second team all-conference last year, is the player who poses the biggest threat to Eastern on Saturday.

"I don't think they (Western Kentucky) are quite as strong this year, but they are one of the best teams we have seen against in a dual meet this season," he added.
Padovan said Western Kentucky will probably win the relay events with little difficulty.
"We won't beat them in the relays. They are just too strong," he said. "They are also exceptional in the sprint events."
Therefore, a Panther win Saturday could result from some big victories in the diving and distance events.

"We are going to have to do well in the diving and distance events because they are fairly tough in the mid-distance races," Padovan said.

Following Saturday's meet, the Panthers will resume special preparation for the Midwest Championships.

"We have changed to a little different type of workout," Padovan said. "Right now we are, more or less at a rest stage."

Hynd paces women cagers by Bradley 88-74

Eastern sophomore forward Chris Aldridge attempts two of her 21 points Thursday night in helping Sue Hynd (24 points) and the Panthers dump Bradley University 88-74 at Lantz Gym. (News photo by Michael Sitarz)

by Kathy Leahy

Sophomore Sue Hynd poured in a career-high 24 points Thursday night to pace Eastern's women's basketball team past conference-foe Bradley University 88-74 at Lantz Gym.

"Sue was definitely the player of the game," Panther head coach Bobbie Hilke said. "She had solid hands tonight and Melanie (Hatfield) fed her (passes) well. It was unselfish play on Mel's part."

The win boosts the Panthers' record to 14-8 overall and 8-4 in Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference action. Meanwhile, the Braves fell to 6-16 and 3-9 in league play.

The two teams exchanged small advantages several times early Thursday. However, an Eastern surge late in the first half propelled the Panthers to a 43-36 edge at the intermission.

The Braves eventually battled back in the second half and grabbed a 50-47 lead at the 15:50 mark. But the Panthers regrouped to take a 65-60 lead on a jumper by Hynd with 6:45 remaining.

But, two technical fouls against Bradley head coach Angela Beck for unsportsmanlike conduct proved the turning point in the contest.

The Panthers quickly raced ahead

71-60 with 5:35 to play and never looked back.

"The technical fouls on their coach was the difference for us," Hilke said. By the time that fiasco was over we had an 11-point lead."

"This was a big win and it gives us a boost we need," Hilke added.

The Panthers now turn their attention to Saturday's home date with GCAC rival Western Illinois University.

"We need this win," Hilke said. "We are playing for the top three, so at this point we can not afford to look past anyone, especially Western."

"The game against Western will be a tough, close game," she continued. "They are big, quick and physical and they move up and down the court well."

Host Vikings

Cagers seek consistency

by Mike Lynch

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels and Cleveland State head coach Kevin Mackey have something in common—both men are looking for their basketball teams to play with some consistency.

And each coach hopes his team will show that consistency Saturday night when the Panthers host the Vikings at 7:30.

"We've been very inconsistent in our play," Samuels said. "We've played well statistically but we've been hurt at times by key mistakes."

Samuel's complaint is well-founded. The Panthers, 3-6 and 10-11 overall, lead their opposition in the three major categories of scoring, rebounding and turnover margins, but have lost their last five conference games.

"We're a young team and a little disappointed right now," Samuels said. "We feel we have played well at times, but there have been a lot of close games."

Meanwhile, the Vikings 3-8 and 9-13, have been experiencing problems which Mackey said are not too different from those of Eastern's.

"Every coach's goal is to get his team to play for a full 40 minutes," Mackey said. "We're still looking to reach a more consistent level during that 40 minutes."

"Of course we don't have as many wins as we'd like, but we have played everyone tough," he added.

The Vikings, like the Panthers, lead their opposition in the three major categories, but, unlike Eastern, Cleveland State enters Saturday's coming off two conference wins.

"We're starting to do some things well," Mackey said. "Five of our first eight players are freshmen so a lot of our recent success stems from maturity."

Maturity was missing from the Cleveland State lineup during the two teams' first meeting. The Panthers ripped the Vikings 67-66 Jan. 11 in Cleveland.

"That game was quite a while ago and things have changed," Samuels said. "Cleveland State enters with momentum, but we like to think we" (See CAGERS, page 11)

Tankers face Hilltoppers

by Marc McMullen

Looking past a contest with Western Kentucky University could prove to be a big mistake Saturday for Eastern's men's swimming team, Panther head coach Ray Padovan said.

"We are not really looking past this meet, but we are not really looking at it," Padovan said Thursday. "Right now, we are oriented with the Midwest Championship."

The Panthers, who will conclude their regular season Saturday, are slated to compete March 1-3 for the Midwest championship at the University of Illinois-Chicago.

Meanwhile, Western Kentucky, which has won the Midwest Championship the past two years, is not a second-rate team. Consequently, Padovan said Saturday's meet could be a big asset for his squad.

"I feel the meet is important," Padovan said. "I wanted us to have this meet so we would not have a three-week layoff before the Midwest Cham-

Panther athletic teams will soon have new locker room facilities in O'Brien Stadium and Lantz Gym, Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said.

The renovation project, which will be financed by the university, athletic department and outside monies, is expected to be completed by June 30, Johnson said.

However, Johnson said Thursday that he will not know the total cost of the renovation project until all materials are purchased.

"This is a very important development in the continued growth of the total athletic program," Johnson said. "I'm very pleased we can have this finished so that it can be utilized next fall by the teams and staff."

Facilities at O'Brien Stadium will undergo a complete renovation, including changes to the coaches offices, locker room, weight room and meeting room. It is hoped that the renovation will make the facilities more efficient.

Johnson explained the new facilities will not only be more functional for current players, but also to potential recruits.

"For example, (head football coach) Al Molde's office will become much larger and therefore more conducive to entertaining visitors and recruits," he said.

In addition, new locker rooms will be constructed in Lantz Gym for the men's and women's basketball teams. The rooms will be fully carpeted and include individual wooden lockers.

Other renovations in Lantz will include the addition of two other separate locker rooms, made from existing space which is currently not used.

One will be used exclusively for visiting women's teams while the other will serve as a locker room for women faculty and staff members of Eastern.

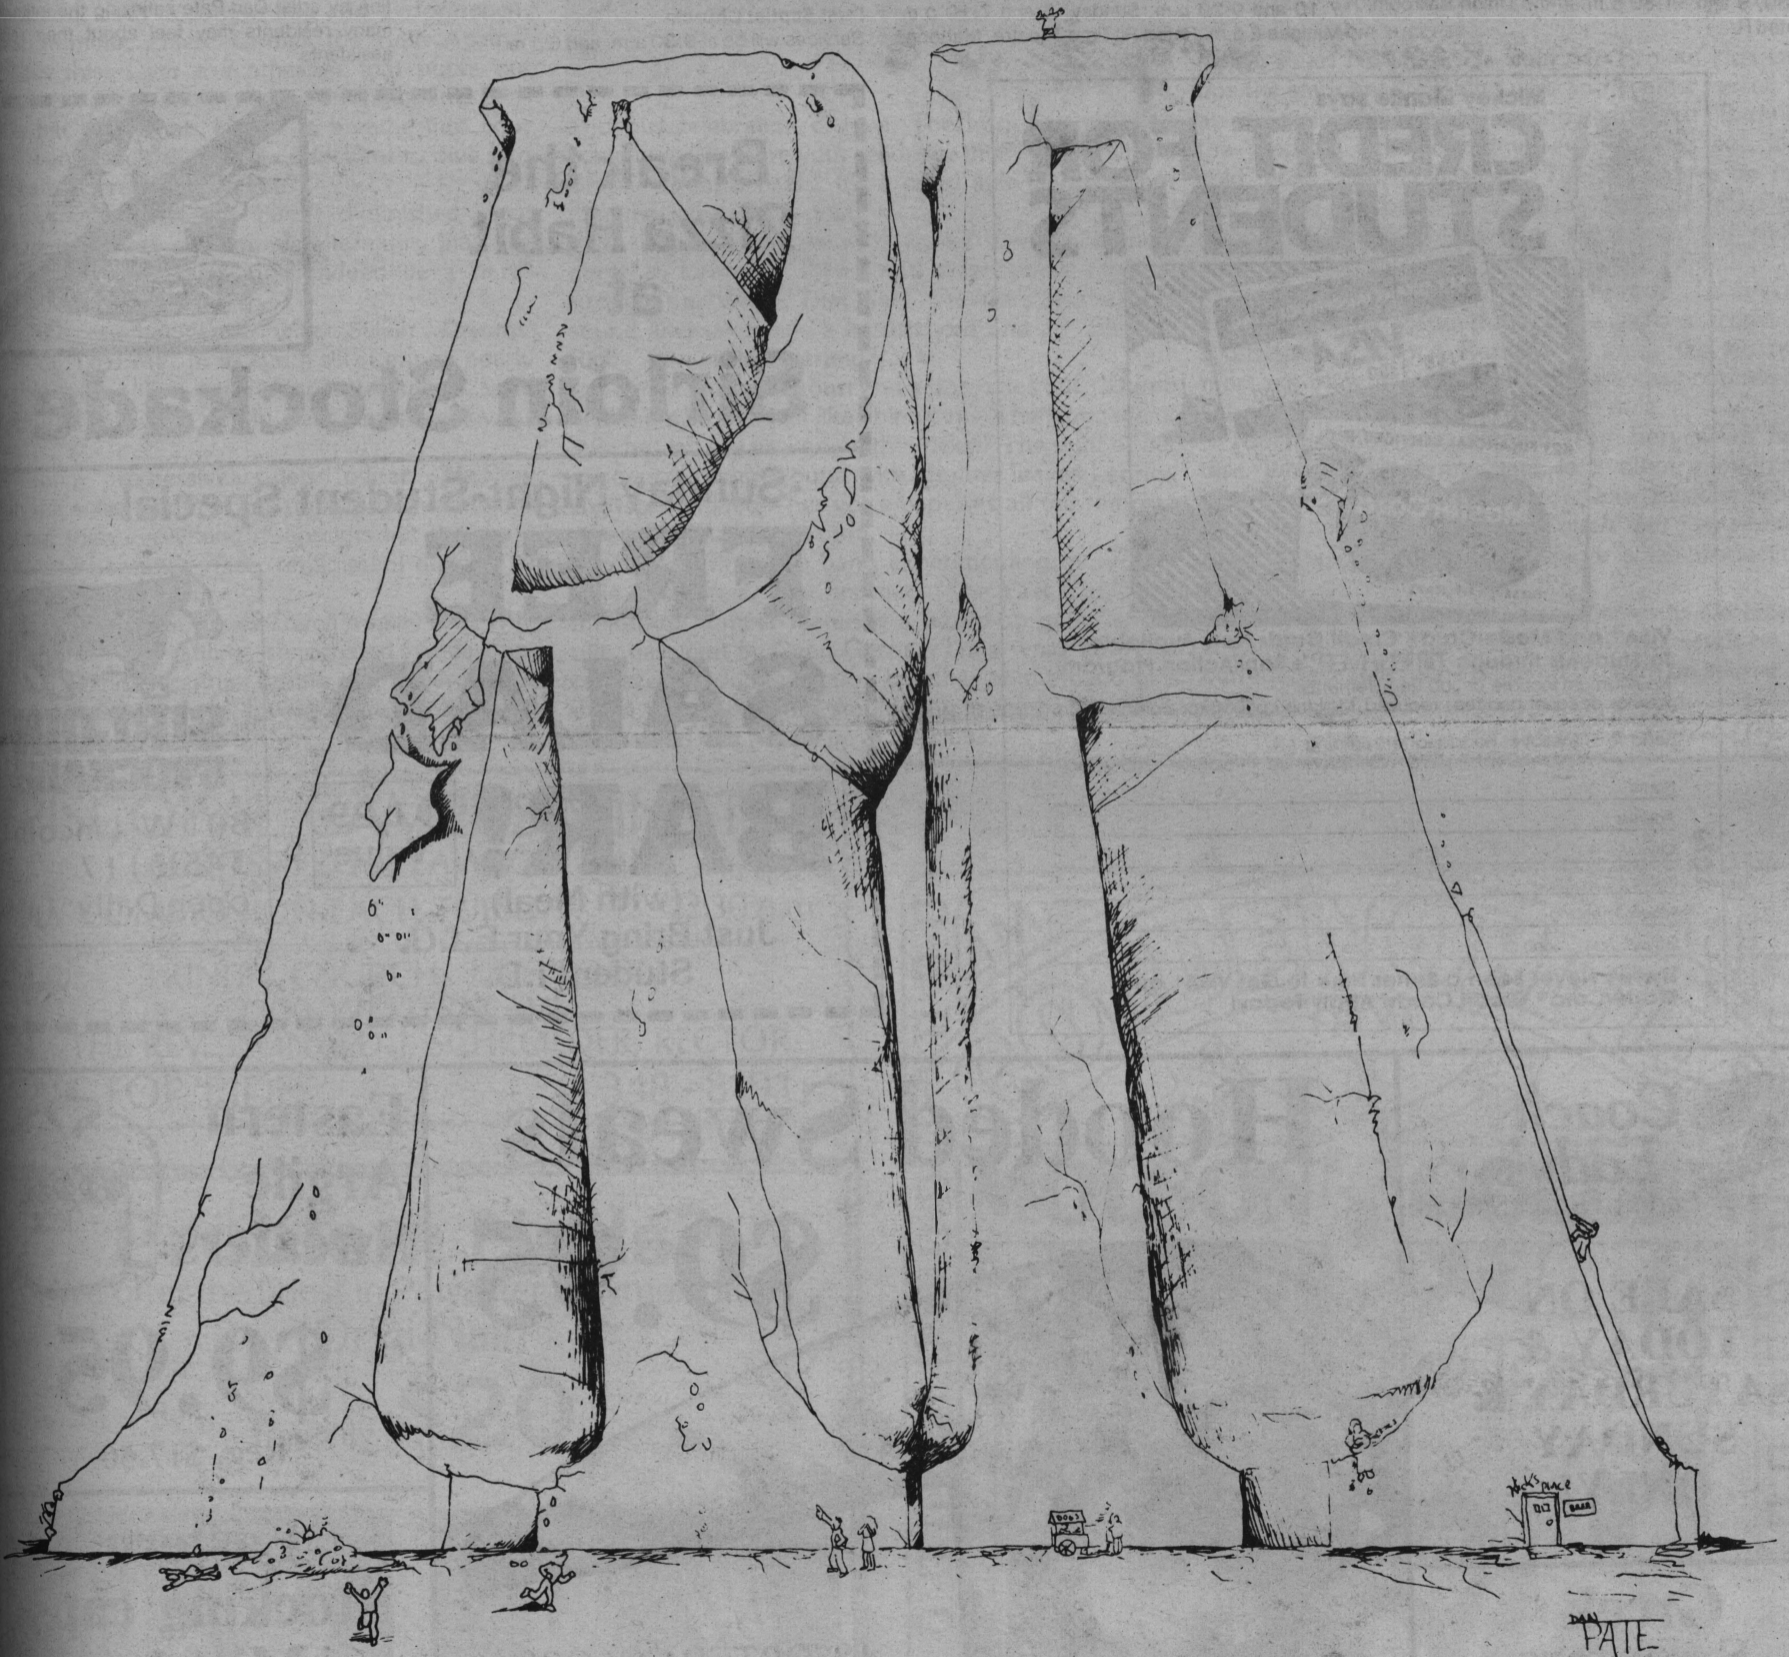

"While these changes may not be visible to the average fan, those closely involved with the teams believe it's a real plus and will enhance their programs," Johnson said.

Eurythmics score 'Touch' down

Eurythmics
The second album

course is a much-dreaded phenomenon in rock music. Many a group whose first album enjoyed popular and/or critical success finds its second LP release to be a disappointment. Most groups either copy their first album or go about things in a completely new manner, thus alienating those who bought the first LP. Happy indeed is the group that can balance these two forces and emerge unscathed; case in point, Eurythmics.

Eurythmics, which is comprised of Annie Lennox and Dave Stewart, had a worldwide smash hit last year with "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" and its eponymous album. The second album, Touch, finds the pair in a more mature mood, both in songwriting and performance. The first number, "Here Comes the Rain Again," exemplifies this. Over a synthesizer that pours out notes like rain and a somber string arrangement, Lennox tells her lover that "I want to breathe into your ocean/I want to kiss like lovers do/Want to dive into your ocean/Is it raining with you?"

Lennox's voice certainly hasn't diminished since Sweet Dreams; here she sounds alternately plaintive and seductive. Her lover must indeed be a hard-hearted villain to ignore her so.

"Regrets" touches base with Sweet Dreams' "Somebody Told Me" in its synth riff. Lennox nearly misses the lyrics—"I've got a dangerous nature," she whispers and you can nearly hear her mischievous grin.

The song progressively gets odder. Halfway through the song, some horns pop up to keep things interesting, then everything disappears but the drum machine and Lennox's voice, reminiscent of some of Grace Jones' earlier work.

"Right by Your Side" gives Touch a spicy feel. With marimbas and vibes rattling, syncopated hands clapping and a delirious Lennox calling out, "Every single one of us needs love, love, love... There's nothing left to feel when loves comes to town," the song becomes a joyous celebration of love. The horn arrangement actually recalls—are you ready for this?—The Tijuana Brass' "Tijuana Taxi." It's a crazy little number, but then that's the whole point.

As anyone familiar with Sweet Dreams knows, angst is Lennox's forte, and this comes through strongly on "Who's That Girl?" Stewart's synthesizers sound alternately like a harpsichord and an "Eleanor Rigby"-esque string arrangement.

Lennox, sounding hurt and alone, cries out, "Dumb hearts get broken just like china cups/The language of love has left me broken on the rocks." The sight of her ex-lover running around with another leaves Lennox shattered indeed—her voice captures all the remorse inherent to such a situation.

Side two finds the band experimenting more with style and effect. The first cut, "The First Cut," is a funk-it-up number featuring a jazzed-up guitar and a nifty bass part by Dean Garcia. "I'm a white girl/You can see my skin," Lennox breathes as the band gets down to some serious smoldering in the background. Expect this one to pop up at the clubs.

"Aqua" tells the harrowing tale of a junkie. With a commanding bass loop evoking the sense of never-ending entrapment, Lennox approaches to command, "Don't touch me!/Don't talk to me ever again!" Some weirdly treated backing vocals add to the number's unsettling feel.

Lennox offers a solution to her problem in a sweetly-sickened voice:

*Take me to a quiet place
Throw me in the water
Watch the bubbles surface as I'm slowly sinking under.*

The backing vocals chant "Bubble up" while some vintage '60s psychedelic effects flit through the channels for a good chunk of the song's middle part. Toward the end, an incredibly slowed-down voice proclaims, "Don't . . . touch . . . me." The song comes off a remarkable success.

"No Fear, No Hate, No Pain (No Broken Hearts)" ups the stark ante. Singing with and against herself in an impossibly high range, Lennox barks out "Early in the morning when our day begins and it feels like cold, cold, cold, cold steel." The high notes on the word "no" ring out like crystalline. Lennox offers no sympathy in this cold world, turning in her most sneeringly abrasive vocal performance to date.

Touch concludes with "Paint a Rumour," a seven-and-a-half-minute jaunt through the world of Stewart's synthesizers. "Paint a Rumour" is easily the album's most experimental cut, featuring a grab-bag of references. It doesn't all work, but it's never dull.

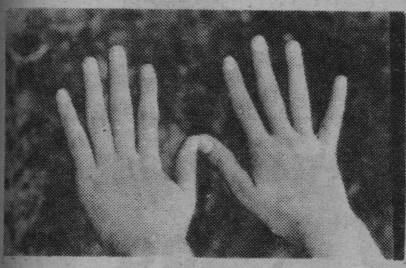

Touch is often quite different from Eurythmics' first disc, while still referring back to it often enough to keep a thread of familiarity constant. Besides being more mature in songwriting, Touch also just sounds more mature, with a fuller and more lavish production job.

Still, Touch won't sell as many copies as did Sweet Dreams. But that's all right. If Eurythmics keeps on its current track, everyone is bound to catch on sooner or later.

Leading a life of leadership

by Lisa Lait

A typical day in the life of a resident assistant involves a lot more than rescuing residents who are locked out of their rooms.

Some would contend that the RA's job is time-consuming. Ford Hall RA Lori Lyon said part of her job includes planning activities for residents and scheduling floor meetings twice a month.

In addition to weekly staff meetings, Lyons said, the RA is on duty once a week. His duty starts at 5 p.m. and continues until 8 a.m. the following morning. During that time, the RA is responsible for residents in that hall.

While on duty, the RA will periodically walk the floors of his hall. Lyon said the RA will try to keep noise to a minimum within the hall and lock the doors of the hall at night.

During weeknights, she said, the most common problem in the hall is noise. However, she noted, "Sometimes vandalism occurs in the lobby of the dorm."

However, she noted, "Overall there are not many discipline problems" within the hall.

Lyon said she is required to serve duty on "suicide weekends." A "suicide weekend" is when an RA is on duty Friday night until Sunday night. While the RA is on duty, she added, he must remain in the building at all times.

An attractive aspect of being an RA is free housing and food and they also are able to obtain their books before all the other students.

Lyons noted that an advantage of being an RA is working with different people. "Being an RA, I get to meet many people and personalities," Lyons said.

She said the job "makes me more of a leader, responsible and organized."

A handful of keys and long walks down the halls for nightly rounds—just a few of the things that go along with being a resident assistant. (Photos by Carl Pugliese)

Resident assista

by Courtenay Newman

Some resident assistants said they have working relationships with residents and with whom they work.

RA Kris Nicholson said she believes the relationships she maintains in every aspect of her job are strong.

Nicholson, who is the RA on 8th floor, said she and her fellow RAs "share many things together."

She added that she and another RA talk about how to handle a problem while on duty, but that does not hinder their friendship.

In most disciplinary situations, she said, she and another RA agree that one RA will take charge while the other serves as a "backup."

"Sometimes you disagree, but you don't show it in front of the residents," she added.

Nicholson said the counselors and RAs she works with are a "close staff" noting they work openly with each other. "We're said to be a real special and I wouldn't trade it for anything else."

Ford Hall RA Lori Lyon said the group she works with in the Triad is like "one big support system."

"Sometimes you disagree, but you don't show it in front of the residents," she added.

because we're always here to back each other up.

Nicholson said her relationship with her residents is very similar to her relationship with fellow residents. "They respect me, but I can joke around with them and I can joke around."

Lyon also called the relationship she has with her residents on her floor "close." She noted it's "much easier to feel close to the girls on her floor because there's only 34 girls."

She said there are open lines of communication between herself and the residents, but also between the residents. On the floor "doors are always open," she added.

Unlike the openness of Lyon's floor, RA John Shambrook said, "It's harder for me to have a mutually close floor because guys just aren't open like girls are."

He noted that the RA/resident relationship is quite as open. "However, he said, his "doors are open" to the residents.

Roommates sacrifice privacy for extra benefits

Wendy Wilkey
 Although being the resident assistant's roommate may not seem very favorable because of the limited privacy and freedom, with those drawbacks come advantages.
 Senior Dave Haring who rooms with John Brook, a Thomas Hall RA, described the advantages of living with an RA. "I know what's going on in the hall. It's like getting information first hand."
 Some new students may have had trouble finding people when they first arrived at Eastern, but not freshman Amy Landers, who rooms with Teresa Ogg, a Ford Hall RA. "I found the biggest benefit was meeting people on the floor," Landers said, adding that she knew very few people when she came to Eastern.
 Meeting with Ogg introduced Lander to a new social life, she said.

 And some roommates, like freshman Meg O'Connor, can become the best of friends with their RAs.
 O'Connor, who shares a room with McKinney Hall RA Pam Parker, said, "She's always there if I need her and she's a really good friend. We're considering rooming together next year."
 However, along with the advantages of being informed and meeting people, RA roommates must meet some responsibilities that other residents seldom deal with.
 O'Connor said, "Two-thirds of the phone calls are for Pam. A lot of people come to the room, so if she's not available, I see if I can help them."
 However, Haring said he handles the situation differently. "If John's not in the room, I usually send the people to an RA on another floor."

 Landers said, "I take a lot of messages, sometimes I feel more like a secretary."
 Junior Joe Fordonski who rooms with Joe Mills, a Ford Hall RA, said, "I think the people on our floor listen to me more when I ask them to do something. I'm more aware of the people and the noise in the hall and how to handle the situation."
 Still, RAs tend to lead slightly different schedules than the rest of the people on the floor.
 Landers said, "I thought it was kind of hard in the beginning being just a freshman, because she's out of the room a lot. It's hard to study in the room because we have to leave the door open in order for unnecessary noise to be heard. I would have preferred a regular roommate for my freshman year."

Gorky Park — Skating on thin ice

GORKY PARK

Another major novel takes motion picture form in Gorky Park and the viewer is shown a paler version of the Russia that author Martin Cruz Smith so loved to detail in his bestseller.

It isn't through fault of the film company, though. Authorities would not allow the filmmakers to shoot the intricate spy thriller at its actual location within the Iron Curtain. So Gorky Park—Moscow's equivalent of NYC's Central Park—looks a bit like what it is, a stretch of cold in the Substitute Soviet City of the Month, Helsinki, Finland.

Give me a blanket of snow and a good story and I'll begin to believe anything. And the intrigue in the opening scene paves the way; three bodies are discovered frozen under the snow of Gorky Park with the skin stripped from their faces and hands.

The bizarre nature of the crimes warrants investigation from the top branch of the Soviet militia. Their chief investigator, Arkady Renko (William Hurt), gets the job placed in his lap.

With a professional determination, Arkady traces the killings to a network of criminal activity which includes the KGB (the Russian secret police), an American fur trader, and a New York City cop, but not necessarily in that order.

Directed by Michael Apted, Gorky Park is a solid story sliding through the underworld of Russian intelligence. While it slows to a snail's pace to allow some of the lesser revelations to come in from unseen side tracks, the mix of danger and double-dealings is heady stuff—tightly scripted and well acted, handled in a cold but highly effective manner throughout.

William Hurt is our hero amid all the subterfuge. As Chief Inspector Renko, Hurt has to sound like a Russian, look like a Russian and—harder still—behave like a Russian. One wonders at first why he seems so driven to solve the case even after it has become apparent that more is at stake than his reputation as a detective.

His character is one experiencing all the angles for us, one familiar with all the ins and outs of the Soviet mentality. He knows how to jam a telephone so it can't monitor conversations; he can place himself at the scene of the crime and re-enact a victim's last options. And he never forgets what he is up against—larger powers that just might not want the crime solved at all. Questioning the girl in the case (the Polish-born Joanna Pacula), Hurt offers her a ride.

"The KGB have better cars," she chides.

"Yes, but they don't always take you where you want to go," he tells her.

With thinly-veiled conversations and dreary, wintry exteriors, Gorky Park assumes a nice Siberian flavor. Add Hurt, underplaying the man being squeezed from all directions, and a number of respectable heavies with strong political motivations, and the movie takes off.

William Hurt is so cool as Arkady, he's almost automated. His natural talent for burying himself in a role passed its hardest test yet with Gorky Park.

Joanna Pacula, with the smoldering looks of a Vogue covergirl, starts to work on Hurt's hardened exterior the first time they get together. I wondered who was going to crack first.

While Hurt's usually got them in bed by the first reel with his WASP-ish good looks, Pacula comes on like a walking icicle that isn't interested in that sort of thing. Or is she?

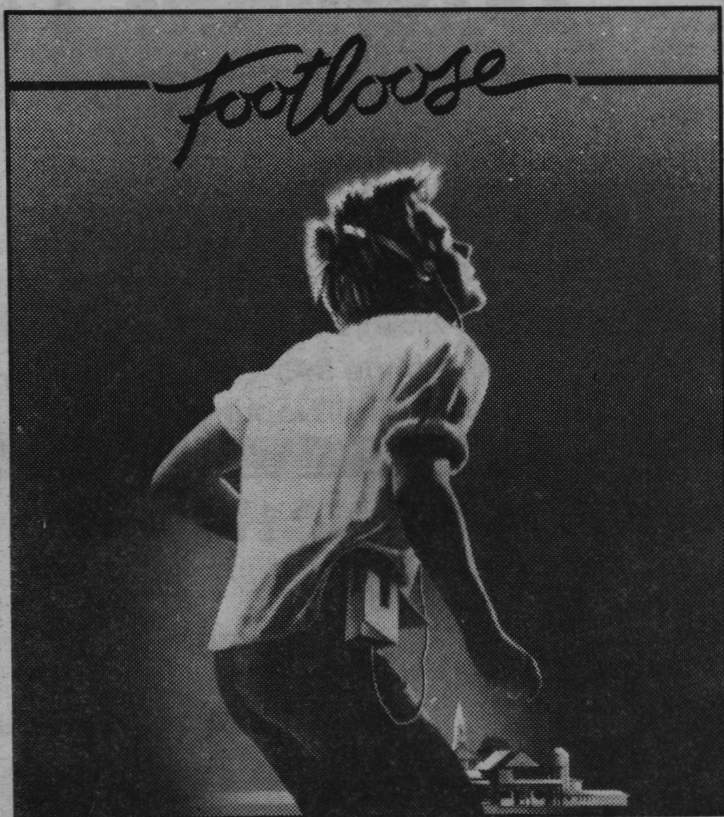

On the side of the Americas, veteran Lee Marvin has the role of the wealthy fur trader. I just like to look at Marvin up there. A big screen makes each crag on his mug a monument to the industry. He's not been out of work long enough to lose the paternal air of menace that he's made his trademark.

And Brian Dennehy is very good as the New York cop, busting his hump in a land that he doesn't believe capable of solving even the most flagrant of crimes.

The beauty of Gorky Park is that not everything is what it appears to be. If you overlook the locale shift, the Anglo-Saxons playing Soviets, and instead look at the plotting and cinematographer Ralf Bode's chilly visions of the Gulag, you're going to warm to it. Forget Dr. Zhivago, and be thankful you're not a part of this truly frightening side of the real world.

Tale End

Lady and the lamp

What's it really like to be an RA? It's the hardest, easiest, funniest, worst, most rewarding, frustrating job there is. And that's an understatement.

The first thing you normally think about is the amount of time it takes. This shouldn't be too much of a concern—we all know what college life is like. Who needs sleep? Not us, we're always anxious to be awakened at any time, just to serve the residents.

And what about fire alarms? Great fun. Last time we had one, I was so excited that I ran down the hallway yelling, "Get the hell out of here!"

What about people coming in drunk and loud? Oh, of course, no one would do that. Actually, some of my most memorable moments have involved people who had too much to drink.

For instance, I have gotten hugs and have been told I'm the best RA on the staff more times when people were drunk than at any other time.

One time, I told one of my girls, after she told me what a great RA I was, "Oh you're just drunk, you don't really mean it." She said, "Yes I do—I'll tell you again tomorrow when I'm sober." Surprise, surprise, she remembered and told me again. Those times are few and far between.

How about the time when I had to figure out how to get the drunk girl who had passed out under three stalls out of the bathroom to go to her room so people could use the facilities? I finally got some of her friends to coax her out. I laughed all night.

Okay, so what else is there to this job? Maybe a little bit of paperwork here, a meeting there, and a duty night every once in a while. But that's not what it's about, not at all.

It's about staying up late with your residents. Not to mention the staff members you grow so close to, you feel like they're your very own brothers and sisters and they're in your wedding and a part of your life wherever you go, even when graduation separates you.

It's about crying at the end of the year when you say goodbye and you know things will never be quite the same. It's times when you're so upset you want to quit, but you go in your room and hide under your blankets until it gets better.

It's knowing you're living on a floor with almost 50 people who don't understand how upset it makes you to have to yell at them or send them to counselor because they messed up.

But that's okay. That's what makes this job great and awful, all in the same breath. And I know that when I leave in May, I will take with me many wonderful memories. Next August, a new RA will step on the floor, as well as 51 new residents, and the process will start all over again.

—Kris Nicholson
