More than $30 in fees, tuition hike approved

With little discussion, BOT members OK changes in costs for 2000-2001

By Melanie Schneider
Administration editor

The proposed $33.90 fee increase as well as the 3 percent tuition raise for the 2000-2001 school year was approved by Eastern's Board of Trustees Monday.

"This is a cost we must pass on" mainly because of inflationary measures, said Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs.

The board approved all six fees totaling $33.90, including a $4 increase for health and accident insurance; a $16.50 increase in the Health Services and pharmacy fee; a $2 increase in the the Union and bond revenue fee; a $3 increase in the Textbook Rental; a $5 increase in the activity fee; and a $3.40 increase in the grant-in-aid fee. The increases will raise the mandatory fees from $566.75 to $590.65.

Hencken presented reports regarding why the increase in all of these fees were necessary. One of the reasons for the largest of the increases - the Health Services and pharmacy fee - is the number of students using the services, he said. Hencken said there were 34,545 medical visits in 1997, 37,755 in 1998 and 40,584 in 1999. Hencken asked BOT members to "remember we only have about 11,000 students."

Friends and neighbors of an Eastern freshman killed in a car accident Saturday said they remember her as "a ray of sunshine."

Melissa N. Holliday, 18, a freshman marketing major from Edwardsville, was killed along with her twin sister Erica L. Holliday, 18, of Edwardsville and Erica Holliday's boyfriend Ben Blain, 18, of Edwardsville, when their car crossed the center line on Illinois Route 130, Lantz Gymnasium Monday was filled with screams, excitement and plenty of school spirit during the 1999 Homecoming coronation, "The Rising Stars of EIU," while the Homecoming Court was announced.

This year's Homecoming Court is, in alphabetical order, William Brooks, a junior speech communication major representing Lambda Chi Alpha; Nicholas Burrows, a senior marketing major representing Delta Tau Delta; Scott Busam, a senior English major representing Sigma Phi Epsilon; Andrea Herzog, a senior early childhood and special education major representing Alpha Phi; Kara Kessel, a senior marketing major representing Sigma Sigma Sigma and Amy McPeak, a senior finance major representing Delta Zeta.

The Queen and King Homecoming Court members were very enthusiastic with their titles of reigning throughout the week.

"I'm really excited about being chosen. I was happy to be nominated by my fraternity house and feel that my chances for winning are one in three," Brooks said.

Burrows said he was happy to be representing his fraternity during Homecoming.

Community mourns loss of accounting, finance professor

By Geneva White

Lankford Walker was honored Tuesday during a memorial service at the Dudley House filled with laughter, tears and humorous memories about a professor who friends, students and colleagues say will never be forgotten.

"From all the time I knew him I came to admire him and also regard him as a dear friend," said Anne Zahlan, who once served with Dr. Walker on Faculty Senate. "Lankford was selflessly devoted to the well-being of students, faculty and staff. Lankford was always fearless in asking the hard questions and defending what was right."

Dr. Walker, an associate professor of accounting and finance, died Oct. 1 from a ongoing seizure disorder at the age of 57. While at Eastern, he was an active member of Faculty Senate and served on a number of committees, including the Distinguished Faculty Award Committee and the Library Advisory Board. He also helped found the Student Investment Society.

"Dr. Walker was a friend," said Natalie Jefford, a member of the Student Investment Society. "He was a teacher. He was a mentor and he will be missed by us all."

John Allison, an English professor and member of Faculty Senate, said Dr. Walker was like family and often went shopping and traveled with him and his wife Melody.

"Lankford was very close to us,"

Dan Klingenberg, director of Textbook Rental, previously said the requested increase for the Textbook Rental fee was because of the rising costs of books, which have risen $20 since last year.

The health and accident insurance fee increase was requested because health insurance costs are rising 12 to 15 percent each year, Jone Zieran, associate director of financial aid, previously said. Hencken said this insurance fee was necessary because of one main reason; "Accidents do happen and there are injuries."

Eastern nearing total Y2K compliance, says acting vice president

By Melanie Schneider
Administration editor

Jeff Cooley, acting vice president for business affairs, Monday said he expects the compliance efforts for the year 2000 will be completed well in advance of the millennium change, with the last scheduled upgrade to be done by Nov. 15.

Cooley gave a report providing updates on the university's Y2K risk assessment and contingency planning activities at Eastern's Board of Trustees meeting.

"At this point, the university is satisfied that the steps of mission critical goods and services will not be interrupted as a result of the millennium change," Cooley said. "Since the university's business partners continue to change over time, the university will continue to query its business partners to assess their Y2K readiness through the end of the year."

Major suppliers and business partners who provide goods and services such as food for students in residence halls, electricity, water, telephone and banking services also need to be prepared, and the university is making sure of that, Cooley said.

Cooley said Eastern's Information Technology Services department has been assessing the readiness of the central administrative systems to handle the millennium change for several years. Within the last three years, ITS staff have checked and tested 216 major systems and software products for compliance, upgraded 287 system software products, checked 140 staff and lab workstations and replaced 35 of them.

These efforts along with many others are documented in more than 600 pages of compliance statements, reports and charts that should assure the university's major informational systems, enterprise server hardware, network components, e-mail and Web services, student computer labs and telephone services will be ready for the turn of the century.

The vice presidents of different university departments were requested to actively promote Y2K awareness and assign responsibility for Y2K readiness in their respective areas, he said. The university also developed a Web site "tool kit" to assist the deans, directors, department chairs and others in assessing the Y2K problem.

"Since the distribution of the tool kit, much progress has been made toward departmental Y2K compliancy," Cooley said. "Once the scope of the problem was established, remediation efforts began at the department level. As expected, the majority of these efforts consisted of system upgrades."

By Nov. 1, the campuswide project to check the systems in classrooms, laboratories and administrative offices should be complete. The Facilities Planning and Management department staff have reviewed other systems related to the university's infrastructure including, elevators, environmental controls and security, as well as other time sensitive devices.

Cooley said the last scheduled upgrade to ensure the university's distributed computing system will be ready for the millennium change will be made by Nov. 15., about a month later than planned.

"It is estimated that the effort to ensure the Y2K compliancy in department-based computing equipment is now approximately 95 to 99 percent complete," Cooley said.

The university also has developed a contingency plan in the event the university does experience service failure on Jan. 1, 2000. During that time, most of the university will be on winter break, but certain administrative staff and key personnel from Facilities Planning and Management will be "on call" to address any unforeseen problems that may arise.

"We know there will be some unforeseen measures we will have to address," Cooley said. "Hopefully the millennium change will be 'just another day' at Eastern."

University House to go for $179,800

By Amy Thon
Assoc. news editor

Eastern's Board of Trustees Monday approved a recommendation to list the University House at a price of $179,800 and granted the authority to finalize the sale on behalf of the university to the vice president for business affairs.

The two-story house, located at 1112 Williamsburg Drive, was most recently home to former Eastern President David Jorns and his wife, Audrey. When Eastern President Carol Surles took office in March, she moved into a home of her own choosing, opting for a housing allowance instead.

"The university would like to sell the residence and use an on-campus location (for university receptions)," said Jeff Cooley, acting vice president for business affairs.

The proceeds from the sale of the house will be used to renovate a portion of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union into a formal meeting and entertainment facility, Cooley said.

The house is listed with Linda Nugent & Associates of Charleston, Cooley said. He said the real estate agent was chosen from four in the Coles County area who submitted bids.

The decision was made on the real estate agent's ability to market the property and its sale history.

BOT Chair Carl Koerner said he would like the list price to be higher.

"If you set a price at $179,000 and you get someone in to bicker, how far can you bicker? You can't," Koerner said. "I'd like to see a front-line price about ($185,000) or ($190,000)."

In other business, the BOT approved Cooley as treasurer of the board to replace Morgan Olsen, former vice president for business affairs, who left the university to take another position during the summer.

The board also approved a list of names for rooms and areas in the newly renovated O'Brien Stadium. The stadium was renovated completely through donated funds and Hencken said the donors were to be recognized by naming rooms and areas after them.

"The room will be named; there will be a plaque on the door," he said. "To get your name on the list here, you have to give a minimum of $10,000."

Board honors Edgar with honorary degree

By Amy Thon
Assoc. news editor

Eastern's Board of Trustees Monday unanimously voted to authorize the awarding of an honorary doctorate of public service degree to former Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar.

"Throughout his career, his visibility as a man of integrity and Eastern graduate has contributed to the university's state and national profile," said Eastern President Carol Surles.

The Honorary Degree committee recommended the BOT award the honorary doctorate of public service degree to Edgar.

Edgar, born July 22, 1946 in Charleston, was educated in Charleston public schools and is a graduate of Eastern, where he majored in history and served as student body president, Surles said.

She went on to say Edgar began his state government career in 1968 as a top aide to leaders in the Illinois House and Senate and later served as Director of State Services for the National Conference of State Legislatures in Denver. He was first elected to the Illinois House of Representatives from Charleston in 1976 and served as Director of Legislative Affairs for the Governor in 1979 and 1980. Edgar served as Secretary of State for 10 years beginning in 1981, Surles said.

Edgar was elected governor of Illinois in 1990 and "enjoyed widespread support throughout his two terms in office," Surles said.

"At the end of his administration, his approval rating was the highest in state history," she said.

Arrangements will be made to have Edgar accept this award during Eastern's fall 1999 commencement ceremony.

Support fellow students

Every year, Homecoming offers students a variety of chances to get involved and show their school spirit and interact with their peers.

Students should take these opportunities to cheer on their team and to get to know other students by not only participating in the activities throughout the week but attending them as well.

School spirit is not limited to cheering on the football team, it also includes cheering on individual students. Homecoming activities are geared to showcase students and have a good time doing it. The events allow students to take center stage and shift the focus of homecoming from the football team to the students. "Fractured Panthertails," an event where students preform interpretations of the school song, and coronation for the Homecoming court were held last night.

If students missed those events, preliminaries for "Fun Games" will take place from 3 to 5 p.m. today in the South Quad and students can participate though Recognized Student Organizations or can go watch.

But the activities are not just limited to fun and games. On Wednesday, RSOs can build sculptures out of unopened food or toiletries which will be donated to charity at the end of the event, a worthy cause everyone can get involved in for good reason.

More fun is planned for students on Thursday at the pep rally and bonfire. Saturday will offer more events and activities with tailgating before the grand finale of the football game against Tennessee Tech that will kick off at 1:30 p.m.

Although some students think Homecoming is strictly a greek event, if everyone got involved, Homecoming could become just what it is intended to be — a week of school spirit that brings students together to have a good time and build school spirit.

By getting involved, students can build a stronger bond with others and have more pride for Eastern.

Newspapers won't reach all students

Starting Monday, students living in residence halls will have access, on a trial basis, to several newspapers including USA Today, the Chicago Tribune and the Charleston Times-Courier.

The program, which was initially proposed by Cortney McDermott, student vice president for academic affairs, is becoming popular with universities all over the nation. Starting at Penn State in 1997, the program expanded when USA Today formed its own program in 1998. Currently more than 100 universities are signed up to participate in the pilot college readership program. The University of Illinois in Champaign/Urbana is among the universities participating in the pilot program.

If the program is instituted at Eastern, on-campus students will pay a fee to have USA Today, the Chicago Tribune, and the Charleston Times-Courier at Lincoln, Stevenson, Douglas, Taylor and McKinney residence halls. McDermott said sponsors also will be needed to keep the program going. Various departments at Eastern have said they would possibly sponsor the paper in the future.

The pilot college readership program lasts for about four weeks and at the end of each pilot, a survey is conducted to see how students respond to having the newspapers.

USA Today officials said that in nearly every pilot program, the school chose to keep the newspaper program.

The newspaper program is a good idea and will help keep students informed about the world around them and enhance their classroom experiences while at Eastern.

Studies have shown newspaper readership among younger people is declining, but on campuses where the newspaper program is already in place, the trend is that more students read newspapers, are better informed on current events and are connecting concepts in the news to real life.

A survey was conducted in the spring 1999 semester inquiring whether students would be interested in a newspaper program. Students in all majors and colleges were surveyed and McDermott said the responses were positive. On-campus access to news is important to college students.

It is, however, a disadvantage to students who live off-campus, because they will not have the newspapers available to them. Most of the other schools who are also giving the newspaper program a try, have decided to have the newspapers available in the residence halls.

At Penn State, although the newspapers are available at 44 locations on the main campus as well as at eight other annex campus locations for accommodating both on and off-campus students, only on-campus students pay a fee for the service. At Eastern, the program should be available to all students, and be funded by all students.

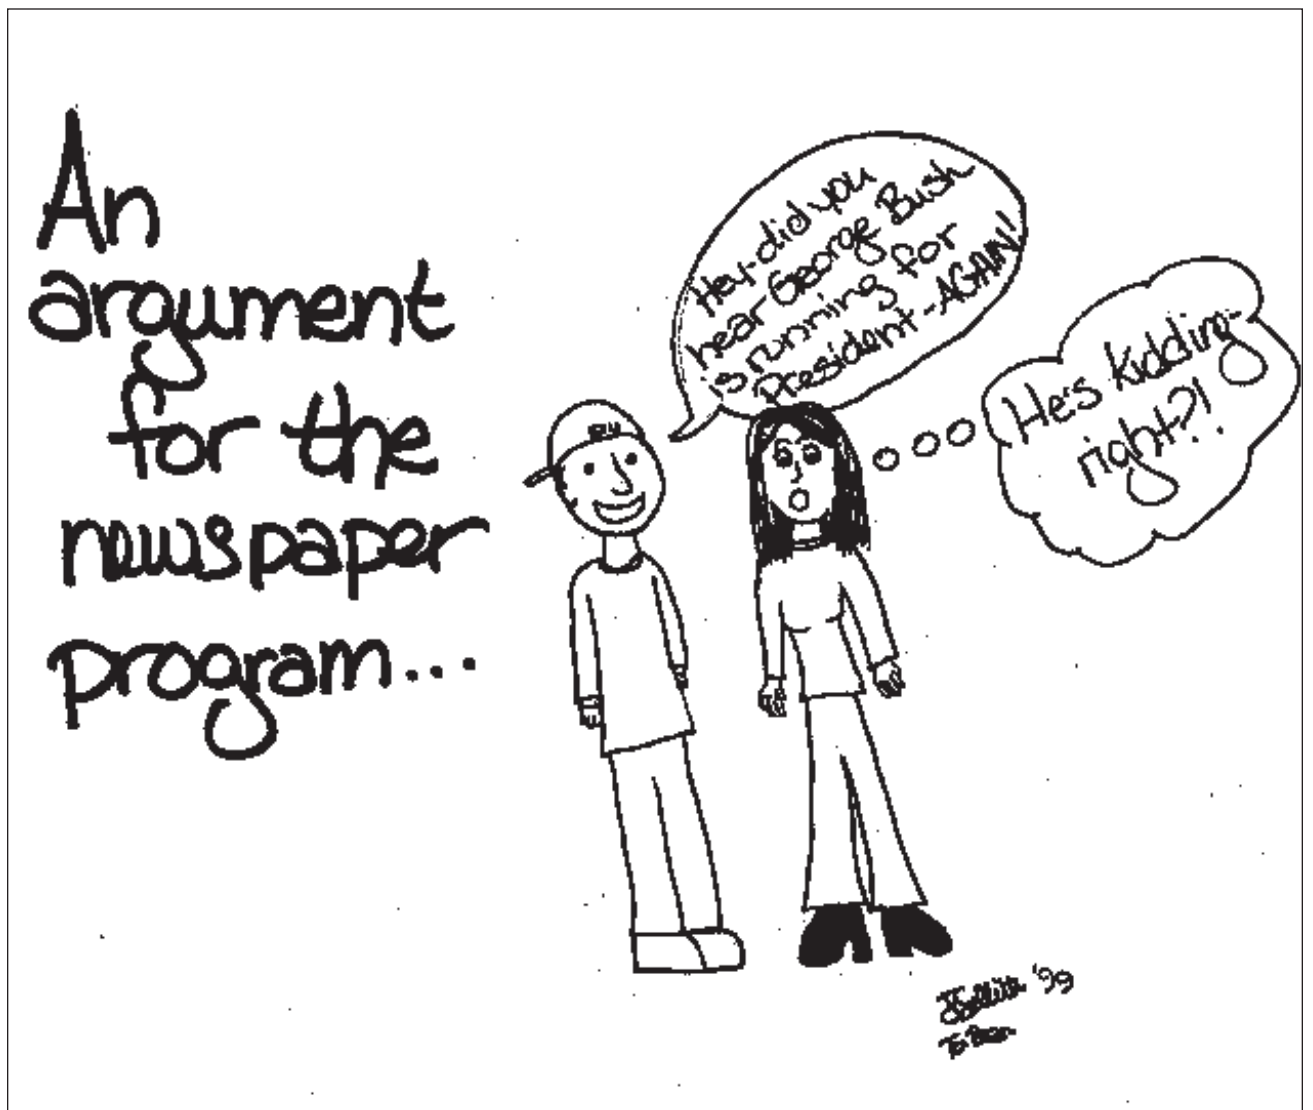

All students can benefit from access to major newspapers reporting world news as well as a newspaper focusing on local news. The opportunity should not be given only to students who live in residence halls.

It will be difficult to monitor the newspapers to ensure only on-campus students are taking them. Students who live off-campus are occasionally in residence halls visiting friends and could take the papers too, without having paid for them.

The program should include all students, with papers located in residence halls and in student buildings like the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union and Coleman Hall.

After the success of the trial program is assessed, Student Senate members should consider broadening the program to include off-campus students. If fees are raised and plans are made to provide newspapers on-campus, why not let all students benefit from it, not just those living in residence halls?

Impolite actions ruined somebody's birthday

On October 12 at approximately 10 a.m. I observed a group of friends putting up a large sign for another friend's birthday. They had obviously put a lot of effort and time into the sign and decorations to make the birthday a good one. Then, around 5 p.m. I watched a group of stupid, immature, disrespectful boys charge through the sign like a football team would.

After the boys ran through the sign, they all laughed and carried on like they had done something really cool. How cruel and discourteous can people be?

Ripping down a poster, especially for someone's birthday, for no reason at all is just wrong.

Shortly after the sign came down the group of friends was seen picking up the remnants of what was left of their gift for a friend. It was really hard to watch a group of idiots ruin something just because they thought it was funny. The guys who ruined that girl's birthday sign should feel absolutely horrible about themselves and the actions they participated in.

I can't believe that in this day and age people are still so childish and impolite.

Letter policy

The Daily Eastern News accepts letters to the editor addressing local, state, national and international issues.

They should be less than 250 words and include the author's name, telephone number and address. Students should indicate their year in school and major. Faculty, administration and staff should indicate their position and department. Letters whose authors cannot be verified will not be printed.

Depending on space constraints, we may have to edit your letter, so keep it as concise as possible.

Nasty weather holds off for now; sunshine on the way

By Matt Neistein
City editor

Students across campus Monday morning could be found wearing coats and defrosting their cars. Is this the beginning of winter?

A local weather observer says Charleston is far from it.

Dalias Price said the weather outlook for the week is "seasonable," meaning that even though it is a little late to be going to the beach, snow tires are not needed.

"It will be cool," he said. "But there won't be any snow."

He said snow as early as October is not uncommon in Charleston.

"We have had snow on Homecoming before," he said. "I've seen it ... in my 42 years (of keeping track of local weather)."

Price said the average temperature for the Charleston area on October 23 is a high of 60 degrees with a low of 40 degrees.

Monday's weather was a little cooler than normal, he said, with the high only reaching 54 degrees. The morning started off below freezing at 30 degrees.

Just seven years ago, the temperature on Oct. 18 dropped to 24

“It will be cool. But there won't be any snow. . . . That weather is lurking, ready to pounce in due time.”

degrees, Price said.

Price said Charleston is experiencing "mid-fall weather," meaning there will be crisp mornings and bright sunny days.

He noted that it is snowing in the northern part of the country, and the cold front soon will bring snow to Charleston as well.

"That weather is lurking, ready to pounce in due time," he said.

As the weather gets colder, weather patterns shift more quickly and become more difficult to predict, he said.

Students should expect a rain-free week, he said, although he did add a disclaimer.

"It's going to be dry," he said. "Famous last words."

Homecoming 1999: Food sculptures and whipped cream

Cans, clothing, other donations to transform into sculptures

By Daichiro Hashiguchi
Staff writer

Nineteen Recognized Student Organizations Wednesday will create food sculptures with cans, clothing and other personal items for Homecoming 1999.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. in the South Quad, and students will have until 4 p.m. to finish the sculptures. The sculptures then will be judged from 4 to 5 p.m.

The event runs all day because some RSOs are not as large as others and might need more time, said Alana Petrilli, organizer of the food sculpture event.

Students also have the opportunity "to come and go as they please throughout the day," she said. The event will allow students to go to their classes because it will run all day.

Petrilli said the food sculpture event is new to Homecoming this year, and will be replacing the pancake breakfast.

By adding the event, the students are trying to get the community involved, Petrilli said.

"We want to extend community relations and we are donating to several organizations," Petrilli said.

Participants will build the sculptures with cans, clothing, and personal necessities like shampoo bottles.

The RSOs must purchase and bring their own nonperishable items, and each group can purchase as much material as they want.

"Depending on how much money is spent is how big the sculptures will be," Petrilli said.

She also said sculptures will be related to anything that pertains to Eastern or Homecoming. Petrilli said a sculpture of Old Main would qualify, and she heard that one group might be building a ship.

RSOs are competing for points for Homecoming, and anyone who is not participating in the sculpture can donate things such as food and clothing.

Donations from the event will go to the Women's Coalition against Domestic Violence and the Charleston Food Pantry.

'Double Dare' main event of games

By Liew Lin Hai
Staff writer

Students can get covered in chocolate and whipped cream in the name of school spirit today during the Fun Games for Homecoming 1999.

The preliminaries will take place from 3 to 5 p.m. in the South Quad.

Recognized Student Organizations, Greeks and residence halls will compete for "spirit points" in an obstacle course similar to the one featured in the game show Double Dare, said Tracy Benson, coordinator for Homecoming 1999.

Although Benson would not disclose what the obstacle course and other games will entail, she said chocolate, whipped cream and a Slip and Slide will be present.

"There will be cream and chocolate involved and it will be messy," she said.

More than 15 RSOs are expected to participate in Fun Games, Benson said. Spirit points, based upon participation in Homecoming Week events, will be totaled at the end of the week. First, second and third place awards will be given to the RSO, fraternity and sorority and residence hall with the most spirit points.

Fun Games finals will take place Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the South Quad.

Spirit points also will be awarded to the organization or group that demonstrates the most school spirit during Homecoming Week events through cheering, Benson said.

"In their cheers, they have to involve Eastern Illinois University," she said. "They can't just be cheering for their organization."

Other Homecoming events scheduled for this week include a Food Sculpture Contest from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday in the South Quad and a bonfire and pep rally from 8 to 10 p.m. Thursday in the Lawson/Taylor courts.

The Homecoming parade will take place at 9:30 a.m. Saturday on Sixth and Seventh streets.

Homecoming King and Queen will be announced at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Eastern vs. Tennessee Tech football game.

Benson said she hopes to see a lot of students take part in Homecoming activities this week.

"It's a great way to show school spirit," she said.

'Speak your mind' forum canceled

By Shauna Gustafson
Staff writer

The Student Senate's Speak Your Mind forum Monday was canceled early because of the dismal turnout of five students and one senate member.

The forum, which was held in the Library Quad, saw only five student participants in a three-hour period, and the only senate member in attendance was Will Brooks, who organized the event.

"I blame myself for not scheduling it right," Brooks said. "I should have made sure senators signed up for specific hours."

Brooks said the five students who did take part in the forum were asked to fill out surveys about Housing and Dining Services and whether they listen to WEIU radio or watch WEIU TV.

The surveys will be used by the senate to discuss changes that possibly could be made.

Participants also were given information regarding the issues the senate's Housing and Dining Committee are discussing, Brooks said.

The forum was meant to be an opportunity for students to express their views and opinions on issues in such a way the Student Government could address the issues more directly, Brooks previously said.

Brooks said he wants to hold another forum in a few weeks, hopefully with better results.

Ethics focus of lecture

By Shauna Gustafson
Staff writer

As part of the inauguration symposium for Eastern President Carol Surles, a lecture titled "Ethics and Responsible Business Practices" will be held today.

The event will be at 7 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Barbara Toffler, independent consultant, will give the lecture, which will focus on ethics in business and in business curriculum, a press release stated.

Toffler has been in this field for the past 21 years, and was on the Harvard Business School faculty for eight years.

She will specifically speak on bridging the gap between principals, policies and practice, a press release stated.

There also will be an afternoon workshop for faculty regarding teaching business ethics within business curriculum. Toffler also will lead this discussion.

1999 Boss of the Year named

By Geneva White
Campus editor

Richard Roberts, chair of the counseling and student development department, was named Boss of the Year for 1999 at the EIU Bosses' Day Luncheon.

Roberts, who previously was a department chair at South Dakota University, has been at Eastern for two years and was named as the recipient Friday.

Roberts was nominated for the award by Debbie Gerdes, a secretary in the department of counseling and student development.

"He's just been a very pleasant person to work with," Gerdes said. "He's very caring and very understanding."

Gerdes said Roberts has been a major help as the department has been experiencing a number of changes recently, including going from a one- to a two-year degree.

"He came in and organized it and worked with the faculty and helped them with new technology and helped relieve them from some of their workload so they could do research," Gerdes said.

The Boss of the Year award has been in existence since 1989. The winner is determined by The Boss of the Year Selection Committee from a list of nominees compiled by Eastern's civil service department.

Employees can base their nominations on a number of characteristics including providing support to staff, helping employees succeed and going beyond everyday duties.

Gerdes said she did not think the award would go to someone who has

"I was very excited they chose somebody like Dr. Roberts. He's very dedicated to his job here, and it shows in what he does."

Debbie Gerdes, secretary in department of counseling and student development been at Eastern for such a short time.

"I was very excited they chose somebody like Dr. Roberts," she said. "He's very dedicated to his job here, and it shows in what he does."

The award was presented to Roberts by 1998 Boss of the Year Ebrahim Karbassioon, economics professor.

Conduct code revisions focus of Faculty Senate

By Melanie Schneider
Administration editor

Faculty Senate members will discuss results from the faculty survey, revisions to the Student Conduct Code and plan for the Fall Forum today.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in Room 2504 of Buzzard Hall.

Senate members will continue talking about the results of a survey that was sent out to faculty members at the beginning of the semester.

Most of the faculty members had similar concerns, said Bonnie Irwin, Faculty Senate chair, with only a few exceptions.

"We'll be looking at the things concerning the different colleges or among ranks from professor to instructor," Irwin said.

Revisions to the Student Conduct Code also will be addressed. The senate will receive a report from the student/faculty relations committee, and Irwin said she assumed senate members would vote to approve the revisions.

"Faculty Senate will give recommendations for the Student Conduct Code. They (suggestions) are pretty minor; there is nothing major in the report," Irwin said. "We'll help the committee by adding our suggestions."

Irwin said plans for the Fall Forum, which will be held on Nov. 9, also will be discussed.

ROTC members train in Marseilles

Once-a-semester course offers land navigation and 'thorns in our legs'

By Matt Neistein
City editor

One member of Eastern's ROTC program has a slightly different sense of fun than the average student.

"We went through brush up to our shoulders and thorns in our legs," said Jessica Denney, a freshman pre-med major. "It was fun, though."

Denney was talking about a land navigation course she completed as part of the ROTC's once-a-semester field training expedition, or FTX.

About 50 students traveled to the Marseilles National Guard Training Area Oct. 8-10 to participate in the expedition.

Fall semester's FTX is generally a training experience, said Kara Escajeda, a senior zoology major who spent six years in the U.S. Army before enrolling at Eastern in the ROTC program.

The spring FTX is usually a preparation for a five-week training course conducted by the Army for ROTC members during the summer.

Escajeda said the weekend was planned primarily by seniors and other experienced students, from the activities the members would participate in to what they would eat.

In general, seniors train freshmen and sophomores, while juniors prepare for the five-week course and conduct leadership labs as part of ROTC courses.

They also arranged transportation and conducted a pre-combat inspection. Students brought full gear minus pup tents, which includes rucksacks, load-bearing vests, or LBVs, and raingear.

Escajeda described the weekend weather as "perfect for training."

The group left Eastern around 3 p.m. on Oct. 8, with most of the personnel loaded on a school bus. A five-ton truck was part of the convoy, which also included other military vehicles.

On the two-hour trip to Marseilles, students got a rather unmilitary meal at Cracker Barrel.

"We got McDonald's on the way back," said Escajeda, laughing.

The group arrived at the base and set up camp in the armory, a large general-purpose building used for training purposes. Night sentries known as fire watches were deployed.

"You're lucky if you get to be a fire watch," said Jared Hughes, a sophomore environmental biology major, with a sarcastic smirk.

The group woke at 0530, or 5:30 a.m., and juniors, along with members training for the Ranger Challenge at the end of this month, went to the rifle range to qualify with the M-16 service rifle.

The rest of the ROTC team went on a round robin of training sessions, which included rappelling, individual movement techniques and land navigation, Escajeda said.

Hughes recalled how one student swung back and forth on the rappelling tower, using the rope as a swing.

Seniors and members of the ROTC cadre, the permanent teachers and trainers assigned to the program by the military, posed as the OPFOR, or opposing force, during combat simulations.

Students also ate MREs, or meals-ready-to-eat, for breakfast and lunch. MREs are dehydrated, high-calorie meals condensed into small packages for convenience.

Denney said the dehydrated fruit is her favorite part of the meals.

She said because of a night land navigation course, all members were not accounted for until 1 a.m. Saturday. However, the cook-out that evening, which featured bratwurst and hamburgers, softened spirits, along with a pickup football game that seemed to crop up whenever members got a few spare minutes.

Sunday morning the three platoons, which consisted of 10 to 15 students apiece, competed on an obstacle course which featured a low crawl, a high wall to climb, a high-knee portion and a balance beam.

"I hate that balance beam," Hughes said.

The convoy returned to Eastern at about 3 p.m. on Sunday. Weapons had already been cleaned, Escajeda said, so the students could get back to normal campus life sooner.

Hughes, Escajeda and Denney agreed the weekend was an enjoyable experience.

"I could've stayed out there longer," Denney said.

Sigma Pi Gold 7 Pike Gold 6

Not even the cold weather was going to stop the flag football intramurals Monday as the championship games got under way.

The A league featured the Sigma Pi Gold team defeating Pike Gold 7-6.

There were fans lining the field as the game got under way. The Pikes took hold of the ball to start the game and in the first play they fumbled the snap.

Sigma Pi's Craig Dovich scored the first touchdown of the game right before the half. The Sigma Pi's went up 7-0 after making good on the conversion.

The game then took a turn and the Pikes scored their first touchdown to open the second half. Todd Chambers caught the ball in the end zone which put the Pikes down only one point to the Sigma Pis.

The point after attempt was stopped due to pass interference by the Sigma Pis and a personal foul against the Pikes.

The Pikes last chance to score was shot down as the quarter back threw a incomplete pass to end the game.

"There were two good teams and they beat us. There was nothing lacking, just two good team and they beat us," said senior Pike Todd Chambers.

All Madden 20 Red and Buff 19

In B league action The All-Madden team got some revenge against a Red and Buff team that handed them their only loss of the season.

"They beat us in the first game of the year. They smoked us 33-6 and then we came back and beat them," said Mark Tomse, senior communications major.

The All-Madden team came out ahead this time, taking the championship 20-19.

Both teams came out to play and were warming up in the cold weather. All-Madden won the coin toss and got set in their defense.

The first play lead to a five yard penalty against Red and Buff. Within the first 10 minutes of play, quarterback Mark Tomse ran for a touchdown and assisted the point after that put All-Madden on the board.

After a couple shaky incomplete passes and a timeout, the Red and Buff team pulled out a touchdown but failed on the extra point attempt.

After the touchdown the Red and Buff came out with an offensive plan that threw off the All-Madden team and the sidelines alike. Yet, they were still one point behind the All-Madden team.

"We cracked down on our defense second half that brought us the win," said Matt Reahm, junior All-Madden player.

All-Madden then came back with their own touch down by Adam Buhot which brought the game to 13-6.

Brian Brandt caught the touchdown pass for the Red and Buff which brought them back in the game to be again one point behind.

Neil Hannen was there to catch another pass this time to put Red and Buff ahead at 19-13 with help of his teammate Jeff Summer's chant of "let's punch it in!"

The game then took a turn when the completed pass to Joe Garrent went for a touchdown and the point after was caught by a diving Reahm.

"I just come out here everyday to do my job, and Lord willing, things will all workout," said Mike Wetzal, junior All-Madden player.

Panthers hold on to fifth

Men's golf team ends first day with optimism

By Kyle Bauer
Sports editor

Before the Panther men's golf team began competition in the Ironhorse Collegiate in Tuscola Monday, head coach Jay Albaugh described the team's attitude as optimistic with a cautious confidence.

After the opening day of competition, there is still reason to be optimistic about the team's chances of winning its only home tournament.

The Panthers are sitting in fifth place after two rounds with a team score of 305. Leading the pack is fellow Ohio Valley Conference member Southeast Missouri State, finishing the day with 290.

Wright State (293) completed the first two rounds in second, while Butler (302) and Tennessee State (304) rounded out the top five teams.

Before the tournament, Eastern expected to be chasing SEMO for the championship, but with Tennessee State holding onto the fourth spot and leading the Panthers by only one shot, Eastern finds itself fighting with another OVC team for a top finish.

"We didn't play our best round of golf today, but we are in a good place to have the best finish in school history," Albaugh said.

As for the individuals, Albaugh got just what he expected out of his two top players.

David Rella was Eastern's top finisher, ending the day in fourth place overall. Rella finished with a 72, three shots off of the lead.

"David Rella had an outstanding round today and he is in good position to win the championship," Albaugh said.

SEMO's Steve Basler was the top individual, shooting a 69. Basler's teammate Jason Owen was also among the top finishers, finishing the day in third with a 71.

Eastern's other top finisher was Blake Kearney, who completed the first two rounds in a tie for 14th place after shooting 75.

Kearney is tied with eight other participants. Included in that bunch is SEMO's Bryan Johnson and Tennessee State's Per Nilsson.

The field of participants will battle the cold weather and winds that are characteristic of Ironhorse Golf Club today. Tee time is set for 11 a.m.

"I am really optimistic about tomorrow," Albaugh said. "I think we can finish third."

Panther soccer team plays to overtime tie

Kyle Bauer / Staff photographer

Panther Devin Rensing fights off an Evansville player during the Panthers 2-2 tie with the Aces.

By Anthony Braviere
Staff writer

Eastern's men's soccer team played its second consecutive Missouri Valley Conference game on Sunday, playing to a 2-2 tie with Evansville.

But the game was more than another conference match-up. It was a chance to even up their conference record after losing to tenth-ranked Southwest Missouri on Friday.

The first half was a good news, bad news story for the Panthers.

The good news came early, as sophomore Derrick Perry scored in the eighth minute to put Eastern up 1-0.

The bad news came later in the half when the Aces attempted a corner kick, but after the corner kick was taken a shot by the Aces was going into the goal when Panther Mike Murphy committed a handball and Evansville was awarded the goal.

The action in the second half was pretty slow until there was 13:06 left in the game. That's when Evansville's Terence Gargantini ripped the twine and put the Aces up 2-1.

Evansville's lead was short lived as Perry scored his second goal of the match and fifth of the season to tie up the game and send the game into overtime.

The first overtime was back and forth throughout. Both teams had equal offensive opportunities, but neither team capitalized on these opportunities.

The second overtime period was much like the first, with neither team scoring.

"Although the game was a tie, there were positives," head coach Tim McClements said.

"We as a coaching staff are very proud of the way our team battled back into this game. We need to limit our mistakes, but this was a very positive weekend for us."

Women's soccer team battles weather, Blue Jays for victory

By Anthony Braviere
Staff writer

Even though the weather was cold for Sunday's match against non-conference foe Creighton, Eastern's women's soccer team was red hot, beating the Blue Jays 4-1.

Creighton dominated the Panthers in the first half.

The Blue Jay offense peppered Eastern goalie Jeanine Fredrick, out-shooting the Panthers 19-2.

Creighton's offense kept the ball in their side of the field for most of the first half.

The Bluejay offense had many shots ricochet off the crossbar, and some soar over the goal.

The first half was mainly uneventful for the Panthers until late in the half when Junior midfielder Carole Griggs hit the back of the net, to make the score 1-0 with 12 minutes remaining in the half.

The Blue Jays started dominating the second half, but that all changed when Eastern midfielder Cara LeMaster brought out her enthusiasm, and became the sparkplug the Panthers needed.

With 23:18 left in the second half, LeMaster took a shot from the right side of the Creighton goalie, Maggie Phelan, that the wind got a hold of, and went in to put Eastern up 2-0.

"I took the shot, but I meant it to be more of a cross," she said. "Once the wind got a hold of it I thought either that it is going to go out of bounds, or it's a terrible cross."

"But then the the thing went in, and that got everyone going. We had a great effort by everyone in the second half, and it really showed."

After LeMaster's goal, Eastern never looked back. The Panthers got two goals from senior Valerie Pouch, as the Panthers did a little peppering of their own in the second half, making the score 4-0.

Eastern's offense wasn't the only bright spot in the match. The goalie play was extraordinary.

The Ohio Valley Conference's second-leading tandem of goalies in Fredrick and Jessica Graczyk kept the Missouri Valley Conference's leading scorer Kersten Flink and the Blue Jay offense at bay.

Creighton's Kristina Schoek scored its only goal with 2:04 left to play in the game to make the score 4-1.

The score stayed that way the rest of the way as the Panthers improved their record to 7-8 overall.

Panthers back on track

Eastern sweeps weekend OVC competition

By Bill Ruthhart
Staff writer

MURRAY, Ky. - The Panther volleyball team took care of business on the road this weekend defeating both Tennessee-Martin and Murray State.

Eastern (12-7, 7-2) had difficulty putting away a mediocre Tennessee-Martin team (5-14, 1-8) Friday night winning in 5 games 5-15, 15-6, 12-15, 15-5, 15-9. But Eastern came back Saturday to handle Murray State (10-8, 6-5) in four games, 15-10, 15-9, 11-15, 15-6.

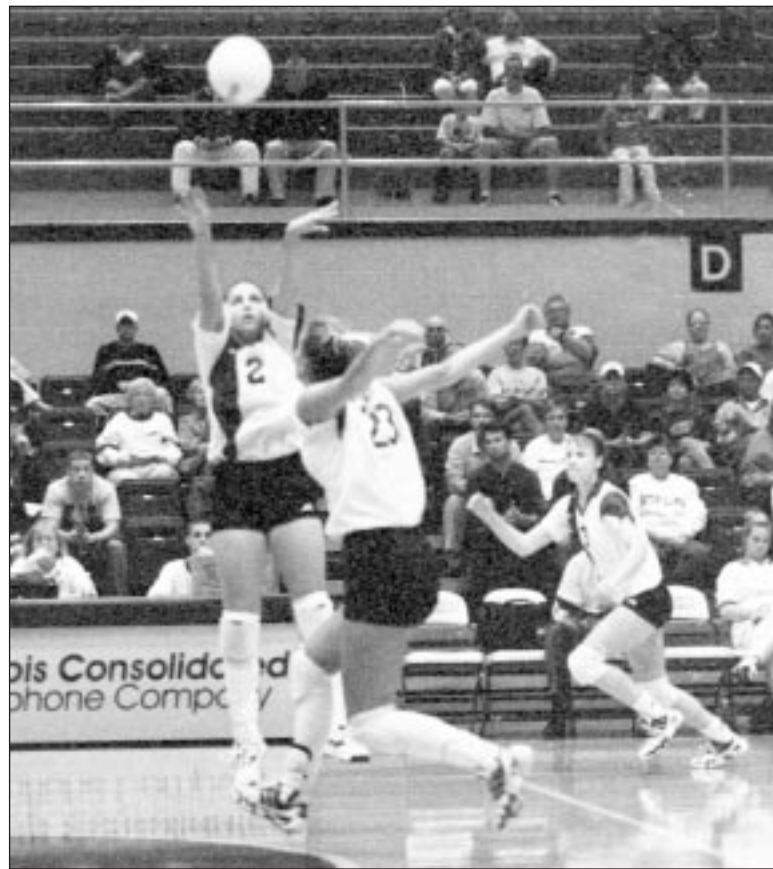

In Friday night's match, the Panthers struggled early, finding themselves down 14-1 at one point in the first game.

"(Saturday) we played like we are supposed to play," interim head coach Andrew Epperly said. "For the most part, we passed very well and dug over 100 balls. But the big key was the blocking - we out-blocked them 15-6."

Morehead State head coach David Schwepker also was impressed with the defensive effort put forth by the Panthers.

"They just dig every single thing no matter what and they chase every ball down," he said.

Senior outside hitter Meleah Cutler continues to impress coaches around the league on her farewell tour, while sophomore outside hitter Leslie Przekwas improves with every match in the middle.

"Przekwas did a very good job of running the middle and Meleah played very, very well and we just couldn't stop her," Schwepker said. "And even though they didn't set her as much in the last game, she was still very, very impressive."

The two weekend wins provide

Eastern with some much-needed momentum after losing to SEMO on Tuesday night at home.

"This was a good weekend, these are two tough teams we played," Cutler said. "Martin has all freshmen but keep improving every time we see them and Murray is always very good."

"This just helps us after that hard loss to SEMO."

De La Hoya sued by ex-manager

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar De La Hoya's onetime business manager is suing the former welterweight champ, claiming breach of contract for failure to honor a five-year contract signed last year.

Mike Hernandez alleged in a Superior Court suit filed Oct. 14 that he was fired because De La Hoya "decided to take over his own affairs," attorney Mark Polan said.

De La Hoya was surprised to learn about the suit, according to his lawyers, Bert Fields and Robert Chapman.

Both sides had been discussing resolution of claims in informal discussions, they said.

Chapman, who said De La Hoya never signed the contract, said the fighter will now file a countersuit against Hernandez.

Earnhardt takes Winston 500

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Working together for just over a year, Dale Earnhardt and crew chief Kevin Hamlin think they've finally figured out how to compete on a consistent basis.

Earnhardt came from 27th place Sunday to outfox the field at Talladega Superspeedway and hold off Dale Jarrett to win the Winston 500.

The seven-time Winston Cup champion needed just five laps to get into the top five, and remained a contender the rest of the day.

"I think we've got it where we should be able to run in the top five every week," Earnhardt said. "It goes to show that you never give up on your race car and you never give up on your race team."

Hamlin was the crew chief for Mike Skinner, Earnhardt's teammate, until he switched in the middle of last season. Under Hamlin, Earnhardt has either placed first or second in all four of the year's restrictor plate races. He's won three times this season — sweeping the Talladega races and winning at Bristol.

The seven-time Winston Cup Champion is so content, he's in the process of signing a new contract extension with owner Richard Childress. The current contract expires at the end of next season, but Childress said the team had a lifetime agreement.

"We're gonna win that eighth championship, that's the goal here," Childress said. "Dale Earnhardt can still do it and anyone who doubted him was crazy."

Cubs release Gaetti

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs placed third baseman Gary Gaetti on waivers Monday, possibly ending a major league career that spanned nearly two decades.

The 41-year-old Gaetti hit .204 with nine home runs and 46 RBIs in 113 games this season.

Gaetti also played in his 2,500th game this season, becoming only the 40th player in major league history to reach that milestone.

He finished the season with 2,502 games, putting him third on the career list among third basemen.

Gaetti ranks 46th in career home runs with 360 and his 1,340 RBIs ranks him 52nd. He also has 2,280 hits. He has played in two All-Star games and won four Gold Gloves.

Gaetti came to the Cubs during the 1998 season and his strong performance over the last six weeks of the season when he hit .320 was one of the keys in the Cubs play-off run.

Gaetti began his major league career in Minnesota and helped the Twins win a World Series. He left the Twins after the 1990 season, playing with the California Angels, Kansas City Royals and St. Louis Cardinals before coming to the Cubs late in the 1998 season.

The Cubs on Monday also announced the purchase of left-handed pitcher Dan Serafini's contract from their Triple-A team in Iowa.

SOFTBALL TEAM OF THE CENTURY

Stealing the glory

Early teams battled obstacles by defying the odds

By Bill Ruthhart
Staff writer

The Eastern softball program has grown by leaps and bounds since its inception in 1976. Eastern softball has enjoyed much success over the years, with an overall record of 553-425 over 25 seasons, a .768 winning percentage.

But the success didn't come without a lot of extra work and desire.

Despite having little funding and sub-par facilities in its early existence, the softball program continued to thrive and grow through the hard work and dedication of hundreds of college softball players from several different eras, some of which are represented on this team of the century.

"Obviously, our facilities for softball were lacking compared to other schools in the Midwest," said Deanna D'Abbraccio, Panther head coach from 1981-85.

In fact, the Panthers were forced to compete on intramural fields, until a field was finally built for them in the mid-'80s. But the softball program continued to see success, even when it made the move to the Division I level in 1983.

"I always felt we had the players of the caliber to compete with the Division I teams," D'Abbraccio said. "Before we even had a field, we played on an intramural field and played against Indiana University one year, who was one of the biggest Division I powerhouses in the country at the time. They came here and played on our intramural field and we beat them, and I knew we could."

Despite the setbacks in funding and facilities, the program continued to see success with that attitude of confidence D'Abbraccio instilled in her players, and it paid off for the program in the form of a new field.

"If we wanted to continue to be competitive, we certainly needed a field to do that," she said. "And thanks to the vision of Glen Williams, who was the vice president for student affairs at the time and had a very strong interest in softball, got it done.

"It took a long time to get that field built, but it was a proud day when we cut the ribbon on that field."

Without the players that make up this team of the century and their teammates, the storied tradition and success of the Eastern softball team would not exist. And while it was difficult to sift through so many talented student-athletes and pick just 14 to represent 25 years of success, we can assure you one thing. Without these 14 players and the coach chosen to lead them, the Panther softball program would not be where it is today.

The Battery

Without a doubt, the ace of this all-century staff has to be Zam Mogill (1988), who dominates, nearly every pitching category in the record book.

"I had the pleasure of signing Zammy as a high school senior,"

D'Abbraccio said. "She always had the mentality that she was going to overpower the batter and take control of the game, and she almost always did."

"Zammy" owns almost every record a pitcher could obtain at Eastern. She is the all-time career leader in wins (78), saves (7), innings pitched (701) and shutouts (45). But that's hardly the full story. Mogill also holds single season career records for games started (34), wins (24), saves (4), strike outs (249) and shutouts (17). Mogill also ranks second in single season and career ERA.

If it hadn't been for Mogill, Kathy Richards (1983) would hold virtually every pitching record in the Eastern record books. "She was very accurate, hard-working pitcher and was inducted into the EIU Hall of Fame," D'Abbraccio said. "She was an outstanding defensive player as a pitcher and could really hit the ball too. She was an all-around super softball player."

Richards ranks behind Mogill in career wins (48), shutouts (24), single season shutouts (15) and strikeouts (195). Richards did grab the top spot in both single season ERA (.36), career ERA (.74) and single season wins (24).

Donna Ridgway (1984), a teammate of Richards who also played under D'Abbraccio, rounds out the pitching staff.

"She was very much a competitor," D'Abbraccio said of Ridgway. "She never wanted to be taken out of the game, and I really liked that about her."

Ridgway owns the single-season record for fewest walks, giving up just eight in 140 innings during the 1984 season. She ranks third in several categories including career wins (45), career saves (3), career innings pitched (507.7), shutouts (14) and career ERA (.97).

While it was difficult to leave Division II All-American catcher Kelly Waldrup (1983) off the team, Sharna McEwan (Wilkerson) (1995) was a great offensive and defensive mainstay for the Panthers during her career.

"I remember Sharna for her power," teammate Jennifer Cherveney said. "She was such a strong hitter and had a strong arm throwing runners out at second. She was a really dedicated worker and was always in the weight room and I looked up to her."

McEwan, who is originally from Thornland, Australia, holds the career record for doubles (38), is second in career RBI (92), third in career batting average (.348), fourth in career hits (169), as well as being the single-season doubles leader (19).

"Softball was my life," McEwan said. "I came here to play and I am glad that I got the opportunity to do that."
