Band draws signatures to combat proposed education budget cuts

by Jim Allen

Shifting gusts of wind on an otherwise-perfect afternoon swirled bass guitar blasts into the face of the library building and back at the band platform at the opposite end of the quad.

Some 150 students positioned themselves across the lawn in distinct clans to throw frisbees, kick hackey sacks, blow bubbles or just lounge soaking in the intensity of a sun that made everyone squint.

A throwback to the Vietnam era, the clothes and the motives were different. But the song remained the same.

While a rock band hacked out its versions of the Rolling Stones' "Sympathy for the devil" and Steppenwolf's "Born to be wild," three students mingling through the crowd collected between 400 and 500 signatures for a petition to U.S. Congressmen to protest President Reagan's proposed cuts in student aid.

Eastern joined about 50 universities Tuesday from Oregon to Boston who have staged rallies and forums as part of a U.S. Student Association-sponsored program dubbed, "Raise Awareness on Issues for Students and Education."

The primary focus of the RAISE program is to inform students on the cuts and motivate them to write congressmen to show opposition to student aid cuts, said USSA legislative director Kathy Ozer.

Ozer, speaking from Washington in a telephone interview Tuesday, said, "Illinois has strong support (from its senators and representatives) for education, yet it's important for them to know that their constituents feel strongly on this issue."

She added that Reagan's original proposed cuts in student aid totaled $2.3 billion, which she estimated would eliminate 27 percent of the current recipients from participating in the programs next year.

With initial House and Senate debates on the federal budget scheduled to begin next week, Ozer said, "Clearly these are major cuts that cannot be ignored."

Angelynn Richardson, rally co-organizer and student body president, said she and other volunteers garnered between 400 and 500 signatures at

Student election polls open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

by Julie Zook

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. for the student government election Wednesday, Financial Vice President Tammy Walker said Tuesday.

All Eastern students are eligible to vote, but must present validated ID cards when voting, she said.

Students who live off campus and in the north quad residence halls of Lincoln, Stevenson, Douglas, Pemberton and the Triad vote in the east end of the University Ballroom, she said.

Students who live in the south quad residence halls of Carman, Ninth Street, East, Andrews, Lawson, Thomas and Taylor vote in the southeast second-floor landing of Coleman Hall, Walker added.

Students will vote for Student Senate executives and senators, as well as a proposal to reduce the number of hours a student must be registered with to participate in student government.

The new proposal asks that students working in student government only be registered with one hour, rather than the current requirement of 12 hours. However, the requirement of a 2.0 grade point average is not up for

Candidates hit pre-election campaign trail

by Lori Edwards, Kevin McDermott and Julie Zook

Less than 24 hours before the polls opened Wednesday, the four candidates for student body president were engaged in last-ditch campaigning for the most contested student government election in recent memory.

As one candidate's supporter put it, "The lines are already drawn—there's going to be a hell of a battle in the senate if everyone (from different parties) gets in."

The party names are diverse, and in one case, non-existent. Through letters to the editor, posted announcements and word-of-mouth, the names Floyd Akins (TIME), Dane Buczkowski (Justice League for Bhopal), Ron Wesel (Quality) and Dan Zicarelli (independent) have come to be household words on campus.

Akins said he is spending the remaining campaign time talking to students.

"As far as I'm concerned, the campaign ends tonight," Akins said Tuesday. "Tomorrow, I'll be getting students out to vote."

He added that he wants to spend Wednesday making himself visible.

The Justice League for Bhopal is not only trying to make itself visible on election day, but is also trying to clear up some confusion caused by the party's sudden name-change Monday.

Originally named The Justice League, Dane Buczkowski's slightly-radical party last weekend incorporated the extremely-radical Party Bhopal—and its leader, former Party Bhopal presidential candidate Jon Pierre Frenza.

Buczkowski said the "merger" of the two parties came after he and Frenza realized they shared similar ideas and followings, and that running against each other could result in less votes for both sides.

"I think that (the merger) is going to add a big chunk of the votes onto our party," Buczkowski said Tuesday while campaigning on the Library Quad.

But he stressed that, since Frenza's name is still on the ballot separately, Frenza supporters have to be informed of the sudden change before they enter the polls. "They can't vote for Bhopal," he explained. "They have to vote for the Justice League for the vote to count."

Wesel, a junior, celebrated his 21st birthday on Tuesday, but he said he hopes the voters will give him a "belated birthday present" during Wednesday's student government election.

He said he plans no real campaigning for Wednesday, except for volunteers handing out fliers near the polling places and "word-of-mouth."

"We're going to have friends help pass out fliers and talk to people. Either way, the students won't lose, because there are contested races throughout," he said.

Zicarelli, a senior, is the only one of the four candidates who has refused to campaign for Wednesday's elections.

"I'm not really campaigning," Zicarelli said. "I hope all my friends and people I know go out and vote."

"But not-campaigning has hurt me," he admitted. "Later on, I found out campaigning was a good idea, but it's something I had decided earlier not to do."

"I think I could do okay if they just vote. I think I have a pretty good chance. The only thing I spent was time and it was well worth it. It was a new education."

One of the most bitter—and confusing—election issues stems from Akins' proposal to create a new campus security program, and Wesel's contention that that proposal can't work.

The proposal would require students to serve as patrol guards, Akins said. The guards would be

Moslem militias battle in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon—Moslem militias battled in the streets of west Beirut for the first time in months Tuesday, driving non-combatants to cover with withering fire from rockets, automatic weapons and grenade launchers.

Police said the American University hospital had received two dead and 23 wounded from the fighting, while no immediate reports were available from other hospitals and clinics. The battleground included the main shopping and residential districts of the capital's Moslem sector.

A rocket slammed into the building where Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri lives, but did not hit his apartments, said an aide who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Agencies can conceal identities

WASHINGTON—The CIA and other U.S. spy agencies are free to conceal from the public the identities of all intelligence sources, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The court, by a 7-2 vote, gave the director of the Central Intelligence Agency unlimited power to protect not only secret agents but all other sources of information—classified and unclassified. That includes the names of private scientists and researchers, and even academic journals.

"Congress intended to give the directors of Central Intelligence broad power to protect the secrecy and integrity of the intelligence process," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said for the court.

"The reasons are too obvious to call for enlarged discussion," he said. "Without such protection the agency would be virtually impotent."

Farm credit plan stalls in house

SPRINGFIELD—A $25 million emergency credit plan to help farmers borrow money for spring planting was approved Tuesday by the Illinois Senate, but action on the measure stalled in the House.

Senators voted 55-1 for the plan, which sponsors say would help as many as 15,000 farmers who can't afford to borrow money for seed, fertilizer, fuel and other needs at prevailing interest rates.

The measure, endorsed without debate, returns to the House for consideration of changes made last week at Governor Thompson's request. Thompson has said he will sign the measure with those changes.

Man who fakes death must pay

CHICAGO—A man who faked his death and assumed another name 15 years ago to escape his marriage must now make support payments to his wife, a judge has ruled.

Cook County Circuit Judge Aubrey Kaplan also invalidated John Tidswell's divorce from Kathleen Tidswell, which he obtained after he had disappeared, as well as two later marriages to a second woman, Ruth Campbell.

"I feel sorry for her," Mrs. Tidswell, of suburban Wilmette, said of her husband's second wife.

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Illinois' acting public health chief said Tuesday that two newly discovered batches of salmonella-tainted milk probably didn't reach consumers, because the grocery chain selling it pulled dairy products from stores before the milk was out on shelves.

"The best estimate is that the 'pull' order was received before this was put on shelves," said Jeremy Margolis, the state inspector general and acting director of the Public Health Department. "We think it was caught."

Margolis announced Monday that laboratory tests confirmed that a dairy owned by Jewel Companies Inc. produced tainted milk seven days after a batch of milk was implicated in one of the nation's worst salmonella poisoning outbreaks.

Margolis said Monday that the latest tests indicated that two batches of milk processed April 8—a day before the Hillfarm Dairy in suburban Melrose Park was closed—contained salmonella, raising to four the number of tainted shipments of milk.

Tests for salmonella were positive on a plastic 1-gallon jug of Hillfarm skim milk and a half-gallon carton of Hillfarm 2 percent milk. Both batches carried April 17 expiration dates.

Morgolis, echoing comments by store executives, said there was no evidence to indicate the dairy should have been closed before Jewel ordered it shut.

The number of confirmed salmonella cases in five Midwestern states has surpassed 5,000 and four deaths are traceable to the milk-borne disease, officials say. Margolis said the number of reported cases was expected to rise again when the latest figures were available late Tuesday, but probably would start tapering off Wednesday.

As of late Monday, there were 5,295 confirmed cases of salmonella in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana. Another 1,349 cases were reported but not confirmed.

Crew practices for fixing satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Two spacewalkers fastened a makeshift "flyswatter" to the end of Discovery's robot arm Tuesday, and the crew practiced ways of using it to gently pull a switch to activate an orbiting satellite filled with volatile fuel.

At stake in Wednesday's attempt is the life of the $80 million Syncom communications satellite. If NASA guessed right, flipping the switch will start a 45-minute sequence that erects the satellite's antenna, puts Syncom into a faster spin and sends it off to a useful orbit high above Earth.

"If I could think of a better bullet to fire, I'd be shooting it," said flight director Randy Stone. "The only thing on this satellite we can do anything about is this lever. I think we've got a very good probability of tripping this lever."

Discovery's crew has two four-minute periods, 90 minutes apart, to accomplish the task.

The first try is scheduled shortly after 9 a.m. EST, when shuttle and Syncom are over two Atlantic Ocean islands called St. Peter and St. Paul northeast of Brazil.

Clad in clumsy space suits, astronauts David Briggs and Jeffrey Hoffman floated into Discovery's cargo bay Tuesday and strapped two jury-rigged tools—one described as a flyswatter, the other as a lacrosse stick—to the end of shuttle's 50-foot mechanical arm.

"Is that beautiful, or is that not beautiful," said Griggs, stepping back to admire his handiwork.

Doctors 'relieved' after surgery

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Doctors said Tuesday that they were "very much relieved" that surgery had stopped internal bleeding in artificial heart patient Jack C. Burcham, and they resumed giving him blood thinners in the hope of averting possible strokes often caused by blood clots.

Burcham, at 62 the oldest of the world's five recipients of a permanent artificial heart, remained in critical but stable condition in the coronary care unit at Humana Hospital Audubon.

Burcham's vital signs were stable after a second operation Monday to halt bleeding inside his chest, and "we think that everything is intact," Dr. Allan M. Lansing, medical spokesman for the Jarvik-7 heart implant team, said.

Burcham was breathing with the aid of a respirator and being given morphine and sedatives for pain relief, Lansing said.

"We feel very much relieved about his condition," Lansing said.

Burcham, of Le Roy, Ill., lost at least 42 pints of blood, four times his normal body volume, after Sunday's implant operation, Lansing said.

Dr. William C. DeVries, the implant surgeon, stopped the leaks from stitches around Burcham's aorta during a two-hour operation.

Aid proposal for Contras faces rejection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former CIA Director Stansfield Turner urged Congress on Tuesday to reject President Reagan's proposal to release $14 million in aid to the "Contras" in Nicaragua, calling it "a dead-end policy" in Central America.

"The Nicaraguan communists are not an immediate threat to the United States and its interests in Central America," Turner said.

Turner, who headed the agency under former President Carter, testified before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee which also heard Ray Cline, a former deputy director of the CIA who firmly supports Reagan's policy.

"If the United States turns its back on this group (the Contras) there will be moves to accommodate with communist regimes throughout the world and in Nicaragua," Cline said.

Meanwhile, Reagan, speaking to a group of religious leaders at the White House, kept up his criticism of the leftist Nicaraguan government, again accusing it of religious persecution. The president said he had also received a message from the pope "urging us to continue our efforts in Central America."

Republican and Democratic sources in the House predicted that the Contra aid plan would lose by 30 votes, despite an intensifying lobbying campaign by Reagan and his allies. A close vote in the Republican-led Senate was predicted.

Under the proposal to be voted on next week, the $14 million would go as humanitarian assistance to the Contras seeking overthrow of the Sandinista government in Managua.

But if negotiations between the Sandinistas and the Contras failed, the money would then be spent for weapons for the rightist rebels supported by the president.

Reagan met for an hour on Tuesday with House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., and Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Afterwards, Michel said he would explore alternatives to Reagan's proposal "to get something to keep it from failing."

"I reminded the president that in my judgment (House Speaker Thomas P.) O'Neill has put his feet in concrete on this issue," Michel said, referring to a concerted Democratic campaign against the Contra aid program which began as secret assistance in 1981.

Sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said some lawmakers were working on their own alternatives to the president's plan.

But White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that despite the opposition, "The president believes his way is the right way," and Michel said Reagan was determined to battle for his own version without compromise.

Meeting with the religious leaders, Reagan said, "We see a variation of how to abuse religious freedom in the Sandinista regime of Nicaragua."

Dotson backers barrage governor with letters demanding clemency

CHICAGO (AP)—Gary Dotson's relatives and supporters were clamoring Tuesday for his release after serving six years in prison for a rape his accuser now says never happened, but Gov. James R. Thompson said he won't be swayed by public opinion.

Thompson said he had been "besieged" by citizens in recent appearances and that his office had received a barrage of mail on the case.

But he said he hadn't yet received a formal application for clemency or a pardon, the first step in what could prove a long process.

That request would first be considered by the Illinois Prisoner Review Board, which would make a non-binding recommendation to Thompson.

Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel, could not be reached for comment Tuesday on plans for

"I wouldn't let public opinion take a man from prison any more than I'd let it put a man in prison."

—Gov. Jim Thompson

Dotson's uncle. He said Tuesday's effort was concentrated on downtown Chicago. Dotson, meanwhile, was "doing fine" at a medium-security prison at Dixon, said Corrections Department spokesman Nic Howell.

Dotson was transferred to Dixon last week from the maximum-security prison at Joliet, where he served six years, after a judge rejected his accuser's recantation and ordered him back to prison.

Calls for Dotson's release have continued from Kathleen Crowell Webb, the woman who accused him of raping her in July 9, 1977, and now has recanted.

Mrs. Webb and her attorney, John McLario, Monday released results of a polygraph examination she took over the weekend. Both contended the results proved she was telling the truth April 4 when she formally recanted her tale of rape.

such a petition. "I think it's fair to say the overwhelming public sympathy has been to release Dotson," the governor said at a news conference. "But I wouldn't let public opinion take a man from prison any more than I'd let it put a man in prison."

A petition drive so far had gathered signatures of more than 60,000 people backing clemency for Dotson, said Don Harenberg,

Vigilante's trial will pit judiciary against press

Everyone has an opinion about Bernhard Hugo Goetz, the hero or the hit man. But when it comes time to look for jurors without an opinion, the judiciary may have a problem.

Goetz was indicted late last month by a second grand jury on charges which include four counts of attempted murder. Pre-trial hearings begin May 16.

After the first grand jury only indicted Goetz on one count of criminal possession of a weapon, the 37-year-old electrical engineer pontificated on the goodness of carrying handguns and training civilians to kill. He even called himself a murderer in numerous "exclusive" interviews.

Naturally the media has reported what it has seen. It was Goetz who thrust himself into the vortex of publicity and not the press. But the barrage of information, likely to intensify in the coming weeks, could prejudice potential jurors.

Said Goetz's lawyer, Barry Slotnik, to the judge during a motion to raise Goetz's bail, "You're looking at the best-known face in the country. He can't flee." Neither can prospective jurors flee from Goetz.

Thus comes the question of fairness. While the press must go about reporting the events, the judge must carry out justice. At issue is a free press versus a fair trial.

The Goetz case already holds some similarities with the landmark fair trial-free press case, Sheppard v. Maxwell, decided by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1966.

The court ruled that the judiciary could exercise measures to deal with prejudicial publicity. Among a list of judicial remedies which the court listed was issuing a gag order against the press and other participants in the trial.

While the judiciary is provided with safeguards should a trial situation get out of hand, responsibility is the key on both sides. A responsible press will let the case be decided in the courtroom as it should be, and a responsible judiciary will not compromise the First Amendment.

Letter policy

The name and telephone number of at least one author must be submitted with each letter to the editor.

Only the first three names from letters containing more than three authors will be published unless further specified.

Letters submitted without a name (or with a pseudonym) or without a telephone number or other means of verifying authorships will not be published.

Authorship of letters will be verified by telephone or by means otherwise specified by the author prior to publication.

Names will be withheld only upon justifiable request.

Letters should not exceed 250 words. Letters which exceed the 250-word limit will be edited to standards with author's permission.

Authors addressing controversial issues must consider time for rebuttal.

Endorsement letters will not be published on election days.

Problem speller copes with skeleton

Most people have a few skeletons in their closets that they hope won't get out.

Maybe it was that late night when the amount of alcohol consumed was more than the system could tolerate. Or the fact that finding a pair of pants to match a shirt is a major project without the help of Garanimals.

For a journalism major, one could fairly assume that spelling, grammar and punctuation would come almost second nature. After all, for as long as I can remember I've been told that to communicate a message to the masses, one must be able to relay the message in a way that can easily be understood.

Well folks, I've got a confession to make. I am a poor speller. No, no, poor may not be the right word. Bad? No, how about the worst speller God has ever created? Yes, that sounds right.

I bring this up now, so late in my college journalism career because with this up-and-coming graduation thing, I'm feeling a tad bit guilty. You see, for these past three years, I've been operating as a columnist under deception. I formulate the thoughts and put them into writing. However, I have numerous spelling errors that have to be corrected.

It seems I've been going through editorial page editors like water sliding off a newly waxed Porsche. Now the demise of these poor, lonely people who turn daily mish-mash into readable forms of rambling, is not entirely my fault.

Environmental conditions, coupled with acid rain and weird drugs help, but I swear on my dead goldfish's dirt grave, it's not all my fault.

If you really want to get to the root of the problem, the cause is my former teachers. Namely, the light heavy-weight box contenders that found God—the Catholic school nuns.

My first recollection of my horrendous spelling habits came close to my sixth grade year. I remember sitting on the living room couch, my father standing close by reading a note from Sister what's-her-name. She and I had a falling out about the correct spelling of my middle name, Joseph. I said it should be spelled with two "H's" (Josheph) because I thought that was the way it sounded. The good sister, as well as my father, thought different.

Through the lens:

Brian Ormiston

As lady luck would have it, and because I'm a nice guy, Sister what's-her-name won that fight but without knowing that she would eventually would lose the war. As a result, my middle name is now spelled the "right" way.

Ever since that little incident, Sister what's-her-name banished me from spelling class. While all the other kids were up at the board, hemming and hawing during spelling bees, little Brian would be sitting in the corner working on third grade spelling words. It wasn't such a bad deal although my parents didn't think the situation was too hot.

You see, in sixth grade, the young student learns the in's and out's of rubberbands, spitballs and the fine art of hurdling paper clips across the room with amazing precision. This was also when the school band leader made his rounds.

While all the goodie-goodie journalism board spelling bee types were at the board reciting big words like "pizza" and "Joseph," I was biding my time between spitballs and clarinet lessons.

When I got to seventh and eighth grade, the story was always the same. Clarinet lessons always seemed to fall during spelling class. This, I think, was so they didn't have to deal with me. So you see, I hate anyone who can spell well and who plays the clarinet. (I always wanted to play the drums.)

Wasn't that simple. This country is full of problem spellers like myself all because we had a traumatic sixth grade.

Never mess with a sixth grader who can't spell, plays the clarinet and aims well with a spitball.

MX no way to keep 'peace'

Editor:
Praise the Lord, and pass the ammunition. The Reaganites can breath a sigh of relief. The MX has passed.

Sounding very much like the "slogan-slinging" candidate, President Reagan recently, almost affectionately called the MX the "peacekeeper." Isn't it funny how the people in power sometimes like to apply such misnomers to sway their constituents away from the truth of the matter?

Don't let yourselves be fooled by this one folks. The MX is not a "defensive" weapon. This wonder of American know-how gives the United States a considerable first strike advantage. The people of the Soviet Union are frightened by this development and I do not blame them. They do not trust us any more than we trust them.

Many say, "Oh my, we would never start a nuclear war. We are the good guys. Americans love peace." Then how is it that of the 40 current battlefields of the world the United States is supplying 20 of the combatant nations or revolutionaries with military aid?

We are a major exporter of War! Recently Congress passed legislation that will send 5 million dollars of military aid to Cambodia. Soon it will vote on whether or not to send 14 million dollars of military aid to the "freedom fighting" Contras in Nicaragua. When or where will it all end? At this point, I do not know. Perhaps in the global suicide of a nuclear war.

Let us remember the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, "The choice today is no longer between violence or nonviolence. It is either nonviolence or nonexistence."

I urge you to become involved in the democratic process by writing the members of Congress to let them know that "keeping the peace" will never be attained by spending your tax dollars on military hardware at home or abroad.

Final exams for 'own good'?

Editor:
I've got a few ideas that I think may help solve this final exam problem. Here are some of my suggestions.

Why don't we have about three 100-point tests each semester in each class covering, oh, let's say about four weeks of material and then have one great big final exam covering 15 weeks of material?

Secondly, why don't we schedule all these tests for the last week of school? Sounds tough? How about three tests on Monday and two tests on Friday? There, you get three whole days to rest.

Then, just to be a little crazy, why don't we give each student two hours to show what he or she has learned in those 15 weeks (or memorized in five hours, take your pick)? Sounds peachy doesn't it?

Still don't like it? Well why not make this test to end all tests worth 300 points! And even better, why not make this two-hour regurgitation of information determine one-third of your semester grade?

Do you think that that's unfair and doesn't really show your true capabilities as a student? Well, that's too bad because you see in the real world, what you learn in school is worthless. All these big companies out there could care less if school taught you how to think independently, to form and develop ideas, and to learn to communicate and to express yourself to others.

No way! What they're looking for is the guy with the silicon chip in his head that can take a semester of information, learn it in three days, throw it on paper in two hours and forget it two minutes afterward. These are the people that make America what it is today.

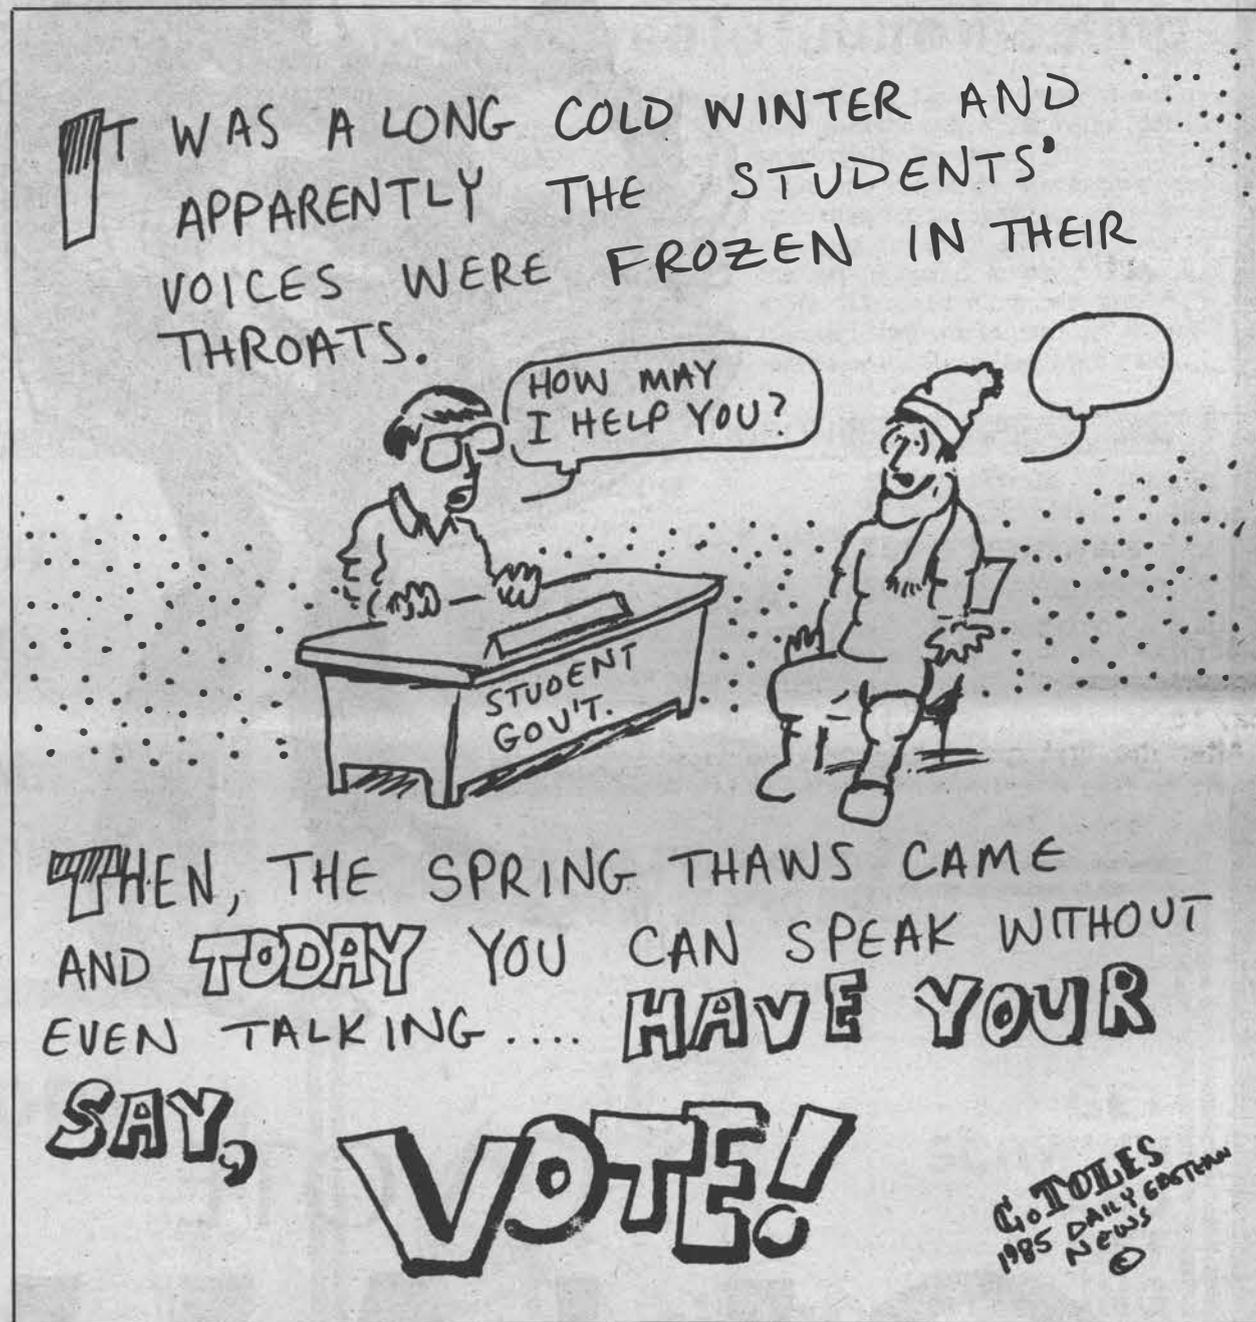

So, come on, all you future medical doctors, tax attorneys, pilots and builders of tall buildings and high bridges—quit complaining! This is all for your own good. How's that for higher thought?

Education hasn't seemed to alter indulgence in gossip

This weekend I went to see the movie Mask. Before anyone starts to think this is a review, allow me to put your mind at rest. I've always said I would never write a review because I wouldn't know what to say. I'd say it was good or bad and that would be the end of the column.

However, this film had a certain affect on me. It made me recall just how depressing high school could be for many students, especially those who were a bit different.

But that's all changed now that we're in college to become well-educated, worldly people. Right? Well, I'm not so sure.

Most of us look back on our younger years and wonder how we could have been so immature—making fun of people because of the way they looked, talked, dressed and just were in general different from us. Usually this harassment stemmed from our own insecurities—defense mechanisms, as Freud would say.

We've grown-up. Now we don't ridicule others because of such basic traits. We look deeper inside people to find something to jump on. No longer can we settle for just adding salt to surface wound. Instead we pour acid over inner scars.

We've replaced ridiculing the way someone dresses with taking note of the way they lead their lives. Rather than ridiculing how they say something, we question their motives behind what they said.

Gossip and vicious rumors spread through the campus like wild-fire with the mere flick of a match. "Did you hear about so-and-so? I hear she broke up with so-and-so;" or, "Do you know who he's going out with?" are some of the minor accusations that fly.

And out-right scandal is not unknown either.

We're all guilty of taking part in such conversations, myself included. Usually it's purely innocent—just a way to keep the conversation going when we run out of more important things to say. And usually the results aren't too drastic either.

But what we fail to think about is how the victim of these conversations might feel. We also fail to consider that if these people wanted certain people to know about their lives, they would share their thoughts and situations with those specific people.

It's all really no better than what we did when we were "immature."

So, why do we continue to engage in this pointless back-stabbing? Well, one theory might be the old idea that it makes us feel better about our own weaknesses. It could also be that we learn such behavior from our parents. After all, they talk about business associates and friends all the time.

But no matter what the reasons might be, such actions are just as uncalled for as when students made fun of Rocky Dennis in the movie Mask.

The next time you run out of delightful conversation and want to prove you know more about someone else than the person you're talking to, think about his feelings. Then ask yourself, "What's the point?" I know I sure will.

Official nixes senate idea

By Jean Wright

The Faculty Senate received opposition from a summer school official Tuesday to its proposal to expand intersession 1986 from four to five weeks allowing students to enroll for six semester hours rather than five.

Charles Switzer, Eastern's director of summer school, said he believes by adding an additional week to intersession, Eastern will lose the short term appeal of the four-week session.

"If we move to five weeks, we are abandoning the short term and may lose students who are looking for the short term commitment," Switzer explained.

"The attractiveness of picking up a senior seminar and a three-hour class is at work here," he said, adding that he believed many students enroll for the intersession so they can work for the remainder of the summer.

The senate will vote on the proposal April 23.

May 2 was set as a tentative date for the faculty and student senates to meet to discuss the writing competency exam, advisement, Eastern's attendance policy and senior seminars.

The senate also discussed the possibility of reorganizing committees after Faculty Senate Chairman Ken Sutton expressed concern that the faculty was not adequately represented on the Council on University Planning and Budget.

In other business, the senate heard a report from the social committee about the retiree tea to be conducted for 17 retirees April 8.

Leaders agree to future meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Republican Leader Robert Michel, after reporting to President Reagan on a congressional delegation's visit to the Soviet Union, said Tuesday that both Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev agree they want a meeting.

Emerging from an hour-long meeting with Reagan at the White House, Michel, R-Ill., quoted the Soviet leader as saying the nuclear arms talks in Geneva "were dawdling on," with the U.S. "Star Wars" defense system the key issue.

General Secretary Gorbachev had said that he thought the talks were dawdling on, and it all comes down to the key question in which they are more interested than we are, SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative)," the formal name for Star Wars, Michel said.

TODAY

The Graduate

The American Classic The Graduate, starring Dustin Hoffman, will be shown in the Grand Ballroom TODAY at 7 p.m. Admission is only 50¢. Hoffman, an inexperienced college graduate who returns to the home of his affluent and insensitive parents, has an affair with an older woman and ends up falling in love with her daughter. The sound track features some of Simon and Garfunkel's best songs, including "The Sounds of Silence," "Scarborough Fair," and "Mrs. Robinson."

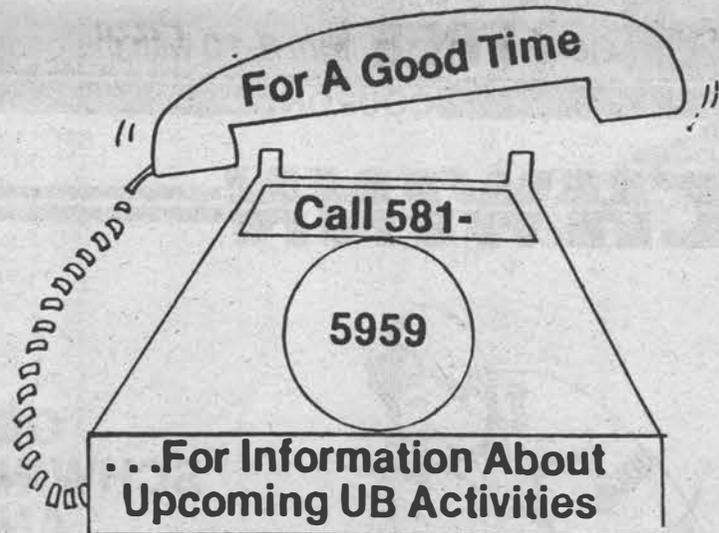

"Probably the funniest and possibly the saddest affair yet shown on screen."

Ask Jayne Lybrand

"Put feet to your dreams and get walking" is the personal philosophy of professional speaker and communication specialist Jayne Lybrand. In this age of fast-paced, cut-throat competition, may college students are wondering exactly how they are going to break into the "real world" after graduation. Most would like a few tips on how to get that extra "edge." Jayne Lybrand can give you that edge.

Jayne has been in the image-making business for about 12 years. Now she is president of Jayne Lybrand Associates, an innovative firm specializing in image, communication and artist management. She teaches self-motivation, the building of self-esteem and the ability to cope with every day situations which seem to complicate our lives the most.

Jayne has worked for Fortune 500 corporations on improving employee's communication skills. She coaches salesmen on how to cost accounts, career women on how to get promotions, entertainers on how to captivate audiences and students on how to communicate with parents and friends.

Jayne Lybrand can teach you how to project the right image and get that desperately sought edge. She will be speaking here at Eastern on Wednesday, April 24 at 8 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom. The admission price is $1.50 for students, $3.00 for faculty and general public. (Staff group rates are available. For information please call: 581-5122.)

rened before they could take the million.
 Akins said a possibility exists that money in the Apportionment Board reserve could be used to fund the program.

But Wesel said Tuesday he did not have the reserve fund could be used for a security program.

The key is the reserve fund. I don't think the reserve fund can be used for security.

Wesel noted there is a security problem on campus, but said he does not believe Akins' program would be able to solve it.

Wesel said, "The bad thing is, giving the students' pass has to be approved by the administration. They have to go through channels."

Wesel also said he knows the university is considering hiring an additional security officer out of existing funds, he said.

The security officer would both protect themselves, he said.

Wesel added senate has been working on security proposals since he had been elected.

Wesel denied Akins' allegations that the security programs were a waste of money.

Wesel didn't say (a security program is a waste of money). At least, not in this context," he said.

While TIME and Quality bicker over another's safety nets, The Justice League for Bhopal is involved in world issues," reform in student government and an attempt to find a portable niche between serious campaigning and "silliness."

The original Party Bhopal—named after the India village where a chemical leak from a Union Carbide plant killed nearly 2,000 people last year—had proposed taking away the senate's legislative powers in favor of a referendum form of government.

The new Justice League for Bhopal—formed in what one party member called a "simple political move"—is not quite that extreme in its ideas. However, it has employed the aid of the silliest and most famous extremist on campus; former student body president Joe Butler.

"He sides with us," Buczkowski said of the controversial past-president, but stressed that Butler is "is not an official member of the party."

Asked whether he supported the Justice League for Bhopal, Butler's only response Tuesday was, "Sure."

Zicarelli readily acknowledges that his issues are as sparse as his campaign fund.

"I just want to represent the students and voice their ideas," he said. "Apathy on campus is a bunch of malarkey. You'd probably find most students are involved in some activities. Just because they are not involved in student government doesn't mean they're not involved."

And the candidates' predictions for the Wednesday election?

"I expect a pretty big turnout—that really pleases me," Wesel said. "Across the board, I'm glad to see a lot of different candidates."

Wesel also said he'd like to dispel the "Club Senate" image of student government. "A lot of students believe (Student Body President) Angelynn Richardson is supporting me. That's not true. She is supporting Floyd (Akins)."

"I've got as good as chance as anybody else," Akins said. "The endorsements help, but Glenn Good (who lost to Joe Butler in the student body president race last year) got those too."

Although Wesel and Akins have largely kept political debates between themselves, Buczkowski believes the Justice League for Bhopal will be a front-runner in the election, with the only "tough" competition coming from Akins, not Wesel.

"He (Akins) got the endorsements (from The Daily Eastern News and the Residence Hall Association)," Buczkowski noted.

the rally, adding only four people refused to sign.

The band, she said, drew most of the signatures. "That's the reason we had the band—to attract people and then get them to sign the petition."

The band's performance drew other things as well. Campus police patrolman Mike Ealy said two complaints received by his office and several others received by the University Union forced them to request the band to play at a lower volume.

"They (the band) caused no major problem," Ealy said, "To one person, that music is annoying. To another, it's enjoyable. After we asked them to turn it down, the complaints stopped."

Richardson, who talked with police at the rally, said, "I'm sure a few teachers who had classes nearby weren't too happy. I'd like to apologize for the noise, but what can I do? It was for a fantastic cause."

Because the petitioners could not reach all of the loungers, bicyclers, joggers, strollers and side-long glancers, several persons contacted in the quad—including the police—were clueless as to the purpose of the band, Strange Brew. "Was that for the beginning of Greek Week?" Ealy asked.

But attendees who were filled in were supportive.

Rally onlooker Mike Spray, a freshman studying industrial technology, said, "There are a lot of students out there whose parents can't work. . . We need the student aid, not the cuts. If anything should be cut back, it should be defense. I think it (the rally) gives students a good time and it's a damn good cause."

In agreement with Spray, onlooker Jeff Connaughton, a junior economics major, said, "I think it (the rally) is an excellent idea. . . They (the federal government) should take the money from defense and put it into the schools."

Eastern's RAISE week workers will continue to collect signatures for the petition in the Union from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday.

The week will be topped off with a press conference announcing the tallies and featuring an address by Illinois State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston.

Elgin Rotary offers scholarship

Eastern students who have lived in Elgin may be eligible for a $2,000 scholarship offered by the Elgin Rotary Club.

Scholarship Committee Chairman Edward Kelly said the renewable award, which is made annually, is available to students who have lived in Elgin or have permanent family members who have resided in the town for more than a year.

"We are looking for students entering their junior year as full time students who are completing the last two years of study toward a baccalaureate degree," he said.

In addition to being an Elgin resident, Kelly said students must have a minimum of a 2.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and be able to demonstrate financial need.

However, he said sons and daughters of Elgin Rotary Club members are not eligible for the award.

Kelly noted that applications are available in Eastern's Financial Aids Office and must be returned by May 31.

Kansas instructor shows two slide lectures at TAC

Two slide lectures about clothing images and the expression of road signs and billboards will be presented at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Eastern's Tarble Center.

Michael Ott, associate professor at University of Kansas, will present two public slide lectures titled, "The Language of Clothing" and "Homemade Billboards."

Art instructor Michael Aurbach said his first slide lecture is a discussion of images of clothing that represent people."

He added that Ott will show slides of his own personal work.

Also, a reception will follow the presentation which is sponsored by Eastern's art department and the TAC.

In the second lecture, Ott will discuss how road signs and billboards have been created by people without formal art training, Aurbach said, adding that these are of special interest to Ott.

Admission to the event is free.

Counselor holds divorce lecture

"When Parents Divorce," a lecture sponsored by Eastern's Counseling Center, will be presented at noon Wednesday in the Union Greenup room.

Eleanor McCabe, of the Counseling Center, will discuss adjustment strategies for coping more gracefully with divorced parents, Genie Lenihan, of the Counseling Center, said.

Divorces are hard on grown up children, including many students, she said.

McCabe has worked with many families and will bring this experience to the workshop, Lenihan added.

The lecture is free of charge.

Get 23 hits

Panthers split road twin-bill

by Ken Dickson

PEORIA—One thing is for sure, Eastern brought its bats to Meinen Field on Tuesday.

The Panthers, led by Kevin Smith and Tim Torricelli's combined 11-for-13 hitting, pounded Bradley University pitchers for 23 hits in a baseball double-header.

The only sour note was Eastern still only gained a split, winning the first game 7-4, but losing the second game 5-4 in eight innings on mental errors.

Smith, a Peoria Richwoods High School graduate who was batting only .213 coming into the two games, went 4-for-4 with a double, a triple, an RBI and one run scored in the first game; and 2-for-4 with two doubles in the second half of the twin-bill.

The right fielder had only 19 hits in 89 at-bats and two doubles coming into Tuesday's games.

Torricelli, who was batting .341 prior to Tuesday, finished the day on perfect 5-for-5 hitting. He was 3-for-3 with four runs scored in the first game and 2-for-2 with a double in the second.

Freshman Brian Corn, 4-2, won the first game after giving up only two hits in 4½ innings. Paul Skorupa relieved in the fifth, but left after two-thirds of an inning. He gave up one hit and three walks before Sam Light relieved and finished the game.

Light, who graduated from Bartonville High School—which is only about five miles from Bradley, gave up one hit in the final inning of play to preserve the win.

Eastern coach Tom McDevitt said "mental errors" cost Eastern the second game. The final straw was a fielding error by Torricelli in the eighth inning, but McDevitt said three unearned runs and a misjudged fly ball gave Bradley four of its five runs.

"I feel sorry for our pitchers because they're not getting the support, like those misjudged balls," McDevitt said. "It's unfortunate."

"We've given more games away this year than we've lost, because of mental mistakes," he added. "There were just too many mental errors."

Jim Wilkins, who pitched the final two innings, took the loss in relief of starter Mike Steinkamp.

The team, which traveled 2½ hours home from Peoria after the games, leave by 9:30 a.m. Wednesday for Bloomington, where the team has a 1 p.m. double-header against Illinois State University.

Nationally-ranked Indiana beats softballers

by Dan Verdun

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Eastern's softball team has found life difficult on the road this season. Things didn't get any better for the Panthers when they dropped a non-conference double-header Tuesday to nationally-ranked Indiana.

By losing the twin bill, Eastern's road record slipped to 3-10. The Panthers' overall record stands at 13-11.

The Hoosiers, backed by the four-hit pitching of Kim Mourer, shut out the Panthers, 2-0, in the opener.

Indiana, 30-12-1, scored the only run it needed in the very first inning when Cindy Lee doubled home Jenny McDaniel.

The Hoosiers later added a run in the third inning to provide the final margin of victory.

Freshman Zam Mogill, 7-4, was the losing pitcher. The Streator product struck out four, while walking two.

Outfielder Angel Lendvay garnered two of the four Panther hits in the contest.

Indiana took the nightcap, 3-2. The Hoosiers broke a scoreless deadlock with three runs in the sixth.

The Hoosiers scored their first two runs on successive wild pitches by Panther starting pitcher Shelly Eddington.

Moments later, Lee singled in McDaniel to give Indiana a 3-0 lead.

Eastern made things interesting with a seventh-inning rally that fell one run short.

Eddington opened the inning with a single and scored when Lendvay tripled to left-center. Catcher Tangi Waldrop then knocked in Lendvay with a base hit.

"Indiana is a very tough team and I'm proud of the way we came back and never gave up," coach Deanna D'Abbraccio said.

"Except for the breakdown in the sixth inning, we played great all day," D'Abbraccio said.

Eddington, 6-7, was tagged with the loss. The senior struck out two in six innings.

Lendvay, who entered the twin bill batting .422, led Eastern's hitters with three hits in six at bats on the day.

Eastern will resume its Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference schedule with a Wednesday road double-header at Southern Illinois.

Inside

No sweep

The men's tennis team didn't get the sweep it wanted over Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis, but it took a 7-2 dual win. The men host Evansville University at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Weller Courts.

Men netters beat IUPUI 7-2

by Frank Polich

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—If Eastern's men's tennis team was looking past Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis, it sure didn't affect the score one bit.

The men netters notched a resounding 7-2 team win over the Metros.

"Our regular No. 3 singles player Eric Laffey didn't make the trip because he had studying to do. If he would have, the outcome might have been 9-0 like we were shooting for," coach John Bennett said.

The netters' only two losses came at No. 6 singles where substitute Scott Sables was defeated by Don Iaria 7-6, 3-6, 6-3 and at No. 2 doubles where Bob Kirkwood and Don Carstens dropped a straight set 6-4, 6-4 decision to Bruce Laughlen and Bill Hartford.

In other singles action, No. 1 Scott

Fjelstad handled Ken McCoy 6-3, 6-2 and No. 2 John Suter had an easy time defeating Laughlen 6-1, 6-3.

Moving up from No. 4 to No. 3, Kirkwood breezed past Mike Weaver 6-0, 6-0.

Rounding out singles, Carstens beat Hartford 6-3, 6-3 at No. 4 while Mark Matijasevich whipped Kevin Johnson 6-0, 6-0.

The No. 1 doubles team of Fjelstad and Suter defeated McCoy and Weaver 6-1, 7-6 and Matijasevich and Sables teamed up to beat Johnson and Iaria 6-4, 6-1 to wrap up the Panther win.

The Panthers play host to Evansville University Wednesday on Triad Courts.

"I'd be pleased with a couple of wins. We've improved since we last played them but I'm sure they have to," Bennett said.

Breese Mater Dei guard signs basketball letter

by Dan Verdun

Eastern's women's basketball team signed another high school recruit to a national letter of intent for next fall.

New Baden native Shelly Ethridge announced that she will play for coach Barbara Hilke and the Panthers for the 1985 campaign.

The 5-7 guard averaged 19.9 points a game for Breese Mater Dei High School last season. She also garnered nearly six steals and five rebounds a contest for the Knights.

She was instrumental in leading Mater Dei to a 19-2 mark and the regional championship game. The Knights captured their conference title with a perfect 10-0 record.

"Shelly probably has the quickest hands of any guard we saw in the state this year," Hilke said. "She plays good sound defense and has played in a man-to-man defensive system.

"Another thing that struck me about Shelly was her creativity while passing. She has great anticipation on where her teammates are on the court."

Ethridge was named All-Mid State Conference as a senior while also receiving all-area honors from the Belleville News-Democrat. She was also selected to the Suburban Journal first-team all-area squad.

Ethridge was also a standout on the Knights' tennis, softball and track teams. She is considered to be one of the premier softball players in her area.

"Shelly has been a real pleasure for me to coach," Mike Abegg, Ethridge's high school coach, said in a prepared statement. "She has the biggest combination of desire and raw guts to get the job done of any player I've ever seen."

Women netters lose

by Joseph Anglum

Eastern's women's tennis team continued its losing ways Tuesday by suffering its sixth straight setback of the season, bowing 5-4 to conference foe Indiana State.

The Panthers, tied with the Sycamores at three games apiece after singles competition, dropped two of three in doubles action to decide the dual match.

The Sycamores' entered the contest a heavy favorite and right in the thick of the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference race.

The Sycamores managed to escape with their seventh victory against just three defeats before the Panthers could rally.

The Panther attack was led by junior Sally Stout and senior Gina Andres.

Stout defeated the Sycamores' Janet Rourke 6-1 and 7-5, and teamed up with Andres in No. 2 doubles play for another Panther victory.

In the doubles match, Stout and Andres slipped by the Sycamores' Rourke and Jane Allen 6-4 and 7-5.

"I made myself hit out today,"

Stout said. "I just didn't get nervous."

Andres continued to overpower her opponents as she won for the ninth time in ten tries. Andres defeated Sycamore Shelley Allen 6-4, 1-6 and 7-6.

"I'm a senior and I've got nothing better to do than to go all out," Andres said.

However, Andres will have her game challenged this weekend at the Southern Illinois University Invitational, a tournament which features several conference teams.

"This tournament is gonna be tough," Andres said. "This is where you find out how you'll do in conference."

Eastern was also victorious in No. 2 singles action where Diana Durkee crushed Sycamore Sally Cottingham 6-3, 1-6 and 6-0.

In No. 1 doubles action, Lauri Lehman and Durkee lost a two-set contest to Gayanne Gromm and Cottingham by identical 6-2 margins.

Panthers' Patti Kearns and Lori Zupanci were nipped in No. 3 doubles.

ENROLL IN AMERICA'S LARGEST MANAGEMENT TRAINING PROGRAM.

Becoming an officer in today's Army — which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard — requires getting the right kind of management and leadership training.

What's the best way to get it? By enrolling in America's largest management training program — Army ROTC.

In the Army ROTC 4-year program, you'll acquire discipline of mind and spirit, and the ability to perform under pressure. We call it learning what it takes to lead.

It'll pay off, too. First, during your last two years of college, when you'll start receiving up to $1,000 a year.

And, most of all, on graduation day, when you receive a commission along with a college degree.
