Final Farm Aid preparations put in place

CHAMPAIGN (AP)—As this heartland college town braced Thursday to house and police 80,000 visitors at the star-studded FarmAid benefit concert, a top Ford administration agriculture official questioned the need for it.

"There is still a rainbow in agriculture," former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told about 400 businessmen across the state in Sterling. "There are some bright spots. It's not all gloom."

"We're having a FarmAid concert in Champaign to call attention to the farm plight, which is a much publicized event. This is news now," Butz said.

"I think we've overdone it," he said.

Butz acknowledged agriculture "is in distress. There's no doubt about it."

But while federal officials say at least 25 percent of American farmers are in serious financial trouble, he estimated "10 (percent) to 15 percent are really in a tight fix and some won't make it."

Butz said almost half the nation's farmers don't have any debt and added, "I'm convinced that Man's No. 1 challenge today is to build a peaceful world and then to make it a well-fed world."

FarmAid, the brainchild of country singer-songwriter Willie Nelson, is aimed at helping farmers with financial problems and spreading the word about their difficulties.

The nearly 80,000 tickets for Sunday's 14-hour concert—with a lineup of 50 top country, rock, blues and bluegrass performers—were sold out in three days.

Another kind of contribution was announced Thursday by a Rome, Ga., disc jockey, who said 5,100 radio stations will join the FarmAid effort by simulcasting Merle Haggard's "Amber Waves of Grain."

Bob Wolfe of WROM said the broadcast, scheduled for 9:50 a.m. CDT Friday, will be carried by the ABC Radio, United States and Mutual Broadcasting networks, with thousands of member stations.

Champaign, home of the University of Illinois, was expecting Sunday's concert to generate slightly more havoc than the Illini football games that usually crowd Memorial Stadium, where FarmAid is being staged.

Every hotel and motel room within a 40-mile radius is booked for Saturday night.

Home rule could up student taxes

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

Legislation awaiting the governor's signature could affect Eastern if the Charleston City Council is successful in gaining home rule status for the city.

Passing unanimously in both houses of the state legislature, the bill could provide new taxing privileges to home rule cities with public universities within their city limits.

If signed into law, Senate Bill 1159 would provide home rule cities the right to tax university retail outfits, such as those located in the Union, even though they are located on state property.

Both Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston, and Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, voted for the bill.

But a suit filed against the Board of Regents, the governing body for Northern Illinois University, might test the bill's constitutionality before it even becomes law.

NIU and the city of DeKalb are currently battling in the Sangamon County Circuit Court over whether the home rule city can legally tax receipts on the student union's book store, food stores, and hotel.

Home rule, a provision in the Illinois constitution, allows cities with over 25,000 people the right to levy sales taxes beyond the limits set by the legislature. Smaller cities, like Charleston, can only gain home rule by voter approval.

Charleston's City Council began looking to acquire the home rule status in the face of a projected $500,000 budget shortfall by mid-1986. Attempts to increase revenue with a utilities tax and a property tax hike met fierce opposition by citizens.

Home rule, argued Charleston Commissioner Wayne Lanman, would allow the city to collect sales tax revenues to balance the city's budget.

Eastern political science instructor Hugh Brazil said he believes DeKalb, and hypothetically Charleston, are perfectly within their rights to demand campus retail outfits to collect sales taxes.

"I think NIU's going to lose big on this one. That would be my guess," Brazil said. "(DeKalb's) taxing the consumers, not the state."

Brazil said the home rule legislation will "definitely clear it up, but the courts can intervene. But the question is whether the courts would uphold such a

"Apartheid" is a term most Eastern students know only in the abstract.

But South Africa and its racist policies are a living reality for one Eastern student, not only because he was born and raised in the divided country, but also because his race puts him in the center of the conflict.

Eastern graduate student William Murray is officially classified by the white-ruled South African government as "mixed race," which means he is given more privileges than blacks but is still not considered a full-scale citizen.

"We felt the oppression," Murray said, "but not so much as blacks because we are labeled as mixed race."

But Murray, who will return to South Africa after he completes his masters degree in educational administration, leaves no doubt as to where his allegiance lies.

"It is an insult to call ourselves mixed race," Murray said. "We regard ourselves as black South Africans."

Murray, 30, taught in a secondary school in the South African town of Worcester and came to Eastern last month with the aid of the Aurora Associates, an agency which helps place foreign students in U.S. schools.

He and his wife, Ingrid, who is also a graduate student here, came to Eastern partially because in South Africa they were restricted to a "mixed race" university. From a very young age, Murray said, he has felt cut off by racist South African policies and wanted to broaden his perspective.

Although Murray said blacks and those classified as "mixed" were once distrustful of each other, they began to realize they wanted the same thing.

"About 10 years ago, our people and the black people realized we could stand together and a close knit feeling began to grow," he said. "Being on the same side brought the blacks and the mixed race together."

Although "mixed" South Africans receive more privileges than blacks, Murray said rigid class distinctions are part of a "deliberate" policy designed to keep blacks from uniting.

"It's not that we wanted it, but the government worked it out very

Pentagon tests reporting pool

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger today announced that an exercise testing the Pentagon's plan to cover national military emergencies with a pool of reporters began this morning.

Weinberger told a news conference that the pool was activated at 3 a.m. EDT and sent to Fort Campbell, Ky.

"We expect to learn a lot from this exercise," Weinberger said. "I think this went quite well."

The exercise was a test of a Pentagon system, created in response to criticism of the Defense Department's handling of news coverage of the invasion of Grenada, under which selected news organization will provide coverage of future military actions.

The system is designed to balance the Pentagon's need for secrecy and the public's right to information about military activities.

U.S. government to buy farmland

DECATUR, Ill.—The federal government probably will create an agency to buy up large amounts of farmland from lenders and financially troubled farmers, a University of Illinois professor says.

The result should be a stabilization of farmland prices, said David Lins, professor of farm financial management.

He addressed about 300 bankers at the annual Illinois Bankers Association Agricultural Credit Conference on Wednesday.

U.S. farmland prices have fallen about 40 percent in the past five years, to 1972 levels.

Until the agency is created, Lins told reporters later, land prices are likely to continue to fall gradually.

He said he thinks such a "holding-tank" program will be approved by Congress in three to 12 months.

Lins told the bankers several versions are being discussed. The best-known one is the Agricultural Conservation Corp. proposed by the Farm Credit System, to buy up $20 billion worth of farmland.

Earthquake shakes Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A devastating earthquake struck central Mexico on Thursday morning, toppling buildings, triggering fires and trapping hundreds in rubble in the world's most populous capital. Police said at least 170 were dead and thousands injured, but a higher toll was expected.

Hours later the army and police patrolled ruined streets against looters as fires still smoldered in Mexico City, 250 miles northeast of the quake's center on the Pacific Coast. President Miguel de la Madrid, declaring a national disaster emergency, toured stricken neighborhoods and appealed for people to remain calm and stay indoors.

"Unfortunately there appear to be many dead," de la Madrid said on Mexican television. "All of the hospitals are on a state of alert to take care of the injured. The army is in a state of alert."

Dozens of aftershocks rattled the area through the day. Reports on the Mexico City TV station Televisa said buildings continued to collapse and debris from others was falling into streets hours after the quake.

By nightfall half the city lacked electrical power. Local telephone service had been restored but international telephone lines were still down.

At least 60 were dead in Mexico City, a city of 17 million people, where schools, hotels, hospitals and high-rises were flattened and snapped gas and power lines touched off dozens of fires.

In the state of Jalisco, 100 miles to the northwest, 110 to 150 people were killed and about 1,500 injured, Lt. Juan Manuel Sanchez said from the fire department's headquarters in the state capital of Guadalajara.

The Mexican Embassy in Washington reported damage in the states of Guerrero and Michoacan, which lie to the south of Jalisco along the coast.

Only minor damage was reported in the cities of Acapulco and Guadalajara.

In Jalisco, most of the dead were in the towns of Guzman and Atentique, Sanchez said in a telephone interview broadcast live by the Bogota radio station Caracol.

"In Atentique a part of a mountain slid away, falling on several peasants who were just getting up to go to work," Sanchez said.

In other Jalisco towns "the streets split open as people ran in panic. . . And many people died, crushed inside churches," he said.

Televisa said that in Guzman, 25 people celebrating Mass in the cathedral were killed when the church collapsed.

In Ixtapa, a resort just north of Acapulco, two tourists reported their 10-story hotel was shaken and "the damage was just massive."

"Huge chunks of cement and glass started crashing down and people ran out into open lobby," said Dale Zolnai, 45, a Defense Department staff specialist, who returned to Dallas on Thursday with his wife P.J.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City was undamaged and that communications with the embassy had been restored.

First reports of the quake, which occurred just before rush hour at 7:18 a.m. or 9:18 a.m. EDT, came from the U.S. Geological Survey which said it measured 7.8 on the Richter scale of ground motion. The survey put the epicenter on the Pacific Coast, 150 miles northwest of Acapulco and about 250 miles southwest of Mexico City.

Radio station XEQ in Mexico City said it had confirmed reports of 250 dead.

Eastern senior shows print at art exhibition

by DONNELLE PARDEE
staff writer

The intaglio print of a teepee created by Eastern senior Paula Herron was selected for exhibition at the Third Annual Illinois Art Education Association's exhibit.

Herron said the show is a juried show in which artists send slides of their work and a fee to a panel to be selected as an exhibitor.

To be eligible, an artist must be a member of the Illinois Art Education Association, she said. Herron said she "very proud" to have her print accepted.

Herron's print is of the front of a teepee named Bearman's Teepee

Herron said her print is made from a metal plate with a design etched into it with acid. After the etching is done, the plate is covered with ink.

"The inked plate is covered with paper or material and then put into a press. The ink is transferred to the material. It's just like a printing press," she said.

Herron said the process can be time consuming "because the prints can smudge and you can wreck the prints."

The plate Herron used for her print took about four weeks to make. She used soft ground, a wax covering, instead of plain metal to make the impressions.

After covering the print with soft because it has a picture of a bear on the front. In front of the teepee there is a pole with a cow's skull, she said.

When Herron received the letter of acceptance, she said she was "just thrilled. I couldn't sit still. I was busting all summer to tell someone but I had to wait until fall. Having my print displayed is quite an honor."

Herron, returning to Eastern after a 14-year leave, is trying to create a strong student chapter of the Illinois Art Education Association in the art department.

Herron said Eastern's art department was strong in the late 60s when she was here as a student for the first time.

ground, Herron said she put material over it to make impressions of the weaving on a cloth she selected.

"Whatever part of the impression is not wanted is varnished out," she said. "The rest is put through the acid."

Herron said she enjoyed working on it and "seeing the final results. Many proofs and prints were made. It took one hour to make just one print and get the highlighting right."

Herron said her main reason for making the print was to represent what Eastern's art department can do, but she said she hopes to enter it in the student show and exhibit at the Tarble Arts Center.

Math requirements changed by CAA to aid transfers

by MIKE BURKE
staff writer

Four new courses were approved Thursday by the Council on Academic Affairs.

Beginning in the fall semester of 1986, a three course sequence in calculus will replace five math courses now being taught.

The courses, "Calculus and Analytic Geometry I, II and III" will be a reorganization of the current five math courses. The new sequence will be worth the same number of credit hours, 14, as the series it replaces.

The change was necessary to accommodate transfer students who currently have to repeat some material if they transfer before completing the entire sequence.

However, the CAA's passing of the new sequence will necessitate changes in the major and minor requirements not only in the math department, but in six other fields as well.

The fields effected are Chemistry, Engineering, Geology, Junior High Education, Physics and Special Education.

The current five course sequence will be phased-out, but students now in the series will be able to complete it.

Those math courses being phased-out are Math 2351, 2352, 2361, 2362 and 2371. The new courses will be Math 1441, 2442 and 2443.

The CAA also approved a fourth new course, "Orientation to Internship," PSY 4274. It is a one credit hour course which prepares psychology majors before they work in the field as an intern.

The psychology course will be a prerequisite for psychology majors, thus increasing the number of psychology credits needed to graduate by one. However, the number of electives needed to graduate will be decreased by one hour.

In other business, one new course proposal and a course revision were postponed until the CAA's next meeting, which is scheduled for Oct. 3.

A proposed change in "The Survival of Humanity," Arts and Sciences 3001, and a new course proposal, "Nutrition and Health of the Young Child," HEC 3152, will be on the next CAA agenda.

ISSC should delay decision to reduce aid

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission Monday should delay action on a proposal that would reduce monetary awards to private school students for the spring.

The plan, written by the ISSC board of commissioners, would mean half of the private school students who receive the maximum ISSC award of $2,850 could face reductions of $200.

Approximately $3 million would be generated for as much as 30,000 applications that are awaiting processing, ISSC spokesman Bob Clement said. Additional money would also be available for public school students.

The $3 million figure is certainly an eye-opener. It would give a welcome financial boost to students struggling to meet the cost of education in public institutions, which is generally cheaper. But the proposal's timing is faulty.

Martin Abegg, president of Bradley University, a private institution in Peoria, called the proposal an "arbitrary" plan that would unfairly penalize private school students. He's right, to a certain extent.

Abegg believes "they need to either find a way to get more funds or let everybody lose a little." Well, generating financial aid is obviously no easy task. And "everybody" does not have the same amount of need. So, realizing that, the commission has also wisely proposed that the ISSC identify all private school ISSC award recipients for review and make awards based on need.

But what about students who were scheduled to receive and have already budgeted the full $2,850 award to pay for next semester's expenses?

While $200 may seem a small amount when considering the cost of just one year of school in public or especially private institutions, that reduction will undoubtedly create a hardship for some students who have no means to subsidize the loss. Financial aid cuts during the middle of an academic year are arbitrary.

While we believe the proposal's concept is fair, implementation for the spring semester would be an unfair jolt to private school students.

WEIU radio station good addition to FM

Editor:

WEIU 88.9 FM, the student-run campus radio station, deserves quite a bit of praise. In the short time that WEIU has been broadcasting, it has proven itself as a very refreshing and professional addition to the FM airwaves.

As a new student last year, one of my greatest disappointments came soon after arriving, when I flipped through the radio dial. My disappointment came when I discovered that I was only offered one choice: "top 40" radio. Not being a great fan of "bubblegum rock," I chose instead not to listen to radio at all. This year, thanks to WEIU, I can once again hear a variety of music on the radio. It's good to finally hear a station that offers an alternative, and offers it with such style.

I congratulate WEIU on their success, and applaud it for adding some much needed life and originality to the FM dial.

My only complaint with WEIU is that it only broadcasts from 4 p.m. to midnight, five days a week. WEIU is too enjoyable to be limited in that way.

Keep up the good work WEIU.

Apple Cider: An Autumn delight

By AMY ZURAWSKI
Campus Editor

Although the weather at the end of September may be temperamental, there is always one thing you can count on: Apples.

Of the many types of apples grown commercially and privately, many varieties come into season during the first few weeks of fall.

Joyce Curtis, owner of Curtis Orchard in Champaign, said Jonathons and Red and Yellow Delicious are ready for picking.

The Jonathon, a bright red apple touched with yellow and green that has a tart flavor and firm, juicy flesh, is used mainly in pies and for eating.

On the other hand, Red Delicious apples have a solid dark red color with darker red stripes. These sweet, juicy, crisp apples are used mainly for eating when they are fresh. The Golden Delicious has a yellow skin with sweet flesh and is used as an all-purpose apple.

Apples, which, according to World Book Encyclopedia, have been known to man for more than two million years, have a wide variety of uses including the all-time fall favorite—cider.

Although the Curtis Orchard will have several other varieties later in the fall including the mildly tart Paula Red and all-purpose McIntosh, she said the apples ripe now are perfect for cider's classic fall taste.

Curtis said in their orchard's homemade cider, they use a mixture of Jonathons and Red Delicious apples and, as the season progresses, they use a mixture of Paula Red and Yellow Delicious.

"The main objective in making cider is to mix a sweet and tart apple to obtain the taste everyone knows as cider," Curtis said. "If we used all sweet or all tart apples, it wouldn't come out right at all."

Curtis noted that they press their own apples to make their orchard's cider that is sold by the gallon for $3.10 and half gallon for $1.85.

Visitors to the Curtis Orchard may pick their own apples for cider from the trees, she added, noting that the price for all varieties is 25 cents per pound.

Another local orchard also makes its own cider.

Although Jane Moran, owner of Moran Orchard, Trilla, said visitors are not allowed to pick their own apples, the fruit they sell in their store was grown in their orchard.

Moran said they now have Jonathon and Red Delicious for sale at a cost that varies according to type, size and grade.

In several weeks, Moran said they will have several other varieties available including Cortlands, a mildly acid to sweet apple used mainly for cooking, Yellow Delicious, IDA Red, an all-purpose apple, and Winesaps,

Plant's latest effort disappointing

By JOHN STROUD
Album critic

There's nothing wrong with trying not to get caught in a mold, but Robert Plant's third solo album, Shaken 'n' Stirred, is definitely not what one would expect from the one-time god.

It seems Plant's been in the laboratory experimenting again. He's done this before, in fact, with three other guys that made up the now legendary Led Zepelin.

Remember the Houses of the Holy album? Just when Zep had patented the heavy metal blues sound, along came Houses and people began to ask: what's up guys??

Once again, we ask: what's up Bobby? After two successful solo albums following the demise of Zepelin in 1980, not to mention the 50s reminiscing offered us by Plant and the Honeydrippers, we now have a peculiar third solo album from this one-of-a-kind Brit.

Plant recently said in a Record Magazine interview, "This time I'm going for it." But what exactly is he going for?

The only evidence Shaken 'n' Stirred offers is that Plant is trying to clean himself of the annoying Zep similarities that plagued him on his first two solo outings, Pictures at Eleven and The Principle of Moments.

If Plant's lyrical intent was to be as "simple and trite as possible," then he's hit the nail on the head. In a time when too much mainstream music is bogged down with "simple and trite" lyrics, who needs more.

Any worthwhile lyrical content on Shaken 'n' Stirred is drowned out by the obnoxiously over-synthesized music that seems to waft aimlessly through most of the tunes.

One saving grace is a song entitled "Sixes and Sevens" which seems to be Plant's own re-evaluation of himself, where he's been and where he's headed these days: "Here I am making alterations. Am I at home?" Maybe even Plant himself is questioning his new image.

Another cut worth a listen is the only single release off the album thus far; "Little By Little." This song is similar in a way to a popular cut on the Principles album called "Big Log." In Plant's own distinct vocal, he exclaims, "I can breathe again!"

This is definitely Robert Plant's voice, but it seems to be stuck in the middle of the recording studio with no place to go.

Female back-up vocals by Toni Halliday add an unusual extra to Plant's music, but once again, you can barely pick up her voice behind the synthesized noise.

Guitarist Robbie Blunt's talents are also left wasted. He rarely has a chance to let loose as he did on Principles. He'll never be a Jimmy Page, but given the chance Blunt can play with the best of them.

If experimentation is the name of the game, as it so often is in the music business, it's back to the lab for Robert Plant. With Shaken 'n' Stirred, he's buying a stairway to nowhere.

But then again, when you're Robert Plant, where else is there to go. He has nothing to prove so we'll accept the mistake - with stipulations, of course.

'Curious' band plays new variety of music

By JOHN PROCTOR
Staff writer

What shall it be this weekend? A night hitting the bars or an evening listening to music?

If you have trouble deciding between those choices, don't worry. Friday night both of these can be accomplished at once when 'Turning Curious' comes to Page One Tavern.

Most of the band's roots are in Decatur. Guitarists Nick Rudd and Berni Proeschl, along with drummer/manager Jeff Evans all grew up together.

The Champaign-based band got its start when Rudd and Evans were in high school. They wanted to start a band, but something was missing.

When Evans met Steve Scariano, the base player, during a concert at Scariano's hometown of St. Louis that missing part was found. That was the beginning of 'Turning Curious'.

Since then, the band has opened for such groups as the Bush Tetras, Dwight Twitney and REM.

Since their beginning, most of the band's music has been original.

Rudd said he does "a lot of the song writing," but that the rest of the band also collaborates. "In the end, it is the entire band that comes up with the final product."

Their music varies somewhat. As Rudd put it, "We like to dabble in a little bit of everything."

The songs they write also vary in theme. Some of the songs do have stories within them whereas others are basically "free association," Rudd said.

"Basically we like to let people make up their own minds as to whether there is a message in a song."

'Turning Curious' has cut one album so far, Rudd said. "Soul Light Seasons," features six songs and was made in February of 1984.

It received favorable reviews and the band is already talking about making a second album sometime in the future.

As for the band's other goals, Rudd said they plan "to keep writing songs and make good music."

'St. Elmos' Fire asks the question 'Is there life after college'

By BOB GAYDOS
Film Critic

Is there life after college? That's the question posed by seven college kids, four months out of Georgetown University in "St. Elmo's Fire," the latest in a series of ensemble-acted movies aimed at young adults.

Co-writer/director Joel Schumacher has made this movie especially relevant to the college-aged audience, since every character seems to embody a part of the love/hate/dread feeling that comes with leaving familiar surroundings.

Alec Newberry (Judd Nelson) and his girlfriend Leslie (Ally Sheedy) seem the most sure of what they want out of life. Alec, once head of the Young Democrats at Georgetown, quickly sells out to work for a Republican senator.

Leslie, on the other hand, wants to hang on to her dreams of a career instead of forgoing it to be the wife of a politician.

Kirby (Emilio Estevez) and Kevin (Andrew McCarthy) are less sure of their goals. Journalist Kevin longs to write something for the paper deeper than obits, and Kirby is willing to do anything to grab the attention of a dream girl played by Andie MacDowell.

Wendy (Mare Winningham) is caught between her over-protective parents and a destructive relationship with perpetual loser/playboy Billy Hix (Rob Lowe).

Jewels (Demi Moore), at first glance, seems the most stable, having been recruited by an international bank. Her apartment, though, done in hot pink and bought entirely on credit speaks for itself.

Though a few of the story lines have been overdone in past movies—younge man chasing the older beautiful woman, frustrated writer searching for "The Meaning Of Life"—the real strength of "St. Elmo's Fire" lies in the painfully real caricatures given by these seven young actors whom the media have dubbed the "brat pack."

Watching them interact together is interesting because their freshness and natural camaraderie spark replies which seem ad-libbed, even in the face of the most cliched lines.

Schumacher's script either hits the nail on the head or completely misses it. Fortunately for him, his cast covers the sloppier lines, while playing up the best.

Sheedy, doing a complete turnaround from the reclusive loser she played in "Breakfast Club," definitely proves she's an actress worth watching.

When she confronts Nelson about his fooling around, she keeps her character's respect intact stating, "I'm not afraid to commit, but I need something for myself first, before I can give it to you."

Winningham and Lowe seem to be able to communicate more pain and frustration with a look than some adult actors can in a whole paragraph.

For example, when Lowe attempts to deflower the virgin Winningham and clumsily humiliates her instead, she turns to him with a simple expression of dignity and says, "I don't think we should see each other anymore." Lowe stands for a moment, looking downward, and it is apparent that he's contemplating his asinine behavior.

Nelson is the only one who oversteps his border and exaggerates ridiculously. In an argument with Sheedy he shouts "Wasted Love!" and we're reminded of a high school drama club meeting that got out of hand.

Andrew McCarthy, whose earnest portrayal of the eager young virgin was the only bright spot in 1983's otherwise dismal "Class" (which also co-starred Rob Lowe) shows the most verve and emotion in his portrayal of Kevin.

"I don't want to be just friends," he exclaims to Sheedy, wringing every

TV series tries unsuccessfully to recreate atmosphere of movie 'The Big Chill'

By JUDY WEDMAN
Television critic

Welcome home.

You've just returned to Charleston 15 years after you graduated.

But there's one catch. You're not allowed to grow up and neither are your six closest friends who 'pop in town' every other weekend to handle a new crisis, but they never truly succeed.

Sound a bit 'chilly'?

Welcome to "Hometown," CBS's unsuccessful attempt to recreate "The Big Chill."

There are seven major characters in this series each one going through a mid-life crisis (a different character each week of course). They each have different careers and none of them are completely satisfied with the one they chose.

Mary Newell Abbott, played by Jane Kaczmarek, is a housewife, mother of two, and personal shrink to the six other characters. The strangest part is that she doesn't have the personal experience to give concrete advice.

Ben Abbott, Mary's 'too good to be true' husband, played by Franc Luz, not only has a successful family and business, but a permanent case of writer's block as well.

Christopher Springer, played by Andrew Rubin of Police Academy, is a 'famous rock star' who is sick and tired of his jet-set life. Yawn.

Barbara Donnelly, played by Margaret Whitton, is a 'rich bitty' who will never realize that money isn't everything.

Peter Kincaid, played by John Bedford-Lloyd, is a middle-aged 'Peter Pan' and a 'wimp' who still snuggles up with his 'Howdy-Doody' doll.

Joey Nathan, played by Daniel Stern, is a single father and cook. He is satisfied with his life the way it is but his friends keep trying to change him for remaining unchanged.

Jane Parnell, played by Christine Estabrook, is a successful political scientist. She is by far the most interesting character because she doesn't come right out and tell you her life story.

The cast originally met each other in college during the rebellious 60s. Maybe they should return 'home' to this era and stay there until they grow up.

New TV series lack reality

NEW YORK (AP)—“Fantasy Island” is not on ABC’s Saturday schedule anymore, but don’t expect anything resembling reality either.

This Saturday, ABC adds two new series to the returning “Love Boat,” complete this year with a chorus line of eight singing and dancing “mermaids.” (Where are those icebergs when we really need them?)

To bolster its Saturday slate, ABC is rounding up the usual suspects: executive producer Aaron Spelling and Robert Wagner for two series which are in their own fantasy world. (Spelling’s many ABC shows have included “Love Boat” “Fantasy Island” and “Dynasty.”

Spelling’s high-decibel “Hollywood Beat” is about two undercover cops patrolling the the seamier side of Tinseltown. It’s an occasionally humorous but all-too superficial, mindlessly violent “Miami Vice” for kids. It has Spelling’s unmistakably glitzy vision of life. The look of its street people, for example, can best be described as gutter chic.

Wagner’s adventure series, “Lime Street” features one of the most absurd TV sequence ever. The plane Wagner’s J.G. Culver character is piloting has been sabotaged. So he takes the only parachute aboard and instructs his sidekick to jump second, promising to catch him. And he does.

When “Lime Street” is not free-falling, it’s attempting to be the sweetest thing on TV since cereal commercials on Saturday morning.

Wagner, who was on ABC for five seasons as half of the “Hart to Hart” sleuth team, is cast as a widowed father and bi-coastal insurance investigator, splitting his time at his Virginia ranch and London insurance office.

The series gives Wagner another excuse to show off his tuxedo collection, and he still cuts a suave figure. In the pilot, he’s even elegant while treading water after the yacht he’s partying on has been sunk by explosives.

In his professional life, Culver is an international jet-setter. He goes to boring parties and meets star-crosses princesses. Despite a physical attraction to one very young and very forward princess—she asks to sit in his lap—Wagner resists her wiles. After all, Wagner has a prime-time reputation to protect.

Without “Miami Vice,” there likely would not be a “Hollywood Beat.” Although this superficial copy moves fast and spoofy enough not to take itself too seriously, it abundantly lacks “Miami Vice’s” style, subtlety and sizzle.

“Miami Vice” broke the mold. It’s just too bad “Hollywood Beat” found some of the pieces.

also a mildly acid apple used mainly for processing.

Moran said they also use several varieties that she did not wish to disclose in their homemade cider which sells for about $2.65 a gallon.

“The flavor is the main thing,” she added. “We be sure to watch the qualtiy of the apples we put in to get the best mixture and some pulp. We don’t want any rots or moldy apples to contaminate the taste.”

Although Moran said it is too early to predict the quality of this fall’s cider because the process of selecting the apples has just begun, she noted, “This summer was made for apples. There is a good crop out there and they’re plentiful.”

The process of making apple cider at home is simple but often messy.

In her book Cooking With Apples, Gertrude Mann said to make homemade apple cider, you need a “glut of small sour apples that have been mellowed in the garage or cellar until they have started to rot.”

Once the apples are ready, Mann says to mash the apples between two strong earthenware plates and drain the juice and loose pulp into a jug.

After the apples have been mashed, let the cider sit in a 60 degree room until the sediment settles on the bottom and there is clear liquid at the top. The clear liquid at the top is the cider which should be drained off and stored in a cool place until it is needed.

If you can’t count on the weather for a seasonal taste, at least there is apple cider.

decision and whether the legislature would let it go by.

"I don't see anything that makes a university involved in retail operations exempt from collecting taxes," Brazil said.

But NIU plans to fight.

Norden Gilbert, an attorney representing NIU, said, "The university has taken the position that since the university is part of the state, the municipality cannot tax or regulate the higher political subdivision, the state.

"Our argument is that all of those things (in NIU's union) are integrally part of our mission in education," he said. "And we consider the (bowling and fast food) entertainment part of our total education package."

But DeKalb City Attorney Jerome Shapiro said he believes the city is not overstepping its boundaries in taxing NIU's "retail operations."

"If you're going to conduct retail operations, you've got to abide by the same rules," Shapiro said. "They can't ignore these rules merely because they're a state agency."

"Nowhere has the university been granted carte blanche. They are purely and simply a retailer."

But in going with the "education mission of NIU," Gilbert said they are not in competition with the local retailers. "You can't just walk off the street and use the hotel rooms."

He said the hotel is part of the educational mission because it is used by visiting administrators, students and alumni.

Gilbert said regardless of the outcome of the suit, "the constitutional questions may not be answered."

Learning stems from genetics, environment

By JOEY KUST
Staff writer

"What's Your Learning Style?" a seminar sponsored by the Counseling Center, linked Wednesday several different factors that influence the way students learn.

Shirley Moore, dean of academic development, said previous experience, surrounding environment, genetics and prenatal activities of parents are all important factors in students learning.

From these factors each person develops his own preferred way of learning, Moore said. Children who play with puzzles, for example, are more likely to develop a clearer path of logical thinking than a child who plays with a doll, she said.

According to the Kolb Theory on Learning, there are four separate types of learners, Moore said. A simple test can determine a student's learning style, she said.

Teachers and their teaching styles were also explored.

More than 80 percent of all teachers have the same preferred way of learning and teaching, Moore said.

Because less than 20 percent of all students are included in that category, she said, communication is often lacking between teachers and students.

"It's not always the student's fault for not understanding or relating with their teachers," she said. "But it is, however, always the student's duty to adapt to their teachers' preferred teaching style."

Operation guest room is set for trial run

By PAMELA LILL
Activities editor

"Operation Guest Room," a bed and breakfast program, will be providing space to Eastern students' parents who wish to attend Parents Weekend Nov. 1.

Judy Hofstrand, chair of the project, said the Charleston Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the program and the cost will be $30 a night for a single and $35 for a double. The Chamber will also charge $2 per order to cover "out of pocket costs."

This includes bed, linens, access to a bath, and breakfast. Though the breakfast might vary, each guest is assured a continental breakfast, she said.

The price was calculated by looking at other bed and breakfast operations. The Chamber went with the bottom Hofstrand said. "This is not intended to be a money making project," she added.

Some hosts have said they do not want the money, Hofstrand said, adding that they are donating the money to the Chamber. This money will go towards a welcome sign fund for Charleston.

Hofstrand said the Chamber is "trying very hard to find people who like to be with people."

A common thread between hosts is that they are interested in people, Hofstrand said. "They want to welcome the parents, making another connection," she added.

Janet Norberg, an Eastern speech instructor, has agreed to open up her camp ground in Charleston for that weekend, Hofstrand said.

One cabin is also available "for someone who enjoys camping," she added.

About 30 hosts have volunteered space, Hofstrand said, adding that they are still recruiting hosts, "not knowing what the demand is going to be."

Hofstrand said she is personally checking out every house to make sure that the accommodations are adequate. "Anything that wasn't safe or adequate, we just wouldn't use," she said.

The houses offered so far include one with a geodesic ceiling, a house that was a hotel in the early 1900's and one that overlooks a golf course, Hofstrand said.

"Operation Guest Room," is a pilot program and if it works "we intend to keep a file of hosts." She said this program would help meet demands for accommodations during graduation and homecoming.

carefully that the mixed race got more privileges than the blacks."

But Murray said the growing bond between blacks is hurting the government's strategy. "At this point they are losing the fight."

As long as the outside world believes black South Africans are divided, the government will maintain a stronger position, he said.

"The white government wants the outside world to believe there are many factions in South Africans and that is not the truth," Murray said. "That is the government trying to tell the world they (blacks) want power but they can't live together."

Although Murray is optimistic that black South Africans will one day achieve full equality, he believes pressure must come from the outside.

The pressure must be imposed, Murray said, because the South African government is not sincerely interested in reform.

"It (violence) is quite understandable, because for so many years, our people were prepared to listen but nothing came from it," he said. "Meanwhile the frustrations were getting heavier and heavier."

Although sanctions and divestment could hurt blacks in the short run, Murray believes blacks are willing to pay the price.

"If the people at this stage are prepared to die for the cause, then they are prepared to starve and suffer for the cause also."

Tough economic sanctions, such as the ones suggested by Congress, are probably the most effective tools the U.S. and other countries can use to fight racist South African policies, Murray said.

"The pressure that will be put on the South Africans to get hold of money might lead them to change their structure so they can get money from the outside world."

"I'm not a believer in this constructive engagement," Murray added.

Murray said he believes the South African government is "trying to sidestep the effect sanctions will have."

If a democratic majority ever gains control of the country, Murray acknowledged that it will be difficult "to work out a constitution where everyone will be satisfied."

But he believes whites would be treated fairly by a democratic majority. "I'm not racist and the black leaders are not racist," he said. "We feel South Africa belongs to the blacks and South Africa belongs to the whites."

After he receives his masters degree from Eastern, Murray said he, his wife, and their 17-month-old child will return to South Africa to the school where he teaches students also classified as "mixed."

Murray said a single educational system is the key to reform in South Africa, but adds that teachers are limited in what they can achieve outside the classroom.

"We haven't got a teacher's union like you do here," he said. "Once you get up to say something in public, the next day you could be out of work."

Although he has greater freedom in the U.S., Murray plans to return to South Africa when he completes his masters degree.

"I am a South African," he said. "It is my country and I want to live there."

Unpredictable Panthers set to host Saginaw

By JEFF LONG
Sports editor

The question of the week as Eastern prepares to host Saginaw Valley Saturday is which Panther team will show up to play this weekend for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff at O'Brien Stadium?

Will it be the dominating force which annihilated Division I-AA powerhouse Indiana State 39-7 last week? Or will it be the uninspired squad that showed up at Division II Northeast Missouri the week before and limped home with an embarrassing 31-24 loss?

So unpredictable has this young football season been that the Panthers have already seen both ends of the spectrum after just two games.

After last week's domination, it's clear the talent is there for a championship-caliber team. And third-year coach Al Molde knows of his squad's talent.

The only problem now is bringing that out on a weekly basis, which goes back to the importance of a sustained intensity level.

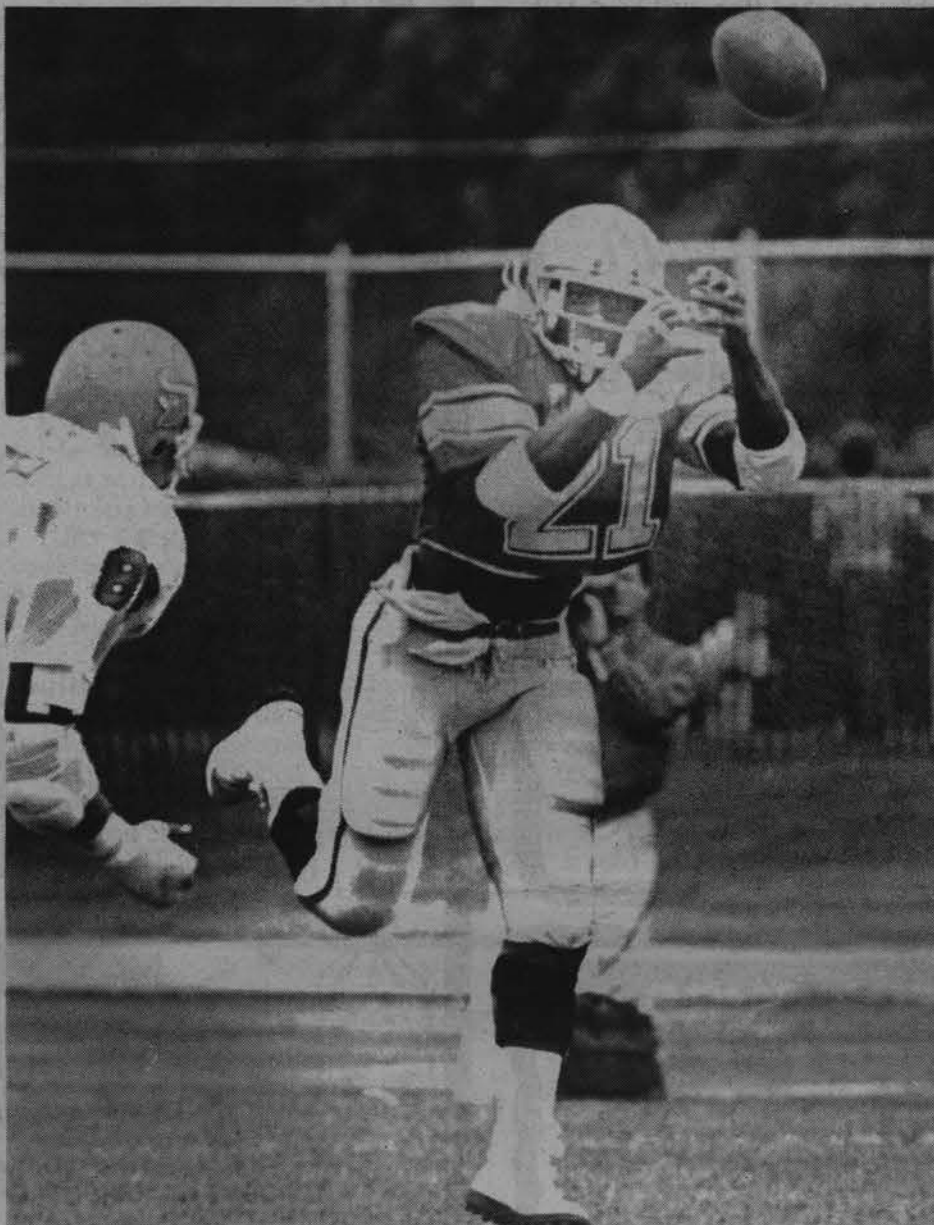

"Emotion is a major factor in college football games," Molde said. "You see less differential in talent when a team is emotionally pumped up. It just goes to show you've got to come ready to play."

The Panthers learned that hard lesson in their loss to NEMO. And with road contests at Southern Illinois and Kansas coming up in the next two weeks, the tendency to look past Saginaw, an NAIA team, is almost inevitable.

But if the Panthers are overlooking Saginaw, it hasn't been apparent in practice this week.

"Nothing matters until we win this weekend," Molde said. "We have to focus on the opponent at hand and nothing else. Football is a week-to-week thing—we can't be caught looking beyond Saginaw."

It will be hard for Eastern to look

Eastern slotback Calvin Pierce prepares to haul in a reception in last weekend's 39-7 win over Indiana State. The Panthers host Saginaw Valley at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at O'Brien Stadium.

past the Cardinals since this will be the first meeting between the two teams, neither of which knows much about the other. It will be Saginaw's first contest ever against a I-AA team.

"This will be the toughest game on our schedule," Saginaw coach George Ihler said. "We've been gearing up for this one."

Controlling the Cardinals' option attack will be the top priority of Eastern's defense. The rush-oriented offense led the Cardinals to 22 school records last season, including the single-season rushing mark with 2,120 yards.

"In regards to stopping the option, that's a matter of being disciplined and handling your responsibility," Molde said.

It appears Saginaw lives or dies by the rush. Last season, the Cardinals completed just 86 passes.

So while Saginaw will primarily employ a clock-control rushing attack, it's likely that the Panthers will return to their passing ways, which took second seat to their durable ground game last week.

The passing game should be more active due to the fact that the Cardinals are thin and inexperienced in the defensive backfield. Their strength, however, lies within their quick pass-rush.

Meanwhile, the Panthers are averaging 134 yards rushing a game, almost three times as much as last year's 47-yard average.

"One of our objectives was improving the running game," Molde said. "So far we've accomplished what we've wanted to accomplish in terms of that."

DuWayne Pitts and James Marable ran for 94 and 90 yards respectively last week, while quarterback Sean Payton failed to top 200 yards passing for the first time since becoming a starter, ending up with 194.

"Someone might look at the stats and think what a terrible day passing it was," Molde said, "but that was our intent. Our objective was different. Consequently we threw fewer times and ran more, but we were successful. I wouldn't say it was a sub-par passing game at all."

"It always makes you a more difficult opponent when you can do more things."

Spikers avoid upset-minded ISU

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—Eastern's volleyball survived an upset bid Thursday by a stubborn Indiana State squad to post a five-game victory.

The Panthers, 10-2 and off to their best start in history, downed the Sycamores 15-3, 8-15, 15-10, 8-15 and 15-12.

In both games Indiana State won, they blew Eastern out after being tied at 8-8.

Indiana State fell to 3-8 on the season.

"Our blocking was very inconsistent tonight," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said. "We must be a better blocking team."

"We must continue to improve our concentration on the court. We made too many mental errors tonight."

In an attempt to try different lineup combinations, Ralston started freshmen LeAnn Thomas, Gina Knoke and Gianna Galanti along with regulars Judy Planos, Diane Eiserman, and Misty Buckhold.

"Gianna helped us a lot in the front row and by playing very good defense," Ralston said.

"LeAnn was very smooth at setter," Ralston said. "She's very smart out there."

"I also think that Gina Knoke played well, especially in the back row. I played her at a position that she is not accustomed to playing."

Planos led Eastern with 16 kills and a .424 hitting percentage. The Evanston product also had three block assists.

Eiserman added 15 kills, seven digs, two block assists and hit .277.

Galanti, a 5-foot-11 middle hitter, registered six kills, three block solos, three block assists and seven digs.

Thomas, a Riverton native, dished out 31 assists, while Buckhold had nine kills and a team-leading 15 digs.

"I think our freshmen played exceptionally well tonight," Ralston said. "I started them in the first game and they blew out Indiana State."

Eastern opens its home season Saturday at 12 p.m. in Lantz Gym against DePaul. Anyone with a ticket for Eastern's football game against Saginaw Valley will be admitted free to the volleyball contest.

"I'm really looking forward to being home and hope that we have a big crowd there to watch us play."

Four Big Ten Conference football teams will be on the road this weekend and can expect to find the going tougher than in homestands that allowed them to tally a 9-0 mark last week.

Ohio State, Michigan, Illinois and Michigan State will be away from home against formidable opposition as the Big Ten attempts to add to its 9-3 record against intersectional foes.

After three initial defeats suffered by Purdue, Illinois and Northwestern, Big Ten teams struck back last week for their sweep, the first such single-day mark in the league's 90-year history.

Northwestern, the only team to play on the road last week where the Wildcats came up with a 27-23 upset at Missouri, will be idle this week, but the other nine teams will be in action, including Purdue, which has had a three-week layoff.

Ohio State's seventh-ranked Buckeyes will be at Colorado. Michigan ranked 19th, will be at 15th-ranked South Carolina. Illinois, No. 20, will be at 18th-ranked Nebraska and Michigan State will be at Notre Dame in a night game.

Both harrier units travel to Kenosha for meet

By JOHN STROUD
Staff writer

Eastern's men's and women's cross country teams can expect to be among a host of fine teams when they travel to the Midwest Collegiate Championships in Kenosha, Wis. on Saturday.

The men will be minus their No. 1 runner, freshman Donzell Jones, who has a national guard commitment this weekend. A traveling squad of eight runners will make the trip to Kenosha.

"I'm pretty confident that the team will pick up what we lose not having Donzell with us," men's assistant coach Tom Akers said. "It just means the sixth and seventh runners will have to close the gap. It shouldn't weaken us."

The Panther's harrier team Saturday will consist of seniors Dan Newman, Scott Tracy, and Mitch McClure, sophomores Dale Righter and Van

Gardner, and freshmen Brad Conte, Jeff Williams, and John Wells. Wells replaces freshman Bruce Nie after he complained of having "sore legs."

"Nie has been hampered with sore legs all week so we're going to give him the weekend off," Akers said.

Wells finished No. 1 for the junior varsity squad which took second against two junior colleges, Vincennes and Danville, on Wednesday. Vincennes won the meet.

Akers expects to see some of the top junior colleges in the nation at Kenosha, as well as "a lot of school's more our size." There is also a possibility that some of the Big Ten powers could show up, including the University of Wisconsin and Purdue, who beat the Panthers at home last Saturday.

"We're looking a lot better this week than we did last weekend," Akers said of the team's appearance in practice this past week.

"We're definitely shooting for the top five," Akers added. The Panthers finished fifth in the same meet last year.

Women's coach John Craft also expects to see some of the nation's top teams in the women's division of the Midwest Collegiate Championships.

The lady harriers will be taking the only six runners they have running competitively at the moment.

Juniors Janine Jarris, LuAnn Meyer, and Kerri Sperry, along with sophomore Lisa Jostes, freshman Heidi Lammon and senior Peggy Brown will represent the Panthers Saturday.

"We've had a lot of good practices this week," Craft said. "We've been working a lot on improving things like concentration and pace."

"The girls are looking forward to going up there and hopefully improving their times," Craft added. "It is a quality meet and a very nice course."

Eastern finished 14th in the meet last year under coach Dan Lowery, who filled in last year while Craft was on sabbatical. Several of the runners turned in personal best times at Kenosha last year and the returning runners are hoping to do the same this year.

"They'll be shooting to better their times from last year," Craft said.

Craft expects to see some Gateway Conference rivals at the meet Saturday including Western Illinois, who defeated the Panthers last week at home. Western finished fourth in the Midwest Championships last year.

"I didn't think they looked that tough last week," Craft commented

Holmes set for Marciano's record, Spinks in title bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Larry Holmes says he isn't taking Michael Spinks lightly, but he doesn't think there is any way the light heavyweight champion can beat him Saturday night.

Well, there is one way.

"If I stayed out all night, got drunk and didn't train, he could beat me," said Holmes, the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion who will be trying to tie Rocky Marciano's 49-0 career record.

"I have done the thing I have to do to fight a fighter such as this," Holmes said Thursday. "Michael has bitten off more than he can chew."

The oddsmakers agree. Holmes is a 6-1 favorite in the scheduled 15-round bout at an 11,192-seat outdoor arena at the Riviera Hotel and Casino.

HBO will televise the fight, which could begin anytime from 8:55 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. CDT.

Spinks also will be trying to complete the second brother act to fight for the heavyweight title. His brother, Leon, won and lost the championship in bouts with Muhammad Ali in 1978. Leon also was stopped in the third round by Holmes in the third round in 1981 when Holmes was World Boxing Council champion, a title he relinquished in 1983.

Max Baer won the heavyweight title from Primo Carnero in 1934. Brother Buddy Baer failed in title bids against Joe Louis in 1941 and 1942.

The 35-year-old Holmes is aware of the historical significance of the match Saturday night, which will be held on the 30th anniversary of Marciano's final fight, a ninth-round knockout of light heavyweight champion Archie Moore.

Holmes is getting $3 million plus $500,000 for expenses. Spinks is getting $900,000 plus $100,000 for expenses.

"I'm ready to get it over with," said Spinks, who for the first time in his career will be fighting a bigger opponent.

The 6-foot-3 Holmes is a half-inch taller than Spinks and a good deal bulkier.

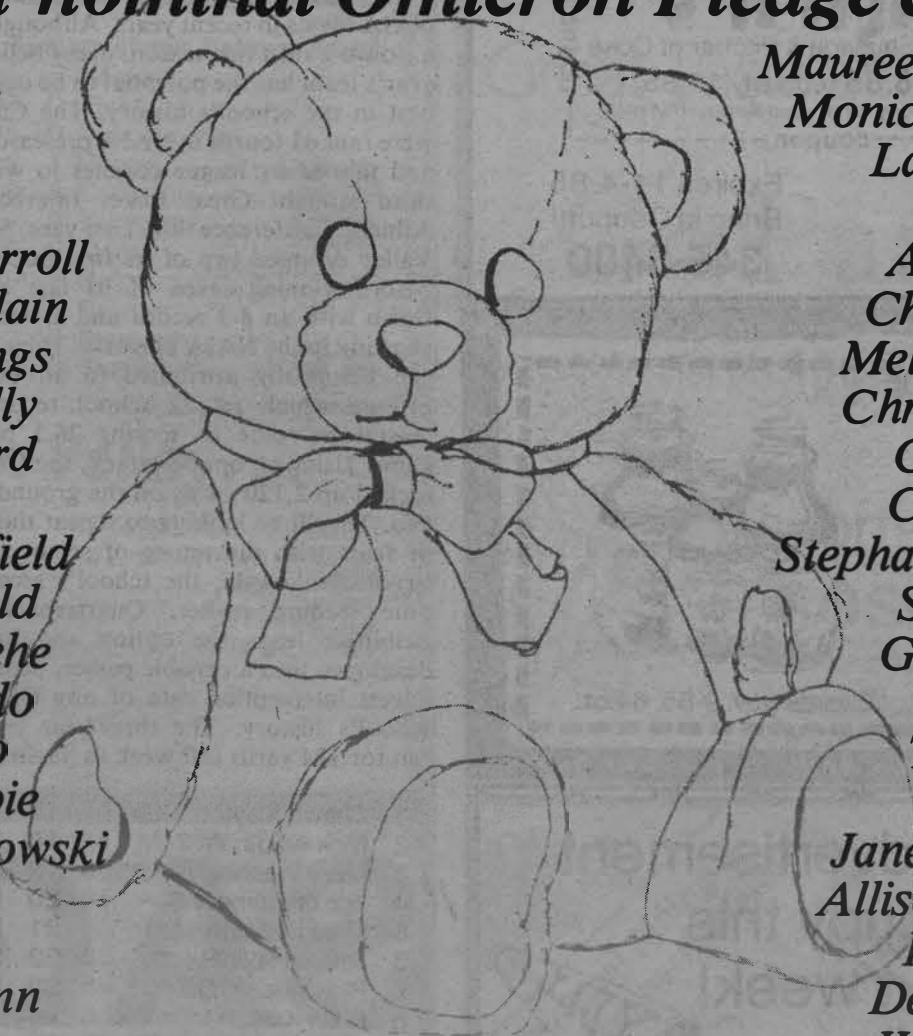

Spinks will only say that he will "weigh at whatever feels comfortable to me." Estimates of his weight range from 185 to 195 pounds. Holmes said he would weigh about 220 pounds.

The official weigh-in will be held at 10 a.m. CDT Friday.

Eddie Futch, who has trained both Spinks and Holmes, but is not involved in this fight, thinks the light heavyweight champion can hit hard enough to hurt the bigger man.

Panther Update

What to expect: Eastern, 1-1, enters Saturday's game against NAIA-power Saginaw Valley, after an impressive 39-7 rout of arch-rival Indiana State last weekend. This marks the first meeting between Eastern and Saginaw Valley, 1984 champions of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Conference. Last season the Panthers defeated GLIC-member Ferris State, 44-33. Eastern also played GLIC-member Grand Valley State in 1983 and 1984. Eastern's defense came to life last Saturday. The Panthers forced Indiana State's offense into seven turnovers—five fumbles and two interceptions—while holding Sycamore All-American quarterback Jeff Miller to just 118 passing yards. Defensive end Tom Moskal and defensive tackle Dave Lewandowski anchor the line, while linebacker Derick Wilhelms, cornerback Eddie Nailon and safety Bob Bronaugh defend the secondary. Wilhelms and Bronaugh each returned interceptions for touchdowns last Saturday. Eastern's offense is paced by All-Americans Sean Payton and Roy Banks. Payton could move into the No. 3 slot in career pass completions with 30, a mark he has topped four times already in his short career. Banks' next touchdown reception will move to third place on the all-time Panthers list. Junior slotback Calvin Pierce also will be one of Payton's aerial targets. Eastern's rushing attack is bolstered by the performances of sophomore DuWayne Pitts and freshman redshirt James Marable. Panthers' speciality team is spearheaded by kicker-punter Evan Arapostathis. LaMesa, Calif., native carries a 41.3 average into Saturday's game.

Who to watch: All-American quarterback Sean Payton is the sparkplug of Eastern's offense. All-American flanker Roy Banks and slotback Calvin Pierce carry the Panthers' receiving load. Cornerback Eddie Nailon and linebacker Derick Wilhelms compose the core of Eastern's defense.

Key injuries: None.

What's at stake: An Eastern win would give the Panthers their first winning start of the young season, as well as build momentum for next weekend's game at Southern Illinois. A loss would be a devastating blow to the Panthers' chances with two losses to small schools.

Cardinal Update

What to expect: Little-known Saginaw Valley has quietly become one of the better NAIA teams in recent years. Although off to a slow 0-2 start this season, many believe this year's team has the potential to be one of the best in the school's history. The Cardinals were ranked fourth in NAIA preseason polls and tabbed by league coaches to win their third straight Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title. Last year, Saginaw Valley dropped two of its first three games before winning seven of its last eight to finish with an 8-3 record and a third-place showing in the NAIA playoffs. Their success can be mostly attributed to an explosive offense which set 22 school records last season en route to scoring 26.3 points a game. Using an option attack, the Cardinals racked up 2,120 yards on the ground a year ago. They'll be looking to repeat those type of feats with the return of senior tailback Bryon Krukowski, the school's second all-time leading rusher. Quarterback Mike Leibinger leads the option and has also developed into a capable passer, posting the lowest interception rate of any QB in the school's history. The three-year letterman ran for 124 yards last week in Saginaw's 23-

20 loss to Franklin College. Defensive line Cardinals possess a strong front line, but are thin in the secondary corps. Five players are expected to return to anchor the defensive line, including 245-pound senior Mark VandenBerg. VandenBerg stands 6-8. With a patched up secondary that's been hit by injuries and graduation, the Cardinals will have their hands full against Eastern's aerial arsenal.

Who to watch: Second-team NAIA All-American tailback Bryon Krukowski, compiling 1,035 yards rushing last year, will pace the ground game. He's also compiled eight passes for 124 yards so far this season. Quarterback Mike Leibinger has developed a keen sense in heading Saginaw's offense, and is always a threat to the defense. Linebackers Darrell Bartkowiak and O'Hagen lend experience to the defense.

Key injuries: None.

At stake: This is Saginaw's first game ever against an NCAA Division I-AA team, so it will be one of their biggest games. A victory would be a tremendous boost to the Cardinals' program.

Undefeated booters to renew Quincy rivalry

By DOBIE HOLLAND
Staff writer

The rivalry between the Eastern and Quincy College soccer units runs as deep as the flowing waters of the Mississippi River.

That rivalry will be renewed when the Panthers travel west to the city by the river to battle the Hawks at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

This is the third road game for the 3-0-1 booters who will attempt to improve on that record against an old and reputable rival.

The two teams have been jousting on the booter fields for over 20 years with the series at a dead even heat.

Fortunately, the pendulum has been swinging east to the Panthers' favor in recent contests.

Last season, then first-year coach Cizo Mosnia said his unit may have surprised Quincy during their 6-1 routing of the Hawks.

"I think we surprised them last year. They have had the same coach (Jack McKenzie) as when I played. He knew we had a new coach and he probably took us lightly," Mosnia said.

"This time around, he (McKenzie) will probably be out to avenge last year's defeat so we're going to play hard," he said.

"We won't take them lightly at all. We're going to go in there with all the intensity we had against Green Bay (2-0 victory last Saturday at Lakeside Field)."

The Hawks feature 12 players from the St. Louis area, one of the best talent spots west of the Mississippi.

But Mosnia will be keeping an eye on 6-foot forward Jim Joyner.

Eastern's Matt Gamache gets set to drive the ball Saturday. The booters travel to Quincy College for a downfield against Wisconsin-Green Bay last Saturday battle.

McMahon rallies Chicago past rival Minnesota 33-24

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Injured quarterback Jim McMahon came off the bench to throw three touchdown passes in a bit over seven minutes of the third quarter Thursday night, rallying the Chicago Bears to a 33-24 NFL victory over the previously-unbeaten Minnesota Vikings.

Steve Fuller started at quarterback for the Bears, 3-0, in place of McMahon, who suffered neck and back injuries last week. Fuller completed 13 of 18 passes for 124 yards, but the Bears managed only three Kevin Butler field goals.

After Tommy Kramer's nine-yard touchdown pass to Mike Jones gave the Vikings a 17-9 lead with 7:32 left in the third quarter, McMahon came in.

On his first play, he combined with streaking Willie Gault on a 70-yard scoring strike to bring the Bears within 17-16 with 7:13 left in the quarter.

After Wilbur Marshall intercepted a Kramer pass, McMahon's second throw went for a 25-yard touchdown to Dennis McKinnon, giving Chicago a 23-17 lead with 5:25 to go in the period.

After Minnesota failed to move the ball, the Bears took a 30-17 lead on McMahon's 43-yard scoring toss to McKinnon with :33 left in the period.

The Vikings cut the deficit to 30-24 when Kramer passed 57 yards to Anthony Carter with 9:19 to play. It was the second scoring pass of the night from Kramer to Carter.
