Before a packed McAfee Gymnasium, senior Erin Murphy of Delta Zeta sorority and senior Mark Martin of Sigma Pi fraternity were named Eastern's 1994 Homecoming king and queen Monday, kicking off the university's Centennial Homecoming.

Murphy is an elementary education major. Martin is an accounting major. They competed against 46 other contestants for the titles.

Runners-up for the king title were Daniel Drews of Lambda Chi Alpha and Jeff Kocis of Delta Tau Delta. Runners-up for the queen title were Megan Targonski of Alpha Gamma Delta and Kara Phillips of Alpha Phi.

The king and queen were chosen through a combination of votes, grade-point averages, community service and campus involvement.

The freshmen attendant winners were Lauren Borck of Alpha Gamma Delta and Jason Stipp of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

There was a two-way tie for first place in the window-painting contest between two teams. Delta Zeta sorority and Sigma Chi fraternity tied with Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Two groups worked on each window.

Second and third place for the window-painting contest were Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority and Sigma Pi and Alpha Phi, respectively.

For the window contest, participants were asked to recreate a theme from a past Homecoming.

Spirit-point leaders are Sigma Pi fraternity and Alpha Phi sorority in first place, Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and Delta Zeta sorority in second place, and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority in third place.

Homecoming to mix with Centennial

By STEPHANIE CARROLL
Activities editor

This year's Homecoming invites students, alumni and community to celebrate two events at once - Eastern's 79th Homecoming and the university's 100th anniversary.

Eastern kicked off Homecoming, themed "A Stroll Down Memory Lane," Saturday with the traditional window painting in the walkway of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Keith Lipke, assistant coordinator for Homecoming, said each window features a past Homecoming theme from Eastern's history. This idea will also carry over onto each float in Saturday's Homecoming Parade.

Ranging from the traditional window painting to coronation of Homecoming king and queen to the Homecoming Ball, the overall Centennial and Homecoming committees have been working together to make each activity a celebration of Eastern's 100th anniversary, Lipke said.

"We've been trying to incorporate, obviously, Centennial with Homecoming in a way that in 25 years from now people will remember it," Lipke said. "We want to make Homecoming something to remember Eastern's 100 years by."

Lipke said participation in Saturday's Homecoming Parade is up compared to last year. Lipke attributed this to Centennial.

"Participation is up for the parade," Lipke said. "It will be a lot harder to judge, especially because there is just one central Centennial theme for the whole parade."

"The groups really have to work at doing their best. And when they're that pumped, it's a lot harder to judge."

Although no separate Centennial events were planned for the week, Lipke said the Centennial and Homecoming committees have been working together to plan a Homecoming ball for Friday. The ball, which has never been held before, was planned especially for the Centennial Celebration.

Bobbie Hilke, Centennial coordinator, said when she talked to the various boards last year that created funds for Centennial activities, she asked them to keep the Centennial theme throughout Homecoming.

"More people are coming back to Homecoming this year because of Centennial," Hilke said. "Because so many people are coming back, it's important to keep the theme."

Facts about the Centennial and Eastern's last 100 years are printed in Homecoming booklets which will be released this week.

Card to simplify student spending

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Staff writer

Students may soon be able to pay for everything from football tickets to a load of laundry with a single card.

Pete Snider, a representative from Griffin Technology, will be on campus Thursday to propose a university debit card. Griffin is the company that provides Eastern's food-service equipment.

Snider will speak at 1:30 p.m. in the Board of Governnors conference room in Booth Library. The meeting is open to the public.

Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs, said if the card is implemented, students will have an account where they or their parents may place money.

Students can then use the card to pay for a number of things on campus, including athletic events, soda machines, laundry machines and items at the Union Bookstore.

McCoy case in court today

By JEREMY R. KIRK
Staff writer

Attorneys will try today for the second time to get a lawsuit filed by former Eastern student Greg McCoy against three area businesses and one Eastern fraternity dismissed.

Coles County Circuit Judge Paul Komada will preside over a hearing at 9:30 a.m. today in which lawyers for four defendants, Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, Gano Welding Supplies, 320 Railroad Ave.; the Uptowner and Cellar, 623 Monroe Ave.; and Mother's Bar, 506 Monroe Ave., have filed a motion to throw the case out of court.

The court denied a similar motion in June. McCoy's attorney Peter Borich, of Beckett and Associates in Urbana, refiled the original complaint against the defendants after minor details in the case changed, enabling the four defendants to file a second motion to throw the case out of court.

Greg McCoy

The case alleges McCoy was thrown into a lime pit at Gano Welding Supplies by members of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity after he was forced to drink to the point of inebriation at Mother's Bar and the Uptowner and Cellar last spring as part of a hazing ritual.

Charleston police found McCoy laying unconscious on railroad tracks the following morning, March 6.

McCoy, now 21, of Lovington, suffered third-degree burns on 80 percent of his body from caustic chemicals. McCoy received several skin grafts during a three-month stay in the burn unit of Springfield Memorial Medical Center.

McCoy was released from the hospital in June.

Borich said the alleged hazing event was a

Failed locks cause ship to sink, investigators say

TURKU, Finland (AP) — Banging thunderously in a violent storm, the huge front cargo door of the ferry Estonia was ripped off after its locks failed, letting in tons of water that sank the vessel, investigators said Monday.

The crew probably was helpless to save the ship and the more than 900 people who died in the tragedy last Wednesday, according to a preliminary conclusion based on video images sent up from the wreck by robots.

Eerie images of twisted metal, broken windows, unused lifeboats and even wafting newspapers flickered on a screen as investigators described their findings from the wreck lying 230 feet below the Baltic Sea's surface.

"There's really nothing the crew could've done," said Tuomo Karppinen, a member of the investigatory commission. "It would've been too late."

The nine-member commission still must determine why the locking devices on the 60-ton front cargo door failed. Karppinen speculated there likely was a problem before the ferry sailed out of harbor in Tallinn, Estonia, into the storm, headed for Stockholm, Sweden.

Swedish police launched a criminal investigation Monday looking for possible negligence in the disaster, the Swedish news agency TT reported.

Within minutes of the announcement of Monday's findings, five major Scandinavian shipping companies, including the Estonia's owner Estline, said they would weld shut the bow doors of other ferries. The boats could still load vehicles through the stern.

The conclusions Monday confirmed reports by survivors and speculation by experts that the bow door — a visor that swings up to let vehicles disembark — had leaked or broken off from the ship.

"The bow visor has become detached from the vessel as a result of the failure of the bow visor locking devices," the commission said in a statement.

Speaking at a news conference, Karppinen speculated that during the storm, "the bow door opened, swung up and then banged down hard. This may have happened several times."

The videotape, recorded from images sent up by the two Sea Owl robots, also showed a problem with the bow's inner door, which doubles as a ramp that is lowered to let in vehicles.

The watertight ramp is still in place, but there was a 3-foot gap along its top edge, which allowed water to flow onto the car deck, the statement said.

"The water inflow through the partly dislodged forward ramp had been of sufficient magnitude to result in a lack of stability and the capsizing of the ferry," it said.

The conclusions from the videotape were announced after the pictures were reviewed by the commission made up of Swedes, Finns and Estonians.

Karppinen, a Finnish specialist in hydrodynamics, said the cameras searched the sea bottom in vain for the missing bow door.

He said "everything has been torn out" of the section on the ferry where the door had been attached.

Although Karppinen refused to speculate on why the locks failed, he said all the evidence "points to the fact that there was something wrong with the doors before the ship left harbor."

The Estonia sank after taking on an estimated 1,000 tons of water in its vehicle deck, a huge proportion of its listed displacement of about 16,000 tons of water. The ship is 515 feet long.

No bodies were seen in the video shown to reporters, and investigators have said they filmed none with the robots.

Officials on Monday released an updated death toll from the tragedy after a survivor died. They also discovered that several bodies had been listed twice. The provisional toll stood at 137 survivors and 912 dead, with 93 bodies recovered.

Supreme Court opens new term

Author loses court appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — An author who says he was libeled by an unfavorable book review in The New York Times lost a Supreme Court appeal Monday in his attempt to revive his $10 million lawsuit.

The court silently let stand a ruling that threw out Dan Moldea's lawsuit because the objectionable comments were "a supportable interpretation of the author's work."

The case had attracted much attention in the publishing industry, mainly because of a dramatic reversal by a federal appeals court that first ruled Moldea's allegations should get a jury trial.

Moldea sued the Times over the Sept. 3, 1989, review of the newspaper published of his book, "Interference: How Organized Crime Influences Professional Football." The review, written by Times sportswriter Gerald Eskenazi, contained some favorable comments but concluded that there was "too much sloppy journalism to trust the bulk of this book's 512 pages."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court opened its 1994-95 term Monday by seeking the Clinton administration's views in a high-stakes battle over state attempts to regulate gambling on Indian reservations.

The court won't say until hearing from government lawyers whether it will resolve disputes from Florida and Alabama, two of the more than 20 states in which reservation gambling has become a $6 billion-a-year industry.

Justice Department lawyers, who might take months to respond, are being asked whether they think Indian tribes may sue states for failing to help pave the way for on-reservation casinos and other gaming operations.

The court's first day back from its three-month summer recess created the usual mountain of paper work — the justices issued orders in more than 1,600 cases.

But it was a flurry signifying little for the future of American law, because the court did not accept one new case for review.

The justices had granted review to eight cases last week on an expedited basis, but that's an extraordinarily small amount. In past years, two dozen or more cases had been granted review — setting the stage for future decisions — on a term's first day.

Justice Stephen G. Breyer took an active role in his first full day on the high court bench Monday. He asked detailed questions in two of the three cases in which arguments were heard.

But Breyer disqualified himself from 16 cases in which the court denied review.

A court spokeswoman said the justice's action was sparked either by financial interests he has or had, or because he had participated in the cases as a member of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. She declined to characterize this as either a large or small number of cases for a new justice to abstain from.

In other matters, the court:

- Steered clear of a dispute from South Dakota over who owns a 65-million-year-old dinosaur's remains, the most complete Tyrannosaurus rex fossil ever found.

- Refused to revive author Dan Moldea's $10 million lawsuit against The New York Times for a negative review his book received.

- Rejected a challenge to a federal law that, according to a Virginia hospital and its doctors, requires "inappropriate and unethical" medical treatment in some cases. The hospital now must continue providing emergency respiratory help to a permanently unconscious young girl.

Card

Hencken brought up the idea at last week's Student Government meeting, where several senate members seemed interested in the proposal.

The debit card would differ from a credit card in that money would be deposited in an account before the card is used, rather than accumulating a bill to be paid after purchase, Hencken said.

Hencken said information is still being gathered about the idea, and he doesn't know enough about the plan to say if it would be helpful.

"It's just a feasibility at this time," he said. "We're just coming down to listen to what (Snider) has to say."

Monty Bennett, director of purchasing, said the Housing Office became interested in the idea after it was proposed to Booth Library. The cards will be used for library copy machines beginning in January.

Patty Martinez, adviser to the Residence Hall Association, said she would like to a debit-card program in place.

"I think they would be nothing but a benefit to students," she said. "They would be a lot more flexible."

"This is the future," he said. "It would be a great service for students and parents would like it also."

baptismal ritual during "Hell Week."

In other court business:

- A preliminary hearing date was set for an Eastern student charged with aggravated battery, obstructing a peace officer, and resisting a peace officer.

Andrea L. Clark, 21, will appear in Coles County Circuit Court Oct. 17 for a preliminary hearing. Clark was allegedly involved in a Sept. 24 altercation in the 600 block of Monroe Avenue.

Another Eastern student involved in the same incident, Michael Ely, will appear in Coles County Circuit Court on Oct. 25 for an initial hearing. Ely, 20, was charged with battery and illegal consumption of alcohol by a minor.

Ely has claimed the altercation was mishandled by police.

Nurses receive additional training

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Campus editor

Members of the Women's Studies Council are calling University Health Service's decision to train its nurses to become family planning nurse practitioners nothing more than a temporary solution.

Health Service recently made the decision to send two of its nurses to a two-week training program in Denver this February, which will allow them to handle female exams including pap smears and counseling.

The decision came after the Women's Studies Council released a report last spring stating Eastern as one of only seven state schools that does not have a female doctor or gynecologist on staff. Eastern is also one of two state schools that does not have a minority doctor on staff.

Linda Leal, coordinator for the Women's Studies Council, said she is satisfied with the solution for now.

"For now, (the training of the two nurses) is a good compromise," said Leal, who is an associate psychology professor. "Unfortunately, they're not physicians."

Health Service Director Richard Larson said the change was implemented to accommodate what he sees as a growing trend.

"We are doing this because it is a developing trend that some individuals prefer and feel more comfortable having a female nurse practitioner to perform female tests,"

Larson said. "We still have no idea if anyone wants it, but we want to be able to provide it if they ask."

"There are more requests for this kind of female testing," Larson said. "People have also been asking that a female nurse to be there to take care of that service."

Council member Linda Kaiser said the council would ideally like to see a female physician added to the Health Service staff.

"But I'm satisfied with this for now," she said, "because I realize how hard it is to find a female physician."

Kaiser said an effort should be made to find a female physician when it comes time to add to the Health Service staff.

Council member Judith Lyles said the question of adding a female physician is one of sensitivity.

"We need to have people who are sensitive and can relate to the special needs of a women," Lyles said. "I think the council is very pleased with the decision; however, there are other needs that must be met."

Lyles, an assistant professor of educational psychology and guidance, did not specify what those other needs might be.

Larson said two nurses are being trained to make sure someone is always available to handle these duties.

"We are sending two nurses so that if one is sick, we will have one ready to take her place, or if we get busy, we will have two certified nurses ready to take care of the students," Larson said.

Faculty concerned with hiring policy

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

One Eastern professor believes the university's attempts to avoid charges of nepotism has caused qualified personnel who have spouses to be turned down for positions.

John Kilgore, a professor in the English department, said he is also concerned that some quality faculty members are being lost when their spouses, who may be qualified for open positions, are overlooked by the university hiring process for the same reason.

Kilgore said the university "is biased against hiring qualified faculty spouses because of the overblown fear of nepotism."

The exact number of faculty spouses currently employed at Eastern is unavailable because a program has never been implemented to compile that information. The Office of Instructional Research and Planning has in the past deemed the statistics "unnecessary."

Cynthia Nichols, director of Eastern's Office of Affirmative Action and Cultural Diversity, said she doesn't think being a spouse of an Eastern faculty member is a benefit or a hindrance in interviewing for university positions.

But Kilgore disagrees, saying the university has been "completely blind to family concerns."

"Over the years I have seen two professional families go through hell trying to manage the trade-off between professional conflicts and family matters," Kilgore said.

Faculty Senate Chairman John Allison said the senate will view several options to attempt to find a way to promote the hiring of faculty spouses with high qualifications.

Allison conceded that the university's failure to do so has cost the school faculty members.

"We often lose some awfully good faculty members when the university doesn't hire a spouse who is well-qualified," Allison said.

The senate will meet at 2 p.m. today in the Board of Governors Room of Booth Library.

Seminar offers help in battling shyness

To help students overcome shyness, the Counseling Center will hold a seminar Wednesday for people who have difficulty getting acquainted with others.

The seminar, titled "Overcoming Shyness," will be presented noon in the Arcola-Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Keith Wilson, a psychology professor, will present the workshop for students who have trouble making friends, for dating couples and for anyone trying to overcome shy tendencies.

"Shyness can cause problems in relationships," Wilson said. "Shyness can be so bad that students tend to transfer to different universities or drop out altogether."

Wilson said the Counseling Center provides therapy for those who want help with shyness.

Bud Sanders of the Counseling Center said that shyness is a significant problem in society.

"People tend to revert towards drugs and alcohol to turn away from their shyness," Sanders said.

"Students can learn how to cope and lead a more productive life."

Most students who come to the Counseling Center with shyness problems are in their late teens or early 20s, Wilson said.

This seminar is part of the Counseling Center's ongoing life skills series. Future workshops will focus on topics such as jealousy, testing skills and growing up in an unhappy family.

Nearly 80 members of Eastern's ROTC program traversed across 53 rural Ashmore acres for three days of field training exercises in search of one purpose, confidence in themselves.

"You have to be proficient at this stuff. You have to be able to teach well. And," Cad. Capt. Kevin Sisk continued with a hint of a smile dawning on his face, "you have to be patient."

Espy resigns

Investigation from accepted gifts too distracting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy resigned Monday, saying an investigation into gifts he accepted from people and companies who do business with his department was too distracting for him to stay on.

He predicted he would be exonerated.

"I owe it to the president to allow his agenda to go through with a minimum of distraction," Espy said in announcing he would leave the Cabinet effective Dec. 31.

Both Espy and his attorney said there was no evidence that any government practice or policy was affected by the gifts given to Espy or his girlfriend.

"I must personally overcome the challenge to my good name," said Espy, 40.

A court-appointed independent counsel is investigating whether Espy violated rules governing contacts with companies that do business with his department. Among the companies involved is Tyson Foods Inc., the nation's largest poultry company. The Arkansas company has long-time ties to President Clinton.

Questions also have been raised about Espy's acceptance of tickets to sports events, travel and lodging. Espy denied any wrongdoing, and has repaid more than $7,600 in expenses, Espy said "I have failed myself" by not being as careful as he should in "managing some of the details" of his personal finances.

And he apologized to President Clinton for any embarassment he had caused the administration.

But he said allegations he improperly billed the government for travel or other expenses were "untrue and unfounded."

Espy said he could not comment specifically on the allegations because of the investigation.

Espy said he had been fighting the allegations for months and had begun to feel as if he was "twisting in the wind, twisting in the wind. ... The bough finally broke."

U.S. raid paves exiled president's path

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — In the most dramatic strike yet at Haiti's ruling military, U.S. soldiers raided the headquarters of a hated pro-army militia Monday, seizing weapons and arresting more than three dozen people.

A joyous crowd of Haitians gathered to cheer the Americans. As the soldiers pulled away from the paramilitary headquarters, the Haitians surged forward in a jubilant mass and gleefully trashed the place, smashing everything they could lay hands on.

"We love you! We love you!" Haitians shouted at the soldiers who had raided the headquarters of the Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti, known as FRAPH.

The club-wielding demonstrators smashed furniture and beat on mattresses, water bottles, refrigerators, telephones — anything associated with FRAPH. One man even turned his anger on a stapler, repeatedly throwing it to the ground.

The raid came hours after Haitians in the southwestern town of Les Cayes shot and wounded a U.S. Special Forces soldier — the second American casualty since U.S. troops arrived two weeks ago.

The wounded soldier was being treated at the 28th Combat Support Hospital in Port-au-Prince and "his prognosis is great," said Lt. Gen. Hugh Shelton, U.S. commander in Haiti.

There was no indication the raid was in response to the shooting.

Rather, it seemed part of a more aggressive effort by the United States to pave the way for the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. As recently as Friday, the Americans stood back while FRAPH members shot and killed pro-Aristide demonstrators.

If that demonstration of reserve disappointed many Haitians, Monday's muscle-flexing went a long way toward repairing the damage.

Gally Droit, a student watching the joyous smashing of FRAPH headquarters and the adjoining Normandie Bar, a FRAPH hangout, was anxious that the world viewed the scene for what it was.

"To get rid of something evil is good," he said. "But we don't want to loot these things. We Haitians are not thieves. This is spontaneous. It is not to steal this material, it is to destroy it."

After letting the people smash and break for an hour or so, a small military patrol returned and took up positions near the FRAPH headquarters.

The raid began in late morning when American troops surrounded the FRAPH headquarters with tanks and humvees.

General Agreement Tariffs and Trade vote postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton, preaching to a choir of open-trade advocates from Congress and five previous administrations, said Monday that failure to pass a new world trade agreement this year could cost the U.S. economy $70 billion.

"The work has been done, the path to the future is clear, our obligations are plain...and let's do it now and do it this year," Clinton said.

At issue is a market-opening revision of the 123-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The trade pact would cut global tariffs by an average 40 percent and would provide a new dispute-resolution mechanism.

The House is scheduled to vote on the agreement Wednesday; the Senate will vote on Dec. 1. Many critics are seeking to postpone it until next year.

Clinton gave what amounted to a pep rally for the trade agreement in a White House driveway speech to an audience of GATT supporters that included lawmakers and members of his own administration and former officials of the Nixon, Ford, Carter, Reagan and Bush administrations.

The carefully choreographed event, staged under bright sunshine, was an effort to increase pressure on Congress.

"Even a six-month delay will cost our economy up to $70 billion in extra economic growth over the decade," Clinton said.

"We're trying to do this with the least possible delay. We're trying to do this in the shortest possible time," he said.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, one of the speakers, predicted the agreement — which took seven years to negotiate — would win House approval this week and go on to pass the Senate.

However, there was considerable opposition to the measure.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he opposes the agreement, claiming it would threaten the livelihood of dairy farmers and could compromise U.S. environmental and safety laws.

The pact is also opposed by the textile industry, environmental groups and some conservatives.

Clinton said that, once the plan has been put in force, it would pump $100 billion to $200 billion into the U.S. economy each year.

Clinton drew a comparison between the GATT agreement and last year's free-trade pact with Mexico and Canada. He said that following that agreement, widely criticized at the time, "our trade with Mexico is growing at three times the rate of our overall trade in the world," including a 600 percent in sales of U.S. automobiles and trucks.

Mickey Kantor, the U.S. trade representative, said the United States led the way toward drafting the new set of trade rules and "the United States now must lead the way in implementing it."

Netsch: Edgar would be forced to raise state taxes if re-elected

CHICAGO (AP) — Dawn Clark Netsch launched a counterstrike at Gov. Jim Edgar on the tax issue Monday, declaring that if re-elected her Republican opponent would need an increase to fight "a fiscal mess" that threatens to swallow up the state's Medicaid funds three months ahead of time.

"He is going to increase your taxes if re-elected," the Democratic candidate for governor told a news conference. She said taxpayers "are tired of a whammy after the election — it has happened too many times before."

Edgar has not said whether he will seek a tax increase. Netsch proposes to increase the personal income tax rate from 3 percent to 4.25 percent to raise funds for schools. Her plan would be coupled with property tax cuts.

Edgar describes Netsch's plan as "a 42 percent tax increase." Despite polls showing her trailing Edgar by as much as 30 percentage points, the Democratic state comptroller was in a feisty mood at her news conference in Brett's Kitchen, a cafe in the shadow of the elevated tracks on Chicago's near North Side.

"Jimmy Two Note," she said. "Forty-two percent and death penalty — that's all he knows how to say."

She urged taxpayers to press the governor for a yes-or-no answer on whether he would ask for a tax increase after the election.

When asked recently if he would call for a tax increase if re-elected, Edgar said: "I don't know what's going to happen over the next four years — I do know that I'm not going to start right out with a 42 percent tax increase."

Netsch was surrounded at the news conference by a group of women who endorsed her candidacy and were critical of the governor's handling of the state's finances. Most of the women, however, were Democratic government workers or have previously been affiliated with her campaign.

"The governor is living in a fantasy," said Susan Locke, a manager in the elections division of the Cook County clerk's office.

Responding to Netsch's remarks, Jim Reilly, Edgar's chief of staff, said Medicaid spending is ahead of last year's pace because the state paid off a carryover balance of $1.3 billion that was left at the close of the last fiscal year.

He said there would be another such carryover at the end of the current period but "we think it will be down some."

Reilly said Republican legislation rejected in June by the Democratic-controlled Illinois House would have eliminated the carryover.

Walsh draws another start

LAKE FOREST (AP) – He's been a backup most of his career, wearing the ball cap, not the helmet, signaling plays from the sideline instead of giving them to his teammates in the huddle.

Now, for one more week at least, Steve Walsh is a starter for the Chicago Bears. The last two games, he's been an effective one, helping the Bears to two victories and a tie for the NFC Central lead.

Starter Erik Kramer still has a sore shoulder, and Walsh will get the call again Sunday against one of his former teams, the New Orleans Saints.

"It's a good situation for both of us. We've both been supportive of each other so far," Walsh said Monday of his relationship with Kramer.

"I have felt no animosity. It's important because I've been in situations where I haven't had the support. It certainly helps that we've both been in these situations." Walsh was a backup at Dallas and New Orleans and made just one start in the 1992 and 1993 seasons. Kramer was signed to a three-year, $8.1 million deal to be the Bears starter after three years as mostly a backup in Detroit.

Kramer, whose injury is taking longer to heal than he expected, said he expects the job to be his again when he's healthy.

"Nothing has happened since I signed here back in March that would lead me to believe anything different than what I've been told every step along the way," Kramer said Monday.

"I was never really clear as to how long this would take. Initially when I hurt it, trainers and everybody were telling me they didn't know how it would feel, it would be day-to-day. And then talking to doctors yesterday they said this type of thing takes four-to-six weeks and it's kind of running its course right now."

Kramer seemed to be caught off-guard after Sunday's 20-13 victory over Buffalo, when coach Dave Wannstedt announced that Kramer's injury might take three to six weeks to heal and that Walsh would start against the Saints.

Duke female kicker doesn't make team

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) – Better send that script of "Necessary Roughness II" back to the rewrite department.

First-year student and would-be kicker Sue Mercer failed in her bid to become the first female to make an NCAA Division I football team, Duke coach Fred Goldsmith said Monday.

Unlike the fictional character played by Kathy Ireland in the movie "Necessary Roughness," Mercer won't make the team as a walk-on. She will be offered a spot as a special teams manager, Goldsmith said.

"She's not where she needs to be to kick at this level of football," Goldsmith said. "The leg strength wasn't there." Goldsmith snapped the ball and assistant coach Fred Chatham did the holding at the secret tryout Monday at Wallace Wade Stadium.

Observers said even her successful kicks lacked power and height. Goldsmith eventually allowed her to kick directly out of Chatham's hold without a snap, but without substantial success as the distances increased.

Home basketball contests slated for tape-delay

By ROBERT MANKER
Sports editor

Eastern basketball games will be televised on a tape-delay basis only this season, Athletic Director Bob McBee said Monday.

Men's basketball games and football games have been televised live in recent seasons on WEIU-TV, broadcast channel 51 and channel 9 for TCI Cable customers.

"We're going to broadcast all of our home games on tape delay and several selected women's games," McBee said. "We won't be doing any live broadcasting at all.

"That's what's done at most schools our size."

He cited a hope to increase home attendance as the primary factor for the change.

"Our first priority is to pack the gym," McBee said. "We'd like to see more students there, more faculty, more staff and more people from the community.

"If you've got a packed house, people play better. It's a lot easier to get up for a game when you've got 6000 people there than it is for 300."

He said the games would likely be televised around 10:30 p.m. the night of each game or possibly the next day.

"We'd rather have them at the gym than sitting at home. That's for sure," McBee said.

WEIU-TV will televise no games when the Panthers are playing on the road, McBee said.

"There may be a couple away games televised by Sportschannel at some point," he said. "But we're not planning on doing it."

As for the future of broadcasting live football games, McBee said a decision has not yet been made.

"We'll just have to evaluate that at the end of the season and see where we are with it," he said. "We want to see attendance pick up first."

Panther quarterback Pete Mauch fires a pass over the middle during Eastern's 38-21 victory over Southwest Missouri State Saturday night. Mauch was named the Gateway's Offensive Player of the Week for his 15-for-19, 315-yard passing night.

It marks the fourth time in five weeks that a Panther has won a Gateway Player of the Week award this season.

Eastern coach Bob Spoo said before the game that Mauch and backup Ron Reichert were "neck-and-neck" as far as who would be taking snaps against Southwest, and Spoo had a blunt reason for why Mauch finally emerged as No. 1.

"He stopped screwing around, and he knows what he can do," he said.

"This was a confidence-booster, obviously," Mauch said of his performance. "I just need to keep it going every week."

It was anyone's guess before game time as to whether Mauch or Reichert was going to start, but Spoo said that creating a controversy sometimes makes certain players stand up.

"When I do that I get that psychological thing going where someone has to emerge, and that's what happened," Spoo said.

"We needed someone to take charge, and Pete did that."

Mauch's 315 yards passing was the highest single-game total for an Eastern quarterback since Eric Arnold threw for 307 yards against Akron in 1989.

Sweeney was originally slated as a backup to strong side linebacker Mike Miller, but when Carver was moved from the weak side to the middle three weeks ago, the Panthers were left searching for an outside linebacker.

After using some different looks the past few weeks, Eastern decided to give Sweeney a shot on the strong side, and he did the job.

"We've been trying to piece together the right balance in the defense," Spoo said, "and with coaches talking about certain players (all week), that's the element."

Anderson went into training camp expecting to be a backup behind starting guard Aaron Hill, but when Chris Westenberger was declared academically ineligible, Anderson was pressed into duty, and the junior came up big.

Anderson earned a grade of 93 percent after coaches looked at films of the game, and his assigned defender, nose tackle Tom Proctor, could only manage two assisted tackles against him.

Northern Iowa struggling as Eastern showdown nears

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

Northern Iowa's motto for its football team this season is "give me five," eluding to the fifth straight Gateway Conference title that the Panthers are gunning for.

Although head coach Terry Allen's squad is 2-0 in Gateway play this season, the Purple Panthers, ranked 11th in the country in Division I-AA, have struggled offensively and now have to take on Eastern at O'Brien field on Saturday, a place that has not treated Northern Iowa nicely.

The Purple Panthers (3-2) were victorious over Gateway foes Southwest Missouri State and Indiana State, but they managed just 12 points against the Bears and 11 against the Sycamores last week.

While Northern Iowa leads the overall series against Eastern Illinois with an 11-6-1 record, the Purple Panthers have won just twice in six tries at O'Brien Field in what have historically been very close games.

In fact, the last nine games between these two teams have been decided by six points or less.

Allen said that while his team has been "inconsistent offensively," he will not try to change the offensive scheme.

Quarterback Brett O'Donnell has done a good job of replacing last year's starter Kurt Warner. O'Donnell ranks first in the Gateway in passing efficiency and in total offense.

Wide receiver Dedric Ward leads the Gateway in receptions, and receiving yards per game.

The running game will get a boost with the return of tailbacks Jason Hamrock and Jeff Stovall.

Stovall, who led the Panthers with 1191 yards and 16 touchdowns last season, broke a bone in his arm a little over two weeks ago, but the injury was not as serious as previously thought. Stovall saw limited action last week against Indiana State.

Northern Iowa's defense has been the key so far this season. When holding opponents under 20 points, the Panthers are 3-0. When allowing 20 points or more, the Panthers are 0-2.

Northern Iowa has allowed just 17 points per game and ranks second behind Indiana State in total team defense in the Gateway Conference.

The defense is led by linebackers Paul Wolf and Andre Allen, the latter who was the Gateway Conference's Defensive Player of the Year last season.

Wolf leads the team with 53 total tackles this season while Allen has 48. Both have two quarterback sacks.

Schmidt

led to her administrative downfall. For 13 years, Schmidt was responsible for evaluating Craft's job performance as women's cross country coach.

She says Craft's attitude changed as acting A.D. and that she and then-assistant athletic director Paul Leuken were "outsiders" on many athletic decisions.

"He expected people to bow to him," Schmidt said of Craft. "And if you're working as a temporary, you don't leave out two members of your team on important decisions."

Craft refuted Schmidt's assertions, saying that he had weekly meetings with all members of his administrative staff, including Schmidt, to keep everybody informed. Craft said he published minutes of the meetings for those who couldn't attend.

"I'm surprised that Mrs. Schmidt would make comments like that," Craft said. "I thought I tried to get their input into decisions that were being made."

Even though McBee is the athletic director, Schmidt said she he has never approached her about athletics prior to or since her demotion.

"The first time I met him, he said, 'Hi, little lady.' The other time he said, 'I understand you like cats,'" Schmidt said. "I've never had a face-to-face meeting with McBee."

McBee, while laughing, denied making the first statement, but he did recall the second conversation.

"She had a bunch of cat things in her office and I said something, because I'm also a cat lover," McBee said. "I'm certainly not going to apologize for being friendly."

sense," she added.

Sharna McEwan, a catcher on Eastern's softball team, said she wonders why student athletes didn't have a voice in Schmidt's demotion.

"Joan made it a point to be personable with the female athletes," said McEwan, a native of Australia. "(Her reassignment) has really taken away from women's athletics. We don't have a role model in any authoritative position now. I'm certainly not impressed with how things are currently going."

With Schmidt's demotion to the classroom, her previous duties are being filled by acting associate athletic director John Craft. NCAA compliance regulations will be performed by the newly hired Jerome Rodgers. Next spring, Eastern will conduct searches for a permanent associate athletic director and a new senior women's administrator.

When Eastern opens its search for a senior women's administrator, Schmidt said she will not apply.

"Once people say they don't want you, it's kind of like kicking a dead horse," Schmidt said. "I read in the paper we want tradition, but we get rid of people who brought tradition here. Obviously Jorns has got his own tradition."

Women's volleyball coach Betty Ralston thinks Eastern is sending out smoke signals that positions for female administrators are few and far between.

"We do need some positive female role models to let people know we care," Ralston said. "It was disappointing to all the women's teams how Joan was dismissed and then reassigned."

Jorns stressed that filling the senior women's administrator's post next spring will bring an added presence to women's athletics. He explained that although Eastern has a significant lack in women administrators, the situation here is not different than that at many other universities.

"Obviously we're trying to hire more women," Jorns said. "That will be particularly true in the future. It's not for

Dual role slated for new athletic hiree

By MATT MORFOOT
Staff writer

To deal with the responsibilities of a compliance director and academic counselor for student-athletes, Eastern Monday appointed Jerome Rodgers to the position of Coordinator of Compliance and Student Services.

Athletic Director Bob McBee said that with Rodgers' background, he is "uniquely qualified" to handle the duties of the position.

Recently completing an administration and finance internship at the NCAA office, Rodgers will take over a position that McBee considers to be one of the most important.

"I'm pleased to join the Eastern athletic staff," Rodgers said. "This position is very challenging but also will be very rewarding."

Rodgers holds a Masters degree in Administration and Supervision from Tennessee Tech.

He worked boys' and girls' summer basketball camps, was a counselor for Boys State, and was an administrative intern with the university's personnel office.

While attending the school as an undergraduate, Rodgers competed as a member of the basketball team (1988-91), held many offices in the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, and was involved in other campus organizations.

"Having received training recently in the NCAA office, I believe I've been prepared as best as possible in these areas (compliance and academic counseling)," Rodgers said.

Rodgers said that the transition from Tennessee Tech to Eastern should be fairly easy since both schools are relative in size.

Hurley accident declared a mistrial

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A judge declared a mistrial Monday after jurors said they could not decide if a motorist who collided with Sacramento Kings' guard Bobby Hurley's vehicle was guilty of reckless driving.

Jurors said they were deadlocked with 10 of 12 votes in favor of convicting Daniel Wieland, 38. They got the case only last Friday, but Judge Roland L. Candee declared a mistrial, anyway.

Prosecutors did not say immediately if they would seek a new trial.

Wieland's station wagon collided with Hurley's four-wheel-drive vehicle last Dec. 12 on a dark roadway near Arco Arena following a Kings' game.

Hurley, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the vehicle and landed in a drainage ditch. He suffered broken ribs, lung injuries, a compression fracture in his back and other injuries.

Hurley and other witnesses testified that Wieland was driving without his headlights on, but Wieland denied it. His attorney contended that Hurley contributed to the accident by failing to make a full stop at the intersection where the crash occurred.

Wieland said outside the courtroom that he was disappointed.

"I figured I would be acquitted, very much so," he said. "You can't go down that road without headlights on." His attorney, Michael Brady, said the case should not have been brought to court in the first place.

"In my opinion he didn't violate the law," Brady said. "I apparently didn't do a very good job explaining the law to jurors."

lack of trying."

Ralston said "there's that old boys' network that's been around forever" philosophy that still controls the reins at many college universities, and could be a reason why Eastern also lags behind.

So until more female administrators are hired, female athletes like Bersig say they will continue to feel like outsiders if they need somewhere to go for advice.

"It was easier as a female to go to a female administrator," Bersig said. "When we came back from the summer, the whole athletic administration changed. It was like being a freshman all over again."

Schmidt: They were out to get me

By JOHN FERA
Staff writer

Joan Schmidt had received numerous awards for her commitment to Eastern's athletic programs over the past 25 years.

But this summer, Schmidt learned that previous awards, honors and accolades weren't enough to ensure her job security as associate athletic director — a post she held since 1977. In June, Schmidt was demoted to faculty status in the physical education department.

"I really think they were out to get me," Schmidt said. "It's been a well-orchestrated plan."

Because of her demotion, Schmidt no longer has any ties to the countless student athletes she worked with

Athletic department currently lacking female administrators

By JOHN FERA
Staff writer

Joan Schmidt's demotion from associate athletic director has left Eastern with no female athletic administrators, a move Eastern coaches and athletes question.

Amy Bersig, a senior women's cross country runner, says she always had complete confidence in Schmidt's abilities as Eastern's NCAA compliance officer and as its top women's sports administrator.

"I had a problem when I first came here and she helped me out a lot," Bersig said. "She dealt with you honestly and she's someone you could go to talk with."

Because about 54 percent of Eastern's student body is female, Bersig says she can't understand why no female administrator currently works in the department.

"I can't understand why all these administrators are men. It doesn't make a lot of "John Craft has to go through the application process just like anybody else," McBee said of the choosing of a permanent replacement for Schmidt.

However, it is Schmidt's assertion that Craft, Jorns and McBee worked together to ensure her ouster. Currently, Craft is fulfilling many of Schmidt's former duties.

Before McBee was hired, Schmidt thinks Craft's promotion to acting athletic director last fall eventually Going into Saturday's game with Eastern, Southwest Missouri must have felt like it had a solid game plan on how to defeat the Panthers — defensively stop the running game and Willie High and offensively avoid Eastern cornerback Ray McElroy and linebacker Tim Carver.

While that trio again performed capably, the Bears got a little more than they expected.

Another threesome really carried the day for the Panthers, three players who were being counted on in the preseason, but who were not expected by any stretch of the imagination to come in and play at the level that they did in Springfield, Mo.

threw for 315 yards and a pair of touchdowns on 15 of 19 passing and scored a 14-yard touchdown of his own on the ground, linebacker Matt Sweeney collected 11 tackles and a sack and center Chris Anderson anchored an offensive line that hardly allowed Mauch to be touched, let alone sacked.

For their individual performances, Mauch was named Gateway Offensive Player of the Week, Sweeney Defensive Player of the Week and Anderson Offensive Linemen of the Week.

Sport eliminations making people uneasy

Athletes, coaches react to dropping of 2 men's sports

By ROBERT MANKER
Sports editor

The elimination of two sports from the Eastern Athletic Department has left many athletes and coaches with both sorrow and concern.

"They're athletes like everybody else," said Derrick Landrus, a senior guard on the men's basketball team. "It's not a good situation."

Wrestling and men's swimming were dropped from the program last week in an effort to bring the program closer to complying with federal gender equity laws.

"I couldn't imagine what I would do if they just all of a sudden eliminated volleyball," said Jennifer Damon, a sophomore on the Eastern volleyball team.

"I'm sure the swimmers and the wrestlers must have been really upset about it, and I don't think it's very fair."

"It makes the number of sports equal for women and men, but it's just unfortunate that the people in (wrestling and men's swimming) can't compete anymore."

Eastern was ordered by the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights to correct what Athletic Director Bob McBee said was a 75-to-25 split of available resources in favor of men.

Now, many people are asking what the elimination of two sports is intended to achieve — a comparable number of sports for each gender, of roster spots or of funds allocated.

Further, is equity determined by counting scholarships and roster spots or by comparing the percentage of the total monetary pie each gender receives?

"There are programs in the country that are in compliance both in opportunities and percentages," said Beth Perine, Eastern softball coach. "And they have football."

Football is the sport repeatedly mentioned by many people in the department when the gender equity, or Title IX, law is discussed.

"The thing I don't think is fair is the football team," Landrus said. "There's nothing that compares to it."

For example, if a school's football team has 90 roster spots, that figure must ideally be balanced by a sport for women with a comparable number of players. No such sport exists.

Women's basketball coach John Klein posed a possible solution to the football dilemma.

"If Eastern Illinois football is funded at 100 percent, then perhaps your fall women's sport — volleyball — should be funded at 100 percent," Klein suggested.

"Take them all and go by percentages."
