Council eyes change in city's liquor code

Proposal raises mayor's power

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT

Charleston's city commissioners will vote Tuesday whether to give Mayor Ray Choate more power and authority in punishing liquor code violators.

The city council will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers, 520 Madison Ave.

The council will consider an amendment to Title IV, Chapter 7, Sections Four A and 34, which would give Choate, the local liquor commissioner, the power to revoke or suspend any liquor license or impose a fine for liquor violations "at his sole discretion."

Fines may be issued at $1,000 a violation up to 10 violations in a year, which is in agreement with the Dramatic Liquor Act.

With the current ordinance Choate has the power to revoke or suspend licenses.

Title IV Chapter 7 Section 4(A) states that the Local Liquor Control Commissioner shall have the power, authority and duties with respect to licenses "to grant and/or suspend for more than thirty (30) days or revoke for cause all licenses issued to persons on premises within this municipality."

The additional change in Section 34 would allow evidence gathered in a case to be filed and reused by the State Liquor Commission in the event a violator appeals.

With the current codes, evidence on appeal must be regathered by the State Liquor Commission when an appeal is filed.

The change in the ordinance is expected to save both time and money in cases where the violator appeals.

Title IV Chapter 7 Section 34 currently states "The Local Liquor Control Commissioner may revoke or suspend any license for the sale of alcoholic liquor at retail for any violation of any provision of this Chapter, or for any violation of any State law pertaining to the sale of alcoholic liquor; and such revocation or suspension may be in addition to any fine or penalty imposed for the violation."

Also at the meeting, council members are expected to vote on a resolution authorizing engineering services for the Waste Water Treatment Plant.

The resolution would allow the city to make an agreement with Beam, Longest & Neff, Engineers to design changes in the plant to improve maintenance and construction costs.

Beam, Longest & Neff is the same engineering firm the city hired to design the Lake Charleston spillway and the newly constructed cofferdam, which was created as a temporary emergency restraint to hold back water until the spillway could be repaired.

Also recommended in the resolution is the replacement of a Dyma Sand Filter with an ABW filter.

The capital cost savings of the changes have been estimated at $350,000 with the ABW filter.

Beam, Longest & Neff is the same firm the city has hired to design the spillway and cofferdam.

The council is also expected to vote on street closings for Charleston's Annual Halloween Parade, to be held at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 30.

Proclamations have been proposed for the meeting to make October 1986 Crime Prevention Month and Cosmetologists Month.

Also, Nov. 1, 1986 is expected to be proclaimed Bob Hope Day. Hope will be performing at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Lantz Gymnasium.

Hope, a native of England, is being sponsored by University Board. He was last on campus Sept. 27, 1975.

Warm days forecasted

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

Students may be able to dig out their shorts and t-shirts a little sooner than expected if tomorrow's weather forecast materializes and temperatures soar into the mid-70s.

Local Weather Observer Dalias Price said Indian Summer is here and with it will be six days or more of warm weather, with temperatures peaking Tuesday in the mid-70s.

Indian Summer is a term used to describe a period of warm and mild weather following the first frosts of autumn.

"This one (Indian Summer) is six days old," Price said. "Usually they last four days to a week or 10 to 14 days."

After tomorrow temperatures are expected to drop some, with another warm spell hitting next week, though not as warm as Tuesday's temperatures.

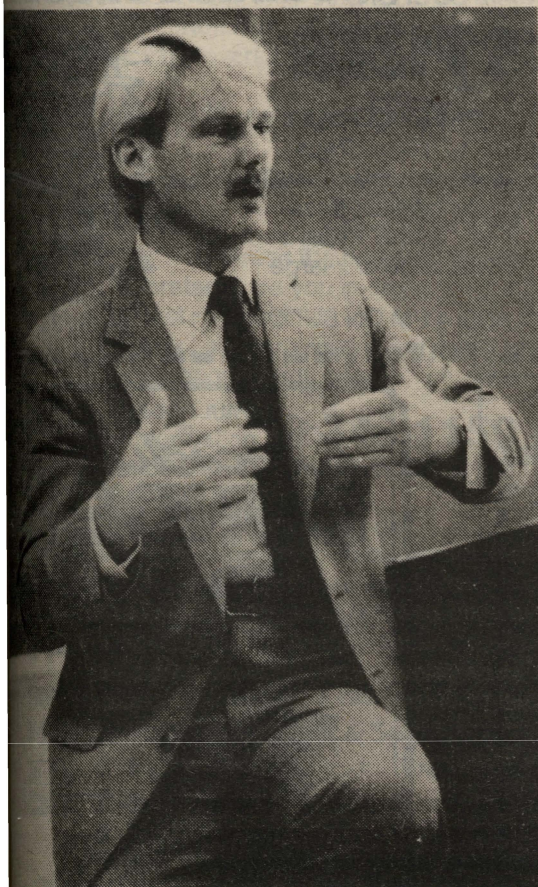

At present temperatures are a little above normal, but are expected to average out in the next few days.

Rain should be held off until at least the weekend Price said.

A series of Indian Summers are forecast for the next few weeks, he said.

"The latter part of November we'll have some true winter weather," Price said.

State Representative Weaver reveals campaign ploys

Mike Weaver

By SEAN O. HOGAN
Staff writer

State Rep. Mike Weaver says his approach to politics is a lot like his approach to selling a product. Some of his strategies are "tacky and trite," he admits, but they work.

Weaver, R-Charleston, is currently trying to sell the voters of the 106th District on his second-term reelection campaign. It's likely to be a pretty easy sale; Weaver is running unopposed.

"It is not cheap to campaign," Weaver told an Eastern political science class Monday.

The same advertising techniques Weaver taught in his marketing class at Eastern have crept up in his State House campaign. Catchy slogans and useful trinkets bearing his name are the heart and soul of his method.

His campaign committee is shelling out about $16,000 to fund this race. That's about half what he spent the first time, he said.

Some candidates for the State House will spend up to $80,000 or $100,000 to win the $32,000-per-year salary a state legislator earns.

"It's just kind of a fluke," he says of his political career. A friend of Weaver's handed out some of his resumes and one landed in the hands of State Rep. Max Coffey. Coffey gave Weaver his first campaign job, helping promote Coffey's successful race to the Illinois State Senate.

Weaver said associating his name with a positive message is a priority in political campaigning. In Weaver's first campaign two years ago, his bumper stickers and matchbook covers proclaimed "Weaver Feaver" and "I like Mike" (borrowing a slightly altered theme for Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaigns).

"It does take away from the issues," Weaver says of elaborate campaigning. However, after all the promotional flash, he tries to keep his campaign issue-oriented.

Because the concerns of an upcoming legislative session are uncertain, he said, his advertising for himself tries to project his attitude and political stance. "It gives the voter an idea of how I might vote."

Now that he is in office, his efforts emphasize keeping in touch with constituents in the four counties he represents, which include Coles, Crawford, Clark, and Edgar.

"It's easier to keep voter attention when there is no opponent," he says. Appearing at township meetings or village meetings helps him keep a high-profile and let the citizens vent frustrations.

"Service to voters is the main thing," he said. "We've had people so angry they pressed my secretary against the wall."

State legislators spend most of their time clearing up mistakes and solving people conflicts, Weaver said. The majority of his work day is helping people collect alimony checks from a spouse who left the state and similar tasks. Only about 25 percent of his work day is spent dealing with legislation.

Teammates get charges dropped

UPPER MARLBORO, MD.—A Prince George's County circuit judge Monday dismissed charges against two men and scheduled trial for a third in connection with cocaine-induced death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias.

Judge James Rea, at the request of state attorney Arthur Marshall dismissed possession of cocaine and obstruction of justice charges against David Gregg and Terry Long, who were with Bias when he died of cocaine intoxication June 19.

But the judge refused to dismiss the case against Brian Lee Tribe, who also was with Bias the morning he collapsed in a college dormitory room. The judge set Nov. 17 as the trial date for Tribble.

Tribble is accused of supplying Bias with the cocaine that killed him and is charged with possession of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine, distribution of cocaine, and possession of PCP.

Coins selling with high demand

WASHINGTON—The first general-circulation U.S. gold coin to be minted in more than a half-century went on sale Monday with Treasury Department officials reporting brisk demand for the American Eagle coins.

By the end of the day, officials at the U.S. Mint said they had processed orders for more than 320,000 ounces of gold with 24 of 25 primary dealers making requests for the new coins.

"The orders are coming in, the interest is definitely there," said Donna Pope, director of the U.S. Mint. "We hope to sell 2.2 million ounces of gold in the first year of the program, but if interest continues at the height that it is right now, that may be a conservative estimate."

The coins will have a face value of $50, $25, $10, and $5, but will sell for far more than that. The price will fluctuate, reflecting the price of gold. The coins will contain gold in amounts ranging from one-tenth of an ounce for the $5 coin up to a full ounce in the $50 gold piece.

Gold was selling in London for $425 an ounce on Monday.

Ozone loss linked to chemicals

WASHINGTON—The annual disappearance of much of the protective ozone layer over the South Pole appears to be a chemical process that isn't caused by changing weather or solar activity, scientists reported from Antarctica on Monday.

However, they said they could not confirm the leading theory of the cause of the October ozone disappearance—that man-made chlorofluorocarbon chemicals used as refrigeration fluids are responsible. Some of their findings, however, are consistent with that theory.

The leader of the expedition, Susan Solomon, a chemist from the Boulder, Colo., lab of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, told a news conference at the National Science Foundation she was more concerned than she had been before the expedition, because science has been "unable to come up with an explanation."

Solomon and 17 other scientists from government and university laboratories were hurriedly dispatched to Antarctica in August after examination of old satellite data confirmed the unexpected finding of a British team that starting in the 1970s, ozone concentrations had fallen sharply each October.

Tribunal court charges prisoner with violating order and security

MAGAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—The leftist Sandinista government brought Eugene Hasenfus before a tribunal court Monday and formally charged him with violating public order and security.

Hasenfus was brought into the small courtroom and moments later written charges were presented by Justice Minister Rodrigo Reyes. The court's president, Reynaldo Monterrey, then read them aloud and they were translated to English by an interpreter.

If convicted, the 45-year-old American faces up to 30 years in prison. He was captured Oct. 6 by government troops after surviving the shooting down of a plane ferrying supplies to Contra rebels.

Hasenfus' wife, Sally, arrived at the courtroom, which was packed with journalists, just before the court session began. She was accompanied by U.S. Consul Donald Tyson.

Hasenfus' Nicaraguan lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, also attended the session. Portions of it were broadcast on the government's Voice of Nicaragua radio.

Earlier, Hasenfus' lawyer criticized the government for denying him access to his client before court proceedings began.

"Hasenfus is in a legally indefensible position because he has been unable to see his attorney or his family before the trial," Sotelo Borgen said Monday.

Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., was captured a day after a C-123 cargo plane was shot down by Sandinista troops. Three others aboard, two Americans and a third still not identified, were killed.

Court refuses overturning order

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court's decision to let stand a "gag order" restricting news coverage of an Illinois murder case indicates the court has become less sensitive to individual rights, an editor who filed the appeal said Monday.

"I think it's clearly a dark day for the media," said Chicago Lawyer editor Rob Warden, who challenged the gag order along with opponents of the state's death penalty.

"I think it's particularly tragic in this case because the authorities have literally railroaded two men into death row and are trying to do it to a third," Warden said.

"I suppose this is just a sign of the times."

The high court, with one dissenting vote, Monday rejected an appeal by the Chicago Lawyer, a monthly newspaper, and the head of the Illinois Coalition Against the Death Penalty.

Only Justice William J. Brennan said he wanted to hear arguments in the case. Four votes are needed to grant such review by the nine-member court.

The dispute stems from the murder of Jeanine Nicarico, 10, of Naperville, Ill., on Feb. 25, 1983. She was abducted from her home, raped, and bludgeoned to death.

Rolando Cruz and Alex Hernandez were convicted in 1984 of her murder and sentenced to death. But the jury was unable to reach a verdict as to a third defendant, Stephen Buckley, who is scheduled to be retried.

DuPage County Judge Robert A. Nolan issued a gag order barring lawyers in the case from discussing key issues and facts in the Buckley case. He also has sealed documents from pretrial hearings held in December 1985 and January 1986.

NATO talks about arms withdrawal

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP)—NATO defense ministers gathered Monday at this golf resort to confront the Americans about a near-deal at the Reykjavik summit that raised concern about a Europe at the mercy of superior Soviet conventional forces.

President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev almost reached agreement to remove medium-range missiles from Europe, a prospect that caused complaints from some NATO generals and more discreet grumbles from politicians worried about Western European security.

U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger arrived by helicopter at this Scottish golfing resort on the eve of the two-day meeting that will debate the strategic future of NATO following the summit at which both sides offered huge nuclear arms cuts.

The basic fear is that withdrawal of U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, whose deployment provoked protests by the anti-nuclear movements, would leave Western Europe in an inferior position to the Communist Warsaw Pact's larger conventional forces.

At a two-day meeting of defense ministers of the 16-nation NATO alliance starting Tuesday, the Europeans were to raise the issue with Weinberger.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany, perhaps the most worried of the Europeans, was in the United States and expected to spell out his concerns to President Reagan.

"The abolition of all nuclear weapons is a fantastic goal," Kohl's top security adviser, Horst Teltschik, said in an article published Monday in the mass-circulation newspaper Bild.

General Motors pulls South African money

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. announced Monday that it was pulling out of South Africa, a move Chairman Roger B. Smith attributed both to financial losses and that nation's slowness to abolish apartheid.

General Motors is the second-largest U.S. employer in South Africa, behind Mobil, according to the Investor Responsibility Research Center in Washington, D.C. In 1985, 39 U.S. companies pulled out of South Africa, followed by 22 so far in 1986.

General Motors South African Ltd., wholly owned subsidiary, has annual sales in the $300 million range and a 2,800-member workforce that is predominantly non-white.

It has assets worth about $140 million and makes cars by GM's German and Japanese partner, Adam Opel, Isuzu and Suzuki, according to GM spokesman George Schreck.

GMSA is expected to be sold to a group headed by the South African management at its Port Elizabeth car and truck assembly plant. The purchase price was not disclosed.

A GM engine plant in South Africa has been idle for several years and is not part of the package being sold, said Ron Theis, another company spokesman.

Smith said GM was "struggling desperately" in South Africa because of the nation's economy. He said the company's sales and market share have dropped substantially in the past year and no quick improvement was foreseen.

"Our aim is to enable the new owners to start from a strong position, to continue to provide job opportunities for the employees and to continue to serve our customers," Smith said in a statement.

Smith said the proposed sale also was a result of the South African government's slowness in eliminating apartheid.

"The ongoing economic recession in that country, along with this lack of progress has made operating in the South African environment increasingly difficult," he said.

The No. 1 U.S. automaker has been under pressure externally and internally to divest its South African interests. In May, in response to a proposal by an investors group, Smith announced that GMSA would no longer sell vehicles to the South African police and military.

However, GMSA had only sold 11 vehicles to either branch in 1986 and those sales were carryovers from 1985, Schreck said.

"They like to avoid resistance by

Foundation investments decreasing

By MIKE BURKE
News editor

Although the EIU Foundation has made no formal efforts to divest, its South African investments were reduced indirectly Monday by about $16,000 with General Motors' announcement that the car company is pulling out of the country.

As of Oct. 8, the foundation had a demand note, a type of loan that will be paid back with interest, with General Motors. The note was valued at about $16,000 at that time, said Daniel Thornburgh, fiscal agent for the foundation.

As of May 30, the foundation had $21,931 invested with the corporation. Thornburgh said Monday that the foundation no longer has any common stock in General Motors, but that Chicago's Harris Bank and Trust, the firm contracted to invest the foundation's endowment, buys and sells stocks daily.

At the end of May, the foundation had $486,834 invested in American corporations with South African subsidiaries, including $34,212 with Ford Motor Co., another United States automaker with South African ties.

Thornburgh said the foundation would receive an updated list of investments from Harris Bank again at the end of this month.

Because the Congress decided to override President Reagan's veto of South African sanctions, economic conditions are growing worse in the country, Thornburgh said. The poor economic conditions may be indirectly be responsible for at least partial divestment of groups like the foundation.

"The sanctions were another step that, in time, will affect the economy there. It will be a long, drawn-out process that I believe, speaking for myself and not for the foundation, will lead to more companies pulling out," he said.

consumers and investors in the United States to their continued involvement in South Africa. The decision was simply helped by the poor market conditions," said Gary Glaser, an auto industry analyst with First Boston Corp.

Cheerleader stands trial on Tuesday

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
City editor

Eastern cheerleader Mike Weber will face Class IV Felony charges of retail theft 9:30 a.m. Tuesday during a jury trial at the Coles County Circuit Courthouse.

Weber pleaded innocent to the charges of retail theft on Sept. 15 and requested a jury trial.

He was first arrested in September 1983 and convicted in October 1983. Because it was his first offense of retail theft, it was a misdemeanor.

Subsequent offenses automatically became Class IV felonies.

Weber charged with a second count of retail theft May 29 for allegedly shoplifting two packages of cheese slices from Wilb Walker's, 505 W. Lincoln Ave.

He was charged with retail theft and released after paying 10 percent of his $3,000 bail bond.

While still out on bond and before coming to trial, Weber was charged with a third count of retail theft Aug. 28, for allegedly transferring the price tag of one bottle of deoderant to another bottle of deoderant at Walmart, located in the West Park Plaza.

If convicted Weber could face one to three years in prison, a fine of $10,000 or probation.

Future clear for cable TV

By STEVE SMITH
Campus editor

Winter and snow may be a month or so away, but for many of Charleston's cable subscribers, it is already snowing.

Many Eastern students living in residence halls complained of "snow" on their television screens the past week.

"I don't like it one bit," freshman nutrition major Corinne Schultz said. She said her television screen has gone blank with "snow" for approximately 15 to 20 minutes. "We left it (television) off," Schultz added.

Liberty Cablevision, the cable television service for Eastern, is rebuilding its entire cable network in the Charleston area.

Ivan Holsapple Liberty Cablevision local manager said, "In the change over (in cable systems) there will be some interruptions."

Holsapple said a target completion date is Nov. 1, but was not sure if that date would be met.

Stevenson Tower Hall secretary Andrea Lester said she was aware that the cable company would be rebuilding the entire system and she warned residents of possible problems.

"We only had three (complaints) this weekend," Lester noted. "I told the residents so they were aware of it (the cable work)."

Andrews Hall secretary Beverly Ogden said several residents had complained about cable problems, but she added that the problems don't happen as often as in the beginning of the school year.

"We are rebuilding the system to bring it up to state of the art," Holsapple said. "(We are doing this) to give the best picture and channel lineup."

Students should only call the cable company if their cable service is out of service over night, Holsapple said. "We make an effort to get the cable working (before night time)," he added.

Freshman pre law major Jim Langdon said it is "pretty annoying" when the cable goes out, but he added, "I think we're lucky to have cable. If (the University) is going to have cable they should keep it on."

Alcohol week gives options besides booze

Alcohol Awareness Week may seem like an absurd idea, but the theories and ideas it is attempting to instill in the minds of college students aren't as crazy as they sound.

Drinking responsibly is an important step toward social maturity all students need to eventually take. Although a few students have taken the step, many still believe the only way to have a good time with friends is through the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Activities slated this week in connection with Alcohol Awareness Week will give students who participate the opportunity to learn about the importance of drinking responsibly and what steps they can take to become responsible drinkers.

Students are being invited to participate a variety of activities as part of Eastern's second annual observation of Alcohol Awareness Week.

The week full of activities designed to heighten student's awareness about the drug continues Tuesday with the second session of "Alcoholism/Co-alcoholism: Your Family, Your Friends?" by Marjorie Hanft-Martone, a Counseling Center counselor. Wednesday features a "Get Absurd Fair" from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Union Walkway that includes a Breathalyzer demonstration by State Police and samples of the Subway's mocktails. Alcohol Awareness Week will be concluded Friday with a "Get Absurd Bowling Challenge."

During the Get Absurd Fair, coupons will be distributed for free soft drinks that can be used at several local bars. Students should take advantage of the coupons to help them realize that just because they visit a bar, they don't have to get stumbling drunk to have a good time with their friends.

In coordination with Alcohol Awareness Week, try to pledge next weekend as "dry." Don't go without your favorite beverage just to do it—do it to prove to yourself and your friends that you don't need beer to have a good time. You never know, you may actually find you have a better time when you're sober.

So, when midterms are over this week, get a little crazy and absurd with your friends and try something different—take advantage of the opportunity this week to learn about responsible drinking and drink responsibly.

Your turn

SDI is not the answer

Editor:

Since the ending of the weekend summit, I've had a chance to talk to several people about its outcome; and as you might have guessed, I received some interesting replies.

Some people don't know what the SDI program is and the implications it had on the summit. President Reagan, speaking to personnel of the Keflavik Naval Air Base, added "... The Soviet Union insisted that we sign an agreement that would deny to me and future presidents for up to 10 years the right to develop a defense against nuclear missiles for the people of the free world." Oh well, if the Soviets are too ignorant to heed a call of that magnitude, is it worth it anyway? Let us consider the fact that the Soviets view 'Star Wars' as an offensive threat. Let us consider the view of most of our scientific community, including over a dozen Nobel Laureates, that SDI is technically impossible, and a joke. As for my opinion, I just can't say; I do know, though, that a camera and a smile can be very misleading.

Tell us Spencer, just what are you trying to say? First of all, I am ashamed that President Reagan is hinging our foreign policy on present-day fantasy. The United States has far more going for it, both domestically and on the international level, than concepts. The blame can't be placed on Reagan alone, however; much of it must rest on the shoulders of his advisers, including statesmanship of the brilliant Caspar Weinberger and George Shultz. Diplomacy is an art in which very few can achieve success in, let alone mediocrity. It is this author's opinion that neither was reached at Reykjavic.

These days, huge amounts of money can be made by corporations doing research for the Pentagon. This is especially true of contractors researching facets of the Strategic Defense Initiative. Hundreds of jobs, ranging from highly skilled laboratory testing to common labor, are hanging on the president's ability to sell this item to the public and congress. Media and history have proved that popularity and suggestive effort have won over large amounts of support for personal beliefs. This is fine for a brand of deodorant or a hamburger, but it cannot and must not be used when the lives of our children and grandchildren are at stake. If SDI receives continued financing, huge contractors with thousands of employees will dictate, if they have not already done so, the foreign policy of the United States. President Eisenhower once warned us of the dangers involved with the military-industrial complex. Do you agree?

For all of the disappointments of this recent and historic summit, there are still burning embers of hope and encouragement. I do believe President Reagan tried, more than ever before, to reach out to the Soviet Union for the assurance of peace in our time. Gorbachev laid proposals before us of such sweeping dimensions which we cannot avoid or ignore for long. More importantly, though, the superpowers are now reaching a point of communication dictating our future. Sound judgement, therefore, is of the utmost importance. The time has now come for open minds, and intelligence, to solve our diplomatic problems and disagreements. Fantastic schemes and ignorance, if caught in time, don't last very long.

EISCAP president

The pain and expense of a carwash

Take a bright, sunny fall day. The kind of day when kids play football in vacant lots. The kind of day made for raking all the leaves in a four-yard radius into a big pile then running and jumping into it so you can rake it up again. The kind of day perfect for wandering around corn husking festivals.

You know, the kind of day that's plain and simply made for washing cars.

Not too long ago I became owner of a white, 1983 Renault Alliance. For convenience sake, let's call her Bridgette.

Bridgette is beautiful.

I hope my old red car, Damien, is rotting somewhere in car Hell. Damien used to be the bane of my existence. I hated that car. Hated it. Hated it. Hated it.

But now, thanks to a wonderfully generous grandmother, I have Bridgette.

Bridgette is beautiful.

Unfortunately, Damien didn't prepare me to take care of a real car. When Damien got dirty, I didn't care. That was his tough luck. Admittedly, he must of either scared dirt away or tiptoed around it, because he hardly ever got dirty.

Not so Bridgette.

Hey, don't get me wrong. I love my car. She's just a slob.

Bridgette, sweet, ladylike thing that she is, can't go around the block without getting herself grimy.

Finally, her messy ways got to me. I decided to clean her up. We went to a carwash ... along with everyone else in Charleston.

I was a little apprehensive. It was my first time.

A.L.
Landers

Damien always got washed with a bucket and hose in the front yard. The few times he got washed.

But, I figured Bridgette deserved the best.

After a small but significant wait, Bridgette and I pulled into the car wash.

Have you ever tried to figure out how to work the hose and foaming brush from the directions? Oh, they seem simple enough. They even have cute little drawings of a happy little car being soaped up, washed and rinsed.

Don't believe it. They're deliberately misleading.

I put in my three quarters, and things went OK for awhile. I tried to wash Bridgette thoroughly with the sprayer, but the bug guts just weren't coming off the way they should. I decided I needed the foaming brush.

Just about the time I reached for it, the sprayer ran out of time.

I rummaged through my pockets and found three more quarters. With the foaming brush in hand, I was really ready to wage a war against grime.

It worked great.

Too bad I didn't have hold of the sprayer when I turned it to rinse. I didn't know it would go flying. I didn't know it would almost decapitate a little old man. By the time he'd told me about when the same thing had happened to him, my water had run out again.

There was no way around it: Bridgette was dripping with foam and needed to be rinsed.

More quarters down the drain. Keeping Bridgette clean was breaking me.

I gotta believe next time Bridgette gets dirty, she's going to get washed in the front yard with a bucket and a hose.

It might not be glamorous, but it's cheap.

The subway once again brought in a large crowd to see a comedian recently. The Subway, once a near failure, has been successful ever since they started bringing in comedians to entertain students at least one night a week.

Image change for Subway brings more people to non-alcoholic pub

By DONELLE PARDEE
Assistant activities editor

The Subway, which once brought in only a handful of students, has recently been pulling in capacity crowds to see the live entertainment offered in a non-alcohol setting.

This change in popularity can be attributed largely to the growing reputation it has acquired. Students are looking for alternatives to Charleston's local bar scene and the Subway now provides the type of atmosphere many of those students are looking for.

The Subway, which was once known as the non-alcoholic or dry pub, is now known as the comedy-rock connection because of the programming and advertising efforts of Subway coordinator Mark Woolbright.

Woolbright said the Subway idea was a result of a combined effort by University President Stanley Rives and Union Area Head Bill Clark.

It was intended to provide a place for students to go and meet people and have a good time without alcohol, said Woolbright.

He said he changed the image of the Subway because the idea of a non-alcoholic pub didn't go over at first. "Even The Daily Eastern News editorial board seemed to be against the idea," he added.

At first the Subway didn't go over big because of the stress on the fact it doesn't serve alcohol, Woolbright said. It was something new to students and it took a while for them to get used to it.

"There were some real rinky dink programs such as theme nights once a week," he added. "Some of the themes were real weak."

He said he believed the pub has done a complete turn around since comedians and bands have been added to the list of attributes.

The Subway almost "flopped" last year, he said. Now it has become a popular place on campus, with the help of Itza Pizza, the food line, the big screen TV and the comedians.

Woolbright said he is pleased with the success the Subway has been having and hopes in the future the entertainment can be expanded.

Concerning performers, Woolbright said he usually chooses them after seeing a showcase at the National Association of Campus Activities conventions each semester.

"When I don't fill up the schedule I call agents for videotapes on up and coming comedians. I'll then sit and watch videotapes until I fill the calendar," he added.

Woolbright said the Subway is funded through student activity fees and he must go before the Apportionment Board and be able to defend every reason listed for needing money.

He added he hopes the next coordinator is able to keep up the work he started and maybe expand the entertainment. Woolbright will leave his post in March as he is graduating in May.

Bank executive seeks personnel director's office

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Preventing problems before they start is more important than maintaining the "status quo," said a candidate for director of personnel and employee relations Monday.

Drayton R. Justus, currently the vice president of human resources at Hollywood (Fla.) Federal Savings and Loan Association, was interviewed by a search committee for the position of director of personnel and employee relations.

"Many managers are concerned mostly with maintaining the day to day operations," Justus said. "The 'status quo' is what rules."

"There has to be a certain amount of that, but on the other hand 'pro-active' management, trying to find out the problems that are developing, will head off some of them before they happen."

Justus said he would not expect many differences between a job at Eastern and his job at the bank.

"Basically people are people and personnel problems are personnel problems whether they happen at a university or a 'Fortune 500' corporation," Justus said. "You have to serve the needs of the people where you are at."

"So many problems come down to poor communication," he said. For example, supervisors could improve communications by not only telling subordinates what is expected of them, but what their own duties and responsibilities are.

"No one is completely satisfied with their salary," Justus said. "But what can be done is to make sure everyone perceives that it is equitable . . . that it is fair."

Justus said he was the affirmative action officer at the University of Toledo where he drafted its first affirmative action document.

Justus received a master's degree in human resource management from Nova University in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and his bachelor's degree in liberal arts from Duke University.

Edward Dungan, director of personnel at Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio, was interviewed for the position Friday. Jerre Fercho, director of personnel at North Dakota State University, will be interviewed Tuesday.

One of the three candidates will be chosen to replace Edward S. Sawtell, who retired as personnel director in 1985. David Dean, search committee chairman and director of administrative services, has served as acting director since Sawtell's retirement.

Dean said the search committee will make a recommendation as soon as possible

Senate speaker explains budget

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

Student Senate Speaker Joe O'Mera explained student government's $17,560 budget to the Apportionment Board Thursday.

Because there are a number of new members on the AB this year, AB Chairman Christy Wolfe said each board the AB allocates student fees to will come before the AB and explain their organization and its budget.

The orientation sessions are an attempt to help AB members arrive at a logical, well-reasoned and informed decision for boards requesting student fees.

Internship positions offered to minorities

By SCOTT LOMBARDO
Staff writer

Minority students interested in policy-making positions within the government may want to attend a Board of Governors Minority Internship Program informational meeting Tuesday.

Anyone pursuing public service careers or policy-making positions in the private sector is encouraged to attend the meetings at 6 and 7 p.m. in the Union addition Casey Room.

The purpose of this program is to get minority groups into policy-making positions within the government by offering internships with pay of $1,000 a month for four months.

To be qualified for the internship, a student need be an upperclassman or graduate student, have a cumulative GPA of 2.75 and be an American citizen.

The program will be offered for spring semester 1987. This is Eastern's third year in the program, which was started by BOG Vice Chancellor Robert Pringle.

The number of the positions vary by the amount of minority students enrolled at Eastern. Eastern has a 5 percent minority enrollment on the average.

Rives to speak with Faculty Senate

By CAROL ROEHM
Staff writer

Eastern President Stanley Rives will address the Faculty Senate Tuesday in what he said will be an "open agenda" discussion.

Rives said in a telephone interview Monday that it was his suggestion to have open monthly meetings with the Faculty Senate in order to provide good communication and an exchange of ideas.

"I haven't put my mind to what I'm going to discuss at tomorrow's meeting yet," Rives said. "It will be an open agenda."

Senate chair Mary Wohlrabe said Rives might discuss budgetary matters. She also said the senate members will address Rives with their own topics for discussion.

Wohlrabe said there was some concern among senate members about Eastern's foreign exchange program. At last week's meeting, the senate agreed to invite several foreign and minority students to the Oct. 28 meeting to discuss changes they would like to see at Eastern.

However, Wohlrabe said Monday the meeting probably will not take place because the foreign students may not wish to speak in public.

"We need some cultural exchange though," Wohlrabe said.

Wohlrabe said the senate also will decide whether to respond to the revisions in the Board of Governors regulations. The deadline for response is November 1.

The senate will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

Less than 100 attend ballet

By DONELLE PARDEE
Assistant activities editor

The North Carolina Dance Theater, managed by former Charleston resident Tom Crail, performed before a "disappointing" crowd in McAfee Gym Sunday night.

Crail said after the performance he was "very disappointed" with the crowd of fewer than 100 people adding that he expected an audience of twice as many.

When Crail visited Eastern in 1984 with the Joffrey II dance company, he said there was a full house in Dvorak Concert Hall. "We had to turn people away," he added.

Crail said he expected more people to attend because the North Carolina Dance Theater is a little more professional than Joffrey II.

The group, comprised of 10 women and seven men, performed four dance pieces: "Allegro Brillante," "Satto," "White Dragon" and "Clowns and Others."

While most ballets usually have a theme or storyline behind them, "Allegro Brillante" does not. Crail said choreographer George Balanchine designed the dance for "the sake of movement."

He said Balanchine never really talked about any of the ballets he choreographed. "He did a lot of

"It could also have to do with love and relationships," Crail said.

The same conception lies behind "White Dragon", choreographed by Elisa Monte, who has a Caribbean background, Crail said. "There is a high release of energy and feelings instead of a true storyline," he added.

GRAND BALLROOM

McMahon silent about contract talks with Doug Flutie

LAKE FOREST (AP)—There's a growing mystery in the Chicago Bears' football camp involving quarterback Jim McMahon and Coach Mike Ditka. McMahon did not play in Sunday's 23-7 loss to the Minnesota Vikings and it's beginning to appear that he will not play next Sunday against the Detroit Lions.

There were also indications that Ditka wants to get quarterback Doug Flutie signed soon. Flutie, the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner, was acquired last week from the Los Angeles Rams.

The Bears announced Monday that they have reached a verbal agreement with Flutie for a 1987-88 contract. Flutie will report to the team Tuesday for an afternoon news conference and the contract signing, said Jerry Vainisi, Bears' general manager.

If Flutie does sign for this year, the Bears could allow him to practice for two weeks, but not play in a game, before trimming the team roster to make room for him, said Flutie's attorney, Bob Woolf.

"It's up to Chicago to decide" if Flutie will play this season," Woolf said. "We don't want to shake up anybody in Chicago."

As for McMahon, Ditka said he didn't know if the injured quarterback could practice this week.

"I haven't written anybody off, but I have to know something.

"He says he's hurt and he can't practice," Ditka said at his Monday news conference. "I have to know, can you play this week? Can you play next week? When's the guy going to play?"

McMahon injured a shoulder in the Sept. 7 opener against Cleveland and missed the next two games which Mike Tomczak started. McMahon came back for two more starts as the Bears went to 6-0, before Steve Fuller was given the starting assignment against Minnesota.

In addition to the shoulder injury,

McMahon has been troubled by a bad back.

Asked when he could play, when he could practice and how he felt, McMahon said, "I don't know the answers to all the questions."

Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time leading rusher, dashed through the locker room, and said, "Don't say a word, Jim."

"I ain't," McMahon said, and with that comment he departed.

There was some thought that the distractions arising from the acquisition of Flutie and the reaction of some players in general and McMahon in particular led to Sunday's loss.

"I don't have all the answers," Ditka said. "I thought we had some good practices last week. What happened realistically is, we underestimated how good they'd play.

Sometimes you grope without finding the answers."

As for Flutie, Ditka said earlier on a radio show that he wanted to sign him this week and that he wanted him in a Bears' uniform this year so that he could learn the system.

Pressed on the statement, Ditka said, "I don't retract anything. We need insurance at that position now. Yes, we could carry four quarterbacks."

"I support Mike (Ditka) in what he wants to do," Vainisi said. "But we want to wait and see what are our options. We'll make a decision when we think what is in the best interest of the club.

"We can carry four quarterbacks until we determine which three are the best or until there is an opening because of an injury," Vainisi said.

Meanwhile, Ditka said that Fuller, who was sacked seven times by the Vikings after Bears' quarterbacks had suffered only six sacks in the previous six games, would start against Detroit Sunday.

Eastern holds eighth spot in Division 1-AA

By DAN VERDUN
Sports editor

Eastern moved up a notch to the No. 8 slot in this week's NCAA Division I-AA football poll.

The Panthers, 6-1 and 37-3 victors over arch-rival Western Illinois Saturday, received 51 points to tie for eighth with Georgia Southern, 5-2 on the season.

"Our defense is really jelling and playing well for us," Eastern coach Al Molde said. "We've got a lot of weapons (offensively) and if you sit in one (pass) coverage, sooner or later it's going to hurt you."

Panther quarterback Sean Payton said, "We're looking better and better week-in and week-out. We're playing as a team."

Meanwhile, Northern Iowa ranked 16th a week ago fell from the Top 20 following a 27-24 loss to Southern Illinois.

The victory enabled Southern to grab the No. 20 spot in the poll. The Salukis, 5-3, garnered six points. Two of Southern's losses were to Top 10 teams, Eastern and fourth-ranked Arkansas State.

Nevada Reno, 7-0, remained the poll's No. 1 team. The Wolf Pack slipped past No. 15 Idaho 17-13 in Big Sky Conference action Saturday.

Morehead State, which won just one game all of last season, is 6-0 and ranked second. The Eagles downed Tennessee Tech 28-20 in Ohio Valley Conference play.

Women harriers place second

Eastern's women's cross country team ran very well in last Saturday's SEMO Open, according to Coach John Craft, as it placed second out of three teams.

Southeast Missouri finished first with 25 points, followed by Eastern with 43 and SIU-Edwardsville with 58.

Eastern's top finisher was senior Janine Jarris, who had a time of 11:24 for the two-mile course.

Kerry Sperry finished in sixth place with 11:28, while Lauren Lynch came in 10th place with a 12:12 clocking.

Other Panther finishers were Tracy Olawumi with a 12:16 finish, and Marcy Novak, who had a time of 12:36, despite being hampered by a thigh injury.

The race was run on a 2.1-mile course as compared to the 3.1 that the women usually run. Craft mentioned that the shorter course was more enjoyable for the team to run.

"The girls ran really well. I was pleased with the result of the race," Craft said. "They really seemed to enjoy running that distance, especially Lauren and Tracy who are middle-distance runners."

Craft also said that Lynch and Olawumi ran a "very uplifting race," and that he was really pleased with their efforts.

With this meet behind them, the team is now looking toward what Craft had earlier said was the pinnacle of their season, the Nov. 1 Gateway Conference meet at Southwest Missouri.

Eastern used the SEMO as a "confidence-builder" according to Craft, who is looking for a strong finish in the conference meet.

Craft believes there is no real clear-cut favorite in the Gateway this season. "The conference race is pretty much up for grabs, there is no team really dominating everyone else," Craft said.

Spikers shake up roster in attempt to improve faltering performances

Eastern's volleyball team will have a chance to rebound from six straight losses when the Panthers travel to The College of St. Francis for a non-conference 7 p.m. match-up Tuesday.

The Saints, an NAIA team, are the only non-Division-I team the 11-14 Panthers play this season. But Eastern coach Betty Ralston is not expecting a pushover, especially considering poor play by the Panthers lately.

For that reason, Ralston plans to experiment with some new line-ups in the wake of disastrous Gateway losses at Bradley and Western over the weekend.

"St. Francis should be a fairly strong team," Ralston said, adding that the Saints draw players from the suburbs and who have league-play experience. Eastern defeated St. Francis in four games at Lantz Gym last season.

"We are just going to experiment and have everybody ready for anything," Ralston said. "We're going to give some people a chance in this match to prove that they can do it."

Senior middle hitter Maura LeFevour thinks Ralston's plan is a good one considering the Panthers' recent play.

"I think it's a good idea," LeFevour said. "The six who have been playing obviously haven't been doing the job. Hopefully we'll find something that will work."

"We need a win to rebuild our confidence," LeFevour said. "And that goes for everybody too."

Ralston also knows that the Panthers need to get back on the winning track before getting back into conference play next weekend.

"We need W's in the column, and we need them fast," Ralston said.

"Basically we have to work on weak-side blocking and strong-side hitting," Ralston said. Especially "weak-side blocking needs to be improved." She noted dominant hitting by Bradley's Betsy Buckhold and Western's Sue Orstrom over the weekend.

"You know who they're going to set to" in a situation like that, Ralston said. "And when you know and can't do something, you're not playing smart and not reacting well."

"We need more all-around consistent play on the team," Ralston added. "People are just getting frustrated. In a lot of cases the blame lays right with the individual and it's human nature not to blame yourself. They (the Panthers) have got to take responsibility themselves."

Mets have their backs to the wall in Game 3

BOSTON (AP)—It's back to plan B for the New York Mets. That's B—as in bats.

The Mets figured their pitching would carry them to a World Series championship over the Boston Red Sox, but it isn't working out that way.

After edging New York 1-0 in the first game, the Red Sox pounded out 18 hits for a 9-3 triumph in Game 2 at Shea Stadium Sunday night, and the Mets suddenly find themselves in a deep hole.

The next three games, if the series goes that far, will be played in quaint, old Fenway Park where 18-hit games are not rare, with Game 3 scheduled Tuesday night.

"We've faced some pretty good pitching," Mets' pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre said Monday. "I think maybe we under-evaluated the Boston pitching staff. They have a fine club."

"I think maybe Bruce Hurst (the winner of Game 1) surprised us most; his command more than anything."

"He didn't make any mistakes. He was up and down. He changes speeds very well."
