Desert Storm general will be parade marshal

By ANN GILL
Staff editor

This year's Homecoming will have a different meaning for Brigadier General Roscoe M. Cougill.

Gen. Cougill, a Charleston native and 1963 graduate of Eastern, has been chosen grand marshal for Eastern's annual Homecoming parade on Saturday as part of "America the Beautiful: EIU Salutes the Red, White, and Blue."

As communications staff officer to General H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Gen. Cougill spent eight months in Saudi Arabia while serving in Operation Desert Storm.

Currently, Gen. Cougill is the director of the Command and Control, Communications, and Computer Systems Directorate at U.S. Central Command at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla.

According to Chris Cougill, son of the general, the directorate is the base for all the communications for satellites that link messages from different sectors of the military such as the U.S. Navy to the marines.

Brig. Gen. Roscoe Cougill

Gen. Cougill's return for Homecoming will also mark his first trip back to Charleston in over five months, Chris said.

"He (the general) was back to see me right after his return home (from Saudi Arabia)," he added.

Faculty union president: A disaster is coming

by STUART TART
Editor in chief

MACOMB — Faculty members representing five universities lined the hallway outside the Heritage Room of the Western Illinois University Student Union Thursday, where the Board of Governors was about to begin its monthly meeting.

Each of the more than 100 faculty members held large white signs bearing slogans that read "Quality education needs quality salaries" and "Keep quality professors." Mitch Vogel, president of the BOG's faculty union, the University Professionals of Illinois, distributed yellow buttons bearing the message, "We've been TOO LONG for TOO LONG" that the protesters placed on shirts, trousers and jackets.

As the BOG meeting opened, the protesters filed into the room, a number nearly filling the available seats among the audience and others standing in the back of the room.

And when BOG Chair Robert Ruiz gave Vogel the opportunity to address the board, the protesters, still displaying the signs, formed a half-circle around the seated board members.

In an address interrupted by frequent applause from the protesting faculty, Vogel told the board that it faced an "impending disaster."

BOG continues Rives' evaluation

The Board of Governors has not officially finished its evaluation of President Stan Rives despite four hours spent in executive session Thursday.

"It's still continuing," BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell said after the closed meeting.

Rives would only say, "No statement," after emerging from the meeting. He has before pointed out that details of personnel evaluations, including his own, should remain private.

Layzell did not rule out the possibility that board members will continue their evaluation of Rives at their next regular meeting in early December or that the board will call a special meeting before then.

"There is a possibility of a special meeting," he said.

However, BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell later told The News, "there are no scheduled meetings at this point between the president and the board before the next board meeting."

"It is important that we (protesters) be here; it is important you listen; and it is important you take some action or a worse action will come our way," Vogel told the board.

"A disaster is coming and is probably already here," he warned.

Eastern faculty, along with the faculty of the four other BOG universities, have been working without a contract since Sept. 2, and negotiations between the faculty union and the board have failed to settle the two groups' differences.

Union members voted last Friday to authorize a strike vote. Vogel has said the only step remaining before a faculty walk-out at Eastern, Western Illinois, Northeastern Illinois, Governors State and Chicago State universities is the completion of mediation between the two sides.

Vogel reiterated Thursday what the union is seeking from its contract negotiations: salary equity with faculty nationwide, maintenance of that equity once it is achieved, reimbursement for Rives and the four other BOG university presidents met with board members Sept. 26 to undergo their annual performance reviews. Rives, who was the third of five presidents to be evaluated, was the only president to have his evaluation continued past that day.

Since then, Rives has met privately with Layzell and BOG Chair Robert Ruiz, although specific topics of their discussions have not been revealed.

Brazell called Rives' evaluation a "difficult situation."

"There are some difficult issues that both the president and the board are trying to work through," she said.

"We sincerely hope for a resolution to this situation soon," Brazell added.

Thursday marks the second official postponement of the completion of Rives' performance review.

increased health care costs and access to an early retirement plan available to other state employees.

"When your employees earn on the average 15 percent less than the average at other campuses, they are subsidizing universities with a 15 percent tax on their income," he said. "... That 15 percent is in reality a tax upon the willingness of your faculty and staff to stay with the Board of Governors. It is the price tag on commitment and loyalty."

• Faculty demonstrators say they would support a strike. Page 3A.

"The board really wants faculty to have (better pay and benefits)," BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell said Thursday. "There's just no money."

During his address, Vogel cited specific "disasters" related to Illinois' declining funding of education during the last 15 years that have led to the current standoff between the faculty union and the board.

"There has been a 20 percent decline in higher education's share of the state budget, yet we are serving more students," he said.

"There has been a 15 percent decrease in actual dollars in faculty paychecks, yet faculty are working harder than ever."

"There has been a 400 percent increase in tuition costs statewide, with its concomitant burden on our students," Vogel continued.

"The pension fund your university employees must depend on for their sustenance after 20 or 30 years of loyal service is now on the verge of financial disaster."

Vogel then cited "more dispiriting" developments of the past year.

Sallie, a 1966 Eastern graduate, will spend the majority of their weekend in Charleston visiting with their son, Chris, a sophomore pre-engineering major.

"We really don't have much planned; he will get in late Friday and is leaving on Sunday," Chris said.

Aside from the parade, Gen. Cougill will attend the Eastern Panther's football game against Illinois State University, Chris said.

"We came back (for Homecoming) a few years ago but we didn't get to spend too much time," Chris said. "We only stayed along enough to watch the band; my dad was a member of the band (when he attended Eastern)."

According to Homecoming Chair Brad Kirk, the Homecoming committee first learned about Cougill and his position in Desert Storm after a call from Cougill's wife, who called to comment on a "spectacular" theme for this year's Homecoming and how it related to Cougill.

After telling the Homecoming committee about the call, they asked Gen. Cougill to serve as grand marshal of the parade, Kirk said.

"Cougill is a hero for Eastern," said Blake Wood, parade co-chair.

Throughout his 27-year military career, Gen. Cougill has served in a number of key positions, including chief of operations for the 27th Communications Squadron at Andersen Air Force Base in Guam, as well as officer-in-charge of two operating locations at DaNang and Beinh Hoa air bases in the Republic of Vietnam.

Cougill has also served in the Directorate of Command, Control and Telecommunications at the Pentagon and in 1983 Cougill became executive officer of the Command, Control and Communications Division, International Military Staff, Headquarters North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in Brussels, Belgium.

Following his retirement, Gen. Cougill and his family plan to reside in a home on Sixth St. in Charleston.

"Our governor has equated a 1.3 percent cut in funding with making higher education a high priority," he said.

"The new chair of the Board of Higher Education (Arthur Quern) has cited an economic downturn and has asked all university boards and presidents to downsize their programs."

Vogel added, "Given this record, can anyone wonder why the faculty and staff are gathered in this room! We can only wonder why they were not here earlier.

"We are pledged in solidarity not to leave the bargaining table without substantial relief," he added.

Ruiz responded publicly to Vogel's address. "You have our commitment to work with you at the bargaining table ... and to come up with an equitable plan for faculty and staff at BGU universities," he said.

Student Body President Martha Price, who attended the meeting with four other student government executive officers to speak to the board concerning President Stan Rives' ongoing evaluation, said student government is concerned about faculty salaries.

"We are in support of our faculty," she said. "I feel the Board of Governors is in support of them."

Student Body Executive Vice President Kristy Koch agreed but pointed out the state's financial woes may not allow the board to meet union demands.

The faculty salary concerns are "not unfounded," she said, "but the financial situation of the state is not good at all."

And Rives said there is no disagreement with Vogel that faculty salaries are not what they should be.

Vogel "presented his case well, and I told Mitch previously there is no disagreement between faculty, administration and the board," Rives said. "The question is how to do that. Where do you get the resources?"

Demonstrators voice willingness to strike

By JILL BAUTER
Administration editor

MACOMB — Faculty demonstrating at the monthly Board of Governors meeting Thursday said they would support a strike if union negotiations with the BOG do not lead to a settlement.

More than 100 faculty members from Western and the four other BOG universities — including Eastern — attended the meeting to wear signs and hold banners in support of Mitch Vogel, president of the University Professionals of Illinois, in his speech urging the BOG to reach closure in contract negotiations.

BOG spokeswoman Michelle Hazell said the demonstration was an indication of the tremendous frustration on both sides of the issue. "We're frustrated, too."

The previous faculty contract expired on Sept. 1 and since then UPI, the union representing the BOG faculty, has been working for salary equity with national norms, better health care benefits and early retirement options.

"Salary equity is a very important issue to us," said English professor Maurine Magliocci, who is vice president of Western's UPI chapter and an organizer of Thursday's demonstration. Magliocci said she has been working at the university for 24 years — her entire adult life — and her salary is 24 percent below the national norm.

"If nobody demonstrates, nothing will change," said Dennis Hart, first-year assistant professor of physical science.

"The pay for associate and full professor is flagrantly criminal," he said, comparing BOG faculty salaries to national norms. Hart said although he likes Western, there is "little incentive to Journalism Professor Delke Kleen said faculty salary issues are important, but he is primarily concerned with "better working conditions." The BOG's proposed extension of the probationary period for new faculty and annual evaluations to enhance professional growth "goes too far," he added.

Like the other faculty members present at the meeting, academic support professional Paula Danowski said, "I'll support (a strike) if it comes. If (the BOG doesn't) do anything, it will come."

A number of students were also demonstrating alongside faculty at Thursday's meeting to show their support of faculty and a settlement.

"We want to get it over with," said Bradley Spear, a student demonstrating with the faculty. "They are good people, and they deserve a break."

The Student Government Association at Western passed a resolution last Tuesday concluding "the professors of WIU receive our appreciation and gratitude for their hard work in educating us. Furthermore, we support them in their contract negotiations."

The resolution also said "the students of WIU directly benefit from a teaching faculty which is not distracted by outside concerns."

Vogel said the faculty's main concern is teaching and research and agreed that the negotiations were "taking time away from that."

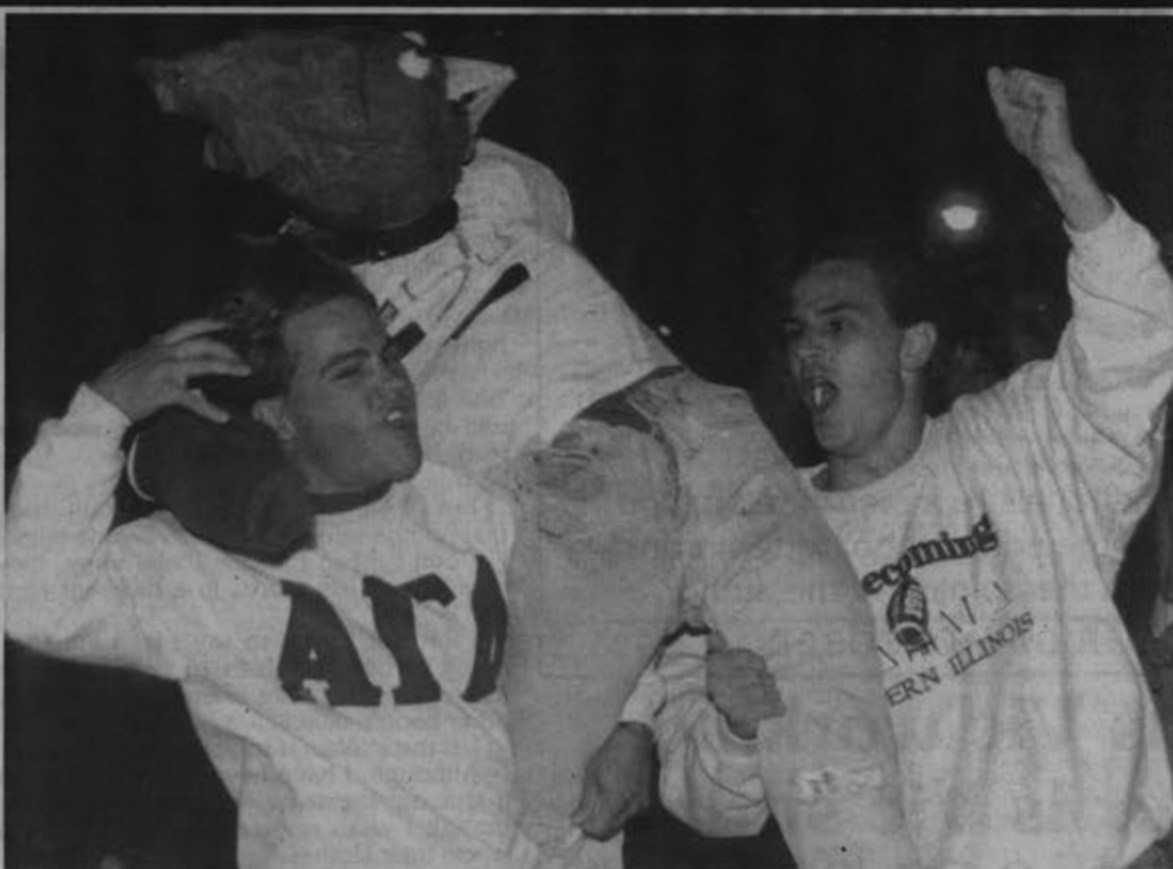

Although Student Senate executive members said they did not know if a similar resolution was in the works for Eastern, Chief of Staff Brett Gerber said, "I think we'd support the faculty. We want negotiations to go well."

Turkish student Hasan Gencturk, who has attended Western since August, said teachers are not valued as much in the United States as in Turkey. Gencturk said the quality of teachers affects our education and our future.

"I think if (the BOG) doesn't pay teachers (better), the best (teachers) are the first to go," he added.

Magliocci said Western's faculty has been demonstrating "on and off for about a month now." However, faculty members have not been missing class to demonstrate.

"Bargaining unit members are not doing anything to jeopardize our work," Kathy Fischer, assistant professor of health studies at Western, added.

Pepsi machine stolen from Ike's

By CATHY MYERS
and CHRIS SEPER
Staff writers

A Pepsi dispenser unit located in the back room at Ike's Little Campus, 409 Lincoln Ave., that is valued at more than $1,500 was reported stolen by Marion Bottling Co., of Marion, Ill.

The report was made to the Charleston Police Department at 1:40 p.m. Monday.

The Pepsi machine was left in the back room for a Marion Bottling employee to pick up. Ike's had contacted the company on Sept. 14 to pick up the machine because they had switched to Coke products, according to police reports.

After John Adams, who is a worker in the maintenance and service department for Marion Bottling, received the paperwork to pick up the machine, he discovered the unit was missing.

Adams questioned the bartender and the manager of Ike's about the missing unit, but neither knew anything about it, police reports said.

The last time the management saw the equipment in the back room was the day that they contacted Marion Bottling to pick it up. The management thought that Marion Bottling had already picked it up and said they do not know where it went, according to the police report.

A car stereo system worth more than $1,930 and a wallet were reported missing from a Jeep parked in a parking lot at 2409 Eighth St. The report of the incident was made at 7:35 a.m. on Oct. 11.

The alleged theft occurred anywhere between 1:45 to 7 a.m. on Oct. 11.

James Rose, 20, of 2403 Eighth St., left the Jeep in the parking lot with the alarm system on. He stated in the police reports that the alarm did not activate during the alleged burglary.

A window was damaged to a car parked at the Immanuel Lutheran Church and Student Center, 902 Cleveland Ave., sometime between 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 6:18 a.m. Sunday.

According to police reports, the rear window of the car was broken with a sandstone block.

Rollie Myers, 45, who is the pastor of the church, noticed the damage Sunday morning, but said he did not remember seeing it damaged at 7:30 p.m. the previous night.

Kevin Carroll, 19, of 664 Carman Hall, had parked the car at 5:30 p.m. the night before.

Eastern organizations help in recycling efforts

Editor's note: This is the final article in a three-part series on the process of recycling throughout the nation, the state, the city and at Eastern.

By MIKE CHAMBERS
and KRISTA STIFF
Staff writers

Pat Krones owes a lot to Eastern: it helped her graduate.

Krones, a graduate student in the psychology department, was a resident assistant her senior year at Eastern when she won the Richard Enoch scholarship from the Eastern Residence Hall Honorary. The scholarship is funded by the hall's recycling efforts on campus.

"It definitely helped me get through school," she said.

The money raised to pay Krones' scholarship, one of two of the NRHH funds in conjunction with Eastern's Housing Department, was raised by Terry Tumbarello and 40 other students who make up the NRHH recycling committee.

The committee sets up recycling stations in the various residence halls and collects aluminum cans.

Doesn't sound like much, huh?

"We were getting around 700 pounds of aluminum per week. It's probably the biggest program on campus," said Tumbarello, the student chair of the recycling committee.

That 700 pounds per week adds up to about $150 each week to 10 days, enough to fund the Enoch and Sean McKinney Scholarship funds — from the interest alone.

But money isn't the driving force behind the recycling effort, Tumbarello said.

"Environmental concerns are big with everybody," Tumbarello said. "This is something we're doing environmentally as well as economically."

Another group recycling out of environmental consciousness is the local Newman Catholic Community.

"We purchase recycled products whenever we can, but we have limited buying power sometimes," said Roy Lanham, director of the non-profit center. "The products are more expensive, but when the demand for them goes up and an effort is made, the price will go down."

The price of recycling has had its impact on the recycling efforts throughout Charleston. Last year it was discovered that Kleenwel Disposal, which has two recycling bins — one in the Wilb Walker parking lot on Lincoln Avenue — was burying some recycled goods local residents collected because they couldn't sell the trash. Following that disclosure, a local resident scrapped his plan for a curbside collection program in the town.

"If there's not a market for recycled products, then the second part (making the recycled goods into actual products) is not going to happen," Lanham said.

"There is a dual benefit (in recycling)," said Mark Shaklee, Eastern's associate director of housing. "The products aren't thrown in a landfill, and they get recycled."

Shaklee has been instrumental in making the NRHH program the success it has been. "(Shaklee) gets us anything we need, down to a hose for (cleaning) the van," Tumbarello said. "(He) is just phenomenal."

But the NRHH isn't the only recycler on campus. Eastern's physical plant has been recycling goods for some time now under the direction of Gary Hanebrink.

The plant has its own compost site on campus made up of shrubs and leaves collected by workers. Also, motor oil is recycled, the food services at Eastern have been selling their excess fats and oils to a Kentucky-based processor to be made into dog food and the physical plant has always sold their scrap steel to the local steel yard in Mattoon.

"When I was growing up, there was always scrap steel yards," Hanebrink said. "They didn't call it recycling then."

"Right now the recycling market is flat," he added. "The consumers are real good about collecting the goods. What we need to work on now is reintroducing the goods back into the market."

Hanebrink and Lanham each said they would like to see consumers get into the habit of buying recycled goods as well as collecting them.

"The largest buying power comes from the local and state governments and individual counties and schools," Lanham said. "They buy everything from toilet paper to textbooks."

One of those consumers Hanebrink would like to see take the initiative is Eastern.

Only two departments at Eastern currently buy recycled goods, according to Elda Hall, Eastern's director of purchasing. The University Print Shop has recently started buying recycled paper and The Daily Eastern News has been using 200,000 pounds of recycled paper and 3,900 pounds of environmentally-safe soy ink a year.

Charleston Mayor Wayne Lanman said that no recycling programs are currently on the city's agenda. "It hasn't been discussed since last year (when the curbside program was dropped)," Lanman said.

Lanham, however said he would like to see more pressure put on local governments to force them into the recycling effort.

"People want to recycle, (but they don't), and without a market you can't blame them," Lanham said.

"It's time for local governments to make a statement for our environment," he added.

Is Vic working or is Vic sitting for $60,000?

Want to get in touch with Vic Robeson? Don't bother calling the Physical Plant or the business office. Call him at home because that is where he's at.

It seems ever since he resigned from his position as associate vice president for facilities and director of the physical plant, Robeson has been earning his $60,000 plus a year, for "working" out of his home.

This all seems odd. The secretary, who is still taking messages for Robeson at the Physical Plant said Robeson is working out of his home.

Editorial Charles Colbert, vice president for business affairs, said Robeson is not working out of his home.

So just where is Vic working?

In September, Robeson announced his resignation from the university under pressure from Colbert. Because of binding contract regulations, Robeson has to stick around until March. He has been reassigned until his effective resignation date as the special assistant to Colbert.

When contacted last week, Robeson was working at home. Why? "Office space is tight at Eastern," was his explanation.

Apparently, it was a surprise to Colbert because he didn't know his "special assistant" was working at home. Colbert thought Robeson had retained his office in the Physical Plant.

In effect, the taxpayers and students paying tuition are handing over more than $30,000 for the "special assistant to Colbert" to sit on his couch at home with no supervision.

Colbert and Robeson claim Robeson's duties are to help with the finishing touches on the Student Recreation Center and Lumpkin College of Business, as well as helping with Greek Court. If he's doing these things, fine.

But, wouldn't it be easier to check up on the finishing phases in the Rec Center if he could walk over and take a look? How can Robeson know if everything is up to code in Lumpkin Hall if he can't look at it?

Eastern, and specifically Colbert, should find office space for Robeson here on campus. Maybe he could take an office in the janitor's closet at the Rec Center. At least then he'd be close enough to keep an eye on the progress these buildings are making.

We need straight answers from the administration and for Robeson to do some work.

Differences make for interesting conversation

I don't know about you, but before I left to go to college mom and dad always told me that my college days would be the best days of my life.

Ya know, they were right.

Ma and Pa also told me that I would meet all kinds of people and make new friends at college.

You guessed it, they were right again.

And a family friend told me "the friends you make in college will be friends for life," and I truly believe that statement to be true.

But in all of the pre-college talk, the one thing that no one told me is that everyone talks differently.

I don't mean that they talk funny, they just pronounce and use words in a different context than I do.

I am not trying to say that I am the "supreme being" when it comes to pronunciation or word usage but something seemed strange about the way other people talked.

Let me explain it to you.

Although, I have never gone caddy-corner, I hear it is about the same as going kitty-corner and even though I wash my clothes, I still have friends that warsh their clothes.

And, since I am always giving people a hard time about warshing I wanted to make sure that I wasn't saying it wrong, so I looked up warshed in the dictionary and you know it wasn't there. So for all of you who thought warshed was a word, according to Webster's you were wrong.

Aside from warshed some others are hard to distinguish from so to help me further understand I am going to give you five the most puzzling to me.

Ann
Gill

Note: please excuse the spelling because I understand the differences you have to spell them the way they sound.

- 1.) barrette or berrette
- 2.) creek or crick
- 3.) hacker or haucker
- 4.) Terre Haute or Terra Hote, Ind.
- 5.) fork or fark.

But even with my misconceptions of the pronunciation of these five, I think that I have been able to understand most of the varieties of pronunciation that I have heard over the past three years.

Yet, there is one pronunciation that really bothers me and that is jolly-et. Joliet is a city approximately 60 miles south of Chicago and it is pronounced jolly-et.

But pronunciation is not the only thing noticed to be different among Eastern students.

People from different parts of the state have different names for the same things.

Like pop and soda.

To be honest (like a journalist should be) I never have had any real feelings as to whether it was pop or soda, but, I always make it a point to call it pop just to make my friend Tracey mad.

However, a friend of mine who always calls it pop refers the word soda as carbonated water. So if you ask him for a soda you better be prepared.

But aside from pop or soda, there are some other words that come to mind.

Like dinner and supper, bag and sack, necktie and chain, and what about remote and flipper?

I don't know the answers and I don't know if I ever will but, one thing I have to say is that this topic has sure made for some interesting conversation.

Well, I think I'll go have a soda-pop while I do my warsh.

Reader: Guilty party should be brought to justice

Dear editor:

All Americans should be proud of Clarence Thomas with his ascension to the Supreme Court. The U.S. Senate can somewhat share in this pride; because it refused to permit the merchants of slime and garbage to have a victory. "Borking" Thomas failed to achieve its purpose.

Yet, there still remains a task to be done to assure that the undignified spectacle we witnessed in hours of unnecessary public hearings should not be repeated. We saw demonstrated the reason for rules of evidence. When the FBI report was leaked in violation of those rules at least two people were embarrassed and experienced personal pain. The hours of hearings shed no new light on the decision to be made. It remained his word against hers. That is all they had at the time the Senators decided to conceal the FBI report from public view.

In conclusion, therefore, the violation of these rules of evidence should be investigated. The guilty parties should be brought to justice. If that means that a U.S. Senator should be expelled from office, then that is what should be done.

Students should show support in case of strike

Dear editor:

I am writing this letter in regards to the current situation between the BOG and its faculty employees. My belief is that the teachers should be given a salary increase which would make their salaries competitive with the national average. I also feel that we, as students, should back the faculty of Eastern regardless of the cost. The cost I am referring to is not only monetary (as in tuition increases) but moral. I propose that if the teachers eventually go on strike, the student body should as well. If the administration hires "scab" teachers, don't go to class. Get in touch with your professors and make a plan (such as following your syllabus and getting notes from your instructor) if there is a strike. I feel that Eastern's faculty has been very supportive of students, now it's our turn to back some of our debt.

Letter policy

The Daily Eastern News encourages letters to the editor concerning any local, state, national or international issue.

Letters should be less than 100 words. For the letter to be printed the name of the author, in addition to the author's address and phone number, must be included. Anonymous letters will not be printed.

If a letter has more than one author, only the names of the three authors will be printed.

Local eateries prepare for Homecoming and influx of Eastern alumni

JOE BRANT

Charleston restaurants and bars will be overflowing with alumni and parents this weekend for Eastern's homecoming festivities.

Nancy Davidson, manager of Reflections restaurant, 506 W. Lincoln Ave., said her establishment is prepared for the weekend's crowds.

"We are really doubling up on bringing in the help," Davidson said. "Sororities and fraternities are already making reservations for their parents."

Bob Kincade, manager of Cat's Cookin' restaurant, which is located a little farther from the campus at 409 Seventh St., said he is confident that the crowds won't pose any problems.

"We'll have extra staff so we can handle anything that comes," Kincade said.

Festivities scheduled for before game

Before the Eastern Panthers take on the Illinois State Redbirds in the 76th Homecoming football game, Eastern students will be treated to a free meal and live music at the tailgate area located behind O'Brien Stadium.

Kenny Wake, kickoff co-chair, said the free food bonanza will start after the parade, which begins at 9:30, and last until 1:30 p.m. or 2 p.m.

"It'll be free food, chips and soda for all EIU students who bring their Eastern IDs," Wake said. "I want to stress they need to bring their IDs."

"We've hired an individual to supply us with barbecue sandwiches, chips and Pepsi products," Wake said.

Since Saturday is also Beef Day, the Illinois Beef Association will also be on hand to supply food and drinks for a low price to the general public and to returning alumni, Wake said.

"Food will given out on a first-come-first-serve basis," Wake said.

Along with all the food, students and alumni will be able to enjoy the rock 'n' roll tunes of a live band, called Bootleg, that is being sponsored by the Eastern Athletic Dept., he added.

"Bootleg was booked through WCBH from Casey," Wake said. "WCBH will also be doing a live remote (from the tailgate area)."

A very little-known fact is that if you are 21 years old you can bring your own alcohol and drink in the fenced in area reserved for the beer tent, Wake said.

Kickoff used to be held on Sundays in the past years, but because of an unsuccessful turn out, it was moved to Saturday this year.

"It wasn't successful on Sunday, so they moved it to Saturday before the game so that more students will come out," Wake said. "It'll be live music, food and fun for everyone."

many early birds that usually start early at the bars for homecoming.

Chris Maddox, a bartender at Marty's, 1666 Fourth St., said he is prepared for the early crowds.

"We'll have more staff here starting at 11:30 a.m. because that's when the crowds usually start coming in," Maddox said.

Stix, located at 1412 Fourth St., "will give the same excellent service that we give every day," said owner Don Yost.

"We're really trying to get involved this year," he added.

Stix is directly participating by having their own king and queen in Saturday's homecoming parade, Yost said.

The bar will also give away carnations to the first 100 women who enter the door between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Yost added.

HSU members plan for Homecoming parade

The Hispanic Student Union made final preparations for Saturday's Homecoming parade at its regular meeting Thursday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

HSU members will have two cars in the parade and will be wearing T-shirts which identify their organization, said Karen Medina, HSU vice president. The HSU has participated in all of the Homecoming activities so far, including Thursday's pep rally outside of Law-Taylor Court.

The HSU also sent Veronica Alizoni and Edson Castillo as queen and king representatives for Homecoming.

The Hispanic Student Union

meets each week at 7 p.m. in the Greenup Room of the University Union.

"I think we did achieve our goal; everybody noticed us," said HSU president Jay Martinez. "The parade will be the climax for the Hispanic Student Union."

The HSU announced it will be making selections for chairs for the new committees for fundraising, Cultural Diversity Week and scholarships, Medina said.

HSU member Ron Carmona was appointed to the president's council, Martinez said. Martinez also said he will be meeting on Oct. 22 with Martha Price, student body president, concerning office space for the Hispanic Student Union.

Greek step show expects large crowd

By EVETTE PEARSON

At 8 p.m. Friday, it "Ain't No Half Steppin'" as the greek-lettered organizations of the National PanHellenic Council compete in their annual step show to be held in McAfee Gymnasium.

During Homecoming every year, the nine historically black greek-lettered organizations indulge in a little entertainment, competition and a return to their roots, and they call it a step show.

"It is an expression of ourselves and a return to our roots," said Shannon Yancy, vice president for Zeta Phi Beta Sorority. "The various steps we use are just like the ones used by our ancestors in Africa."

This event is very popular in the minority community at Eastern and usually brings gasps, hollers, praise and astonishment because of the vast amount of creativity.

"I think that the step shows have gotten better over the years because organizations have taken such pride in their routine and made an attempt to make their performance better," said Cecilia Brinker, assistant director of student activities. "The organizations have much more to offer the audience."

The event is not just heated competition, though.

"This is an opportunity for black organizations to get together competitively and have fun while performing," said Mona Davenport, the primary adviser for Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. "It also allows minorities to come out to have a show and see how various organizations express themselves in their performances."

Organizations have various cane steps, simultaneous hand and foot movements that create a rhythmic beat, varied patterns of sounds in their movements, blindfolds and colorful outfits that make up their 15-minute performances.

Each performing organization will be judged on creativity, sportsmanship and originality and one sorority and fraternity will be the victors at the end of the evening.

"The competition is fierce and sometimes downright dirty, but nearly 400 spectators love it," said Susan Thomas, member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

But, all in all, "this event is something you really have to come and see to understand it," Davenport said.

Tickets brought in advance are $5, while they will be $7 at the door and $3 for greeks. Tickets for the event will be on sale from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday in the box office of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"We urge people to purchase their tickets in advance to avoid the large influx of people and also, we urge them to arrive at 7 p.m. rather than 8 p.m. for better seating," Brinker said.

Alcohol alternatives offered

By CASSIE SIMPSON
Activities editor

Activities for Eastern's Alcohol Awareness Week get underway Sunday with the third annual Walk-A-Thon/Jog-A-Thon, entitled "One For the Road."

According to Lynette Drake, director of orientation and coordinator of Alcohol and Drugs Information, participants in the three-mile walk or jog will be leaving from the Booth Library quad at noon.

"The theme of this year's Alcohol Awareness Week is RAD, which stands for Re-newing Attitudes and De-cision-making," Drake said.

Drake said Eastern's Alcohol Awareness Week is in conjunction with the National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, and is basically a national effort sponsored by numerous colleges and universities.

"It's to heighten awareness of the use and misuse of alcoholic substances on campus," Drake said.

Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students, is one of the many groups sponsoring Alcohol Awareness Week.

"BACCHUS is a nationally recognized chapter that has been highly recognized for their efforts on responsible usage of alcohol in conjunction with a number of other organizations," Drake said.

"It (misuse of alcohol) is not just a BACCHUS issue, it's a campus issue," Drake added.

Alcohol Awareness Week will include several different workshops, displays and activities all across campus that will be aimed at prevention and responsibility of alcohol use, Drake said.

"The whole focus of the week is to bring awareness to students and faculty and to provide alternative programs to drinking," she added. "Responsible usage is smart."

Drake said the slogans on the posters that are posted throughout campus promoting Alcohol Awareness Week give two very good messages. One slogan is "You don't have to get drunk to have a good time," and the other is "You don't have to get a hangover from having a good time."

A few of the scheduled weekly activities include a flower memorial, a pop tent, a DUI graveyard, a mocktail contest, several lectures and information tables.

District music auditions to be held

By STEVE LYSAKER

Area junior and senior high school music students will participate Sunday in the Illinois State Music Teacher Association district auditions at Eastern.

Those performing, which include pianists, violinists and flutists, will be competing to advance to the state level, where they will compete against college students, according to Karen Sanders of Eastern's music department.

"I think there will be some excellent, well prepared performances," Sanders said of the auditions, which are being held at Eastern for the fourth consecutive year.

The auditions will be held from approximately 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Leo J. Dvorak Concert Hall. It will be open to the public and free of charge.

Sanders said the judges for the district competition will be from outside the immediate area.

RHA plans fund drive to benefit United Way

By SUSAN KIEL
Staff writer

The Residence Hall Association Thursday decided to plant a tree in front of Taylor Hall to symbolize the group.

"The tree will be a symbol of the group, and a gift for all students to enjoy," said RHA president Ryan Zufall.

RHA also decided at its meeting to support BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) and Alcohol Awareness Week by taking part in making alternative drinks, mocktails, on Wednesday.

"I think that it's really important that we help them out," Zufall said. "BACCHUS is a great organization, and they deserve our help."

In other RHA business, the association has decided to work towards raising money for United Way this weekend by collecting donations at the homecoming football game.

"We will be walking around collecting money before the game from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m.," Zufall said. "We will be wearing special United Way t-shirts to identify ourselves. The first ten volunteers will receive a free t-shirt. "I'm really glad that RHA will be working with National Residence Hall Honorary to help the United Way because it's a great organization that really needs our help," Zufall added.

"Last year was an exceptional year," said RHA Adviser Patrick Bradley of the donations made at the homecoming game. "We raised close to $400 and they needed every penny of it because last year they did not reach their goal. "If we could make that much this year, we will be doing well." Bradley added.

According to a university press release, Eastern's United Way goal is $25,000, which is approximately 25 percent of the Eastern Coles County United Way's goal of $100,000.

"We hope to generate participation from everyone," Zufall said. "We have a good group of representatives this year who are committed to helping others."

According to Zufall, this is the second year RHA has actively participated in the United Way fund drive.

Dvorak set for Mozart tribute

By STEVE LYSAKER
Staff writer

The "Marriage of Figaro Overture" by Mozart will be among the classical pieces performed at a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Dvorak Concert Hall.

The Eastern Illinois University/Community Orchestra will round out this year's homecoming activities with the concert. The Mozart piece will open the concert as part of a continuing commemoration to the composer's death in 1791, said Donald Tracy, who will conduct the concert.

The program will also include such well-known classical pieces as the "Deux Muses Roumaines" by Bela Bartok and the "Symphony No. 5" by Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky, Tracy added.

"I think the orchestra is very well prepared to play, and it should be an exciting performance," he said.

Admission for the concert will be $3 for adults and $2 for students, with proceeds benefiting the orchestra.

Tickets are available from the orchestra members and will also be available at the box on Sunday.

Ukraine will not sign treaty with Kremlin

MOSCOW (AP) — The Ukraine said Thursday it will not sign an agreement to form an economic union with other Soviet republics, producing a major crack in the agreement on the eve of its signing.

After weeks of intense negotiations, 10 republics had been expected to sign the document in a ceremony at the Kremlin on Friday. The Ukraine, an industrial and agricultural powerhouse of 53 million people, was considered a key participant.

Since defeating a hard-line Communist coup attempt in August, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev has put most other government business on a back burner to concentrate on winning the agreement to preserve strong economic ties between the republics.

Without the economic union, the country is threatened with breakup into hostile units with high tariff barriers and export restrictions. Already, some republics have forbidden the shipment of scarce food and consumer products outside their territory.

The pact has not been published in advance, but its basic outline is known. It would create a "single economic zone" encompassing most of the former Soviet Union — minus the three newly-independent Baltic states, Georgia, Moldavia — and now, the Ukraine.

The zone was to have a single monetary and banking system, coordinated customs rules and tariffs, and cooperation in fields such as energy, transportation and communications.

However, the single monetary system was placed in serious doubt this week by Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin, who said his huge republic plans to introduce its own currency.

Yeltsin did not set a date for printing the Russian Federation's banknotes, enlivened by stripes of white, blue and red, the colors of the prerevolutionary Russian flag.

The republic's information agency, citing unidentified sources, said the Russian currency probably would be introduced next year.

Its aim would be to stop the Soviet State Bank's inflationary practice of printing piles of cash to cover a soaring budget deficit, now approaching 200 billion rubles, which is 15 percent of the gross national product.

Despite bickering within his administration, Yeltsin has agreed to sign the economic agreement. But he demanded and received last-minute changes in the document, whose principal author was economist Grigory Yavlinsky, a young and energetic reformer who has pushed for faster moves toward a free market.

One for the ages

1986 Homecoming game one of the best in history

DON O'BRIEN
Associate sports editor

At good sports movies run through the same basic script. It is the underdog team overcoming unbelievable odds to become away winners of the big game with a spectacular finish.

In the movie Hoosiers it was Jimmy Chitwood nailing a 15-foot jump shot to win the Indiana High School Basketball Championship and in The Bad News Bears it was Roy Hobbs belting a home run in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the New York Yankees a World Series championship.

Saturday's Homecoming matchup with Illinois State will mark the fifth anniversary of what is arguably the best finish to a game in Eastern's history.

Panther place-kicker Rich Ehmke connected on a school record 58-yard field goal as time expired to give Eastern a 31-30 comeback victory over the Northern Iowa purple Panthers in a game that was scoreless at halftime and saw 45 points scored in the final quarter.

"It is one of those things that you look back on with a big smile on your face," said Ehmke, who was a senior at the time, of his kick. "The distance wasn't that big of a deal because I hit a pair of 65-yard field goals in pre-game warmups." Everything seemed to be going in slow motion when he hit the kick, I didn't even hear the noise," said Al Molde, who was Eastern's head coach at the time. "The reality of the ball flying through (the uprights) didn't hit me for a few moments afterwards."

Not only did Ehmke's kick give the Panthers, who were ranked 11th in the nation at the time, an upset victory over eighth-ranked Northern Iowa, but it helped steer them towards a 5-1 Gateway Conference Championship, an 11-2 overall finish, and an appearance in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs, where they reached the quarterfinal round.

Panther field goal kicker Rich Ehmke (6) watches his school record 58-yard field goal fly through the uprights during Eastern's 31-30 upset victory over Northern Iowa in the 1986 Homecoming game at O'Brien Stadium.

Adding to the drama of the game was a furious comeback by Northern Iowa in the fourth quarter. The purple Panthers came back from a 28-16 deficit with less than three minutes left in the game to take a 30-28 lead with 35 seconds left on the game clock.

Northern Iowa quarterback Mike Smith hooked up with split end Scott Francke on touchdown passes of 22 and 1 yards, the 1-yarder followed a successful on-side kick by the purple Panthers, for what appeared to be the game-winning scores.

After a short kickoff by Northern Iowa, Eastern was able to maneuver the ball into long field goal range for Ehmke's heroics. The consensus opinion of those involved in that historical game agree that it was the best game they had ever taken part in.

"It was the best because of the outcome," said Ehmke, who tried out with the Bears after graduating from Eastern in 1988, but was beaten out by the Bears' current kicker, Kevin Butler.

"It was such an emotional game," said Sean Payton,

Eastern's all-time leader in passing yardage, who was a senior quarterback at the time. "It was the most exciting game I've ever been involved in and anyone else who was at the game or played in it would say the same thing."

"I would say of all the games that it sticks out as being one of the top five," said Eastern's Sports Information Director Dave Kidwell. "For pure excitement it's maybe the best game I have ever seen. The magnitude of the 1978 championship game rivals that of the 1986 Homecoming."

"That ranks up in the top two or three games I've ever coached," said Molde, who was chosen as the Gateway Coach of the Year that season. "It may be the best game as far as the finish. As far as the ending goes you couldn't have written a better one."

"It has to rank right up there as one of the best games I've ever officiated," Gateway Conference official Ray Norris said. "I've even worked the Division I-AA championship game and this game ranked up above that. After the game you felt the crew did a very good job and you felt good about the working it."

Not everyone in attendance was happy about the outcome though. Northern Iowa head coach Darrell Mudra, who made his mark as Eastern's head coach prior to his work with the purple Panthers, wasn't pleased with what went down on that October afternoon.

"It (the game) ranks up there as the number one disaster because we lost the game," said the man who was dubbed as 'Dr. Victory' in his five-year reign at Eastern that saw him compile a 47-15

Panthers host Illinois State in 76th Homecoming

J.J. GERBER
Sports editor

After three straight one-point losses, Eastern head coach Bob Spoo is looking for his Panther offense to get back on track.

An opportunity will come at 2 p.m. Saturday when the Panthers host Gateway Conference foe Illinois State in Eastern's 76th Homecoming game. Both teams are trying to keep their league championship hopes alive by dropping low-scoring conference games last week.

Illinois State, 4-2 overall and 1-2 in the Gateway, lost to Northern Iowa, which is ranked fifth in the nation. The Panthers, 2-4 and 0-2, are coming off a 16-14 loss at Indiana State. It was the second week in a row that Eastern's offense had been held to a pair of touchdowns. Last week Eastern was beaten 16-15 on a last-second field goal by Western Illinois. The Leathernecks are currently in the Gateway standings at 2-0.

Spoo, who has amassed a 26-26 mark in his five seasons with the Panthers, said it's time for the offense to wake up and break out of its slump.

"They have the potential to do that," said Spoo. "They're the most experienced group out there if you look at the two sides of the ball. They need to play up to their potential and they haven't done that the past few weeks. The offense has to be more productive.

There's no question about that."

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Thorne, who is sixth in the nation in passing efficiency while connecting on 67 percent of his passes, leads the attack, which is averaging 27 points per contest. The Wheaton Central product has thrown 13 TD passes, including at least one in each of Eastern's six games.

The Redbird defense, ranked fourth in the nation in both scoring defense at 10.2 ppg and total defense (268 yards per game), will also have its hands full with senior tailback Jamie Jones. The 5-7, 160-pounder is No. 5 nationally in all-purpose running (168.2), and 10th in rushing at 116 yards per game.

Senior linebacker Wilbert Brown anchors the stingy Redbird defense. The 5-foot-11, 215-pounder has captured the Gateway Defensive Player of the Week honor twice this season and is 23 tackles away from breaking the league record. He was a second-team all-conference selection during his sophomore and juniors seasons.

"They've got a lot of fifth-year guys and they're experienced," said Spoo. "They're very mobile and disciplined and they don't get fooled. It's not surprising that they're good defensively."

Illinois State head coach Jim Heacock, in his fourth season, said his improved squad is trying to keep its early season confidence.

"Our team is probably in about the same place as Bob's right now," said Heacock, who has compiled a 15-24 record. "We're disappointed in the two early league losses. We're very similar in those instances. We've got to focus our team and re-establish some goals. Some of our early season goals have gone right out the window. We're somewhat disappointed and frustrated with our performance."

As far as the race for the league crown is concerned, both coaches said they'll need help to achieve that goal.

"The league race is out of our control," said Heacock. "We'll try to do as well as we can with our three remaining league games; but it's out of our hands. Right now we're struggling for self-satisfaction and respectability."

"We can't afford any other setbacks," Spoo said. "There is that ray of hope for everyone, but we've exhausted our limit if my 4-2 (league championship) prediction is correct. We'll have to make our own breaks and opportunities."

The Panthers are hoping a large Homecoming crowd can propel them to a victory. The last time Eastern lost four in a row was in 1977. Spoo said the crowd could work in both teams' favor.

"It depends on how Coach Heacock prepares his team," he said. "There are different coaches that play up playing away. They want to get closer and quiet down the crowd. I don't know how he's preparing. We'll have to wait and see. I don't think they'll necessarily be intimidated if we have a good crowd."

Eastern Homecoming history

When Eastern hosts Illinois State at 2 p.m. Saturday for its 76th Homecoming, it will mark the 20th time in Panther history that the Redbirds have served as the Homecoming opponent — the most of any school.

The Panthers are also seeking to even their Homecoming record. As it stands now Eastern is 33-34-7 overall and holds an 8-7-4 advantage over the Redbirds. The four ties have all been scoreless.

The two schools first met in 1917 when Eastern won a 13-7 decision. They met again in 1920, but Illinois State avenged its loss with a 20-7 victory. The first of the four scoreless deadlocks came in 1922, the second in 1937, the third two years later and the fourth in 1966.

Eastern has won the last four Homecoming meetings against Illinois State since 1974. Included in that span is a 31-14 victory in 1980 in front of 10,500 fans at O'Brien Stadium. That game produced the 10th largest crowd in O'Brien Stadium history. The last time the schools met was in 1985, when the Panthers claimed a 21-14 win.

Eastern's first Homecoming game took place in 1915 as the Panthers pasted Shurtleff College 52-6. There has been a Homecoming game in Charleston every year except for 1918 and 1943. The Panthers have won 11 of their last 13 Homecoming tests, beginning with the 1978 victory over the Redbirds.

The '78 squad went on to a record and NCAA Division National Championship under tutelage of first-year head coach Darrell Mudra.

The most memorable Homecoming game may yet come in 1986 when Eastern lost to Northern Iowa 31-30 on K. Emhke's school record 50-yard field goal as time ran out. The game ranks as the seventh most attended in O'Brien history with 11,052 fans turned out.

and brought the Panthers a Division II championship in 1978. "It was a tragedy that we lost so well to win and let the game slip away." "I have a friend that played on Northern Iowa the time," said Pat Carroll, who was the Panthers' backup quarterback and holder for Ehmke's kick. "He said that he had never seen a game so hot after a game."

Mudra said that some confusion on the purple sideline contributed to Eastern being able to make its last-minute comeback.

"We had bedlam when we scored (the last touchdown) and probably should have gone for it," he said. "Because we couldn't reach the end zone we had to kick the extra point."

When the purple Panthers converted the two-point conversion it would have given them a four-point cushion and forced Eastern to go for a touchdown on its last possession, something that went through the minds of some of the Panther players anyway.

"I remember a bunch of people were surprised when Coach Molde sent the kicking team in," said Carroll, who now handles the quarterback coaching duties for the Gateway's Indiana State. "Somebody wasn't sure if we could kick that long of a field."

"I wasn't even thinking about a field goal," said Carroll. "We were thinking about tossing a pass into the end zone."

"I just felt like the chance to kick was better than to throw the long pass," said Molde, who now has the head coaching duties at Western Michigan. "Ehmke had a strong leg and Northern would have been prepared to defend the long pass."

The second mistake by the purple Panthers was to let kicker Mike Angell do on the opening kickoff after the go-ahead touchdown.

"We told the kicker to kick it deep and he kicked it short," said Mudra, who is now retired and living in Florida. "They also got a penalty which we thought was a bad call that put them in position to kick the miracle."

While the game will be remembered for the endless first half, the second half scoring explosion and Ehmke's miracle kick, the post-game celebration also ranks with all the other excitement of the game.

The kick also touched off a mob-like scene after the game when many of the 11,052 fans, which ranks as the seventh biggest crowd to attend a home game in school history, poured onto the field to pile on top the team and pull down the goal post that Ehmke lifted his field goal over.

"The only thing I remember after we knew the kick was good was Pat (Carroll) bodyslamming me and I became immobilized," said Ehmke, who now lives in California and works as a manager for Enterprise Rent-A-Car.

"The funny thing was the team getting together the next Sunday and Monday and watching the game tapes," Carroll said. "After everyone was jumping on top of the pile you saw Coach Molde trying to jump on top and he almost missed."

"I was as excited as they were," said Molde with a laugh. "I went to jump on top of their pile, but I just couldn't get up there with them."

Norris said that he and the rest of his officiating crew was lucky enough to get out of the way of the swarm of people who raced onto the field.

"We were on the dugout side of the stadium and when the game was over everyone came out onto the field," said Norris, who still officiates for the Gateway. "But the people didn't bother with us."

"Everyone just went bonkers," said Kidwell, who has been the Panthers' SID since 1972. "Everyone rushed the field and the center of the field was pretty much full."

Two subplots developed after the crowd had left the stadium. Both Ehmke's favorite kicking tee and the padding for the torn goal post were missing and asked to be returned - no questions asked - by the Eastern football team.

Both items were found and returned a few days later in the vicinity of O'Brien Stadium, but it turned out that Ehmke's favorite tee wasn't really missing at all.

"It turned out that his favorite kicking tee was embedded into the ground," Carroll said, due to all the people that rushed the field and the pileup on Ehmke.

While Saturday's contest between the Panthers and the Redbirds of Illinois State is a must-win for both teams if either hope to climb back into contention for the Gateway title, it probably won't match up to the exciting game for the ages of five years ago.

Mudra put it best: "It was one game you could never forget."

As time goes on the lore and legend of that game should continue to grow and the Homecoming game of 1986 could be ranked as the greatest game of all-time.

Booters hit the road for a pair of Mid-Continent tests

By KEN RYAN
Staff writer

Sometimes all that it takes is one victory to turn things around.

The Eastern soccer team, coming off of a 1-0 overtime victory over Drake University, is hoping that's the case when it hits the road this weekend for a 7:30 p.m. Friday game against Wisconsin-Green Bay and a 1 p.m. contest with Northern Illinois on Sunday. Both contests are against Mid-Continent Conference foes.

The Panthers' opponents for this weekend are both having two different seasons. The Fighting Phoenix of Wisconsin-Green Bay are off to a 4-12 overall start and have a 1-4 record in the Mid-Continent Conference, while the Huskies of Northern Illinois have jumped out to a 7-3-1 overall mark and a 3-1-1 Mid-Con record.

Green Bay head coach Aldo Santaga, in his 14th season as coach, said that a big reason for the Phoenix' problems has been injuries.

"I don't have any complaints about the team," Santaga said. "We are a very young team and we have had to deal with many illnesses. We played one game against Cleveland State and we had seven freshmen and two sophomores in the starting lineup."

One positive thing that Green Bay has going for it when it hosts Eastern is the return of sophomore midfielder Dan Govin, who has been sidelined with an injury.

Govin was the team's second leading scorer last season and will look to provide an offensive boost to the squad.

"Govin has been hurt for over half of the season," Santaga said. "So he will definitely help us when he returns."

The leading scorer on the Green Bay squad is sophomore Beyete Smith, who has scored nine goals and has assisted on one other, for 19 points on the season.

Eastern head coach Cizo Mosnia said that he is fearful of the Phoenix team that is ready for a big win.

"We don't want to be overconfident," Mosnia said. "They are like a sleeping dog. You don't want to wake them up because they can bite. I know the coach (Santaga) and he does a fine job with his players. They just have had some injuries at the beginning of the year and that has hurt them."

Northern Illinois had been on a roll, winning six of its previous seven games before running into Akron, which is on top of the Mid-Con with a 4-0 record. The Zips picked up a 2-1 overtime victory over the Huskies.

Mosnia said he hopes the loss might hurt the confidence of the Northern team, but he is not counting on it.

"I'm hoping for our sake that the loss to Akron might affect them," Mosnia said. "But Akron is a good team and I think that Northern will bounce back."

The Huskies are led in scoring by freshman Andy Lane and last season's leading scorer John Lechner.

Senior goaltender Markus Roy, coach Willie Roy's son, is fifth in the Midwest in goaltending. He

Bullock's success continues to grow

By KEN RYAN
Staff writer

Last season Jeff Bullock was the most valuable player on Eastern's 5-11-2 soccer team. This year the senior fullback has been just as valuable and the Panthers are 7-4.

Bullock has appeared in eight of the 11 Panther games this season and has scored three points on one goal and an assist and has played solid defensively for the Eastern squad.

The Belleville East High graduate has been playing soccer all of his life and he said that he is enjoying his days at Eastern.

"I started playing soccer when I was five and I've played every day since," Bullock said.

While at Belleville, Bullock played at the forward position his freshman year and got switched to the sweeper position his after his sophomore year.

As captain of the team, Bullock said his team at Belleville enjoyed some success.

"We were a pretty good team," Bullock said. "Our two has a goals against average of 0.83 and has come up with 39 saves. Roy also has three shut outs on the year.

Eastern will be looking to add to its one-game winning streak and Mosnia said he believes that the team is ready to go.

"Practices have been going real well," Mosnia said. "I think the top games were when we beat Granite City twice, and that's like the best team that we play. So we always had a winning record."

The 21-year-old Bullock said that he heard a lot of good things about Eastern and that was the reason he decided to attend the Mid-Continent Conference institution.

team is up for this weekend's games.

Senior fullback Jeff Bullock, who has been a valuable defensive player for the Panthers all season, said the team is ready to get on another roll.

"We have a new system now," Bullock said. "We have five halfbacks and just three fullbacks, so "I knew Rob Mann, who helped out at our high school and he said that he went to Eastern," Bullock said. "So I gave it a thought. I just heard about the school, I heard that it was a good time and that it was a good school."

Bullock had second thoughts about coming to Eastern, but he learned the soccer team had a winning tradition, but he said that he was glad that that he did come.

"The coach sent me information," Bullock said. "I was kind of intimidated at first. After I found out that they were good, I wasn't sure if I would play or not. But my freshman year was really fun and every year has been great here. I wouldn't want it any other way."

Eastern head coach Cizo Mosnia said he has been pleased with Bullock's performance this season.

"Jeff is doing well," Mosnia said. "He is an aggressive player. He doesn't say much, but when he does, it is usually something constructive and I'm glad to have him on the team."

we have more midfield players. I think that we are finally confident."

"The practices have been going real good and everybody has been having fun, so hopefully the Wisconsin game goes well. We really want to beat Northern Illinois. We want to win two games and hopefully regain our confidence."

Bersig excels in first season

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

When college coaches recruit high school athletes, there's always some uncertainty about how well their signees will perform at the college level.

Freshman Amy Bersig has laid to rest any uncertainty in Eastern women's cross country coach John Craft's mind about his choosing her to be a member of his program.

Bersig has been one of the Lady Panthers' top performers in cross country this season. She started off the season as the fourth runner on the team, moved up to third and recently at the Indiana Invitational was the second runner behind senior Laurie Mizener.

All of Craft's athletes have improved throughout the season, but Bersig's improvement really stands out as she cut her 5,000-meter time down from 20:01 to 18:34. She ran her best time in a fifth-place effort at the Eastern Invitational, where the Lady Panther's took the overall title in a field of eight.

Bersig, a native of Gifford, graduated from Rantoul High School where she collected numerous honors as a track and cross country athlete. Her senior year she finished 16th in the Class AA state cross country meet and qualified for the state meet in both 1,600 and 3,200-meter runs in track.

Bersig was highly recommended to Craft by her athletic director at Rantoul, Roger Cuinlan, who was an All-American distance runner at Eastern in the late 1960's.

"I couldn't have gotten a better recruit," said Craft. "I talked with her high school A.D. at first, and he told me a lot about her. I was real happy when she decided to come to Eastern."

Despite the improvement that she's made already, Craft believes that she can excel even more.

"She is still learning how to run the 5,000," Craft said. "The 5,000 is a three-mile race plus 188 yards, and her final 188 yards is faster than anybody else's at the end of the race. That tells me that she has a lot more energy left at the end. We're trying to get her to use some of that energy in the middle of the race by running a faster pace. I think if she can do that, her times will drop even more."

Bersig helps form a strong nucleus in the women's cross country team, which includes Mizener, Brooke Roberts, Ti Jaye Rhudy and Aislinn Wiley. Bersig has hopes of being selected to the All-Gateway Conference team during the league championships, which will be held at Eastern this year. She attributes the team's success this year to the strong camaraderie among the runners.

"We're all friends, I think that helps a lot," said Bersig. "We run more as a team than we do individually. I chose Eastern because my athletic director told me a lot about it, plus it was close to home."

Harriers stepping up at Illinois

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

In all of its races this season the men's cross country team has never run more than 8,000 meters. This weekend the harriers will try their hand at 10,000 meters in the Illinois Invitational, which begins at 10 a.m.

Illinois will be the Panthers' first competition this season, but the first run over 10,000 meters (6.21 miles). Last year the district meet was the only 10,000 in the team's schedule.

With this year's district meet (Nov. 16) set to be run at Indiana, the thought of running a 10,000 course on its difficult terrain may not be very appetizing for the runners.

But the Illinois course is a far cry from the hilly course at Indiana. With its race track-like layout assistant coach John McInerney expects the Illinois race to be fast.

"Unless it's real windy I think it will be a fast race," said McInerney. "Illinois has a real flat and fast course."

The fact that we're going two kilometers (1.25 miles) farther than we usually run will only make a slight difference at Illinois."

McInerney estimates that his lead group of Scott Touchette, Eric Baron and John Eggenberger could run between 31:00 and 31:30 for the new distance. His guess is feasible considering that all three can average between 3:05 and 3:15 per kilometer in an 8,000 meter race.

Adding 6:15 to Touchette's best of 25:13 would give him a time of 31:28 for 10,000 meters, without adding in any improvement in his running condition.

Some teams expected to compete include Illinois, Wyoming, Iowa, Western Illinois and Ohio State.

Eastern's second pack of Kenric Bond, Eric Graham, Chadd Morrissey and Geoff Masanet have been running as a tight group all season. All four can stay within a :45 time spread, although they are usually still a minute behind the front group. McInerney said if they can close that gap at all it will help the team immensely.

"We don't have any new plans," McInerney said. "We just want to try and close that gap and run aggressively."

Lady Panthers look to bounce back

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

The women's cross country won't be taking part in homecoming festivities this weekend as it travels to Champaign to compete in the Illinois Invitational. After a rough time at Indiana last week, the Lady Panthers are hoping to bounce back Saturday at the 10 a.m. Illinois Invite.

Teams expected to compete include Illinois, Western Illinois, Southwest Michigan and Wyoming.

One of head coach John Craft's goals for the team this season is to have five runners under 19:00 for 10,000 meters. He said that goal could materialize this weekend on Illinois' flat course.

"It's possible that we'll meet that goal this weekend," said Craft.

"A lot of them got their best times at Illinois last year, so they're excited about that. But time is still hard for us, we just want to go out and race individually."

Eastern's women have experienced more success this season than they have in recent years, with several high invitational placings as well as a win at their own invitational three weeks ago.

This is primarily due to increased team spirit and tight group running up front.

Leading the way for the Lady Panthers are Brooke Roberts and Laurie Mizener, they, along with Amy Bersig and Ti Jaye Rhudy have all run under 19:00, with Aislinn Wiley only a few seconds away from that mark.

After beating four Gateway Conference schools at the EIU invite, the team's expectations for the league meet have been enhanced.

"At these invitationals we just want to compete and keep improving," Craft said.

"But conference is what we're really looking forward to, and our training program is designed so that the runners are peaked for that competition."

Steady Thorne leads Panther offensive attack

By DON O'BRIEN
Associate sports editor

In a football season that has been filled with near wins and close calls there has been one consistent factor on Eastern's football Panthers, the play of sophomore quarterback Jeff Thorne.

Thorne, who is coming off of a freshman year that was halted in games into the season due to an ankle injury, is ranked sixth in the nation in passing efficiency and has tossed at least one touchdown pass in every game.

"The ankle is fine; it is at 100 percent," said Thorne, a product of Wheaton Central High School who holds state records of 57-career TD passes and he also threw for over 100 yards in 27 games. "I took the same hit that injured my ankle last year against Western Illinois two weeks ago against them again, but it's fine."

With the Panthers in the midst of a three game losing streak, a streak in which all three games have been decided by one point, Thorne said he has been doing some second guessing during the streak.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Thorne hopes to lead the Panthers to a Homecoming victory against Illinois State at 2 p.m. Saturday at O'Brien Stadium.

"I feel real good about the way I have played this year, but there is always room for improvement," said the 5-foot-10, 175-pound signal caller. "There is always some second guessing when your losing and we have lost three in a row and it makes you think even that much more."

One thing which has cost the Panthers during the skid is an abundance of penalties. Two weeks ago in the Panthers' Gateway Conference opening loss to Western Illinois they were flagged eight times for 71 yards and last week against Indiana State they drew nine flags and had 124 yards marched off against them, five of which were personal fouls.

"I really don't know what the deal is with the penalties," said Thorne. "The personal fouls should never happen and the penalty situation is way out of hand. Especially at this point in the season. There is no way you should have 125 yards in penalties. It is just a lack of concentration."

Through the Panthers' first six games, Thorne has completed 90 of 134 pass attempts, a 67.2 percent completion record, for 1,025 yards. He has thrown 13 touchdown passes while only throwing three interceptions.

Compared to last year's numbers of two touchdown passes, Thorne has been putting the ball in the end zone via the pass much more this year than in his rookie campaign.

Thorne hopes that a more wide open offensive attack will help the Panthers change those one-point losses into big wins. Every game for the Panthers from now until the end of the season is a must-win for them to keep their dim playoff hopes alive.

"We need this game more than any other just to give a boost to our morale," said Thorne, who is 4-8 as the Panthers' starting quarterback. "I think we have the best offense in the conference, but we haven't been as aggressive as of late and we want to get back to that this weekend."

Regarding Randy

Randy Arney, an Eastern Theater arts alumni, returns this weekend to receive a Distinguished Alumni Award

By Debbie Carlson

It's a timeless story of the hometown boy gone on to seek fame — and hitting the big time.

This hometown boy is Randy Arney, an Effingham native and Eastern alumni, whose theater experience has enabled him to a receive a Tony award on behalf of Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater for the 1990 production of "The Grapes of Wrath."

Arney, who graduated from Eastern in 1978 with a Theater Arts major and a Speech Communication minor, will receive a Distinguished Alumnus Award recognizing his outstanding accomplishments in theater this Homecoming. Arney will be in O'Brien field during halftime of the Eastern-Illinois State University football game to receive his award.

Arney credits the beginning of his theater career to two Effingham High School teachers who encouraged him to pursue the art.

"I caught the acting bug in high school," said Arney in an interview from his home in Chicago. "Two teachers, Barry Martin and Mary Winkleback Smith, gave me the chance to act."

He knew by his junior year in high school that being in theater was what he wanted to do for the rest of his life. And, like most high school juniors, he had begun to choose colleges to attend for his bachelor's degree.

But for Arney, Eastern was his first choice.

"My dad went to school there (Eastern) as well as my two older sisters," he said. "I visited the school and I was attracted to the size and I felt that Eastern could provide good training and a solid background, but it wasn't so large that you became a number."

"And I still feel that way," he added. "Eastern really gives a quality education. There I got hands-on training and got a well-rounded education. Some colleges specialize too soon."

He is currently the artistic director for the Steppenwolf Theater Company in Chicago, a posi-

Strange but true tales of Homecomings past

By CATHY BEHRENDT

As the 76th Eastern Homecoming, "America The Beautiful - EIU Salutes the Red, White and Blue" soars to a frenzied peak this weekend, some may be wondering what Eastern Students and alumni did in years gone by.

Themes and events of Eastern Homecomings are varied, but in retrospect, what comes around goes around.

For instance, the 1962 Homecoming theme was "Our American Heritage," which is similar to this year's theme.

Eastern's first Homecoming Queen, Ernestine Taylor, was crowned 61 years ago by the editor of Eastern's newspaper, the Normal School News.

The Normal School News, began the tradition of the Homecoming Queen contest in 1930. The queen was crowned by the News editor until 1956, with the exception of 1953 when former Eastern President Robert G. Buzzard did the honors.

From 1954 to 1960, the Student Senate President crowned the Homecoming Queen; thereafter the new queen was crowned by the previous year's queen.

In remembering coronations long gone by, former Eastern President Quincy Doudna was quoted in the Oct. 10, 1986 of The Daily Eastern News as saying, "I'm not sure what it's like today, but the crowning of the queen was a ceremony with dignity."

Doudna's description of this year's coronation might not fall in the "dignified" category - shouting and stomping were the order of the evening as Kelly Flood and Fred Nesland were crowned Homecoming Queen and King of 1991.

Dignified is also the wrong adjective for the 1974 coronation, which featured a concert by Chicago-based rock and roll band Styx.

Styx played prior to the announcement of the 1974 Homecoming Queen and court; and in a surprising move, Tom Wade ran for the title of queen in 1974 and actually won third runner-up placement on the homecoming court. Wade beat out John Mattson by being the first male on the Homecoming court.

But at least there was a coronation; in 1972 there was no queen at all due to alleged election violations followed by racial demonstrations.

That Homecoming was fraught with troubles; not only was the queen quashed, but the parade was poshed.

The annual Homecoming Parade, in existence since 1915, was called off in 1972 due to prohibitive costs of float-making. In the place of previous parades, a house-decorating contest was held.

The 1986 Homecoming Parade included scores of classic cars due to the theme "It's A Classic," but the most classic part of Homecoming 1986 was the Homecoming football game against Northern Iowa.

In the last seconds of the game, the Panthers were down 28-30. A 58-yard Panther field goal as time expired pushed probably hoping that at least one aspect of that game is not replayed; the 1986 post-game celebration featured a frenzied celebration in which the left upright field goal post was ripped off and tossed into Campus Pond.

Homecoming week gives Greeks active schedules

By CASSIE SIMPSON

Most traditions that occur during Homecoming week are expressed through Eastern's greek system.

Each fraternity and sorority has its own Homecoming traditions that are a major part of that chapter's history.

"It differs with each group," said Eileen Sullivan, assistant director of student activities/greek affairs. "I think the Homecoming dance is one tradition that incorporates alumni and undergraduates."

Matt Johnson, Interfraternity president and a member of Delta Chi, agrees that the Homecoming Dance is an important greek tradition.

"It involves the alumni in having a function with the younger undergraduates," Johnson said.

"Most of the houses have them (dances), we really get a wide mix. It's a fun time, everyone gets along really well."

"I know that Sigma Chi and Delta Tau Delta are celebrating anniversaries this year, so they may be doing something special," Sullivan said.

"The women groups try to have an open house so alumni can go through the chapter houses," she added.

"Almost all houses have an open house for the alumni to see the chapter house," Johnson said.

Sullivan said Homecoming week, with all the different activities and events, draw a big response from the greek chapters.

"The greeks do have a good turn out during the week," she said. "They really enjoy the activities and participate in almost everything. It's really an exciting week."

The greeks started brainstorming for ideas on their floats and themes for window painting when they pulled their states out of the hat for Homecoming.

"They start formulating in their minds ideas for floats with the hat pull-out and then started building frames for the floats several weeks ago," Sullivan said. "Pomping started this week."

Johnson said that preparations for next year's Homecoming will begin in a few months.

"Four months before is when things really start falling in place and when we start to tie up loose ends," Johnson said.

"With all the poms, trailer and chicken wire, it takes a lot of planning."

The fraternities and sororities usually are the biggest draw for alumni who come back to Eastern for Homecoming.

"Alumni of fraternities and sororities feel so much ownership to the university," Sullivan said. "A lot of our best donors in the alumni were fraternity and sorority members."

Many fraternities and sororities plan months ahead for Homecoming activities. Aside from Parent's Weekend, Homecoming is one of the busiest weekend for the members of the Greek system.

"I think they feel a sense of community coming back here," Sullivan said.

"Greeks have a membership for life and are very supportive. Alumni who come back range from people who just graduated in last May to people who graduated 10 to 15 years ago."

"They (the alumni) want to come back, it's fun for them."

Johnson said he feels that the alumni like to come back to see the houses and how they've changed.

He also mentioned that greek alumni may be the alumni who return in the higher numbers because they have a place to come back to.

"There's not a real place for alumni who were not greek to come back to like there is for those who were," Johnson said.

"It makes it easy for them to come back."

"Last year, I'd estimate that we (Delta Chi) had (between) 80 to 100 alumni come back," Johnson said.

"It's (Delta Chi) brotherhood of a lifetime and it really shows at Homecoming."

Homecoming week for the fraternities and sororities is very similar to Greek Week and Parents Weekend.

"It's very similar to Greek Week," Sullivan said. "There are fewer activities (in Homecoming Week), but it is a week of scheduled activities that the greeks participate in."

"Parents Weekend is also a very busy time," Sullivan said.

Live God: Eric Clapton's wonderful 24 Nights

Eric Clapton
24 Nights
Surprise/Duck

TIM SHELLBERG

The past three years, regardless of personal tragedies, have been kind to Eric Clapton. Crossroads (1988), a five-hour musical journey detailing EC's 25 years as rock's greatest British blues guitarist, remains one of the biggest-selling boxed collections. A year later, Clapton released Journeyman, arguably his artistic comeback and probably his best album since 1977's Slowhand.

If Crossroads and Journeyman do nothing to convince the unknowledgeable or zealous EC fans deemed him "God" spraypaint on literally every available surface in London during the mid-60s, then 24 Nights should. A condensed Crossroads Live of sorts, 24 Nights aesthetically details every guise of Clapton's career - from his days in John Mayall's Bluesbreakers in the mid-60s up to Journeyman, 24 Nights offers healthy servings of classic Clapton.

But whereas Crossroads simply stands as an elaborate history of Clapton's works, 24 Nights is more of a celebration than an account. A classy, yet raw indulgence in Clapton where he is best loved - the stage - 24 Nights is, at the very least, a call to rejoice.

Divided into four parts: the four-piece band, the blues band, the nine-piece band and accompanied by an orchestra, Clapton takes each of these segments on 24 Nights realms beyond their original contexts.

For the four-piece set, Clapton and his supporting cast successfully attempt to bring the simple slambastics of his Cream days into the 90s. Backed by his most recent regulars (bassist Nathan East, ivory tinger Greg Phillinganes and skinsman Steve Ferrone), Clapton and this crew escalate Cream classics such as "Badge (note EC's honorable tip of the hat to Traffic's "Glad" in the opening riff)," and "White Room" to levels fellow Cream cohorts Ginger Baker and Jack Bruce would be proud of.

The blues segment, which focuses on his days as a Bluesbreaker, is a bit more shaky. Leading off with an all too ritzy rendition of "Watch Yourself," Clapton and his blues bunch (which consists of such notables as Johnnie Johnson, the genius behind Chuck Berry and Jimmie Vaughan, the founder of the Fabulous Thunderbirds) find the grit sooner, but not soon enough.

This is not the case with the nine-piece band, which represents Clapton's usual crew as of late. Containing his entire four-piece band along with extras, this band - which focuses primarily on Journeyman material (with the exception of an oh-so sultry version of "Wonderful Tonight") - over-justices the studio versions by a football field's length. For reference, just listen to the closing solo on "Pretending." Honorable.

And while the National Philharmonic Orchestra accompaniment might be far out of a few EC fans' league, the meticulously grandiose renditions of "Bell Bottom Blues" and "Hard Times" are damn silky when compared to their studio versions.

On 24 Nights, the mortal one once called "God" proves he, in his time and in his context, is in fact a rock and roll religion worth converting to. Compared to wallet-lining tour albums of such as the Rolling Stones' Flashpoint and Paul McCartney's Tripping The Live Fantastic, 24 Nights works better based solely on its delicate homage to the past as well as its ability to bring it into the future. Because it can re-define the past without distorting it, 24 Nights is probably the best live album in the last five years.

Randy Arney

he acquired in 1987.

"In 1986 Gary Sinise was the artistic director of Steppenwolf and asked me to be associate art director," he said. "Then in 1987 when Gary got to direct a movie I became the artistic director."

Sinise's directorial debut was "Miles from Home," which starred Richard Dreyfuss. In the movie, several Steppenwolf actors played major parts in the film. "Eight or nine Steppenwolf actors played roles," he said. "Kevin Anderson, who played the theater teacher in 'Sleeping With The Enemy,' played Gere's younger brother." "I got a part too. I learned how to castrate pigs," he said with a laugh.

As artistic director, Arney is in control of "everything from choosing plays and hiring directors to helping with the plays," he explained.

Steve Eich is the managing director and he takes care of all the business aspects. He takes care of budgets, business, tickets, subscriptions, and so on.

His entering Steppenwolf was due in part to connections he made at Eastern.

While he was here, Arney founded relationships with Joan Allen and John Malkovich, two Eastern alums who have become stars in their own rights. "Through these connections that came to Chicago."

After graduating from Eastern in 1983 and marrying his high school sweetheart - Mary Ellis, who played the wife of him in an Effingham High School production of "Flowers for Mrs. T" - Arney attended Illinois State University in Normal for a master's degree in Theater Arts.

Upon graduation, he received the nod from Malkovich asking if he and Mary would want to move to Chicago. "At the time, I wasn't sure where we were going to go and I knew about Steppenwolf theater and I was excited," he said.

From 1980 to 1984 he was a free-lance actor and appeared in about 12 plays in Steppenwolf. During that time, he was also teaching acting and directing classes at Columbia College in Chicago.

Teaching, though, was not some-

Theater professor remembers Arney as an Eastern student

C.P. Blanchette, a professor in Eastern's theater department, said there was something that made Distinguished Alumnus Award recipient Randy Arney stand out.

"Randy was, in my opinion, a marvelous student," Blanchette said. "When he wasn't in class, you just knew there was something missing."

"He has such a vibrance and warmth and a sense of humor that just permeated the entire atmosphere," he added. "He was fun to be around, the kind of person you would just want to like you."

The 1978 graduate said he thought he reached the big time when Arney was cast as Billy Bibbitt in One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest, his first play at Eastern.

"I felt I had reached big time," Arney said. "I was surrounded by more actors and directors (than in high school) because they came from all over the state. I felt glad to work at the next level of expertise."

Blanchette said one of the best things about working with Arney was his general attitude about circumstances. "He could always see the humor in things, and on stage he was always crazy - those are the kind of people I like," he said.

Although Arney had experience in theater from high school, Blanchette said he could see Arney growing as an actor.

"You could see his talent mature (with each play)," Blanchette said. "When you do a play, you can see talent here and talent there and it's time that takes it (to develop)."

D.C.

Randy Arney - 1991

thing foreign for Arney. At Eastern, Arney completed teacher certification classes and had student taught at Stephan Decatur High School in Decatur prior to graduation.

In 1984, Arney was invited to become an ensemble member of the troupe and has continued to act and direct there ever since. Some of the plays he has recently participated in include a stage presentation of John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath" and Sam Shepard's "Curse of the Starving Class."

In addition to winning the Tony award, Arney has also recently received a Joseph Jefferson nomination for best director for Curse. The award, he said, is Chicago's version of the Tony.

"Earthly Possessions," a play adaptation of Anne Tyler's novel which just closed a few weeks ago, reunited Arney and Allen on stage. In Arney's first play at Eastern, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," he played Billy Bibbitt, a patient of Allen's Nurse Ratched. Arney commented on what it was like performing with Allen again after all these years.

"Joanie and I were just laughing about our first play," he said. "It's exactly the same over the years between the two of us. We knew what to expect of each other. But each play is different. In (Cuckoo's Nest) we played nurse and patient, but in this one (Possessions) we play husband and wife. Joan and I are able to bring our life experience together."

Togetherness is a main component of the Steppenwolf Theater. Its founders were college friends who decided to form a theater company.

"The company started as a group of college kids who moved to Chicago. All of us were in a group together since we were 18 or 19 years old and now were in our 30s," Arney said, his cheerful voice becoming quite serious.

"We attribute our success because we know each other, we trust our work. Togetherness is the bond we create to better work on stage."

"Many times a play is done by actors who have to literally introduce themselves and in three weeks that have to perform the play," he added. "We feel that because we know each other well enough the product is bound to be better. It's not unlike a sports team that works together."

Arney credits Mary, his wife of 13 years, to sticking by him and said she is one of his motivators.

"She's had great influence on me," he said. "It takes a pretty special person to tolerate life of the theater animal."

"It takes patience, support, understanding because it's such a gypsy-like lifestyle," he added.

As far as other influences, he credits a few of Eastern's faculty.

"Professionally (former Theater Arts professor) Dr. Gabbard and (Theater Arts instructor) C.P. Blanchette and the late Dr. Gerald Sullivan all helped me," he said. "The one thing I got from Clarence was the ideal of what theater can be as an art form. He's so serious about his work."

"Dr. Sullivan was the first one to take a shot on me and they all instilled in me what theater can be and is," he added. "Yes, it must be fun, but there is a higher reason for doing it. It enlightens the audience."

"They helped me take the art of playing seriously."

Griffith's Hotel worth visiting

Nanci Griffith
Late Night Grande Hotel
 MCA

By PENNY N. WEAVER

Try to classify Nanci Griffith's music — is it country? rock and roll? pop? folk? — and you'll come up with one conclusion: It can't be done.

Griffith has been classified as country, has hit the pop charts, and self-described as "folkabilly." What she and her music are is indefinable.

Griffith's nine albums to date have gone from a basic country, fiddles and guitars sound on Poet in My Window (1978) and Last of the True Believers (1986) to a more pop sound in Storms (1989). Most of her songs — whether she wrote them or not — are reflective, philosophical and socially aware. She's not an artist who conforms to what "should" be in a song, and that fact alone pulls her right out of the classification of country music.

Although Griffith's latest album, Late Night Grande Hotel, isn't like her other albums in terms of style, it certainly follows her precedent of quality. Griffith is one artist in whose albums you can always expect to find time, thoughtfulness and quality.

Griffith, the first to record Julie Gold's Grammy-award-winning "From a Distance," has another of Gold's songs on Late Night Grande Hotel, "Heaven," and it is clearly another work of art from Gold. The song, as well as Griffith's voice, is delicate, light and hopeful, yet at the same time sad, mellow and wishful. The song, in combination with Griffith's voice, are a steady in Griffith's style — a philosophical, sad-yet-happy, wishful, hopeful swirl of feelings that she puts in at least a few songs on every album she records.

Each song on this album holds a different sort of captivity over the listener, but other standouts are the title song, where Griffith shows a glimpse of the loneliness of living from hotel to hotel, especially where she says "'cause livin' alone is all I've ever done well;" "Down 'n' Outer" — a moving, touching song about the homeless, where Griffith brings the plight of those without a home to everyone's doorstep; "One Blade Shy of a Sharp Edge," a stabbing poke at playboy Republicans where the music and Griffith's voice combine to have a good time at making fun of rich old men; and "It's Too Late," with its perfect melodies and harmonies, a song about how crazy love is.

Whether you like country music or rock and roll, or the blues and jazz, Late Night Grande Hotel — like all of Griffith's past works — is a place where you'll find something you like. She's been best described as a "songwriter's songwriter," and here at the Hotel, she defines that term.
