New Hampshire next on circuit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Taking no time out to celebrate their Iowa victories, Walter F. Mondale and Sen. Gary Hart turned their attention on Tuesday to New Hampshire and the next big events on the Democratic presidential circuit.

Hart, who surged to a second-place finish in Iowa, was out early in New Hampshire the morning after, telling a crowd in Bedford that Mondale's support is very "soft."

But Mondale's chief pollster insisted the former vice president is seen as the candidate with the most experience and that negative attacks on him backfired on his rivals.

All eight Democratic candidates were making their way to New Hampshire for a League of Women Voters debate on Thursday where they will hone their appeals for New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary next week.

Hart described his second-place showing in Iowa as "a big boost" and said, "Hopefully, it does turn this into a Hart-Mondale race. It sets up a contest between the party's future and its past."

Mondale left early Tuesday for New Hampshire after Iowa Democrats gave him nearly half their votes in Monday night's precinct caucuses. His success in locking up delegates to the national convention this summer in San Francisco was even more substantial.

The former vice president's showing appeared to give him 48 of the 50 delegates who will be apportioned on the basis of the precinct caucus results. Eight other Iowa convention delegates will be officially uncommitted.

The Iowa results boosted Mondale's delegate total to 118. Sen. John Glenn was in second place with 17. The totals include House Democrats who were selected as delegates by their colleagues last month.

The Democratic Party did its own tally and gave results with 94 percent of precincts reporting. The party figures included only percentages.

Mondale	48.9 percent
Hart	16.4 percent
McGovern	10.2 percent
Uncommitted	9.3 percent
Cranston	7.4 percent
Glenn	3.4 percent

Recommendation to abolish OCSHA causes controversy

by Nancy Bridges and Mary Holland

A proposed resolution to abolish the Off-Campus Student Housing Association has generated controversy among some student senators and OCSHA members.

Although the resolution was originally scheduled to be discussed at Wednesday's student senate meeting, the legislative leadership committee decided Tuesday night not to discuss it at this week's meeting.

Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said the resolution will not be discussed until the legislative leadership committee can decide who should assume OCSHA's duties if senate does abolish the organization.

The resolution was initiated by a former OCSHA member, senator Dan Brosseau.

Brosseau said OCSHA is "ineffective and never really accomplished anything on their own."

OCSHA's duties can be fulfilled through the Student Senate Housing Committee, he added.

Although Brosseau said that the senate's housing committee can meet the needs of off-campus students, other OCSHA members and senators said the housing committee has enough work in dealing with the residence halls.

OCSHA President Barb Krug said OCSHA has initiated several programs to benefit off-campus students including an alcohol forum and the off-campus rookie runner program.

In addition, OCSHA assigns delegates to individual landlords to maintain "effective communication and feedback," she said.

"The housing committee cannot efficiently and effectively cover all the things we have covered," she added.

Krug said the primary OCSHA function is to be available to students who have questions about off-campus housing. "I don't think housing committee members can put in that much time," she said.

Senator Glenn Good, former chairman of the housing committee agreed with Krug. "When I was chairman we gave the off-campus duties to OCSHA because we couldn't handle them."

Brosseau also said he does not believe that student fee money should be spent to fund OCSHA as a separate entity from the student senate.

OCSHA is budgeted $1,642 through the senate budget, he said.

"I feel we're spending student fees that don't need to be spent," he added.

Brosseau noted that Krug, as OCSHA president, receives a tuition waiver as salary for her duties. He said he believes the housing committee chairman could take care of the same duties without receiving a salary.

However, Krug said she does not believe the housing committee chairman would put in the same time that she does without pay. "It's very hard to get a good leader to put in the time without reimbursement," she said.

Although senators have postponed discussion on the abolishment of OCSHA, Wesel said the senate will discuss the possibility of rejoining the United States Student Association.

The senate has had one month to study literature on the organization and now has the opportunity to rejoin USSA at the original $112.50 membership fee, he said.

Also on the agenda, senator Karim Eldib will present a report recommending possibilities for the acquisition of a computer for the student government office, Wesel said.

Wesel said Eldib has completed research on several computers that the senate may purchase.

In other business, the senate will discuss the effectiveness of the senate retreat in January.

Wesel said the senate will decide whether to request funds for a retreat in next year's budget.

The Student Senate is scheduled to meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Faculty Senate approves salary 'catch-up' report

by Nancy Yamin

The Faculty Senate approved a motion Tuesday to publish a paper discussing Eastern's underfunded faculty salaries.

The report recommends that the "university administration and the University Professionals of Illinois provide an equity increase" in faculty salaries.

Senate Chairman Richard Goodrick said the report basically calls for faculty salaries to be increased by three-fourths of a percent each year for four or five years until the salaries of Eastern's faculty "catch up" with those of other Illinois universities.

The senate discussed the report, however decided not to approve or reject it until the report could be considered further, Goodrick said.

"The report has been layed out on the table. I hope that we get some feedback," he added. The report will be published in the Faculty Senate minutes.

In other business, two representatives from student-faculty boards explained their board's functions to the senate.

John Rearden, Intercollegiate Athletic Board member, said the function of the IAB is "primarily advisory."

The IAB approves the schedules and budget for the athletic department in an advisory capacity, he said.

Also, Roy Meyerholtz, Apportionment Board member, said the AB deals with the distributing of student fees.

Security program delayed

Eastern's Housing Director Lou Hencken said the new residence hall night security program's starting date was set back because the security assistants did not receive enough time for training.

Marines moved to U.S. warships

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—U.S. Navy helicopters took Marines from their base at Beirut's airport to warships in the Mediterranean on Tuesday as the Marine withdrawal from Beirut officially got under way.

Israeli jets, meanwhile, bombed and strafed positions in the Syrian-controlled mountains east of the capital.

"Today the support people have gone and we're working on the combat gear," said Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks. "Today is the first day of the relocation" of the 1,300 combat troops standing by since President Reagan announced, Feb. 7 his plan to withdraw them.

Brooks said he could not say how many Marines were withdrawn Tuesday. He estimated it could take a week or two to evacuate the base at Beirut's airport. Since the base was established in September of 1982, 265 U.S. servicemen have died in Lebanon.

The airport has been virtually circled by anti-government militias since last Wednesday, when Druse fighters drove to the coast south of the base, linking up with their Shiite allies and further undermining the government of Christian President Amin Gemayel.

"I'm ready to go. I've got women to meet and beers to drink," said Lance Cpl. Samuel Lee, 20, of Miami, Fla., as he moved out. Asked about the Marines' mission, he said, "We were just trying to restore peace. It doesn't look like it happened."

Brooks said the Marines would leave their bunkers and foxholes intact. "I haven't been informed who's going to be taking over these positions, but they're welcome to them."

Jackson denies insulting Jews

WASHINGTON—The Rev. Jesse Jackson denied Tuesday that he made an ethnic slur against Jews and accused Democratic presidential rival Walter F. Mondale of leaking confidential discussions between the two candidates.

Jackson said he has been victimized by "innuendo and hearsay."

"I deny allegations made by some persons in the media that I have spoken in derogatory terms about persons who happen to be Jewish," Jackson said.

The Washington Post reported last week that Jackson, in private conversations, "has referred to Jews as 'Hymie' and to New York as 'Hymietown.'"

"Hymie" is a shortened version of Hyman, a surname, and it is considered offensive by many Jews.

Sandanistas to hold elections

MANAGUA, Nicaragua—The leftist Sandanista government said Tuesday it will hold nationwide elections Nov. 4, three months earlier than expected. But it insisted that Marxism would remain a part of "Sandnista democracy."

"We do not accept democracy that is ordered by the U.S. government," said Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the governing junta, an apparent reference to U.S. pressure for open elections.

Ortega also announced:

—The president, vice-president and legislature will take office Jan. 10, 1985, for six-year terms.

—The voting age will be lowered from 18 to 16.

Russian chemical use declines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States said Tuesday it had no evidence that the Soviets used chemical weapons in Afghanistan in the past year, and that toxic chemicals killed fewer people in Cambodia and Laos than in 1982.

The State Department report contrasted sharply with previous U.S. assertions that more than 10,000 people have been killed by chemical weapons in Afghanistan, Laos and Cambodia, where rebel forces are opposing communist governments.

The report, which didn't explain the apparent decline, was the latest in a series submitted to the United Nations in support of U.S. allegations of use of Soviet chemical weapons in foreign conflicts. A U.N.-sponsored investigation two years ago found the evidence inconclusive.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union made what it termed a "concession" in talks at Geneva, Switzerland, that are intended to draft a proposed treaty banning chemical weapons. The Soviets said they were ready "in principle" to accept international inspections of plants where gas weapons are destroyed.

The United States plans to give its official response Thursday to the Soviet move at the 40-nation Conference on Disarmament.

Washington officials, however, said the Soviets' past refusal to accept on-site inspections has been a major obstacle to any new agreement on banning nerve gases and destroying stockpiles of such weapons.

Blacks must rethink slavery—Meredith

by Jack Palmer

Being born black in the small rural town of Kosciusko, Miss. in 1933 and then moving on to be the first black to desegregate the University of Mississippi in 1962, may seem like quite an accomplishment.

But James H. Meredith seems to have had a long time to look at his accomplishments in retrospect, even creating history of this kind in what turned out to be the biggest internal clash in the United States since the civil war.

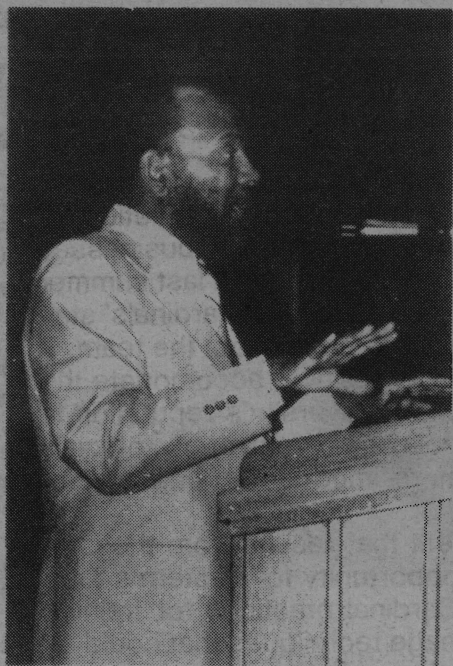

In getting into "Ole Miss", Meredith was the focal point of a civil rights struggle that involved the confrontation between the president of the United States, the governor of Mississippi, 31,000 federal troops, the state police and white citizens of Mississippi.

If this was not enough, he led one of the largest American historical movements of blacks in the "March Against Fear" in 1966, before being shot by a white man on the second day of the march. Martin Luther King and Stokely Carmichael carried on the march to its conclusion.

Now Meredith is over 50 years old and can recount his story to college audiences throughout the country as a straight chronology of his life, as he did in the Grand Ballroom Tuesday night.

In a speech delivered to about one hundred students and faculty, Meredith outlined the vital necessity of knowing history. "Anyone who does not understand his history is doomed to repeat it."

The lesson he has learned throughout "the course of fifty years of study, travel, and experience, is that the basic condition of black people was the same everywhere in the world."

After the speech, Meredith noted that the condition of blacks is even more hazy now than during the time of segregation. Today a "black male can't get a job at McDonalds and never would be considered, but in the 50's there would be a sign that would say, 'No Blacks Need Apply.' It is easier to fight a thing you can see and pin down than empty promises, Meredith said.

The situation blacks have moved into in the United States is the same one that other foreign immigrant groups experienced when they first arrived, even though blacks have been here for over 400 years. "The doors are just being opened. But the blacks are frustrated because they aren't getting anything. When Frank Sinatra first started, it was a big deal that he was Italian. He didn't know if it would matter in 20 years if his son was Italian. Now it doesn't. I don't know if it won't matter for my son in 20 years," Meredith said.

Growing up under "Black Codes" and segregation, Meredith sees the plight of the black throughout the world as being similar in all lands of Western thought. During his nine years in the Air Force, the only time he felt free of racial prejudice was in Japan, in areas isolated from contact with Americans.

But he was also surprised at the racial prejudice of his fellow black soldiers toward the Japanese. "Black G.I.'s would drive along the streets of Japan knocking Japanese off of their bicycles just for fun," he said.

In concluding his speech, Meredith gave suggestions for what blacks should do to change their condition.

"Blacks must rethink slavery," the basis for their present plight. "Slavery was never a symbol of inferiority until the 19th century. Whites have experienced slavery up until the serfs in Russia were freed in 1863, two years into the Civil War. But when it is taught in our schools they are called indentured servants and it doesn't carry the meaning," Meredith said.

Before the 19th century, "a slave was a superior doer of a task. The Africans were far superior in agriculture and so they were brought for the job," Meredith said. "Then the white race decided that only black people could be slaves."

It has now gained the stigmatism of inferiority. When you have accepted being inferior, you have given up, Meredith said.

Auto collision injures student

by Nick Haskett

An Eastern senior is in critical condition after being involved in a three-vehicle collision Monday on Route 16 just east of Charleston.

Senior Gail Pavick, 21, Monday was transferred from Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center to Burnham City Hospital in Champaign.

Nina Hussman, a Burnham Hospital spokesman, said Pavick, of Warren, Ohio, is in critical condition following surgery. However, Hussman declined to disclose the nature of Pavick's injuries.

Coles County Sheriff's Deputy Jack Sanders said the collision occurred at about 4:10 p.m. Monday near the Embarras River Hill, east of Charleston.

Pavick, a member of Eastern's swimming team, was apparently traveling west on 16 when the accident occurred, he said.

Sanders said the accident occurred when a semi-tractor trailer truck came upon several cars stopped in the east-bound lane and to avoid colliding with the vehicles, the driver swerved into the westbound lane and hit Pavick's car head-on.

Sanders said he issued three citations to the truck driver, but declined to specify the nature of the citations.

He also released the names of other drivers and passengers involved in the accident. James Radcliff of Paris, Robert McKinney of Charleston and Michael Bough of Ashmore were not seriously injured.

Sanders said further information regarding the accident could not be released pending further investigation.

Cardinal camp drops tidy nest egg

The St. Louis Cardinals' football organization has made Charleston its home away from home.

For the past two summers, the Cardinals have conducted their training camp right here on Eastern's campus, and Panther Athletic Director R.C. Johnson should be commended for his effort to resign the Cardinals again for this summer.

Editorial

The benefits from having the Cardinals at Eastern abound.

- Recognition. The Cardinals' summer-camp activities attract media from all over the Midwest. And with Charleston and Eastern as the summer site, every story or broadcast will carry with it a Charleston dateline. Eastern itself becomes more well-known by housing the Cardinals' camp and also corrals the prestige of being able to accommodate the NFL club.

- Money. Eastern's six-week contract with the club has the Cardinals paying for their food and housing in Stevenson Hall. Most of those funds, Eastern Housing Director Lou Hencken said, would cover the salary for about 30 students and 15 civil service workers who are employed during the Cardinals' stay—jobs that would not be needed if the Cardinals chose to camp elsewhere in the summer.

The Cardinals also make a hefty donation of $10,000 to Eastern's Panther Club; funds that are pumped back into the university's athletic program. In addition, some Charleston businesses and drinking establishments reported last summer that business increased during the Cardinals' stay as compared to past summers without the team.

- Reputation. Eastern's ability to accommodate the Cardinals enhances the university's reputation in the eyes of the media, other university officials and students and more importantly, perhaps, of Cardinal fans.

An additional benefit that results from the Cardinals' camp is the opportunity for Eastern's football staff to watch Cardinal practices for training methods and scrimmage techniques that could be adaptable to the Panther program.

If Eastern students and civil service workers continue to provide the Cardinals with what St. Louis owner Bill Bidwell termed "outstanding" service and accommodations, which lead to a productive and learning atmosphere, Eastern can make these benefits a possibility for future summers.

That atmosphere is why Bidwell decided to return to Charleston this summer. And because of the many benefits Eastern receives, we hope the Cardinals will make Charleston their home away from home for years to come.

Your turn

Be aware of committee

Editor:

Students whose majors are included in the College of Arts and Sciences:

Are you aware that there's a committee on this campus comprised of your fellow students; that these students are your representatives; that they are to report your problems and concerns about curriculum scheduling, poor advisement and more to Dean Jon Laible; and that the future of the committee is at stake due to lack of response?

The name of this group is the Student Advisory Committee.

I personally believe the lack of response could only be due to lack of exposure. Surely there are students in arts and sciences who have been poorly advised, mistreated or simply baffled by the entire system. Not only is it your responsibility to utilize this committee, but it's to your advantage.

Telling your concerns to the representative in your major can often solve your problems without all the anguish you might expect.

I'm a member of the committee representing students in the life science majors, and I'm aware that every student has a gripe, most of which are valid complaints with solutions. However, these problems can never be solved until someone in the right place is aware they exist.

Excluding personal conflicts with faculty members, the committee is prepared to help you with almost any problem, or at least advise you where to get proper attention.

It's my personal belief that it would be a disgrace to dissolve such a committee before anyone was able to take advantage of it. Representatives on the committee are selected from clubs and honors societies within your major. If you have a concern you feel we could help you with, I urge you to contact your representative and make use of this committee.

Funny facts, odd ends, off-the-cuff comments abound

Today's column is a collection of odd ends, fun facts and off-the-cuff comments that you had never thought about, but won't prevent you from sleeping when you know about them.

- According to Family Weekly, Johnny Carson's wife Joanna has asked a court to pay her $220,000 a month in temporary living expenses, which includes:
 - $37,065 a month to buy jewelry and furs.
 - $26,025 a month to run her Bel-Air mansion, which includes $800 a month for phone bills (And I thought I had bad phone bills).
 - $4,930 a month for contributions to charities.
 - $155 a month to send flowers to people (Does anyone know of a flower shop for sale in Bel-Air?).
 - $1,200 a month to pay club membership dues.
 - $1,100 a month for payments to American Express.
 - $2,695 a month for travel and lodging.
 - More than $1,200 a month to buy gifts for friends and relatives (I wonder if Johnny is on the list).
 - This leaves $134,830 a month. I can only assume the rest includes laundry money, carry-out pizzas and other incidentals.
- Paul Anka, who wrote the "Tonight Show" theme in 1962, still gets a $200 residual check every time it is played.
- Sixty percent of America's population cannot swim well enough to save their own lives.
- Did you ever wonder who is really making all the money on the albums you are buying? Based on an $8.98 album by a best-selling artist, here's how it

Looking through the lens

Brian Ormiston

breaks down:

- $1 goes to the artist.
- $1.50 goes to the production of the album.
- $1.20 goes to the recording company.
- Thirty cents goes for writer and music-publisher's royalties.
- Fifty cents goes to miscellaneous items such as producer's royalty, advertising and American Federation of Musicians' fees.
- $4.48 goes to all the WHOLESALERS AND RETAILERS, The truth comes out.
- The Olympic logo, as if you haven't heard, is being used to the extent of making me sick. But, according to Advertising Age, more than one-third of the people polled would be inclined to buy a product made by an Olympic sponsor. Less than 20 percent of 1,253 adults who were polled said that they had seen too much Olympic-sponsor advertising.
- Have you ever wondered what the check-out ladies in the express lanes would do if they ever counted and found out that you had more than ten items in your grocery list?
- The quote of the year comes from Greg Buttle, 29, linebacker with the New York Jets: "The best part (about football) is hitting people every down. I love Sunday. No drug addict can get a better high than I can on a Sunday. I don't think even sex beats it."

- You will be happy to know that, in a recent survey by the Decatur Herald and Review, the bathroom in Old Main was given an "A" rating according to its attractiveness, but not necessarily lavish surroundings.

- Elizabeth Taylor's engagement ring from Richard Burton was 69.42 carats; Victor Gonzalez Luna's was a measly 16.5. When Joan Rivers' favorite marries Vic, it will make her Elizabeth Taylor Hilton Wilding Fisher Burton Warner Gonzalez Luna. Not bad for a rich girl.

- After covering the two top Presidential candidates I have come up with my own system of how America should vote to see who gets in this high-paying office.

We should vote for the candidate that:

- 1) has the loudest voice. This is so if our president gets into a shouting match with a leader of another nation, we would win regardless.
- 2) dresses the best. A good president should dress like he knows what he's doing.
- 3) is the best drinker. He should be able to drink any king, queen or prime minister under the table. If our president can't mosey on up to the bar and pound down a couple of shots with some of the "good old boys," he won't get my vote.

Blood donations exceed previous totals

by Hart Gately

The second day of Eastern's spring blood drive netted 471 pints, an increase of 10 pints over last spring's second day total and 58 pints over last fall's second collection day.

Faculty Chairman Walter Lowell, Campus Chairman Margaret Lowell and Student Chairman Diane Duing said they were pleased with the day's results, but focused on Wednesday's collection.

"I wish more people realized the blood is not there unless they give it," Walter Lowell said.

Because the two-day total of 796 pints still falls short of the 888-pint halfway goal, the drive chairmen said they are looking for a larger turnout toward the end of the week and emphasized that students may come in at any time.

There are only 233 appointments for Wednesday so there are plenty of openings, Duing noted.

Potential donors who were turned away because of anemia or colds numbered 38 Tuesday, which was 30 donors less than last spring's second-day figures.

First-time donors are often scared about the experience, however, one student who gave Tuesday said it was a rewarding experience.

"I was scared at first because I didn't know what to expect," freshman Kelly Fox said, but noted, "It doesn't really hurt and I'm not scared to give now."

Those who wish to give blood will have the opportunity Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Security assistants night duties delayed

by Amy Zurawski

Although Monday night was scheduled to be the first night of Eastern's new night security program, the night assistants were not on duty.

Housing Director Lou Hencken said the program did not begin because the assistants "really weren't ready to go." He added that it would begin March 1.

Hencken added that it would not have been appropriate to send the night officials on their routes without a training and information meeting or the equipment needed for the job.

He noted that the training and information meeting, at which the necessary keys, flashlights and whistles will be distributed, will be Tuesday in the Housing Office.

"We wanted all the night assistants to start out with the same thoughts about what they need to do," he added.

Hencken said the night assistants will be expected "to have a positive attitude about their job and will be made aware of the large responsibility that goes along with being a night assistant."

Keith Kohanzo, night security program committee chairman, said the night assistant program will work "in attempt to reduce vandalism, unauthorized access and other threats to the safety of the residents and their facilities."

Inaugural funds donated

by Amy Zurawski

Eastern President Stanley Rives will make $1,000 available to each school and college to aid in planning programs to be conducted before his May 12 inauguration.

Inaugural Committee Chairman Ken Hesler said a total of $11,000 in non-appropriated gift money will be available to give schools and colleges the opportunity "to do something different, leading to the inauguration."

Rives said each school and college will receive $1,000, with the exception of the College of Arts and Sciences which will receive $3,000 because it is larger than other schools and colleges.

The money, which would have been spent on the inauguration ceremony, is being provided "to develop some special program" such as a speaker or performer, he said.

Rives added that he would "rather spend the money on something our students and faculty can engage in, rather than a big ceremony."

Hesler said, "The programs are being planned to make the inauguration more meaningful to all of the campus. That way the inauguration won't seem like just another ceremony on graduation morning."

Margaret Soderberg, acting vice president of academic affairs, said she has received several recommendations from academic departments for April inaugural programs.

"At the end of the week, I will present the recommendations from departments to the inaugural committee for approval," she added.

In addition, "Toward 2000" has been selected as the inaugural theme by Rives, Eastern's sixth president. The month of April, preceding the inaugural ceremony, has been designated by the Inaugural Committee as "Toward 2000 Inaugural Symposium."

Council affirms rural ambulance service agreement

by Kevin McDermott and Michael Sitarz

The Charleston City Council Tuesday tentatively approved a resolution which will allow Charleston ambulances to respond to calls outside Charleston city limits.

Under the new agreement, the cost of ambulance service to out-of-town residents will increase $100 from the previous $60 fee. The resolution was placed on file for public inspection.

The agreement, which would be effective until Nov. 1 when it will be reviewed, includes the area townships of Charleston, Hutton, Ashmore, Pleasant Grove, Lafayette, Seven Hickory and Morgan.

Finance Commissioner John Beusch said he has reservations about the resolution, but added, "I'm relieved that we at least have an agreement."

Beusch said he believes the individual townships should levy taxes to help fund the ambulance service while lowering the Charleston ambulance tax, thus lowering the out-of-town fee.

However, Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said he believed the new agreement will work.

"I'm very pleased that we've got this (agreement)," he said.

Ashmore Township resident Norman Schmitt challenged the resolution at the meeting, saying it is "unfair" to out-of-town residents who own property in Charleston.

Schmitt said he owns and rents three residences in Charleston and has worked at the Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company of Charleston for the past 32 years.

"I feel like I'm paying enough taxes," Schmitt said. "I don't think I should be penalized (for living outside the city)."

Pfeiffer said he believed that residents in Schmitt's position should be given special consideration when the agreement is reviewed Oct. 1.

In other business, the council approved the appointment of Charleston businessman Jeffery A. Baker to the Community Assistance Development Program Advisory Board.

Baker replaces former board member Quincy Doudna, who recently resigned from his post.

The council also approved the opening of bids for the purchase of new Charleston police cars to replace those that are over two years old and have been driven more than 90,000 miles.

New search for funding director begins

Sandy Prest
Eastern's Office of University Relations and Development is reopening its search for a director of development because an applicant recently selected declined to accept the position. Ken Hesler, director of university relations and development, said a director is needed to develop and conduct an annual donation program to solicit funds from corporations and foundations for Eastern. Although Hesler said he will retain his title as director of university relations and development and oversee the new position, he added that the new director will devote his full attention to university development. Hesler noted that he currently spends a "percentage" of his time on university development. The university is looking for "a person who can spend full time in private fundraising." Requirements for the position are a master's degree and two years of fundraising experience at an educational institution, he added. The director search began in October with 40 candidates solicited by advertisements placed throughout the nation. "We reviewed credentials and boiled the nominations down to a smaller number," he noted. Jerry Gladu, director of development at Carle Clinic in Champaign, was selected as director but turned the position down, Hesler said. Eastern President Stanley Rives said Gladu refused the directorship to take another position with higher pay, adding that the search will be reopened and the position should be filled by July 1. Hesler said Eastern has never had an employee to work full time to raise money for the university. "With higher education today, there is a need for additional funds" from private sources, he said. Rives said Eastern "needs someone involved in raising private funds to do things we can't do with our state budget."

Historical dolls portray folk art in TAC exhibit

In conjunction with Black History month, the Table Arts Center will have a collection of black historical dolls on display. TAC Director Don Carmichael said Chicago artist Roberta Bell designed the dolls to allow each doll to reflect its own individual character and portrait. "The display reflects personal vision of outstanding folk art," Carmichael said, adding that he believes the dolls are a major component in the TAC folk art doll collection. The collection of 26 dolls, Carmichael said, is a gift from alumnus Grace Markwell Meir of Dudley. The dolls will be on display until March.

"STUDENTS PROGRAMMING FOR STUDENTS"

Ralph McGehee

March 13,
8 p.m.

DEADLY DECEITS

United States intervention in Central America is one of the most important issues on college campuses this year. As a 25-year veteran of the Central Intelligence Agency, Ralph McGehee has traveled extensively in that area, and is prepared to speak about world-wide CIA operations, current developments in Central America, and to draw parallels between Vietnam and Central America. Relying on his first-hand experiences, Mr. McGehee understands the forces of paranoia that control all parameters of Soviet policies: restrictive air space: KAL flight No. 007, unlimited military build-up, the KGB's backing of Syria, and the Soviet Military's power as it relates to foreign policy.

Mr. McGehee presents an autobiographical journey through his twenty-five years in the CIA, where he worked in many different places including Japan, Thailand, Vietnam, and Langley, Va. Mr. McGehee held a wide variety of jobs in the CIA including case officer on covert operations; paramilitary specialist; liaison officer with foreign police and intelligence agencies; and as an intelligence analyst.

Mr. McGehee's growing disillusionment began to surface when he began to see the deficiencies within the CIA. In his last four years with the CIA he has access to information about its world-wide intelligence and covert operations. Through the covert action arm of the Presidency. In that capacity it overthrows or supports foreign governments while generating "intelligence" justifying those activities.

He describes how the CIA shapes its intelligence, even in such critical areas as Soviet nuclear capability, to support Presidential policy. Disinformation is a large part of the CIA's covert function and the American people are the primary target audience of its lies.

Mr. McGehee will go on to explain the specifics of the Agency's deceptions and operations that dragged us into and kept us in the Vietnam War. He presents details of the CBS/Westmorland dispute over the rigging of intelligence estimates and proves, through use of the Pentagon Papers, that the CIA, from 1954 until 1975, deliberately and grossly, underestimated the motivation and size of the enemy.

Mr. McGehee outlines President Reagan's Executive Order that allows the CIA to conduct covert operations within the United States. He relates the Agency's past domestic operations when it subverted academics, students, labor unions, religious groups and the media, and then predicts the areas of the Agency's current domestic operations. He will also emphasize the dangers of President Reagan's March 11, 1983 Executive Order that places hundreds of thousands of government employees under the constraints of the secrecy agreement. This issue is of paramount importance to university students anticipating a career in of government, for the Executive Order requires that government employees, for the rest of their lives, submit all writings, speeches, and scholarly works for prepublication censorship.

He warns students of the ramifications of the Executive Order and describes his two year battle with the CIA as he agonizingly wrestled his book, word for word, through the CIA's Publication Review Board.

Maltese Falcon

The legendary Maltese Falcon comes to Eastern Feb. 22 in the Grand Ballroom at 7:00 p.m.

Sam Spade played by Humphrey Bogart is caught in a desperate search for the jeweled falcon of Malta. Spade's pursuit of his partner's killer leads him to a group of equally desperate individuals who want the black bird — the femme fatale played by Mary Astor, cowardly Joel Cairo played by Peter Lorre, and pompously inflated Capspar Gutman played by Syden Greenstreet.

Their intense greed is sharply etched as the Maltese Falcon comes within their reach.

Wally Cleaver's Party Success...

by Jay Hagberg and Julie Jackson

"Excellent dancing band," was the response by many to the Wally Cleaver band's performance Tuesday.

Wally Cleaver performed many popular songs such as "What I Like About You," by the Romantics and "Should I Stay or Should I Go," by the Clash. In addition, the Milwaukee based band played 75 percent of their own music. Several of the songs played will be appearing on their soon to be released album, "Seriously Known."

The original music went over well with the audience. "I think they (Wally Cleaver) are really good, the original songs sounded great," Doug White said. Louann Robertson said, "I loved their music, I thought they were original."

John Madory described their original music as, "A fine blend on new wave and rock music." The band members said that their style of music is far removed from heavy metal, "We don't pay attention to trends in our music," Gary Leger, lead vocalist, added.

Wally Cleaver put on an energetic performance for a small but responsive crowd. Leger said, "We realized that this area is a brand new market for us, but college towns are always great."

The band is expanding its touring out of the Wisconsin area, and by the reaction of the Eastern students, the band will go far.

Mondale blasts Reagan's economic policies

Keith Clark
Daily Eastern News correspondent

SPRINGFIELD—Democratic presidential hopeful Walter Mondale had a campaign stop in Springfield Monday to blast the economic policies of President Ronald Reagan's administration.

Speaking at the Capitol rotunda before an enthusiastic crowd of nearly 100 supporters, Mondale said the United States and Illinois "can't afford" four more years of Reagan economic policies.

"Reaganomics is driving a dagger in the heart of the economy of Illinois," he said, adding that international business, which Illinois is dependent upon for many economic needs, has declined.

"The effects of Reaganomics are undermining the competitive stature of Illinois farmers, workers and businessmen," he added.

"We can't afford four more years of tax cuts that ask you to pay more so the very wealthy can pay less," Mondale said.

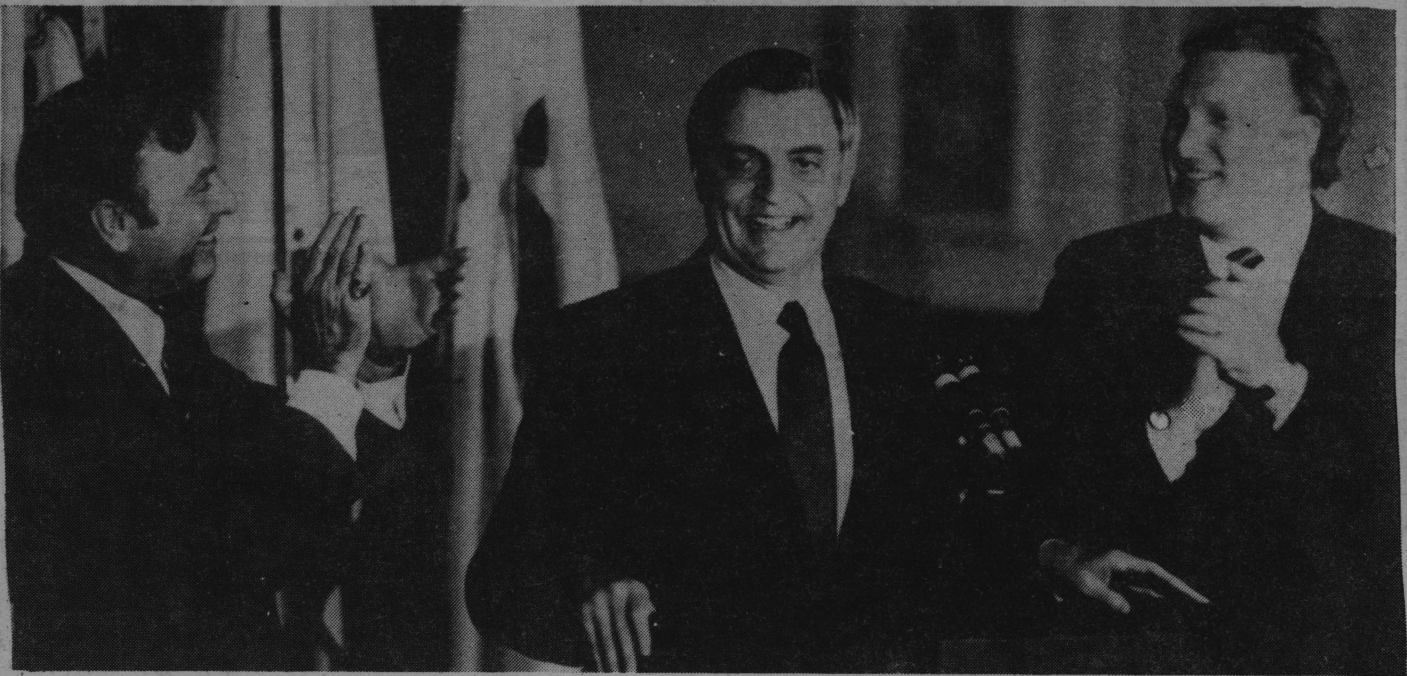

"As president, I will ask the very wealthy and very powerful to join the rest of us in paying their fair share of taxes," he added.

Mondale said he will propose a "major tax proposal" which would ask the wealthy, major corporations and others who are escaping taxes to help decrease the federal deficit.

Mondale also announced his support for an increase in funding for education, pledging to lead America in a "renaissance of learning."

Charging the current administration with "neglect" of the current educational system, Mondale said he would make sure this next generation is positively the best educated in the history of our nation.

He said funding for education increases and other programs would come from a more equitable tax plan and increases the federal government revenues.

(Top) Senator Alan Dixon, left, and Attorney General Neil Hartigan greet presidential hopeful Walter Mondale Monday in Springfield. New ISA president forsees firmer commitment in ISA

by Vicki Vass
Bill Fuller, new Illinois Student Association president, said Monday that the resignation of the former ISA president has caused member schools to show a firmer commitment to ISA.

"Mark Hurley's resignation shook up the (ISA) Board of the Directors. I think a lot of the schools weren't participating as much as they could and they now show a firmer commitment to ISA," Fuller said.

Fuller, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's ISA representative, is a senior from Glen Ellyn.

Through increased interaction between member schools and committee work, ISA should be able to increase its effectiveness, he said.

Eastern Student Body President John Cole said Monday that he agrees ISA may become more effective under Fuller's leadership.

Cole said he considers Fuller to be capable as ISA president because of his background working with legislative issues.

Experience listed on Fuller's resume includes being a student senator, Democratic precinct committeeman, liaison to state and national student associations and member of Carbondale's Liquor Advisory Board and Cable TV Committee.

Fuller said, "In three months, I don't particularly plan on changing ISA." However, Fuller mentioned ideas he has to improve the effectiveness of ISA.

Fuller said he would like to develop an educational platform to give legislators to inform them about ISA's functions and goals, he said.

In addition, he said ISA needs to increase interaction between member schools. "We need increased commitment and effort."

Recruitment of additional colleges and universities is another of Fuller's goals.

Wright Community College and Thornton Community College, both in the Chicago area, recently became ISA's first community college members, he added.

However, the membership of community colleges in ISA may create some problems because community colleges have different problems than four-year institutions, Fuller noted.

"Community colleges have problems that are unique that have not yet been addressed by ISA," he said.

Fuller is also concerned with funding of the ISA. Funding would not cause a problem if all the money owed to ISA was paid back, he said. Some schools still owe membership fees to ISA.

He added that he intends to look into alternative funding such as grant writing and implementing a mandatory refundable fee.

In addition, Fuller said he would like to continue working with the United States Student Association.

The USSA is an "excellent opportunity to receive information on issues and items that affect higher education on the national level," he said.

He added that although differences between USSA and ISA existed in the past, he will be able to work with USSA in the future.

A food drive to help needy Charleston residents will be conducted Wednesday at E.L. Krackers, 111405 4th Street.

Krackers disc jockey Les Robinson said that Wednesday Krackers will waive its usual $2 cover charge and request only a can of food as admission.

The canned goods will be given to the Charleston Civic Association and will be dispersed at its discretion.

Robinson, who devised the plan, said, Krackers is sponsoring the food drive because "we believe that there are a lot of needy families in Charleston and the food will go to these families."

THE FAMOUS TRAVELER'S TRIVIA TRIP CONTEST ANSWER FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

 ANSWER *****

1. A traveler can be historical, current, fictional or real. Any explorer or celebrity that traveled or travels applies and is valid.
2. Three clues, as to the identity of the famous traveler, will be printed in the classified ads section Tuesday and Wednesday.
3. Contestants must find the clues, figure out who the famous traveler is, and fill out the provided contest form completely. (The contest form will also be printed in the classified ads section.)
4. The completed contest form must be brought to the news room office, Buzzard Ed. Bld., between 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon on the day the clues are published.
5. Neither early nor late entries will be accepted.
6. The exact time the envelope is brought into the news room will be written on the envelope by an authorized contest official.
7. The winner will be the first contestant with the right answer. (This will be determined by the time the entry is received — in the case of two or more right answers.)
8. ALL contestants with the right answer will be awarded a classified coupon, good for a free classified ad of 15 words or less.
9. The weekly winners will go into a drawing for the grand prize, a trip for two (2) to Daytona Beach, Florida provided by Coastal Tours. The trip will include: round trip transportation from Charleston, Ill. to Daytona Beach, Fla., hotel accommodations at Sanabell Inn for 8 days and 7 nights. The trip will be taken during the week of March 23-April 1, 1984.
10. There will be only one grand prize entry for weekly contest winners.
11. Student organizations, professional and social sororities and fraternities are not people per se and may not enter as such.
12. The weekly winners will be published in THE DAILY EASTERN NEWS the Friday after the weekly games.
13. Student Publications and Coastal Tours employees or their families are ineligible.
14. The winner of the grand prize, for which there will be only 14 contestants, will be announced Friday, March 16, 1984.

Washingtonians capture four medals in Olympics

SEATTLE (AP)—If the state of Washington had competed as a separate nation in the XIV Winter Olympics it would have finished ninth in the medals race, tied with Canada and West Germany.

Washington is taking considerable pride in the four medals won by state residents—two golds and two silvers amounting to half the medals won by the United States in Sarajevo:

Debbie Armstrong, 20, of Seattle won the gold in the women's giant slalom.

Phil Mahre, 26, of Yakima won the gold in the men's slalom and his twin brother, Steve, won the silver.

Rosalynn Summers, 19, of Edmonds won the silver in women's figure skating.

Some residents even want to claim men's downhill gold-medal winner Bill Johnson as a Washingtonian. Johnson spent two years at the Mission Ridge Ski Academy just outside Wenatchee.

However, he grew up in Portland, Ore., and now calls Van Nuys, Calif. his home.

Washington is proud to be known for something other than apples and ill-fated nuclear plant construction programs. After all, it is the home to the Olympics mountain range, and the state capital is Olympia. Both are fitting names for a state that is going all-out to welcome home its Olympic champions.

Gov. John Spellman proclaimed this week "Winter Olympics Champions' Week" and said the four medalists "set an example for young people everywhere."

"The great thing about these Washington winners is that they showed you can lead a normal life, go to school and do other things and still be the world's greatest," said Ingrid Simonsen, director of the Alpental Ski School where Armstrong learned to ski.

Eastern's Matas

'Putting' into recordbooks

by Crystal Schrof

Last year Eastern sophomore shot putter Dan Matas watched his competitors take the top places, but this year Matas' foes are watching him break records.

Matas broke Eastern's indoor-school record with a 53'10½" throw Feb. 4 at a triangular meet with Western Illinois and Southern Illinois-Edwardsville.

But breaking the school record was not enough for Matas, Eastern's top shot putter. A week later, at the Illini Classic, the sophomore improved his mark to 54'.

"Last year, I was okay," Matas said. "This year I'm a lot better, which is a good feeling."

"At the Illini Classic, I was throwing farther than the guys who beat me last year," he continued. "They were saying 'Hey, where did this guy come from?'"

However, Matas said the first time he broke the record was probably more important to him because he competed against his twin brother Marion who attends Western.

Although both shot putters compete for intrastate and Association of Mid-Continent Universities' rival teams, Dan stresses that no rivalry exists between them.

"We call each other and tell how we did at meets," he said. "When we are both competing as long as one of us beats the rest of the people, that's all we care about."

"We help each other a lot," he added. "If I learn something new that can help him, I tell him. If he learns something to help me, he tells me."

Breaking Eastern's indoor shot put record has enabled Matas to reach one of his goals, he said.

"The school record was one of my goals. I planned to break it and I did," Matas said. "I'm not sure how far I would like to throw but I want to throw farther."

And his ultimate goal is to qualify for the NCAA Indoor Championships by his senior year. Matas would need a 62' throw to advance to the national meet.

An intensified training program has helped Matas to recover from a back injury and improve his form, he said.

Bob Carper, a University of Chicago track club member, has designed a rigorous training program for Matas which includes weightlifting, explosion drills (sprints) and throwing.

In addition, Matas' training program includes squats, and bench and neck presses, he said.

"Lifting has helped me the most. I've gotten a lot stronger," Matas said.

"Last year, I used to do squats, but it hurts my back too much. It got kind of depressing last year with my back always hurting," he said. "It still hurts this year, but I just train with the pain."

Illini-Purdue await Big Ten rematch

CHICAGO (AP)—It'll be a brand new basketball game—one that could very well decide the championship—when Illinois invades Purdue Saturday for the Big Ten's shootout of the season.

"Throw that one out," said Purdue coach Gene Keady Tuesday in a telephone interview when asked if he would use the 76-52 loss at Illinois as a motivating factor. "Every game has a different personality. We don't have to prepare emotionally for this one."

Keady isn't going to forget that drubbing completely, however.

"We'll look at the moves and try to correct what we did wrong," he said. "We'll have to overcome Illinois' pressure defense and execute on offense."

Illinois, ranked sixth nationally, and Purdue, ranked 17th, are tied for the Big Ten lead with 11-2 records. Indiana is one game behind the leaders at 10-3.

"Basically, we're going to try to hang onto the ball," said Keady, recalling that turnovers destroyed his team's chances at Illinois.

"We walked around like we were in a nightmare in that game. We have to hang on and cut down our turnovers."

Keady realizes Illinois has a weakness in depth but was quick to assert, "It might be a weakness, but not unless you get them into foul trouble. You can't count out their entire bench."

Keady is concerned over the play of Illinois center George Montgomery and guard Bruce Douglas.

"Montgomery was pumped up and did the job in that first game," said Keady. "Also, we're going to have to handle Douglas. They have quickness and strength at the guards and super strength inside. Not too many people can push us around, but they did."

Illinois coach Lou Henson, like Keady, is not putting too much stock in Illinois' previous rout of Purdue.

Bowling program canned by Union

by Jeff Long

Eastern's University Union will not sponsor men's and women's bowling teams next year, Union Area Head Bill Clark said, citing the poor health of Panther bowling coach Harold Gray as the reason.

"The union is not going to sponsor a bowling team next year," Clark said Monday. "The primary reason we've decided to cut it is because Harold won't be able to travel with the team."

Clark added that a savings of about $1,200 per year was an influencing factor in the decision.

Gray, who serves as coach and adviser to the team, recently underwent quadro-bypass heart surgery. He could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Although Clark cited Gray's health as "99 percent" of the reason to discontinue bowling, some Panther bowlers said they believe the teams were cut because Union officials had become frustrated with the program.

Keith Bagley, bowling team captain, said, "They (Union officials) consider the bowling team an unnecessary nuisance, so they cut it. They've been phasing out bowling little by little over the years. I guess they figure there are too many hassles and not enough rewards."

Senior Bruce Schroeder voiced a similar opinion to Bagley's, and said he believes Union officials could continue to sponsor a bowling team, but won't because of personality clashes with several of the current bowlers.

Schroeder said, "They're sick and tired of the bowlers. It's simple—they don't like the bowlers, so they won't fund them."

However, Clark and Joan Gossett, director of Union Business Operations, agreed that a successor for Gray is not available from Eastern's current staff resources and that they will not consider hiring someone from outside the program.

Gossett said if Gray is able to return and is willing to coach, the decision to cancel the program may be reconsidered.

However, Schroeder said, "It's all for personal reasons. They try to mask it by saying they can't replace Harold, but they could if they tried. Not taking anything away from Harold, because he was a great coach, but all they really need is a chaperone or someone that will travel with them."

Bagley and Clark, who were both members of the Eastern bowling squad which finished eighth in Division I in 1982, will not bowl this weekend when the Panthers compete in the Association of College Unions Invitational Tournament.

Bagley will not bowl because of academic ineligibility, while Schroeder is being held out for what he called personal reasons.

"I'm qualified by all standards to bowl," Schroeder said. "They just don't like the mental attitude of some bowlers, so they don't let them bowl."

Bagley, a transfer student, said he is academically eligible by ACUI standards, which combine cumulative grade-point averages from all schools attended. However, because he does not have the 2.00 cumulative GPA required at Eastern, he is not being allowed on the team.

"I've been told I'm not on the team and that I never will be on the team," he said. "All I ever wanted was fair treatment. It's harder to bowl here than participate in other sports."

Several other Eastern bowlers refused comment Tuesday because of an apparent threat to withdraw Eastern from the ACUI tournament if they spoke to the media.

Gossett said Monday she advised the bowlers to remain mum to prevent bad press.
