Council votes 3-2 to raise entry age

By JEREMY R. KIRK Staff writer

To no one's surprise, the Charleston City Council voted 3-2 to raise the barentry age to 21 at Tuesday night's meeting, making the council's decision on the issue

During the April 11 meeting, the council voted 3-2 to raise the entry age to 21. However, to pass a city ordinance initially, a vote of a 5-0 or 4-1 must be made. After the April 11 passage, the entry-age ordinance was placed on file for public inspection, and now will take effect June 9 because of Tuesday night's vote.

Charleston Mayor and Liquor Commissioner Dan Cougill voted in favor of raising the entry age, along with

allow any comments from the audience before the council took a vote, saying the council had already heard enough

"We had two open forums, two alcohol task force meetings and a City Council meeting," Cougill said. "Any further discussion would not add to the decision tonight."

Newest student fee pays staff salaries

By CHRIS SUNDHEIM Senior reporter

Roughly 30 percent of a $20 per year student fee to expand and maintain computer technology on campus has been spent on salaries of staff in the computer services division, university officials said.

A portion of the computer technology fee, approved by students a year ago to expand computer services on campus, has funded salaries of staff members in the computer services and academic computing divisions who supervise computer-laboratory tutors and oversee equipment.

The money for the salaries of two full-time computer-laboratory supervisors and part of a third salary were funded last year after officials approved tapping the $100,000 fund for "support" costs.

Students passed a referendum on the computer technology fee in last spring's Student Government elections, tacking $10 to fee statements each semester for full-time students. The fund generates about $200,000 each year to purchase, upgrade or maintain computer equipment and

Of that $200,000, $60,348 was spent on salaries, $45,127 went toward computer mainenance and software, and $93,452 purchased new personal computers for students, said Dave Henard, associate vice president for computer and telecommunications ser-

Eastern's Parking Committee will be meeting today to discuss a recommendation to raise parking ticket fines on campus.

If approved by the parking committee, campus police will raise parking fines from $7.50 to $10 for tickets paid within the first 48 hours after the ticket is issued and from $15 to $20 for late tickets.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said extra money profited from increased parking fines would be used to lower prices of freshmansophomore parking permits from $112.50 to $75 per semester.

Larson said the parking fine increases will try and keep students from parking in staff and faculty lots.

"They (the council) didn't open the floor to discussion, which really upsets me," said Student Senate member Chris Boyster. "But what upsets me even more was that the turnout from the student population wasn't here."

Boyster said Eastern students should label every dollar they spend in the Charleston to show how dependent the local community is on the money of the college students.

"Start buying at Eastern. Don't buy outside the campus, then you'll make your point," he said.

Sophomore Kevin Runner said Eastern students passed on the opportunity to make a difference on the entry-age

Cougill said he and Eastern President David Jorns are looking into alternatives to the bars, such as the Rathskeller After Dark and a proposed coffeehouse.

Sophomore Julie Simack said there hasn't been an effort made for an alternative to the bars.

"There are no alternatives. They haven't made anything," said Simack said. "What we need is a non-alcoholic dance bar that has the atmosphere of all the other bars."

Grimes' Motors, 1019 Madison Ave., will be able to move the dealership to East Illinois Route 316.

Two open forums dealt with the zoning issue and the Board of Zoning Appeals voted 4-3 against the request for the zoning of the area to be changed from RE, residential estates, to R2, two-family residential and commercial.

Carolyn Anfinson, who will live adjacent to Grimes' new location, said she couldn't believe the council's decision to amend the zoning ordinance, especially after the zoning board's recommenda-

Owner Leland Grimes said the Chrysler Corporation has put "very much" pressure on the Charleston dealership. He said the current location and parking has caused car buyers to go elsewhere for business.

George Warner of Davidson and Associates, a consulting firm in Mattoon, was in favor of the zoning change when he said the location is a commercial setting.

Anfinson said the dealership's new storage area will cause the tract of land to be altered.

"Many, many tall trees have been taken down and that's our shelter," Carolyn Anfinson said.

Other business discussed at the meeting included:

 Authorization by the council of an agreement to waive almost $30,000 in tourism taxes and mowing fees for the new owners of the former Charleston Inn building.

Tim Yow and Rob Zabka, on behalf of Brookstone Hospitality Inc. bought the property and inherited the taxes and penalties.

"I think it's disgusting their party would take advantage of their standings in the greek community," Thrun said. "They wouldn't have done this last week because it would've been made public. Tonight, it was OK, it was after the fact, and they thought they could get away

Matt Giordano, an Impact Party member running for Board of Governors representative, said party staffers were handing out campaign leaflets at the entrance of McAfee. Giordano said no unconstitutional acts were committed by his party Tuesday night.

"There was nothing preventing the other party from being there," Giordano said. "It's no different than going to the Library Quad and handing fliers out."

Elections co-chairman Harvey Pettry said the elections committee can investigate any alleged campaign violations if complaints are brought forward. Any students can file an election complaint within one week after elections are over.

If candidates are found guilty, the election committee determines the severity of the punishment.

Student body president candidates are Katina Gillespie, Reality Party; Steve Hartsfield, independent; and Blake Wood, Impact Party.

Executive vice president candidates are Nick Bart, independent; Chris Desmond, independent; and Kristie Kahles, Reality Party.

The remaining $1,073 is kept as a reserve account to be used for unexpected purchases, he said.

Henard said spending some of the fee money on salaries was a natural part of building computer services on

'We would love to spend every bit of that money (the $200,000) on computers," Henard said. "What people overlook is that every computer needs support. That's just logical."

The employees whose salaries are now drawn from the computer-fee account are not new hires; they were previously paid from appropriated accounts, Henard said.

Terry Weidner, associate vice president for academic affairs and chairman of the Committee on Academic Computing, said the decision to pay computer-services employees stemmed from students' asking that laboratories offer longer hours.

"Our No. 1 goal was to have more hours," Weidner said. "If we don't have the people, we can't have later hours."

The technology fee pays for computer lab supervisors in the same way that the student fee earmarked for the Health Service funds physicians' salaries, Weidner said.

The Committee on Academic Computing, which is considering options for the money collected from next year's fees, will try this year to find other methods of support funding besides the stu-dent fee, Weidner said. Shifting the support costs elsewhere will free up more funding for computer hardware and software.

"We don't want to take additional support costs out of that (the computer technology fee)," he said. "We'd prefer to find it within our own bud-

"The current fines are not helping to keep out of the staff parking spaces," Larson said. "Students simply don't care if they get a ticket for parking in staff lots, because the fines are so low. If the fines are higher, then maybe students and visitors will park in the correct spaces. We are going to vote (today) on whether on not to make a recommendation to the President's Council to raise the fines."

Larson said raising parking fines came from one of the committee members in January. Despite a possibly of higher parking fines, Larson said the extra money will help the students.

Although Larson said a parking fine increase will help students, two parking Committee members aren't sure how they will vote on the issue.

"I think the idea is totally ludicrous," said Student Senate member Julie Tizzard. "What we have is a very inadequate parking system. They make enough money off the current parking fine rates without having to raise the fines any

'I really don't think the fines should be raised at all," Tizzard said. "They should remain at their current level."

Committee member Anita Thomas, a technical assistant at Booth Library, shared views similar to Tizzard about the parking issue.

"We definitely need to do something, because there are not enough parking places for faculty members," Thomas said. The whole motive behind the increase is to try to motivate students into parking in the student spaces. If it doesn't work, then we'll have to try something else."

Thomas was not sure what other options would be looked into if the fine increase showed no effect.

ANDREA FREIDINGER fwriter

Thirteen of the 25 Student enate candidates discussed sues such as improving comunication between the stuents and the senate, renovatng the health service and dding child care at a sparsev-attended student election rum on Tuesday.

Less than 10 students atended the candidate forum in hipps Lecture Hall. The sente candidates are running for 17 seats in three student disricts in today's Student Govmment elections.

Executive candidates also poke, but details were not wailable at press time.

At-large candidate Dan amboley said one of his top priorities is organizing a student organization week that would bring organizations together for an entire week. This would give students the chance to learn what organizations are about, said Lamboley, who is a member of the Reality Party.

On-campus candidate Rick Tucker said he would like to see senate meetings held in residence halls to bring unity between the students and the senate. Tucker is a member of the Impact Party.

Yufus Anwar, an at-large candidate running as an independent, said he wanted to bring international students and American students together to share their views. Anwar, an international student, also favored of having the Health Service open on Sundays.

Other issues that were discussed by senate candidates were creating a bus that would run to the square and Mattoon from campus, multiculturalism, residence hall problems, and the elimination of the twoparty system in Student Government elections.

"I am working on improving the food quality and choices available in the residence halls," said Jodi Chapman, an on-campus candidate and member of the Reality Party. "Experiment menus are going to begin in the fall."

Dan Hlavac, an on-campus candidate running as an independent, said he wanted to have night assistant correlate with visiting hours.

Students say force used by police was excessive

Campus editor

Eastern students are condemning the use of police force in a confrontation at a Charleston ar early Friday morning.

A fist fight developed into a stand-off between police officers and students at about 1 am. Friday morning, after Charleston authorities ordered the crowd to disperse. The ensuing melee caused one police officer and one student to be injured, and 10 students were later arrested during the scuffle.

At least six students have filed complaints regarding action taken by police at the fight.

Many students were angry that Charleston police used a Mace-like pepper spray, and that one officer used a baton to disperse the crowd.

"I believe the police were a little extreme in their actions," said Steve Zuley, a freshman environmental biology major. "I think they saw a chance to flex their muscles and did it.'

Freshman Carrie Reilly, a freshman history major, said: "There was no reason for the police" to use the force that they did. The mace and the police batons were unnecessary."

Randy Enders, a business major, said: "I think the police over used their force. They definitely misused their authority. (The police) do everything they can to make the bars look bad."

Despite the majority of students surveyed siding with the plight of those students who were involved in Friday's altercation, other students thought both police and Eastern students were at fault.

"It sounds as though the police may have more force than truly necessary, however, students, I don't think realize how bombastic their actions can be when alcohol is involved," said Brian Abbott, a graduate student majoring in political science. "Alcohol can add to a person's emotions in almost any situation."

Senior Susan Alyons, an elementary education major, said: "I think the students were pretty stupid for getting that drunk in public and then fighting in front of a bar. The entire incident should be investigated a little bit if the students are making these accusations about police's use of force at the bar."

Several other students also mentioned an investigation, saying it is necessary anytime the police use group force of any kind in a mat-

Other students surveyed also refused or were hesitant to give their opinion on the incident at Mother's because they were not at the scene.

Callahan's player suspensions show courage, honesty

Baseball coach Dan Callahan is a rare breed these days.

The importance of winning has become the premiere objective in most college athletic programs. Coaches are constantly faced with the pressure to produce winning teams or lose their jobs.

Editorial

And with this increased emphasis on winning, it's nice to see some coaches still believe in rules and discipline.

Callahan has shown he is a man of his word this season by suspending several key players on his team who violated team rules. For Callahan to suspend some of the best players on the team took

So far this season Callahan has suspended seven players for a combined total of 53 games. The players' violations include cutting class, missing curfew and alcohol-related problems.

Before the season even started, Callahan had to discipline one Panther player for skipping classes. The unnamed pitcher received a three-game suspension.

A few games later, Callahan again was forced again to deal with the off-field actions of his players. While in New Orleans on the team's spring trip, five players missed Callahan's designated curfew.

Callahan punished the quintet by suspending them and sending them home the next day. The position players received five-game suspensions and the pitchers received 10-game suspensions.

Of the players suspended, two were among the team's leading hitters and one was a top pitcher.

The most recent suspension came last week after senior left fielder Jason Jetel was arrested April 8 for driving under the influence of alcohol. Jetel, who received a 10-game suspension, has been one of the team's best players over the past four seasons and has provided senior leadership for the squad.

The players who were suspended were key parts to the team, yet Callahan enforced his rules and suspended them.

The players are in college and can not and should not be watched over like children. Despite the impact the suspensions may have made on the team's win-loss record, Callahan did the responsible thing by issuing prompt and fair suspensions.

Prison debate weighted with rhetoric, hot air

The decades-old image of the sinewy, hard-muscled felon who stomps out of prison a weight lifters' model will soon be a Hollywood stereotype, if lobbyists have their way.

Cops and prison officials are pushing Congress to ban weight lifting in all federal penitentiaries, saying it only bulks up seasoned cons so they might commit more crimes – all at taxpayer expense.

In a debate charged with all the familiar anti-violence rhetoric, the bills' backers are playing on lawmakers' fear of being tarred as soft on crime.

It's a misdirected debate that's too easy. Closing the prison gymnasiums won't get us anywhere; it just feels good.

Proponents of the bill argue that weight lifting in prison is an unnecessary burden on the taxpayers that backfires when former inmates use their brawn to commit further acts of violence.

An Ohio legislator, Republican Deborah Pryce, is leading the fight to tack the bill to the House's omnibus crime package. She says convicts are entering the federal prison system as diminutive weaklings and leaving as behemoths of dangerous force.

Pryce's bill would prohibit any activities designed to increase prisoners' physical strength or their fighting prowess. That includes weight training, boxing and karate.

Besides the strength-versus-violence example, supporters are quick to point out that inmates have made use of weights as weapons in several prison riots. The cast iron and steel parts can we wielded as heavy striking instruments or used to bash walls and doors.

Congress will be all threats this session as the perennial Capitol Hill talk of cleaning up the streets reaches its crescendo. No issue kills re-election bids as quickly and easily as being labeled merciful to street criminals.

The crime issue touches everyone and strikes a deep, hot vein. Anything less than blind aggression and tough talk apparently smacks of sympathy.

And this is a simple way to earn the sheriff's badge. What could be easier than hitting the cons already incarcerated?

"Closing the prison gymnasiums won't get us anywhere; it just feels good."

Chris Sundheim "Closing the prison gymnasi"It sounds good and wins unfalling support. After all, we're talking about felons here. Why not?
This is a quick pressure-valve

This is a quick pressure-valve move or, more precisely, a dodge. If we are to believe pumping iron makes the average inmate a supercriminal, perhaps we should end education in the prisons, too. If we make them better thinkers, will they not just aspire to commit more creative, complex crimes?

They've got it too good already,

Interestingly enough, the same crime bill, expected to pass overwhelmingly before next month, could also kill federal Pell grants to inmates, robbing many of their only chance to break out of the streets-to-prison cycle.

A great many Americans think our prisons are too generous. Most would like to see inmates chained against cold bricks and left to stare at cell walls for the length of their sentences. Any day now, someone in Washington will probably call for that.

But it is idleness that breeds violence, not weights or textbooks. The entire prison system has long screamed for an overhaul. And if today's debate were the start of a frank discussion, I would welcome it.

Instead, it is a series of costly steps backward that will only inflame matters, destroying whatever is left of the concept that prisons should rehabilitate offenders rather than just punish and isolate.

No one is suggesting that weight training or related inmate privileges are civil rights, but doing away with them is about as unchallenging as kicking beggars off the sidewalks. It's a fast fix that lacks any forward reasoning.

The real work comes when lawrnakers cool off and gatter to hammer out a prison system that reflects progressive, reform-minded ideals, instead of succumbing to popular impatience and frustration.

The competition among legislators to be the harshest enforcer in Congress is apparently matched only by their lack of foresight.

Good leaders unite the community with enthusiasm, integrity

Dear editor:

Abraham Lincoln once said, "A house divided against itself can not stand." While Lincoln was addressing the two factions of slave and non-slave states, he was making a generality.

Mr. Lincoln also stated, while still in the Illinois state Legislature, "Politicians are a set of men who have interests aside from the interests of the people and who, taken as a mass, are at least one step removed from honest men."

It is on these points I would like to address you today – not as a politician or a person who wants to shanghai my my into a position of power, but as a leader.

As someone who has been both a follower and a leader, I think there are about six qualities I admire most in those who have led me.

These leaders have given credit where it was due, worked hard to help others, always made time for things that counted, seen today for what it was and looked toward the potential of tomorrow, inspired enthusiasm and coached others to run with their potential.

In the movie "Scent of a Wornan," Al Pacino's character stated, "Integrity and courage...that's the stuff leaders are made of."

This university needs strong leadership and I am willing to accept that responsibility.

However, my intentions are not to dictate.

President John F. Kennedy stood before the United Nations and proclaimed "mankind must put an end to war, or war will put an end to mankind."

While the university is not at war, it is fighting against itself, and it will take cooperation between the majority and the minorities and the campus and the city to keep us from falling apart.

All I ask for is the opportunity to begin the process of bonding us together as a strong, enthusiastic leader with integrity.

Jorns should consider implementing new drinking curriculum

Dear editor:

A quote by Mike Bickers in The Daily Eastern News stating "Eastern Students have been raped and should boycott the school," has Eastern-President David Jorns running scared.

It is now rumored that he will be implementing a new option to the health studies curriculum starting with the fall semester 1994.

This new option will be called "Professional Drinking" and the new undergraduate courses will include: HST 1001 basic drinking, HST 1050 basic house parties, HST 2001 driving drunk, HST 2050 hard partying, HST 3001 beating breathalyzers, HST 3050 advanced wet bars and HST 4001 getting out of DUI's.

More courses will be added due to expected high enrollment.

All courses are subject to lab fees to cover the cost of case alcohol.

No bar alternatives will be offered!

Senate: Coffeehouse is not bar alternative

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate recommended Tuesday the idea of an on-campus coffeehouse be supported and "considered on its own merits."

Senate members, who had voiced mixed feelings about the project, said they agreed with project supporters that the coffeehouse should not be considered as a "bar alternative" if it is to be successful.

Student Senate Speaker Bobby Smith, Vice President for Business Affairs Charles Colbert and Vice President for Student Affairs Lou Hencken all stressed to the senate the proposal not be addressed as a bar alternative but as a "hangout" for faculty and students.

"This is something everyone can benefit from at this juncture," Smith said.

"All people read about here is how 'Cougill Sucks', but we aren't doing anything about the bar-entry age issue," Smith said. "With this, people can read positive things about what we are doing here right now."

Senate calls BOG response to letter 'inadequate'

By ADAM McHUGH Administration editor

Faculty Senate members said at their Tuesday meeting they were disappointed with a response to their letter of concern about the Board of Governors, saying the response was "inadequate."

The response, which was three months later than expected, was sent by BOG Chairwoman Wilma Sutton in response to a letter sent by the senate on Jan. 25. The senate's letter contained recommendations regarding the awarding of academic tenure, the board's direct role in academic review, and a request that the board work more closely with Eastern's faculty and adminis-

"I am really disappointed in the fact we had to wait three months for this reply," senate Chairman Bill Addison said. "And after all that waiting, there was not much substance to the letter.

"It is my feeling that (not replying for three months) was the BOG's strategy all along," Addison said. "They knew the Faculty Senate would be changing soon and that it is close to the end of the school year."

A confidence vote would not be appropriate at Tuesday's meeting, Addison said, as the senate thought faculty should be allowed to view the letter before passing judgment on it.

"There is still a lot of discussion that must be done on this issue," he said. "I don't think we should hold a confidence vote in the BOG."

Vice Chairman John Miller agreed with Addison, saying he was "disappointed" in the BOG's response to the Faculty Senate's letter.

"I'm not sure what the senate will do with this from here, but many of us are truly disappointed," Miller said.

fail."

Senate had been concerned that the coffeehouse project lacked student participation and about the amount of money it will cost the university.

Mason said the university is facing an "ethical dilemma" with the proposed coffeehouse. She said the criticisms surrounding the proposal should be discussed with the owner of the coffeehouse, as the university would not be responsible for the failure of the business.

Hencken said the final proposal will cost the university nothing. If Eastern wants the building back after the 30 year lease is up, Hencken said it can have it.

Eastern President David Jorns, who also attended the meeting, described the coffeehouse proposal as a "winwin situation" because the university has control.

In other business, senate Vice Chairman John Miller announced Janet Hope, who was elected to the senate last month, resigned from her seat. Hope will be teaching at another university next year.

The senate will decide next week on her replacement, who will be either Lankford Walker or French Fraker.

26 candidates running for senate positions

Editors note: The following is a list Student Senate candidates by district who will on the ballot in today's Student Government elections.

ON-CAMPUS DISTRICT Six available seats

The Reality Party candidates are:

- Jodi Chapman, a senior dietetics major and incumbent on the Student Senate.
- Jim Ballou, a junior political science major and an incumbent.
- Matt Thrun, a freshman history major and incumbent.
- Eric Anderson, a sophomore English major.

The Impact Party candidates are:

- Shannon Andrews, a junior physical education and health studies major. She has been involved in the Residence Hall Association and the Centennial Homecoming Committee.
- Dave Greenstein, a sophomore history major. He was part of the Student Senate in 1992 and is on Junior Interfraternity Council.

- John Turner, a freshman political science major. He has been involved in the Black Student Union and RHA and is president of Douglas Hall Council.
- Rick Tucker and Bryan Gutraj. No information was available on either candidate.

Students deny fake ID racket

Three charged make appeal for jury trial

By AMY CARNES Staff writer

Three Eastern students Monday pleaded innocent to charges of unlawfully altering driver's licenses and requested their cases be tried by a jury.

Thomas McNeela, 19, of Crestwood; Timothy Moore, 18, of Chicago; and Matthew Cismoski, 19, of Oak Lawn, will return to court at 9 a.m. May 2 for status hearings.

The status hearings give the students another opportunity to enter their pleas, said Susan Wambach, assistant state's attorney who is prosecuting the fake ID cases. If the students again plead innocent, the judge will set dates for the cases to go to jury trial.

After hearing testimony from an inspector with the Illinois Secretary of State's Police, Circuit Judge Ashton Waller found probable cause for the defendants to stand trial on the charge.

Craig Moss, investigator for the Illinois Secretary of State's Police, said McNeela and Cismoski admitted altering five and six driver's licenses, respectively, by changing the date of birth and the file num-ber According to Moss' testimony, Moore admitted altering a "few" driver's licenses, but was in a hurry and didn't know how good of a job he did.

Moss also testified the three students learned how to alter driver's licenses from residents of Carman Hall's fourth

Also on Monday, Peter Meaney, 18, of Monee reached a plea agreement with the state's attorney's office. Wambach said Meaney received a one-year probation sentence. Under the terms of his probation, Meaney was fined $500, ordered to do 120 hours of community service and not consume alcohol, she said.

McNeela, Moore, Cismoski and Meaney are four of the seven former or current Eastern students charged with altering driver's licenses and selling them to other students for bar-entry purposes. If convicted, they could face up to three years in prison and fines of up to $10,000.

State and local authorities last month announced the arrest of the seven Eastern students marking the conclusion of a three-month investigation led by the Secretary of State's police.

Paul Veugler, 18, of Alsip, and Brian Corcoran, 18, of Chicago, have also pleaded innocent to charges of unlawfully altering driver's licenses and will be back in court on May 2.

Patrick Bickett has pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of possession of an altered driver's license. He received a oneyear probation, $700 fine and 100 hours of community service. His probation was transferred to Cook County.

Haiti Connection fasts in protest

By BRIAN HUCHEL

Campus editor

A Haitian student group will be fasting every day this week to protest a school which critics say graduates some of the worst human rights violators.

The Haiti Connection will be meeting at the north entrance of Booth Library at 8 p.m. in support of activists protesting the U.S. Army School of the Americas, located in Ft. Benning, Ga. Other activists from around the country began fasting on steps of the Capitol building in Washington, D.C., on April 11 protesting the school.

Members of the Haiti Connection claim that by keeping the school open, the United States sends the wrong message to countries in Latin America and the Caribbean. Instead of helping people become self-sufficient, group members said the School of the Americas makes it seem like the government is sending them soldiers to kill them.

As part of the local protest, five members of Haiti Connection have chosen to participate in a "juice only' simply trying to make people care about our cause," fast for the entire five days, while another nine student members have chosen to fast for 24-hour periods on various days throughout the week.

"We have had a number of reactions from people," said Krista Erickson, a member of Haiti Connection. "Many people ask us 'Why are you fasting?

"We are simply trying to make people care about our cause," she said. "Unfortunately, it is quite a challenge."

In addition to the protest, Haiti Connection members are asking people to write their elected representatives in support of an amendment that will end funding to the school. The bill is attached to the House of Representatives defense appropriations bill.

Cribune writer to speak

By AMY HEEREN taff writer

A Chicago Tribune staff writer and ormer White House correspondent will peak at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Booth Libary's Lecture Room as part of Eastm's Journalism Week.

Ellen Warren will speak tonight bout "Our Gal at the White House: Sexism and National Political Reportng." A Penn State University graduate, Warren was a Washington corresponent for Knight-Ridder Newspapers before joining the Chicago Tribune's staff. She covered all aspects of the White House, including the 1988 and 1992 Bush campaigns, arms control, NATO, and Operation Desert Storm.

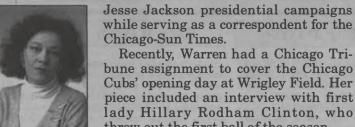

"Warren will lecture about the difficulty women face in claiming rightful places in various professions and how sexism interferes with national political coverage," said Journalism Chairman John David

"Ellen Warren is one of the finest journalists in the nation," Reed said. "To be able to bring a resource such as Warren, is a wonder- Ellen Warren ful thing. She is one of the best at doing something that we have in the country.'

Warren's special assignments have included coverage of the Prince Charles-Princess Diana wedding, the Three-Mile Island nuclear accident, the Mariel boat lift and the return of U.S. hostages from

In addition, Warren has covered the Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale and Recently, Warren had a Chicago Tribune assignment to cover the Chicago Cubs' opening day at Wrigley Field. Her piece included an interview with first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, who threw out the first ball of the season. During her two-day visit to Eastern, Warren will also visit with several journalism classes and conduct a reporting seminar for The Daily Eastern News.

In addition to Warren's lecture, several other journalism department sponsored or related events will be taking place, including a 10th anniversary banquet celebration of Eastern's chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday in the 1895 Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Lecture to address soil conservation

A conservationist with the federal government will speak on soil conservation in Coles County at 7 tonight in Room 222 of the Physical Science

Andy Cerven, a member of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, will present a discussion entitled "What is the Soil Conservation Service Doing in Coles County" as part of Earth Week.

Cervan assists the Coles County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Today is also "Paperless Day." According to a release, the day was created to try to encourage people to go without paper, use the backside of used paper, or use less.

"The activities are used to create awareness of environmental problems and the handling of compost," said Scott Smith, a member of the Charleston Earth Society.

"We want to help people learn how to deal with leaf, branch and grass compost," Smith said.

McAfee to hold Airband contest

By JON ZUSPANN Staff writer

Greek Week will continue with its annual Airband at 8 tonight in McAfee Gymnas-

The Airband is a lip-sync competition among the greeks. Performers choose a song and entertain the crowd by dressing up, lip-syncing and danc-

Tickets are $5 at the ticket booth in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union for general public and $6 at the door for general public.

Part of Unity Day, the Airband is designed to let the per-and audience members have fun together, said Keith Lipke, public relations co-chairman for the week.

Ticket sales are being aimed towards the community and non-greeks who aren't always aware of what Airband is all about, Lipke said.

"We want to invite the community in to see how the greek system can unite," he said.

Ralston still optimistic after sprin

By ANTHONY NASELLA Staff writer

Betty Ralston has never been one to lose too much sleep over final records, especially in the spring volleyball season.

So it's no surprise discovering a positive and optimistic analysis by the head coach of the Lady Panthers in regards to her team's performance in the spring season - despite winning just one match in 11 tries.

The competition level was excellent this spring," Ralston said. "It was a lot higher than in the past springs. That will make us better team in the

"And now we have a better idea of what we have to work and improve at," she added. "I was pleased with our overall effort. We found out a lot about ourselves as a team."

To be sure, Eastern's opponents this spring couldn't have been much tougher. Eastern capped off its spring season Saturday at the University of Illinois, dropping matches to Louisville and three Big Ten opponents - Ohio State, Northwestern and Illini.

In addition, the Lady Panthers faced other competitive ponents like Northern Illinois who they picked up their lone match victory against - Eastern Kentucky,

Indiana University, Butler, Washington University, Illinois State and Western

Kaarun

Sadler

"This was a very productive spring for us," Ralston said. "Last spring didn't prepare us for the fall, though we had a better record. And it was nice to win our one match against Senior-to-be Kaaryn Sadler averaged eight kills over the four matches at Illinois. Freshman setter Monica Brown, who was a redshirt in the fall, had five kills and four blocks against Louisville and six kills and two blocks against Northwestern.

Other Lady Panthers who chipped

in were Sherri Piwowarczyk and Poynton, Amy who each registered eight kills in one match, and Brigid Brennan, who racked up five kills against Illinois.

"We played well in some of the games at Illinois," Ralston said. "But the Illinois tournament was by far the worst tournament because the time in between matches was just too long. I sure hope they will fix that for next spring, because of lot of teams felt the way we did about that.

"And Heather Brewster wasn't able to play at Illinois, so were down to seven players," she added. "That did allow the chances for us to experiment with different people at different positions.

"We learned some things while playing tough teams. And the players weren't afraid of the opponents they

Ralston said she was encourage most by the play of Brown an Jennifer Damon, who are both fitting into Ralston's plan at middle hitter

"Monica is coming along, and w have her for four more years," Ralston said. "Jenny Damon is doing a solid job on the blocks. They have both played a lot as middle hitters.

"Getting them the experience Is what I wanted," Ralston said. "They got hands on a lot of balls, which was good. Their play, along with the others, really pleased me and gives me hope for the fall.

And it will be the fall, when Ralston has a consistent lineup on the floor every game, when she will be a little more concerned about records.

"If records counted in the spring," would be playing lineups that would win," Ralston said. "But that's not what spring is all about. The job is everybody got the playing time, die covering where everyone should be

"But I'm generally happy with everyone this spring," she said. "The majority of people showed improve ments. Once we get consistency in the setter position, we'll be all right."

Panthers slaughter Millikin 24-2

By PAUL DEMPSEY

Staff writer

The Eastern baseball team took a day off from its Mid-Continent Conference schedule yesterday to host the Big Blue from Millikin University.

The Division-III school was supposed to be easy competition for the Panthers, but this was ridiculous.

Eastern pounded out 19 hits and scored 20 runs in the first three innings en route to a 24-2 blowout victory.

Callahan was obviously pleased with his team's offensive output, but was also glad to see some of his pitchers that do not get a lot of innings do well.

"We were very aggressive swinging the bats, and it's kind of nice that we had some pitchers out there that haven't had the chance to pitch much the last few weeks and I thought they all did a good job." Callahan said.

job," Callahan said.
"The pitching was good and we swung the bats well."

The Panthers were all over Big Blue pitching from the very start, scoring seven runs in the first inning. The inning was highlighted by a two-run triple from Joch Martin and a two-run homer off the bat of Eric Dircks.

Eastern's second inning was a lot like the first. Three Eastern runners crossed the plate in the inning and Jeff Guest played long ball for the second Panther home run of the game.

It got ugly in the third as 15 Eastern batters went to the plate and ten of them scored. The Panthers pounded out seven hits in the inning.

Callahan was not sending runners home when at times they probably could have scored, but he said it was a common courtesy not to rub it in the face of a team that was losing that bad.

"That's just a courtesy thing. There's no need to see how many runs you can score and there's no need to get somebody hurt," Callahan said.

"It's tough to tell somebody not to be aggressive when 99 percent of the time you want your guys to be aggressive. This is just one of those games where we called off the dogs early."

Sam Jurka started the game and went three innings for Eastern, but five other Panther pitchers would see action before the day would be

Just when the Eastern men's tennis team needed a boost, Dennis Alexander rose to the occasion at the right time Tuesday against the Southern Indiana Screamin' Eagles.

Alexander, a sophomore at No. 2 singles, was down one set to Jeff Carmack and Eastern holding a 3-1 advantage. But Alexander bounced back by winning the next two sets, helping catapult the Panthers to a 7-2 victory in their final regular-season game at Weller Court.

With the victory, Eastern closes its regular-season at 6-8. Southern Indiana, of the Great Lakes Valley Conference, dropped to 18-5

"I was striving real hard for my strokes today, but they just weren't there early on," said Alexander who was victorious 1-6, 6-4, 6-3. "I just tried to play out of it, and I eventually did. That was pretty much the difference

"I just took me a while to start grooving,"

Alexander said. "Once I got going, I felt much better. I'm starting to get my edge back"

Meanwhile, junior Jeff Lundstrom (No .3) bounced back from a 6-7 first-set loss to Tony Bacon by taking the next two sets 6-1, 6-3 to secure the win and give Eastern a 5-1 advantage, which clinched the team victory.

"Dennis did a real nice job coming back," Bennett said. "We just had good results and comebacks today. These were some excellent matches for confidence building.

"We know that we had a stronger schedule than Southern Indiana, which is what I told the guys," Bennett added. "I think they reacted well to that."

In the other matches, Brandon Kuhl, Jason Hotsinpiller and Pat Mellin picked up the other victories in the singles, with Kuhl also bouncing back from a first-set loss to pick up the win.

In doubles-play, the teams of Alexander and Kuhl (No .1) and Pat Mellin and Hotsinpiller (No. 3) breezed in their matches, both capturing straight-set victories.

Louis

By MATT MORFOOT Staff writer

The Eastern women's tennis team will travel to St. Louis University today to battle in a non-conference match.

"St. Louis University is a strong team in the Great Midwest Conference," head coach John Ross said.

The lady netters are coming off a five game sweep from this past weekend that included four victories over conference foes.

"We've played St. Louis in the past," Ross said. "They usually have nice teams and a quality program."

Coach Ross gave the women a day off from practice Monday after their road trip that included five matches in four days.

"The girls deserve this rest after two spectacular weekends in a row," Ross said

The lady netters are 9-0 in the past two weekends, with one loss in their last ten attempts.

With two weeks left in the season, Eastern has an undefeated conference record of 6-0. The lady netters have one conference match left before they head into the Mid-Continent Conference tournament.

"Winning in the conference is big part of our season," Ross said. "The number one goal of the season is to enter the conference tournament on a hot streak."

Softball sluggers sweep Sycamores

Timely hitting keys Panthers 11-3, 4-2 wins

By TIM BROZENEC
Staff writer

The Eastern softball team took advantage of timely hitting, solid pitching and stellar defense in sweeping the Sycamores of Indiana State in a non-conference doubleheader in Terre Haute Tuesday evening.

In game one, an 11-3 Eastern victory, the Panther bats came alive and combined with a solid pitching performance by junior Missy Porzel (6-6), who gave up only eight hits.

"Everybody hit," said head coach Beth Perine. "Almost everybody in the line-up had a base hit."

Hit they did, as Eastern used two big innings, the first and the sixth, in which it scored seven of its 11 runs. Sharna McEwan sparked the team with four hits, while Luann Schleeter and freshman Jamie Skerski also provided offensive punch at the plate, each collecting three hits.

As a team, the Panthers knocked out 16 hits off Sycamore pitching in that first game.

Game two was a nail biter through five complete innings, deadlocked at zero. But Jenn Cherveny led off the sixth frame with a base hit, Nicole Chapman drew a walk, McEwan followed with an RBI-double and senior Dede Odle sugar-coated the rally with a two-run double scoring Chapman and McEwan.

The Sycamores scored its deuce in the seventh inning which was probably its last gasp in the contest, leaving two runners on base.

In the end, it was the Panthers 4-2, and Perine had much praise for the performance of pitcher Amy Bradle who improved her record to 4-5, and for the entire Eastern defensive unit.

"She was outstanding and she had an outstanding defense" behind her, Perind said. "Amy Klein's out for four weeks (broken finger) and Shannon Hutson (Short stop) and Skerski (third base played solid defense in her place. Jen Chevreny also made some excellent plays in the outfield."

With the victories, Easter improved its season mark to 14-15. Indiana State drop ped to 16-18 for the year.

The Panthers have until p.m. today to celebrate the sweep, when they have the Bradley Braves in a normal ference doubleheader a Lantz field. Porzel is expected to get the start in game one, while Bradle will take mound in the nightcap.
