Student Body President Jason Anselment tells Student Senate members they must be accountable for their actions in his State of the University address Wednesday evening in the Arcola-Tuscola Room in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Anselment stresses senate accountability to students

By JESSICA BAKER
Student government editor

Student Body President Jason Anselment challenged Student Senate members Wednesday in the yearly State of the University Address to think about how the decisions they make affect the campus and the future.

In his speech, Anselment asked senate members to re-evaluate the decision they made last week to continue paying the senate secretary.

Last week, senate members opposed a bylaw change that would prohibit the senate secretary from being paid.

The current bylaws call for the senate secretary to be paid minimum wage for the work done as secretary, such as typing the minutes of every senate meeting and the agenda for the meetings.

Anselment said he is asking for the bylaw change to be resubmitted and for senate members to reconsider their previous vote at the next senate meeting.

In his speech, Anselment said "I'm asking for your approval of this legislation not only because I believe it is the right thing to do, but also as a message to our campus of the type of actions you are willing to take to better serve this institution."

Jennifer Daulby, author of the bylaw change, said she is happy that Anselment wants the proposal resubmitted.

"The procedure wasn't done the right way, and senate members didn't get to debate the issue," she said.

"Eastern students need to put pressure on the senate, since the students will be the ones paying for it, and senate members sometimes forget that."

Jeff Zilch, senate speaker, said he thinks it a positive step to bring the bylaw back for more discussion.

"Eastern students need to put pressure on the senate, since the students will be the ones paying for it, and senate members sometimes forget that."

—Jason Anselment
Student Body President

"I think if anyone feels something deserves reconsideration then the senate should take steps toward addressing the person's concern," Zilch said.

Anselment also said he wants to challenge the senate members to make Student Government a more effective and efficient system, to make the senate meetings more productive and to study ways to utilize the budget.

"I know change isn't going to be brought up over night, but we shouldn't forget them either," Anselment said.

"Sometimes we set higher standards now than in the past. I don't think there is anything wrong with setting specific and long-term goals."

In his speech, Anselment said the senate members won't answer to his standards, but to the people they represent.

"This body does its job by sticking to its agenda, and the press and its constituents' role is to hold these people accountable for themselves," Anselment said.

Anselment received a standing ovation from the senate members following the speech, and the senate's adviser, David Milberg, said this was the best address he has heard ever.

Senate member Kelly Brown said she thought Anselment's speech was great, and that it was nice to have a leader who had something positive to say instead of mentioning everything negative.

Charleston police give students door to door safety tips

By BRITT CARSON
and MICHELLE MILANO
Staff writers

In an effort to prevent crimes, Charleston police are going door to door to off-campus housing to inform students of safety and crime problems that are often overlooked.

The Community Oriented Policing and Problem Solving project is a community-wide program involving the entire Charleston Police Department. The program began in response to President Clinton's pledge to put 100,000 additional officers on the streets.

Officer Jerry Woods of the Charleston Police Department said several police officers are now on 'foot beats' and go door to door to students and around the community giving safety tips and information about crimes.

"We try to assess what the problem is, analyze how to reduce the problem and continually monitor it," Woods said.

The police department takes the information they obtain from talking with citizens to work with city government to help assess where the major problems are occurring.

Charleston implemented the program in July, but it is already successful in other areas of the United States. State police are also looking into a similar project.

The officers hope the 'foot beat' will get more residents involved, Woods said. He also emphasized that students should not hesitate to call the police when they see suspicious activity.

"Instead of getting a call the next day about a car damaged in the parking lot, we would rather get a call that says 'hey, I see a suspicious person out here

Calendar committee working to improve next year's schedule

By ROB STROUD
Staff writer

Eastern students and teachers will have one week to prepare for finals when they return from Thanksgiving break this semester.

Eastern's academic calendar committee said planning the school calendar this way was unavoidable because of the way the days of the month fell this year, said committee chair Frank Hohengarten.

Nov. 1 falls on a Friday this year. If it had fallen on a Thursday, Thanksgiving break would have been a week earlier, Hohengarten said.

"Next year there will be two weeks of class between Thanksgiving break and Christmas break," Hohengarten said.

Patrick Leniham, a professor of economics, was not troubled by the one week of class time before finals.

"I don't worry too much about the calendar," he said.

"I just try to adjust to what happens."

The committee must plan each semester so that classes run 15 weeks and finals run one week.

Then, Hohengarten said, the committee works backward, counting days.

It starts by looking at what the summer session will be like, he said.

The committee controls when the semester starts and when it ends, but it does not have control over the length of the summer semester, he said.

The committee also considers the dates of major holidays and the date of the high school state track meet, which is held at Eastern.

Once the committee plans a schedule proposal, it is sent to the President's Council.

Committee member Lankford Walker, an associate professor of finance, said, "The calendar is ultimately determined by the President's Council."

The President's Council recently approved the calendar for the 1997-98 academic year,

Iraqi planes flirt with 'no fly' zone

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military strikes against Iraq left Saddam Hussein "strategically worse off," President Clinton said Wednesday, but Iraqi forces still challenged American air patrols in the newly expanded "no-fly" zone over southern Iraq.

Clinton, speaking with reporters in the Oval Office, declared a success the twin U.S. cruise missile strikes against Iraqi air defense sites this week. They had been sparked by Saddam's attacks on the Kurds in the north.

"I'm satisfied this mission has achieved the objectives we set out for it," Clinton said in his first assessment of the U.S. moves, which included enlarging the "no fly" zone in southern Iraq.

Saddam now "knows there is a price to be paid for stepping over the line," the president said. "He is strategically worse off." Even so, Iraqi forces confronted U.S. flyers twice as they began their patrols Wednesday over the expanded no-fly zone for Iraqi aircraft that Washington unilaterally declared Tuesday.

An Iraqi air defense radar site illuminated an Air Force F-16 with its signal, a potential precursor to firing a surface-to-air missile. The warplane responded by unleashing an anti-radar missile, and the site went silent, Defense Secretary William Perry told reporters.

Two Iraqi MiG-29s also apparently tried to "lock on" to U.S. jets conducting a routine patrol, but turned away as they neared the 33rd parallel, the northern border of the expanded no-fly zone, defense officials said.

Clinton vowed to stand tough against such Iraqi threats, saying, "We will do whatever we have to do in the future to protect our pilots."

RHA to discuss state conference bid

By DEANA POOLE and JESSICA BAKER
Staff Writers

The Residence Hall Association members tonight will discuss whether to place a bid for Eastern to host the Illinois Residence Association Conference in 1998, said RHA President Matt Donoho.

"We will introduce the idea to the group and see what their reactions are," Donoho said.

The RHA will meet at 5 p.m. in Carman Hall.

Executive board members and advisers support the idea to place a bid to hold the conference, he said. Members will discuss the idea and vote on IRA '98 at a later date.

Donoho said by hosting IRA '98, it will reflect positively on Eastern and show the campus' commitment to work with other schools.

"We are hoping for a big turnout," Donoho said.

"We are trying to attract more freshmen and sophomores by having the meeting at Carman."

Former RHA executive board members and RHA members who are resident assistants at Carman Hall will be present at the meeting.

"They should bring a big crowd of people to the meeting who are interested in RHA," Donoho said.

"Hopefully people will discover RHA tonight and begin a regular attendance at the meetings," he said.

In other RHA business, a spokesperson from the Health Service will talk to members about Alcohol Awareness Month in October.

and I don't think they live here," Woods said.

During the first couple weeks of school, the police are targeting off-campus students living in houses and apartments to talk about crime and safety.

"A lot of students have never been away from home," Woods said. "We want to let them know they are part of the community and should feel comfortable calling the police if necessary."

While talking to off-campus students, officers are reminding them to lock their doors, keep their outside property locked up and keep track of visitors.

Most thefts occur because people can easily walk into unlocked buildings and apartments, Woods said. He emphasizes that students should always lock doors and windows before they leave the house or apartment.

"Students have a habit of never locking doors," Woods said. "We take more reports in the student areas than in the community areas. In several students areas I knock on a door and it comes open."

Other safety tips for students are:

■ Take valuable items home during breaks such as Christmas or spring vacation.

■ Write down the serial numbers of all valuable items such as TVs, VCRs and stereo's so if the stolen items are recovered, they can be claimed.

■ Outside items such as bikes should be chained or locked at all times.

■ Don't leave valuable items or keys for vehicles in plain view.

■ Go out in groups, especially at night. If someone decides to separate from the group they should tell someone where they are going and when they will return.

■ When out in public, don't walk in dark areas, parking lots or around bushes where people can hide.

■ Neighbors can call police if a party is too loud and is disturbing the peace.

■ Hosts of parties should always know the people who are coming to their party to prevent things from being stolen.

Walker said.

The committee is planning to work on calendars even further in advance, so that students and faculty will have more time to prepare for finals.

"I have some models all the way out to 2003,"

Hohengarten said.

Representatives from the Faculty Senate, the Council of Deans, the Student Senate, the Provost Office and the Council of Chairs serve on the committee.

Students report bicycles stolen

By JENNIFER LEE
Staff writer

Seven bikes have been stolen since school began, said campus Police Chief Tom Larson.

Larson said because there is a market for expensive mountain bikes, students need to take special care on what type of bikes they bring to campus.

Students should bring old, inexpensive bikes to school so people will not be as tempted to steal them, he said.

Amy Plath, of 36 Ringenberg, reported to campus police that her bicycle, valued at $130, was stolen in August. "My roommate's (bike) got stolen too," Plath said.

She said her bicycle was locked in a bike rack the weekend that students left school for the summer in the spring.

She said since so many people were leaving town for the summer, students just figured they would take bikes with them.

Larson said the two most common ways bikes get stolen are when they are left unlocked or when the locks are cut off.

Campus Police Officer Mike Ealy said students can register their bikes with the campus police department free of charge by filling out a form.

Information on the form includes make and model, serial number and color of the bike along with the address and phone number of owner, he said.

"Without the serial number it's extremely hard to give the bike back unless it has a special mark," Ealy said. "If you can't find the serial number come in between 3:30 and 11:30 p.m. and I will use an engraver and put a mark on the bike."

Ealy said many times the stolen bikes are recovered.

"Sometimes bikes are picked up on one end of the campus and left in the city or at the other end of campus," Ealy said.

Larson said the problem with bicycles being stolen is not because of the lack of bike racks. "There have been several bike racks added over the last couple of years," he said.

Neither Plath's nor her roommate's bicycle have been recovered.

Senate discusses grade appeal policy

By REAGAN BRANHAM
News editor

The Student Senate next week will vote whether to recommend a change to the current grade appeal policy, which is regulated by the Council of Academic Affairs.

William Addison, chair of the grade appeals policy subcommittee, Wednesday night gave a 20 minute presentation to senate members about the proposal.

The change that caught the most opposition from the senate was the possibility of eliminating the student vice president for academic affairs from the Department Grade Appeals Committee.

The current process allows Kim Harris, the current student vice president for academic affairs, to walk students through the grade appeal process and give advice to the committee making the decision on the appeal.

The new proposal calls for a pool of students who would be qualified to give advice on the grade appeal process.

Harris said the proposal may be unfair for students appealing a grade if the student from the pool of names is not familiar with the process.

"The more people you draw into the process the more confusing it becomes," Harris said.

Student Vice President for Public Affairs Brian Anderson agreed Harris should take care of grade appeals because that is the main focus of her position.

"We have one person who is well versed in the policies and with the new policy, they are just going to pull someone out (of a pool of names)," Anderson said.

Harris also said the confidentiality of grade appeals may be lost if more students were brought into the process.

No one besides the student, the grade appeals committee and the student vice president for academic affairs is supposed to know details of the grade appeal.

Moran Beasley, a junior history major, spoke in favor of the process change during the meeting.

"It seems to me as if they are trying to make it easier for students," he said.

Other proposed changes in the grade appeal process are shortening the time students have to appeal from four weeks in the following semester to three and changing the make-up of the appeals committee.

Currently the appeals committee is made up of faculty in the same department as the professor involved in the grade appeal.

The proposed change would have the committee members be from the same college, but not the same department as the involved professor.

Harris said the proposal would help professors feel more comfortable judging each other, and may give students a better opportunity to voice their complaint.

In other senate business:
■ The senate is accepting applications for four at-large and one on-campus seats that are open.

The applications should be turned to the Student Government Office in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union by Friday.

Senate to publish updated Student Government brochure

By JESSICA BAKER
Student government editor

After working on it for two years, the Student Government brochure has finally been updated to fit the current descriptions of its branches, senate committees, and student faculty boards and councils, said Student Body President Jason Anselment.

The brochure hasn't been updated ed since the reconstruction of the Student Senate executive positions in 1994, Anselment said.

"Two years ago, the senate executive board was made up of the president, an executive vice president, chief of staff, vice president for financial affairs, and a Board of Governors representative," he said.

Anselment said the board was changed so the vice presidents would have additional responsibilities.

The brochure defines the executive officers' positions and job tasks and lists the functions of the different Student Government committees.

"I'm still checking out the prices to see how much it will cost to print the brochures in color," Anselment said.

"In the past we have just used black and white copies of the brochures, but hopefully the color will make them look professional."

He said the senate will spend between $100 to $200 to print the brochures.

"I hope we won't spend over that amount," Anselment said.

"There will probably be a resolution at the next senate meeting to allocate money for the brochures."

"There has always been money in the budget to print the brochures, but we just haven't used the money since it hasn't been revised until now."

The brochures should be returned from the printers in about two weeks.

Anselment said the brochure will be used throughout the year.

"We will use the brochure at open houses for the new students to see how the Student Government is set up," he said.

Voters need to know more before altering form of government

In a time of presidential campaigns and promises, local voters now have to learn how a Charleston city manager could benefit the community.

The Charleston City Council Tuesday night voted in favor of placing a referendum on the November general election that gives voters the choice to establish a city manager position.

For the city council, the decision to place the referendum on the ballot was easy. This type of change in government obviously should be handed to the people for a vote.

However, for the voters, it will be a difficult decision to make. Eastern students and Charleston residents need to learn all the positive and negative aspects of a new $50,000 position before they cast a vote.

The time line has been set, and now voters have about 60 days to decide if this new position is needed. Many questions need to be answered before casting such an important vote.

Mayor Dan Cougill said a city manager would be responsible for daily affairs of the city. The city council and mayor would simply vote on policy and set goals and objectives for the community.

Is Charleston a big enough community to require a position solely responsible for day-to-day activity? Charleston has operated under the same form of government for years, and voters need to find out if the position will benefit the city enough to justify such a high-salary job.

People will also need to understand the role of the city council if a city manager is hired. Will commissioners continue to hold as much representative power?

Would a new city manager take over the responsibilities of liquor commissioner? Cougill said it is still uncertain who would oversee liquor regulations.

Obviously, a new city manager could bring many changes to Charleston that will affect both local residents and students. The homework has been assigned and it's due in two months.

Volunteers need to begin educating voters on the new position. And voters need to study their notes and find out all the truths about a new city manager position. This assignment could either cause a community to fall or flourish – and it's all in the hands of the people.

Media gives Moseley-Braun negative review

Why is Sen. Moseley-Braun (D-IL) getting continuous negative coverage since her return from Nigeria? Was her visit so repulsive that it warrants so much debate in the media and within the Democratic Party?

I wonder why!
Rep. Bill Richardson (D-NM) has visited Burma, Cuba and North Korea a number of times during the past 12 months. These nations have been accused of human rights abuses, dictatorial rule and other practices that run counter to American beliefs.

During the Reagan administration, Chester Crocker, an African Specialist at the State Department put forward the idea of 'constructive engagement' vis a vis South Africa, just after Carter's doctrine of 'disinvestment.' Behold, apartheid eventually gave way to democratic rule. We must engage the present rulers in Nigeria in dialogue even if they deny democratic rights and the rule of law to their citizens.

The press and the other critics of Moseley-Braun should look again on the issue of Nigeria. When the Commonwealth Conference suspended Nigeria from its membership late last year, calls were made for sanctions and other punitive measures against her. Western European governments, the United Nations and even the U.S. Government refused to embargo Nigeria's oil. Is human rights only 'valued' for an end to a political means?

What has been embargoed? Only travel to these countries by members of the military government and their cohorts.

Amnesty International and other private human rights organizations may be calling for tougher sanctions against Nigeria. This will not produce positive results if dialogue is not pursued.

Diplomacy is the tool governments use for achieving their foreign policy objectives. These foreign policy objectives advance the national interest. What would happen if the United States embargo Nigeria's oil? Nigeria supplies one-fifth of America's daily oil consumption.

Why pick on Moseley-Braun? Oil companies like Chevron, Texaco, Shell and Mobil are not sanctioned or picketed. Why? Is this an oversight? Is it because they provide largess to these companies? Or could it be because this will affect America's productive capacity?

OLATOYE BAIYEWU
Regular columnist

“Was her visit (to Nigeria) so repulsive that it warrants so much debate in the media ... ?”

The press and political operatives must not hoodwink the people. A few years ago, Algeria elected a democratic parliament. The election was canceled because Islamic parties won the majority. We cannot have it both ways.

M.K.O. Abiola, presumed winner of the Nigerian election and chairman and managing director for International Telephone and Telegraph, represented ITT in Africa and the Middle East prior that election. Are we to accept the protection of ITT's investments and not the human rights of Nigerians?

We are either for democratic principles or we are not. The aftermath of the canceled Algerian election is civil war, and the deaths of more than 50,000 Algerians and foreigners.

The denial of democratic principles in Algeria rang from Paris to Washington and other Western capitals.

We hear about the deaths and assassinations of French clergy and moderate Algerians who support the principle of participatory democracy. These activists have argued and promoted the ideals of democracy which unfortunately was denied after the result of the free and fair elections observed by representatives of democracy groups and the United Nations.

Islam was used as a basis for denying this participatory vote. It was President F.D. Roosevelt who said “there is nothing to fear but fear itself,” the press and policy makers must take stands that reflect our ideals and beliefs.

The mistake made by Moseley-Braun is not informing her staff and the administration. She should make amends to the State Department, her staff, her constituency and the American people. Taking a belligerent stand will only hurt her political future and she must understand this.

Limiting cigarette ads proves U.S. president oversteps authority

Dear editor:

I read Mr. Reiter's response to the Aug. 30 column, "Limiting cigarette ads violates free speech." Frankly, Reiter's response missed the mark. First of all, Reiter asserts that Article I, Section 8, paragraph 3 gives Congress the right to regulate "interstate commerce." This is true in a sense. But what that paragraph actually says is "Congress shall have the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes." Nowhere in this paragraph does it mention that Congress has the power to regulate individual companies or industries; it simply states that it shall regulate how states conduct commerce with each other. This was provided as a tool to prevent the states from enacting tariffs and other trade barriers against each other, not as a means to forbid Marlboro from sponsoring Roger Penske's Formula I Racing Team.

In the legal sense I am forced to concede Reiter is right to assume that Congress has the power to ban the Marlboro Man from billboards near elementary schools, since the Supreme Court agrees. (The shrinking level of a doctoral thesis, and thus it would be folly to attempt a detailed discussion on that topic within the limited confines of this letter.) But more fundamental than the semantics debate is the discussion of who, if anyone, is empowered to regulate interstate commerce. Reiter states that the Constitution allegedly empowers congress to carry out said regulation. He did not, however, say anything about the president's power to regulate commerce – and rightfully so, since there is no provision in Article II that could possibly be construed to give the president this authority. Yet we find that it is the president, via executive order, who is attempting to regulate the tobacco industry, not Congress. As a political science graduate, Reiter should have known and commented on the fact that this is a clear violation of the separation of powers, provided that Congress or not Congress has that right, it should be clear in this case that the president has overstepped his constitutional authority.

Tarble offering international art workshops

By THERESA GAVLIN
Activities editor

Tarble Arts Center is offering art classes that emphasize international art to faculty and students this semester.

"We're trying to make more different things available and offering more multicultural type classes," said Kit Morice, curator of education at Tarble.

The workshops for the fall semester will include:

■ The Latin American Arts Experience, which runs Oct. 13 and 20. Participants will create two art forms based on Latin American designs.

The first form is jewelry with clay beads and medallions inspired by Mexican sun motifs and the second form is Ocarinas, which are clay whistles made in the forms of animals.

Participants also will be introduced to Latin American music while they work. This will be presented in conjunction with an art display from Latin America, Morice said.

The workshop is $30 for members and $36 for non-members. Registration deadline is Oct. 4.

■ The Mexican Tin Ornament Workshop, which runs Nov. 5. Participants will learn how to design ornaments based upon a form of popular Mexican art.

The workshop is $30 for members and $36 for non-members and the registration deadline is Nov. 1.

In the Handmade Christmas Card Workshop, which runs Nov. 12 and 19. Participants will learn how to make paper and block print.

Renovations on hold until funding approved

By DAN KARNES
Staff writer

Booth Library renovations are on hold until funding is approved by the Illinois General Assembly.

"We are waiting to see how much money we are going to get before we can start to move on this," said Allen Lanham, dean of Booth Library.

"There is a bill that we hope the General Assembly will act on in the fall session to increase the state bonded indebtedness so that funds would be available to begin the project at Booth Library," Eastern lobbyist Chris Merrifield said.

Pending approval, the move would provide $1 million for library renovations. Eastern would then ask the state to allocate an additional $15.3 million.

"If the General Assembly fails to act during the fall session, it would be legislation to be considered by the 90th General Assembly in January," Merrifield said. "Until that takes place, the money is not available."

The General Assembly will meet for three days in November and three days in December, so time is limited, Merrifield said.

"But it is a high priority issue for all state agencies and universities and community colleges," he said.

Renovations will begin when the Capital Development Board, which oversees state building renovations, is told if the $1 million in funding from the state legislature is approved. Work could start as early as November, Lanham said.

Lanham said that the library needs to expand the area to 20,000 square feet, but he is hoping for more expansion with the $15.3 million.

The budget request is part of the planning initiative introduced by Eastern President David Jorns in 1993.

Substance free housing: cleaner, less distractions

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Places like the sixth floor of Denton Hall at the University of Maryland are redefining what it means to have a good time at college these days: It's a no-smoking, no-drinking, no-drugs zone.

In fact, although the College Park campus has something of a reputation as a party school, there's a waiting list of students who want to get into the university's "substance-free housing." Some students say they just want to avoid temptation. Most, however, say it's just quieter and has fewer distractions.

"People don't come back from the bars and throw up on the floor like in other dorms," said J.R. Rosenberg, a 19-year-old sophomore from Potomac who lives on Denton's sixth floor. "Last year, the floor above us was really disgusting." About 1,000 students of the 8,000 people in campus housing at College Park picked substance-free housing this year, signing contracts agreeing not to bring alcohol or tobacco into their rooms. (Drugs are banned in all dorms already.) Some entire buildings on campus are substance-free, while some floors in otherwise unrestricted dorms allow no alcohol or cigarettes.

Leaders begin battle to regain majority

CHICAGO (AP) - Confessing they got caught napping two years ago, Illinois labor leaders opened their state convention Wednesday by pledging an all-out drive to end Republican domination in Springfield and in Washington.

"We've got 1.5 million members of the AFL-CIO in the State of Illinois alone, and all we have to do is go out and motivate another 20 percent of those who didn't vote last time and we change many, many elections," Illinois AFL-CIO President Don Johnson said. "You shift 2,000 votes in this state and Mike Madigan still controls the House of Representatives."

In phrases ringing with militant spirit, one speaker after another urged the 800 delegates from dozens of AFL-CIO unions attending the three-day convention to work to get back the legislative majorities lost in the 1994 Republican landslide.

Lacking from the pep rally atmosphere, though, was any suspense over the labor federation's endorsement. In the heavily spotlighted race for the seat of retiring U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., the AFL-CIO broke with custom and gave its blessing to U.S. Rep. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., even before the primary.

The emphasis was entirely on getting out an overwhelming Democratic vote.

To motivate union voters, labor groups are mailing thousands of sharp-edged fliers that spotlight the legislative records of incumbents. They also are increasing their 1994 level of $4 million in contributions to legislative candidates by 20 percent to 25 percent, Johnson said.

But the main difference may be that unions are no longer complacent after 1994 elections in which Republicans wrested control of the Illinois House from Democrats who, headed by Rep. Michael Madigan, D-Chicago, had for decades been staunch labor allies.

Congress closing early to focus on campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eager to ship their candidates home to defend Republican congressional majorities, GOP leaders decided Wednesday to drop any plans for an election-season tax-cut bill. They mapped a curtailed agenda that could let Congress adjourn for the year by late September.

With lawmakers back at work after a month of political conventions and vacations, the announcement signaled that top Republicans saw little gain - for their own candidates or GOP presidential contender Bob Dole - in forcing a long series of high-profile veto battles with President Clinton.

Instead, they believe it best to have lawmakers stumping at home, where the campaign can become a series of local races.

Democrats would like to make the contests a referendum on unpopular House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

"It's important we have the opportunity to go back and get engaged in debate back home, and not here," said Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., a member of the Senate GOP leadership.

To achieve their goal, leaders want Congress to complete the 12 remaining spending bills for the upcoming fiscal year, tackle a few other issues, and leave.

"I'm going to be one-dimensional here" and focus on spending bills, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., told reporters.

Democrats, eager to deflate the tax-cut drive that has become the heart of Dole's presidential campaign, expressed little displeasure that there would be no congressional fight over lowering levies.

Edgar, Illinois reinforce GOP unity message

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. Jim Edgar, this state's biggest Bob Dole backer, reinforced the Republican unity message Wednesday, saying Dole's Illinois leadership team includes all of the state's top elected officials.

"Illinois Republicans are 100 percent behind Bob Dole and Jack Kemp, from top to bottom, and there will be a 100 percent campaign effort in our state that will result in a victory in November," Edgar said.

Co-chairs of the Bob Dole-Jack Kemp Illinois campaign include Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra, Attorney General Jim Ryan, Comptroller Loleta Didrickson and House Speaker Lee Daniels, R-Elmhurst. They held those posts in the March primary campaign.

Joining the team are Secretary of State George Ryan, State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka and Senate President James "Pate" Philip, R-Wood Dale.

Named as vice chairs were all Illinois Republican congressmen, U.S. Senate candidate Al Salvi, national committeewoman Mary Jo Arndt and national committeeman Bob Kjellander.

State Republican Party Chairman Harold Smith has been named Illinois Victory '96 chairman.

Sierra Club wants end to reservoir

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Four years after they convinced a federal judge to delay construction of a 1,200-acre reservoir near Marion, opponents of the project are heading back to court to try again.

Laurel Toussaint, chairwoman of the Sierra Club's Shawnee Group, said Wednesday a lawsuit would be filed "imminently" after the Army Corps of Engineers gave Marion a building permit July 30.

A draft copy of the suit accuses the Corps of failing to properly consider other alternatives for Marion's water supply. The city also was named in the lawsuit.

"Our nation's environmental laws exist to prevent this type of unnecessary destruction of unique resources," Toussaint said.

A news release from the Sierra Club said the suit was to have been filed Wednesday, but clerks at the federal courts in Benton and East St. Louis said they had not received it.

Toussaint and seven other individuals are named as plaintiffs in the action. The suit says five of them own property that would be flooded if the $11.7 million project proceeds.

The lake's opponents hope for a repeat of 1992, when a similar lawsuit convinced a judge to throw out the permit because it did not adequately examine the environmental consequences.

The ruling forced the Corps to spend several years preparing an environmental study. Corps spokesman Ken Crawford in Louisville, Ky., said his agency stands by the permit it issued in July.

"We believe that we did an adequate review and evaluation of all the alternatives," Crawford said.

The lake would be formed by damming Sugar Creek, which environmental activists say is one of the last, free-flowing, high-quality streams left in Southern Illinois.

They also say the reservoir on the Williamson-Johnson county line would jeopardize the Indiana bat, which is on the federal endangered species list, and two species on the state's endangered list: the leastbrook lamprey, which resembles an eel, and the Indiana crawfish.

Marion officials say they need the reservoir to meet their growing water needs. The city has been looking for a new water source since the mid-1980s.

Construction could start this fall.

Bill Simmons, one of the landowners who joined the lawsuit, said he'll lose one-third of his 50-acre farm if the lake is built.

"I figure it's a good lawsuit because we've always said all along that they didn't do the environmental impact statement right," Simmons said.

Marion Mayor Robert Butler did not return a telephone call Wednesday.

Gambling may be linked to genes

CHICAGO (AP) — Compulsive gambling may be a genetic illness much like other addictions such as alcoholism, two California researchers say.

More than 50 percent of 171 problem gamblers studied carried a variant gene linked to other addictions, compared to 26 percent of non-gamblers, the researchers said Tuesday at the National Council on Problem Gambling conference.

The inherited gene is a variant of a gene called the dopamine D2 receptor. Dopamine is a chemical messenger in the brain thought to play a role in feelings of reward and pleasure.

People with the variant gene tend to stimulate their brains' pleasure pathways in unhealthy ways, said Dr. David E. Comings, a physician at City of Hope Medical Center in Duarte, Calif., who led the study.

"We can become addicted to that pleasure," he said.

Compulsive gamblers react to gambling differently from other people, said co-author Richard Rosenthal of the psychiatry department at the University of California, Los Angeles.

"The sweaty palms, the rapid heartbeat, the queasy feeling in the stomach — there's a physiological response," Rosenthal said.

Workers discover 88 sets of Illiniwek tribe remains

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Museum workers pored over old records and searched dusty rooms to comply with a federal order to count American Indian remains held by the state of Illinois.

The total: 5,827.

That answer, however, just raises more questions — the biggest being: What should happen to all those skeletons? The inventory was conducted because of NAGPRA, the federal Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act. The goal was to find out what remains and artifacts are being held by the government and then return them to the appropriate tribes.

For instance, the inventory found 88 sets of remains from the Illinois, or Illiniwek, tribe. Their modern descendants are the Peoria Tribe of Oklahoma, so the Peoria probably will claim the skeletons and work with the state to rebury them.

But 98 percent of the remains are older, some up to 8,000 years old. They cannot be linked to modern-day tribes. Federal regulations do not spell out what should be done with "culturally unaffiliated" remains and the artifacts that were found with them.

It's Thursday night. You've just watched yet another rerun of "Friends," and you're looking frantically for something you haven't seen before. The answer? "Hello Dali," the improvisational theater troupe that never does the same show twice. This is entertainment so innovative, the players haven't seen it before, either.

The troupe will present their first show of the season tonight at Kristy's (formerly Rosie's), at 615 Monroe St. on the Charleston Square.

The show is a series of skits and scenes based on audience input and direction, making the audience an integral part of the show. The cast will take the stage at 10 p.m., and will continue to induce laughter every other Thursday, same time, same place.

But their sense of humor can't be kept in one place. "We're like Big Foot," said Matt Fear, junior theater arts major and leader of the troupe. "You never know where we'll turn up. We've been known to show up on the library quad, at benefit shows, and we love taking the show on the road."

Fear said the troupe has played everywhere from Bagelfest to a circus wagon, and every place in between.

Members enjoy how easily "Hello Dali" can move from place to place, but both Fear and Jen Corrington, senior theater arts major and two-year Dali member, agree that their Charleston audience adds to their enjoyment. "It is such a good feeling to do a show and see people who've been there before," Corrington said.

"When people come back a second or third time we know we've been able to make them laugh," Corrington said.

"It's amazing," Fear said. "People really seem to enjoy the show, and the audience is so great. We did a show at ISU, and the audience was great, but it just wasn't the same as the Kristy's crowd."

The troupe is made up entirely of Eastern students and is not affiliated with the university. "Hello Dali" has been a Charleston fixture for four years, and although each member has different talents to offer the troupe, they all share the same drive to make people laugh.

"Ever since I started with the group, it's been my passion," Fear said. "It's a great way to blow off steam and be crazy, a chance to be loose and just do whatever. The show is all in our heads, and it goes wherever we take it."

"In addition to being so much fun," said Corrington, "it's a great way for an actor to learn. The spontaneity, thinking on your feet, and reacting to the audience is both fun and beneficial."

"Plus, it teaches you how to lie really well," Fear said.

Corrington said doing improv uses a different type of acting skill than doing scripted theater.

"It comes from a different part of the actor," she said. "We never rehearse the things we do." The troupe uses rehearsal time to hone their improv skills. They sometimes get ideas from rehearsal, but what the audience sees during a performance is always unrehearsed.

Troupe members include Fear, Corrington, junior theater arts major Lisa DiGangi; junior philosophy major Eric Foote; sophomore theater arts major Bobby Ladewig; senior theater arts major Tracy Phelps; senior theater arts major Kate Slovinski; and senior theater arts major Clint Vrona.

"Each member is simultaneously the director, choreographer, sound effects and set designer," Fear said. "We have to be in tune to what each other is thinking."

Whatever happens during the show, Fear and Corrington guarantee laughs. Whether they're donning togas and boxing or just poking fun at daily life, "Hello Dali's" motto is: "Think fast, act smart, and most of all, be funny."

U.S bombs hit Iraqi radar

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) - Anti-aircraft fire lighted the skies of Baghdad late Wednesday after the United States fired a new round of missiles into southern Iraq and destroyed an Iraqi radar site that was preparing to attack an American F-16 fighter jet.

Detonations reverberated throughout the capital for 15 minutes and air-raid sirens blared as the anti-aircraft batteries fired.

It was not clear if the gunners hit, or even had, specific targets, or whether the barrage was a government attempt to make Baghdad's residents feel under siege.

Washington insisted there had been no American, allied or other military operations in the area, although a Iraqi military statement accused the United States of attacking Baghdad directly.

"The malicious American enemy ... sent his missiles aiming at several military positions and at heavily populated civilian sites," including Baghdad, the Iraqi statement said. Iraq's "sons confronted the missiles with efficiency and capability and downed a high percentage of them."

Government-inspired anti-American protests were reported in Babil and another town south of Baghdad following a third round of U.S. missile attacks on Wednesday and patrols of the newly expanded no-fly zone.

"Iraqi willpower will not be defeated by the tyrants, no matter how far they go in their hateful sins, malice and aggression," said an Iraqi military communique. "The criminal Clinton is riding for a fall into the abyss of vice." But President Clinton, in his first public assessment of the American attacks on Iraq's air-defense system, called the operation a success and said Saddam was now "strategically worse off." The U.S. strikes were ordered in response to Saddam's weekend assault on Kurdish rebels.

Israeli Prime Minister accepts Arafat as a peace partner

EREZ CROSSING, Gaza Strip (AP) - Formally accepting Yasser Arafat as a peace partner, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu met today for the first time with the Palestinian leader he had long shunned and reviled as a terrorist.

The two leaders entered the meeting room separately. Flanked by aides, a grim-faced Netanyahu buttoned his jacket and reached across a table to briefly grasp the hand of Arafat, dressed in his usual black-and-white checkered headaddress and olive military-style outfit.

After meeting for more than an hour, Netanyahu said he was committed to carrying out peace agreements Arafat had signed with Israel's previous dovish government.

"We have to take into account the needs and requirements of both sides," Netanyahu said, standing next to the Palestinian leader. He said the objective of the talks was to assure "security and well being of Israelis and Palestinians alike." Arafat also expressed his readiness to move forward. "We and Mr. Netanyahu and his government can work together to advance the peace of the brave," he said.

Attack pushes no-fly zones farther north

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - Saddam Hussein's army attacked the Kurds in northern Iraq. So why did the United States respond with missiles and an expanded no-fly zone hundreds of miles away in the south?

In choosing a target, the Americans opted for Iraqi air defense systems in the south for at least three apparent reasons.

Reason No. 1: Quite simply, the Americans consider southern Iraq more important than the north. Iraq's southern neighbors, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, are major oil producers with staunchly pro-American governments that favor tough action against Saddam.

The Americans blasted Iraqi air defense systems in the south and pushed a southern no-fly zone from the 32nd parallel to the 33rd parallel, a line that runs only 30 miles south of Baghdad.

As a result, it will be more difficult for Saddam to mobilize his army and send it south to threaten Kuwait or Saudi Arabia, two countries that can't match Iraq's military might.

Reason No. 2: Northern Iraq is a complete mess, and a U.S. strike there would have been filled with risk.

Northern Iraq is even more volatile thanks to periodic attacks by Turkey, which pursues its own rebellious Kurds when they retreat into the rugged mountains across the border.

Reason No. 3: U.S. relations with Turkey, a key NATO ally that borders northern Iraq, are sensitive at the moment. The new Turkish prime minister is an Islamic conservative, and the United States doesn't want to risk pushing him away from the West.

Hurricane Fran tearing into coast

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) - South Carolina's governor called out the National Guard and ordered a half-million people evacuated from the coast Wednesday as Hurricane Fran swirled toward land with 115 mph winds on a path alarmingly similar to Hugo's seven years ago.

"Fran is a large and brutal storm, and she is not to be trifled with in any shape, way, fashion or form," Gov. David Beasley said.

The storm is most likely to hit land Thursday night north of Charleston, the National Hurricane Center said. That's where Hurricane Hugo, packing 140 mph winds, came ashore with devastating effect in 1989.

"I've ridden them all out, but I'm debating whether to go this time," 76-year-old Joe Lipsitz said as he stood outside his store in Beaufort, about 70 miles south of Charleston. His son, Neil, wasn't hesitating.

"This one I'm getting out, after seeing what Hugo did to Charleston," he said.

Hugo caused almost $8 billion in damage and killed 35 people as it tore through the Caribbean and up the East Coast. Most of the damage was in South Carolina.

At 5 p.m., Fran was centered 410 miles southeast of Charleston, wobbling northwest at 12 mph, with hurricane-force wind - 74 mph or higher - extending 145 miles out. A hurricane warning was posted from north of Brunswick, Ga., to just north of Cape Lookout, N.C.

Fran was about as large as Hugo and had the potential to become just as strong as it passed over warm water, the National Hurricane Center said.

"I do believe this one is going to get us, that's the way it's heading," said John Gallop, dockmaster at Beaufort's marina, where workers boarded up windows.

In addition to announcing a mandatory evacuation of the South Carolina coast, Beasley declared a state of emergency and activated the National Guard. Guardsmen took up positions directing traffic, and at least 1,000 were arriving in the coastal towns.

In Charleston, a sign on one restaurant read "Scram Fran" and boat owners scrambled to get their craft out of the water or to tie them down.

TWA London bomb theory ruled unlikely

LONDON (AP) - A highly respected military magazine has concluded that TWA Flight 800 probably was not hit by a missile, casting doubt on one of investigators' leading theories for the crash.

In a report in the October issue, Jane's Intelligence Review said a missile was capable of striking the Boeing 747, which was flying at 13,700 feet when it exploded and crashed into the ocean off New York on July 17, killing all 230 people on board. But the military publisher concludes the scenario is all but impossible.

For one thing, many of the aircraft struck by such missiles land safely and return to flying condition the same day, Jane's said.

The British publication is internationally recognized as an authority on military equipment used by fighting forces around the world.

In the 1973 Middle East war, only seven of the 35 Israeli military aircraft hit by Soviet-made SA-7 missiles fired by trained soldiers suffered catastrophic damage.

Sox rally to beat Tigers

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold Baines hit a bases-loaded single to break a seventh-inning tie Wednesday night as the Chicago White Sox blew a five-run lead before rallying past the Detroit Tigers 11-6.

Chicago, with six wins in the last seven games, stayed ahead in the AL wild card chase. The White Sox entered Wednesday night one game ahead of Baltimore.

Dave Martinez's single and walks to Frank Thomas and Robin Ventura loaded the bases in the seventh off reliever Trevor Miller (0-1).

Baines grounded an RBI single to left on the first pitch from reliever Joey Eischen to put the White Sox ahead 7-6, and Domingo Cedenio's sacrifice fly made it 8-6.

It was Baines' second RBI single of the game.

Frank Thomas hit his 30th homer in the eighth, a three-run shot.

The Tigers tied the game in the seventh as Curtis Pride singled and went all the way to third when reliever Bill Simas threw wildly past first on a pick-off. Mark Lewis then hit a sacrifice fly off Tony Castillo (3-3) to make it 6-

all. Detroit scored four in the sixth, the final run a disputed one.

Lewis and Travis Fryman singled, Bobby Higginson had a run-producing roller, Melvin Nieves an RBI single and Phil Nevin a two-run single.

On Nevin's single to center, Nieves raced home from second and collided at the plate with Chicago catcher Don Slaught.

Slaught, in his White Sox debut, held onto the ball but was forced to leave the game with a strained left thigh and strained left knee.

Cardinals take over first place

Sweep gives Cards control of NL Central

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals finished off a three-game sweep in the NL Central's most important series this season, beating Houston 6-4 Wednesday night to open a 1½-game lead over the Astros.

Andy Benes (16-9) pitched four-hit ball over seven innings for the Cardinals, who won all six home games against Houston and went 11-2 overall against the second-place Astros this season.

Tom Pagnozzi hit two solo homers and John Mabry added a two-run homer for St. Louis, which won its sixth straight game and completed its eighth series sweep this year.

Three of those sweeps came against Houston.

Benes worked on three days' rest for the second time in a month, moving ahead of brother Alan Benes to win for the 13th time in 14 decisions.

He allowed an unearned run in the fourth and left after Brian Hunter's home run to open the eighth.

Benes was also successful the only other time he was moved up in the rotation, giving up two runs and four hits in 6 2-3 innings of a victory over San Diego on Aug. 5.

In his last three starts he's allowed five runs in 22 innings, including a victory over Houston on Aug. 26.

Sean Berry's two-out RBI double in the eighth off T.J. Mathews cut the Cardinals' lead to 6-3 before Dennis Eckersley got the final four outs for his 26th save.

Eckersley batted for the first time in nearly 10 years in the eighth inning.

He flew out to center field in his first at-bat since Sept. 27, 1986 when he was with the Chicago Cubs.

That at-bat also came at Busch Stadium.

In a three-pitch span in the second inning, Mabry hit his 12th home run, and first since July 30, and Pagnozzi homered off Donne Wall (9-5). The Cardinals added a run in the fifth when Wall hit Brian Jordan with the bases loaded.

Pagnozzi hit his 13th home run with one out in the sixth.

Shortstop Royce Clayton bobbled Berry's two-out grounder in the fourth, and the Astros followed with singles by Tony Eusebio and James Mouton.

Wall gave up five runs and seven hits in six innings, ending his three-game winning streak since rejoining the Houston rotation Aug. 27.

Washington Bullets sign Amaya

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets signed free agent forward Ashraf Amaya on Wednesday.

The terms of the deal weren't released.

Amaya joins the Bullets after playing his rookie NBA season with the Vancouver Grizzlies.

He led the Grizzlies with a 480 field goal percentage, averaging 6.3 points and 5.6 rebounds in 54 games.

The 6-foot-7, 249-pound forward played in Greece during the 1994-1995 season with Ampelokipi Afisorama and played in the Continental Basketball Association the previous year.

He attended Southern Illinois University.

"Ashraf Amaya is a big, strong player who can rebound and defend," Wes Unseld, the Bullets general manager said.

"We believe that his addition will add depth to our frontcourt and make the Bullets a better ballclub."

Cleveland blanks Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Chad Ogea pitched a four-hitter for the first shutout of his career, and Kenny Lofton and Jim Thome each homered Wednesday night to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 7-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Ogea (8-5) allowed four singles, striking out four and walking one, in his first complete game of the season.

Rookie Jeff D'Amico (4-6) allowed four runs on seven hits in 2 1-3 innings, his shortest outing in 13 starts this season.

Albert Belle's two-run double in the first inning put Cleveland ahead 2-0.

Marlins bomb Cubs

MIAMI (AP) — Kevin Brown won his fifth straight start to become Florida's first 15-game winner Wednesday night, leading the Florida Marlins to a 9-2 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Brown (15-10) picked up where he left off in August, when he was named the NL's top pitcher.

The right-hander took a two-hit shutout into the ninth before giving up three hits and two runs.

He allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings, struck out three and walked one.

Brown struck out Todd Haney in the eighth for his 1,000th strikeout, and lowered the majors lowest ERA to 1.88.

Jeff Conine drove in four runs for the Marlins, who have won 10 of 12.

Brown's 15th win eclipsed the team high for wins in a season set by Pat Rapp and John Burkett last season.

The Marlins scored five runs off Kevin Foster (6-3) in the second to take a 6-0 lead, highlighted by Conine's three-run double.

Cubs shortstop Jose Hernandez has committed 19 errors this season, including four this week.

"I don't know what has happened with my defense," said Hernandez, who has been benched with Rey Sanchez returning from the disabled list.

Ryne Sandberg's next home run will tie him with Rogers Hornsby for second place (263) in career home runs for a second baseman. Joe Morgan is first with 266 HRs.

Hingis upsets Novotna at Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Living up to the name that has marked her promise and been her burden, Martina Hingis danced into the U.S. Open semifinals at 15 on Wednesday with an all-court attack against Jana Novotna that hinted of a different Martina.

Next up is that other Martina's old nemesis, Steffi Graf.

Hingis, named after Navratilova and guided toward a tennis career since birth, beat the No. 7 Novotna 7-6 (7-1), 6-4 to become the youngest Open semifinalist since Jennifer Capriati in 1991.

Two days after knocking out No. 3 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, Hingis put on an even more spectacular show of versatile tennis by taking apart Novotna from the baseline and the net.

"I've played so many matches, I wanted to make some points shorter," Hingis said of her net attack. Hingis, who became the youngest champion at Wimbledon when she won the doubles with Helena Sukova this summer, is still going at the Open for three titles — singles, doubles and mixed doubles.

Against the net-charging Novotna, the No. 16 Hingis did everything, slugging winners from the baseline, dropping cute, deft volleys, whacking overheads from the net and service line.

All those talents were on display during two brilliant sweeps — a 10-point surge from the first-set tiebreaker to love-40 in the second set's opening break, and an 11-point streak near the end of the second set that virtually clinched the match.

"When she needed it, she came up with a good passing shot or topspin lob," said Novotna, adding that she was surprised by Hingis' 33 charges to the net. Hingis won 19 of those approaches.

Hingis slapped a backhand wide on the first point of the tiebreaker to fall behind a mini-break, but that's all she yielded.

She won the next seven points with winners from every angle, and plenty of help from Novotna's errors.

"It's a great honor to be in the semis of a Grand Slam," said Hingis, undaunted by the prospect of playing Graf. "I beat her on clay. It's not her surface."

To say clay is not Graf's surface is to overlook her four French Open titles. But perhaps Hingis was being modest, or cautious. She beat Graf in three sets at the Italian Open this year, and lost to her three other times, once on carpet in Paris in 1995, and the past two years at Wimbledon.

On the eve of her father's trial for evading taxes on $28 million of her income, Graf is struggling to keep her concentration on tennis at the U.S. Open.

"At the moment, it's a little difficult to focus on the court," Graf said Wednesday after scattering 43 unforced errors in a 7-5, 6-3 quarterfinal victory over unseeded Judith Wiesner.

"I don't really have the most positive attitude out there."

Graf didn't want to discuss the trial of her father, personal manager and financial advisor, Peter Graf, which begins Thursday in Mannheim, Germany, where he has been jailed for 13 months.

Royals shutdown Jays

6-0 win in Toronto snaps five-game skid

TORONTO (AP) — Woody Williams allowed five hits in eight innings and Carlos Delgado hit a three-run home run Wednesday night as the Toronto Blue Jays ended a five-game losing streak with a 6-0 win over Kansas City.

Williams (3-2) struck out a career-high nine, but didn't get a chance to close out his first major-league shutout or complete game.

The right-hander, making his ninth career start, was taken out after throwing 124 pitches.

Keith Lockhart had two hits for Kansas City, which had its winning streak stopped at four games.

Jose Rosado (5-5) allowed six hits and three runs in 7 1-3 innings.

The Blue Jays were leading only 1-0 before scoring five times in the eighth.

Joe Carter and Ed Sprague hit consecutive RBI singles before Delgado hit his 23rd homer to make it 6-0.

Kansas City loaded the bases in the sixth, but Williams got Joe Vitiello to ground into an inning-ending double play.

The Blue Jays have decided not to retain the services of Richie Hebner, their manager at Triple A Syracuse, or roving minor league catching instructor Bob Didier for next season. ...

Toronto's Alex Gonzalez is hitless in his last 20 at-bats.

Kansas City closer Jeff Montgomery underwent arthroscopic surgery Wednesday to remove a bone spur from the tip of his right shoulder.

Reds finish off sweep of Braves

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom Glavine endured the worst outing of his career and the Atlanta Braves lost their season-high fifth in a row, falling to the Cincinnati Reds 12-6 Wednesday night.

Willie Greene drove in a career-high five runs as the Reds completed their first three-game sweep of the Braves at Riverfront Stadium since June 26-28, 1992.

Heading into the series, Atlanta had won 15 of its last 17 against Cincinnati.

The Reds won the first game of the series by overcoming a five-run deficit, held the team with the best record in the majors to just one hit in the second game, and finished the sweep by rallying from four runs down against a pitcher who was nearly invincible in their ballpark.

Glavine (13-9) came into the game with a 14-1 career record in 16 starts at Riverfront, where his ERA was 1.89.

The left-hander had allowed only 25 earned runs in 119 innings.

He gave up nearly a third of that total in only four innings Wednesday night.

The Reds battered Glavine for nine hits and eight runs, scoring five of them with two outs. Greene had a two-run triple that tied the game in the third and added a three-run homer once Glavine was gone.

It was the first time in 293 career starts that Glavine had given up eight earned runs. He has given up seven runs in six other regular-season starts.

Jets' Johnson demanding spot in starting lineup

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — A man in a hurry, Keyshawn Johnson says his time to be an NFL starter has come.

He says it to the media and around his teammates — even Wayne Chrebet, the incumbent wide receiver whose locker is next to Johnson's.

The only people he hasn't told are the New York Jets coaches. And they haven't told him when he'll be in the opening lineup, either.

"I think I've proven myself," the top overall pick in the NFL draft said Wednesday. "When I touch the football, I do things with it and that's the bottom line."

"How much longer do I wait ... the whole season? The fifth game? It's more important for me to be on the field when the game is on the line. It's more important to be on the field at the right time, when the game is being played, not when you can't do anything about it," Johnson made a 50-yard catch in a 31-6 loss at Denver Sunday.

But he was on the field for only nine first-half plays, and the game was decided in the opening 30 minutes, when the Broncos stormed ahead 31-0.

Jeff Graham, a high-priced free agent acquisition and an established receiver, was in for all 28 first-half plays.

Chrebet, a rookie sensation a year ago but hardly a game-breaking type player, was in for 26.

That apparently annoyed Johnson more than not being on the field for the first snap.

He simply wasn't out there for enough significant plays.

"Do you count all the plays? Or do you count when the game is on the line?" Johnson said.

"I wasn't picked to sit behind anybody. That's just the way it is."

"I can't do it sitting around. I was picked to help the team and to utilize my talents. Of the other 29 guys picked (in the first round of the draft), most of them are starting and here I am, barely playing." Coach Rich Kotite disputes that, saying Johnson had the second-most plays at Denver, behind Graham, of all the receivers.

But most of those came in the second half.

Kotite insisted Wednesday that Johnson will get plenty of work in Sunday's home opener against Indianapolis.

"I think he is ready to continue to take on an expanded role," Kotite said.

"He will play a lot this week, will have an awful lot of plays. He is on the field more and more the longer he is here."

"He thinks he can contribute. I think he can contribute. He is a force out there and we will use him." Kotite isn't disturbed that Johnson has mouthed off.

Known as a coach who prefers the quietly efficient, non-flashy types, Kotite seems entertained by Johnson's outgoing demeanor.

"He's a football player and everything we thought he was," Kotite said.

"That is confidence; he wants to help the team and he thinks he can, and the bottom line is we know he can help the team."

"He doesn't tear anything down at all. The man wants to help us win." Chrebet thinks there's room for everybody, from Johnson to Graham to Webster Slaughter to another rookie, Alex Van Dyke, to himself.

"I look at it that we are in a lot of three-receiver and four-receiver sets many times, so it doesn't matter," Chrebet said. "Each can do our own things."

Ozzie Smith's career may continue next season Hawks resign two players

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The way Ozzie Smith is playing, this might not be his last season after all.

The St. Louis Cardinals' 41-year-old short-stop announced his retirement in June, deciding to step away from the game rather than prolong daily controversy regarding his playing time behind Royce Clayton. Sometimes he wonders about the wisdom of the decision.

On Monday, Smith hit a rare left-handed home run and tied his career high with four runs scored, including the game-winner, in an 8-7, 10-inning victory over Houston. Afterward, he opened the possibility of sticking around.

"My decision is my decision," Smith said Tuesday. "I have a right to change my mind if I choose to do that."

"I'm not changing my mind right now, but if that happens, it won't be the first, and it certainly will not be the last time, that somebody has changed their mind."

Smith figures he could play two or three more years somewhere, for someone.

"If I chose to do that, I know I could do it," Smith said. "I think over the years I've proven that when I say I feel I can do something, I've done it. So that's not a big secret."

It doesn't appear that Smith will get that chance with the Cardinals despite the fact that he's hitting .294 with multi-hit games in eight of his last 18 starts and he's almost as good as ever in the field.

On Tuesday, he was back on the bench behind Clayton, who's also playing well. Clayton was batting .283 with 26 steals, five home runs and only 10 errors, and he's 15 years younger.

It's clear that manager Tony La Russa, who clashed with Smith on several occasions early in the season but probably deserves some credit for keeping the future Hall of Famer, doesn't want to discuss Smith's future.

"I have a standard response that's realistic," La Russa said.

"The manager of this club next year, he can deal with next year's problems, next year's issues."

"That's not something you look at with any player or pitcher right now. We've got enough to concentrate on." Others have no doubt that Smith can still do the job.

"Absolutely," Astros manager Terry Collins said. "He's a great athlete. He's kept himself in great condition."

"Sure, he's lost a step, but he's a veteran who knows where to play and make up for that step."

Teammate Willie McGee has played with Smith for about a decade.

"Physically, he looks good," McGee said. "I'm not in his body and I'm not in his mind, but in a role like he's in now, if he takes care of himself, he can play."

If he decides to stick with his decision to retire and take a undefined consultant role with the Cardinals, Smith said he'll have a lot of good memories from his farewell tour.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Blackhawks have re-signed defensemen Steve Dubinsky and Ivan Droppa for the 1996-97 season.

Terms of the agreements announced Wednesday were not disclosed.

Dubinsky, a ninth-round pick in the 1990 draft, played 43 games last season and scored 5 points. His total for the last three seasons is 13 points in 86 games.

Droppa spent most of last season in Indianapolis, playing only seven games for the Blackhawks. He was a second-round pick for Chicago in 1990 and currently is playing for Slovakia in the World Cup of Hockey.

Freshman Gilbert finding role with Panthers

High school star making impact

By JESSIE DELIO
Staff writer

Freshman center midfielder Kelly Gilbert lead Richwood's High School team scoring 36 goals her senior year and is ready for the challenge Eastern has to offer this year.

Gilbert played on the varsity team all four years of her high school career. Starting with 17 goals and five assists freshman year, progressing to 28 goals her sophomore and junior year, Gilbert finished off her high school career with 109 goals and 36 assists.

She had an impressive four years of soccer, earning the All Sectional and All Conference team awards for four years and the All State team honor for three years.

During her last three years of high school Gilbert was the leading goal scorer in the Mid State Six.

In her junior and senior year, the Peoria Journal Star named her player of the year.

Along with her high school experience, Gilbert played on the Metro All Star team and All Tournament team for four years.

Gilbert was selected as the Athlete of the week by WHOI television during her junior and senior year.

Along with her accomplishments, her high school coach, Wayne Macomber, and present coach, Steve Ballard, have many positive words to say about her performance.

"I knew she was going to be a big time player and leader the first time I saw her kick a ball," Macomber said.

Both coaches coincided that during rough and stressful times, Gilbert always stayed focussed.

Kelly Gilbert

"Even during the toughest times she always had a smile on her face and still had fun with the game," Macomber said.

"Even when there is a lot of tension or pressure Gilbert stays with the game plan," Ballard said.

And just as Gilbert was a very important part of her high school team, she is becoming equally as important to the Panthers.

"Gilbert is an excellent player and she made a tremendous impact in the mid-field for our first game," Ballard said.

In the Spring, Richwood High School will see the difference on the team with out Gilbert.

"It will be a different way to play the game," Macomber said. "There won't be another Kelly Gilbert and this year the focus will be more on the entire team as opposed to one leading scorer. I hope she can give Eastern as much as she gave us."

Part of what she gave her high school team was a go-to person, according to Macomber.

"If the team was looking to score, their initial reaction would be to pass it to Gilbert," Macomber said.

Both Gilbert and Ballard have noticed how she has fit into the team so far.

"I still have a ways to go," Gilbert said. "I am getting used to being around the other players, and it is good to play with the more experienced teammates on the field."

"Kelly has adjusted well and has picked up the style of play in the system," Ballard said.

"I have been getting along great with my teammates, and they are all very easy to get along with," Gilbert said.

"She seems to be well liked among the other players on the team and she has been a very positive part of the team," Ballard said.

"The team is very excited for the upcoming games, and we are all enthused to play in the next game," Gilbert said.

Johnson rushed for 181 yards. The signal caller running the Pittsburgh State offense will either be redshirt junior J.J. Dalton or sophomore Zach Siegrist.

"We run a lot of option at our level the last eight or 10 national champions at our level have been option running teams," Broyles said. "This kind of game is an advantage for us because most teams don't play assignment football."

When the Gorillas rush for at least 200 yards in a game they are 11-6-1 and they are 7-1 when they reach the 300-yard rushing mark.

But Broyles realizes that his team's defense will also have to be at their best since it will be facing a Panther offense that racked up 452 yards of offense against Western Michigan.

Defensively, the Gorillas will field a young unit this season.

"Our defense will eventually be good as the season goes along," Broyles said. "We lost two all-conference linebackers and two all-conference defensive backs, so that is going to hurt us."

Pittsburg State's defensive line is returning three starters, with senior defensive end Anthony Randlee anchoring the line.

Randlee chalked up 80 tackles in his junior season, including eight tackles for losses. He also recorded three quarterback sacks.

The other three returners on the line are sophomore Ben Peterson, junior Mike Reynolds and sophomore Chad Webb.

In the linebacker slots, the Gorillas return one starter in senior outside linebacker Eric Hendrick.

Dion Menley is slated to fill the other outside linebacker position.

Filling in the voids left by Mid-America Intercollegiate all-conference inside linebackers B.J. McGivern and Anthony Parks will be filled by senior Marv Cook and sophomore Matt Pinamonti.

Pittsburg State's secondary is also going through transition, as it will be without the services of All-American Safety Chris Brown and two-year starter Jason Gorman.

Filling in one of the holes will be senior cornerback Phillip Simons, who started two games at this spot in 1995 while spending part of the time at running back.

Taking over the other spot in the secondary will be fifth-year senior Juston Ferrell. Redshirt freshman Mark DeGuisti will step into the free safety slot.

Although Spoo realizes the Gorillas' defense is young, the big benefit for his team is that Pittsburg State will field the same type of defense that Western Michigan threw at the Panthers.

"The advantage for us is that Pittsburg State's defense is similar to Western Michigan's, and seeing that type of defense two weeks in a row has got to be a positive," Spoo said.

As for Broyles, he does not know what to expect from his team on Saturday.

"I don't quite know what to expect but I know we are capable of scoring," Broyles said. "If our defense breaks down, though, Eastern is going to put a lot of points on the board."

Freshmen running to next level

Trevino leading the way for newcomers out the first couple weeks of practices.

"I credit the older kids with helping them fit in," McInerney said.

"In just two or three weeks most of these kids feel that they fit in."

Also expected to be an asset for the women are Marci Bozer and Heidi Fossum.

McInerney said Bozer has been a "pleasant surprise" while Fossum is capable of competing with the mid-group of runners.

The biggest adjustment they have to make has just about as much to do with running as it doesn't.

"They have a whole new living environment, roommates, and freedom with their schedule," McInerney said. "Then you add a whole new team and coach."

The whole team concept is something Bozer has had to adjust to.

"This team is a lot closer (than in high school). It's different and you have to get used to it," Bozer said. "In high school you were competitive on an individual level but here you are more competitive as a team."

John

One of the most important things is for the freshmen to feel no pressure to step up and give the team a lift.

"For now I try to encourage them to make adjustments to college living and let the seniors and juniors do the team leading," McInerney said.

"I want the freshmen to just jump on the tailgate and take a ride."

Bozer said coach McInerney is unlike other coaches she had in high school.

"Coach Mac has more experience and knows where he wants to go with the team and what he wants to do," Bozer said.

In the few weeks of practice, McInerney is impressed with women and what they have shown him.

"Workout sense, they have done a real good job, and with the team sense, I'm real pleased," McInerney said. "They're fitting in real well and starting to adjust."

Not since the Bears taped the Super Bowl Shuffle before the Super Bowl have I heard that kind of confidence - the kind that borders on arrogance.

The guy even scored his first career touchdown Monday night.

And even though Dallas was WELL under 100 percent as a team, missing stars like Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek, they still had the attitude it takes to be successful.

They will not hold every team to 256 yards and six points. Sooner or later someone will score a touchdown against them. But the fire and intensity is back.

And with Cox leading the way, it certainly looks like this could be the beginning of a beautiful defense.

Phillips in legal trouble again

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Once again, Lawrence Phillips is in the news and it has nothing to do with carrying the football.

The latest problem is a civil lawsuit brought by a former girlfriend. Unsealed on Tuesday in Kansas City, it accuses the St. Louis Rams' rookie running back of beating, threatening and sexually assaulting her during a two-year relationship at the University of Nebraska.

On advice of his lawyers and his agent, Phillips wouldn't comment on the lawsuit Wednesday as negotiations continued for a possible settlement. During the Rams' open locker room period, the rookie never made an appearance.

"Since he's come to St. Louis, there's been a lot of things that have surrounded his life ... that he's trying to put behind him," said Phillips' agent, Mitch Frankel.

"He's sometimes maybe concerned that people are going to ask him questions and he doesn't really know how to handle them."

Last week was the same story. When his preliminary hearing on a drunken driving charge in California was postponed to Sept. 30, he angrily refused interview requests.

Frankel said the real Phillips will surface as soon as he puts his personal woes behind him.

"I think as time goes on and everyone gets to know him a little better, I think you'll find him very engaging and very hospitable," Frankel said.

"I think once all these factors are behind him, I think you'll really like him as a human being."

Sox making October push, Bears showing life

Two topics are crying out for attention.

The Fall of the White Sox:

As a Sox fan, it's sad to see what has happened to the once "playoff locked" South Siders.

Losing to Toronto, Milwaukee and (yikes) Detroit has not been easy to take, especially when I see the Cubbies floundering at 500, yet closer to first place than the Sox.

Now, certainly the fact that teams in the NL Central are pathetic has something to do with the Cubs being in the race, but you can't deny the chance the Cubs have for the post-season.

Put the Cubs in the AL Central, and they'd be in third place, at least 11 games out.

But the American League race is a problem the Sox have to face. Trailing Cleveland by seven games, the Sox have to again focus on the wild card — a race they lead by a game over Baltimore.

Seattle and Boston are also within striking distance, but the Sox's pitching staff will prove to be the answer.

Even though it's scary to see Jason Bere and Scott Ruffcorn on the playoff roster, the starting four and a half of Fernandez, Alvarez, Baldwin, Tapani and whoever they throw in at the fifth spot will lead the way into the playoffs.

Once there, who knows?

Hopefully, if the pitching staff is hot, a first-round win would put the Sox in a series against Cleveland.

Wouldn't it be fun to knock the Indians into the offseason?

Then it would be Chicago vs. Atlanta in the World Series. Some still say it will be Chicago vs. Cleveland. I don't think so, Tim.

The Bear Defense:

Could it be? Are the Monsters of the Midway back?

Not since the days of Singletary and Hampton have I seen the kind of intensity I saw Monday night in the Bears' 22-6 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

The inspiration...?

Not Dave Wannstedt, not a revitalized Alonzo Spellman, not even Democrats dancing the Macarena.

Free agent Bryan Cox provided the spark the Bears have been missing for many years.

A team leader and spokesman since the first day in Platteville, it's Cox that has a huge ring of media around him after games.

"We had that quiet confidence," he said after the game. "I'm happy but not overwhelmed because it's not like we didn't expect to win. We felt we could play with anybody."

See Harbeck page 15

Eastern's John Moyer (right) forces Western Michigan running back Bruno Heppel during last Thursday's 28-20 win over the Broncos in Kalamazoo. The ball ended up being recovered by the Panthers, and Eastern's offense eventually drove down the field to score. This week the Panthers return home to take on Division II Pittsburg State Saturday at 7p.m.

Division II Gorillas boast top rushing game

By BRIAN LESTER
Sports editor

Pittsburg State (Kansas) may be a Division II school, but the reputation the Gorillas have coming into Saturday's game hardly makes them an average Division II football team.

The Gorillas enter the game as the second ranked team in Division II football, and they are also the winningest team in college football in the 1990s, as they boast a 69-8-2 mark.

In 1995, the Gorillas ended the year with a 12-1-1 mark before losing in the NCAA Division II championship game against North Alabama by a 27-7 count.

Unlike last year, though, when Eastern took on NAIA powerhouse Central State at the end of September, the players have not had as much time to prepare for the game against the Gorillas.

"Against Central State the players knew what they were going up against and they had time to prepare for them," head coach Bob Spoo said. "Trying to prepare for them has been tough because the option attack is the most difficult thing to prepare for because you only see it maybe once a year."

And the option is exactly what Pittsburg State has been effective at over the years, as its total of 41,496 rushing yards over the last 10 seasons is equal to 23.6 miles of rushing offense.

Eastern's volleyball team will attempt to improve on its 0-4 start, as it will open up with DePaul this Friday at the EIU/Ramada Invitational in Lantz Gynasium before playing both Western Illinois and Wright State on Saturday.

"Because of the football schedule we can't have the volleyball tournament next year so our goal is to win it this year for the second year in a row," Eastern head coach Betty Ralston said.

Ralston said that they play two out of the three teams in the tournament every year.

"We play DePaul and Western Illinois every year," Ralston said. "But we have not seen Wright State since they beat us in the '93 Mid-Continent Conference tournament."

Ralston said this tournament won't have the same skill level as the teams in South Florida last weekend, but it will still be tough.

"The teams aren't nationally ranked like last weekends' teams, but they are still good Division I teams," Ralston said.

"It's one of those anybody can win tournaments and I hope the home court will give us the edge."

Wright State comes into the invitational with a record of 0-5 after being defeated by Arizona State University, the University of Arizona, Northern Iowa University, Northern Arizona University and the University of Miami at Ohio.

Western Illinois had a very respectable 7-3 Mid-Continent Conference record last year, but ended up 9-20 overall.

Western is returning several players from last year's team.
