State employee union ratifies new contract

By AMY ZURAWSKI
Campus editor

Despite opposition from several members of the bargaining unit, the local state employees union ratified a new contract Monday providing an average wage increase of 9.25 percent for Eastern's civil service employees.

Seth Hendler, staff representative of Local 1271 of the Association of Federal, State, County and Municipal Employees, said the two-year contract was ratified with "overwhelming approval."

The contract provides union members with more job security, a formal grievance procedure ending with binding arbitration and job audits and an average 9.25 wage increase.

Lee Newhouse, a member of the union's negotiation team, said the new contract is "a major step for the union. It is the best we've had yet. It's a contract and raise to be proud of."

Although many union members were pleased with the new contract's approval, several members of the bargaining unit opposed it.

Eastern cashier Mary Edwards, who is not a union member but is classified by her job as being a member of the bargaining unit, said she would like to see her job "taken out of the classification because the union doesn't do anything for me."

Edwards and several others, whose names were not available, said because of the inadequate job they believe the union is doing, a petition was started for the group's dismantlement.

Although Edwards did not have the exact number of people who signed the petition Monday afternoon, she said it should be available Tuesday.

The petition was presented to members as they passed through the Union walkway to attend the union's scheduled meeting for the contract vote.

"We created the petition just to see how many people felt the same way we do," Edwards said. "We weren't there to make trouble, only to find out how many were interested."

Judy Torbeck, president of Local 1271, said because she was not sure of the group's motives or the number of people involved, she did not know what effect it could have on the union.

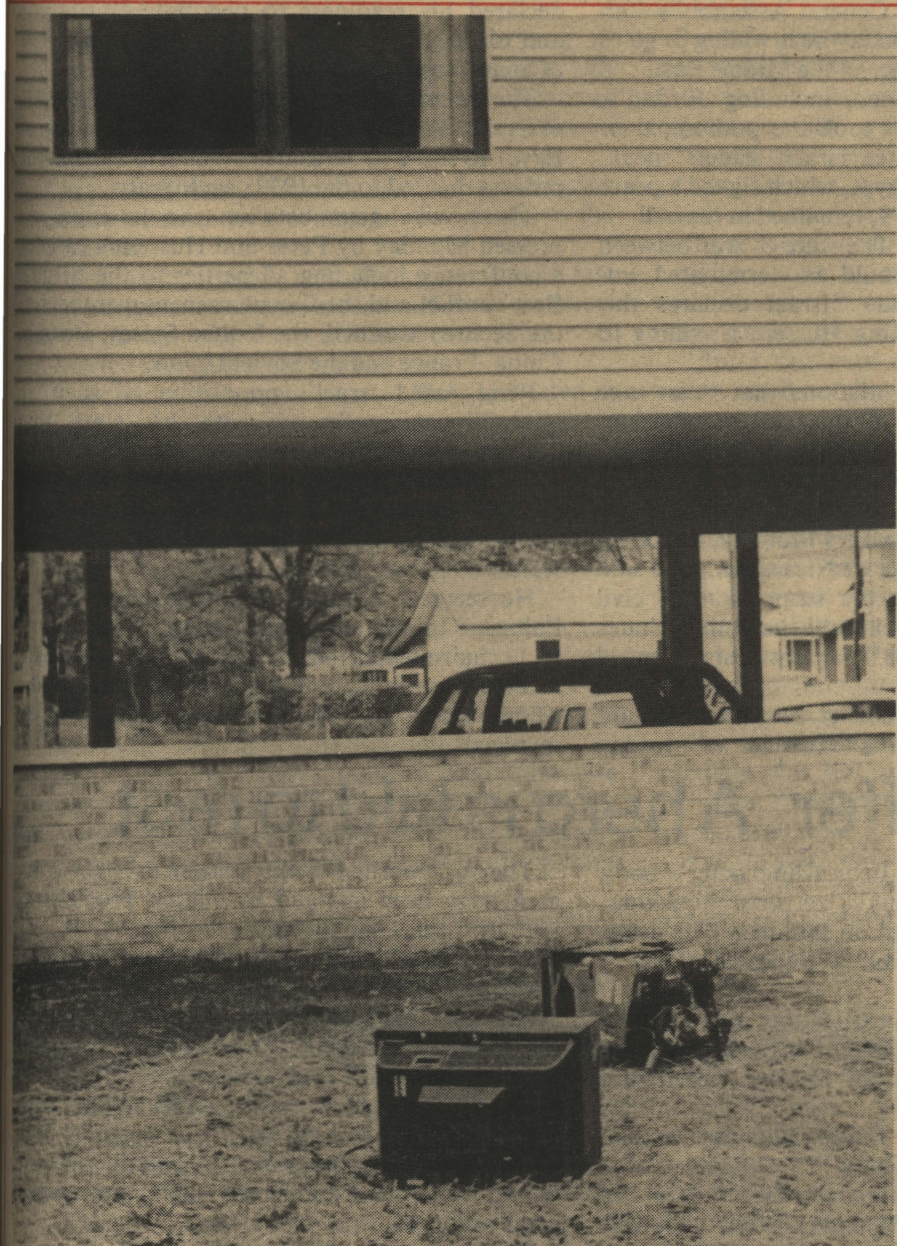

"I really don't know what could happen because I don't know any specifics," she said. "Most people have been pleased with the union, especially this year because we got such a good wage settlement. I think more are pleased than not."

In addition, Hendler said he did not know what effect the petition could have because he was not aware of the group's concerns.

"The union has provided a lot of good things during its almost three years of existence," he added.

Edwards said her group's main concern with the contract is that the pay increase provides less money for civil service workers who have been employed longer than others.

Torbeck said the newly ratified contract provides civil service workers who have been employed for 10 years or more a one-time lump sum payment of $100. Also, she said civil service (See STATE, page 7)

U.S. envoy relieves tension with Egypt over hijacking

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—President Reagan's special envoy said a meeting Monday with President Hosni Mubarak was "a good first step" toward easing diplomatic tensions over Egypt's handling of the Achille Lauro hijackers and the U.S. interception of the plane carrying them out of Egypt.

John C. Whitehead, deputy secretary of state, told reporters he gave Mubarak a letter from Reagan that "expressed his continued commitment to close U.S.-Egyptian relations and his hope that we can now put our recent differences behind us."

He came to Egypt from Italy, whose coalition government collapsed over Prime Minister Bettino Craxi's decision to release Palestinian guerrilla leader Mohammed Abbas. Abbas accompanied the four Mubarak had accused the United States of treachery for intercepting the Egyptian airliner on Oct. 10 and forcing it to land in Sicily, where the alleged hijackers were arrested and charged with piracy and the murder of an American passenger aboard the cruise ship.

Whitehead left Cairo Monday afternoon. U.S. Embassy spokesman Edward Bernier would not comment on his destination, but air controllers at Cairo airport said Whitehead's pilot filed a flight plan for the Tunis, Tunisia.

"I looked over to see if my friend was OK, but his face wasn't even recognizable," Mike Doyle, vice-president of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, said.

It was Doyle's 16th birthday. He and a few of his friends had the perfect place to celebrate. One of his friend's parents had gone out of town for the weekend and

They were drinking and having a good time when they decided they would get the car and go for ride.

It was summer. The streets were dark, and the roads were damp, Doyle said.

There were three guys in the car: Doyle in the passenger seat wearing his seatbelt, his friend driving, and another buddy riding in the back behind Doyle.

The car swerved off the side of the road and began to decline down a grassy hill. The driver had lost control and the right side of the car struck the side of a tree sending it reeling for another tree, Doyle said.

The car finally stopped moving after crashing head-on into a tree.

"I was only conscious for about 20 seconds after the wreck," Doyle said.

Police arrest arsenal protesters

ROCK ISLAND—Police arrested 115 people Monday, accusing some of "guerrilla-type tactics" during a demonstration aimed at keeping workers from their jobs at the Army's largest conventional weapons plant.

Some protesters scattered nails on the streets and lobbed paint-filled light bulbs and trash at squad cars, police said. Several women blocked one roadway by chaining themselves to old cars pushed into the street.

Charges of excessive violence came from both sides.

A 19-year-old Chicago man accused of trying to grab a policeman's gun sustained a head wound requiring eight stitches, authorities said, and one officer underwent X-rays after a protester stepped on his hand.

"We dealt with them as calmly as we could until we met resistance," said rock Island Police Sgt. Gene Anderson. "We used sufficient force to effect arrest."

"When you have people trying to disarm a police officer, that's not kid stuff."

Protesters' methods approved

URBANA—The leader of a group that has demonstrated in front of an adult bookstore said Monday its methods now have been approved by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The court, without comment, let stand a ruling that demonstrators may not be barred from using tactics such as taking photographs of customers.

"I think it's a reaffirmation of our contention that we were acting within the constraints of the law," said the Rev. Richard Jones, associate pastor of the Crusaders Church.

But Glenn Stanko, attorney for the Urbana News bookstore, said the Supreme Court did not endorse the actions of Citizens for Decency.

"The court just decided it doesn't want to hear the case at this time," Stanko said.

Eagle Books Inc., which owns the bookstore, filed a complaint in 1984 to bar picketing activities that it said were hurting business. The company said demonstrators harassed and intimidated customers by shouting at them, taking photographs and writing down license-plate numbers.

Mayor's killer commits suicide

SAN FRANCISCO—Former Supervisor Dan White, who shot and killed Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk in their City Hall offices in 1978, committed suicide Monday, city officials said.

"Dan White killed himself about an hour ago. I don't know the details," Supervisor Quentin Kopp said shortly before 3 p.m. The death was confirmed by Mayor Dianne Feinstein and Supervisor John Molinari, the board supervisor.

I am very sorry to hear that Dan White has taken his life," Feinstein said in a brief statement. "My sympathy goes to his widow, Mariann, his children and his family, who have suffered very much. This latest tragedy should close a very sad chapter in this city's history."

As news spread of his death, a large crowd gathered outside the modest house where he apparently was living with his wife.

Israeli's Peres offers to enter into '85 Middle East peace conference

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Prime Minister Shimon Peres told the General Assembly's 40th anniversary session Monday he is willing to go to Jordan to negotiate peace in the Middle East.

Most Arab delegations, including Jordan's, walked out when Peres took the podium, their customary reaction when Israeli leaders speak. The delegation from Egypt, which signed a peace treaty with Israel in 1979, remained in the hall.

"I hereby proclaim: The state of war between Israel and Jordan should be terminated immediately," Peres said. "Israel declares this readily in hope that King Hussein is willing to reciprocate this step."

Peres suggested negotiations that "can take place before the end of this year, in Jordan, Israel or any location as mutually agreed upon. We will be pleased to attend an opening meeting in Amman," Jordan's capital.

He was one of 20 speakers Monday, including President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, who said he would not remove the suspension of civil rights imposed last week until the United States ends "state terrorism" against his Central American country.

The Israeli prime minister seemed to be answering a speech King Hussein of Jordan delivered here Sept. 27, in which Hussein declared his readiness to negotiate "promptly and directly" with Israel within the framework of an international peace conference.

The Peres gesture was reminiscent of the 1977 offer by the late President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to travel to Jerusalem. The trip started the process that led to the 1979 peace treaty.

There were gaps between the position expressed Monday by Peres and Hussein's call for a conference including all parties to the Middle East conflict and the five permanent members of the Security Council: the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union.

Peres eased Israel's opposition to such an international conference with his state that negotiations "may be initiated with the support of an international forum as agreed upon by the negotiating states," but said the actual-peace talks "are to be conducted directly, between states."

He seemed to rule out participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization. Hussein and PLO chairman Yassar Arafat reached agreement in February on a joint approach to peace in the Middle East, and the king insisted the PLO be involved.

Klinghoffer: A hero is laid to rest

NEW YORK (AP)—Leon Klinghoffer's body cast into the sea during a terrorist hijacking, came to rest in the earth on Monday. The death of this crippled man was "a holocaust of one," said his rabbi.

"There was no justification for Leon's murder. I cannot conceive of his brutal slaying being God's will," Rabbi Harvey Tattelbaum said.

"Many things are finite. But not human stupidity and human cruelty."

More than 600 attended the funeral at Manhattan's Temple Shaaray Tefila, including Gov. Mario Cuomo, Mayor Edward I. Koch, Sens. Daniel P. Moynihan and Alfonse D'Amato, and two representatives of the Israeli government.

After the 50-minute service, the wooden casket was taken to Beth David Memorial Park in Kenilworth, N.J. About 50 police officers were assigned to guard the family's privacy at the 10-acre cemetery.

Klinghoffer, wheelchair-bound because of two strokes, was aboard the Italian cruise liner Achille Lauro when it was hijacked on Oct. 7. Authorities say the terrorists shot him and then ordered crew members to throw Klinghoffer and his wheelchair into the Mediterranean.

The body washed onto the shore in Syria. Four men have been charged by Italian prosecutors with the piracy and murder.

Klinghoffer's wife, Marilyn, kissed her hand and touched it to the coffin as she entered the synagogue. Her daughters—Lisa, 34, and Ilisa, 28, walked beside her. They dabbed their eyes with handkerchiefs from time to time.

The two daughters spoke, recalling the times when their father returned from business trips and brought them fancy dresses, and the times he would rush home on Friday nights for festive family dinners.

Ilisa looked toward the coffin. "Daddy, you worked so hard, had so much hardship and never complained. The world knows you now as a hero, but you were always a hero to us," she said, as sobs resounded throughout the sanctuary.

A family friend, Charlotte Spiegel, also spoke. She remembered a "very good friend, a gentle man of humble origins," who battled back from two strokes and recently confided he hoped to muster the strength to walk Ilisa down the aisle at her upcoming wedding.

Instead, he was "the victim of a mad and depraved bunch of criminals," said Mrs. Spiegel, who also was a passenger on the Achille Lauro

Faculty Senate vote expected on EIU Foundation holdings

By TERI BROWN
Staff writer

Eastern's Faculty Senate will vote Tuesday on whether to send a referendum to faculty members concerning the EIU Foundation's holdings in South Africa.

If approved, the referendum results would be used to decide whether to recommend divestiture to the Foundation.

The senate conducted a South African forum last week to discuss the divestiture issue. Senate members said the forum was "very informational," but that not enough students participated.

The Foundation currently has $229,013 invested in 10 U.S. companies that have bases in South Africa.

The senate meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Union-addition Martinsville Room.

During the forum, Andrew Leyden, president of the College Republicans, argued against blanket divestment from companies doing business in South Africa and in favor of responsible investments.

Other forum participants, including Bola Adana, a faculty member from the University of Ilorin, Nigeria, and the Rev. Jack Cramer-Heuerman of Peoria, contended divestment would be a quicker method to help end apartheid in South Africa.

Senate member Terry Perkins said although Leyden may have felt "overwhelmed" by the pro-divestment arguments that emerged during the nearly two-hour forum, he believed both sides of the issue were well-presented.

"But I wouldn't call the forum really successful," he said. "I would have liked to have seen more people there. I would like to see more campus involvement."

Senate member Bill Heyduck was unable to attend the forum, but said although he could see both sides of the issue, he believed divestment was the only way to get any action.

"It will put some pressure on them," he said.

Carol Stevens, a senate member who helped plan the forum, said coinciding events was one of the major problems of forum attendance.

"There were a lot of competing things—classes were in session, it was a Friday afternoon, and it was Homecoming weekend," she said.

"But I was very pleased with the forum. There were a small number of people there, but it was very large when you look at comparable events," Stevens said. "A lot of good questions were raised, and I think we raised the level of consciousness about the divestiture issue."

Senate member Scott Smith said he believed the program was "excellent," saying he liked the way it was shown that economics was not really a factor in divestment, but more about disapproving apartheid.

"I was impressed with the speaker who said, 'Since there is a spoon in your mouth—forget you're a slave in your own country,'" Smith said.

The senate will also vote on a resolution recommending the Illinois Board of Higher Education maintain status quo for course-specific admission requirements.

And a vote will be taken after a discussion of violation of campus security, along with examining current and proposed definition and procedures for graduate faculty.

Group studies day-care feasibility

By STEVE SMITH
Staff writer

A seven-member committee has been established to study the feasibility of establishing a day-care center at Eastern, Eastern President Stanley Rives said.

"The committee has been appointed to explore the feasibility of having a day-care facility for faculty and staff use," Rives said. "The committee will also examine the costs of running such a center."

The committee, headed by Joyce Crouse, home economics instructor, recently sent out four separate surveys, each concerning a different area of the facility.

"One of the surveys will be sent to the home day-care facilities in the Charleston area, another survey will be sent to the other day-care centers in the area," Crouse said.

"We will send a survey to area colleges and universities to see if they have a day-care center, and if so how they developed their program," she continued.

"The last survey will be sent out to the faculty and staff here at Eastern."

The survey has been developed in "mostly a straight forward way asking things like: 'Do you have a program?' 'How do you pay for it?' and 'How has the reaction been?' It's all pretty basic."

Crouse noted that preliminary results of the survey are expected to be completed around Jan. 15.

"The committee is only looking into the costs and responsibilities of running a day-care center," Crouse said, "This does not necessarily mean that a facility will be established."

Court puts handicapped rights on agenda

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Monday set the stage for an important ruling on handicapped rights by agreeing to decide whether airlines may discriminate against the disabled.

The justices said they will review a ruling, challenged by the Reagan administration, that the government must guarantee the rights of handicapped air travelers.

A decision by the high court is expected by July.

On Jan. 18, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here ruled that commercial airlines are covered by a 1973 law that bans discrimination against the handicapped by anyone receiving federal aid.

Agency reports FarmAid repeat coming in June

DALLAS (AP)—The word is "go" on a second FarmAid concert. An official with the Euleess, Texas, firm handling the publicity and contributions for the first FarmAid concert confirmed Monday that another fund-raising concert for farmers will be held June 1 in New York.

Singer Willie Nelson, who organized the first event, spilled the beans a little earlier than planned, according to Jim Nicholls, executive vice president of PLC, the advertising agency handling the FarmAid events.

The Des Moines Register reported in a copyright story Sunday that Nelson said he was planning a second concert, at the suggestion of actor James Cagney, for Yankee Stadium.

"It wasn't due to be released because they haven't tied down the venue," Nicholls said Monday. "On June 1 there will be a FarmAid concert in New York."

Nicholls said it's still uncertain whether the concert will be in Yankee Stadium. He also said performers had not been lined up, but added that the concert would include some performers from the first Farm Aid concert.

"This all just broke this morning," he said.

Nelson, interviewed in Austin over the weekend, said Cagney "got in touch with me before FarmAid and wanted to know what he could do to help. Hes got a deep interest in the problem, maybe because he lives on a farm up there in Connecticut."

"After FarmAid, Mr. Cagney said he wanted to do it again in New York City so all those city people might be made more aware of the problems that farmers are having."

"He said he could arrange to hold it in either Carnegie Hall or Yankee Stadium, and I said, 'Well, let's take Yankee Stadium because we can put a whole lot more people in there.'"

The Register reported Nelson said he talked to country singer Merle Haggard on Thursday, "and Merle agreed to help me pull this together."

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Monday's edition of The Daily Eastern News that Alcoholics Anonymous meetings are conducted in the Union-addition Sullivan room.

The group's meetings are actually conducted at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Union-addition Kansas room. The News regrets this error.

Keeping refunds from loan debtors may help problem

A plan to withhold federal tax refunds from Illinois Guaranteed Loan defaulters is right on the money.

The plan, agreed upon by the Illinois State Scholarship Commission and the U.S. Department of Education, will apply federal tax refunds of some 7,000 defaulters to their delinquent loan payments.

Editorial

While an average of about 95 percent pay back ISSC loans, the problem lies with the 5 percent who bite the hand that feeds them.

ISSC and the federal government's new initiative, which affects only those who haven't made payments in the last year, will take aim at those 5 percent.

They will be reminded in rather forceful terms that they signed a promissory note before skipping town.

"We're not out to get anybody," said ISSC spokesman Bob Clement. "We just want to make students aware of their responsibilities."

Just what are students' responsibilities? The answer is simple: Students intending to apply for a loan, but not intending to repay the money, should shred their applications.

Default is something that cannot be taken lightly. A Department of Education survey done in September estimated government payments on delinquent loans will skyrocket 45 percent this year to more than $1 billion. Analysts predict more staggering increases in the next five years.

Ultimately, defaults by current students and ones who already owe will be borne by both taxpayers and students seeking loans in the future.

One such student, Eastern sophomore Darryl Durrell, offered an increasingly typical story. He said he was denied a loan this year because, from what he understands, "so many people don't pay off their loans in the first place."

That kind of dilemma shouldn't happen. But because so many loans remain unpaid, officials must now use hindsight to cope with the problem.

Whatever return rate this latest program incites is better than nothing.

No way to bypass midterm hysteria

Midterm is here, which can only mean one thing—people are losing their minds. This hysteria is natural. Midterms are a very frustrating time in one's educational career.

First of all, no one ever expects them to come. Final exams week is anticipated throughout the year. It's a natural phenomena which many students have learned to deal with since high school.

But midterm is just kind of shuffled in there with the rest of the yearly assignments. The problem is that the assignments and tests given during this period are far more tedious than the others. Tests are longer. Papers are more complex.

And final exams week is exactly that—a week in which all one does is study and take tests. Midterms are given while classes are still in session. Thus, the good student finds himself not only studying for these mind-bogglers, but attempting to keep up in all the other assignments given.

In addition, no one ever expects midterms to be that hard. This is false. Need I say more?

Fourthly, finals are usually a bittersweet time. While one must take a bunch of tests that would put Trivial Pursuit to shame, there is the wonderful realization that after these tests the semester will be over.

Midterm are different. One completes the tests, and then must return to classes for about eight more weeks. There's nothing to look forward to except more homework and more tests.

Lastly, the final exam period does not last one week, regardless of what instructors say. This test of studying stamina usually continues for about two weeks. By the second week, most people don't care

What's the point?

Diane Schneidman

whether they pass or fail.

Totally depressed? Good, now you can study. Actually there are many ways to survive midterms. The best technique I know of is simply not to study. It's amazing how far common sense and good guessing can carry one in life.

But I would not recommend this for everyone. It only works for backwards people like myself, and even then, it is not foolproof. But at least one doesn't feel time was wasted with fruitless study.

Another alternative is to not take the tests. This leads to failure. Thus, it is not suggested.

The third way to survive midterms is never fall behind earlier in the semester. This is an impossibility preached by instructors who do not realize how much work they assign.

Of course a person could avoid all these problems by dropping classes, but this practice is futile. It will only lead to more semesters of school which means more midterms.

There is one more way to make it through midterms. Don't sleep. Stay up all night and all day for two weeks with toothpicks holding your eyes open and book glued to hand. Then sleep until finals week. —Diane Schneidman is editorial director for The Warbler and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Terry Bruce to highlight CBAC conference lunch

By VICKY WOLSTENHOLME
Staff writer

Eastern's "Business Outlook '86," slated for Friday, features many business and economic related activities.

Terry Maris, Community Business Assistance Center director, said this year's feature item will be a presentation by Congressman Terry Bruce, who will speak at the conference's luncheon.

The program's activities, conducted by CBAC, will be held in the Union's Old Ballroom, Maris said. The program is co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Maris said seven speakers will make presentations on various issues during the conference including Les Brann, Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce; Stephen F. Selcke, assistant director of the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs; and John L. Smith, Illinois director of the Small Business Administration.

"Sure, I think it (the conference) is very good to build any business student's normal curriculum," said Ted Ivarie, dean of the College of Business. "The conference has some of the leading business people speaking, especially in the banking sector."

"We have some people from the chamber of commerce and some representatives of economic affairs," Ivarie said. "These people are well known and will deal with topics that one may read everyday in the news."

The speakers, scheduled to speak for about 45 minutes, are slated for various times throughout the day, Maris said. A complete event schedule is available on request from the business office.

The conference will be conducted in an interacting format with speakers talking and the audience asking questions.

"We encourage EIU faculty, staff and students to attend the conference," Maris said. "Our goal is to bring a forum about issues from business experts to the community, both business and private."

For the owners and operators of businesses, Maris said, it can help show what the future predictions in business will be. And for students it can help show the high and low in job employment and which way the taxes will go.

Other discussion topics include government assistance to small businesses, trends in state economic development, labor-management relations, interest rates and availability of capital, the Illinois manufacturing climate and the future of agri-business.

"This is the first time that the conference will be an all day event lasting six hours instead three hours like the last two years," Maris said.

"We've doubled the number of speakers this year and in fact we've had such good response in the previous years that two speakers asked to be invited back again this year," he said.

"He believes in motivation and truly enjoys life," Rivard said.

Schmitz, who has spoken to more than 200 audiences, focuses his presentation on how to have fun responsibly, she said.

While most speakers dwell on the evils of alcohol, Schmitz centers on drinking in moderation or responsibly.

Schmitz's presentation includes a slide show. "His show consists of video and auditory components," Rivard said.

Topics range from hazing to how to be a student leader, Rivard said.

During the end of his presentation, Schmitz challenges the audience to be responsible, Rivard said.

"Overall his performance has been described as truly uplifting and motivating," she added.

Schmitz's performance is free and open to the public.

Council to consider plans to expand Ninth, E Streets

Charleston's City Council will vote Tuesday on setting aside funds toward a $308,000 project to widen and renovate Ninth Street.

In a project that will combine Illinois gas tax revenues and city revenues, renovations will include new sidewalks, widening of the street and improved curbs and gutters on Ninth Street from Hayes to Lincoln Avenues.

In a related resolution, the city will vote on authorizing the engineering services of E. D. Buxton & Associates, owned by former city engineer Edwin D. Buxton. The cost for the out-of-house services is expected to surpass $20,000, assistant city engineer Dan England said.

In still another related resolution, the council will look to approve Steve Voris of Casey for appraising land to be purchased from homeowners for the expansion work planned for E Street.

In other business, the council will consider the petitions of Charleston homeowners asking for parking ordinance amendments. Residents living on Third Street, Buchanan Avenue and Cedar Drive requested in petitions to keep, eliminate and limit parking to residents respectively.

friend who was driving, he saw a face that was unrecognizable from being thrown through the windshield.

"His chest cavity was completely caved in from hitting the steering wheel," Doyle said.

Doyle was taken to the hospital where he spent a week suffering from cracked ribs, a head gash that received 20 stitches and several bruises and lacerations.

It was when he was in the hospital that he received the news that his friend had died after being in a coma for two days.

"It's hard to describe the feeling," Doyle said.

"What were we doing? Who did we think we were?" were some of the reactions Doyle said he had.

"I didn't know who to blame—myself? others? society?," he said. "I definitely wanted someone to blame."

After the accident, Doyle took a month off work to think about all that had happened.

When Doyle first met with his deceased friend's parents, he had tremendous guilt feelings. "It was hard to look at them," he said.

Five years later, Doyle still carries the experience with him.

"When I see people drinking and driving irresponsibly, it all comes back," he said. "I feel like yelling, 'Hey, come talk to me, I'll tell you what could happen.'"

Doyle said he always makes it a point to find out who will be driving when he goes out.

"If it's my turn, then I won't drink," he said.

"I also watch out for my friends who are driving," he said.

Doyle believes that Charleston has done a good job with drinking and driving.

"Some of my friends have received DUIs and have really learned from the experience," Doyle said.

Although Torbeck said she would like to see civil service workers who have been employed longer receive more pay, she said, "At least it is a beginning."

Edwards also said her group would like to see the union provide a chance for employees to vote if they want their classification included in the group every two years.

"This would allow new people to have their say if they wanted to be included or not," she said. "The group would probably win a few and lose a few as far as numbers go."

political crisis, which does not lend itself to easy solutions," Craxi told reporters after President Francesco Cossiga named him premier-designate.

Politicians said Craxi would try to form a government with the same four parties that joined his Socialists in the former coalition—the Christian Democrats, Republicans, Social Democrats and Liberals.

Hopes for a solution to the latest of many government crises in post-war Italy boosted prices on the Milan Stock Exchange. Shares regained two-thirds of the 6 percent they lost after Craxi's resignation Thursday.

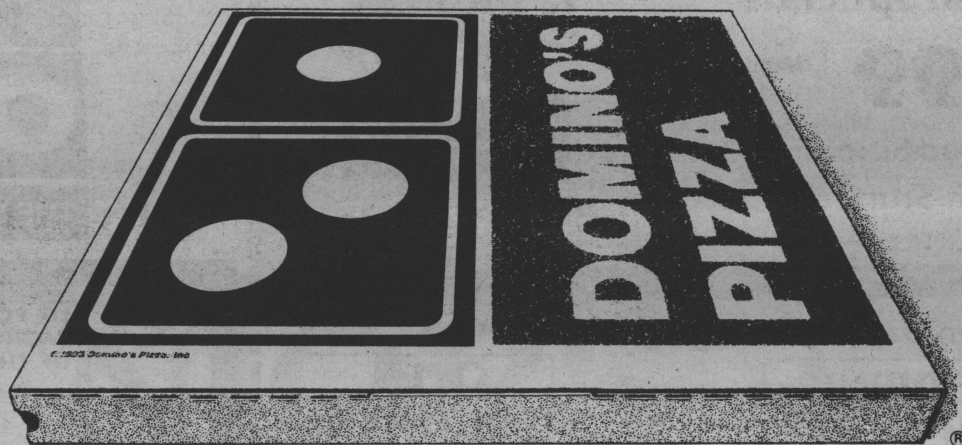

The success of Craxi's effort appeared to depend largely on his talks with Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini's Republican Party.

Exchange program offers European living

By CHRIS ILOSVAY
Staff writer

Through Bendall International's cultural exchange program, Eastern students could spend four weeks studying and living in a European country.

Bendall International Director Vivian Bendall said the program is not a tour of the countries including France, Spain, England and Switzerland, but a home living experience.

Although the programs are usually for students from 15 to 22 years old, Bendall said the age requirements can vary slightly with programs to different countries.

Students are selected for their interest in living in another country, level of maturity, ability to adapt to new places, and their ability to live with a host family or a group of students from around the world, she said.

In addition, Bendall said students must submit a letter of recommendation from an instructor in order to qualify for the program. Students interested French or Spanish program must submit a recommendation from a French or Spanish instructor.

Bendall said the teacher recommendation is a screening process to

"It varies from country to country, but students get to know that there are few differences between people, and the ones that there are are superficial."

—Vivian Bendall
Director
Bendall International

find "trouble makers" who are not interested in the program and would not be good representatives of their country.

The program also requires that students "be good representatives of their school, community and country," she said.

The program costs about $1,590, which includes air fare from New York to the country the student is visiting, an international health policy and money for the family or group that provides accommodations.

The exchange programs are a joint effort of Bendall International in the United States; Juventad Y Cultura in Spain; SSR and American Welcome, Club Des Four vents and the French ministry of education, sports and culture in France.

Bendall said students learn a lot about other cultures. "It varies from country to country but students get to know that there are few differences between people, and the ones that there are are superficial."

The exchange programs make the students who attend them better U.S. citizens because it broadens thinking and gives the students a better understanding of the world, she said.

"The programs help them to be more open with people in general and people in their own country."

Anyone interested in participating in the programs should contact Bendall International, Inc. at 11650 River Moss Road, Cleveland, Ohio 44136 or call (216) 238-3711.

Salvi makes bid to unseat Bruce

By KEVIN McDERMOTT
News editor

Today's young voters have put the traditional issues of youth on the back burner and are now focusing instead on government spending and the national debt.

That is the contention of Al Salvi, a 25-year-old Republican hopeful for the 19th Congressional District seat currently held by Terry Bruce, D-Olney.

"The (national) debt issue is a young person's issue," Salvi said. "I'm banking on that."

Salvi, who was in Charleston for the weekend of Homecoming festivities, received his law degree from the University of Illinois in May, after completing his undergraduate work at Notre Dame University. He is currently employed by his father's law firm.

"Terry Bruce is a lot weaker (politically) than many people think," Salvi said. "(He) is one of Congress' biggest spenders."

Salvi also questioned Bruce's claim to be a strong supporter of education. "We'll look very closely at his record in education (legislation). His approach is just to throw a lot of money into it."

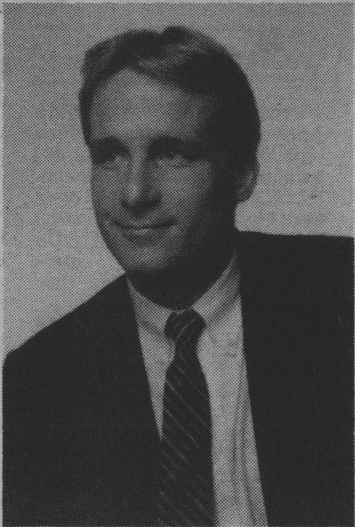

In one of his few breaks with Reagan's philosophies, Salvi said the administration's cuts in student loans were "ill-advised," adding that "student loans are a good investment" for the nation.

However, he agrees with Reagan's efforts to crack down on waste and fraud in other education subsidies.

Pell Grants, he said, have been abused by students who don't need them. "Essentially, what we're doing (with the current system) is boosting the middle class at the expense of the poor."

Salvi will be 26 years old by the time the primary Congressional elections roll around March 4—only one year above the minimum age required to sit in the U.S. House. It is still tentative who his Republican primary opponents will be, but two possibilities are Dale Judy, 71, and Jim Niemann, 26.

He is quick to admit that he is the product of a national conservative trend among young people, once the strongest backers of liberalism.

"I think I represent the beginning of a change," he said, referring to the groundswell of youthful support for the Republican party in last year's national elections. "But I am also a product of that change."

Ronald Reagan had a lot to do with that change."

As if to further the irony of his campaign, Salvi, like Reagan himself, was once a Democrat.

His father has made two unsuccessful bids for the U.S. House on the Democratic ticket, and it was only after entering law school that Salvi broke with his Democratic upbringing.

And, like Reagan, Salvi has said it was changes within the Democratic Party—and not in his own philosophy—that led him to back the GOP.

Salvi stresses that he is still very concerned with issues affecting the poor underprivileged, but that the Democratic Party's solutions to those problems have done more harm than good.

On the issue of South Africa, for example, he said he is strongly in favor of eliminating apartheid, but "can't understand" the liberal contention that this can be done by pulling out all U.S. investments from that country.

"On this issue, I will be in disagreement with most students," Salvi said, "But I believe divestment is wrong. At least now (with U.S. investments in South Africa) we have a little leverage (against apartheid). By pulling out, we would have no influence there."

Petitions passed for karate teacher

By DANE BUCZKOWSKI
Staff writer

Members of Eastern's karate club and class are circulating a petition in an attempt to obtain an instructor with tenure.

Karate club and class members created a petition because they believe that having a full-time instructor with tenure is important to the well being of their club.

Currently, there is a grass-roots program on campus in which students are mostly responsible for the class.

"Without a full-time instructor," sophomore Brian Mikolashek, club member, said, "the program may be eliminated. If this were to happen, dedicated workers would have to go elsewhere and possibly start all over again with their training."

Karate class instructor Paul Nawa, who has been teaching the class for about a year, said the classes are filled to capacity and the students involved are "very dedicated."

Nawa declined to comment on the creation of the petition.

Student Activities Director Anita Craig said although petitioning is usually "a student government procedure," the members of the karate class are not prohibited from conducting one of their own.

However, she added that she does not believe "the odds are in their favor" to receive their demand.

Club President Doug Butler, a sophomore, said, "They (the team) worked hard to get the program and we feel strongly about ours."

Class member Mark Calatone, a senior, said Nawa dedicates "much time to his class and is by far the best instructor I've seen."

The class, offered through the Office of Continuing Education, is conducted twice a week in Buzzard Gym. Eastern offers the classes at $15 per semester, while most off-campus schools' rates are about $25 to $45 monthly.

Landrum fills hole well for Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Picking up loose ends is becoming a specialty of Tito Landrum. He has had some small experience at it.

The 31-year-old native of Joplin, Mo., acting as a fill-in for the injured Vince Coleman, has batted .455 in seven postseason games for the St. Louis Cardinals this year, including the first two games of the World Series.

While it does not surprise him that he has done well, he has been a little surprised that he got the opportunity.

"I never dreamed I'd be playing as big a role as I am now," Landrum said Monday, an off day on the Series schedule which resumes with Game 3 here Tuesday night. "I thought I'd be watching, maybe pinch-hitting a little and playing some defensively."

Instead, Landrum has been one of Manager Whitey Herzog's main men. He has four RBI and has scored four runs in the postseason, replacing left fielder Coleman, who was injured in a freak tarpaulin accident a week ago Sunday at Busch Stadium.

Herzog, for one, said he is not surprised by Landrum's performance. "I've had him for the last four or five years, and he's always done the job when called upon," Herzog said.

games, including SMU," he said.

Now is as good a time as ever for the Panthers to realize their potential. A fairly successful winning streak was marred by some inconsistent performances and coach Cizo Mosnia will be working to gain that much needed consistency in this week's practice sessions.

Saccomano quits

Matteo Saccomano went home last Thursday after telling his teammates he had quit the team. The Edmonton, Canada, native was half-way through his freshman year and the season, when he was stricken ill with a stomach virus in which he was bed-ridden for more than a week.

After his illness, he apparently grew homesick and quit the team, Mosnia said.

"We will miss him. All of the guys on the team liked him," Mosnia said.

Unfortunately, Saccomano, the brother-in-law of former Panther great Carmelo Rago, did not stay around long enough to make a lasting impression on soccer fans, Mosnia added.

Scoring stats

Larry Pretto and Ossie Molinari are tied for the team lead in goals scored, with six, while Rick Lansing follows with five goals and Neil Swindells has four.

Craig Hartman, who leads the team with three assists, and Mark Noffert, two assists, both have three goals. Noffert has scored all three goals while coming off the Panther bench.

Fourth and long:

Jeff Long

Win over SWMO
no spectacle for the weak-hearted

Blood boiling and pulses racing, Eastern coaches and players looked to the sky for a brief second Saturday, wondering if anybody was smiling on them from up there.

When all eyes returned to the field, they got their answer. Leading 28-27 in the closing minute, the Panthers had just snuffed Southwest Missouri running back Ryan Jackson's two-point conversion attempt at the one-centimeter line.

En masse, a flood of blue and gray burst onto the field in exuberation. Never mind that it cost the Panthers a 15-yard unsportsmanlike penalty. It was as good as over. The shouting was just beginning.

And so the Panthers, to whom winning has become a tease this season, found themselves one notch over respectability at 4-3, wondering why those coveted victories are such adventures.

Afterwards, the effect of the game's outcome still sinking in, Panther coach Al Molde, anxious and showing signs of frazzled nerves, reflected on Saturday's hair-raising contest, a game that typified this 1985 season.

"I can't believe how tough these wins come for us," Molde said. "What a nightmare."

Southwest Missouri most certainly felt fate was on its side of the line Saturday. The sequence of events that transpired in that fourth quarter was so similar to the year before when the Bears won 29-28 it was horrifying.

Exactly paralleling last year's game, Eastern scored a fourth quarter touchdown to go up 28-21. The Bears came back to close within 28-27—last year with 41 seconds left, this year with 1:09 remaining.

And both times they went for two points and the win. It was successful in 1984, but this year it was the Panthers' turn to get a wink from fate.

"They (Southwest) came back in the same situation and we said there's just no way this can happen two years in a row," said quarterback Sean Payton, who did all he could to make sure it didn't, throwing for three touchdowns and running for another.

"I just really felt relieved it was over," said slotback Calvin Pierce. "It was a long day."

Just as ironic was the shoddy officiating Saturday. It brought back chilling memories of 1984 when a controversial call late in the contest went in favor of the Bears and thus decided the game.

Eastern was flagged eight times in the game for 89 yards. Five of those came in the fourth quarter, all major penalties.

Molde chose his words carefully in his critique of the officiating, saying only that "it was kind of loose."

The Panthers had six personal foul penalties bestowed upon them, and Payton found that almost as bizarre as the game itself.

"When you see unsportsmanlike conduct called so often, usually it's offsetting," Payton said. "It was called so often against us only that I was kind of surprised."

Pierce, the victim of a holding penalty he says never occurred, used the zebras as motivation.

"I was upset. We had some bad calls, but they go like that sometimes. It just makes you have to play harder."

In this day and age when officials have become as much, if not more a part of the outcome of a game than the players themselves, it was encouraging to see it was the players who won and lost this game Saturday.

"We won, so I'm not really worried about the officiating," reasoned Bob Bronaugh.

Consistency.

Eastern quarterback Sean Payton said that it is the key for the Panthers to keep winning.

It was also the key for his being named the Gateway Conference offensive player of the week Monday. It was Payton's second league honor in the last four games.

Payton received the award after Eastern's 28-27 victory over Southwest Missouri Saturday when he was 27 for 52 with 383 yards and three touchdowns. He also ran for another touchdown.

Payton's 383 yards marked the fourth time he has topped the magic 300 this season and the 13th time in his career.

"Consistency is the key for us," Payton said Monday. "We had it Saturday and we won. On offense it means running the routes and getting plenty of time."

"The big difference Saturday was the amount of time that I had to throw the ball," Payton said. "I was able at times to look at the second and even third receivers."

"It was the best team-game, both offensively and defensively, that we played all year."

Last matches hold cards for booters

The repercussions of Saturday's loss to St. Louis University are still being felt by Eastern's soccer team.

Eastern is likely to drop in the Midwest Regional rankings, which is forming into a six-team race for the two or three playoff bids.

No. 1 Air Force is not a shoe-in for a playoff bid, however. The Falcons have not played as many rated teams in the Midwest, as have the Panthers or Southern Methodist.

Likewise, the up-and-coming Illinois State Redbirds—ranked No. 4—are likely to pass Eastern when this week's rankings are announced Tuesday.

No. 5 Western Illinois will have a tough time qualifying, because Eastern defeated the Leathernecks three weeks ago for the Governor's Cup championship.

Nevertheless, for Eastern to receive serious playoff player-of-the-week for the second time this season after passing for 383 yards and three touchdowns.

Payton beat out Southwest running back Keith Williams who racked up 232 yards in rushing on 18 carries. Williams collected 149 yards in the first quarter alone.

"He's a great back," Payton said. "He really kept his feet going. We knew he was having a good day when we heard he had 100 ½ yards in the first quarter, but most of that was off three or four runs."

"Our defense came out in the second half and contained him well. We adjusted and we were able to beat them."

Payton's day was hampered by the fact that one of the starting receivers, Charlie Williams, was unable to play due to an injury.

"It always hurts the team when one of the starters goes down with an injury," Payton said. "It means we have less depth but Willie Cain stepped in and had a good game."

This was the second week in a row that a Panther received a Gateway award. Last week lineman Carl Parker won the defensive award.

This week's defensive award went to Southwest linebacker James Houston, who recorded nine tackles against the Panthers along with one pass deflection and one sack.

Soccer notes/Dobie Holland

notice, it will have to win the four remaining games of the season.

The Panthers will play Northwestern Sunday at Lakeside Field. Eastern will then brace for a weekend in Texas, as it face seventh-ranked North Texas State on Nov. 1 and second-ranked Southern Methodist on Nov. 3.

The No. 2 Mustangs and Eastern will probably be playing each other for post-season rights when they meet.

"We realize we can get a playoff bid," said tri-captain Rick Lansing. "We have to concentrate on learning from our mistakes and how we can improve."

"The team knows we can win the rest of our
