Eastern student and faculty members joined people from across the state Wednesday in Springfield to help protest tuition increases and a tax hike by Gov. James Thompson.

The 100 scheduled participants from Eastern arrived by bus to help protest the cost of higher education.

Eastern students lobby for fair play

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD—"We want fair play! We want fair play!" is what state legislators heard from over 700 students, teachers, and civil service employees (about 100 of whom were from Eastern) as lawmakers made their way into the Capitol building Wednesday morning in the second day of the 85th General Assembly's veto session.

Delegations from 12 state universities and representatives from the University Professionals of Illinois (UPI), American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) and the Illinois Student Association (ISA) marched to the Capitol building for a 30 minute rally in an attempt to gain support from state legislators into allotting more funds for higher education.

Mary Ann Schwartz, the legislative director for UPI and one of the coordinators of the rally, opened by saying, "We're here today to get their (legislators') support, not them. But, we have to convey to our legislators the seriousness of the problems these cuts have caused."

For the first time ever, students, faculty, and civil service employees united to form the "Invest-in-the-Future Coalition" and combined their efforts inside the Capitol.

"I think today was the very beginning of a coordinated campaign to make public education a priority in our state," Schwartz said, adding, "Faculty, staff and students are working together to solve that problem. I don't expect today alone to solve this problem; today is just the start of a long-range goal to keep funding for higher-education stable and adequate."

Governor James R. Thompson cut $170 million out of the state education budget after the legislature rejected a tax increase for Spring 1988. As a result of inadequate funding, teachers' salaries (presently 3.9 percent below the median of universities nationwide) were frozen, faculty staffs were cut, classes were expanded and a mid-year tuition hike is expected to be approved by the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, Thursday.

Rally demonstrators pulled House and Senate members away from their respective chambers to pressure them into overriding Gov. Thompson's budget vetoes to provide more funds for the higher education budget, which was cut by about $53 million.

Representative Mike Weaver (R-Charleston) said the Invest-in-the-Future-Coalition would leave a lasting impression on lawmakers.

"This is not a wasted trip for them. When we see about 700 students, teachers and civil service employees come down here to the Capitol, hold a rally like that, and then spend the rest of their day lobbying all the legislators they can get a hold of, legislators are going to remember that when the motion goes up for a vote. The strongest voice is the people's," Weaver said.

Market drop leaves stock unaffected

By MATTHEW MAYNARD
Staff writer

Monday's 508-point drop in the stock market has not affected Eastern's Foundation holdings yet, officials said.

"I estimate a paper loss of about $100,000 as of Monday," said Foundation Executive Officer Daniel Thornburgh. "A paper loss is not an actual loss. Paper value is the value given to a stock at any given moment while on the market."

"Any actual loss will not show until we get the monthly report from the Harris Bank," Thornburgh said. Harris Bank is the Foundation's investment agent.

The Foundation, the private organization which manages financial contributions to Eastern, has let Harris Investment Management handle Eastern's holdings since 1971, Thornburgh said.

Harris handles all monies with the stipulations that the Foundation invest in blue chip companies, conservative, stable stocks which are the least likely to lose money. Also, the companies may not invest in South Africa.

However, a Harris official said the foundation was unaffected by the crash.

Robert Shollenberger, assistant vice president at Harris and the man in charge of investing Eastern's holdings, did not give specific figures about how the crash affected Eastern's stocks but did say, "Eastern's holdings were virtually untouched."

"We at Harris have predicted the crash for some time now," Shollenberger said. "Most of Eastern's holdings have been pulled and put into bonds, which right now are much more stable and are producing a higher yield than stocks."

"As for the monies that remain in the market, they should be safe," he added. "We see no reason to buy or sell any stock right now. Monday's crash was simply an overreaction."

The crash was inevitable considering current trends, Shollenberger said.

"For some time now the market has been overreacting on the up side," he said. "It was a matter of time before we saw a downward reaction. Nobody expected one this big."

Other reasons for the crash were an over-valued market, the rising deficit, lack of direction from Washington and a general uncertainty by investors, Shollenberger added.

BOG meeting to focus on mid-year tuition increase

By BILL DENNIS
Administration editor

Although a mid-year tuition hike will be the most controversial topic at Wednesday's Board of Governors meeting, other items on the agenda will be discussed.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 8 a.m. Thursday in the Union Grand Ballroom. But because the tuition hike is one of the last items on the board's agenda, discussion is not expected to start until 10:30 a.m. at the earliest, said BOG spokesman Jim Perez.

The other items include a proposed provisional admissions requirements for incoming freshmen in fall 1988, a presentation by university presidents and BOG administrators on budget and planning issues and a presentation by each university on general education requirements.

The presidents of each of the five BOG universities will also report on purchases and other matters at their individual campuses.

Eastern president Stanley Rives said last week he expects the tuition hike to pass, but not before some strong discussion by board members.

Some of the issues to be discussed include the plan to offer tuition waivers for students receiving financial aid through the Illinois State Scholarship Commission's Monetary Award Program.

The proposal also includes a provision to "take another look" at the tuition hike should the legislature appropriate more money for higher education.

The hike is expected to be the lowest of all state universities to follow the $60 million cut from the higher education budget by Gov. James Thompson.

If the provisional admission standards are passed by the board, it will be the first of the four university systems to set standards for incoming freshmen who cannot meet course specific admission standards.

Shultz hopeful about arms talks

HELSINKI, Finland—Secretary of State George Shultz set out for fog-shrouded Moscow by train on Wednesday and said he was certain he would make headway on nuclear arms control in two days of talks with Soviet officials.

But he was guarded about arrangements for a third Reagan-Gorbachev summit.

"I think we and the Soviets both agree meetings between the top leaders are very desirable," Shultz told a news conference in the Finnish capital.

But, he said, summits must be well-prepared "and produce substantive results." Shultz said his team of experts was in "a serious and constructive frame of mind."

American wins economics Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—American researcher Robert M. Solow on Wednesday won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for explaining how certain factors work together to make an economy grow.

Solow, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., won the prize for a mathematical formula published in 1956 that demonstrated how factors like savings, capital, technology and labor affect a nation's economic future.

In awarding the prize, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences cited him for "his contributions to the theory of economic growth."

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Solow was the 15th American to win the prize since it was created by the Bank of Sweden in 1968.

Stock market rebounds from dive, sets second straight one-day gain

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rebounded robustly Wednesday, with the Dow Jones industrial average posting its second straight record one-day gain amid mounting optimism that the worst of Wall Street's recent woes may be past.

Analysts were encouraged by the rally, but many cautioned against false optimism.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, by preliminary calculations, soared 186.84 to 2,027.85, a 10.1 percent increase. That surpassed the previous record point gain of 102.27 points on Tuesday.

The closely watched index has now recovered about half the losses suffered from Monday's historic 508-point collapse, which amounted to a 22.6 percent decline in value.

Broader market measures were equally as strong Wednesday. Advancing issues outpaced decliners by about 8-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 stocks, the market gained $183 billion in value Wednesday after falling more than $50 billion Monday.

Big Board volume totaled 450.4 million shares, according to preliminary calculations, a third-busiest trading day but well below the record setting level of Tuesday when 608 million shares changed hands.

House rejects state aid veto 70-44

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Despite administration warnings of fiscal calamity, the Illinois House voted Wednesday to override Gov. James R. Thompson's veto of $62.5 million in state aid for elementary and high schools.

Led by Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago, the Democratic-controlled House voted 70-44 to override the governor. Six Republicans broke party ranks to support the override.

Sixty votes were needed for an override.

Thompson called the vote "the single most irresponsible act I have seen in 11 years as governor," and indicated he might launch a public appeal to head off similar action next month when the Senate takes up the issue.

The school-aid vote was the first in an expected series of motions in the House to override some of the $363 million slashed from the budget by Thompson in July.

The action drew cheers from the House spectators' gallery which was crowded with voters who came to the Capitol to protest budget cuts.

Southern student puzzled by friend's 'bizarre' death

CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
editor

Robert Mitchell said he just can't know what happened the night his longtime friend Patrick Wixom was killed in an automobile accident.

"I can't put anything together for anybody. I just remember waking up on the highway and going to my jeep and seeing Pat there," Mitchell said Wednesday. "It's just a matter of time before it's all of strange," he added.

Wixom died after the 1980 soft-topped CJ7 jeep he and Mitchell were riding in rolled on I-57 at about 1:30 a.m. Friday.

A third unknown passenger believed to have been driving the jeep, but fled the scene after the accident.

Mitchell said he and Wixom stopped off in Charleston for a few drinks at Mother's, 16 Monroe Ave., and E.L. Krackers, 1405 Fourth St., on their way to Champaign from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale where the men were seniors.

"I was pretty severely intoxicated. I know he (Wixom) was, but the test they gave him didn't show that much. But considering how much and how long we had been drinking, he had to have been. I think he was. We both were," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said he and Wixom stayed at the bars about two and a half to three hours until they closed at 1 a.m. After that, he said, he's not sure what happened.

"Pat had my keys. As far as I can tell he must have found somebody who was interested in going to Champaign who would drive," Mitchell said.

Although Mitchell can't remember the unknown driver very well, he did say, "I think the guy might have been wearing a jean jacket."

Mitchell remembers little else about the accident, including being thrown out of the jeep in the wreck, until he woke up on the highway.

"I have a big bump on my head and a scrape on my back and on my butt," Mitchell said.

Patrick Wixom's father, Paul Wixom, said in a further effort to locate the mystery driver, his son-in-law and son Paul Wixom Jr. plan to drive down to Charleston Thursday evening to visit Mother's and E.L. Krackers.

"They're going to bring down a couple of pictures to show around. They need to be in the bar at the same time (Patrick and Robert were). They want to follow the same schedule (that Patrick and Robert did)," Wixom said.

For a few days at least, Mitchell said he plans to stay at home in Rockford, rather than returning immediately to school. Just when he'll return, Mitchell said he doesn't know at this point.

Sgt. Charles McCarty of the Illinois State Police Department said Wednesday so far police have had no new developments in the case.

Wixom, too, said he hadn't heard anything new on the case or in response to the $200 reward he's offering for information on the accident.

AB committee helps students

Members of the Apportionment Board think the newly formed guiding committee will help AB understand the budgets and the student body better.

The guiding committee consists of the 10 AB voting members. They will work in conjunction with the six boards to which AB allocates money.

The boards are: AB, Players, Sports and Recreation, Student Publications, Student Senate, and the University Board.

AB Chair Craig Lange said the guiding committee is to help the members establish a "good working relationship" with the fiscal agents, thereby earning their problems and needs.

"It's going to orientate the AB members," Lange added. "When AB begins working on the budgets next spring, AB will receive advice 'from the members who have done the background work with the boards.'"

Lange said the student body also benefits from this.

"The student body benefits when informed individuals are in positions where decisions have to be made and in this guiding committee, the AB will become more informed," Lange said.

"I think it's probably a good idea," said AB member Ed Marlow about the guiding committee. "That way, we can have some people with a little bit more knowledge of the separate boards."

"Everybody wants more money," he said, adding, "It's a matter of what they need and don't need."

Committee member Jim Whalen agrees the guiding committee will help AB better understand budgets.

"Once we are actually able to get inside the committees, we can get a better idea of what their actual needs are, and we won't just have to go by what they are saying."

He said AB might not know what the departments' needs are if it just listens to the fiscal agents speak at AB meetings without working with the department itself.

"It's going to enable those people who are assigned to a certain board to become more familiar with their budgets," Vice Chair Dale Righter said. "Also, they'll be able to report back to AB."

AB member Howard Price said it could work out well "if AB members familiarize themselves with the budgets of the different organizations that come to AB for funds."

He said it is easier for a person to concentrate on one board than on all of them.

"Each member can report to the board as a whole about the budget he or she has studied," Price said.

He added, "Students would benefit by the boards' exercising better financial prudence over expenditures, based on the scrutiny given budgets by the guiding committee."

"I think it's an excellent idea, because it gives us an in-depth analysis of how money is being spent and what is actually needed," Tim Gorman said.

"And I think when spring comes, we'll be able to tell the board what's really needed," he said.

Lange said this is the first such committee AB has had, and it will submit an annual report which he expects before spring semester.

"If they do not feel they have not learned the system well enough, then we will move it into the second semester," he said. "But as it stands right now, it will finish this semester."

AB members Robert Funk and Brian Bacchi will work together with Players and AB; Gregg Antenen and Marlow will work with Sports and Recreation; Whalen and Chris Malone will work with UB; Righter and Gorman will work with Student Publications and Joel Lopez and Price will work with Student Senate.

Mentalist Craig Karges had a Subway employee blindfold him. Afterwards, he identified a student ID and other objects by holding his hand in front of them.

Mentalist risks check for kicks

By TINA POSZICH
Staff writer

Mentalist Craig Karges took a chance of receiving his paycheck during his third Eastern performance Wednesday at the Subway.

At the conclusion of his performance before a small audience of 41, Karges, 29, had Subway Coordinator Gina Moon place his check in an envelope. She also placed slips of paper in two additional envelopes.

An audience member then shuffled the three envelopes behind his back while Karges looked the other way.

After numbering the envelopes, Karges instructed his assistant to choose one of the three, then burned the others.

"I would flatly refuse a duplicate check," he said.

"When this check was handed to me," the mentalist said, "it became my property and I could do what I want to with it."

After tearing open the remaining envelope, Karges' assistant pulled out the check. Karges sighed with relief.

As a 12-year-old, Karges began performing magic.

"At the age of 16 I started the mentalist portion of my show which I learned from uncle who was an old-time Vaudevillian," he said.

"A mentalist is just an entertainer . . . a performer who bases his act on ESP and psychic phenomenon," Karges said.

"Mentalist is just a theatrical term," he said.

Karges believes everyone has ESP. However, his goal is not to persuade others to believe the same.

"All of us have ESP in varying degrees," he said, adding, "I'm not performing to convince people of anything."

Karges divides his show into three portions: illusions, a psychological portion and a psychic demonstration.

"I use ESP in my shows, but I can't rely on it all the time," he said, adding, "I'm not able to demonstrate it on command that's why I use the illusion and psychological aspects in the show."

During the psychological portion, Karges chose an audience member for assistance.

After demonstrating no strings were attached, no magnets or adhesive tape were being used, Karges and his assistant placed the tips of their hands on a table.

Following a short pause, the table started moving around the stage. At times, all four legs came off the stage floor.

"We can communicate in three ways," Karges told the audience.

He then successfully demonstrated his point by "reading the minds" of three volunteers.

Airplane near-collisions up 50 percent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of near-collision reports involving commercial aircraft jumped nearly 50 percent during the first nine months of this year, according to Federal Aviation Administration figures.

There was disagreement Wednesday, however, among aviation safety experts on the significance of the increase on air safety.

The chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board said the sharp rise in near collisions shows that travellers were exposed to an "increased risk" of an aerial collision during the past summer, but the head of the FAA called the statistical jump "not in itself very meaningful."

According to the FAA, the agency received 857 near-collision reports from pilots during the first nine months of the year, a 37 percent increase over last year. The number of such reports involving planes carrying revenue-paying passengers increased even more sharply, from 258 last year to 383 this year, up 48 percent.

During the busy summer months, June through August, there were 159 near-collision reports involving at least one commercial plane, an increase of 50 percent over the summer of 1986. The sharpest increase, 69 percent, came in August when there were nearly two such incidents reported a day, according to the FAA figures.

Roll back and waiver eases pain of tuition

Tuition increases are a little like taking medicine. They are necessary if the university's financial health is to remain intact, but they're always hard to swallow.

This morning, the Board of Governors will meet in the Union Grand Ballroom to discuss a prescription for next semester.

Editorial Board members are aware that any increase will add a financial burden to students. Nonetheless, students will likely face a high dose of tuition increase next spring since the governor and certain legislators can't see eye to eye on spending for higher education.

Since the BOG may, out of necessity, have to prematurely raise tuition, it should consider two provisions which would make the syrum slightly more palatable by leaving the board and some students a way to avoid the increase. One is a "roll back," and the other a waiver for financially needy students.

The roll back would void the increase, should the legislature override the veto or sift money from other sources. If the BOG is lucky, the legislature will return a portion of what the BOG seeks. The roll back should be made in proportion to the infusion of any new state dollars.

Another recommendation the BOG must consider is waivers for students receiving financial aid.

The only students the board seems to consider for waivers are the need-based Monetary Award Program recipients. Last year nearly 20 percent of Eastern's students received MAP assistance. This leaves the BOG with the dilemma of waiving tuition for all students with financial assistance, thus making the tuition hike almost pointless or singling out only MAP recipients.

The timing of the special session puts the BOG under pressure to raise tuition soon. In order to spend the money, a tuition hike needs the legislature's approval. By some estimates tuition will shoot up $95 per semester to put the BOG's bank account's ailments in remission.

The thought of spending another $190 each year for tuition is as funny as having teeth pulled, but it may be unavoidable. The BOG would be wise, though, in trying to avoid overdosing students with the treatment.

The poor, poor pro football players

It's been a week since it happened and I can no longer keep it in.

The most ridiculous spectacle I have ever seen is over.

The National Football League strike is dead and gone. Now my roommates and I can stop throwing each other around the house.

I am perhaps one of the biggest fans in the world when comes to football. In fact, that's about the only thing my roommates and I discuss.

But this spectacle was insulting to me, the average fan. This was the first strike in history that I could have cared less about. The players were complaining that the owners were taking advantage of them.

Boy, I wish someone would take advantage of me like that. Just think about making salaries between five and seven figures every year. In fact, a lot of players have contracts that pay them 20 years after they are retired from the team.

I have no sympathy for people who are on strike yet cross picket lines and never really support anyone else's cause. Oh, I forgot. A lot of players do participate in community service organizations, so they can be in United Way commercials.

It's also hard for me to sympathize with them when the two sides have been negotiating for more than four years and can't seem to come up with an agreement.

True the NFL is a monopoly, but it is the only monopoly I know of where almost everyone involved makes a fortune.

The players' chief argument is their careers are so short they must make as much as they can now because they won't be able to earn that much once they are out of football. But what do the players do with the money they have now?

Maybe they invest it? Probably not.

If a player who makes $200,000 in his rookie year can't save at least $100,000 of that then he needs a brain transplant. But not all players make much. Some only make about $80,000.

Larry

I believe they could live off about $50,000 save the rest. Most Americans seem to do it much, much, much less.

What is really amazing, is they wanted un where most of their members make less $30,000 a year to support them.

When those unions go on strike, the members fighting for their lives. They are also usually fighting off cuts in their salaries and benefits. Many have scratch to eat while they are on strike.

So when I see football players driving around their BMWs complaining about how rough their are, it makes me ill.

One thing I've always wondered, if the player have come from college where most of them were on scholarship what did they do while they were there?

Do they ever think they might not get in the NFL or they might be injured before they have a chance to play long enough to make money?

The veteran players want free agency for play so they can sell their services to the highest bidder. But how many of the 1,700 players in the union really use free agency if it is instituted? Maybe 10 or 200?

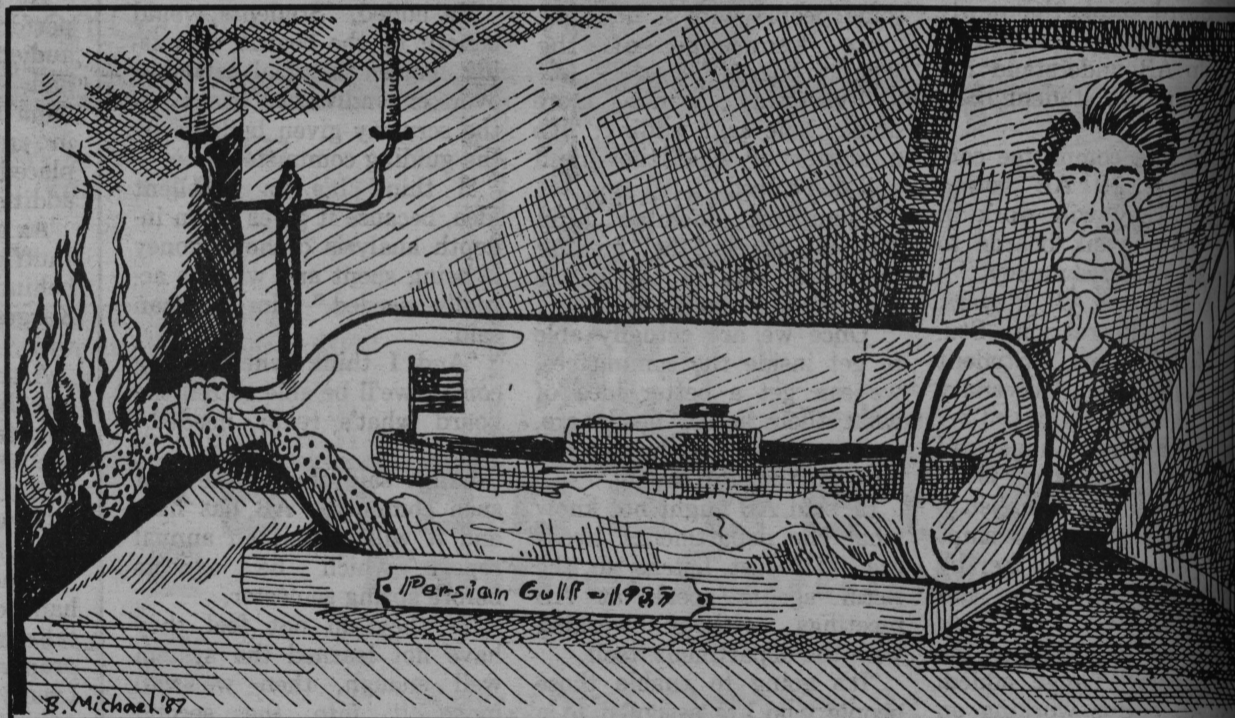

The players who would benefit from free agency already have the ability to negotiate huge contracts from the owners.

Of course there are some issues I think the players have valid concerns about. One could be health benefits for retired players. Many old time players have difficulty walking from injuries sustained while playing in the NFL.

The players should look out for their health and the game because the game has gotten faster and more dangerous. But apparently that wasn't the thing on their minds.

But then they have to make payments on their BMWs.

Smith should take a veteran's advice

Editor:

An open letter to Steve Smith—although I doubt you will take some advice from someone who did for two years professionally what you are playing at, try to get your head out of the clouds.

Most people would disagree with you that the story of little Jessica McClure was less important than the awarding of the Nobel Prize or the Persian Gulf. I doubt that Jessica's 17-year-old mother really gave a damn about the striking of a Kuwaiti tanker. Her only selfish little hope was that the child that she gave life to would be able to keep it. If you seriously believe the tripe that you committed to paper, I suggest you look for another major.

I cannot believe that you are so heartless and unfeeling about the girl. So the only explanation that can come up with is that while "playing reporter," you hit your head on the video display terminal. Most people get enough of the bad news day in and day out. A little change of pace or even a story that would (God forbid!) make someone smile, according to you, is out of the question. If we follow your twisted logic, then the only thing worth reading or seeing will be another killing in the Middle East, which of course doesn't happen everyday, so that makes it exceptionally newsworthy.

If you will take some advice from a former reporter, when you look for a job, don't send them that particular column. Unless of course, you apply to the National Enquirer.

Senate meeting cut short because of Day of Action

JEFF McCOMBS
Staff writer

The Student Senate cut its daily meeting short, having returned from the "Day of Action" lobby session, which lasted all day in Springfield Wednesday.

The senate, along with other students and faculty members, gathered at the state capitol hoping to persuade legislators to overturn education budget cuts.

Student Senate President

Deb Camren thanked those who attended the rally, and noted that Eastern was well represented.

"Eastern had more students and faculty than any other school there," Camren said.

Financial Vice President Craig Lange added everyone learned a lot at the rally in Springfield.

"I noticed that there is not a lot of support for education (by the government)," Lange said.

"The speaker put (the education issue) way back in the agenda. It looked pretty dim at the end of the day."

In new business, the senate approved the appointments of Denis Hannah and Marc Grider to the University Board.

Senators learned also they would be handing out questionnaires to students who have cars, finding out their reaction to the new parking system.

Bill could change policy

By WENDELL HUTSON
Staff writer

A bill which would change the current university policy on how many hours a student is allowed to take while on academic probation or warning was recently passed by the Student Senate.

The senate passed the bill, which was sponsored by Senator Tim Taylor, at its Oct. 7 meeting.

The current policy states a student on academic warning or probation can only take 14 semester hours. Taylor's bill would change the amount of hours to 15 hours per semester.

"I don't think that's fair (only 14 hours) because with that amount of hours a student can fall short of university requirements," Taylor said. "If they don't meet the university requirements, it could result in not being admitted to the college of their major. It could also result in a decrease of financial aid."

Robert Kindrick, vice president for academic affairs, said, "If a student is only allowed to take 14 semester hours and drops one or two of them, he could fall below state and federal requirements, going from a full-time student to a part-time student."

Kindrick, who is also a supporter of the bill, said dropping to a part-time student could have an effect on obtaining financial aid.

The bill is to go before the Council for Academic Affairs Thursday.

Lip sync aids POWs

Registration for the POW/MIA lip sync contest co-sponsored by Miller Distributors, E.L. Kracker's and Eastern's student government ends Monday, said Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis.

"Five groups have already said they will participate" in the contest, which will be held at 9 p.m. Nov. 2 at E.L. Kracker's, 1405 Fourth St, Wasetis said.

Wasetis said there is no entry fee. However, there is a $15 deposit which is intended to insure that the groups will show up. The money will later be donated to POW/MIA League of Families.

Miller Distributors and E.L. Kracker's are supplying prizes and a plaque. The plaque will be awarded by three judges to the first place group.

Wasetis said the plaque will state the winning organization's name and that they donated $50 to POW/MIA League of Families.

The lip sync fundraiser is to help promote student awareness and to help raise money for POW/MIA in honor of Veterans' Day.

DUI lecture planned

By BETH CARLSON
Staff writer

As part of Alcohol Awareness Week, a lecture titled "Can You Beat the DUI?" will be given 7:00 p.m. Thursday in the University Union Ballroom.

Two Eastern students, who are of legal age, will consume enough alcohol to become intoxicated. The pair will then take a breath test and a field sobriety test, said Campus Police Officer Kathy Cartwright.

Cartwright said the students will drink wine coolers and beer. They will be tested with a new instrument that measures measures the level of alcohol on the breath at the scene of the accident.

"This instrument is used only for probable cause, it is not used in the courtroom," she said.

The breathalyzer test won't be used, because each time it is moved it needs to be recalibrated, which is very time-consuming and expensive. That is why the manual unit is used at the scene, Cartwright said.

The two volunteers will also be given a field sobriety test. This test measures reaction time.

Space affects life—speaker

MICHELLE ZAWIN / Staff photographer

NASA is trying to build what a space station that will be used for research, including military projects, NASA scientist Dale Bremmer said.

By MICHELLE ZAWIN
Staff writer

Velcro, digital watches, and pacemakers. What do these three things have in common?

They all are results of the space program.
"Your life is really truly influenced by space products,"

NASA scientist Dale Bremmer told Eastern students Wednesday night.
In his Phipps Lecture Hall speech, Bremmer talked about new projects in the space program. "The theory of astronomy is based on 1 percent of the universe," he said.
Currently, NASA is trying to build a space station that will be used for research purposes. He said it will be used for many different kinds of research, including military projects.
It will take the space shuttle 17 trips over a year-and-a-half's time to ferry parts before the station will be completed Bremmer said.

AB to tour UB, News, Warbler

The Apportionment Board will tour Student Publications and the University Board at the time it normally has its weekly Thursday meeting at 7 p.m., said AB Chair Craig Lange.

"Thursday night we will spend 30 or 40 minutes with Student Publications," Lange said. "Glenn Robinson (Student Publications Business Manager) is going to walk us around The Daily Eastern News and The Warbler.

After the Student Publications tour, AB will go to UB.

RHA plans haunted house

RUSSELL STARE

The Residence Hall Association will discuss its haunted house at its Thursday meeting, said RHA Vice President Marty Gorski.

The meeting, which is scheduled for 5 p.m. in the Illinois Room of Stevenson Center, will also cover the upcoming budget.

Gorski said that he did not want to reveal the storyline of this year's haunted house, but he did say the idea behind the story is "if James couldn't have Lisa, then no one would."

The haunted house is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the basement of Thomas Hall. Admission will be 50 cents.

In other business, RHA Treasurer Dan Duhamell said he has prepared a written budget, and a copy will be passed out to all members of the board.

The budget will be voted on in two weeks because there will be no meeting Oct. 29.

Friends plan benefit for victim

RUSSELL STARE

Friends and area merchants are joining together to help Spezia, a former Eastern City major, who was paralyzed as the result of a falling accident on Oct. 3.

His life changed rather abruptly," said John Madory, friend of Spezia and former student at Eastern.

The benefit Madory is helping to organize with Dawn Schlat will be held at Schlat and Co., 509 Van Ness Ave., beginning at 9 p.m. Oct. 22. A $2 donation is required at the door. The benefit will continue until closing.

Madory said many area businesses have donated prizes for a scheduled raffle. Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company is supposed to donate a personal copier, and Lyndell's Sporting Goods has donated hunter's safety belts.

Also, live bands will perform.

Madory said Spezia was hunting near Charleston Country Club when the accident occurred.

Madory speculated Spezia was dressed too warmly, and after climbing onto a deer stand about 10 feet off the ground, became dizzy and lost his balance.

Spezia was supposed to go with a friend, but when the friend could not go, he decided to go alone, Madory said.

Friends of Spezia began looking for him about 5:30 p.m. after he failed to return home. Madory said Spezia must have lain on the ground unable to move for four or five hours.

Cards trounce Twins 7-2; gain 2-2 tie in World Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Tom Lawless' three-run homer triggered a six-run romp as the St. Louis Cardinals caught fourth-inning fever and burned the Minnesota Twins 7-2 Wednesday night, tying the World Series at two games apiece.

Lawless' first home run since 1984 and second of his major-league career helped chase Game 1 winner Frank Viola, matching his quickest exit in 40 starts this season.

The Cardinals, overpowered in the first two games as Minnesota scored a total of 13 runs in the fourth inning, showed they can play that way, too, combining four hits and three walks in that inning for a 7-1 bulge.

St. Louis also raised more questions about the Twins' ability to win on the road. Minnesota won just nine games away from the Metrodome after the All-Star break before taking two in Detroit in the playoffs.

Jim Lindeman, joining Lawless as one of the productive replacement Cardinals, had two RBI singles among St. Louis' nine hits off four Minnesota pitchers.

Ken Dayley protected the lead by retiring Gary Gaetti and Tom Brunansky with the bases loaded to end the seventh. Dayley got a save in relief of Bob Forsch, who went 2-3 innings in relief and got his first World Series victory in four decisions.

Game 5 will be Thursday night with Bert Blyleven, the winner in the second game, pitching for the Twins.

Obviously, he made the right decision," Cerasani said.

"He's a tough kid. He doesn't look fancy. He's just a straight ahead football player," Cerasani said. "He's not graceful, but he's got great hands. He never dropped a pass in high school."

Of his decision to attend Eastern, Sengstock said he was impressed with Spoo's attitude toward Cerasani.

"The ISU (Illinois State) coaches were just uncool to my coach. And Spoo was really cool to him. I really liked him," Sengstock said of Spoo.

"In early summer workouts, we noticed that he (Sengstock) was one, assignment competent and two, he was a hitter. I mean he put some guys out of action for a few days," Spoo said.

"Knowing what to do and the willingness to do it" is Sengstock's strength, according to Spoo.

This year as a Panther, the non-scholarship performer has rushed for 72 yards on 18 carries and caught eight balls for 85 yards in gains.

Sengstock is averaging 4.0 yards per carry and 10.6 yards per reception. The 24 yard run was the freshman's longest run and first touchdown of the year.

Making the traveling team was Sengstock's goal going into the spring practice sessions, but the starting Panther fullback had no idea what his hard work would bring him.

"I didn't think I'd be playing," said Sengstock, who had also given consideration to Illinois State and several schools in Tennessee. "I was just hoping to get to travel with the guys."

Going into Saturday's contest with Southwest Missouri, Sengstock had started six of seven Eastern contests. The only game he missed was on Sept. 26 versus Liberty University when he suffered a broken thumb during the week of practice.

As for his Homecoming heroics, Sengstock said he was just glad to get return to the ballgame after missing a block in the third quarter of Saturday's game.

"I'm just glad I got a chance to redeem myself," said Sengstock, who was spelled by second-string fullback Ray Brown during the third quarter.

"He's a pleasant surprise," Spoo said. "He's a great young man and he is a team player."

Fullback's touchdown run scores with history books

GARRY BOTTINO
Sports Editor

It only took freshman back John Sengstock five yards to permanently etch his name into the Eastern Illinois football history books. That is, just long enough to carry the football 24 yards to score a winning touchdown in Eastern's 20-14 Homecoming victory last Saturday at Reichen Stadium. Sengstock's five second yards of glory may not have been as valuable if the Schaumburg offensive had not been introduced by Panther coach Bob Spoo during last spring's recruiting season. Spoo and defensive coordinator John Smith were on a recruiting trip to the Chicago suburb searching for now Eastern defensive back Mike Swett, who was also a senior at the time. His high school coach (Tom Cerasani) pointed John out to Spoo as worthy for consideration.

Smith said. Eastern's a good team," said coach Fred Schmalz. They played well and took their chances when they had the opportunity to. Basically, they came in and we didn't, and that's how the game went." It was a good win for us," said senior Panther defender Glendinning. "I think it will open people's eyes to us in the region. If we can win our last two conference games (against Illinois-Chicago and Wisconsin-Green Bay) and beat St. Louis, we should be in the running for a playoff spot."

The game started out with Eastern just failing to click on a few good scoring chances. The best one came when sophomore Garry Laidlaw sent a pass that no one could get to, but the ball rolled over the goal line for a goal kick. Later on, the Aces began to dominate play in the Eastern end, but the Panther defense came through with some big plays to keep things scoreless at halftime.

In the second half, Noffert had a good chance to score when he broke loose and fired a shot to the short side of the field to goalie Mark Smith. Smith dove low and made the save.

Play then began to get a little more open, with yellow warning flags being issued. Finally, right after senior Mark Simpson had come off with a couple of sparkling plays, junior Bill Trager found Noffert with a chip in his teeth just outside of the center field.

Garry (Laidlaw) dished off to Bill, and he chipped the ball into the end zone. I got loose and headed to the goal," Noffert said.

At that point, Smith came off the goal line to challenge Noffert, who put a move on him and knocked the ball into the net at 8:11, setting off a mob scene near the Aces bench.

John Sengstock

as a walk-on," said Spoo. "And I've been in this game long enough to know that players get overlooked. And this is a case in point."

"All coaches encourage walk-ons (which are non-scholarship players) for that reason," Spoo said.

The 5-10, 190-pound Sengstock was a two-year starter for Schaumburg during his junior and senior years and rushed for over 1,500 yards in two years of varsity play.

Schaumburg was defeated in the state quarterfinals during Sengstock's junior year while the squad lost their final regular season game in his senior year to finish 5-4 and lose a berth in the state playoffs.

"Bob (Spoo) got the job late," said Cerasani. "And I talked to everybody about John. I told Bob, 'you've got to take a look at this kid,'" said Cerasani, who compiled a highlight film of Sengstock for recruiters.

"We had a long talk and I told him that we would pick out a few places and I'd make some calls."

"We had him recruited as a walk-on at Eastern and Northern and he chose Eastern. (See FULLBACK'S, page 10)

Panther stock up after victory over Evansville

By BRENT FEENEY
Staff writer

If you compare the Eastern's soccer team and the New York Stock Exchange these days, you find two entities heading in distinctly opposite directions.

While the stock market plunges, the stock of the Panther booters is heading up faster than a hot blue chip item.

Wednesday at Lakeside Field, junior Mark Noffert kept that stock rising when he scored with 49 seconds left in regulation time to give the Panthers a 1-0 win over the Evansville Purple Aces.

The Aces went into the match ranked ninth in the nation, while the Panthers had to win to keep their playoff hopes alive.

"We didn't play our best," said an elated coach Cizo Mosnia, "but we took advantage of it when we had the chance."

"They came at us all day," Mosnia said. "We couldn't settle down, but I think that's because they were coming at us. It wasn't the prettiest game, but we'll take it."

Mosnia was happy with the attitude displayed by the team after the final siren went off. "We're not cocky, but down to earth about the win. That's the way we want it. We have to keep taking these games one at a time. A win like this one has got to give us some credibility within the (Midwest) region,"

JON SALL / Staff photographer

Eastern forward Garry Laidlaw kicks the ball away just before Evansville back Ian O'Brien arrives on the scene. The Panthers won the game 1-0 on a last minute goal by junior Mark Noffert.

QB Flutie returns to warmth of Massachusetts

Nearly one year to the day after Doug Flutie stepped off a plane into a cold, wintery breeze in Chicago, he was stepping off another plane into the warm embrace of New England Patriots' Coach Raymond Berry in Boston.

John Pletz

The Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College decided to jump ship during the strike for a chance to play in his hometown before a more receptive audience.

Flutie said last Tuesday morning after the trade from the Bears to the Patriots was announced that he would not have crossed the picket line for any other club.

"Basically he was given the opportunity to play in his hometown with the New England Patriots," said Flutie's agent, Bob Woolf last Friday.

"If it had been with any other team, he would not have returned to football (during the strike)."

However, the strike ended Thursday and Flutie faces a difficult situation; he betrayed the players' union two days too soon and risks being labeled a 'scab' by Patriot regulars.

Flutie cannot possibly be as unpopular in Boston as he was in Chicago, though. It was always cold for Flutie in Chicago, in the locker room and on the field, everywhere except Mike Ditka's office.

'Iron Mike' softened his heart and took the 5-9 fledgling in like his own son as an answer to the Bears' fading playoff hopes in 1986.

In the meantime, Ditka raised the dander of the other Bear quarterbacks Flutie was going to replace, and the eyebrows of everyone else; Flutie was coming in to a ready-made den of resentment.

In Chicago, Flutie never did break the ice with the rest of the Bears, and they were not at all bashful about letting him know he was not part of the gang.

Jim McMahon, who was facing surgery and possibly the end of his career, was openly critical of Flutie and Ditka. The important thing to remember about McMahon is, although Ditka did not like his haircut, his sunglasses or his scooter, he brought victories and a Super Bowl championship to Halas Hall.

The Mormon heirarchy at Brigham Young University did not love him, either, but they certainly wanted him behind center on Saturday afternoon.

McMahon might not be the clean-cut kind of guy you would want for a son-in-law like Flutie, but he does not have to be—he is a quarterback, not a choirboy. McMahon also won even when he was hurt; Flutie could not win even when he was healthy.

After winning the Heisman in 1984, Flutie went to the New Jersey Generals in the higher-paying, but less competitive United States Football League. He threw for 2,109 yards, 13 touchdowns and 14 interceptions and a 47.7 completion percentage.

In one year with the Bears, the Boston College star was 23 of 46 for 361 yards, three touchdowns and two interceptions.

Flutie may have had the clean-cut image and pet-like demeanor, but he did not have what it takes to win football games in the NFL, or start for the Bears. Despite Ditka's defense and support of Flutie, he was still the No. 1 quarterback behind Mike Tomczak and 1987 first-round draft choice Jim Harbaugh.

When the Bears got eliminated from the playoffs in the second round in 1986, fans and players were left wondering—was Flutie worth the $71,000 he was paid in 1986, as well as the third- and sixth-round draft choices the Bears gave the Los Angeles Rams?

The circumstances surrounding Flutie's departure also leave fans with another unanswered question. Is it more than a little coincidental that Flutie is on his way out when not-so-iron-willed Mike is singing quarterback praises of a different tune?

Ditka's new favorite quarterback is non-union replacement quarterback Mike Hohensee, who might now have a ready-made chance to make himself a full-fledged, card-carrying Bear.

—John Pletz is a sports writer for the Daily Eastern News.
