Celebration

Festival brings a mix of culture to the area

By MELISSA MCCLAIN
Activities editor

Organizers of this year's Celebration: A Festival of the Arts say they were encouraged by this past weekend, despite Sunday's rain showers and cool temperatures.

"I'm very pleased and I feel Celebration '95 was better than last year's (event) because more people came out," said Dan Crews, coordinator for Celebration. "It was exceptionally organized this year."

Live bands, art exhibits and food booths were featured attractions at this weekend's festival.

"The best part of the festival was the combination of music we had," said Jen Stuecheli, a senior English major and intern of Crews. "It brought a lot of culture into the area that we don't normally get to see."

The Friday and Saturday events were well attended because of the comfortable weather, said Crews, director of publicity and development for the College of Arts and Humanities.

"The first two days were nearly perfect," said Crews. "It's unfortunate Mother Nature was not on our side on the last day of the event. No events had to be canceled."

Sociology and anthropology professor Ronald Wohlstein conducted a survey to find out how many people attended Celebration as compared to last year's event. However, he said official numbers wouldn't be available until today.

Celebration is a learning experience each year in which improvements are made from the previous year, Crews said. "Celebration is a continual evaluation each year."

Improvements for next year include numbering each of the craft booths and listing their booth numbers in an informational packet, so if a customer is looking for a specific craft item, they will know exactly where to go, Crews added.

The Bizarre Bazaar was a new event added to Celebration this year in which free booth space was provided to students and organizations to sell handmade jewelry and crafts.

"The Bizarre Bazaar went really well, but some people weren't able to participate in the event because they didn't know about it," Crews said. "However, they plan to participate next year."

"The Bizarre Bazaar helped to get the students involved in Celebration '95," Stuecheli added.

A variety of food booths were included to attract more students to Celebration.

Nearly 15 food booths were set on Seventh Street, offering various items such as egg rolls, fudge, curly fries, lemon shake-ups and sandwiches.

Board reports noise, alcohol abuse increase

Editor's note: This is the first of a three-part series examining the decisions and trends in Eastern's Judicial Board.

By JOHN FERA
Senior news reporter

Most recent Judicial Board statistics show underage alcohol possession, excessive noise complaints and possession of hard alcohol by 21-year-olds in student housing have climbed moderately this school year.

According to figures compiled by judicial affairs through April 13, 1995, 328 write-ups for underage possession of alcohol occurred, up from 293 in 1993-94. A total of 440 alcohol-related violations have occurred this school year, up from 362 offenses in 1993-94.

So far, 261 excessive noise complaints have been issued in student housing, up from 182 complaints in 1993-94. Citations for possession of hard alcohol by 21-year-olds have jumped from 15 citations in 1993-94 to 35 this year.

Despite the increase in citations for alcohol violations, Judicial Affairs Director Keith Kohanzo said the problems have been minor this school year. Before last year's bar-entry age change from 19 to 21, Kohanzo said fewer noise complaints, often stemming from alcohol possession, occurred in the residence halls.

"Eastern in its recent history has had very few problems with parties in the residence halls because students had easy access to bars," Kohanzo said. "Now that they don't, the number of complaints of noise resulting from social gatherings can be expected to increase."

Sanctions for excessive noise complaints usually result in a $5 to $10 fine and a minor reprimand.

Surprisingly, Kohanzo said the residence hall with the most noise complaints is often Andrews Hall. However, he said Andrews usually tops the list because hall counselors there are strict enforcers of quiet hours.

Rich Ruscitti, one of three Taylor Hall counselors, said resident assistants in Taylor referred very few student infractions to Judicial Board this year.

Despite the raised bar-entry age, Ruscitti said Taylor didn't have any major problems of noise complaints or dorm-room parties this school year.

"The bottom line is if students can't go to bars, they'll go somewhere else, whether that's Champaign or wherever," Ruscitti said. "We haven't seen an upsurge in students hanging around on the weekends. One weekend, we may have one or two alcohol violations then go a week with zero."

Judicial Board typically hears about 800 cases per school year. These referrals come from housing staff, faculty departments and the university police department.

Former student dies in accident

By BRIAN HUCHEL
City editor

A former Eastern student was killed in a one-car accident early Saturday morning along Taft Avenue in Charleston.

Andrew T. McGlade, 22, of Mt. Zion, died when the vehicle he was driving jumped a curb on the 500 block of Taft Avenue. The vehicle, which continued forward, hit a rock and a tree before rolling over.

McGlade, who graduated from Eastern last year, was taken to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, where he was pronounced dead by the coroner around 2 a.m. A specific cause of death in the accident has not been released.

Coles County Coroner John Schilling declined to comment as to the details surrounding the accident. A coroner's inquest is pending.

McGlade, a physical education major while attending Eastern, was an employee at the Alamo Steakhouse and Saloon in Mattoon at the time of the accident. Keeley Rogers, manager of the restaurant, said McGlade was a great person to work with.

"He was one of the best people I have ever had the privilege of knowing," Rogers said. "He was also one of the very best workers I have ever seen around here."

Lambros Prutos, a friend of McGlade, said the Mt. Zion native's favorite pastime was simply to "hang out" with his friends.

"He loved to make everybody laugh," said Prutos, a junior math and computer science major at Eastern. "If you knew him and he walked up to you, he could make you laugh in a second."

Prutos said he had known McGlade since last year.

Visitation will take place from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday at the Brintlinger Funeral Home in Decatur. Services vender who came all the way from Mardi Gras in New Orleans," Crews said.

Unique attractions such as clog dancing also drew a crowd.

On Sunday, clog dancers performed beneath a canopy because of the rain showers.

"Our clog dancing originated in the Appalachian Mountains, so it is primarily a southern tradition," said Eve Gallman, a clog dancer who participated in Celebration.

"Our clog dancing is traditional clogging, not the (false) clogging that is seen on TV," said Tom Caisse, director of the Bone Yard Creek Cloggers from Champaign-Urbana.

Even though the rain put a damper on the last day's festivities, arrangements were made to help one band perform.

"The band Nathan and the Zydeco Cha Cha's were moved inside to the Buzzard Auditorium," Crews said.

Judicial

University Police Chief Tom Larsen said the number of alcohol incidents his department handled this school year was similar to its number of cases in previous years.

Most minor incidents his department investigates such as underage possession, minor vandalism or damage to property are sent to Judicial Board while felony and some misdemeanors such as disorderly conduct are turned over to the state's attorney.

Kohanzo said most students cited with underage possession in student housing usually receive a $20 to $25 fine.

Underage possession arrests by campus police result in $50 fines. However, students picked up by Charleston police usually receive a city ordinance violation of about a $235 fine.

If an alcohol violation also results in theft, assault or vandalism by the student, Kohanzo said the individual may also face criminal prosecution at the police discretion.

Kohanzo thinks the $25 fine is appropriate since the Judicial Affairs views a liquor violation as a student conduct code violation in terms of the standards on campus.

"We're looking at student behavior in terms of the university's standards and our ability to redirect inappropriate behavior, or in those rare cases, to separate the student from the institution if necessary," Kohanzo said.

"Judging from the few students who are repeat offenders, I think we are effective in enforcing the student conduct code."

While many alcohol-related violations have marked an increase this year, offenses such as possession of alcohol in public and fighting/ assaults/ threats have shown modest decline.

Public possession of alcohol has dropped from 107 to 58 incidents. Fighting and assaults have dropped from 34 offenses to 27.

Larsen said his department has investigated fewer assault and battery cases this year compared to those in years past. Larsen thinks this may have resulted from the bar-entry age change from 19 to 21.

"Some of our cases generally give a description that less violence seems to be occurring," Larsen added.

World War II veteran retells battle stories

By MELANIE McCLAIN
Staff writer

Despite World War II veteran Charles Breeze earning a Purple Heart, Bronze Star Medal and Presidential Unit Citation awards, he doesn't believe he is a hero.

Breeze says he was merely fighting for his life. "I was just as scared as the next guy," he added.

Breeze, now 78, sat in his Mattoon home with his wife, Mary Jane and recollected on the war and how it changed his life.

A Bible sits on the table in their family room, a symbol of what Mary Jane believes protected Charles during his tour of duty.

"I think about him being in the service and how much we prayed for him," she said. "I know those prayers are what brought him home safely."

Breeze, only 24 years old when he went to war, had been married to Mary Jane for one year when the news came that he had been drafted.

"I knew when I went in because when I came home my wife was standing on the porch with a big envelope - crying," recalled Breeze. "She's put up with me for 54 years."

It is still hard for Breeze to talk about the war. He pulled out a white handkerchief and wiped his eyes as he recollected.

"We started out 10 days before the (Normandy) invasion just to go 20 miles," Breeze said. "We went up the (English) Channel and back before we hit the French coast."

After the first day at war, Breeze knew his life would never be the same.

"There was 250 of us who went in there and there was only 49 of us left after the second day."

But Breeze said that was just the beginning of his battle.

"I got as far as Saint Lo (in northeast France) and I got shot in my right arm," he said. He pulled up his shirt sleeve to reveal a scar and a large indentation in his arm where the bullet had entered.

Breeze continued as he once again relied upon his handkerchief.

"We were behind German lines for three days and the paratroopers had come in to help get us back out," he recalled. "They picked a spot on us to locate us."

"Anyhow, they located it, and that's where I finally got wounded."

That wound, earned Breeze the Purple Heart Medal. His valor in the fight earned him a Bronze Star Medal.

"When I got shot, I just lay there like I was dead," he added. "When I got hit, it threw this arm (right arm) clear over my shoulder."

However, getting wounded was only one problem Breeze was faced with. He was still in German territory. The only way he could get on safe territory was to climb a hedgerow - a large dirt hill about six feet thick and six to eight feet wide covered with brush and trees.

"They (the Germans) called in some tanks and their tanks lobbed shells over there (by the hedgerow)...I crawled back to the hedgerow, all the time my buddies shooting over my head... and I couldn't get over it."

Breeze couldn't get over the hedgerow because his arm was broke in three places by the gunshot.

Breeze said the only way to get "over" the hedgerow was to go "through" it.

"They called in the engineers and they came up and dug a hole through there and dragged me through," he added. "They dragged me through there, picked me up and carried me back to the road."

Wounded, Breeze was put on a stretcher to be taken to an ambulance. It was then that he had another horrifying experience.

"I was just laying there and had these guys carrying me and they dropped me," Breeze said. "Bullets were hitting the dirt and going across my head."

"They dragged me out of the line and got me into the ambulance and a Yankee in there said 'Can you take some rough riding?,' and I said 'Yeah'."

He said "The Germans think were haulin' ammunition back and forth and they're always shooting at us," Breeze recalled.

Breeze said the Germans hit a round of ammunition both in front and behind the ambulance.

With a sigh of relief, Breeze said, "We got through that."

Other experiences in the war still remain etched in Breeze's memory.

"We were behind the lines, and we had just gone across the fields and the Germans had opened up on us," Breeze said. "A general was over there and he said we're gonna get back over that hedgerow and go across that field."

Frightened, Breeze told the general there was no way he was going to cross the field.

"I said, 'You got to get past that machine gun.'"

Eventually, Breeze said they crossed the field. As suspected, the Germans opened fire on them again.

"We hit the dirt," he said. "My buddy named Brady had a BAR (Browning Automatic Rifle). I was ahead of him, and I thought every shot he pulled off was hitting me in the head."

"It's something you can never explain."

To thank Brady for saving his life, Breeze remembers giving him a gift.

"I had captured a German earlier, and he had this 10-inch dagger with a swastika printed on the blade," Breeze said. "I was going to take it home with me for a souvenir."

"Of course, I stuck it in my belt, and Brady was all the time wanting it. Well, he saved our lives, so I took it out, threw it over to him, and I said 'It's yours.'"

While Breeze does have fond memories of the war, such as his friendship with Brady, he said it is important for people to remember World War II so "something like this never happens again."

"It should be before the public, because we don't want it to happen again," he added. "I can't tell you how bad it is."

"Every war is getting worse than the one before," Breeze explained. "If it happens again, it might blow the world up."

Greek members dominate Student Government

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Student government editor

Members say the Student Government will continue to represent the entire student body despite a large majority belonging to greek organizations on campus.

All but two Student Senate members elected in Wednesday's Student Government Elections belong to a social fraternity or sorority. Executive positions were somewhat less dominated by the greek system; however, three of the five newly elected executive seats are held by a fraternity or sorority member.

Student Body President-elect Michelle Gaddini, who is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, said the high number of fraternities and sororities in Student Government does not have an influence on equal representation.

"(Senate members are) there to represent all their constituents - not their affiliation," Gaddini said. "When you're a senator you represent everybody."

Gaddini said during her campaign for the presidency she tried to contact all the residence halls and recognized student organizations, although she recognized that members of greek organizations are more apt to vote for someone similar to themselves.

Glenn Fundator, vice president for public affairs and member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, said there is a long-running tradition of greek involvement in Student Government.

"(Greek) houses become entrenched in Student Government over time," Fundator said, adding that when a person joins a greek organization he or she is usually interested in extra-curricular involvement, such as Student Government.

"What you do outside of Student Government is your own personal life and your own business," said Jason Anselment, vice president of public affairs elect.

Anselment said the large number of fraternity and sorority members on the election ballot does play a factor in the election results.

"No matter who voted or didn't vote there were a lot of people who were involved in fraternities or sororities elected because a lot of them were on the ballot," Anselment said.

Gaddini said, although many fraternity and sorority members cast votes in the election, turnout for greek students is similar in percentages to the amount of votes coming from organizations such as the RHA.

Financial aid is mandatory for many students

Education should be a right, not a privilege. Anyone with a high school diploma or a general education degree should have the opportunity to attend an institution of higher education.

But Republicans who support the Contract with America are voicing a different opinion. In an attempt to pay for tax cuts and to reduce the federal deficit, the Republicans are proposing cuts in financial aid for college students.

In essence, they are saying that education is reserved only for the wealthy.

Most of the proposed cuts in the $31-billion-a-year financial aid budget would come from changes in reimbursing the government for Stafford Loans, Perkins Loans, work-study programs and Supplement Educational Opportunity Grants.

The cuts, they say, would save $15.3 billion in the next few years.

But is sacrificing billions of students' educational opportunities really worth it? At Eastern alone, more than 8,000 students receive some type of financial aid.

Some people predict that Stafford loan cuts could add more than $3,000 to some students' college debt.

Cutting financial aid will only hurt students and institutions of higher education and ultimately, economic growth.

Fewer students will be able to attend universities, lessening their job opportunities, as more and more employers are limiting job candidates to those who hold college degrees.

Colleges will not receive as much state money because fewer students will be attending the institutions.

And with fewer students holding college degrees, the chances for the government to give out more federal welfare money will increase.

Students and other members of universities need to write letters to their representatives voicing their concern for the proposed financial aid cuts.

Vietnam War still teaching lessons

Eastern ROTC instructor Sgt. Gerry Larose spent most of his 13-month tour of Vietnam on the front lines.

Under a triple canopy of jungle, where it was "constant night," his duty was to locate North Vietnamese Army targets. At times, he was only 200 meters from the enemy.

Twenty years ago this Sunday, Saigon fell to North Vietnamese forces, signalling the end of the Vietnam War.

Larose, who enlisted when he was 18, said the 85 members of his troop were "close-knit." "When you're in a situation like that, you are relying on each other, and you have to trust each other."

Although his troop worked 24-hour shifts and completed 26 operations in a little more than a year, every couple of months his troop would be given rest and recuperation time. When they were in safe areas, they held barbecues and played football.

This family of men saw great pain and loss on the front lines. Eighty-six percent of the men in the unit were killed or wounded during an 18-month period. Each loss hit with the same impact.

"The first is no different than the last," Larose said. "Nobody likes losing a friend."

The soldiers left Vietnam at different times. When Larose left, he was relieved, but it was tough to leave his friends behind, not knowing whether they would live.

"I paid a visit to the Wall (of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial) in '88. I was hesitant to look at the names because I didn't want to see anyone who was still alive when I left."

A difficult issue weighed down on the veterans as U.S. forces withdrew from Vietnam. The communists prevailed, and many veterans questioned whether their sacrifice for their country was made in vain.

Larose said, "When a lot of Vietnam Vets came back, they asked themselves 'Should I have gone there?'"

"After the North Vietnamese took over, tens of thousands of people tried to get off that island in boats, and they drowned; it was like suicide. Hundreds of thousands were placed in re-education camps. Their best administrators and educators were slaughtered by the communists. Once we saw that happen, a lot of us felt vindicated."

Other Vietnam Vets, like Ted Brazil, an associate professor of political science, say the Vietnam War was clearly "a tragic mistake."

Sam McKee

"In addition to the veterans' traumatizing experience, a portion of America didn't welcome them home..."

Now looking back at the Wall and the war, Larose said there are at least two lessons the U.S. government can learn from Vietnam:

"Don't commit forces unless the national security of the U.S. is involved."

"The mission of the forces needs to be clear and concise, and it has to be properly explained to the American people. The majority of the people should support the deployment."

John Faust, a political science professor, said the government applied this second lesson with success during Operation Desert Storm.

"That's why we didn't go into Iraq. We carried out a limited objective that we knew we could be successful at. The experience of Vietnam taught us this."

Larose said many Vietnam Veterans stayed in the services and rebuilt the military. "This was a major reason why the military was so successful during Operation Desert Storm."

Vietnam caused division in America. In addition to the veterans' traumatizing experience, a portion of America didn't welcome them home with open arms.

"Because of social and political issues surrounding Vietnam, the country was polarized, and the soldier was caught in the middle," Larose said.

Brazil, who served on a Navy vessel on a river in Saigon said he remembers being harassed in a Dallas, Texas airport because he was in uniform. "I've heard from some of my peers that wasn't isolated. It happened enough that it wasn't unusual."

Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara "piped two presidents and America into a quagmire (Vietnam)," the Chicago Tribune wrote in an April 11 editorial in response to his new book on Vietnam, titled "In Retrospect: The Tragedy and Lessons of Vietnam." Too little, too late, McNamara writes that Vietnam was a mistake.

However, in an interview on C-Span, he summarized what may be the best approach to honoring Vietnam Veterans.

"I believe our nation owes them some respect, affection, recognition, and I think the greatest respect that we can give them is to understand what caused this tragedy, to ensure that it doesn't occur again."

Reader attacked character without knowing person

Dear editor:

I am forced to write a letter in response to Nicole Liddle's unprofessional attack my character. As she didn't accompany me to either of the places offering work, I don't see how she can depict whether the owners were racist or not. She mentions that "in a small town of 12,000 people, employment is bound to be difficult to find."

Apparently Liddle hasn't been to Lincoln Avenue in a while. In the past two months, several restaurants have been hiring.

Liddle also made the point that "since the owner is of minority status, she finds it hard to believe he could be racist against me." I see Liddle has the common tendency to think that all minorities are one big happy race. Well, you are wrong. Minorities are comprised of blacks, Hispanics, Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, Hindus and many others. And, with in this group there are many prejudices as we are all different people of different cultures and backgrounds. So, Liddle, if you would allow your mind to broaden, you would see that racism between minorities is very much possible.

To prove that Liddle wrote this article with her eyes closed, I do own a car. Liddle, have you ever seen a Ford Taurus? If you have, then you would know that I own a dark blue 1989 Ford Taurus and I have had it since December of 1994. I also used my car to drive myself to one of the restaurants to ask for an application.

Lastly, I will come to the part where Liddle attacked my character. How dare she tell me about faults in my character when she doesn't even know me. I didn't ask the owner what experience is needed to work in a donut shop, which was a question I had myself. I also didn't start yelling until after he didn't want to give me the application (because of the color of my skin), but willingly gave one to the white student without questioning her experience. And, Liddle, just for the record, if its one thing I am thoroughly against, its accepting a job because of the color of my skin. I don't take hand-outs. I work hard at school just like everyone else, and I expect to get a job because of my qualifications not my skin color.

So before you ever try to tell me I'm refused a job because of faults in my character, learn more about me and the situations I face. I never said anything about believing all people are racist. So, I think that makes you the one with the poor attitude making false statements.

Kente cloth is a symbol of triumph over black struggles

Dear editor:

I am writing in response to Ryan S. Coder's letter to the editor concerning the kente cloth issue. I am a freshman and therefore, may not be too familiar with the traditions and procedures of this campus. One thing, however, that I have become familiar with on this campus is ignorance.

In his letter, Coder stated that blacks didn't have to work to achieve any distinction. It seems to me that Coder's form of ignorance has stemmed from not being able to completely understand that for a minority, maintaining sanity on a daily basis is like standing at a fork in the road. You have prejudice to the right and discrimination to the left. Despite this, there are many who choose to rise above this. If Coder thinks for one minute that distinction in that form isn't deserving of recognition, then I guess that's one more of the many problems he will just have to struggle with in the privacy of his own mind. Or, he could go around writing "I hate niggers" or drawing the Nazis swastika. Don't get me wrong. I'm not calling him a racist or anything. I've never met Coder, and he hasn't had the privilege of knowing me that well.

What I don't understand is why do these shallow-minded persons insist on bitching and whining every time African Americans make an effort to attain and maintain something that will serve to make our existence at Eastern somewhat better than that of our dirt. But just like the frog who could have drowned in the pot of milk had he not kicked and struggled until he stood safely on top of a pat of butter, we will continue to rise.

This is just another meaningless obstacle that will be tackled. I just thought I'd take time out from my busy schedule to let you know that. As far as Coder's reference about the dog, does he know how long a dog will stay stuck out in the snow before it grows aggressive and attacks someone? I don't think he does, but trust me, it's not very long.

High school Bash for Trash a success

By JEFF KELLY
Staff writer

Recycling bins were filled to the brim Saturday at Charleston High School, where nearly 150 people participated in the school's Bash for Trash.

"If we had much more trash brought in, we would have had to bring in another truck (to haul it away)," said Stan Adkins, adviser for the event and biology teacher at Charleston High School.

The event, held at the north parking lot of Charleston High School from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., was an opportunity for people to drop off recyclable items including newspapers, aluminum cans, brown and clear glass, magazines and other slick paper.

"The materials were separated into different bins, some of them as tall as my armpit," Adkins said. "The boxes with white glass and aluminum cans were overflowing, and the tin box was nearly full. In all, there were about 13 of these (boxes) filled."

In addition to being a trash drop-off, the event had a festival-type atmosphere with live music and food available.

"We had a great turnout," Adkins said. "The bands Cherry Valance and 979-420 played from 11:30 to 5:30 p.m., free of charge, and we had Dan Jaynes perform and Danielle Blackwood, a 9-year old girl sang."

In addition, the Charleston High School Art Club sold jewelry and old photos of students. Mattoon-based WMCI radio also broadcasted live from the high school for part of the day.

L and M Recycling of Charleston provided the equipment and recycling for the event. L and M Recycling also accepts recyclable materials at its offices at 121 N. Sixth St.

High school students were a large part of the day, donating time and work to make the event happen, Adkins said.

"(High school students)

Fritz Swartzbaugh and Joel Schute really helped by getting the idea to bring live music into the picture," Adkins said. "There were also some students who were there for more than 11 hours helping."

This was the first year the Bash for Trash took place, but it probably won't be the last.

"Next year would probably be bigger since more people will know about it," Adkins said. "This just shows people really want to recycle."

Candidate to interview today

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Administration editor

The fourth of five candidates vying for provost and vice president for academic affairs said her strong perspective on higher education should help her in competing for the position.

Gloria Dimoplou, dean of the College of Science at Mankato State University in Mankato, Minn., will be attending several interviews today and Tuesday, including an open faculty and student session at 3:30 p.m. today in the Arcola-Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"I have a good perspective of higher education in the 1990s and what lies ahead," Dimoplou said.

"I am also familiar with strategic planning and curriculum and course development, and I am sensitive to recruitment and retention of minorities," she added.

Dimoplou said her 20 years of higher education experience have prepared her for the responsibilities of the provost position.

"At this stage in my career, I am looking for a vice president and provost position," she said.

Dimoplou said Eastern's solid academic reputation along with the size of the institution most attracted her to applying for provost.

"(Eastern) is large enough to offer a large variety of programs, yet small enough to provide good student-to-teacher relationships," Dimoplou said.

Dimoplou said her knowledge of decentralized budgets, which Eastern uses, will also increase her chances of acquiring the provost position.

She said a decentralized budget is more beneficial to a university because it brings more responsibility and accountability to department chairs and deans rather than decisions coming from the administration.

"I have confidence in the faculty to be able to clarify the objectives of their programs and make decisions on priorities within those programs," Dimoplou said.

The final candidate for provost and vice president for academic affairs will be on campus this week to attend several interview sessions.

John D. Haeger, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, Mich., will be on campus Thursday and Friday for interviews.

Airport renews flights

By BRIAN HUCHEL
City editor

Students may have another travel option next month as the Coles County Memorial Airport may soon begin offering flights to and from Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

"We don't have a precise date yet," said Jerry Carter, manager of the county airport. "There is the suspicion that it will be within the next few weeks."

Airline services to O'Hare from the county airport were offered by American Airlines until January 1991 when the company cut off its routes, ending 35 years of flights between the two cities. Northern Star Airlines, which only has connections to Midway Airport in Chicago, was designated to replace American Airlines.

In September 1994, Great Lakes Aviation was granted approval to restore routes from Coles County to O'Hare.

Although the routes are expected to begin within a matter of weeks, Carter said no decisions have been made concerning the fares or time tables for the new routes.

O'Hare was forced to reestablish routes with smaller airports that had lost their landing slots because of recent legislation that required O'Hare to restore access to smaller airports that once were linked to the Chicago Airport but later lost their landing slots.

Despite the airport's reconnection with O'Hare, Carter said several benefits will be lost by stopping routes to Midway Airport.

Faculty Senate to discuss gender equity

By ERIC BECKER
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate Tuesday will hear from four faculty members Tuesday who will discuss gender equity among Eastern's athletic programs.

The senate will meet at 2 p.m. in the BOG Room of Booth Library.

"We want to look at the options in the future of gender equity," said John Allison, chairman of the Faculty Senate. "The best people to provide guidance for that are those involved."

Scheduled guests include: Joan Schmidt, assistant professor of physical education; Eleanor Midkiff, associate professor of psychology; Betty Ralston, Eastern's women's volleyball coach; and English professor Sharon Bartling.

Schmidt said she will provide information to the senate regarding Eastern's compliance to Title IX and the approach the university takes toward gender equity.

Title IX was initiated in 1972 by the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights to provide gender equity.

"The approach that I am taking identifies the differences between what gender equity is, and how it differs from Title IV," Schmidt said. "General equity is a moral attitude and an environment where decisions are made by fairness."

Schmidt said she believes in providing opportunities for all students and has worked hard toward that goal.

"I have worked throughout my life to support opportunities for young people," Schmidt said. "But I don't provide opportunities for women by taking opportunities away from men."

Schmidt said she feels gender equity may lower standards within athletics because the university is often aiming for mediocrity rather than excellence.

"I have always believed that our goal is to make things as good as they can be," Schmidt said. "But I see us lowering our standards to meet gender equity."

In other business scheduled for Tuesday's meeting, the senate will vote on new senate officers.

Artist to present slides and lecture

Chicago-based lithograph artist, etcher and painter Barbara Rossi will be presenting a lecture and slide show on her work at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Tarble Arts Center.

Rossi's work has been compared to art forms such as Celtic illuminations and Malwa paintings from India, said Michael Watts, director of the Tarble Arts Center.

Her work has been characterized as a "distinctive and unusual welding together of the qualities of tonal value and color," in the book "The Chicago Imagist" by Dennis Adrian and Richard A. Barn.

"Though abstract, the subjects of Rossi's art contain enough information to provide a thorough form, gesture and the essence of narrative," wrote David McCracken in the Chicago Tribune.

Rossi's work will be on display in the Tarble Arts Center until June 4, Watts said.

"We only bring in artists of good quality," Watts said. "Rossi is here for the basis of the Tarble Arts Center's Spring 5th Grade Art Enrichment Program."

In describing her Malwa paintings, Rossi said, "I'm simply figuring out for myself what these images mean and making my own version of them."

Her visit is co-sponsored by the Tarble Arts Center and by Eastern's Art Department.

Library purchases computer software

Booth library recently received new computer-training videos in the Self-Study Materials Center to inform students and faculty about various software.

The ViaGrafix Videos Training Series includes five videos on Word Perfect 6.0 for Windows, three videos on Windows 3.1, two videos on Quattro Pro, and two videos on FoxPro.

Susan Eisenhower, the library's technical assistant, said that each video has a separate function to help those using the programs.

Eisenhower said the videos on Word Perfect for Windows 6.0 are training videos that may be used with disks that lead users through operations; the videos for Windows 3.1, are disks that explain how to set programs in order; the videos on Quattro Pro are data based to be used for spreadsheets and graphs; and the videos for FoxPro are used to handle data and to put information in order.

"We just got the program in last week," Eisenhower said. "Right now, the faculty is using the program more than students."

Cosell dead at 77

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Cosell, whose caustic "tell it like it is" personality made him the world's most celebrated sportscaster and turned "Monday Night Football" into a national institution, died Sunday. He was 77.

Cosell, who underwent cancer surgery in 1991, died of a heart embolism at New York University's Hospital for Joint Diseases, grandson Justin Cohane said.

He was the strident, colorful voice of ABC radio and television from 1953 to 1992. It was a period of phenomenal growth and change in America's pastimes, spurred by television's cascading millions and increased greed among athletes and promoters.

Cosell chronicled it that way, revolutionizing a broadcasting industry more used to parroting the party line.

"Howard Cosell was one of the most original people ever to appear on American television," said ABC News President Rooney Arledge, who was head of ABC Sports during Cosell's heyday. "He became a giant by the simple act of telling the truth in an industry that was not used to hearing it and considered it revolutionary."

Kristy Sims defeating Cory Ingham, 6-0, 6-1, and No. 5 seed Melissa Welch defeating Kristi Zagotti, 6-1, 6-0.

Due to the rainy weather, the entire tournament was held indoors, with only three courts available to play on. In addition to the change in playing indoors, scoring is compiled differently in conference, with the match completed after one team earns five points.

Eastern went on to beat Valparaiso University in the semi-final match on Friday 5-0.

With that win, Eastern advanced to the finals against the Trojans. Kramarski considered this match the best of the year for the team, despite the loss.

Doubles matches were played first, with No. 1 seed Wulfers and Angie Waldhoff losing to Claire Mowling and Ginnette Parker, 2-6, 4-6. The No. 2 pair of Dua and Erickson defeated Mouna Bennouna and Lovik, 6-2, 6-2. Finally, the No. 3 pair of Welch and Sims lost to Sally Herring and Celeste Reynolds, 4-6, 6-2, 3-6.

Kramarski was especially pleased with Dua and Erickson.

"Dua and Erickson played very well. They played the very best that they have played all year together," Kramarski said.

Troy State continued to provide challenging matches for the team, and going into singles, Troy State was up 2-1 over Eastern.

At No. 1 singles, Wulfers lost to Mowling, 7-6 (7-2), 2-6, 2-6. Despite her losing the match, Kramarski said she was very pleased with Wulfers' play, especially as she came back and won the tie-breaker of the first set.

No. 2 Erickson was defeated by Parker, 4-6, 0-6, but No. 3 Dua defeated her opponent, Cassie Whitworth, 6-1, 6-2.

No. 4 Sims defeated her opponent as well, winning over Bennouna, 6-0, 7-5. No. 5 Welch was defeated by Reynolds, 6-3, 0-6, 3-6 and No. 6 Stephanie Sullivan was even with her opponent in the third set, 3-3, when she was pulled off the court as Welch lost her match, giving Troy State the five points they needed to win the championship.

Softball team splits games over weekend

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

The Eastern softball team lost its Mid-Continent Conference rematch to first place Western Illinois Sunday afternoon, dropping a 6-5, 14-inning contest and 4-1 game to the Westerwinds in Macomb.

But the Panthers were able to salvage two Mid-Con victories on Saturday — a 9-0 and 11-4 thrashing of the University of Missouri-Kansas City in Independence, Mo.

With the 2-2 weekend, Eastern is now 25-21 and 8-4 in the West Division of the conference.

In the first game, the Panthers held a 3-0 advantage heading into the bottom of the sixth inning. But Western rolled off three runs in the sixth to tie the game and eventually force extra innings.

The teams traded runs in the eighth and ninth innings before Western finally struck with the winning run in the bottom of the 14th.

Mandy White picked up the tough loss, giving up just three hits and one run in five innings of relief. Sophomore Terri Creydt (2-for-5, 3 runs batted in) led the Panther attack.

In the 4-1 loss, junior Missy Porzel had the only RBI. Senior Nicole Chapman had two hits. Senior pitcher Coli Turley took the loss.

In the UMKC contests, senior shortstop Aimee Klein broke out of a season-long batting slump to help the Panthers to a pair of conference victories.

Batting just .181, Klein went 4-for-4, with 3 RBI and two runs scored in the 9-0 victory. Senior catcher Sharna McEwan went 2-for-5 with three runs scored.

Colts select McElroy in NFL draft

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Sports editor

Eastern football standout Ray McElroy joined the ranks of the football elite yesterday as he was selected by the Indianapolis Colts in the fourth round of the National Football League draft.

The Bellwood native, who played high school football at Proviso West, is a three-time All-Gateway conference cornerback and was the 112th pick overall.

McElroy's teammate, offensive lineman Duane Conway, wasn't as lucky though. Conway was not selected in the draft but may still be invited to some teams' summer camps in hopes of making a squad.

McElroy is the highest Panther pick since Eastern's Ted Peterson was selected by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the fourth round of the 1977 draft.

Eastern defensive coordinator John Smith said that McElroy's early selection was not surprising.

"I felt all along that Ray could go as high as the third round," Smith said. "He (McElroy) felt that he didn't have a real good combine in Indianapolis. But the secondary coach from the Colts called me on Friday and I talked to him for about a half hour. I knew then that they were interested." Although McElroy was chosen, he still has to make the team that will be competing during the season. If not, he could be put on the Colts' developmental squad — much like the situation with Eastern's Brad Fichtel who was selected by the Los Angeles Rams in 1993. Fichtel ended up on their developmental squad for a couple of years.

Panther head coach Bob Spoo said the attention McElroy got from professional scouts was a strong indication he would be picked.

"I think it's great," Spoo said. "He was getting a lot of (looks from professional teams) this whole fall and even in the spring.

"There were position coaches and area evaluators here so we kind of felt there was a strong interest there.

"I think it's wonderful for Ray. I'm really happy for him. He's done the things necessary to put himself in that position. If he makes that squad, you know he's going to be used in a variety of ways.

"This is the first step and a great opportunity for him."

McAfee, Scott take firsts at Indiana State invite

BY CHET PIOTROWSKI
Staff writer

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — Competing in the Indiana State Invitational, the men's and women's track teams knew they were going to encounter some pretty stiff competition, mainly from Indiana State University, Illinois State University and Southern Illinois University.

The teams definitely rose to the occasion, despite being outscored heavily on the men's and women's side.

On the men's side, Indiana State placed first with 289 points while Illinois State finished second with 119 and Eastern third with 100 points. Butler University, Rose-Hulman University and Bradley University finished fourth, fifth and sixth with 23, 17 and 13 points respectively.

The Lady Panthers finished fourth with 66 points behind powerhouse Southern Illinois University which had 160 points. Indiana State University (139) and Illinois State University (136) finished second and third respectively.

Central Michigan University and Butler rounded out the last spots with 63 and 16 points.

Sophomore Kert McAfee had an exceptional day, as he took first in the 800-meter run with a time of 1:55.19 minutes. He also placed second in the 400-meter run with a time of 48.87 seconds.

Head men's coach Tom Akers was pleased with McAfee's performance.

"It takes a real competitor to lay it on the line like Kert does," Akers said. "He goes and runs the 400 (meter) in two-tenths of a second off his best time, and comes back 30 minutes later and runs a personal best in the 800 (meter), which ranks him third in the conference."

Todd Moroney, who took third in the 5000-meter run with a time of 4:02.35 minutes, said he was pleased with his performance.

Mike McBride took second in the 800-meter run with a time of 1:55.33, while George Wilson took first in the in the 400-meter run with a time of 48.45 seconds.

The 4x100-meter relay team consisting of Wilson, McAfee, Joe Rigaud and Ralph Gardner took third due to bad exchanges.

On the women's side, Kala Scott had a great day, taking a first, second and a third in the long jump, 100-meter hurdles and triple jump.

"She was a little upset with some of her performances. She wants perfection," Akers said. "She wants to break records. She needs to learn to come off an off-performance and let it motivate her for the next event. It'll help her get to another level."

Tisha Alvarez had a good day with a third place in the hammer throw with a distance of 136 feet — which is a personal best.

Irma Perez took third in the 3000-meter run with a time of 18:20.8.

Tiffany Jansen reset the Invitational record in the high jump with a leap of 5'8" which earned her first place. She also tied the record last year.

Chicago State latest victim in Panther baseball attack

By DAN FIELDS
Associate sports editor

The Eastern baseball team brought its sticks to Monier Field Saturday against Chicago State, as the Panthers swept the Cougars by scores of 8-1 and 17-5.

Eastern, 24-13 overall and 11-3 in the Mid-Continent Conference, attempted to play Sunday, but the game lasted only four innings before inclement weather set in and the contests had to be canceled.

In the first game on Saturday, senior hurler Chris Hall (5-2) went the distance in picking up the win. Hall gave up one earned run, while walking none and striking out six.

"Chris Hall's arm is getting healthier and healthier each time out," said head coach Jim Schmitz.

The Panthers scored six runs in the first two innings and two more in their half of the sixth to round out the scoring. Shane Hesse was 2-for-3 with a double and three runs batted in while Josh Zink was 2-for-2 with a double and an RBI.

In the second game, the Panther bats warmed up as they routed the Cougars 17-5.

Rob Nicholes carried the big stick for Eastern as he belted three home runs and drove in five RBI.

"What a great day for him and for our offense," Schmitz said. "We're very excited to have him back."

Joch Martin, who was 2-for-3, smacked a round-tripper and a double while driving in four.

"The players themselves are coming to practice early to hit and staying late to hit," Schmitz said. "It's starting to pay off."

"I think the team has been having good practices and playing with a confident attitude. I'm very happy with how things are going."

Netters capture second at Mid-Con tournament

One of the women's tennis team's goals this season was to win the Mid-Continent Conference Championship.

This weekend the Lady Netters came very close to achieving that goal, but lost in the final match to Troy State University, 5-3.

But even though the team came away with a loss, they didn't leave empty-handed.

Head coach Rosie Kramarski was named the Mid-Con's coach of the year while Samantha Wulfers and Stephanie Sullivan were named to the All-Conference team.

The team went into the championships seeded second, following the first seed Troy State. Kramarski anticipated Troy State as Eastern's biggest challenge going into the championships, and she was accurate in her prediction, with half the matches against Troy State going to three sets.

With Eastern earning the No. 2 spot, it received a first round bye, and played tournament host Youngstown State University, in the second round.

Eastern defeated Youngstown by a score of 6-0, and highlights from the match included all three doubles seeds earning victories, as well as No. 3 seed Geeta Dua defeating Jennifer DiPasqua, 6-1, 6-1, No. 4 seed
