Questions on teacher certification resolved

by Lola Burnham

Confusion about whether students who are candidates for teacher certification will be required to do course work in special education has been resolved by the School of Education.

The confusion arose through interpretation of House Bill 150, which was passed in October 1979, requiring all candidates who apply for teacher certification after Sept. 1, 1981 to complete a course in special education.

Students said they did not know whether the bill would require special education work for students who enter a teaching program after Sept. 1 or for all students currently enrolled but not yet eligible for certification.

George Schlinsog, assistant dean of the School of Education, said Tuesday the bill does not affect students who apply for certification before Sept. 1, 1981.

This means that students who graduate in spring or summer 1981 and who apply for certification through an approved program will not be required to take a special education course.

Schlinsog added that "if they (students) apply at the beginning of the term (fall 1981) when they should, their certificates will be prepared by Sept. 1." Those students will not have to meet the special education requirement.

To receive a teaching certificate, students must apply at the beginning of their final semester, Schlinsog said.

Certificates are then prepared at the state office in Springfield and entitlement cards are sent to Eastern. These cards are given to students when they graduate.

Graduates turn in their cards to the regional superintendent of schools where they are going to teach, who sends them back to Springfield before the students receive the actual certificate.

Schlinsog noted that students need only to have applied for certification, not have received it, by Sept. 1.

He said that Frank Lutz, dean of the School of Education, will be meeting Monday with deans from other schools to discuss the development of special education programs within their schools.

The education school recently revised its curriculum to include a course that will satisfy the requirement.

Students who are not majoring in special education may take the course to satisfy the bill's specifications if one of their other courses does not include units on special education.

Unidentified Americans killed in Iraq

by the Associated Press

Iraqi ground and air forces struck into Iran along a broad front Tuesday, zeroing in on the Iranian oil center of Abadan, as the conflict between the two Persian Gulf military powers erupted into all-out war. Iran's U.S.-made warplanes hit back with punishing raids on Iraqi cities and oil targets.

The night sky over Baghdad was alight with anti-aircraft fire and Iranian bombs "falling all over the place," a witness reported.

Four unidentified Americans were reportedly killed in Iranian bombing raids on the petrochemical complex near Basra, Iraq. The war had an immediate effect on the 52 American hostages in Iran—the Iranian Parliament decided to "freeze" its consideration of their fate, and their militant captors said some were again being moved about inside Iran.

The U.N. Security Council schedule urgent consultations on the conflict.

Iraq claimed its jets set the giant Abadan refinery ablaze, destroying it, and its armor-led ground forces captured the major Iranian border town of Qasre-Shirin, 300 miles to the north.

The Iraqi invaders also surrounded the city of Abadan and the port city of Khorramshahr, across the disputed Shatt al Arab waterway separating the two nations, Iraq government communiques said. They called it a "victorious march" into Iran.

Initial Tehran broadcasts claimed Iranian forces repulsed the Iraqis, but later reports confirmed the Abadan complex had come under attack.

The Baghdad government said 47 people were killed and 116 wounded when wave after wave of Iranian jets bombed the Iraqi capital and other cities, air bases and oil installations in Iraq. Iran issued no casualty reports from the attacks on its side of the border.

The Iraqi command claimed 67 Iranian warplanes were shot down, but the Iranians conceded the loss of only two. Iran said it sent 140 planes into battle.

Equal rights?

This group of Eastern students is the driving force behind nominating senior Ron Utz for Homecoming Queen and Dave Wilson for freshman attendant. The group nominated the two men to "end sex discrimination."

AB meets to review memo from Marvin

by Becky Suprenant

The Apportionment Board and its faculty members will meet Thursday to further discuss a memorandum sent from Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin questioning procedures of the AB, Todd Daniels, student financial vice president said.

The AB meets at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Effingham Room.

In his memorandum, Marvin said he was concerned with "the most recent controversy over the funding of the Model United Nations and the Vehicle."

In March of this year, the Model United Nations was denied a funding request of $2,184 for the fiscal year 1980-81, and the Vehicle, Eastern's literary magazine, was denied a request for $1,383.

Former financial vice president Kevin Sandefur said the AB denied the Model U.N. funds because he felt the organization should be funded by a department on campus as it is an academic activity. The Vehicle request was denied following the results of a student survey indicating the Model U.N. and Vehicle should not be funded by student fees.

Sandefur said additional reasons to cut student funding of the Vehicle were a low number of subscriptions and sales.

However, after much discussion the Vehicle received $662.50 and the Model U.N. received $1,636 in April of last year.

In his memo, Marvin said he wants to know the AB's relationship to other student-faculty boards and the Student Senate, the basic purposes of the board, basic program purposes and fiscal responsibilities.

The AB will also discuss the procedure for groups or organizations to use when applying for funds.

"Right now I could not tell a group a set way to apply for funds," Daniels said. "Every time a group wants money I feel there should be a referendum held to see how students feel," he said.

Grocery price increase biggest in five years

WASHINGTON — The biggest increase in grocery prices in five years pushed consumer prices up 0.7 percent in August, an annual rate of inflation of 8.6 percent, the government said Tuesday.

Auto prices also rose sharply, although the price of gasoline declined for the fourth consecutive month.

Grocery prices rose 2.3 percent in August, the most for any month since July of 1975, when they increased 2.4 percent. The severe drought that destroyed crops in some sections of the country was largely to blame, analysts said.

The price of meats, poultry, fish and eggs rose a combined 4.1 percent, with egg prices alone up to 6.6 percent to average price per dozen of 91 cents.

Reagan, Anderson attack Carter's campaign

Ronald Reagan charged President Carter with indecent political behavior on Tuesday, while John B. Anderson said the commander-in-chief was using "scare tactics" for claiming that the election this fall comes down to a choice between war and peace.

The president's spokesman, Jody Powell, conceded Carter was guilty of an "over statement of the case."

Carter himself, meanwhile, outlined a policy of "strict neutrality" in the conflict between Iran and Iraq, and urged other nations to follow his lead.

Lauda seeks more faculty input

by Scott Hainzinger

Donald Lauda, candidate for the vice president for academic affairs position, said his primary goal if appointed would be to open the lines of communication between his office and the rest of the campus.

"The campus has a right to know what's going on up there," Lauda said, and creating a more open policy would get faculty and administrators involved in the decision-making process.

Lauda said he would concentrate not only on getting input from faculty members, but also on attaining commentary from the two other vice presidents and the various deans of the schools.

"I perceive this office as being directly involved with the deans and I would like to see them get involved in making collective recommendations," Lauda said.

Lauda said it would be "senseless" for the vice president for academic affairs to make decisions without an input from the schools over which he presides.

Maintaining open and positive relations with the Board of Governors would also be included in his objectives, Lauda said.

He said he expects the BOG to become increasingly important to the university in its role of reviewing programs requested by the university and making recommendations about those programs to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

In the future, Lauda said, he believes that resources for Eastern will come more from program requests than any other source.

Lauda said he is also interested in working with the interdisciplinary programs, such as the general education requirements, to create a university which is more responsive to students' needs to address the important issues of the day.

Lauda said when students get to their junior and senior years they are more mature and can express their opinions better than they could as freshman, when most students try to fulfill the general education requirements.

He said as a result, students are not fully benefiting from the general education courses.

Lauda said under the current general education requirements it is possible for a student to graduate without ever having taken any social studies, world civilization or classes that deal with the future.

Lauda said he feels these classes are important to the student's individual development and that it would be his personal obligation as VPAA to support courses which would contribute to the student's "knowledge of himself and his culture".

Lauda was the last of the five candidates who were interviewed for the vice president position that Thomas Bond vacated this summer to become president of Clarion State University at Clarion, Pa.

Search Committee Chairman Terry Weidner said the committee hopes to submit its final candidate to President Daniel E. Marvin by Sept. 25 for his action.

Shaughnessy to hold concert

by Judy Kalita

A press conference along with a special demonstration on drumming skills will highlight the concert to be given by guest artist Ed Shaughnessy at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Dvorak Concert Hall, Bob Becker, University Board fine arts coordinator said.

Shaughnessy has been a regularly featured musician on the Johnny Carson "Tonight Show," for the past 12 years, Becker said.

The press conference will be held from 12:30 to 1:30 on Wednesday afternoon in the Oakland room Union addition, Al Sieper, UB publicity chairman said. From 2 to 3 p.m. Shaughnessy will be offering a workshop on various drumming techniques Saturday in Dvorak Concert Hall.

Shaughnessy began playing the drums at the age of 14. At 19, he was already playing with George Shearin at New York night club. He has performed with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC and Pittsburgh Symphonies and Orchestra USA.

Admission for the concert is $1.50 for students and $2.50 for the general public, Becker said.

Salary settlement helps Eastern

We commend the American Federation of Teachers and the Board of Governors for their recent efforts in approving a salary hike for BOG faculty members, including those at Eastern.

The negotiation process has been extremely complicated, but reason prevailed and both sides kept their tempers in check. The AFT and BOG did not always agree on figures, but they still kept the negotiating process open.

Eastern is fortunate to have a governing board which is willing to accept the collective bargaining process for faculty salaries. Some university faculties are forced to take strong measures to be recognized through collective bargaining.

Students should be concerned about faculty salary negotiations because they may effect the quality of education a student receives.

If faculty members are dissatisfied, they will look for better opportunities and leave the university. Overpaid faculty can be even worse because tuition hikes may be called for to support their high salaries.

Higher education has been subordinated to other needs in society. Most of all, faculty salaries are sometimes considered secondary in the minds of government and education officials. It seems the BOG has not forgotten that university faculties are victims of the inflationary spiral as well.

We hope that the bargaining process will remain open between the BOG and AFT in future negotiations concerning faculty salaries. If the process does break down, it will hurt all parties connected with higher education, including the students.

Dorm heat fries mind

With cooler weather upon us, many may have already forgotten when it was much hotter, especially in the dorms. The management of the residence halls obviously thought that air conditioning meant having an illegal alien stand in the basement, chew ice and blow through the air ducts.

My dorm was one of the "lucky" ones that supposedly had air conditioning, so I did not buy a fan.

Arriving in the dorm lobby, I found the temperature to be a perfect 72 degrees. Upon opening the door of my room, however, I was greeted with a gust of warm air that smelled of gym socks. The air vents spitted out a measly trickle of luke-warm air.

I called the desk downstairs and a woman said, "The air conditioner was fixed two weeks ago and is now working at full capacity."

I asked her if the alien got holidays off and minded getting "fixed." She answered my question by hanging up...loudly.

The only thing left to do was to try sleeping, but lying on a quilt and sweating wasn't what I had in mind. I finally ended up falling asleep by putting my head in my rental refrigerator and laying a bag of frozen green beans on my chest. I awoke in the middle of the night and thought I was a pot pie.

The rest of the night I spent sleeping on the floor of the dorm lobby. It was cooler, but I woke up in the morning to find footprints on my back and second degree linoleum burns on my stomach.

I couldn't keep this up any longer, so I placed a phone call to the Housing Office and demanded to know why I was paying a large sum of money to contract prickly heat.

A secretary said, "I'm sorry son, bodily complications must be referred to the Health Services Building."

I placed a call to Health Services and before I had a chance to say anything, a voice came over the line, "Please give us your name, nature of your social disease and any known sexual contacts at the sound of the beep..."

There must have been some reason for this runaround. Could the university be air conditioning only the dorm lobbies so that parents, who never go up into the rooms and who keep sending tuition money, will think that "Junior" is being well taken care of?

Whatever the reason, I learned how to deal with the heat. It became a treat to have friends over to stir-fry vegetables on my floor. It was an event to have the guys over, drink Gatorade and see whose deodorant gave out first.

Well, they've finally turned on the air conditioning here in my dorm. Mixed with the fall temperatures outside, this occurrence has caused my room to turn a bit chilly. Which reminds me, I had better start searching for some firewood before the sun goes down.

Cut back amendment could hurt or help

(Editor's Note: Joe Connelly is a political science instructor at Eastern and is currently chairman for the Democratic party of Coles County.)

As a result of a petition drive and a favorable ruling by the Illinois State Supreme Court, Illinois citizens will have the opportunity on Nov. 4 to adopt a constitutional amendment which would reduce the size of the state House of Representatives from 177 to 118 seats and also abolish our present system of cumulative voting.

At present three state representatives are elected from each of the state's legislative districts. Each political party must nominate at least two candidates for each district. This virtually assures the minority party in each district representation in the House.

Supporters of the cutback amendment argue that reducing the size of the House would save annual expenditures of $7 million through reduced salaries and clerical staff. They also claim that a smaller House would operate more efficiently and that representatives would be more responsive to the wishes and needs of the people.

Opponents of the proposed amendment, including a majority of the incumbent representatives, question whether or not substantial savings would actually be realized. They also point out that minority interests in any district would no longer have representation in the House.

The proposal would probably save some money. It would also increase competition. At the present time the two members of the majority party are virtually assured election. Competition that does take place is primarily between the two candidates of the minority party, competition which is often divisive to that party. Reducing the size of the House by one-third should also increase the efficiency of that body.

Viewpoint:

Joe Connelly

However, one consequence of the proposal could have a negative effect upon the quality and the performance of the House. If the amendment is approved, the services of many of the state's most able legislators will be lost.

A number of the most competent and respected Democratic House members, including Speaker William Redmond, reside in the Chicago suburban areas; they would have little chance of being elected if these strong Republican areas were converted to single-member districts.

Likewise, many able Republicans from strongly Democratic Chicago would not return to Springfield. Charleston's own Larry Stuffle, who has gained statewide recognition as an outstanding legislator, might well have not been originally elected in a single-member district in this Republican area.

This is not a partisan issue. There is no evidence that one of the political parties will gain if the amendment is approved.

To pass, the proposed amendment must receive a majority of votes of all those who cast ballots in the Nov. 4 election or 60 percent of those who vote on that issue.

In making his decision, a voter must balance the advantages of a smaller, more efficient House against the costs of losing minority representation.

Productive fighting benefits communication

by Diane Buchanan

Productive fighting can be useful in effectively communicating in relationships, health instructor Susan Woods said Tuesday night.

Woods discussed productive fighting, the fight element profile and how to control anger directed at another person in her lecture sponsored by Women In Communications.

Productive fighting can be done by expressing feelings, not judgements about the other person, Woods said.

She said the use of the "I" statement instead of making accusations can work wonders. For example, "I feel..." instead of "you make me feel..." does not make the other person defensive, she said.

Woods said making an appointment for a fight with the person to solve a problem at a given time, creates an atmosphere of rationality and objectivity and the couple is more likely to remain calm, she said.

"Feelings build up which are explosive and can blow up a relationship," she said.

Woods said counselors can help a fighting couple by making up a fight profile.

The reason for the fight is usually underneath the surface and the couple is using another excuse to fight about their repressed feelings, Wood said.

A relationship usually has an active fighter and a passive fighter. The active fighter blows up with all kinds of accusations whereas the passive fighter usually does not pay attention to the active fighter, Woods said.

The active fighter will throw accusations at the passive fighter and this is what will turn an argument into a big blow-up if the passive partner responds, she said.

Accusations are natural, but if people could learn to communicate effectively, petty and unnecessary fights could be avoided completely, Woods said.

Student Senate to plan retreat

The agenda for the Student Senate retreat with Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin and Student Government members will be discussed at the Student Senate meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room.

The retreat is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 1 in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room. The purpose of the retreat is to improve communications between administration and the Student Senate.

Student Body President Bob Glover said he will present to the Senate for approval chairmen and board member appointments to the Performing Visual Arts Board, Judicial Board, Apportionment Board, Communications Board, Intercollegiate Athletic Board, Sports and Recreation Board and the Student Legal Services.

Coles trade fair termed success

About 12,000 persons visited last weekend's Trade Fair at Eastern.

Although an estimated 20,000 visitors were expected, the fair was still considered successful, Julie Harper, head of public relations for Illinois Consolidated Telephone Co., said.

Displays from 46 Coles County businesses were exhibited at the fair.

Frank Clinton, president of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce, said two factors contributing to the fair's success were the lack of crowding and the air conditioning in the Union.

Harper said no parking problems were reported and overflow lots were not needed.

COTE approves health department plan for revised teacher education programs

by Stacy Wells

The Council on Teacher Education approved Tuesday the revised version of the health department's teacher education program.

The COTE is currently in the process of approving all academic programs in teacher education to comply with the standards of the Illinois Teacher Certification Board and the National Council on Accrediting Teacher Education.

Teacher education programs must be revised and approved by the COTE before evaluation by the certification board and NCATE.

Eastern's teacher education programs will be re-evaluated by the State Board of Education later this month, after being placed on probation for a three-year period.

The certification board will evaluate Eastern's programs Friday and NCATE will evaluate the programs in 1982. If the program does not meet NCATE's standards it will not be accredited.

The guidelines require students to have 100 hours of pre-student teaching experience as well as one semester of student teaching experience.

In other business, Frank Lutz, dean of the School of Education, said because of House Bill 150, no person can graduate unless he meets the teacher certification bill.

The bill states that all students applying for certificates of education after Sept. 1, 1981 must have work completed in the area of special education.

Lutz presented a diagram explaining how a student can fulfill House Bill 150 requirements with existing courses.

Lutz said this could be done by adding the House Bill 150 requirements to existing required courses.

Lutz said, "We can either include these new programs in our regular program or use them separately."

"The major element is that we provide the extra assistance in order to meet the bill," Lutz said.

BSU to sponsor seminar on study habits

Seminars to develop students' skills, habits and techniques on how to study are being sponsored by the Black Student Union on Wednesday and Thursday, Torrance Campbell, BSU president said Monday.

The seminars will be held at 6 p.m.

Wednesday in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon Room and at the same time on Thursday in the Tuscola-Arcola Room, Campbell said.

Speakers at the seminar will be Bud Sanders, of the counseling center, Jo Barger, from the academic advisement center and graduate student Steve Fears.

Booker Suggs, BSU adviser, said the seminar would be beneficial to all students not just those who are freshmen or transfers.

Booters' momentum pivotal vs. MacMurray

by Holly Headland

Eastern's soccer team will attempt to maintain its momentum when it faces MacMurray College at 3 p.m. Wednesday at Lakeside Field.

The Panthers defeated North Texas State University 2-0 Saturday to win the EIU Classic, and Eastern soccer coach Schellas Hyndman said that victory should aid his squad against MacMurray.

"We have the upper hand in the MacMurray game because we are playing well. Now that we are rolling we'll only get better. I think we'll win," Hyndman said.

The Panthers are currently rated No. 1 in the Division II poll, with the University of Missouri-St. Louis a few points behind in second place, Hyndman said. UMSL is the only team that has bested the Panthers so far, dealing them a 2-1 loss Sept. 15.

Eastern did not play MacMurray last season but topped it 3-1 in 1978 and 4-1 in 1977.

"I really don't know what type of a game it will be style-wise, but MacMurray has a 2-2 record. We will try to play good soccer tomorrow (Wednesday). We'll see how we can do," Hyndman said.

Eastern's starting lineup will include junior forwards Silvano Corazza, Colin Cumberbatch and Gordie Weidle and sophomore George Hough.

Hyndman praised Corazza's play in the EIU Classic by saying "Sil did well, but more scoring power from him is still needed."

Co-captain Pat Bruni and Randy DeRousse will start on defense, John Jozsa will be the midfielder and Damien Kelly will play striker.

Hyndman's starting goalie will be freshman Eric Hartman, who's recent performances were praised by the coach.

"I am very pleased with Eric's performance. He is much farther ahead than I thought he would be at this point. He is making a few basic mistakes such as not using his height to its full advantage, but on the whole all the freshmen are doing great," Hyndman said.

Another player who Hyndman is pleased with is senior Jozsa, who he said "played really well in both games this weekend. He will be great this year if he keeps on like he has been playing."

Hyndman also said "Gordie Weidle has been doing well at fullback and Jerry McAnulty did great this weekend too."

McAnulty was named The Most Valuable Player of the EIU Classic.

Ruggers remain optimistic after 43-6 beating

CHAMPAIGN—Eastern's Rugby Club came home from the University of Illinois a 43-6 loser Saturday, but most Eastern players still found things to be pleased about.

"We're in the best shape we've ever been in. And we didn't play badly," hooker Vic Bobb said. "We just came up here and got outclassed."

"In our first two games we played teams we should have beaten and just slipped up," Bobb said. "This week we played well, but just got outclassed."

Club president Stu Grubbs also praised his team's opponent.

"We knew they were a first-class club, but we sure didn't know they were going to do this to us," Grubbs said.

What Illinois did was score a goal within the first three minutes of the game and then continue to dominate nearly the entire contest.

Illinois built up a 15-0 halftime lead before Eastern enjoyed its rare moment of scoring early in the second stanza.

Al Chiles stole a pass from an Illinois scrum, broke a tackle and raced 30 yards for a try.

Cliff Kennedy's kick-from-try closed the gap to 15-6, but Eastern could get no closer.

"For a bit it looked like we might be getting things together," Eastern breakaway Greg Weeg said. "Our scrum had tightened up and our backs made some important adjustments. But they just kept wearing us down, and they were good. The knew what to do whenever we slipped. And we slipped, and they didn't."

Illinois had an already comfortable 27-6 lead before it exploded for three tries in the final three minutes to complete the rout.

Eastern will try to end its losing streak at 1:30 p.m. Saturday when it hosts the Bloomington Blues in the first round of the Illinois Rugby Union tournament.

Strohs' tourney October 11, 12

Three or four more teams are still needed to compete in the 4th annual Strohs' Softball Classic Oct. 11 and 12, Strohs Representative Joe Dively said.

Dormitory and fraternity teams are eligible to compete in the 12-team, single-elimination tourney and entries will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis, Dively said.

A 15-dollar entry fee and one Dudley Redstitch softball are also required of each participating team, Dively said.

The tournament will be played at Baker Field north of Charleston.

Persons interested in entering a team should contact Dively at 345-5015.

Netters nip Illini

Eastern netter Patty Groth hits a backhand shot during the Panthers' 5-4 victory over the University of Illinois Tuesday at the Weller courts. Groth defeated Kathy

Kewney of Illinois 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 in singles play but lost in doubles with Josie Riberto to the Illini team of Gayathrie DeFilda and Donna Crane. (News photo by Mark Wolf)
