ISSC official to discuss '81 payback

by Yvonne Beeler

In response to an invitation of the Illinois Board of Higher Education faculty advisory committee, Illinois State Scholarship Commission Executive Director Larry Matjeka will speak to the committee about students having to pay back part of their spring 1981 ISSC awards.

IBHE faculty advisory committee chairman Sharon Bartling of Eastern's English department, said Matjeka will give a brief background of the ISSC and then answer questions concerning the paybacks.

The ISSC decided recently that students who had an unmet need of $750 or less would have to pay back $100 of their spring awards, Eastern Associate Financial Aid Director John Flynn said.

Previously, the unmet need figure was those with unmet need of less than $625.

Unmet need is determined by adding all of a student's financial resources and subtracting it from the cost of education at the university chosen by the student.

Bartling said there will probably be several questions concerning the latest ISSC payback request.

"I think there are a lot of disgruntled people out there at the late fund collecting," she added.

"I am sure the big issue will be why not let individual schools handle their own loans. Perhaps the ISSC could give a set sum of money to each school and let them distribute it accordingly," Bartling said. "Maybe the entire ISSC plan should be done away with."

Bartling said students are welcome to attend the meeting. However, they will not be recognized from the floor and must contact any of the committee members with questions to ask Matejka before the meeting.

Bartling, who is chairing the committee for her first time, said the faculty advisory committee is composed of 33 faculty members from public, private and community colleges. It represents the three educations for the IBHE.

The committee basically is divided into three divisions—reacting to IBHE studies; making formal statements with opinions and bringing up areas of research for the IBHE.

Matejka is speaking for informational purposes only, Bartling added.

Business school sets new application date

by Madeleine Doubek and Peggy Schneider

Juniors and seniors planning to enroll in upper division business courses next fall must do so by Feb. 15, Dean of the School of Business Ted Ivarie said Wednesday.

Cal Campbell, director of academic advisement, said, however, that the application date does not affect students currently enrolled as juniors, or who will reach junior status during the spring or summer semesters of this year.

Ivarie said the application date, which is part of the School of Business' plan to reduce the ratio of students to the number of faculty, was chosen to "allow students maximum time to apply, and allow us to process the applications and notify students of the results."

The date will allow the School of Business two weeks to process applications and return results in time for the beginning of pre-registration for the fall semester March 1, Ivarie said.

Students need to know the results of the applications so they can register for upper-division courses, he said.

Students who are not accepted the first time they apply may reapply the next semester, he said.

Under the School of Business' new policy, freshmen and sophomores interested in majoring in business must register as pre-business majors.

To declare a major in business, students must have completed at least 42 semester hours and carry a 2.0 grade point average after completing three of five prerequisite business courses, Campbell said.

"We (the School of Business) hope to reduce the enrollment in an orderly manner so we can intelligently and effectively manage the students' needs," Ivarie said.

By using the application date and the enrollment cutoff date, the school will be able to "improve and maintain the quality" of its curriculum, he said.

Currently, about 2,600 students are enrolled in the school, Ivarie said.

Two lists of applicants—one for students who have completed freshman and sophomore level business courses at Eastern and one for transfer students—will be made, Ivarie said. The lower 10 percent of the students, based on academic standing, will not be allowed to declare a major in business.

The list and GPA's of transfer students will be judged separately so that the same proportion of transfer students to native students will be maintained, he said.

Currently, about 40 percent of business students are transfers, Ivarie said. (See BUSINESS, page 7)

Counselor seeks congressional nomination

by Dawn Morville

David Weir, a counselor at Eastern's Counseling Center, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U.S. representative from the 22nd Congressional District.

Weir, who is in his third year of counseling at Eastern, said if he wins the nomination and goes to Washington, he would have to quit his counseling work here.

"I would hope to have an on-going relationship with Eastern, such as a temporary leave of absence," he said.

Weir said he believes in higher education and public support of education, but "I would not be a voice for college students exclusively."

Weir said he has not received any negative reaction from students concerning his candidacy but, "I have not got as much positive reaction as I had expected from students I have talked with on campus."

Weir, 38, graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with a bachelor's degree in history and minors in political science and economics, and received his master's in education with a specialization in counseling.

Weir said he is "well on the way" to obtaining the required 600 signatures on petitions needed to file for the primary race in December.

He has been circulating petitions this week in Charleston and Mattoon. "I have had no difficulty at this point with getting signatures."

If Weir wins the primary in March, he will be running against incumbent Rep. Daniel Crane, R-Danville.

Weir said the biggest problem he faces is financing his campaign.

"Throughout the primary I will be operating on a shoestring, but it can be done," he said.

Weir also said he does not have the visibility that other candidates may have, but he is "in touch with the erosion of the middle class because I am not a wealthy person by any means."

Reagan unveils latest round of budget-cutting package

WASHINGTON—President Reagan, trying to assemble a new package of budget cuts acceptable to Congress, has backed off a plan to delay next year's cost-of-living increase in Social Security, congressional sources said Wednesday.

In a brief appearance Wednesday, Reagan acknowledged that the ax will fall "on many things we wish didn't have to be cut."

The president is scheduled to unveil his latest round of budget-cutting proposals in a nationally broadcast address Thursday night.

Aides said changes still were possible in the package, expected to total more than $16 billion in new cuts for the fiscal year beginning next Thursday.

Reagan hopes to hold the 1982 deficit to around $42 billion, but many economists and congressional figures say that persistently high interest rates will make that task difficult even with a new round of cuts.

Compromise between union and gov't may bridge gap

WARSAW, Poland—Solidarity's offer to compromise on the issue of worker self-management could be a "step toward realism," the Polish government said Wednesday.

Official sources said the union's offer indicated the start of "some bridge-building" that could ease the confrontation between the government and the independent union.

Union leaders resolved to let the government keep the exclusive right to appoint managers of state enterprises if the regime allowed workers a veto. This was a step back from the union's previous insistence that it have sole power to hire and fire managers.

Blazing elevator shaft takes lives of two Chicago firemen

CHICAGO—Two firefighters were killed when they stumbled in murkiness into a burning, open elevator shaft of a high-rise office tower and plunged 16 floors, authorities said.

They were the first Chicago firemen killed in line of duty since 1978.

Six other fireman and a cleaning woman were injured in the fire Tuesday night at the 38-story Willoughby Tower on Michigan Avenue.

The bodies of Joseph Hitz, 56, and Craig L. McShane, 23, were found atop a burned out, empty elevator car that had plummeted from the 25th floor to the ninth when its cables snapped.

A building employee said when he opened the door to use the elevator, a panel from the ceiling fell and there were flames.

Because it was an express shaft with no stops between the first and 23 floors, there were no doors for firemen to open in a rescue attempt where the brakes stopped the elevator at the ninth floor.

Saturday Union check cashing set to start Oct. 3 for trial period

by Crystal Schrof

Starting Oct. 3, students will now be able to cash checks on Saturdays at the University Union check cashing service.

The check cashing service will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

Saturday check cashing will be available to students on a trial basis during the fall semester, Collective Bargaining Representative Tony Parascandola, said Wednesday.

Parascandola said if Saturday check cashing proves to be feasible the service will become permanent.

Student Body President Bob Glover said check cashing will be feasible if enough students utilize the service and the cost does not exceed the demand.

However, Glover said since the Union building is already open on Saturdays, the only additional expense would be hiring workers for the service.

He estimated that student help at the service would run about $20 each Saturday. In addition, one full-time worker would be required to be present to oversee the operation.

Parascandola said Saturday check cashing has never been available to students before, but "it could only benefit the students."

Glover said he believes institution of the check cashing program will be a "great service" to the students.

Glover said students often need to cash a check on the weekends but have no place to cash one.

If students do not own cars, they may be unable to cash checks at local grocery stores which offer student check cashing.

Parascandola said Saturday check cashing should also help other Union activities by bringing more students into the Union.

New campus radio bylaws given approval by Senate

by Cathy Crist

The Student Senate Wednesday voted its approval of revised bylaws with two amendments for Eastern's campus radio station, WELH.

The bylaws were designed this summer by a student-faculty committee to clarify WELH's governing board and staff positions.

Student Body President Bob Glover said, "Last year we had a lot of internal and broadcasting problems with WELH. These bylaws let everyone know who's doing what."

The bylaws must now be approved by the Faculty Senate before they take effect.

Glover said the bylaws should work well because students will still have input in the station through the station's governing board and through student activity fees still funding WELH.

Under the proposed bylaws a board would be formed consisting of five student members, three faculty members and a non-university professional broadcaster.

The bylaws also outline procedures for the hiring, firing and duties of station staff members.

The senate amended the bylaws to change the Radio Board to the WELH Board and to make the station adviser appointed by Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin on the recommendation of the speech-communications department chairman and Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives.

In other business, Senate Speaker Karen Kupsche appointed herself and Senators Paul Hart and Julie Smith to attend a student government conference in New Orleans this fall.

In addition to Kupsche's appointees, Glover, Collective Bargaining Representative Tony Parascandola and Executive Vice President Natalie Scott will attend the conference.

Glover outlines improvements to help Union

by Cathy Crist and Crystal Schrof

In hopes of improving accessibility to the University Union several improvements and additions were outlined by Student Body President Bob Glover in his State of the University address Wednesday.

Glover addressed the Student Senate and a small audience at the senate meeting Wednesday night.

In his speech, Glover recommended that the Traffic Safety Committee eliminate approximately 40 assigned parking stickers in lot U which is located directly around the Union and on Seventh Street.

Currently there are 141 spaces in lot U.

Under Glover's proposal, 40 spaces would be available on a per hour pay basis 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. This proposal would still leave 100 spaces under permit.

Glover said this would free up Union parking for students and visitors who do not have assigned parking stickers on campus parking lots.

Glover also announced Saturday check cashing at the University Union will be available to students beginning Oct. 3 on a trial basis.

The check cashing service will be open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays at the cost of 10 cents per check.

He said service will be offered on a trial basis this semester, but it "will most likely work and be expanded upon."

Another goal Glover announced in his address for improving student usage of the Union is the beginning construction of a "mini-mall."

This addition will be located in the west wing of the Union and construction will begin in October, Glover said.

The "mini-mall" will include a craft center, hair salon, a gift shop and a student lounge.

Senator Paul Hart took issue with Glover and said the area is not actually a "mini-mall" but more of a student center with a variety of services.

Speak your mind to ISSC director

If you're concerned about the funding problems of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, Friday is the day to air your views publicly.

ISSC Executive Director Larry Matejka will be on campus at 9 a.m. Friday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room for a meeting of the Faculty Advisory Committee to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

This is the perfect opportunity for students to take their complaints directly to the person who makes decisions which affect their pocketbooks.

The commission has been embroiled in controversy since it discovered it would fall $2 million short of the amount of financial aid it had already awarded to Illinois students last spring.

In deciding how to cover the shortfall, the ISSC has changed its mind four times. It is getting a little ridiculous. Students cannot even rest assured once a decision is made, because the commission has continually changed its mind.

In April the commission voted to ask all award recipients to pay back 10 percent of their spring award.

In May, that vote was nullified and the commission asked only those students with an unmet financial need of $1,000 or less to pay back the money.

In July the ISSC changed its mind again requiring students to repay $100 if their unmet need was less than $625. That decision was made when the commission estimated that the shortfall would not be as great as was first anticipated.

Now, the fourth change has been made.

Students with an unmet need of $750 or less are now being asked to pay back $100 of their grants.

About 1,260 Eastern students are affected by the ISSC's request that $100 be returned from their spring awards.

Friday is the perfect time for those students and any others to get answers about the commission's ever-changing decisions which leave students in a bind, not knowing whether their already awarded aid is theirs to keep.

Take some time out Friday to let the ISSC director know how you feel about your financial problems as they relate to the ISSC.

He is the person who makes the decisions which affect you.

IM regulations clearly provide answer to letter

Dave Dutler is the director of Intramural Sports and Student Recreation at Eastern.

I would like to present the following in response to the letter appearing in the Sept. 23 issue titled "Keep pros off the field."

The current intramural sports eligibility rules were established by the Sports and Recreation Board in February 1980. The rules used at Eastern are in harmony with those used at a great majority of other colleges and universities throughout the nation. The Sports and Recreation Board is composed of three students, two faculty members and three ex-officio members, including myself; Don Cook, Director of Student Activities and the student body executive vice president. The chairman of the board is a student.

The current eligibility rules are published in the 1981-82 Intramural Sports and Free Play Schedule brochure which has been circulated about campus and is available at the IM Office on Lantz. In addition, these rules were presented in toto in the IntramuralRecreational News page in the Wednesday, Sept. 2 issue of The Daily Eastern News.

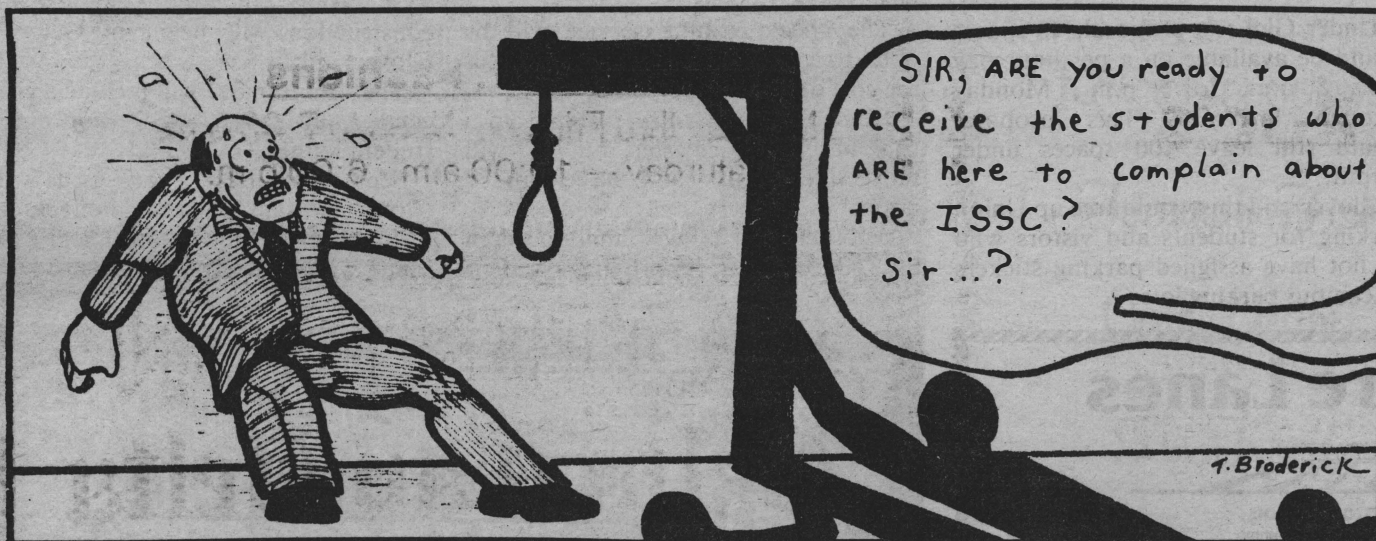

Eligibility rule number 1.a. states: "any member of an intercollegiate sport team or of a recognized sport club after the first regularly scheduled varsity contest in that sport is ineligible to compete in that IM sport or its related sport or activity."

Rule 1.b. states: "Only two former intercollegiate sport team members or sport club members may play on the same or related sport team in intramurals. This pertains to team sports and special events which have team standings."

Item 7. states: "Professionals are ineligible in that sport or related sport until his/her amateur standing is re-established."

If any intramural participant or team is in violation of these rules—or any eligibility rule, all that need be done is for the opponent to file a protest. The IM office will investigate and make a decision concerning each separate incident.

It should be remembered that the IntramuralRecreation Program rules and regulations are established by the Sports and Recreation Board, often after long hours of research, discussion and revision. The Intramural Office maintains an open door policy. Any student having a question concerning any rule, regulation, policy or procedure is encouraged to call or drop by and discuss same.

A beautiful intrusion clears the illusion

A day doesn't go by that some organization doesn't have an ad in the News or on the blackboard of one of your classes urging you to break out of your shell and "Get Involved!" I wonder... no, I am sure, that you have become as tired of these notices and advertisements as I have.

I've got a new tactic. After witnessing the gradual disappearance of friends made my freshman year into the boucups clubs, societies and greek organizations which leave them no time for themselves, I urge you to become disentangled, if not uninvolved, at least once in a while.

I realized that it wasn't just the people that I come in contact with each day that have become overly engrossed in their lives. It came to me that perhaps the majority of us have lost that one-time American hallmark—the ability to take time for themselves, to kick back and "let it all hang out."

This discovery came as I was shirking my responsibilities, hiding from the monster which I myself had created.

Last Sunday night, I stood on the platform which overlooks Lake Charleston, absorbed in thoughts of homework I wasn't doing, and columns I should be writing when I realized the lateness of the hour.

Looking up to get my bearings before returning to the grindstone, I noticed a glimmer of light amidst the clouds. It was the moon, struggling to make its appearance.

I stopped my mindless wandering, shelved all my worthless worries and became the original student—the student of nature.

Overhead, the scene continued with fervor. The moon

Personal File

gradually eeked out enough space from the surrounding clouds to beam full force upon the shimmery waters of Lake Charleston. The light was reflected on the lakewaters and illuminated the woods around me.

I was captivated. An hour passed in which I said and did nothing; an hour that was mine alone.

Well, I returned, rather reluctantly, to my car and my dormroom and my studies; but the message in what I had witnessed did not leave me.

With the semester now one-quarter gone, many of us are embroiled in our lives and our little societies and we seldom find time to get away from it all. We might take five extra minutes at lunch and consider it an excess, but we've done ourselves small good.

Get away from the campus—out of sight of the towers!

Get lost in the woods and take the time to do nothing, it won't hurt you. Visit Lake Charleston. Go for a walk at Fox Ridge. Even the "woods" by the campus pond, if you're facing the right way, can have a refreshing effect.

A banner hangs on my wall. My sister gave it to me some years ago and I used to use it to cover empty space, but now it has some significance. It reads "Nature is the Path to Peace."

A path leads nowhere until you take it.

Honors program, pass-fail to be discussed by CAA

by Jennifer Soule

The Council on Academic Affairs will discuss an honors program proposal and a proposal to remove any courses under general education requirements from the pass-fail option at its Thursday meeting.

The proposed honors program would allow incoming freshmen with an American College Testing (ACT) score of 26 and current Eastern students with a grade point average of 3.6 to participate in advanced classes.

The CAA will also discuss a proposal to remove the general education courses from the pass-fail option.

The general education requirements referred to in the proposal are the nine hours of humanities, nine hours social science and nine hours math/science requirements which all students must take or have the equivalent of before graduation.

Students who are not freshmen may opt to take any class pass-fail that is not within their majors. The only exception to this rule are classes English 1001, English 1002, Health Education 1200 and Speech-Communication 1310.

Bartling said the CAA received a letter from Richard Funk of the zoology department last May expressing his personal interest in dropping those required courses from the pass-fail option.

Funk said he would like to see the general education courses dropped because any required course should be included in the student's grade point average.

Funk will be at the CAA meeting Tuesday to present his proposal.

However, Student Body President Bob Glover said several students from student government will also be at the meeting to voice opposition to Funk's proposal.

"Allowing students to take courses pass-fail encourages them to enroll in classes outside their majors and breaks up the monotony of their regular schedules," Glover said.

Glover added that students should have the option of taking courses pass-fail.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the University Union addition Tuscola-Arcola Room.

Repairs for gas leak cause financial dispute

by Dawn Morville

There was no danger of explosion to students and residents in the Ninth street area last week when a gasoline line broke at the Sunoco Gas Station near campus, Charleston Fire Chief Melvin Taylor said Wednesday.

The incident has, however, resulted in a dispute concerning the financial aspects of repairing the line at the station, located at 900 Lincoln, and the safety precautions involved in preventing another leak in the future.

Arthur Willaredt, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Willaredt Oil Co. in Mattoon which runs the Sunoco station, said a leak occurred in a line between the regular pump and the regular tank due to the old age of the gas line.

Willaredt said gas was lost from Sept. 7-14, and the line was replaced on Sept. 14 by Caldwell Oil Equipment of Mattoon.

Byrant Edwards, manager of Sunoco, said the gas leak was not discovered until inventory was conducted.

Originally, Edwards thought the gas was stolen, but after daily inventory checks showed a decrease in the amount of gas every day, the leak was found.

Edwards said more than 1,000 gallons of gas were lost in the leak.

Willaredt said the cost of repairing the line and testing the tanks "will be several thousand dollars."

City Fire Chief Melvin Taylor said a fireman was on duty during the entire time that the leak existed, which was a total of 50 hours.

Taylor added that the area where the leak occurred is safe now, and the company installed a permanent sump pump which will continually pump water into the sewer and any gas that has saturated the ground will be pumped out.

DOE rep. to talk on energy plan

The Reagan administration's national energy policy plan will be discussed Thursday by a representative of the United States Department of Energy.

Brian Quirke, a public information officer for the Chicago office of the DOE, will explain and defend the President's energy policy plan, which was announced last July, political science department chairman Larry Thorsen said Tuesday.

The DOE formulates and recommends national energy policies and promotes and regulates the different forms of energy, Thorsen said.

The lecture will be held at 12:30 in Coleman Hall Room 305.

Arts, sciences committee takes no action with new proposals

Although the Arts and Sciences curriculum committee discussed three proposals designed to improve its role Tuesday, no action was taken with the proposals because of committee member absences.

Committee chairman Lucinda Gabbard said most of the meeting time was spent working on the revisions of by-laws proposed by Dean of College of Arts and Sciences Jon Laible.

The proposals include the possible addition of two student members, an increase in the number of members with longer terms, and a system in which the committee's vice president would automatically become president for the coming year.

"Mostly we worked on the phrasing and wording of the by-laws," Gabbard said.

Although nothing definite was decided, Gabbard said the members agreed on enlarging the committee. Members also agreed to adding students to the committee but did not agree to giving them a vote.

"This is not the finished draft," Gabbard said. "So we did not take any formal action."

Gabbard added the committee will vote on the by-laws at a special meeting to be held Tuesday.

said.

Non-business majors will also be reduced by the application date, although the same ratio of non-business to business majors will be maintained, he said.

The precise application method for non-business majors has not yet been decided, although they will have to apply differently, Ivarie said.

Non-business majors who need an upper-level business course for their major will just "have to wait their turn" for admission, Ivarie added.

The date "will have an impact, though not a major impact, on several areas outside the business school. We have talked to administrators in other related disciplines which may require upper level business courses, and they have agreed that, if the number of business majors is restricted, other students should be also," Ivarie said.

Application dates for spring and summer semesters of 1982 admission to the School of Business have also been set. The application date for admission for spring semester is Oct. 1.

Error aids in Cub win, Cards fall

Cubs 2, Mets 1

CHICAGO (AP)—Ivan DeJesus tripled and scored on an error, and Steve Henderson added an RBI-single as the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets 2-1 Wednesday.

Mike Krukow, 8-9, limited the Mets to just two hits through the first eight innings, and then reliever Dick Tidrow pitched out of a ninth-inning jam to earn his ninth save of the season.

Phillies 9, Cards 4

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gary Matthews knocked in three runs with a homer and a single, and Dick Davis also homered to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Consequently, Gruber said her squad will be adequately prepared to face Moorhead State University in first-round action of the 11-team tournament Friday.

"This will be a strong tournament," Gruber predicted. "It will be a good test to see where we are in the season compared to other teams."

After Moorhead, the Panthers will battle Northern Kent State, Eastern Michigan, Wright State and Miami-OHio for the right to enter the playoffs in the two-day affair.

Wednesday night.

Right-hander Dickie Noles, 2-2, pitched six innings and allowed four hits for the victory. Left-hander Sparky Lyle worked the final three innings for his second save. The loss was the fifth in six games for St. Louis.

Androff's move to tight end helps in Panther victory

by Dave Claypool

Usually, every football players' dream is to be a quarterback—especially a college quarterback.

For Eastern sophomore Dirk Androff, stepping into the Panther football program and working as the No. 3 signal caller last year as a freshman began the fulfillment of his dream.

At the end of spring workouts in May, Androff's future as quarterback seemed even brighter after he became the No. 2 man behind Jeff Christensen.

However, when Androff returned to Eastern this fall his job was changed to the tight end position.

"We left the move up to Dirk," Panther assistant head coach Chuck Dickerson said. "We told him that he could be used in a minor role at quarterback and see very limited action or make a contribution in a major role at tight end.

"We hated to see him lounge around and not be used, he's too gifted an athlete and he has the natural size for a tight end so the move was obvious," Dickerson added.

Not only was the move obvious, but it was also beneficial to Androff and the Panthers.

The benefits were depicted Saturday in Eastern's bout with Northeast Missouri, as Androff was able to take over for the injured Rob Mehalic and haul in five passes for 82 yards.

"Let's say I'm getting used to playing tight end," Androff said of his move to the receiver position. "I wanted to play and the best opportunity was at tight end. If I can help the team in any way I'll be satisfied."

If Androff can continue to haul in five passes a game, his coaches also will be satisfied.

"Dirk was one of the few bright spots for us against Northeast Missouri," Panther head coach Darrell Mudra said. "Once he gets a little experience under his belt he'll be a fine tight end."

Dickerson agreed, saying, "I think we're all happy with the way Dirk played last weekend. I knew he could catch the ball, but the caliber of his routes after only three weeks of practice was exceptional."

Androff attributed his fine routes and clutch play Saturday to his previous experience as a quarterback.

"It was kind of like being on the other side of the coin. I knew what I expected of my receivers when I was a quarterback and I try to deliver it as a receiver," Androff said. "Aside from the constant hitting and blocking that a tight end must do, the transition hasn't been too difficult."

Transitions have become a way of life for Androff lately. During the summer, he decided to play basketball for the Panthers this winter and the basketball experience has also helped his new role on the football field.

"Basketball has really helped my hand-eye contact when catching the ball," Androff said. "The jumping especially has helped, because I've had to catch a lot of high balls."

"Coach (Tom) Venturi and Coach (Tom) Westhoff have really made the difference, though. They've had a lot of patience with me," Androff added. "Jeff Christensen's good passes didn't hurt how I looked Saturday either."

Woodall hopes striders can break pattern

by Mike Prizy

Thomas Woodall said he hopes the pattern of results from last year will not be the same this year.

Last season, Woodall's cross country squad took an undefeated record, including victories over Purdue and the alumni, into the Track and Field Association/U.S.A. Midwest Championship meet.

The Panthers continued hot by dominating the meet and capturing first place.

However, this year the Panthers will travel to the same TFA/USA meet in Kenosha, Wisc. Friday, after losing to Purdue and the alumni. Consequently, Woodall hopes his striders will not follow the same trend as last year.

"Last year we beat the alumni and Purdue and won the TFA/USA meet," Woodall said. "This year I just don't know what to expect."

Despite posting a 3-1 record this season, Woodall said he felt his squad has not run to the best of its ability.

"We are a better team than what we have shown," the striders' mentor said, stressing that he would like his team to take advantage of the "large field" of entries at the TFA/USA meet to prove his Panthers are capable of better performances.

Twenty five teams are entered in the TFA/USA meet which Eastern overwhelmingly won last year with 58 points as compared to second place University of Missouri's 73 points.

Earlier in the season, Woodall expressed concern about his team's spread distance between the first and seventh runner.

This week, Woodall said his team has improved on the spread distance.

"Every guy on the team has a lot more potential than what they have shown," Woodall said.

Seniors Mike Beresford and Terry Donahue are two team members that Woodall said are not running up to their potential yet.

However, Woodall added he was pleased with his striders' practice sessions this week.

"The guys are looking for a chance to perform," Woodall said. "If we get everyone to perform well on the same day, we'll have us a nice cross country team."

In addition to Beresford and Donahue, Woodall said that he will take sophomores Paul West, John Gassman, and Nick Whiteside along with junior standouts Perry Edinger and Tim Warneke and "probably" sophomore Bob Beine to Kenosha.

"We'll see after that who is healthy and what our budget allows," Woodall said in regard to how many Eastern runners will make the trip.

Regrouped spikers prepare for tourney

by Kris Nicholson

Because of solid practice sessions and newly-established goals, head coach Carol Gruber predicts that her 1981 volleyball squad will show improvement during its game Friday.

After a disappointing 1-3 SIU-Carbondale Classic performance

Friday and Saturday, Eastern's women's volleyball squad has regrouped and is ready to charge into action Friday in the Eastern Kentucky Tournament in Richmond, Ky.

"We've overcome our problems very well," Gruber said. "I see a new surge in them."

In addition to performing well in practice this week, Gruber said her spikers have set goals of learning not to hesitate on the court and gaining more self-confidence, which "sort of spreads when you walk out on the court."

Game tickets on sale now

Student tickets for Eastern's clash with Central State at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at O'Brien Stadium may be purchased this week at the Lantz ticket office, Athletic Director R.C. Johnson announced.

Students may buy their tickets from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturday in the ticket office.

Johnson stressed that students buy their tickets in advance to avoid a possible long line of students purchasing tickets before the start of the contest.
