Bush: Woes and war will end

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush confidently assured Americans Tuesday night that the war against Iraq will be over and the recession at home will end in short order. "We stand at a defining hour," the president said in his State of the Union address.

"For two centuries, we've done the hard work of freedom. And tonight, we lead the world in facing down a threat to decency and humanity," Bush said.

He won a long standing ovation when he praised U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf as "truly America's best" and again when he promised "we will prevail" over Saddam Hussein.

It was the first wartime State of the Union address since the dark days of Vietnam and the most recent moments came with reference to America's troops abroad. Extraordinary security precautions enshrouded the Capitol, a bow to the boisterous threats of terrorism by Iraq.

Shortly before the president spoke, a joint U.S.-Soviet statement hinted a cease fire would be possible if Iraq took "concrete steps" to withdraw from Kuwait. The White House said later the statement represented no change in policy, and only a "massive withdrawal" could end the hostilities.

The two superpowers also called for a "meaningful peace process" to deal with the Arab-Israeli dispute once the war was over.

With those diplomatic developments reverberating in the background, the president delivered his nationally broadcast address to Congress.

"As Americans, we know there are times when we must step forward and accept our responsibility to lead the world away from the dark chaos of dictators, toward the brighter promise of a

'Bush speak' hard to read says local Democrat Bruce

By MIKE CHAMBERS
City editor

In his State of the Union Address Tuesday night, President Bush targeted domestic concerns by calling for individual leadership, controlled "pay as you go" spending, and sweeping economic reforms.

But U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce (D-Olney) said Tuesday that there is a fine line between talk and reality.

"All he (Bush) said was that these are the problems," Bruce said immediately after the speech. "It's really hard to read what he means by that."

Bruce said Bush was vague in his speech about a number of solutions to real domestic problems. He noted Bush's statement pledging to cut spending by terminating federal programs.

"Well, what does he mean by that? Terminate federal programs, what programs? It's easy to say those things but its another thing to carry through with it," Bruce said.

Bruce said he noticed that of all the problems in America touched on by Bush, the flights to Iran.

President has only commissioned one investigative study. And that concern deals with the capital gains tax.

Bruce vowed to push Congress for more studies concentrating on other domestic problems in the United States aside from economic troubles.

"We'll (Congress) start an agenda and he'll have to concentrate on two things at one time. And I'm confident he can do it," Bruce said.

Specifically, Bruce said Bush will have to place a higher priority on education than his rhetoric implies.

"He says he's for better education. Well, everyone's for better education," Bruce said. "We've shown the world that we have the fastest airplanes and the best trained pilots in the world. We need to show the world that we

CAA completes work on education program

By AMY Mc CANN
Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs Tuesday submitted its proposal for a new general education program to Eastern President Stan Rives, just three days before a Feb. 1 deadline Rives had set for it.

The new program, if approved by Rives, would be implemented this fall for incoming freshmen and increase general education requirement hours from 39 to 46.

The CAA was tasked by Rives last spring with designing a more rigorous general education program to avoid students from selecting courses in a "cafeteria" style fashion. The proposal the CAA submitted Tuesday includes nine "core" programs that include specific course requirements and hours.

"Not everyone is satisfied in the council, but for the most part, I think everyone believes it (the new proposal) is a definite improvement," said CAA chair Larry Bates. "It has provided some excellent changes in the spirit the study (Study on Undergraduate Education) set forth. There are some significant improvements."

Eastern's Study on Undergraduate Education was completed three years ago. It was modeled after the Carnegie Commission's College: The Undergraduate Experience in America, which recommended an "integrated core" of courses for undergraduates to achieve a broad liberal arts education.

For more than a year, the CAA has been continuously reviewing course proposals submitted by academic departments to fulfill the core requirements.

Initially, Rives had requested the CAA submit its proposal on Nov. 18 so approved courses be listed in the 1991-91 university catalog. But at that time, the CAA was given an extension to Feb. 1 because of an extensive course review load.

"Most of us (CAA members) would have a different program that we would have chosen ourselves," Bates said. "Over the next few years there will be some static and it will be refined and perfected as time goes on."

The nine "cores" for the program include: language (nine hours), mathematics (three hours), social sciences (six hours), cultural experience (six hours), science (eight hours), history (three hours), constitution (three hours), foreign language (six hours), and senior seminar (two hours.)

Bates said the CAA should expect feedback from Rives within two weeks.

Ice-coated trees hang over Eastern students walking near Booth Library Tuesday afternoon as freezing rain falls atop Coles County.

Eastern hit again with freezing rain

By CATHY BEHRENDT
Staff writer

Eastern students were once again sliding to class Tuesday as Monday evening's wet, heavy, freezing rain blanketed area walkways and streets.

Although some may have been too busy attempting to remain standing to notice, the fog also caused frost to form on trees and bushes, turning Charleston into a veritable winter wonderland.

Area school children were able to enjoy the snowfall as schools dismissed early in response to the bad weather which began early Tuesday afternoon.

Eastern students hoping for canceled classes due to the weather will probably be disappointed, as Jan. 17, 1977, was the last time Eastern classes were officially canceled due to extreme cold.

"It's kind of been a joke around here for years that everything else will close down, but Eastern goes on," said Lee Newhouse, an Eastern civil service worker for 22 years.

Although roads in Coles County remained open Tuesday evening, a travel advisory was in effect until midnight because of roads glazed by a combination of snow, sleet, and freezing rain.

The National Weather Service in Springfield predicts that between 3 to 6 inches of snow will be dumped on Central Illinois by Wednesday morning.

"Springfield has had 2 inches already, and the system is moving northeast," said meteorologist Melissa Mundy.

Tuesday evening's storm didn't surprise local weather observer Dalias Price. "Although it is almost February, we have to realize that we are only nine days past the mid-point of winter," he said.

According to Price, there has been either ice or snow on the ground continuously since Dec. 22. "I can't recall that ever happening for such a lengthy amount of time."

The weekend forecast calls for fair weather in Central Illinois, with temperatures possibly reaching the 40s.

Edgar names eight top officials

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. Jim Edgar Tuesday named five women and three men to key positions in his new administration, including the first woman ever appointed as director of the state Department of Agriculture.

The governor tapped a member of his transition team, Rebecca Carlisle Doyle, of rural Gillespie, as his agriculture director.

Doyle grew up on her family's farm in Hancock County. She graduated from the University of Illinois with a bachelor's degree in agriculture communications and a master's degree in extension education.

Since 1983, she and her husband have owned and managed a pork production operation in Macoupin County, sending 10,000 hogs to market each year.

Others named by the governor were: — State Rep. Loleta Didrickson, R-Flossmoor, as director of the state Department of Employment Security.

• Mary Gade, a deputy assistant administrator with the U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency, as director of the state's EPA.

• Victor Wirth, executive director of the Illinois Retired Teachers Association, as director of the Department on Aging.

• James Long, executive director of the Illinois Alcoholism and Drug Dependence Association, as director of the Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse.

• Felicia Norwood, a Chicago attorney, as executive assistant to the governor with oversight responsibilities over human services agencies.

• Arabel Rosales, who served as an aide when Edgar was secretary of state, as assistant to the governor with responsibilities in such areas as women's issues and Hispanic affairs.

• Thomas Armstead, a former chief of the Springfield Fire Department, as state fire marshal.

better day," Bush said in his 48-minute speech.

The president delivered a terse assessment of the war to date: "I'm pleased to report that we are on course. Iraq's capacity to sustain war is being destroyed.

"Time will not be Saddam's salvation." With Americans' attention focused on the almost half-million troops risking their lives in the Persian Gulf, Bush devoted the heart of his annual address to the two-week-old battle to force Saddam out of Kuwait.

In the Congress, Democrats and Republicans rallied behind the president.

can also be leaders to improve education. It's easy to build fast planes. It's hard to improve education."

But one Eastern political science professor wasn't as critical of Bush's address as Bruce was.

"The real key to this (Bush's address) will be his budget message," said Richard Goodrick, chair of the political science department.

Goodrick was satisfied Bush concentrated much of his speech on domestic issues, but said that on several issues Bush's message wasn't really that clear — especially in the area of shifting $15 billion in fully funded federal programs back to the state to "move the power and decision making closer to the people."

"It depends on how it's structured," Goodrick said.

Four senate members protest executive session

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Administration editor

For more than one hour, the Faculty Senate's executive committee gave a report on its meeting with Board of Governors' Chancellor Thomas Layzell and BOG special investigator David Stanczak in executive session. Although specifics of the closed meeting were not given, the three-member committee discussed what the future held for both the BOG and the senate, concerning the ongoing probe of alleged unethical hiring practices in departments under Verna Armstrong, Eastern's vice president for administration and finance.

The senate's executive committee is comprised of Chair David Carpenter; secretary John Miller and Patricia Fewell.

The report came in response to Stanczak's report that was given during the nearly three-hour BOG executive session at the Jan. 17 meeting at Chicago State.

Unlike previous senate meetings, four of the 15 senate members voted not to go into executive session. Usually, only one member, Luis Clay-Mendez, votes to keep the senate's discussion open to the public. The other three members were Richard Sylvia, Gary Wallace and Ed Marlow.

"I think we need to keep the faculty and community abreast of the situation," Clay-Mendez said.

He added that Carpenter told him the reason for going into executive session was in accordance with the Open Meetings Act exception that states, public bodies may hold closed meetings for the following: "To consider information regarding appointment, employment or dismissal of an employee or officer."

Wallace said the investigation had gone on long enough that the general public needs to be informed, but he understood why the BOG is being diplomatic and making sure the investigation is being done properly.

"Most of us are getting impatient," he added.

"According to the information given to me by the executive committee, they (the committee) does feel it is being handled properly," Wallace said. "Although some of us have to be more patient."

The BOG represents and governs Eastern and four other Illinois public universities, including Chicago State, Governors State, Northeastern Illinois and Western Illinois.

"I think the people, not just the senate, are getting frustrated with the lack of information," Sylvia said. "My vote was a vote of sympathy for those people."

Armstrong and Eastern President Stan Rives are both expected to give reports to the BOG at its next meeting on Feb. 21 at Governors State in Chicago.

Wrestler pleads guilty, faces $1,000 fine

By PHILLIP LAIRD
Staff writer

A member of Eastern's wrestling team pleaded guilty to battery charges in Coles County Circuit Court Tuesday.

Associate Judge Ashton Waller allowed Tom Hugunin to enter a negotiated plea of guilty after the Coles County States Attorney's Office agreed to reduce the charges against him from aggravated battery to battery. Aggravated battery is a Class 3 felony, but Waller agreed to the lesser misdemeanor charge.

Hugunin was arrested Sept. 1990, outside a local restaurant after striking Michael Kennard of Charleston in the face. Waller sentenced Hugunin to one year conditional discharge, 100 hours of community service work, and ordered him to pay fines and penalties of $1,000. Conditional discharge is similar to probation, but persons receiving this sentence do not have to report as regularly to the court.

This was Hugunin's second conviction in two years. He was arrested Feb. 26, 1989, on charges of aggravated assault against a Charleston police officer and resisting arrest.

Hugunin pleaded guilty to resisting arrest and the assault charges were dismissed by the court. He was fined $100 and restitution.

In other police action, two Eastern students reported thefts to Charleston police on Jan. 25.

Tim Raddetz told police someone broke into his house on Polk Avenue shortly before 8 a.m. Friday.

Raddetz reported $100 missing from his wallet he had left on the television.

A roommate, Matt Field, reportedly found the front door open and furniture overturned when he awoke at 8:15 a.m.

Also, Eastern student Susan Rankin told police her car had been entered at approximately 7:15 p.m. Friday while parked in the 1000 block of Madison Ave. Rankin told police a book bag containing her textbooks, driver's license, student identification and other items were missing.

International students sample taste of Eastern

By LORI TEIBER
Staff writer

Eastern's international students sampled a taste of Eastern as well as other countries Tuesday when the students prepared a buffet of worldly refreshments at Tuesday's International Tea.

The food was provided by students and faculty from the countries of China, India, Spain and Brazil. It seemed like most of the crowd found the way to the food and beverage table at least once to try something new, if not out of hunger, then out of curiosity.

When people weren't eating, they were talking. While the Persian Gulf inevitably came up, the heart of the conversation was the snow and ice accumulating on the ground and sidewalks even as the tea was being held.

But while most American students find the winter weather a nuisance, South African student Marilyn Morden found it to her liking. "The snow is beautiful. When I walked outside this morning, I couldn't believe how pretty the trees looked."

A student from Brazil, Marcos Alexandre, got a literal taste of the weather. "The snow and ice are fun," he said. "I fell today on ice for the first time ever; it was fun."

Montese Font, an international student, and Norman Spencer, a foreign language professor, talk over tea and foreign refreshments Tuesday afternoon at the Wesley Foundation Student Activities Center.

Still, many of the students missed the characteristics of their own home. Chin-Lien Wu and Hsueh-Niang Chen, both of Taiwan, said they missed the public bus service and the food. One girl got so homesick over Thanksgiving that she decided to call home and talk to everyone. While it made her feel better at the time, the next month's phone bill of $1,600 changed her mood considerably.

"At first it was exciting. Now we're nostalgic about our home," Chilean student Andrea Campana added.

The International Teas are held monthly.

Iraqi transport plane returns to Iraq Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Iraqi transport plane, one of an estimated 90 aircraft to take refuge in Iran, has returned to Iraq, congressional sources said Tuesday.

The sources, who spoke after receiving a military briefing on the Persian Gulf war, said they did not know whether the plane was military or civilian. Nor did they describe its mission or passengers.

The return flight has helped persuade U.S. analysts that the fleeing planes are not piloted by defectors in the 12-day-old war, said the sources who asked not to be identified by name.

Separately, one congressional source said damage inflicted on Iraq's elite Republican Guard forces by allied bombing had been "light" thus far. The source added that about half the country's chemical weapons capacity has survived the massive allied bombardment. Stocks of chemical weapons are hidden and their location is unknown to U.S. intelligence, said the source.

Iran has vowed to remain neutral in the war, and has said the Iraqi planes won't be permitted to leave until the conflict has ended. Administration spokesmen have said they take Iran at its word.

Pentagon officials also have said the United States would attempt to shoot down any planes making the trip to Iraq, or any that seek to return, but will not take combat action in Iranian airspace. So far, none has been shot down, according to the Pentagon.

The disclosure that one of the Iraqi planes had returned to Iraq came as Lt. Gen. Thomas Kelly, director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that about 90 Iraqi airplanes are now in Iran.

Census figures show local population growth

By MIKE CHAMBERS
City editor

While some downstate officials say they've been shortchanged by the recent census count, 1990 U.S. Census figures show Charleston is growing a little more crowded.

Charleston's 5 percent growth is good news for local officials, especially Jeff Finley, who is the city's census officer. Finley contested preliminary figures when the Charleston count was first made public in December.

Figures show Charleston's population grew from 19,355 in 1980 to 20,368 in 1990, a 5.2 percent increase.

Preliminary census figures for Charleston were 19,016 residents, which led Finley to filing a protest with the U.S. Census Bureau. He said he believed the number was off by as much as 3,000 people.

Finley said that for Charleston, much of the Census Bureau's error was in the west end of Eastern's campus. He noted that the area including the Triad totaled zero residents by Census bureau count.

"We got about half of that, which is what we expected," Finley said. "(But) this is good news too. Even the (extra 1,382 people) will amount to about half a million to three quarters of a million dollars to the general fund," he said.

U.S. Census Bureau records show Charleston has grown by more than 50 percent since 1960, when the city's population was 10,505.

Census records are relevant because they equate to higher or lower state and federal funding as well as changing representation in Congress and changing local taxing powers.

Finley said the revised census number, "Doesn't mean a whole lot (in regard to local taxing powers). The magic number is 25,000

(people) for Home Rule."

The Home Rule clause would give the city taxing power. Currently, the state legislature mandates Charleston taxes, the tax rate, and specific appropriations. Additionally, local congressional representation will remain unaffected.

Statewide, figures show Illinois held steady at about 11.4 million, which means it grew less than one half percent over 1980 figures.

East Central Illinois showed a modest loss in seven counties.

Central Illinois showed slight decline with the exception of Springfield, which grew by 5 percent. Western Illinois had several counties that lost more than 10 percent. Southern Illinois appears to be the big loser with a 15 percent decline in two counties. Chicago lost 7 percent and East St. Louis lost 25 percent.

Soviet reform has taken a turn for worse

It is apparent that glasnost and perestroika are hardly thriving in the Baltic Republics of the Soviet Union. America has now been left to wonder whether Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has preformed a shocking about face to the Western world.

Less than a year ago, we praised the Soviet Union and Gorbachev himself for disregarding hard-line Communist ideologies and allowing the people of Eastern Europe to experience real freedom for the first time in four decades.

Gorbachev himself was even honored with the prestigious Nobel Prize for Peace. But the Baltic States are hardly peaceful.

Editorial

We cannot determine yet whether the orders to beat and kill innocent civilians in the streets of Lithuania and Latvia is a direct order issued from Gorbachev. With recent shakeups in the transforming Soviet government, some Soviet analysts believe Gorbachev has lost control of his nation while the KGB and Communist leaders are quickly gaining power.

To this point, we've praised the Soviet Union for what was an apparent democratic reform. We've praised it not only verbally, but financially.

And unfortunately, the events in the Persian Gulf War have given this event less than substantial attention.

Secretary of State James Baker and new Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh announced Monday that the Moscow summit would be delayed until later this spring. Upon announcement of the cancellation, Baker noted events in the Persian Gulf would not warrant President Bush leaving the Washington D.C.

But surely, the unwarranted violence in the Baltic Republics has cast a dark shadow on American-Soviet relations. It wasn't long ago that those two nations were cast in the shadows of a Cold War.

In the meantime, while we engage in a war in the Middle East, we look to the east - at what could have become our greatest ally - and see that country inflict its own terrorism on its own people.

We surely can't lose sight of the magnitude of that war, too.

TODAY'S QUOTE

A communist is a person who publicly airs his dirty Lenin.

Jack Pomeroy

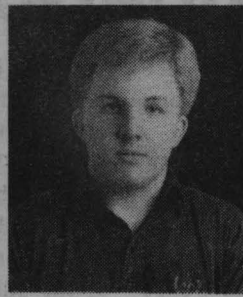

As the Gulf war builds, so does another

Dear editor:

...I think we can all agree on one thing. We all hope this war is over soon, with as little loss of life as possible. However, the time to protest in the streets is over ... If you want to protest the policies fine, that is your right ... But don't take to the streets in protest. For that is what our troops will see. Have respect for those men and women who are putting their lives on the line so that you have the right to protest.

- Jeff James

United States Marine Corps (1982-86)

Jeff Madsen

There's typically one advantage newspaper columnists can have over readers: If we choose, we usually get the last word.

This is the first time that our generation, (to me meaning anyone born after 1965 and prior to 1985) has been subjected to the realities of war. And lately, I've grown concerned about the train of thought displayed in some recent letters to the editor. That's not to say I'm right and anyone else is wrong. Ultimately that is up to the individual. But I do believe we all should be a little more critical of what our government tells us and what the news media in the Persian Gulf tells us - considering that's what the government is telling them.

First of all, let me set the record straight. I thought I did that two weeks ago, but apparently more people than I thought had jumped onto the pro-Bush bandwagon. The majority of those who protest war are not protesting the more than 400,000 troops that we've committed to the Persian Gulf War. If you listen to them carefully before jumping to quick conclusions, we'd all know that those who protest war are challenging the policy that put the troops there. After just five months of economic sanctions, the decision to commit troops to combat, both American and otherwise, was premature and ill-conceived.

In South Africa, it took two years for economic sanctions take any kind of toll. Those who believe extending the U.N. deadline beyond Jan. 15 would have given Saddam Hussein more time to build up his military should remember that you can't really build the world's fourth largest army if you can't supply them with bread and bullets.

The multinational alliance could have crippled Saddam Hussein without firing half the Patriots ($700,000 a piece) and Cruise missiles ($1 million a piece) that we've already. Considering that virtually the whole world has cut-off trade to Iraq, a surrender would have been inevitable - even if it had taken a year and a couple skirmishes along the Kuwait-Saudi border.

If economic sanctions had not worked after a year, perhaps military intervention would have been appropriate then.

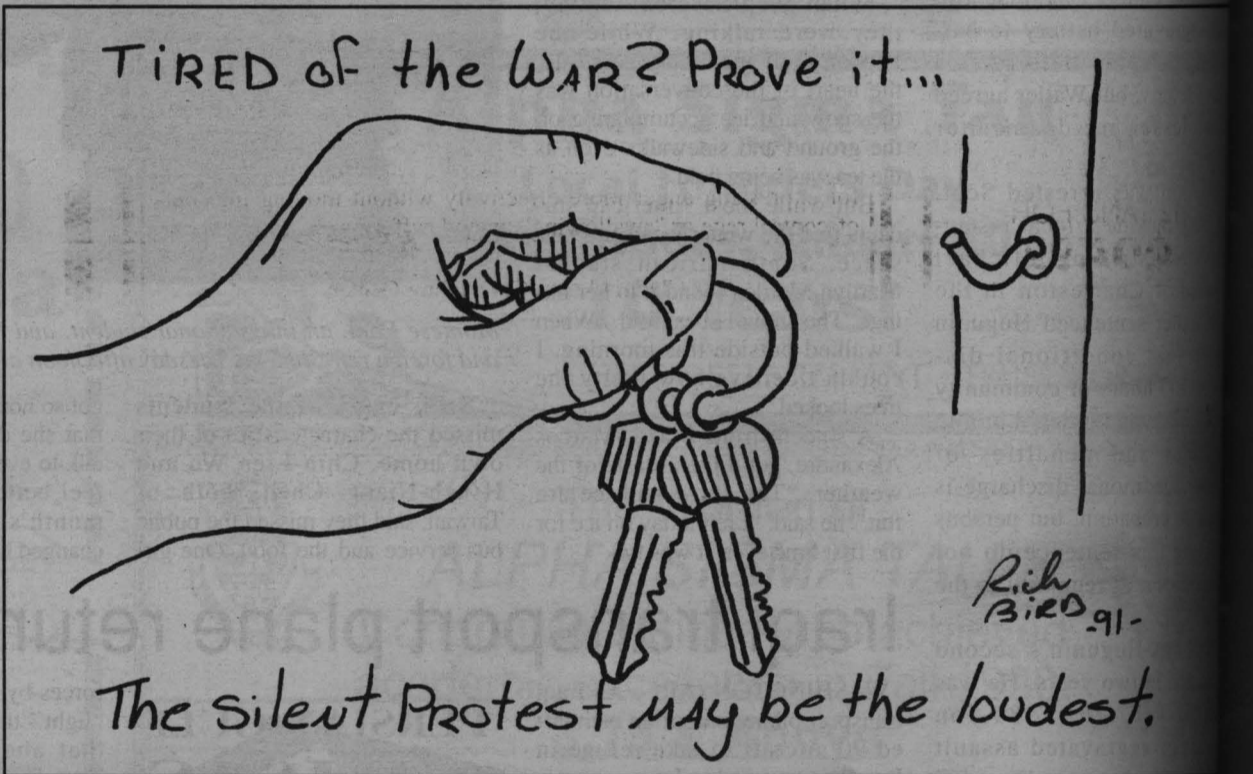

In the meantime though, we're crippling our own economy. President Bush is not to blame for creating our nation's economic problems. His predecessor, Ronald Reagan, is. During his presidency, Reagan added more to the national debt than all of the other presidents in history combined; all the way back to George Washington himself.

Now, we can't blame George Bush for a national debt that exceeds $3 trillion. But we can blame him for not making a very good effort at fixing it. And now we're about to launch into a full-scale war, we're not likely to remember now that the national debt is the worst it's been in history. Oh yeah, I shouldn't forget that we're in a recession too.

It is too late to protest the fact our troops are fighting in the Gulf - we can't do much about that now. But it isn't too late to ask our government to also pay a little more attention to the deteriorating domestic situation in the United States.

The war drags ever on.

- Jeff Madsen is the editor in chief and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Why won't women be part of a draft?

Dear editor:

Normally when men use the two words, women and battle, the word axe follows battle. American men should be careful, because in the Persian Gulf, women aren't cooking dinner, but they are cooking Iraqi troops. Are these women capable of fighting like men?

Ever since Susan B. Anthony, women have been fighting for equal rights. Women have earned those rights, but will these women be all right to fight? Women are just as tough as men in the office, but do they have the same endurance that men have on the battlefield? Can they kill if they enlist? Yes, but they won't be drafted. Is this fair for men? Ladies, this is the one time in your life that getting a certain thing once a month (period) is good. Because women get their period, does it mean they should-n't get drafted? Who makes the decision that women can be in the military but cannot be drafted.

Ladies, you should be thankful for Kotex, because there are a lot of young men out in the United States with a little something in their pants that stinks. But nothing stinks as much as the fact that women can't be drafted.

Bret Brizzolara

Peter Voelz deserves credit for his views

Dear editor:

The viewpoint expressed by Peter Voelz in support of President Bush's war policy deserves credit. Voelz's insight into the character of the conflict explains why the president's policy has validity.

Several reasons, I believe, call for our support for the president's policy. However, the overshadowing reasons comes to two. First, who is Saddam Hussein? The second grows from the question, if not now, then when? Hussein takes his place in history with Alexander the Great, Napoleon and Hitler. His ambitions carry beyond the prudent and compassionate concerns,

Those ambitions recognize boundaries. Negotiations only come to "bargaining in faith."

If he is not stopped now, when is he to be stopped? We wait until he has fully developed atomic, biological and chemical weapons (ABC)? At a time a conflict would be more costly than the present human tragedy. Additionally, we can only doubt that economic sanctions would prevent him from acquiring ABC weapons. At best, we would be very risky to rely on such sanctions. In fact he may already have ABC weapons in underground production facilities. The real test of the great "wars" Patriot anti-missiles may be yet to come.

Historically, wars have on occasions preceded a better world. Without our Civil War could have ended? It is hoped that out of the ashes of a human tragedy a better world will emerge.

Textbook rental policy to be discussed Thursday

By SUZANNE OLIVER
Student government editor

A committee of Student Senate and Faculty Senate members have set a tentative date of Thursday to discuss potential modifications in the Textbook Rental Service.

The meeting, which is open to the public, is planned for 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. A specific room has not been determined.

The committee was created to arrive on a compromise between the faculty and students who want a purchase system implemented and those who want to maintain the current rental system.

"We will bring ideas for the proposal with the feedback from the senators," senate committee member Gina Marshall said.

The committee's goal is to present a proposal on the system that both senate groups agree upon to Eastern President Stan Hines by a mid-February deadline.

In other senate business, the regular senate meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union's Arcola/Tuscola Room, although Student Body President Dan Riordan said no specific items top the agenda.

He does plan to discuss what he called an "awareness" letter on the Persian Gulf War that will be distributed to the residence halls and student organizations.

Also, senate chief of staff Steve Macaluso will represent the Student Government at future cultural diversity meetings.

The cultural diversity group is an informal organization that began with a conference during the fall semester. About 30 student leaders from the Residence Hall Association, the Apportionment Board, Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, National Pan-Hellenic Council and Student Government participated.

Macaluso said the conference was held to clear up any misconceptions and to open communication with the different organizations on Eastern's campus.

"Last week we met informally and we ended up making up a constitution that could be used if we want to be a recognized student organization," Macaluso said.

No date has been set for the next cultural diversity meeting.

AB awaits budget requests

By ANN GILL
Staff writer

With only two days left in the pre-budgeting process, Eastern's Apportionment Board is awaiting the submission of written budget requests.

The AB oversees the financial affairs of Student Senate, University Board and its 14 subcommittees, Sports and Recreation and the AB itself.

According to Ken Wake, AB chair and financial vice president, none of the 18 budgets have been submitted. Yet, AB has received approximately eight requests for additional allocations and line-item transfers.

Tuesday's meeting provided the opportunity for AB members to ask questions concerning the upcoming budget season and have any questions concerning the budgeting process answered.

Some of the questions raised dealt with the issue of programming and the board's role in allocating student fees for specific programs.

After discussion, some of the board members maintained that it is only a board which allocates funds and not a programming board. It doesn't have the power to cut programs but allocate a set amount and let the organizations decide which programs to provide.

AB budgets the student fees allocated for a given fiscal year and distributes the funds among the four organizations under the AB's financial jurisdiction.

Wake said the projected enrollment is multiplied by an $18.15 figure that represents student fees.

The projections for student enrollment have not been given out by Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs, Wake said. Therefore, the amount of student fees available for the upcoming fiscal year have yet to be determined.

AB will hear requests for additional allocations and line-item transfers at next week's meeting.

Lecture to explain grant applications

By BRUCE UNDERWOOD
Staff writer

To help faculty and others interested in research ride the often tricky road to funding, Eastern's director of the Office of Grants and Research will present a lecture on preparing applications for grants.

Edwin May will discuss "Preparing Applications for Grants and External Funding" at 2 p.m. Wednesday in room 027 of Lumpkin Hall.

The lecture is part of the College of Business' annual colloquium series, but it is not intended for faculty alone, said Matthew Monippallil, the chair of Eastern's research committee.

The lecture, which will contain the criteria for internal funding of research proposals and the procedures for awarding grants, is also geared to graduate students and undergraduates, Monippallil said.

The main point of the lecture is to make faculty members more aware of the opportunities and to help them prepare grant proposals, said Monippallil, who added applying for funding is an art. The number of grants awarded to faculty varies from year to year depending on external factors such as the other types of funding given to Eastern.

May will also discuss opportunities for obtaining grants from sources such as the National Health Institute and the National Science Foundation.

Colloquium is an annual series that offers faculty who have received grants the opportunity to present their research findings.

We're looking for seniors who like working with all kinds of hardware.

Careers in data processing, accounting, actuarial, and auditing at State Farm.

At State Farm, we understand the concept of "work." Believe it or not, we also understand the concept of "play."

That's because we don't think you can be really outstanding at the first without having an appreciation for the second. Which is exactly why a career at State Farm in Bloomington could be the ideal place for you.

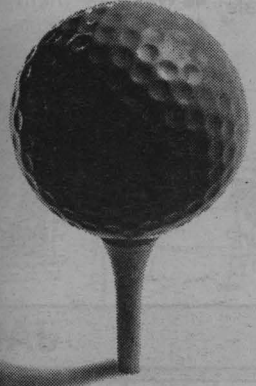

You'll work for one of the country's most respected companies on the most advanced computer equipment in the industry. You'll be challenged and stimulated. You'll be rewarded with excellent pay and benefits. You'll make your classmates very envious.

What's more, you'll also have time to appreciate the finer things in life. That's because Bloomington isn't just a great place to start a career, it's a great place to live, to enjoy, to start a family (if, indeed, you're ready to start thinking about that). In addition to the community's pleasant neighborhoods, inviting parks, and other recreational facilities, you'll find two universities that offer a host of cultural and social activities to take advantage of.

If you're a senior with a math, accounting, data processing, or computer science background, come talk to us at your college placement office. We're looking for people who are motivated and outgoing. People who enjoy challenges on the job — and away from it. After all, you're not just looking for a great job. You're looking for a great way of life.

Home Offices: Bloomington, Illinois.
 An equal opportunity employer.

NBA all-star rosters set

NEW YORK (AP) - The Portland Trail Blazers, without a player for the NBA All-Star Game, set the best record in the league, had three players added to the Western Conference roster by the conference coaches. Steve Drexler, Terry Porter and Greg Duckworth were among 15 players named as reserves for the All-Star game, Feb. 10 at Charlotte.

James Worthy of the Los Angeles Lakers, Tom Chambers of the Phoenix Suns, John Stockton of the Utah Jazz and Tim Hardaway of the Golden State Warriors.

Because a wrist injury will keep Isiah Thomas out of the All-Star Game, coaches picked reserves instead of the usual starters for the East team.

Earl "The Bird" of the Washington Wizards, who ranks third in scoring in the league, was added to the East roster along with Ricky Pierce and Alvin Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, Dominique Wilkins of the Atlanta Hawks, Dennis Rodman of the Detroit Pistons.

Head coach Chris Ford will name a replacement starter for Thomas, who underwent wrist surgery on Monday and will out for the rest of the season.

The other East starters are Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls, Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics, Charles Barkley of the Philadelphia 76ers and Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks.

Giants veto celebration

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - The New York Giants on Tuesday turned down invitations to celebrate their Super Bowl victory in New Jersey and New York City, saying it wouldn't be right with war raging in the Persian Gulf.

New Jersey Gov. Jim Florio and New York City Mayor David Dinkins had invited the Giants to celebrate their 20-19 Sunday victory over the Buffalo Bills with fans on either side of the Hudson River. "We're turning down all deals," Giants spokesman Ed Croke said. "It would be inappropriate to show celebration." In New York, workers already started setting up for a scheduled ceremony Wednesday. Dinkins was to present the keys to the city to Giants coach Bill Parcells and players Wellington and Tim Mara. The mayor also had planned to issue a proclamation honoring the team.

Dinkins said he understood the minute change in plans. "I understand and respect this decision and share their desire to support the young men and women fighting in the Persian Gulf," he said.

Dinkins said he was "disappointed that the people of New Jersey and I will not be able to celebrate how proud we are of our Giants," but he congratulated the team and said he joined them in wishing for the safe and swift return of our troops.

Panther defense leads to streak

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

As Eastern's basketball team prepares for a Thursday showdown against Mid-Continent Conference leader Northern Illinois, the No. 3 team in the nation in scoring defense (55.7), the Panthers are in a stingy mood themselves of late.

In the Panthers' last four games, all conference victories, they have allowed a measly 56 points per contest and have held their opponents to slightly more than 40 percent shooting from the field in improving their conference mark to 5-2.

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels, in his 11th season, said that there were a couple of reasons for the Panthers' defensive exploits.

"Well, it's a combination of things," he said. "We had to change our style and we emphasized defense more after the loss of Jeff Mironcow. Also, the insertion of Steve Nicholson and Rod McKinnis has solidified the defense."

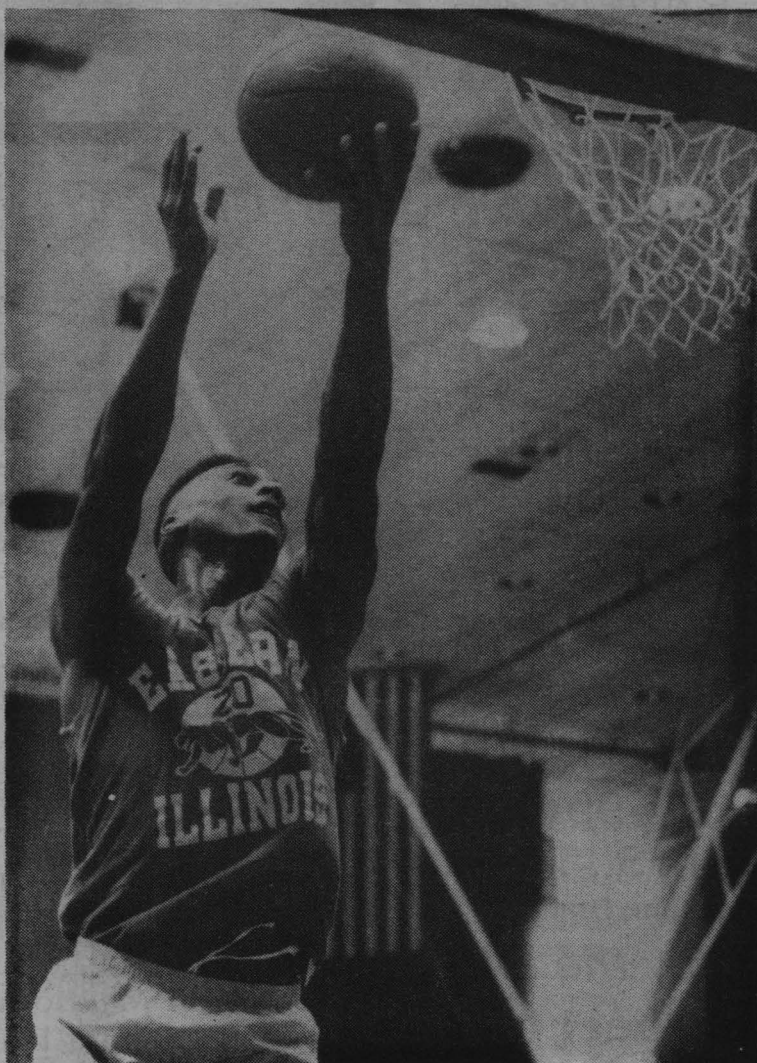

The Panthers started their longest winning streak since 1988 at Lantz Gym against Akron, as the Zips shot only 44 percent from the floor and scored 65 points. Eastern handed Cleveland State, the conference leader at the time with a 5-0 league mark, to 47 points on 39 percent shooting.

The next game Eastern traveled to Valparaiso, Ind., looking for its first win away from Lantz this season. The Panthers edged out the host Crusaders 73-68 and held Valpo to 47 percent.

On Monday, Eastern beat Illinois-Chicago 66-44 at the UIC Pavilion and held the Flames to 31 percent. Eastern also held UIC star Tony Freeman scoreless for the first 36 minutes of the contest, until he scored two late baskets before being ejected for punching Eastern forward Barry Johnson.

The Panthers have done the job offensively as well. They have four players averaging in double figures and have put teams away of late when they have had the opportunities.

Gerald Jones leads the way with 15.8 points per game and junior Barry Johnson nets 13.9. Junior guard Steve Rowe hits for 12.8 and Dave Olson comes off the bench for 10.4 ppg.

"All of those players can explode at any time," Samuels said. "We really like Olson as a weapon off the bench. I think an opposing coach has to be worried about when Olson is coming into the game. You need someone like that to come off the bench."

Samuels said that the Panthers have tried to build on things in the early season and are trying to peak now.

"We are putting things together," Samuels said. "Our confidence is beginning to build. We have to sense the time to put teams away on the road and I think the kids did that Monday (against UIC)."

Jones said that the Panthers just seem to be more focused at this point in the season.

"Somehow we're doing it," the senior co-captain said. "We are more into the game and everything has been put together."

Jones added that somebody different every game for the Panthers seems to step up and lead the team to victory.

"It's going in circles," Jones said. "Everybody is scoring, it's like a rotation. First it was Steve (Rowe), then Olson and then Barry. I'm always going to be up there because I'm the general. But the other guys are doing the little things like getting rebounds and setting picks, and that helps."

Jones said that although he appreciates the award, it may have been a long time coming. "That makes me feel good," he said. "But we haven't got the recognition since I've been here. We have a good team and we deserve it. We have good players, so this is long overdue. This is an honor for me and my teammates. We work hard."

Jones said that other teams around the conference should be aware of Eastern.

"If they don't take notice, we're going to win some big games," he said. "But we're beginning to get recognized."

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said that Jones has simply been doing the things that he has done throughout his career.

Lady Tops down Eastern 82-58

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Associate sports editor

Maybe it was too much to ask. Eastern's women's basketball team traveled to Bowling Green, Ky., Tuesday night to take on 11th-ranked Western Kentucky, attempting to upset the Lady Toppers and run its winning streak to three games.

But Western Kentucky (17-1), led by its backcourt duo of Kim Pehlke and Renee Westmoreland, used a 20-5 second-half run and eased to a 82-58 victory in front of 1,800 fans at E.A. Diddle Arena.

Pehlke led a balanced Western Kentucky attack with 19 points, followed by 18 points from Paulette Monroe. Mary Taylor added 16 for the Lady Tops, while Westmoreland pitched in with 14.

"I think our turnovers about say it all," Eastern coach Barbara Hilke said of her team's 28 giveaways. "We had difficulty getting the ball inbounds. I thought Western Kentucky played a great game. I wasn't very pleased with our offense. I thought we had done better.

"(Pehlke and Westmoreland) are great. Westmoreland is smooth as silk. They're a combination. Western Kentucky has been put together very well."

Eastern (8-10) was led by senior center Stacy Friedrich, who led all scorers at the half with 10 points and finished with 20 points and finished with 20 rebounds.

With Eastern down 43-31 at the half, the Lady Toppers used a stingy defense that forced Eastern to start the second half.

"I thought the first five minutes of the second half, we played well," Western Kentucky coach Paul Sanderford said. "We stepped up the intensity. I thought Eastern Illinois played with a lot of determination."

"I thought one kid who played hard for them was Barbara Youngman. She didn't hit any field goals, but she had a lot of rebounds and was around the key a lot. Friedrich is a good player."

Jones voted league player of the week

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

Eastern point guard Gerald Jones has been selected the Mid-Continent Conference Player of the Week.

Jones, a senior co-captain, scored 55 points on 20-of-32 shooting from the field, including 8-of-12 from three-point territory in the Panthers' two conference victories. Eastern went on the road to defeat Valparaiso 73-68 as Jones pumped in a career-high 33 points. Monday Eastern beat Illinois-Chicago 66-44.

The Vashon High product scored 22 - 15 in the first half - in the romp over the Flames and upped his three-point average to 50.8 percent on the year. He also had seven assists and four steals in the two wins and leads the Panthers in scoring with a 15.8 points per game average.

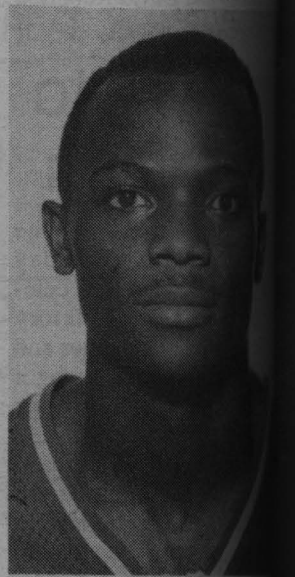

Jones said that although he appreciates the award, it may have been a long time coming.

"That makes me feel good," he said. "But we haven't got the recognition since I've been here. We have a good team and we deserve it. We have good players, so this is long overdue. This is an honor for me and my teammates. We work hard."

Jones said that other teams around the conference should be aware of Eastern.

"If they don't take notice, we're going to win some big games," he said. "But we're beginning to get recognized."

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said that Jones has simply been doing the things that he has done throughout his career.

Gerald Jones

"It's great," Samuels said. "This award is earned in every game, but he has always done these things. He just does the things that a solid player does."

Samuels added that Jones makes the team go and makes sure things run smoothly.

"He orchestrates things for us," Samuels said. "Your point guard isn't necessarily the player that you want to lead the team in scoring every game, but the coaches are concerned about Gerald when they play us."

The fact that Eastern has had many high-profile players out of high school is the result of some of the lack of recognition, Samuels said.

"Eastern is kind of invisible," he said. "We don't get the names out of high school. We get the kids that come in and develop themselves. The major publications don't know us."

Wrestlers host Miami Redskins

By KEN RYAN
Staff writer

Eastern's wrestling team is looking to stop its losing ways as the Redskins of Miami of Ohio visit Lantz Gym Wednesday for a 7 p.m. meet.

The Panthers, losers of four straight meets, hope to get back on track against the undefeated Redskins. Eastern head coach Ralph McCausland has not seen Miami of Ohio this year, but he knows that they are a tough team.

"They are a pretty solid team, they're 6-0 in meets so far," McCausland said. "They also have returning All-American, Hamilton Munnell, returning this season at 170 pounds."

The task of handling Munnell will be on the shoulders of Tim O'Malley who owns a 4-7 record.

In other matches, Bob Johnson looks to continue his successful comeback as he will wrestle John Marshall (14-6) of Miami of Ohio. Johnson is 4-1 since his return to the lineup and McCausland said that it is a pleasure to have him back.

"It's great to have Bobby back in the line-up, he's starting to wrestle well," McCausland said. "He doesn't have many matches under his belt but each time he wrestle's he will benefit from it."

Ray Serbick (27-11), will try to continue his winning ways against Craig Petti (15-5) and David Marlow will hope to be injury-free when he wrestles Marc Mattingly (16-5). Marlow, who lost two matches on Saturday, suffered some discomfort during his matches.

"He's coming back from the rib injury and he had some problems the other day," McCausland said. "You just don't know with that kind of injury, it's just good to have both of them (Johnson and Marlow) back in the lineup."
