Treasury Secretary Regan calls temporary office closing ridiculous

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Sunday that last week's temporary shutdown of most government offices in a budget fight was a "ridiculous episode."

"I come from the business world, and if we tried to run our businesses like we're trying to run this government, we'd certainly go broke doing it," Regan said on the ABC News "This Week" program.

Last week, non-essential federal offices were closed and workers sent home for several hours after the government ran out of money when Congress could not agree on appropriations. Congress then passed a short-term budget authorization giving congressional and administration budget officials until Dec. 15 to reach a budget compromise.

Regan said the controversy over federal budget cuts that led to the showdown was the result of a "pitiful" Congressional offer of $1.5 billion in cuts, after President Reagan had suggested $13 billion in reductions.

He said that although budget cuts are widely believed to be politically unpopular, they have been consistently supported by those who respond to public opinion polls.

In answer to a question, Regan said he expected a 3 percent to 3.5 percent decrease in the gross national product this quarter and an unemployment rate close to, but under, 9 percent.

Regan also was asked why companies won't take their tax cuts and simply try to buy other companies, without creating new jobs or productive capacity.

Saying that "the essence of supply-side economics is classical economics," he explained that people and businesses will have more incentive to work harder if they can keep more of the money they make.

"There are people like me, and thousands like me, who haven't lost the knack for making money...entrepreneurs, if you will," he said.

"We have not lost our nerve or our verve in our desire to...expand, to make a business grow," he said. "As soon as we get these tax restraints off and get interest rates down to where it's profitable to do business, you'll see that American spirit return."

New cataloging system may slow book returns

by Sharon Bray

Students hoping to just drop off their textbooks at Eastern's Textbook Rental Service after final exams in December and head home may find the procedure a little more complex and time-consuming this year.

The new cataloging system implemented by the rental service this summer will require students to take time to return their books, rather than just dropping them off, a rental service official said recently.

The computerized cataloging system was implemented to increase the service's efficiency by automating many of the duties of cataloging and reshelving textbooks which were formerly done by hand.

Rental service director Richard Sandefer said textbooks will still be returned to the textbook rental service in Pemberton Hall, but under the new cataloging procedure, a series of stations will be used to check in books.

Students will go to a station with the letter corresponding to the first letter of their last name, Sandefer said.

Rental service employees at each station will have a computer form in each student's name listing the books that student was issued at the beginning of the semester and their corresponding computer catalog number, he said.

If a student lacks a textbook, he could either turn in the book later or he can pay for the lost book at that time, Sandefer said.

Until the student has turned in all his books or paid for the books he has not turned in, he will be unable to receive any more textbooks for the next semester, he added.

When all the student's books are checked in, the student will be issued a receipt indicating he has turned in all his books, he said.

Once the student has received a receipt, he will drop off his books further along the counter at stations whose numbers correspond with the computer numbers on the textbooks, Sandefer said.

Sandefer said although the new procedure will take longer, the efficiency of the rental system will be improved. He added he could not estimate how much longer the new procedure would take.

Sandefer added no changes will be made in the new system next semester because it has worked well this semester.

Education official favors tax hike to fund schools

by Sue Ann Minor

State education superintendent Donald Gill has recently joined the Illinois Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees in calling for an increase in the state income tax to fund schools and educational programs.

Gill said he would not actively pursue the increase until after the legislative election in November, 1982 because raising the state income tax would be "hard to accomplish in an election year."

Gill, who made his announcement at the annual conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards in Chicago Nov. 22, said the hike in state taxes is needed because of cuts in federal aid and the reluctance of voters to approve increases in property taxes.

He said he was not familiar with the IFT and AFSCME proposals to raise the state income tax, but added "no one is expecting this to happen this year, that just makes good sense."

Don Dolton, president of Eastern's chapter of University Professionals of Illinois, said the IFT plans to lobby for an income tax increase when the General Assembly returns in session in January, but he added that there is a "one in a million chance" that an income tax increase proposal will be passed.

Dolton also said that because it is an election year no state legislator would propose or vote for an income tax increase.

Gill said he plans to call for a generalized income tax to give relief to local taxpayers. "As the state effort (to raise money for education) has become a little less vigorous, local property taxes carry more of the burden with increased assessments."

The concept of a raise in state income tax is not a new one. Gill said he became interested in the idea about a year ago. "It's not my concept," he said. "It has been discussed in legislative halls for quite some time."

A second proposal by Gill to generate more monies for education is to persuade school districts to consolidate.

He said he could not begin to set an arbitrary size for districts with low enrollments to consolidate. He said there were two items to consider before any school decided to consolidate. The first was whether better programs could be offered to students and the second was if the consolidated schools could be operated in a more cost effective manner.

"There are several districts with fewer than 200 students next to districts with 300 to 400 students," he said. Many small rural school districts could be consolidated, saving money and increasing efficiency, he added.

43-year-old Wood drowns; found floating in ocean

SANTA CLARA, Calif.—The body of actress Natalie Wood, a dark-eyed beauty who starred in such films as “West Side Story” and “Gypsy” was found floating Sunday in the ocean off Catalina Island, sheriff’s deputies said.

The 43-year-old actress, an apparent drowning victim, was found at 8 a.m. near an inflatable boat 200 yards from shore after a seven-hour search by the Harbor patrol and lifeguards, said Los Angeles County Sheriff’s deputies.

Wood, on location for a new film, had apparently gone ashore with friends to visit the Isthmus Cove area near the northwest end of the island, officials said.

Harbor director Doug Bombard said the group dined ashore and Wood apparently returned to the boat owned by her husband, actor Robert Wagner, aboard a power-driven inflatable boat.

Police fight against looters in Lynn’s fireburnt district

LYNN, Mass.—Club-toting National Guard troops patrolled against looters Sunday in the ruins of Lynn’s historic shoe mill district blitzed by a $35 million firestorm police say was touched off by an arsonist.

An estimated 400 people were left homeless and 1,500 lost their jobs by the fire Saturday, which destroyed 17 other buildings and damaged six others in a five-block area, wiping out five years of rehabilitation efforts in this old mill city 10 miles north of Boston.

Striking students to seek further Solidarity support

WARSAW, Poland—Leaders of 100,000 striking students called a meeting Sunday to discuss their tactics and an appeal for Solidarity’s support. A spate of worker protests continued, despite new warnings expected to be taken by in Parliament this week.

The National Commission of the Independent Students Association, coordinators of the biggest student protest in the Soviet bloc, was asking the independent labor federation to persuade its member employees at the schools to go on strike, spokesman said.

The student strike started Oct. 20 over academic reforms and the election of a Radom college headmaster. But observers said the students may decide to go back to 71 of Poland’s 91 colleges and universities for lectures under some kind of declaration that they are still protesting.

Council refuses cable rate hike

by Yvonne Beeler

Instead of voting on a proposed rate increase, the Charleston City Council voted Tuesday to scrap all cable television rate increase proposals.

The council was originally to vote on a proposal by Liberty Cable of a $1 rate increase for all customers with no additional services provided or a total increase of $2 with the additional service of seven channels. The proposals also included a 50 cent charge for each additional outlet.

Commissioner Olga Durham said the Liberty Cable company asked the council to "not pass the current proposal because they (Liberty) were not in agreement with the proposal."

The proposal, which was drawn up by City Attorney Tony Sunderman, included the rate increase schedule plus the seven channels proposed by the council.

However, Durham said the cable company misunderstood the proposal and asked the council not to accept it.

The proposal from last Tuesday's meeting was amended from an earlier request for a $2.50 increase which would have made the addition of the seven channels mandatory. This proposal was defeated by the council in a special meeting.

"Now," Durham said, "we'll start all over. I presume another proposal by the cable company will be presented at the next council meeting."

The next council meeting is scheduled for Dec. 1.

In addition to voting down the rate increase proposal, Sunderman presented to the council a transcript of a Nov. 7 meeting with the council and Kelley Robbins, a part-owner of a cable franchise in Noblesville, Ind.

Commissioner Wayne Lanman said Robbins had been involved in updating the cable system and spoke with council members concerning rate increases.

Hickman denies underage drinking problem

In response to recent publicity concerning underage drinking in Charleston, Mayor Bob Hickman said that no major problem exists with underage drinking in local bars and that The Daily Eastern News has exaggerated the situation.

In an article published in Saturday's edition of the Charleston Times-Courier, Hickman said, "It's really not a major problem. The Eastern News is acting like it's a major problem. News must be slow if that's all they have to print."

Hickman made the statement in regard to stories printed in last week's issues of the newspaper that told of underage drinkers in the bars, some who were not checked for age identification before being served.

He could not be reached for comment on Sunday.

Hickman, who serves as the city liquor commissioner, recently sent a letter to bar owners asking them to make sure the 21-year-old drinking law is being enforced and that carding is enforced regularly.

Marsha Hausser, editor of The Daily Eastern News, said the articles which appeared in the campus paper were written as a result of the recent letter Hickman sent.

"We don't make the laws. If it's 21, it's 21. That's still breaking the law and we're just reporting it," Hausser said.

Hickman further stated that the bar owners have "worked good with me" in the past, but recent complaints about underage drinkers in the local bars prompted him to write the letter.

"Everyone gets lax sometime," Hickman stated in the article.

Hickman also said as far as the economic impact that Eastern students have on the local bars, they are a "great asset to the community."

The article also said Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson feels the letter to the bar owners helped.

"I think the bar owners should get the message and I'm sure the mayor's only going to take so much pressure," Johnson said.

Enforcing the age requirement has been difficult, Johnson said in the article, since the city council passed the ordinance permitting those 18 to enter bars.

To make an arrest, a policeman would have to actually see the underage drinker take a drink. A glass sitting in front of a person is not enough to prove the drink is that person's, he said.

Housing data offered

Editor:

As student senators, but even as students, we have heard complaints from fellow students about both on- and off-campus housing problems they have encountered. Many of these problems could have been avoided if these students would have known a little more about what their housing agreements stated.

To make all students aware of both on- and off-campus housing, the Student Senate Housing Committee is having an informational housing forum entitled "Your Place or Mine" Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Ballroom of the Union. For people interested in residence hall living, a representative from the housing office will be there to discuss the accommodations and costs that are incurred when living on campus.

The legal aspects of housing will be discussed by the lawyer from the student legal service. This is an area of vital importance for those people who live, or plan to live, off-campus. Finally, off-campus availability will be discussed by a representative from one of the local realtors. All students are affected by this area, because some day every student will be looking for an apartment or a house. On behalf of the Student Senate, we urge all students to attend this forum.

Election was illegal

Editor:

Another Student Senate election has come and gone. But this one was different from past elections—it was illegal.

The student government constitution says "Elections shall be held on the second Wednesday in November, and on the third Wednesday in April. If either of these days is not an academic day it will be changed to the most appropriate day. This change will be made by a two-thirds vote of the Senate."

Earlier this year the Senate quietly passed legislation that changed the date of the election from Nov. 11, the original election day, to Nov. 18. The reason for this was not that Nov. 11 wasn't an academic day, it was. The real reason for the change was that many of the senators running for office would be attending a student government conference in New Orleans.

Another juicy tidbit of information is that Article 10 Section A of the Student Government Constitution states "The student government shall be empowered to adopt such by-laws and regulations deemed necessary and convenient for carrying out its functions through the procedures established in this constitution provided such by-laws and regulations do not conflict with this constitution." In other words, the Senate cannot pass any legislation which is contrary to what is in the student government constitution.

Imagine what the United States would be like if the U.S. Congress was allowed to ignore passages of the constitution.

Jeffery Francione

Justice's bias cause for dismissal

The Student Senate needs to conduct further inquiry into its "censure" of Student Chief Justice Joel Storm and should seriously consider removing him from office for involving himself actively in student government elections.

The senate voted Nov. 18 to adopt a resolution reprimanding Storm because "the duties of the chief justice make it improper for said official to become involved in any way in campus campaign activities."

Although the student government constitution does not explicitly prohibit a justice from campaigning, such activities undercut the justice's attempts to maintain neutrality in campus affairs.

In addition, when Storm appeared before the Legislative Leadership Committee prior to his appointment, he said he would no longer engage in any political activities on campus.

Therefore, he violated this agreement when he wrote a letter to the editor in The Daily Eastern News endorsing two senate candidates and campaigning in Andrews Hall before the election.

He said he endorsed the candidates because they are his friends. This is not a good reason to endorse someone for public office. The endorsement would have carried more weight had it been given because the candidates were the most qualified for the job.

Storm's attitude toward the reprimand also seems to be careless and nonchalant.

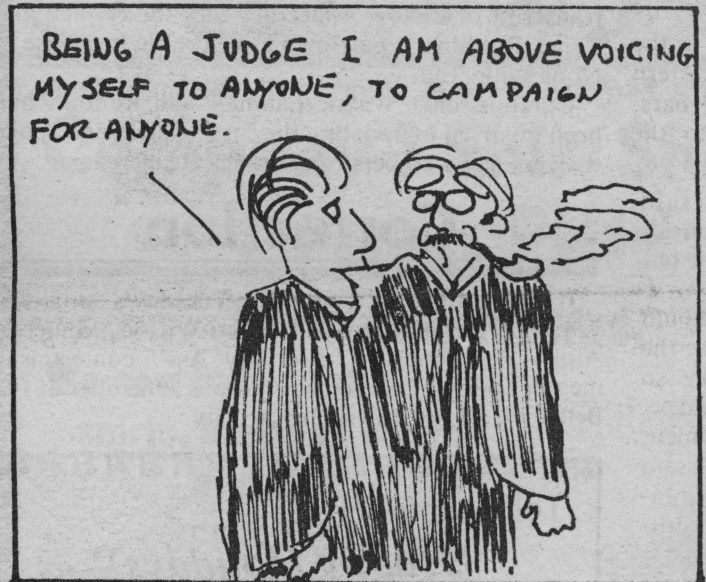

When questioned about his feelings concerning the senate's action, the chief justice appeared to take the reprimand as a personal slam instead of one aimed strictly at the position of chief justice.

As chief justice, Storm needs to sit in a neutral position so he can act fairly and give his unbiased attention to any issue which may come before him.

As such he should not enter into political activities in order to keep his political feelings out of his interpretations of the law.

It is for these reasons Storm should be removed from office.

A chief justice who does not take his job seriously has no business doing that job.

USA/USSR talks may help disarmament

On Monday President Reagan and Leonid Brezhnev will meet in Geneva to discuss the mutual reduction of medium-range missiles in Europe. We support these talks on the mere basis that they are a step with disarmament in mind.

Despite the fact that the move seems somewhat political by Reagan and despite the fact that Brezhnev has already said there was no way he was going to meet Reagan's currently proposed terms, the move is toward disarmament.

The U.S. military budget for fiscal year 1982 stands at $200.9 billion. This is quite a phenomenal figure, and when compared to budgets for other areas, one wonders where the world priorities are at.

As military spending increases, the quality of the world's social programs decreases. Overkilling military spending weakens the total economy—it is an empty investment. A nation's most valuable resource is its people. If a nation's people are uneducated, unhealthy and unhappy, it is a weak nation no matter how large its supply of military weapons may be.

Take the United States for example. The United States has spent billions of dollars researching and developing modern military equipment, yet does not have qualified people to work the equipment.

The leaders in this vast race of arms are, of course, the United States and Russia. Since 1980, these two nations have accounted for 58 percent of the world's military expenditures.

We are suggesting that the two "leaders" lead the other nations in disarmament and begin the world's reduction of military spending. Obviously, disarmament is not as simple as this.

We do not expect the United States to merely stop producing all arms and disarm all weapons, then sit back and assume that all of the other nations are going to play follow the leader.

Crossviews:

The Daily Vidette

Because of the intense buildup of arms and secrecy involved with the military, disarmament has become a very frightening concept. People feel their personal security is being threatened in today's world.

However, it has to stop. The arms buildup has become a race that no single nation will ever be capable of winning.

Besides the negative aspects of military spending on a nation's economy and people, it also poses a frightening false sense of "no one can hurt us" to some nations' leaders. Past history has shown that a huge increase in military makes some nations cocky and somewhat "trigger happy." This overconfidence makes leaders unafraid of other countries and unwilling to back down or negotiate, therefore leading to war.

Negotiations must be made, and Monday's talks, though not a strong start, are indeed a start.

Military spending cannot continue to rob the world's people of their rights to an education, proper health care and life's basic necessities of food and shelter.

Thomas Jefferson said in 1809, "The care of human life and happiness, and not their destruction, is the first and only legitimate object of good government."

Let us hope that the current world government leaders will realize and fulfill this objective.

Group formed to alleviate art department problems

by Maureen Foertsch

Conditions in Eastern's art department, including outdated equipment in inadequate quantity and irregular heating and cooling have resulted in the formation of a group of concerned art majors.

Dissatisfaction over the conditions surfaced three weeks in letters to The Daily Eastern News from two art majors.

Art Club president Betsey Kenyon said recently an advisory committee would meet with art department chairman James Johnson.

Kenyon said she believes the department has several problems with irregular heating and cooling, but added nothing is done to correct problems despite student complaints.

Scott Morton, a senior art minor and Art Club secretary, said he disagreed with Kenyon.

"Sure, I think the department could stand some improvements, but mostly I think our department is adequate," Morton said.

Junior art major David Fike said he thought the department was rundown, but added he did not believe the physical condition posed major problems.

A volunteer day for students to clean the department was proposed at the meeting. The clean-up day is tentatively set for Nov. 21.

In the letters to the editor, senior art majors Robin Ruetenik and Doug Hintz complained about old, inadequate equipment, irregular heat and cooling, and inadequate space.

Ruetenik and Hintz say the department faculty has tried to alleviate problems by donating personal equipment, repairing equipment, and working during their leisure time after hours without pay.

"Cary Knoop has been especially helpful. If he didn't repair equipment or donate his own time the sculpture lab couldn't function," Ruetenik said. "And (art department chairman) Jim Johnson is behind us, but he needs people behind him too."

Johnson said the art department has one security storage area for students who paint, and added he was not aware of any complaints about lack of space. He did say, however, that large-scale projects would not fit in the area at all.

He added no plans have been made for the addition of new security storage areas.

Journalism alumni telefund nets $2,155

More than $2,000 was pledged in an Eastern journalism department telephone fundraiser Nov. 23, the journalism department chairman said Tuesday.

The two-hour telefund was sponsored by the journalism department and Eastern alumni services.

Chairman Daniel Thornburgh said $2,155 was pledged by over 100

Eastern journalism alumni, with pledges ranging from $2 to $250.

Student publications and journalism department officials will meet next semester to decide how the money will be used, he added.

Japanese fitness speech slated

Various Japanese recreational programs and how they differ from the United States' programs will be discussed Monday by a professor from Tokai University in Japan.

Eastern Student Association for Recreation Public Relations Historian Nancy Daum said recently that Jin Nishino will address the public in a speech at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Library Lecture Hall.

Nishino is currently a visiting professor at the University of Illinois in the Department of Leisure Studies, Daum said.

Nishino has also authored several books and magazines dealing with recreation and fitness, she added.

Booters granted Final Four ticket via forfeit

by Jim Woodcock

What Eastern soccer head coach Schellas Hyndman deemed as a "slight dream" at the beginning of the season has turned to reality for the Panther booters.

In its first year of Division I competition, Eastern's soccer team advanced to the NCAA Final Four after being declared 1-0 victors over San Diego State Friday. The Aztecs were forced to forfeit Sunday's scheduled quarter-final bout because they carried an ineligible player on their roster throughout the 1981 season.

The Panthers, now 18-1-2, will travel to Palo Alto, California for the Final Four tournament Dec. 4-5, and will face Connecticut in their semi-final contest.

Hyndman said he was stunned when he received word that the Panthers were in the Final Four. "I didn't know what had happened at first. I was excited to tell the players and they went through the roof."

Hyndman added that the Panthers' first trip to the Final Four in their debut Division I season is the biggest thrill in his life. "At the beginning of the season our goal was to get a post-season bid, and we have surpassed that."

Sophomore mid-fielder Aldo Esposito said the announcement from Hyndman snuck up on them prior to practice on Friday.

"He was just talking to us before practice and then he said that the only way he could end the conversation was

Aztecs' Bru tabbed ineligible

by Jim Woodcock

By virtue of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's watchful eye, the Aztecs of San Diego State will be watching the remaining Division I post-season soccer action rather than participating.

San Diego State, who was to battle Eastern Sunday at Lakeside Field, was nailed by the NCAA Friday for carrying an ineligible player on their roster, which resulted in a quarterfinal forfeit victory for the Panthers.

An NCAA executive committee ruled Aztec senior Chris Bru ineligible after they found that Bru used up his four years of eligibility last fall.

In 1977 and 1978, Bru played for Pierce Junior College in Los Angeles, and decided to take the year off in 1979. However, during this time, he played for an organized team and then settled on San Diego State for his junior and senior year institution.

While Bru played for the organized league he turned 21, which is the key factor involved in this incident.

The NCAA eligibility rules state an athlete who plays in an organized league after his 21st birthday will be charged a year of eligibility for every year played in a league. Thus, Bru's eligibility ended at the close of the 1980 to tell us that we were in the final four," Esposito said.

Esposito said the room went wild.

season.

Aztec head coach George Logan said he was not aware he carried an ineligible player on his squad throughout the entire 1981 season, and he said the NCAA was "absolutely right" in their investigation.

According to Logan, the investigation did not start until after the Aztecs defeated the University of San Francisco on Nov. 22 to capture the Far West Regional and advance to the quarterfinals.

The following day, Logan heard USF was "loading their guns" to get back at San Diego State. "I guess they had known about it (ineligible player) the whole time," Logan explained, "but rather than coming forward with it earlier, they waited until after they had lost to us."

Logan viewed the incident as the Dons' strategy to sneak through the Far West Region and eventually play Eastern.

"I think they thought that the NCAA would allow them to play Eastern after they found us ineligible," Logan said, "and I think the NCAA looked at it with the respect that they sat on the information rather than bringing it up beforehand. Justice was done."

"Everyone was dancing, singing, and jumping around. There were tears in some eyes. Then we had a hard practice."

Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said the announcement caught him off guard as well, but he was "obviously pleased."

"This is going to really help us nationwide with all the media that will be there," Johnson said. "Plus, there were several skeptics about us coming into Division I from Division II, so this is going to help the overall credibility of our program."

Although the Panthers did not expect to get away with a victory over the Aztecs in such easy fashion, Hyndman said he is disappointed his squad was not able to play in front of the home crowd.

"We really wanted to play in front of our fans for all the support that they have shown us," Hyndman said. "Also, I feel sorrow for San Diego State. It must have been a nightmare for their coach (George Logan) to have told his team the news."

However, with the Aztecs now behind the Panthers, Hyndman said the week ahead will provide the Panthers with training as well as time for injuries to heal.

Again, Hyndman's chief concern is freshman backfielder Albert Adade, who is still battling a groin muscle injury. Hyndman said he was doubtful as a starter against the Aztecs.

"With Adade a question mark and after coming off two tough games against St. Louis and SIU-Edwardsville, this week will give everyone a rest," Hyndman said.

Poor cager rebounding gives Kent State overtime win

by Dan Brannan

KENT, Ohio—Despite a fine offensive display, Eastern's men's cagers posted a poor rebounding performance in dropping its season opener 96-88 in overtime to Kent State Saturday.

However, Eastern's first-game offensive show was a pleasant surprise for head coach Rick Samuels.

"Our offense was a lot better than I expected for the first game," Samuels said. "Kent State just couldn't stop us on offense. The difference for Kent State was their board game."

Kent State outrebounded the Panthers 50-33.

The Golden Flashes were paced in rebounding by 6-foot-9 junior forward Ed Kaminski with 19 boards, 10 on offense and nine on defense.

"Kaminski had an outstanding effort," Samuels said. "He kept us from pulling out ahead of them in the overtime."

During the overtime Kaminski sunk a follow up shot and added a slam dunk as the Golden Flashes scored the first six points to seal the victory. Kaminski led all scorers in the contest with 25 points.

Eastern guard Warren Patten registered a career high 24 points on 11 for 16 shots from the field.

"Patten played exceptionally well," Samuels said. "He was our leading rebounder in the contest and some of his rebounds were what kept us in the game."

Eastern's next leading scorer was 6-foot-7 standout forward Ricky Robinson with 19 points.

However, an ankle injury kept Robinson's point total down, Samuels said.

"He bruised his ankle in the first half so he didn't play all of the second half," Samuels said. "He played well while he was in there. He may be a little sore from the injury, but he should play Monday against Olivet Nazarene."

Robinson kept his reputation as a slam dunker alive by tallying three in the game. He had two consecutive slam dunks five minutes into the contest.

Forward Eddie Jones and center Leigh Hankins followed Robinson with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Jones, a 6-foot-4 senior hit a meager four of 18 shots from the field, which disappointed Samuels.

"He (Jones) didn't shoot that well in the game," Samuels said. "I'm sure he'll shoot better in the future, however. Hankins had a good day as he made five of seven shots."

Senior forward Jim Williams and junior guard Kevin Jones added six points each followed by senior guard Kurt Lorenzen with four. Sophomores Tim Dykstra and Vincent Smelter rounded out the Panthers' scoring with two points each.

The bench play of Jones, Dykstra and Smelter proved valuable to the Panthers, Samuels said.

"Jones (Kevin) played pretty solid, but he was intimidated at first," Samuels said. "He is going to be a good player for us. Dykstra and Smelter also came off the bench and played solidly."

The game was a see-saw battle throughout both halves, as Kent State bolted out to a seven-point advantage early in the first half, but Eastern bounced back to take a 32-31 lead later in the half. Kent State then came back and led at halftime 44-42.

The second half was similar to the first, as the Panthers posted a 65-60 lead. But the Golden Flashes again came back, and it took a pair of jump shots by Patten to send the game into overtime. The first came with 2:26 to play and the second came with 28 seconds remaining.

On the contest, Eastern hit 37 of 77 shots for 48.1 percent, while Kent State converted 51.3 percent on 38 of 74 shots.

The Panthers will open their home season 7:30 p.m. Monday against Olivet Nazarene College at Lantz Gym.
