Three students stay on CAA; Rives rejects faculty petition

by Madeleine Doubek

Eastern President Stanley Rives Thursday rejected part of a petition requesting that one student member be cut from the Council on Academic Affairs.

However, Rives has mandated that student CAA members be elected by the Student Senate rather than appointed by the student body president, which is the current practice.

Rives announced his decision about the controversial faculty petition in the University Newsletter released Thursday.

The petition, written by former CAA faculty member Jane Lasky and signed by 381 faculty members since last spring, called for the CAA to be reconstituted to include nine faculty members and two student members who were to be elected by the students at-large.

In an interview with The Daily Eastern News, Rives said of the petition, "It's a sensitive issue with the faculty and it would be with students if I had decided to cut their membership."

In his letter to the university, Rives noted, "while not pretending any ultimate wisdom in the appropriate mix of faculty and student members on the major educational policy committee of the university, I am confident" that both faculty and students should be represented on the committee.

Further, Rives said he has not received any "compelling" arguments in favor of changing the faculty-student ratio. He added that the petition's contention that reducing the student voice by one member "would more accurately reflect current campus realities," was not a "persuasive reason for change."

He said although he believes faculty members should possess the predominate role in establishing curriculum policies, student representation is "both appropriate and warranted."

Rives said he consulted both faculty and student representatives as well as Edgar Schick, provost and vice president for academic affairs, before making his decision.

He cited his own experience as an ex-officio member of the CAA during his tenure as academic vice president as further evidence that the CAA functions effectively under its current membership.

Some faculty members had expressed concern that CAA student members tended to vote in a block. However, Rives said recently he has seen both students and faculty vote in blocks, adding that this can be expected in a political democracy.

Regarding his reasoning for mandating that student representatives be elected, Rives told the News he had "no grand purpose" for doing so. He noted that CAA faculty members are elected by their peers so "it seemed to make sense" that student members be elected.

Rives said he "consulted the Student Senate leadership and they seemed comfortable with having an election by the Student Senate." He said senate leaders were concerned that a general election for student CAA members would become too political.

Rives had discussed the proposal with Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel. Wesel said in an interview last week, "I personally wouldn't want to see them elected (by the student body) because it would (See THREE, page 7)

Athletic fee Johnson: referendum rejection can doom programs to 'mediocrity'

by Linda Wagner

If the athletic referendum calling for a $7 per semester student activity fee increase is rejected by Eastern students, the athletic department may have to start from scratch in the hunt for additional funds.

Athletic Director R.C. Johnson said Wednesday a serious evaluation of the proposal would have to be conducted if the referendum fails to gain approval during the Nov. 14 Student Senate election.

If the proposal does not win student support, Johnson said the next step he would take would depend on the margin of defeat.

Johnson said if the vote is close, he will "think seriously" about placing a similar referendum on the spring senate election ballot. However, he said if the proposal is devastated, a new approach will be attempted to find more funds for the department.

Although Eastern President Stanley Rives has the power to implement the student activity fee increase, if the referendum fails, Johnson said he will not consider that alternative.

"I assure you he (Rives) would not do that," he said. "He wants it to be a student decision and I will abide by his desires."

Rives said, "I really think the issue of how we tax ourselves is an issue students should have a fundamental voice over."

In addition, he said students should fundamentally decide the issue and that is why the proposal is being placed on a referendum in the first place.

Although Rives did say he believes there needs to be some type of funding increase, he did not commit himself to the $7 figure being proposed on the referendum.

"There will probably be some consequences if the referendum is not okayed," Rives said. One such consequence may be cutting back, he added.

Johnson said "At this point, I don't see us dropping any sports. Dropping sports is absolutely our last resort."

However, he added that he can see that happening in a few years if there is not enough income. "Something will have to give," he noted.

Johnson added if it got to this point, the athletic administration and Rives would make recommendations to the Intercollegiate Athletic Board concerning possible program cuts.

This group would need to study the number of sports the NCAA and men's and women's conferences require, he said. In addition, they would look at each program's financial impact, balance between men's and women's sports and their tradition.

Johnson cited the example of dropping men's golf. "If we were to drop men's golf, it wouldn't make much difference because there are no scholarships and its budget is $5,000," he said. Because of this, the athletic department would not gain much.

Another avenue to be considered if the referendum fails is that of "taking cuts across the board," he said. The problem with that is gaining "mediocrity" for each of the 19 sports.

"We would do everything we could to exhaust every source of income available before we do that," he added.

Consequently, Rives said there needs to be a continued support from a variety of sources including state funding, Panther Club, student activity fees and (See ATHLETIC, page 7)

No tuition payment change possible until '86—Zane

by Joni Taylor

A proposal to delay tuition payment until the start of the semester cannot be considered until the Board of Governors' revision of the business office is completed, an Eastern official said Thursday.

Jake Zane, acting vice president for administration and finance, said the business office will be revised in January 1986, and a change in the payment system can be considered then.

The tuition proposal, devised by the Faculty Senate, suggests that a non-refundable pre-registration fee be paid in the spring and that the balance of the tuition and fees be paid at the start of fall classes.

Currently, students are required to pay tuition and fees about five weeks prior to the start of fall semester. Faculty Senate members believe tuition payment should be delayed because students lose interest they may earn during those five weeks.

The senate also believes the revision is necessary and feasible because students need the extra time to earn money for the fees.

Zane said that the BOG's revision of the business office will result in a unified accounts-receivable system. He added that under the current system Eastern has "a piece of a system that handles the tuition payments, a piece of a system that handles the housing payments."

Zane said that either the Faculty Senate's proposal or an installment payment plan could be considered when the revision is completed.

He emphasized that the senate's proposal was "not a bad idea" but that it would be impossible to revise the accounts-receivable system and the tuition payment program at the same time.

Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs, agreed with Zane saying, "It'd be ridiculous to say we can't do it but we'd have to get our business office in shape to so that we can do it."

Williams added that if a new tuition payment program was implemented students would have to pay more for delayed payment because the university would have to forfeit the interest it collects when the money is paid early.

Samuel Taber, dean of student services, said the financial implications of such a program need to be thoroughly (See ZANE, page 7)

Oak Park outlaws hand guns

OAK PARK—Owning a handgun became illegal Wednesday in the west Chicago suburb of Oak Park, less than a week after the Illinois State Supreme Court voted to uphold Morton Grove's landmark law banning the weapons.

Opponents of the law expressed concern for about how it would be enforced and pledged to push for an advisory referendum urging its appeal. Police said no weapons had been surrendered to them Tuesday.

The law, approved 4-3 by the village board April 17, bans the possession of handguns except by police, security guards, members of the armed forces and licensed gun clubs.

The law carries a fine of up to $1,000 for a first offense up to $2,000 for a second offense and up to six months in jail for subsequent convictions.

Village officials had delayed putting the law into effect until Wednesday, pending resolution of an appeal of the Morton Grove ban.

Planned French visit spurs uproar

PARIS—President Francois Mitterand has ignited an uproar in his ruling Socialist Party by deciding to send a top aide to Algeria's celebration of the 30th anniversary of the uprising against French colonial rule.

Foreign Minister Claude Chevsson will be the French representative at the Nov. 1 anniversary festivities. More than 22 years after President Charles de Gaulle granted Algeria its independence, lingering memories of the bloody rebellion can still stir up bitter hatred among the French.

"The Algerian War is still vividly present in the memory of all Frenchmen," Socialist deputy Alain Richard said recently as he protested Mitterand's decision.

Social Security benefits rise

WASHINGTON (AP)—Social Security benefits will go up 3.5 percent in January, putting an extra $15 a month in the checks of the average retired worker and $26 for an elderly couple, the government announced Wednesday.

It will cost Social Security's trust funds $6.2 billion to pay the extra funds to the system's 36.1 million retired or disabled workers and their families in the year ahead.

But when the benefits go up, so does the ceiling on Social Security taxes. The payroll tax in 1985 will be levied on earnings up to $39,600 in 1985, up from $37,800 this year.

Coupled with a scheduled tax rate increase to 7.05 percent from 6.7 percent, that will cost 8.9 million workers up to $259.20 apiece, boosting the maximum annual levy to $2,791.80. Employers will see their taxes rise by $145.80 per worker at the top.

The social security system expects to take in $2 billion from raising the wage base and $1.8 billion from the tax rate increase.

The benefit increase is the second consecutive annual 3.5 percent hike, the smallest since benefits were tied to inflation in 1975. It became official Wednesday when the government released the Consumer Price Index for September.

Benefits now have climbed 108 percent since 1975. The biggest jumps were in 1980 and 1981—14.3 and 11.2 percent.

Welfare checks for almost 4 billion aged, blind or disabled poor people in the Supplemental Security Income program will go up by the same percentage at year's end at a cost of $205 million.

Board: chief connected to murder

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—an investigatory board on Wednesday accused armed forces chief Gen. Fabian C. Ver of complicity in the assassination of Benigno Aquino, and Ver temporarily stepped down. Opposition leaders called for President Ferdinand E. Marcos to resign.

Ver accepted the request of his most trusted and powerful military officer for a leave of absence, but supported Ver's claim of innocence of involvement in the Aug. 21 1983 killing of the opposition leader and Rolando Galman, the man the military said shot Aquino.

The board, in a 457-page report, claimed Aquino and Galman were killed in a military conspiracy involving Ver, two other generals, two colonels, three captains, 17 other soldiers, and one civilian. It said the military's elaborate plan to protect Aquino as he returned from voluntary exile from the United States was a "gigantic hoax in reality designed to camouflage the taxing of that life." Aquino was shot in the head while under military escort at Manila's main airport, and Galman was gunned down shortly after by the police.

The report was released by four board members. The fifth, chairman Corazon Agrava, on Tuesday released her own report naming a general and six soldiers.

Repairs for Fine Arts Center's roof among Eastern's requests to BOG

by Lori Edwards

Eastern's report to the Board of Governors Thursday will include a $36,200 recommendation to replace the roof on the theatre wing of the Fine Arts Center.

"It is the original roof from 1958," Physical Plant Director Everett Alms said. "It is old and has served its purpose."

He added that the four-ply asphalt built-up roof that will replace the old one "has been used for many years. It is a standard style that is the same type as the old roof."

If cold weather comes late, the roof could be finished before winter, Alms said. Otherwise, the project will have to wait until spring.

The roof will be paid through appropriated funds designated for permanent improvements.

Eastern President Stanley Rives will also ask for approval of a request for a professional consulting service to conduct a analysis study of several buildings on campus.

Recommendations for energy conservation measures and possible qualification for government grants could result from the $48,320 study.

Alms said if Eastern is ranked low in energy conservation it would be possible to receive more federal money than a university that is ranked higher and does not need the money as much.

The building studied will include: Clinical Services, Physical Science, Applied Sciences Ford, McKinney and Weller halls and the Lincoln-Stevenson-Douglas complex.

Along with the building study, the board will be asked to approve several residence hall improvements.

Stevenson Hall and the Union are both scheduled to receive new hot water pipes that have deteriorated because of a now defunct water-softening process.

Taylor, Thomas and Carman food service roofs all need to be replaced because they range from 15-20 years old, Alms said. The anticipated cost of these projects is $140,000.

Windows in Ford, McKinney and Weller halls and the University Apartments will receive new thermopane window units at a cost of $160,000 upon BOG approval.

"We do investigations and bring our problems to Housing Director Lou Hencken," Alms said. "He gets the money and the physical plant carries out the needed work."

Hencken was not available Wednesday to comment about the residence hall improvements.

In other business, Rives will seek permission from the BOG to present honorary doctorates of humane letters to James T. Flexner and Burl Ives.

Daniel Thornburgh, acting director of university relations, said the two men were nominated by the Faculty Committee on Honorary Degrees and they both will be at graduation to receive their degrees.

The BOG will also hear system-wide capital project and insurance updates from Executive Director Thomas D. Layzell.

Capital improvement priorities for fiscal year 1986 will be presented for board approval.

The Board of Governors will meet at 8 a.m. Thursday at Western Illinois University in Macomb.

Group suggests director decision

by Lori Edwards

After two weeks of interviews, the search committee to hire a director of university relations has made a recommendation to Eastern President Stanley Rives.

Norma Winkleblack, chairman of the search committee, said the committee has sent their recommendation to the president; however, she said, "It would be inappropriate to say what our recommendation was until the president has made a decision."

Rives said he will make his decision whether to accept the recommendation of the committee on Friday or next Monday.

In addition, other members of the search committee, Ken Sutton, Dave Riddle, Howell Nordin, Judy Anderson and Pete Swanburg also declined to comment on the committee's decision.

If Rives does not accept the committee's recommendation, he may choose to make his own decision concerning the hiring of a new director.

In addition, the Board of Governors, Eastern's controlling board, does not need to approve Rives' decision.

The reason for this, Daniel Thornburgh, acting director of university relations, said is because "it's not a vice-presidential level position."

He added, however, that Rives "has had a practice of informing them (BOG) of what he is doing regarding other administrative positions."

Thornburgh said the salary for the new university relations director will be negotiated at the time of the job offer. However, former university relations director Ken Hesler's salary was $40,078 at the time of his retirement.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in the Oct. 24 edition of The Daily Eastern News that Eastern's radio station WELH received 66 applications for positions and accepted 45. Actually, WELH accepted 66 applicants to work at the station. However, only 45 students were chosen to be trained for on-the-air positions.

In addition, it was incorrectly reported that The Amazing Johnathon will appear on the David Letterman Show on Nov. 6. However, he will appear sometime during that week, not necessarily on that specific date.

Save-A-Baby may offer help with a choice

Charleston will soon have a place of refuge from the stigmatism which can accompany pregnancy.

The proposed Save-A-Baby program could give unwed pregnant women "an alternative to abortion" by providing them with an open-minded atmosphere in which to carry out their terms.

Editorial

We believe a service of this type can do nothing but offer help to the mothers and the community as a whole.

With guidance from co-founder Tim Yow, the program will not pass moral judgment on anyone, but instead will have a philosophy of support and understanding. As long as this policy is followed, the home could be an asset to Charleston.

The home will be staffed by volunteers and will be funded entirely through donations. In addition, Yow is hoping to help the women continue their education during their stay at the home.

The good intentions of the proposal are apparent. However, there are a few concerns which we believe should be addressed.

First, the property for the home was leased to Save-A-Baby for $1 by the Charleston Community Church. Yow considers this as a donation and says it does not infer control by the church. This should be kept in mind once the home opens—the program should be a community effort, without religious associations.

Secondly, Yow's non-judgmental philosophy should continue to provide the basis for the program. The staff members of the home should help the women make their own decisions, but should not try to make those decisions for them.

Despite these concerns, the motivation behind Save-A-Baby is a noble one. This is an idea whose time has come and our diverse college community is the ideal location for it.

As long as the open-minded philosophy behind the idea is kept intact, we enthusiastically support the proposed Save-A-Baby program and encourage Eastern students and Charleston residents to do the same.

Your turn

No relation to gays

Editor:

I want to make it clear that a recent presentation on the abortion issue (sponsored by the Thomas Hall Council) has absolutely no relation to the current dialogue on homosexuality.

A recent letter erroneously related the two issues. Furthermore, it is unfortunate if abortion advocates felt that the opposing view was "forced" upon them. In an Oct. 10 letter to the editor, as well as introducing the guest speaker for that program, I stressed that the intent of the program was to view a controversial film and to welcome comments from both viewpoints.

As adviser to the Thomas Hall Council, I am always pleased to see educational programs offered and I somewhat resent criticism toward those students who show the initiative and hard work to pull them off. Those who remain unhappy with our efforts are heartily encouraged to lend to a hand.

While I am on the topic, a few comments are not out of my range. To this day, every argument I have ever heard in favor of abortion comes down to convenience and/or money. And I am sick and tired of all the bleeding-heart liberals acting as if they are the only people who have any compassion for the poor and disadvantaged.

Arguments in favor of abortion, even from the national leaders in this slaughter, are so weak and logically unsound that it almost makes me laugh. But I have trouble laughing when the end result is crushed skulls and dismembered bodies of little babies, which is supposed to "save" them from coming into this world as an unwanted child.

For my part, I am glad to be viewed as a fanatic in defense of the unborn child and I couldn't be happier if I annoy those who defend this holocaust (which includes some of my best friends).

I know that it is difficult for some minds to grasp when we live in a country that has adopted secular humanism as its national religion, but there are some of us who place sacred principles on a higher pedestal than mere convenience.

Tom Condit

Ronnie and Wally: Come on down!

This debate thing just isn't working. Does anyone out there feel as if he's learned from the debates more than which candidate can memorize the most statistics?

I didn't think so. The sad thing is that it doesn't get any better. We still won't have gleaned a blessed thing about the leadership qualities of monsieurs Reagan and Mondale that we don't already know.

Why? Because the ideal of the debate format and the realities imposed by the camera are about as diametrically opposed as they can be. It's not a discussion, it's a damned show. The media knows it but still pretends the debate process is somehow important. Now if only they could figure out a way to insert commercial breaks...

This is not to suggest for an instant that the things aren't fascinating. One of my roomies keeps looking at this election and slapping his forehead. "I hate politics!" he says. I don't. I love the whole shootin' match. It's just like watching "Dynasty," only you don't have to wait a whole week for each new dramatic twist. And to that end—to fulfill my love for games of the ballot box—I'd like to suggest a few changes that would make the whole thing a more palatable.

First: Get rid of the damned journalists. Let 'em grandstand on "60 Minutes" or "20/20". They are, by and large, obnoxious and they use too many big words. Replace them with game-show hosts. They smile a lot more, and they fit in with the mentality of the process. Let Chuck Woolery and Pat Sajack take over for Diane Sawyer.

Second: No more answer-rebuttal-rebuttal stuff.

Crossview:

Phil Van Munching
Daily Northwestern

Let's just make it answer-rebuttal-apology demanding. Wally and Gerry would be especially good at this, judging from all of the practice they've had lately.

Third, and most important: name-calling ought to be included as a standard part of the process. "Old coot," "preppie," "nerd"—who knows what the fertile minds of press aides might come up with. Consider the following exchange:

"Well, Mr. Mondale is so scared of his own shadow, that little wimp, that if Chernenko ever came to visit he'd probably mess himself."

"Oh yeah, Cowboy? Well you probably couldn't stay awake long enough to have any real negotiations, you senile, B-movie wash-out."

Isn't that a little more colorful and to the point than any of those rehearsed answers we've been hearing?

From there we could use our imaginations. Maybe even bring in judges to rate the makeup jobs of each candidate according to style, originality and neatness. The possibilities are endless.

—Phil Van Munching is a regular columnist for The Daily Northwestern.

Parent's Weekend makes profit

by Beverly Patton

Enough ticket orders for Parent's Weekend, scheduled for Nov. 9-11, have been filled to put the University board $5,000 in the black for The Letterman and Steve Landesberg concert.

Anita Craig, student activities director said Wednesday that "half the house" has been filled for the Nov. 10 Letterman and Landesberg concert, which is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Lantz Gym. Seating capacity in Lantz Gym is 5,200.

"We're definitely making a profit," Craig added.

Comedian Steve Landesberg, who played Sgt. Arthur Dietrich in the television series "Barney Miller," will open the first half of the show.

The Letterman, made up of Tony Butala, Don Campo and Red Saber, are known for hits such as "Goin' Out of My Head," "Can't Take My Eyes Off You," "Put Your Head on My Shoulder" and "When I Fall in Love." Tickets for the concert are $8.

Joan Gossett, director of Business Operations said, "We're getting 25-30 orders a day. A lot of families fill in one order for five or six people." Ticket orders for the concert are being filled weekly, she added.

Jill Zimmerman, assistant director of student activities, said overall, they are pleased with the way Parent's Weekend ticket orders have been coming in, although the UB is not close to a sell-out.

Zimmerman added that The Fixx concert scheduled for Nov. 11 will not affect attendance at the Letterman and Landesberg concert because The Fixx concert has its own backing. Tickets for The Fixx, which are $10, also are on sale at the ticket office in the Union.

The Panthers will take on Western Kentucky at 1 p.m. the Saturday of Parent's Weekend.

AB cancels meeting; lack of agenda items

by Amy Landers

The Apportionment Board will not meet Thursday because of a lack of business, cutting short the opportunity for AB-funded groups to request additional monies.

AB Chairman Tammy Walker said the meeting was to be one of two remaining times this semester in which money transfer requests could be made; however, the meeting was cancelled because of a lack of agenda items.

Consequently, the Nov. 8 meeting will be the last time money transfer and extra money allocation requests can be made, Walker said.

In addition, the December AB meeting is set aside to orientate the board for spring budget reviews, she added.

The meeting restrictions are for the convenience of the board, Walker said. "We need time to prepare and go over next year's budget," she added.

Student Government, Student Publications, University Board, Sports and Recreation, Players and AB are effected by the meeting restrictions, Walker said.

AB restricted the number of times these boards, "could come in with their shopping lists" due to concern over the real need of the money being requested, Walker said.

CAA to vote on journalism and botany course additions

The Council on Academic Affairs Thursday will vote on a new course proposal from the journalism department.

"Black Journalism," a three-hour course, will be devoted to purpose, problems, and past and present status of the black press in the United States.

The course will also study the treatment of minorities in the majority media.

The CAA will also vote on a request to add Botany 1022, "Survey of Local Flora" to the math-science distribution requirements.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Seminar looks at business trends

by Amy Zurawski

A focus on national, state and local business trends will be examined at Business Outlook '85, a conference sponsored by the School of Business and the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce Friday.

Terry Maris, assistant dean and director of the business school, said various speakers at the conference will give business forecasts for 1985.

In addition, he said, speakers will discuss the possible affects on the economy pending the outcome of the November presidential election.

Speakers for the conference will include Lester Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce; Robert Mandeville, director of the bureau of the budget for the State of Illinois; and Donald Moriarty, senior vice president of General Bancshares in St. Louis.

"These people have expert opinions in the field," Maris added. "They will be able to talk about and answer questions on subjects that could affect everyone's life."

He said he encourages all students, faculty and staff to attend the conference because of the general knowledge that can be obtained.

"Small business owners, tax payers and students who are anticipating entering the job market will be affected by the state of the economy," he said. "The knowledge that can be gained by attending is very valuable."

Martin Owens, executive vice president of the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce, agreed with Maris, saying, the "program will give everyone a chance to meet with and hear from people with the background to forecast business for 1985."

Maris said the seminar is scheduled for 1 to 4 p.m. in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room.

He added there will be a $5 registration fee for Eastern students, faculty and staff members. All others interested in attending the sessions will have to pay a $15 registration fee.

Seminar to honor outstanding teachers

by Lisa Vazzi
 "To do anything well, you have to find someone who is doing something well"—Robert Saltmarsh

Educational Psychology instructor Robert Saltmarsh said this was his principle when he started the Great Teachers Seminar in 1978.

He said his intentions are the same as Eastern prepares for the Ninth Annual Great Teachers Seminar scheduled Thursday.

Saltmarsh said at the beginning of the fall semester, he asked his educational psychology students to identify a teacher from their high school who had a meaningful, educational effect on them and their future.

From these recommendations, 10 teachers have been invited to Eastern for a question-answer session conducted by the students, he said.

The sessions give the students a chance to ask the veteran teachers questions about their methods and allows them to recognize outstanding teaching abilities, he added.

Senior Renee Rumble, who was one student to nominate a teacher, said the purpose of the student interviews is to "find out the strategies of what makes them good teachers."

She said she nominated her high school home economics teacher because the teacher not only made a lasting impression on her, but also influenced her decision to attend Eastern and majoring in home economics.

Dave DeChene, who is a great teacher nominee from Nokomis High School, said he believes the key factor of his success in teaching might be his enthusiasm about what he's doing.

He added he was "quite pleased" with his nomination and is "looking forward" to attending the seminar.

Opel Kelly, Newton High School nominee, said she has been told her standards are high in conducting classes, but she said she only provides "simply what the students should be learning."

Diane Slack, a nominee from Iroquois West High School, said her respect for teenagers and discipline are important qualities in her teaching.

The seminar is scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room.

just make another office for a ticket to run for in the spring."

Student Body President Joe Butler said recently he had not spoken to Rives about the petition and noted, "Until he makes a decision, we really can't do anything about it."

Rives has requested that the senate elect CAA representatives at the beginning of fall semesters.

In late September, the petition was sent to Rives for his consideration. And, calling the CAA "our most important student-faculty board," Rives said he would take his time making the decision he announced Thursday.

Stressing the sensitivity of the CAA petition, Rives said, "Everything I want to say, is said," in his letter to the university.

gate receipts:

Johnson said another possible avenue for obtaining additional funds would be to increase the annual fund drive goal of the Panther Club.

He said the goal could be increased by "a bit because the club can't raise $130,000" in additional monies.

The other alternative, Johnson noted, would be to hike ticket prices.

Johnson said he's "not sure increasing ticket prices is something to do next fall."

However, students will face ticket price increases for football and basketball games during the 1985-86 season, despite the outcome of the referendum vote.

Currently, Johnson does not anticipate any additional increase in either student, faculty-staff or general public ticket prices. "It is a little early to tell" because budgets and estimated gate receipts are made in the spring.

Johnson's request for the athletic referendum was approved by the Student Senate at its Oct. 17 meeting. The question on the ballot will read, "Are you in favor of a $7 per semester increase for each student in the athletic operations fee?"

If the referendum is passed, students will be paying about $130,000 in additional athletic fees, which represents a 40 percent increase in student fee support.

investigated.

"You can't just say we're going to do it. There's got to be a lot of research done," Taber said.

Faculty senate members have suggested that because no other state-funded university requires tuition and fees to be paid five weeks early, Eastern's recruitment efforts could suffer from the current tuition payment program.

West Virginia favored by 2

by Associated Press

Penn State's Nittany Lions hope to extend their NCAA record for non-losing seasons to 46 years Saturday when they visit West Virginia.

Over the years, West Virginia has helped Penn's success. The Mountaineers have not beaten the Nittany Lions since 1955.

Surprisingly, West Virginia is a 2-point favorite with its 6-1 record to Penn State's 5-2, the home field advantage and the Mountaineers' 21-20 victory over previously unbeaten Boston College last week.

"We've never played well against them since we've become a good team," says WVU Coach Don Nehlen. "When we were a bad team, we played well against them because they thought we were lousy."

"Now they know we're good and it's a different ballgame. We have to take Penn State's best shot."

One of college football's longest stretches of futility may come to an end... West Virginia 21-14.

Last week's prediction record was 44 right and 11 wrong for a percentage of .800; for the season, 281-97-9—.743. Against the spread, last week's score was 20-16-1—.556; on the year, 112-107-4—.511.

Panther linebacker Tyrone Covington (No. 33) and defensive lineman Randy Harms (No. 77) tackle an opposing running back during a recent Panther football game. Covington is sure to set the all-time school record for tackles in one season currently held by Bill Mines with 128 set in 1982. (News photo by Frank Polich)

Covington having top year en route to a school record

by Jeff Long

For someone who didn't even know what the game of football was all about until high school, Eastern All-American linebacker Tyrone Covington has made tremendous strides.

Saturday, when the Panthers travel to Southwest Missouri, Covington should become Eastern's single season record holder in total tackles, surpassing Bill Mines' record of 128 set in 1982.

But, that feat is just one of Covington's many accomplishments since coming to Eastern from Morgan Park High School as an unheralded freshman in 1981.

"Football was just something I wanted to do," Covington says now. "I came from a rough neighborhood and didn't know what football was to begin with, until I went out my freshman year in high school."

While at Morgan Park, however, Covington attracted little attention from college scouts, due mainly to the fact that the Mustangs had a miserable team.

"Eastern was the only school that would give me the opportunity to play and that was a partial scholarship," he said. "I never got any offers from anywhere else."

It is clear that Eastern picked up a lot more than just an above average linebacker. An Associated Press Honorable Mention All-American and All-Mid-Continent Conference pick, Covington will earn his fourth letter this year, and just recently set Eastern's single game record for tackles with an unprecedented total of 25.

"Cov is as durable a linebacker as you'll ever want to find," said head coach Al Molde, who has coached Covington the last two years. "He plays every down of every game and his presence means a whole lot to our defense. He truly deserves his All-American rating."

In those two years Molde has coached Covington, he has come to rely on the 5-11, 210 senior as the team's defensive anchor. Last year, Covington recorded a team-high 99 tackles despite missing one game, and this year he is on a record setting pace.

"I really don't think about the records," he admits, "but instead I just take it one game at a time. Records take a pattern, but I don't worry about them. For me it's just a term of survival."

This season has been a case of survival for Covington, although his statistics wouldn't indicate so. He has played with injury most of the season, with heavy bandages and padding on his arms, not to mention numerous minor injuries.

By linebacker standards, Covington admits he does lack size. To combat this, he puts in a lot of time at the weightroom, and it certainly has paid dividends. Covington currently bench presses upwards of 400 pounds.

"My overall strength is the only thing that keeps me competitive," he modestly states. "I have to line up and take on guys that are a lot bigger than me, so I do lots of follow up in lifting weights."

One thing he doesn't have to work on is his knack for always knowing where the ball is, something he admits is not taught.

"It's an instinctive thing," he says. "Any linebacker must have that instinct to get to the ball and all the linebackers at Eastern have it. But it's not something I think about—I just do it."

"He's the glue that holds our defense together," Molde said. "His experience and instinct allow him to read plays very well and he covers a lot of ground out there."

Covington's performance on and off the field has led to his being named as one of the team's co-captains, although he admits it's a distinction he remains uncomfortable with.

"I've always been laid back and didn't like the leader role," he says. "This year I've been somewhat pushed into trying to uphold that role. To me, leaders aren't the rah-rah type who slap people on the head and all that. I lead in a different role and that is to set by example."

As for his professional aspirations after Eastern, Covington is less than optimistic, although he hasn't ruled out that option completely.

"The professional ranks were not made for me in the first place," he admits. "I haven't based my sights on it anyway. Linebackers in the pros are big guys, and at my size, I'm not a professional linebacker. For me, a shot at the pros is very rare."

"I'd like to get into coaching," he continued, "preferably back in Chicago at Morgan Park."

White's play may earn him a start over Hogeboom

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas Coach Tom Landry decided Tuesday to wait and see how Gary Hogeboom throws with a bruised hand before he decides whether to change quarterbacks for Sunday's National Football League game against the Indianapolis Colts.

Veteran Danny White, replaced by Hogeboom as the starter when the season began, came off the bench Sunday night to rally Dallas from a 27-6 deficit to a 30-27 overtime victory against the New Orleans Saints. White has replaced Hogeboom in the last three games.

"I haven't made plans because I want to see how Gary's hand is," said Landry. "I'm not sure what I will do."

Hogeboom hurt his hand during linebacker Dennis Winston's 41-yard touchdown interception return that stretched the Saint lead to 27-6. He said later that it hurt so much he couldn't grip the football.

The Cowboy players were off Tuesday and Hogeboom won't try to throw until at least Wednesday.

"If I went to White it would not be a reflection on what I think Gary's future is," Landry said at his weekly press luncheon. "I'm still trying to build a team for the future."

Landry added, however, "I've said I would put Danny in if I thought he could win. Danny played well and earned everybody's respect, but I'm still looking at my options."

Dallas compiled a 5-3 record in the first half of the season with Hogeboom as the starter and White as a reliever. The Cowboys are tied for the lead in the NFC East with Washington and St. Louis.

Hogeboom has had three interceptions returned for touchdowns and only thrown four scoring passes.

Landry admitted that the Cowboys were not where he wanted them at the midpoint of the NFL season.

"We're still a longshot for the playoffs," Landry said. "We've lost three games in our division, and that's going to make it difficult to catch St. Louis and Washington."

Landry said Dallas would have to improve its passing game and defense to make the playoffs for the 18th time in the last 19 years.

"We need a more explosive passing game and we haven't stopped the run for the last three weeks," Landry said.

Landry refused to blame middle linebacker Bob Breunig for the defensive breakdown although he has been credited with just two solo tackles in two games.

"Nothing drastic is wrong," Landry said. "We're just giving up too many big plays. I think Breunig is playing good."

Booters get shut out

The Eastern Illinois soccer team's four-game winning streak ended Wednesday night when the Panthers lost to the University of Evansville 2-0.

Both of Evansville's goals were scored in the first half of play. Goals by Peter Massat on a penalty kick and Peter Gestrich gave the Purple Aces the win.

The Panthers record now moves to 8-5-1 with three games remaining in the regular season.

Panther coach Cizo Mosnia declined to comment Wednesday night on the Panther loss.
