BOG to meet; chancellor job to be decided

By JULIE CAMBRIA-BRECHBILL
Administration editor

The Board of Governors will take action on a controversial change in its executive organizational structure during its Thursday meeting at Western Illinois University.

Under the change, all BOG presidents will report and be responsible to a chancellor. Currently, the president of each BOG school, which includes Eastern, Northeastern, Western, Chicago State and Governors State, reports only to the board.

In early September the BOG approved by a 5-3 vote an ad hoc committee's recommendation to reorganize the BOG executive structure.

Committee chairman D. Ray Wilson believes the reorganization will make the BOG "more effective."

"In short, the proposal which the committee had advanced strengthens the basic delegation of authority and responsibility to the chancellor and the presidents," Wilson said.

"This structure will permit the board to do a better job in managing its universities," he said.

BOG Executive Director Tom Layzell said he believes the restructuring will make the system more cohesive and unified which, in turn, could make it more effective in dealing with the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the General Assembly.

"The chancellor is clearly identified as the chief spokesperson for the board," Layzell told the Daily Eastern News last month. "That, in itself, will promote some unity."

However several presidents from BOG schools have expressed their concern over the reorganization.

Eastern President Stanley Rives has said he believes a chancellor may weaken the president's access to the board.

"To have a chancellor is one thing. If we were changing just the name, I wouldn't be opposed to that," Rives said.

"The institution may lose that direct access to the board. I have to oppose anything which limits direct access of the institution to the governing board," he said.

Western President Leslie Malpass has also voiced concern over losing direct access.

"I prefer to have the presidents report directly to the board rather than through a chancellor," Malpass said.

Governors State President Leo Goodman-Malamuth said he believes any restructuring of the board should protect the president's authority on some of their encounters with apparitions and ghosts. The couple have been investigating supernatural occurrences for over 35 years.

Ed Warren, left, and his wife Lorraine answer questions Wednesday night after they presented a slideshow in the Union Grand Ballroom depicting

'Ghost bustin'

America's 'top' hunters spook EIU

Ed and Lorraine Warren love a good ghost story.

And Wednesday night they told lots of them to a standing-room-only crowd in the Grand Ballroom.

As the lights in the room dimmed and eerie music began to play, the crowd quieted and listened to an introductory slide-show presented by the Warrens, who bill themselves as "America's Top Ghost Hunters."

"Tonight we will bring you proof," Ed Warren told the crowd. The proof, consisting of about 35 slides depicting various apparitions and rooms, in houses the Warrens declared to be haunted, turned topsy-turvy by the various forces present.

In addition, the Warrens played a tape they recorded in England. The voices on the tape, the Warrens claim, are the demonic voices of two spirits named Connie and Fred.

Ed recited the dialogue that occurred with the demons and then played the garbled tape portraying the cockney accents of the voices he claimed came from thin air.

Before the tape was played, he warned audience members not to record it for their own safety.

However, he assured the audience that in the Ballroom, in his presence, they were safe.

While the Warrens brought the slides from their personal collection of supernatural and preternatural phenomena, many members of the audience remained skeptical about the legitimacy of the couple's tales.

Patti Carberry said she did not believe what the Warrens had to offer. "I don't buy her ESP stuff. I just don't believe in her psychic powers."

Carberry was not the only audience member who did not trust the credibility of the Warren's research. Robert Williams said he believed the entire presentation was a hoax. "They're only doing this to raise money for their families. If he is so powerful, how can he call up demons and not get burned by them."

"All they had were a bunch of pictures that looked like they were taken from tabloids and not credible publications like Time or Newsweek," Williams added.

Although most people did not fully believe the presentation the Warrens presented, others were convinced.

Floyd Akins, Eastern's student body president, said he believed the presentation was credible. "It was very interesting. I believe in spirits," Akins said.

However, he added that the Warrens should have brought more proof than the slides they showed.

The Warrens, who make a living from their lecture series and books (UB paid them $1,300 for the two and a half hour lecture), said they will talk to "anyone, anytime about the experiences they have had," to help warn the public of the evil and demonic nature of some forces.

Throughout the show the Warrens discussed terms such as "physic cold," "demonic confusion," "phantomania," and "devil fire."

The Warrens, who have been "ghostbusters" for over 40 years, believe they are protected from the evil spirits by Jesus Christ and a legion of angels.

For those who may be skeptical the Warrens ask that the skeptic provide proof that the phenomena do not exist. Then, he said, they will prove that they do.

Some of this proof, Ed said, exists in the form of a film that was made of a Catholic exorcism in May. Ed noted that he and his wife are trying to get the television networks to show the film but have had no luck.

The Warrens did not show the film Wednesday.

U.S. workers run up trip bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Department and U.S. Information Agency employees ran up tabs totaling $556,232 on luxury cruise ships like the Queen Elizabeth II in a recent three-year period, congressional investigators said Wednesday.

Had commercial airlines been used instead, the 102 trips between the United States and overseas assignments would have cost taxpayers $160,047 and possibly less, the General Accounting Office told the House Government Operations legislation and national security subcommittee.

Benefits rise due to inflation

Company says no to Farrakhan

CHICAGO—Johnson Products Co., concerned that a link with Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan could trigger accusations of anti-Semitism, has dropped plans to manufacture household and beauty products for a black economic enterprise he helped create.

"We knew we could not offend our distribution channels," Johnson spokeswoman Dorothy McConner said Wednesday.

The decision was made after distributors for Chicago's largest publicly-held black-operated company expressed concern about controversial statements made by Farrakhan, Mrs. McConner said.

Al Wellington, chief strategist for the New Jersey-based program involved in the Farrakhan-backed enterprise, People Organized and Working for Economic Rebirth, said Wednesday that Johnson's withdrawal wasn't a major setback for POWER.

Local UAW workers still striking

BELVIDERE—Employees of the Chrysler Corp. plant here will vote Sunday in a tentative agreement in a week-old international walkout, but local issues may keep them from returning to work even if they accept the proposed contract.

The 4,000 Chrysler employees, represented by the United Auto Workers, remained on strike in this northern Illinois community Wednesday over the local contract issue.

"We've got our pickets and everything up," said Bill Campbell, financial secretary of UAW local 1268. "We're trying to get information out of Detroit on the tentative agreement."

Robert Dunlavy, a strike coordinator for the local, said that because the Belvidere local hasn't settled all of its issues, the international union must decide whether local workers should return to work.

Shippers losing time and money

CHICAGO—Across the world's largest freshwater shipping lanes the wait is on.

Tons of dried milk and other food for Africa's hungry wait on the docks. So does a chemical plant for India. And grain. Millions of bushels of it for much of the world.

Shippers are losing time and money. Longshoremen are losing pay. And, some fear, Great Lakes ports may be losing some of their appeal.

The problem: a 125 foot section of Lock 7 of the 26-mile Welland collapsed Oct. 14, blocking traffic through the St. Lawrence Seaway at the peak of the shipping season, the second major closing in 11 months.

Already, more than 1,000 workers in the United States and Canada have been laid off. Daily shipping losses are approaching $1 million. And there is damage that cannot be calculated.

"It hurts," said Stanley Blawas, operations director for the Port of Milwaukee. "The main thing a lot of people overlook is that this is going to hurt the credibility of the Great Lakes."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nations nearly 37 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 3.1 percent benefit increase in January that is the smallest raise since congress made the system inflation-proof a decade ago.

The boost will put an extra $14 a month in the check of the average retired worker, who now gets $464.

At the top, it will raise the maximum benefit for 65-year-olds retiring this year by $22 to $739 a month.

The raises, which will cost the trust funds $5.8 billion, became official Wednesday when the Labor Department released the Consumer Price Index for September. To follow two years of 3.5 percent increases, far below the torrid inflation that created a financial crisis for Social Security in the early 1980's.

Welfare benefits for 3.7 million aged, blind or disabled Supplemental Security Income recipients will also rise 3.1 percent in January.

The inflation figures from September, the end of the fiscal year, also triggered an automatic increase in the federal tax brackets, a jump in the standard deductions and a boost in the personal exemption from $1040 to $1080 for income earned in 1986 and reported on tax returns filed in 1987.

The 14 tax brackets for couples and the 15 for single people will be widened by 3.7 percent so that more income will be taxed at lower rates.

Social Security and the IRS use different variants of the CPI to make their inflation adjustments.

The IRS changes will save taxpayers money, but all workers will be paying more in Social Security taxes come January, when the payroll tax jumps from 7.05 percent to 7.15 percent.

And when Social Security benefits go up, so does the maximum amount of wages it taxes. Next year the ceiling $42,000, up from $39,600 for 1985. The maximum tax on workers will go from $2,791.80 $3,003, an increase of $211.20.

There are (.7 million workers paying the maximum in 1985 and 7.3 million are expected to earn $42,000 or more next year.

For self-employed workers, the payroll tax is climbing on January 1 from 11.8 percent to 12.3 percent. That means their maximum tax will reach $5,166 in 1986, an increase of $493.20.

Three percent inflation is the minimum trigger. If it had been lower, there would have been no Social Security increase in 1986 and no higher ceiling on taxable wages.

Social Security Administration spokesman James M. Brown said benefits will rise:

—From $464 to $478, up $14 on average for all retired workers.

—From $717 to $739, up $22 for a 65-year-old retiring in 1985 with maximum benefits.

—From $788 to $812, up $24, for the average aged couple.

Conditions made for release

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—The government said Wednesday it will free 22 jailed rebels and permit evacuation of 96 wounded guerrillas in exchange for the kidnapped daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, a friend of hers, and some abducted municipal officials.

The deal ended more than six weeks of tension that nearly paralyzed the Salvadorian government while leaders negotiated with a little-known guerrilla group.

Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, the president's chief adviser, said Duarte's daughter, Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, would be reunited with her family by Thursday. He said her friend, Ana Cecilia Villeda Sosa, 23, who was kidnapped along with Mrs. Duarte Duran on Sept. 10, also would be freed.

But he said the exchange would be "at a determined date" and would be private by mutual agreement.

Rey Prendes said the deal was made in a series of meetings held in Panama between Sunday and Tuesday. He said government officials dealt with two ranking officials of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, the Salvadorian guerrillas' umbrella organization. It has been fighting the government for five years.

A group calling itself the Pedro Pablo Castillo Front initially claimed responsibility for the abductions of the two women outside a private university where they were going to attend classes. A presidential bodyguard was killed by the kidnapers and another guard was seriously wounded.

Rey Prendes described the decision to evacuate the wounded rebels as "humanitarian" and said the government had contacted the Roman Catholic Church some time ago, apparently before the kidnapping, about sending wounded rebels out of the country.

It has permitted the evacuation of a few wounded guerrillas on previous occasions.

Officials at the government migration office were preparing passports Wednesday for the departing rebels. It was not announced which countries would receive them, although government sources said several nations have offered.

About 24 mayors and municipal secretaries are in rebel custody. Some demanded their release along with the president's daughter.

Absence plan withdrawn by senate backer

By A.L. LANDERS
Staff writer

A constitutional change proposal involving student senate's absentee policy was withdrawn by senator Terry Mueller at Wednesday's senate meeting.

The proposal, which was tabled at last week's senate meeting, would have doubled the unexcused absences senators are allowed to accumulate before being dismissed from senate.

Currently, roll call is taken before and after every senate meeting. For each roll call missed, a senator is given an unexcused absence, consequently, a senator can accumulate two absences for one meeting.

The student government constitution states that if a senator chalks up four unexcused absences, they are automatically dismissed from senate.

Mueller's proposal, if approved, would have counted each roll call missed by a senator as half an absence.

Mueller withdrew the proposal because, "It was a misunderstanding from the beginning."

"First of all, I thought it was a bylaw change," Mueller said. "I thought it (the number of absences) was for a year."

In other business, another proposed constitutional change was withdrawn.

The proposal, submitted by Board of Governor's Representative Mike Ashack, would have transferred the duties of Administrative Assistant for Collective Bargaining from the student body vice president to the BOG representative.

The transfer should take place because, "the information leading to the bargaining has been only given to the Board of Governor's representative," or so the proposal states.

The proposal also stated that as the "task is necessary every three years, I feel that this job is in effect obsolete and should be changed."

The proposal was withdrawn because, as a constitutional change, if approved, it would be required to be put before the students on the ballot of the next election.

Since the senate would not be able to vote on the proposal until next Wednesday, and the ballots are to be ordered next Monday, senate decided not to pursue the matter until after the election in case the proposal was approved and 5,500 ordered ballots not containing the proposal were rendered obsolete.

Senate Speaker Larry Markey said, "To me this is foolish, it should have been done before hand and wasn't."

Markey said the matter would be brought up again in late November after the election was over.

In other business, senator Joe O'Mera received approval to send a resolution calling for the reinstatement of fall break, to the Presidential Commission.

In addition, the senate approved several student government board appointments.

Appointed to the Council of Academic Affairs was Suzanne Murrie and to the University Board, Dennis Hanna.

Mike Kirchoff received the appointment of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Angelynn Richardson was appointed as a supreme court justice.

Student leader, South African rep disagree on divestment question

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

Realism vs. idealism.

Both sides claim they represent the first, and both say the other embraces the second.

A South African consulate spokesman and the leader of a national student protest couldn't be farther apart in their political stances.

Predicting the words of the South African consulate, Joshua Nessen said the leaders would deny that the Pretoria government will be affected more than the blacks if the wave of divestment by universities continues.

Nessen, 29, is currently serving in his eighth year as student coordinator for the American Committee for Africa in New York.

Nessen said it "has been good to see" the issues of apartheid and divestment come to the forefront of collegiate political awareness during the last two years, adding that he hopes Eastern will soon join 70 other schools in divesting.

"They wouldn't be able to justify investing in Nazi Germany, and they can't justify investing in South Africa today," he said.

But on the other side of the political coin is a member of the South African government who sees the increasing "pressuring" of his nation and its policies as uninformed, unfounded, threatening and intruding.

Johann Grobler, a spokesman for the South African consulate in Chicago, said the increased heat from groups in America—both political and economic—will actually fuel apartheid instead of ridding it.

Grobler said the "moderate" leadership of South Africa President P.W. Botha will bring about the abolishment of apartheid, but only through time.

Should "hunger, unemployment, unrest and violence" be pushed into the economy by American moves, it could place into power leaders who will take steps backward to increase separationist and apartheid policies, he said.

"It's not a question of whether the change" will come, Grobler said, but only a question of "how and when. This is what is being debated now. But the more people are pressurized to do things they know won't work, the more you drive the people into resisting change."

"The majority" wants change, he added, but "they don't want it over the dead bodies of their families."

But Nessen said the unrest will be the only way for the majority of "blacks and Coloureds" to gain representation.

While only 1 percent of the black population could be affected by divestment and other economic sanctions, Nessen said such moves would cripple the government more and Grobler said divestment would only provoke the blacks.

"The South African government claims that this is going to hurt the blacks, while they're shooting children in the streets," Nessen said. "That whole argument is an excuse for corporations to continue investing over there."

Grobler countered that if that 1 percent lost their jobs with American firms, resulting unrest would cause more problems than it would resolve.

Grobler also said divestment support from Eastern student William Murray of South Africa was uninformed.

"That person (Murray) obviously sits in America very safely and soundly 10,000 miles away from the action," Grobler said. "You should ask (Murray's) family instead of a student sitting here in luxury in America."

"I ask myself, have (the students for divestment) thought about the consequences. . . They don't give a damn about the consequences."

Grobler added that Americans are misled by "electronic media" reports which only show the "bad news. They're there for the news and the sensationalism."

Grobler went on to say 77 percent of urban South African blacks surveyed were opposed to economic sanctions—the precise opposite of an Associated Press report in September.

But there was one point that both agreed to. Grobler and Nissen agreed the other was totally in the wrong.

IBHE proposal on admissions needs scrutiny

The Council on Academic Affairs proved last week that it has the best interests of education in mind.

The CAA showed loyalty to the ideals of public education by approving a resolution opposing the Illinois Board of Higher Education's proposed state-wide admission requirements.

Editorial The IBHE proposal, which is expected to be approved at the board's meeting Nov. 5, would require high school graduates to have completed four years of English, three years each of math, social studies and laboratory science, and two years of foreign language to be admitted to colleges.

Certainly the idea behind the IBHE's proposal is to better prepare students for a career in higher education. But the CAA and Eastern President Stanley Rives have voiced concerns that the IBHE should examine carefully.

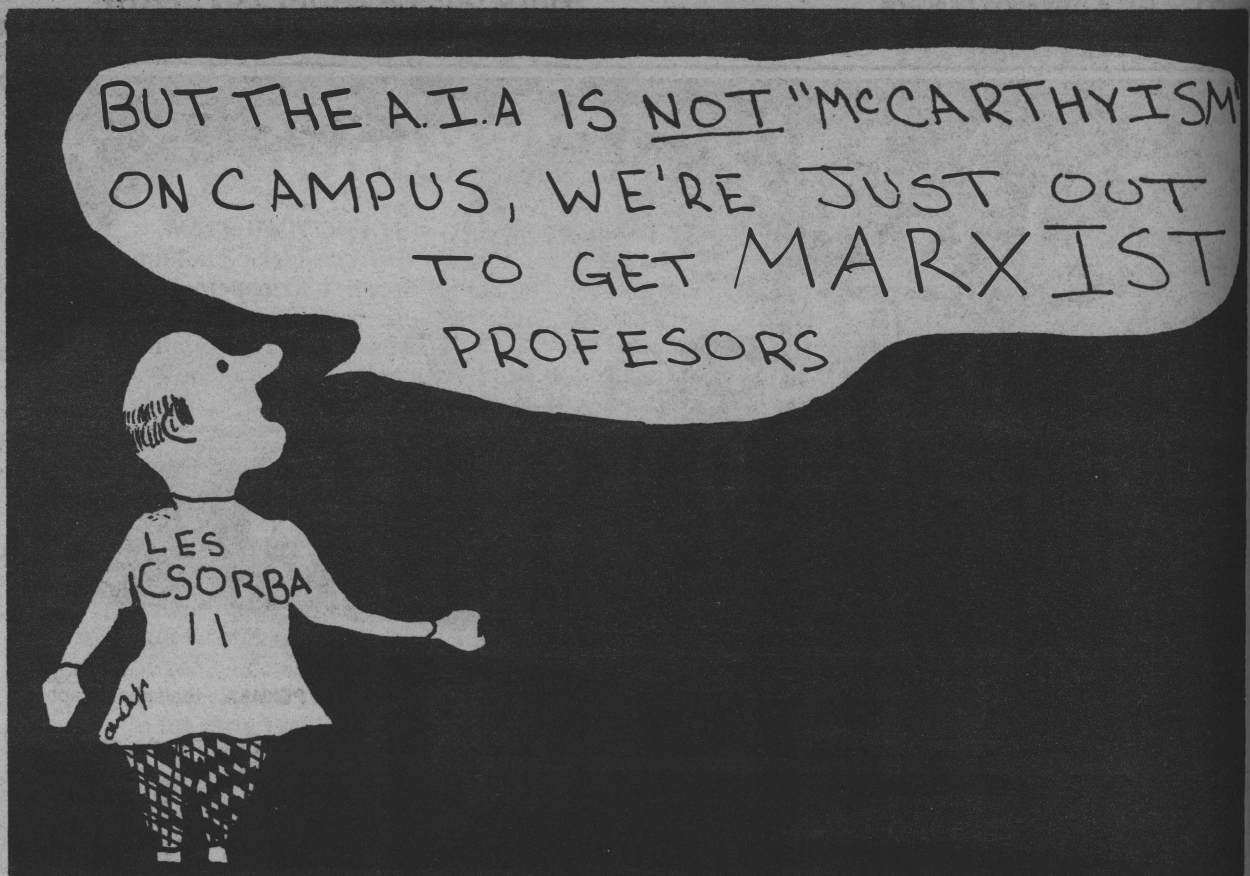

CAA members are concerned that the new IBHE standards would make obtaining college entrance more difficult for many students. Many high schools, especially in smaller, unincorporated areas or inner-cities, will have a difficult time meeting the standards established by the IBHE.

In order to provide the additional course-work for college-bound students, high schools will need more money to provide more textbooks and more instructors.

And, with Illinois public universities facing declining enrollment, particularly minority enrollment, it seems foolish to implement a program which will, in effect, simply reduce the pool of candidates.

Another problem with the IBHE proposal is the problem it creates for those students who decide too late in their high school careers that they would like to attend college. For these students, it may be too late to get in the required course-work before graduating high school.

If public education is indeed designed to provide an opportunity for all student to attend college, it seems that the IBHE may be cutting off its nose to spite its face.

Accuracy in Academia presents another 'spy' trauma for campuses

Two weeks ago, I wrote a column about communist spies taking over the University of Illinois.

Well, I goofed. It's now come out that the commie spies are not really laying siege over our universities. In fact, they apparently are not really even spying. Believe me, I am as shocked and disappointed about this as anyone.

It turns out these Soviet spies are basically going to campus libraries and reading over already-published scientific material. In other words, unless you're like me and have never been to a library, you've done about as much "spying" as these spies have.

Now, maybe I've seen too many James Bond movies, but I was under the impression that when someone is labeled a "spy" by the Pentagon, it means he has been spying, not just sitting in a library leafing through that latest issue of Omni.

Don't be too disappointed, though, because we still have a spy crisis to worry about. It's called Accuracy in Academia—but don't let the name fool you.

AIA is a branch of Accuracy in Media, the organization which claims to want unbiased news coverage but really wants a conservative slant in the news.

These organizations are right-wing setups with nice, progressive names. They operate under the image-conscience philosophy of Ronald Reagan and his murderous Nicaraguan "Freedom Fighters," and of Jerry Falwell's immoral "Moral Majority."

In politics, these comical, contradictory names are necessary. To name one's organization for what it really is would be the kiss of death.

Accuracy in Media, for example, wouldn't go over too well if it was called the "Let's-Run-Dan-Rather-Out-Of-Town-On-A-Rail Committee." As Peter O'Toole said in My Favorite Year, "A rose by any other name would wither and die."

So Accuracy in Academia is, of course, trying to stifle accuracy in academia (you're catching on now, right?).

Student spies for AIA are reportedly creeping around some 110 college campuses taking some very unusual notes in their classes. According to AIA Executive Director Les Csorba, the idea is to uncover "Marxist professors."

Off the record:

Kevin McDermott

Yet Csorba has been quoted as saying the AIA is concerned about all classroom bias, be it liberal or conservative. If that's true, then why is it that all we seem to hear from this organization is "commie this, commie that"?

I called Mr. Csorba in Washington, D.C., to ask him.

"We would definitely investigate any complaint (of classroom bias)," he said. "It doesn't matter whether it's coming from the left, right or center."

So now they are "complaints" instead of "spy reports." Okay, so how many "complaints" have you received?

"Hundreds. Over 500 calls and letters from about 110 colleges and universities."

And how many were complaining about right-wing professors?

"I've . . .uh. . .heard some issues regarding that. But not specific cases."

More than 500 complaints of political bias in the classroom, and not one of them is about conservative bias?

"It may be a public relations problem. Maybe people just don't think we're interested in that. But we are."

Of course.

I think the problem is the name. If AIA can't be honest enough to come right out and call itself "McCarthyism on Campus," it should at least find something a little more appealing than "Accuracy in Academia."

How about something like "The Completely Democratic And Objective Organization Of Teacher-Helpers," or "The Really Nice People From Washington Who Just Want To Sit In On Your Classes"?

True, those names wouldn't be too "accurate" for this organization. But then, what's in a name?

"excessive and unnecessary expense," said employees' time spent aboard ship was considered duty, not vacation, and cost taxpayers an average of $200 a day in lost productivity.

GAO also said that because of poor accounting procedures, the State Department and USIA as of last January had given people $12.3 million in advance travel payments that had not been reconciled either by refunds of unspent money to the government or documentation of actual travel expenses.

John Condayan, acting deputy assistant secretary for operations at the State Department, told the subcommittee that the department on Monday issued new travel rules to end a practice he said was used by only 2 percent of the diplomatic corps.

The new regulations, in line with GAO recommendations, permit ocean travel only for medical reasons or when an employee agrees to use vacation time and pay the difference between a cruise ship and economy airfare.

In documenting 79 cruises by State Department people and 23 by those from the USIA in the 36 months ending September 1984, GAO found 48 trips on the QE II at the average cost of $6,084, nearly four times the average airplane cost of $1,665

All but one of the QE II cruises were five-day Atlantic crossings in luxury class. The other one was a $13,761, 24-day trip for two people from Bangkok to Honolulu that the GAO says could have been made by air for $2,000.

campus matters.

"I have mixed feelings about it," he said. "If the system becomes overly bureaucratic, then it's not a good system."

Eastern's Faculty Senate also opposes the change and drafted a letter earlier this month to the BOG stating their position.

The senate believes the reorganization will weaken the president's power and reduce the degree of diversity and autonomy exercised by the universities in the BOG system.

Reagan proposes formula to resolve Soviet disputes

NEW YORK (AP)—President Reagan will propose on Thursday a new formula for U.S.-Soviet cooperation in resolving regional disputes in Afghanistan and elsewhere, U.S. officials disclosed Wednesday.

Meanwhile, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced that Reagan would meet Soviet Foreign Minister Edward A. Shevardnadze on Thursday afternoon after meeting with the leaders of five major industrialized democracies.

The officials said Reagan's proposal, to be outlined in a major foreign policy address to the United Nations, would contain a framework for U.S.-Soviet cooperation in settling civil conflicts that have torn such nations as Afghanistan, where 100,000 Soviet troops are buttressing a pro-Moscow government, and Nicaragua, which Reagan contends Soviet bloc countries are using to expand Communist influence in Central America.

Speaking on condition they not be named, the officials said the plan Reagan would outline has become the focus of U.S. negotiating aims for Reagan's summit talks Nov. 19-20 in Geneva with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Speakes, talking to reporters earlier as Reagan flew to New York for three days of talks during ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of the U.N. General Assembly, said the president would propose a major new initiative to be discussed at his summit meeting with Gorbachev.

GUESS WHO HIRED MORE PEOPLE RIGHT OUT OF COLLEGE LAST YEAR THAN ANYONE ELSE.

Hiring college grads is something the Army has always done. And lately, we've been doing a lot more of it.

In fact, last year alone nearly 7,000 college grads chose to begin their future as Army officers.

Why? Some wanted the opportunity to develop valuable leadership and management skills early in their career.

Others were impressed with the amount of responsibility we give our officers starting out. And still more liked the idea of serving their country around the world.

Interested? Then you can start preparing for the job right now, with Army ROTC.

ROTC is a college program that trains you to become an Army officer. By helping you develop your leadership and management ability.

Enrolling can benefit your immediate future, too. Through scholarships and other financial aid.

So the next time you're thinking about job possibilities, think about the one more recent college graduates chose last year than any other.

Reform Center offers assistance to abusers

This is the final of three articles during Alcohol Awareness Week on the effects of alcohol abuse, changes it creates in people's lives and help they can seek.

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant Activities editor

Seeking help for an alcohol or drug abuse problem can be frightening, but the Hour House Reform Center, 635 Division St., offers help for those in need.

Gloria Leitschuh, drug abuse coordinator at the Hour House, said the center handles referrals from Coles, Shelby, Cumberland and Douglas counties.

But she added the program still accepts other people.

The Hour House has just received a grant for a new women's program, which is in the implementation stage.

"The program focuses on the special needs a woman with an alcohol or drug problem may face," Leitschuh said.

Women may also face added responsibilities if they have children, she said. "The new women's program is designed to aid women with such problems."

Another issue related to women is the availability of prescription drugs.

"Women between the ages of 30 and 50 are made more accessive to prescription drugs which could lead to drug abuse," Leitschuh said.

Referrals to the Hour House come from a wide range of areas.

"Probation officers, the department of children and family services, family members, employers and teachers quite frequently are those who make the referrals," Leitschuh said.

The Hour House obtains referrals on Eastern students more frequently through the DUI program, Leitschuh said.

The first step in the Hour House program consists of a detoxification program, she said.

"The detoxification program is a social program."

The Hour House does not use any form of drugs but does make use of vitamins in this phase, Leitschuh said.

The detoxification program is staffed by trained professionals including a staff physician, nurse and 24 counselors.

The program usually lasts about five days.

"It's the period where the patient's system is cleaned out," she said, "It also gives the detox staff time to evaluate the patient's condition."

Blood pressure and heart rate are closely monitored in this stage in order to "clear any sign of medical emergency," she said.

The next phase is the residential program which lasts from 30 to 45 days, with each person being given a counselor, Leitschuh said.

The residential program contains group therapy, activities, daily living and principle of recovery, Leitschuh said.

There is also overall education of the drug or alcohol problem, she said.

"Most people are working through the denial stage," she said. "Usually the alcoholic is the last to know he has a problem."

Residential program activities include bowling, volleyball, household chores and Alcoholics Anonymous meetings, she said.

"The patient is not allowed outside the facility without a staff member," Leitschuh said. After progress has begun, their privileges increase.

"Weekend visiting from family members and eventually weekend passes are allowed to patients that have made substantial progress," Leitschuh explained.

The 3/4 Way is a program designed for men and women who do not believe they can go home right after the residential program.

"It is a transition period between treatments," Leitschuh said.

The patients in this program attend about 20 hours of therapy to help them prepare to return home, Leitschuh said.

However, there are stipulations to this program; a person in the 3/4 Way program must have returned to work or school, Leitschuh said.

The final stage of the program is called Aftercare. The patient is required to contact his or her private counselor once every three months, she said.

"The talk with the counselor is basically a follow-up," Leitschuh said.

But it is very common for patients to become involved in AA or Narcotics Anonymous after their recovery, she added.

The Hour House has a 50 to 60 percent success rate. Success rate is determined by the number of people who have completed the residential program, Leitschuh said.

"It is not uncommon for a patient to relapse," she said.

But a relapse is not always bad. "The second time around the patient may take the program more seriously," Leitschuh said.

The Hour House charges about $95 a day during the residential program, Leitschuh said.

Compared to a hospital which normally charges $5,000 for a 28-day period, this is not expensive, she said. "Some people spend that much a day on their habit."

Although there is a charge for services, "no one is denied entry into the program," Leitschuh said.

Low attendance marks forum

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Less than 10 people attended the forum sponsored by the Order of Omega as part of Alcohol Awareness Week Wednesday night in the Union Subway.

Although there was such a small turnout for the alcohol seminar which featured local law enforcement officers, most of the activities planned went on as scheduled.

Assistant States Attorney Janet Winterblack explained the first offender program to the interested group members.

Winterblack, in explaining the first offender program, said those convicted on DUI charges for the first time are placed on supervision for two years.

DUI's can end up costing a person as much as $1,000, in addition to alcohol education classes, Winterblack said.

Judge Ashton Waller, along with Eastern police officer Miller, and Charleston Assistant Police Chief Herb Steidinger, went through the DUI process step by step.

Miller explained that when someone is pulled over and suspected of being under the influence of alcohol, they are given a series of sobriety tests.

The first of the series is the eye test. A light beam is shone in the person's eyes, and if the eye does not move in smooth motion at a certain angle, intoxication is suspected, Miller explained.

The second test is what Miller called the "Walk-N-Turn." "The person must take 9 steps, turn, and walk 9 steps back," he said.

The third test is being able to hold the foot a few feet off the ground for a period of time without faltering, Miller explained.

The final test is touching the finger to the nose in a slow and precise movement, Miller said.

If the person fails these field tests, they are advised that they are "under the arrest for the influence of alcohol," Miller said.

The vehicle may be searched for evidence and then towed from the site, Miller said.

The person is then taken to Charleston police station where he is issued a citation, Miller said.

The defendant is then either placed in the county jail or posts bond, Miller said.

Waller explained the proceedings of a court arraignment.

"The judge explains the nature of the offense and possible penalties," Waller said.

The defendant is then informed of his rights under the law of Illinois, Waller said. "The rights are: to hire a lawyer, to be allowed a public defender, to plead not guilty, to ask for a jury trial and to ask for trial by judge," Waller explained.

Steidinger told the group that conviction rate in Charleston for DUI is 96 percent.

The movie, "Know When to Say When", was shown to the group. The film which lasted 25 minutes contained tips on how to drink responsibly.

Talent show planned Thursday in Subway

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

A talent contest sponsored by the Order of Omega will be held in the Union Subway at 8 p.m. Thursday as part of Alcohol Awareness Week.

The talent contest will be accompanied by half-price mocktails, which are cocktails without alcohol, said Mary Rivard, promotions coordinator for Alcohol Awareness Week.

Winners will receive a plaque, Rivard said.

Registration for the contest will be held until the contest begins, and walk-in talent will be welcomed, she said.

So far, seven people, ranging from guitarists to comedians, have registered for the contest, she said.

A D.J. will play dance music following the contest. There also will be no cover charge for the evening.

Police discuss, sell new DUI law to 'aware' group

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Sargent Wayne McCoy explained changes in DUI laws Wednesday as part of Alcohol Awareness Week activities to a small group in the Union.

"We compared the number of alcohol related fatalities in car accidents to the number of people who died in Vietnam and found it equal," he said.

With these findings, the police began to "sell" the idea of changing the law to the public, McCoy said.

"We had a lot of help from groups such as MADD (mothers against drunk driving), SADD (students against drunk driving) and TADD (truckers against drunk driving)," he said.

"The voters make the laws," McCoy said. With laws becoming increasingly strict, the voters are speaking out.

"Each person must take their own responsibility, this is the first step to permanent change," McCoy said.

McCoy said changes have also occurred in the DUI test.

The police department now has a new test that is conducted with a light beam, he said.

"The beam is shone in the eye of the person and observed closely as the eye follows the beam."

At a certain point, the eye will begin to twitch, which is a sign of being under the influence, he said.

Other changes include the blood, breath and urine test, McCoy said.

Royals swing heavier lumber; Cards hold lead

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Kansas City Royals have outhit, outslugged, outscored, outpitched and outrun the St. Louis Cardinals.

Yet, going into Game 4 of the 82nd World Series Wednesday night, the Royals trailed two games to one in the best-of-seven showdown.

"We very easily could be down 0-3," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said, and the facts bore him out.

Through the first three games of the Series, the Royals had a team batting average of .286, compared with the .198 of the Cardinals.

Of the Royals' 28 hits, nine were for extra bases, including the only home run of this Series. Eleven of the hits, including the homer by Frank White, came in the 6-1 victory in Game 3 Tuesday night. The Cardinals, on the other hand, had 19 base hits, including seven for extra bases, all doubles. The Royals had 40 total bases; the Cardinals had 26.

With their six runs in Game 3, the Royals totaled nine runs for the Series to eight for the Cards.

"The key, in my estimation, is that those first two games were even closer than the scored indicated (3-1 and 4-2 St. Louis victories)," Royals Manager Dick Howser said. "It doesn't matter that we've outhit them. I think George Brett said it best when he said we played two pretty good ball games in Kansas City and we were still down 0-2."

With Bret Saberhagen's six-hitter in Game 3, the Royals had a team earned run average of 2.67.

Cards' McGee receives awards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Sporting News has selected St. Louis Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee and New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly as the 1985 major league players of the year.

The Sporting News, based in St. Louis, also selected Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets as National League pitcher of the year and Bret Saberhagen, who pitched the Kansas City Royals to a 6-1 victory in Game 3 of the World Series Tuesday night, as pitcher of the year in the American League.

Cardinals outfielder Vince Coleman, who stole 110 bases this season, was named the The Sporting News rookie of the year in the National League, while infielder Ozzie Guillen of the Chicago White Sox won the American League rookie award.

Donzell Jones, one of Eastern's top cross country runners, leads the pack during the Panther's Alumni Invitational meet in September. Presently, Jones has failed to appear at practice this week and Panther assistant coach Tom Akers and teammates said he may have quit the team.

drastically.
 "It will take a little bit away from our depth," Akers said. "From the quality of runners we have left, though, it's not going to hurt us that much."
 With the main concern facing the cross country team right now being who to take to the conference meet, Akers hopes the loss of Jones will not affect the team.

 Only seven runners plus one alternate can be taken to the meet, and there are at least 11 possibilities according to Akers.
 "Things are still looking good for us," Akers said. "We can't let this affect us. . .we have to keep a good mental attitude."

Top harrier Jones apparently quits; absent from drills

By JOHN STROUD
Staff writer

Eastern's men's cross country team suffered a blow Tuesday when freshman Donzell Jones, who has been the team's No. 1 runner in several meets this season, apparently quit the team.

Jones did not show up for practice on Tuesday and assistant coach Tom Akers hasn't been able to reach him at his campus residence since then.

"I talked with him (Jones) on Tuesday morning and I thought we had things worked out," Akers said. "When he left he said, 'OK coach, I'll see you this afternoon at practice.'

"It's not that he just quit the team, but he may have quit school as well," Akers said. "All I hear is rumors from the team. We feel he may have already left for home."

Jones was unable to be reached for comment by either Akers or The Daily Eastern News. A call to Jones' home in Chicago Heights revealed that he would be returning home on Friday, according to his mother.

"I think it was not so much the team as it was school. He may have been struggling a bit with his grades," Akers said of the reason for Jones quitting the team. "We were going to contact his instructors then sit down and talk some concrete facts."

There was some speculation among team members and the coaches that he may return home and run for the College of DuPage, a community college near his home town.

"If he does drop out (of Eastern), I hope that's the route he takes," Akers said.

With the Association of Mid-Continent Universities Championship less than two weeks away, Akers believed the loss of Jones won't hurt the team (See TOP, page 14)

Spikers topple St. Francis; slow start plagues Panthers

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Slow starts are nothing new to Eastern's volleyball team of late. But, fortunately for the Panthers, they regrouped in time to notch a four-game win over St. Francis Wednesday in Lantz Gym.

"It's (slow start) definitely a problem," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said. "And it must be improved on in the immediate future—starting tomorrow in practice."

Eastern took the non-conference match 11-15, 15-11, 15-4 and 15-8.

The win lifted the Panthers' record to 14-10. St. Francis, who lost to Gateway Conference-member Bradley Tuesday, fell to 19-23.

St. Francis, an NAIA school in Joliet, broke out to a 3-1 lead in game one before Eastern roared back to stake an 11-5 advantage:

But then a problem that has hampered the Panthers of late took over.

"We've got to learn to push through to 15 points," Ralston said. "It's going to cost us."

And cost it did, as St. Francis battled back to tie things at 11-11. What's more is the Saints didn't quit at 11, but continued all the way to a 15-11 victory.

Game two looked to be a repeat of the match opener. Eastern broke out to a 13-4 lead, only to see St. Francis mount a comeback that pulled the Saints within reach at 13-10.

Ralston, however, wasn't about to sit and watch a re-run of game one. The third-year Panther coach called a time-out to get things straight with her team.

"I told them they had five points to do something or I was going to the bench," Ralston said.

Following a kill by St. Francis middle hitter Julie Kruger to cut the lead to 13-11, Eastern regrouped and went on to take the contest 15-11.

Following that win, Ralston juggled the Panther line-up for game three by starting freshmen Gianna Galanti, Gina Knoke and LeAnn Thomas along with regular starters Maura LeFevour and Lori Berger.

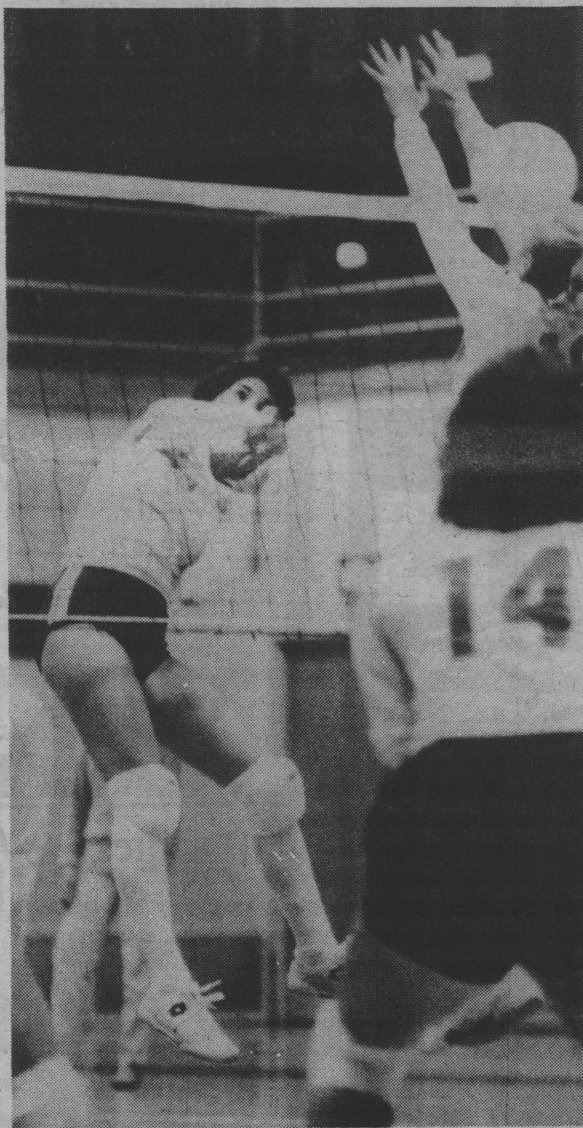

The different line-up seemed to pump fresh blood into Eastern as the Panthers cruised to a 15-4 victory to take a 2-1 lead in the match.

However, sluggish play again hurt the Panthers in game four. After building a 12-3 lead, Eastern again was plagued by inconsistent play that resulted in St. Francis rallying to cut the lead to 12-8.

Fortunately for the Panthers, they still had enough in them to gain the final three points and take a 15-8 win and the match victory.

"I really have no idea (on why we're having these problems)," Ralston said. "I don't have any clues.

"It's never the same thing. (On the) key points in the match, they have to wake up."

Eastern hit .237 for the match, while St. Francis hit just .125.

Knoke was the bright spot in the Panthers' hitting with a .500 percentage. The freshman registered eight kills in 14 attempts.

"Gina is an excellent back row player," Ralston said. "She has problems in the front row on the left side because she's left-handed, and when they're setting her they forget that."

Senior Judy Planos collected seven kills and a .286 hitting percentage despite seeing limited action due to a sore back.

Eastern returns to Gateway action Friday with a home match against Indiana State at 7:30 p.m. in Lantz Gym.

Tudor KO's K.C.; Cards up by two

ST. LOUIS (AP)—John Tudor pitched a five-hitter and the St. Louis Cardinals showed unusual power, defeating the Kansas City Royals 3-0 Wednesday night to move within one victory of their second World Series championship in four years.

The Cardinals, with an offense built on speed and line drives, scored two of their runs on solo homers by Tito Landrum, the substitute who is hitting .400 for the Series, and Willie McGee, the typical St. Louis effort, scoring on a triple by Terry Pendleton and a full-count suicide squeeze bunt by Tom Nieto.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-seven Series and left the Royals in a hole from which only five other teams have recovered, the last being the 1979 Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals can wrap it up Thursday night, when they will send right-hander Bob Forsch, 9-6, a

• Royals outslugging; but Cardinals winning two-time loser in St. Louis' seven-game Series victory over Milwaukee in 1982, against left-hander Danny Jackson, 14-12, and the loser of Game 1.

The left-handed Tudor, 21-8 during the season and 3-1 in the postseason, was virtually untouchable in his best postseason outing of the year. He struck out eight, walked one and allowed four singles and a double.

He never really was in trouble until the seventh when the Royals loaded the bases with two out on a pair of singles and a walk. But Tudor got out of it when pinch-hitter Hal McRae swung on a pitch low and away and grounded into a forceout at third. Tudor had the first World Series shutout since Scott McGregor of Baltimore beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 in Game 5 of the 1983 classic.

While the Cardinals' offensive effort resembled something less than all-out warfare, it was a marked contrast to the first three games, in which they batted .198 as a team with little run-scoring efficiency. The entire Series, in fact, had been marked by a decided lack of power, with the Royals' Frank White hitting the first homer in Game 3 Tuesday night.

Landrum, filling in for injured rookie base-stealing star Vince Coleman, homered off Royals left-hander Bud Black in the second inning. McGee hit one off Black in the third, and the surprise squeeze came in the fifth as the Cardinals made the most of their opportunities.

If the Cardinals should go on to win the Series in five games, they would be the third consecutive team to do so. The Orioles won in five over Philadelphia in 1983, and Detroit did it to San Diego last year.
