The two were participating in the Haiti Connection in which Girdwain was a member of a first world nation while Cohenour was starving in his third world nation. Later that evening students shared their personal experiences in a third world nation.

Hunger banquet shows students how hunger feels

By Brooke Johnson
Staff writer

About 40 students who gathered at Andrews Hall Tuesday evening got a glimpse into the problem of world hunger at the annual Hunger Banquet.

The event, sponsored by the Haiti Connection and the Andrews Hall Council was designed to re-create the reality of hunger in the world for one night.

The people attending the banquet were divided into separate groups, representing the first, second, and third world countries.

The students representing the first class were seated at an elaborate table and served a three course meal, while the second class were seated at tables aside from the rest and given a more modest meal of rice and beans. However, the students designated to the third class were forced to sit on the floor and were given nothing but rice and water.

Some of the students from the first class were kind enough to share their food with the lower classes, while others chose not to.

Joe Emmerich, a senior accounting major, found this to be typical of the way the world responds to the problem of hunger, saying that "People who work their way into the upper class often forget what it's like to be hungry, while others keep giving back."

Other students were surprised at how it felt to be denied food, while watching others be given plenty to eat. Cary Winsauer, a freshman communication disorders and sciences major, said it was a humbling experience.

"It was kind of pitiful how grateful I felt when they finally gave me food," she said.

Ray Lanham, advisor for the Haiti Connection, helped organize the event and said the purpose of the banquet was to "give the experience of hunger as it really exists" and make students think about making a difference.

Lanham said simply giving food to the poor is not always the best answer.

"When it comes to famine, we need to feed people, but when it comes to chronic persistent hunger, we need to teach people to feed themselves," she said.

All of the money donated at the banquet will go directly to Haiti, which is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere.

Faculty election winners announced

By Meghan McMahon
Administration editor

The Faculty Senate Tuesday announced the results of the faculty elections held last week.

Bonnie Irwin, Faculty Senate vice chair and chair of the elections committee, said 244 valid ballots were counted and the count at the end of the elections Thursday was incorrect because there were invalid ballots and ineligible voters.

In 1998 248 Unit A faculty members voted in the elections, in 1997 221 faculty members voted and in 1995 267 eligible voters cast ballots in the election.

In the Faculty Senate election, five candidates were selected to begin terms starting in the fall. The five winning candidates are James Tidwell, current Faculty Senate chair and journalism professor, with 119 votes; John Best, current faculty senate member and psychology professor, with 136 votes; associate history professor Bailey Young with 125 votes; associate zoology professor Bud Fischer with 122 votes and Reed Benedict, associate professor of sociology and anthropology, with 124 votes. Six candidates ran for the five available seats.

In the Council on Academic Affairs voting, the elected candidates include Janet Cosby, associate professor of anthropology and sociology, with 108 votes; biological sciences professor Andrew Methven with 108 votes and associate English professor Tim Shonk with 103 votes. All three candidates were elected to the at-large seats. Five people ran for the positions.

In the Council on Teacher Education elections, associate geology professor Kathy Bower, received 22 write-in votes to win the seat for the College of Sciences; Deborah Wolf, associate professor of physical education received 35 votes to represent the College of Education and Professional Studies and Lillian Greathouse, associate professor of business education received six write-in votes to represent the College of Business and Applied Sciences.

Associate history professor Newton Key received 42 votes to represent the College of Arts and Humanities on the Council on Graduate Studies. Other newly elected representatives for the Council on Graduate Studies are associate zoology professor Charles Costa who received 39 votes from the College of Sciences and Linda Reven, associate professor of early childhood development, elementary and middle level education who received 19 votes from the College of Education and Professional Studies.

Registration blocked if not slated to take writing comp exam

By Laura Irvine
Campus editor

Students with at least 75 semester hours of credit will have their registration for summer and fall 1999 courses blocked if they have not registered to take the writing competency exam.

The Council on Academic Affairs passed a resolution Nov. 7, 1996 to put the registration blocks into effect with the fall 1998 catalog.

Debra Hopgood, acting director of academic testing and assessment, said the changes were made because many students put off signing up for the exam, which is a graduation requirement for students seeking a bachelor's degree.

"It was done to try and help students not get to their senior year and not have taken the exam," she said. "Students can find out early if they are having difficulty passing the exam."

Hopgood said there is a 10 percent failure rate for the exam, which is offered five times per year - twice in the fall, twice in the spring and once in the summer.

She said students who are entering the semester under the 1998-1999 calendar will be affected by the changes.

Students with more than 45 semester hours and who have completed ENG 1001 and 1002 are eligible to take the exam.

Hopgood said students do not have to take the exam prior to registering for summer or fall semester

Driver survives after train drags car

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Shrieking with fear, a young woman whose car was being dragged by a freight train frantically used her cellular phone to call her mother and 911.

"Mom! Mom! I need help," 20-year-old Amber Scott screamed.

But the battery on the phone was cutting in and out, and she couldn't be sure if she was actually talking to her mom or the answering machine.

She called 911 and screamed: "I'm being dragged ... by a train! Oh, please help!"

But, unsure whether she was being understood over the roar of the Conrail freight

20-year-old calls 911 from cell-phone going at 30 mph, Ms. Scott hunkered down in her seat, afraid the car might roll over.

"I just waited," she said. "I prayed the whole time."

In seven terrifying minutes, Scott's car was dragged four miles before it apparently hit a railroad sign and was knocked loose from the train.

She suffered little more than a concussion, a sore back and bumps and bruises.

"I feel like it was a miracle," Scott said.

Sheriff's Maj. Ron Richardson said: "She was very, very lucky."

Scott had been headed to classes at Ball State University in Muncie when she was rear-ended by a pickup truck and pushed under a middle car of the moving train. Conrail spokesman Ron Hildebrand said the crew couldn't see Scott and didn't know a car had become trapped.

She said she thought briefly about trying to roll out her passenger-side door but decided against it when she saw how fast the train was going. Two 17-year-old boys who knew Scott from high school heard the commotion from the wreck and followed the trail of debris, eventually finding a bleeding Ms. Scott standing near her mangled car.

"It looked like the person that was in it should have been dead," said one of the teens, Mike Imel.

They called Scott's mother, who immediately went to find her daughter.

"You know there had to be arms around her," Patricia Scott said. "There has to be a plan."

The pickup's driver was cited for having no insurance.

Jury awards $81 million in smoking case

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — In the biggest liability verdict ever against the tobacco industry, a jury ordered Philip Morris to pay $81 million Tuesday to the family of a man who died of lung cancer after smoking Marlboros for four decades.

The victory by the wife and children of Jesse Williams was the second major hit against Philip Morris this year. A San Francisco jury awarded $51.5 million last month to a Marlboro smoker who has inoperable lung cancer.

The jury, which found Williams and the company to be equally negligent, awarded $1.6 million in compensatory damages and $79.5 million in punitive damages.

Oregon's product liability laws require a plaintiff to be no more than 50 percent at fault to win damages.

Although no smoking liability verdict against the tobacco industry has survived on appeal, Wall Street analysts had been watching the Portland case closely to see if huge damage awards against Big Tobacco were now a trend.

"It will make the stocks go down," said Gary Black, an industry analyst with the New York brokerage firm Sanford C. Bernstein & Co.

Elimination Committee are assistant music professor Christopher Smith who received 37 votes from the College of Arts and Humanities and economics professor Minh Dao who received 63 votes from the College of Sciences.

In the Admissions Appeal Review Committee election, communication disorders professor Mary Anne Hanner received 67 votes to represent the College of Sciences and Ed Marlow, professor of management and marketing received 13 votes to represent the College of Business and Applied Sciences.

Associate physics professor Steven Daniel received 42 votes to represent the College of Sciences on the Council on University Planning and Budget and Gloria Leitschuh, associate professor in the counseling department received 26 votes to represent the College of Education and Professional Studies.

Assistant chemistry professor Dan Sheeran received 63 votes to represent the College of Sciences on the Enrollment Management Advisory Committee and special education professor Kathlene Shank received 24 votes to represent the College of Education and Professional Studies.

In the Sanctions and Terminations Hearing Committee election, English professor Anne Zahlan received 22 write-in votes and will fill an at-large seat; psychology professor John Best received 64 votes and will represent the College of Sciences and Lankford Walker, associate professor of accounting and finance received two write-in votes and will represent the College of Business and Applied Sciences.

Bob Jorstad, professor of geology and geography, received 22 write-in votes to fill an at-large seat on the University Personnel Committee. Karen Taylor, associate professor of foreign languages, received 40 votes and will represent the College of Arts and Humanities for a three-year term. Associate music professor David Hobbs received 34 votes to represent the College of Arts and Humanities for a one-year term. Lola Dudley, professor of accounting and finance received 15 write-in votes to represent the College of Business and Applied Sciences and Rebecca Cook, associate professor of special education received 14 write-in votes to represent the College of Education and Professional Studies.

Irwin said she would like to meet with the elections committee to decide whether parameter needs to be placed on write-in votes.

"I do think there have been enough questions that we need to discuss it," she said.

In other business, Faculty Senate members Ron Gholson and Irwin were selected to serve on the search committee for the dean of the Graduate School.

Teshome Abebe, vice president for academic affairs, said after the meeting the search for a dean of the graduate school will begin in the fall.

Tidwell said after the meeting that the search for the director of campus recreation has been canceled because there is no longer money available to pay for the position.

Shirley Stewart, associate vice president for business affairs, made the decision not to fill the position when Dave Dutler retires later this year.

classes, they just have to be signed up to take it. However, she said students who sign up for the exam before they register for classes but then do not take the exam will have their registration for the next semester blocked.

Hopgood said although students may not like the changes, they were made with students in mind.

"It was done to help students," she said.

Students who want to sign up for the writing competency exam can do so from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday in Blair Hall. There is no limit on how many times students can take the exam.

Bar temporary loses license

Cougill decides to close Marty's April 22 to 25

By Christy Kilgore
City editor

Charleston Liquor Commissioner Dan Cougill ruled Monday that Marty's will temporarily lose its liquor license and pay a fine for violating state and city liquor ordinances.

Marty's will lose its liquor license from Monday, April 22 to Thursday April 25, unless it is appealed by the Illinois State Liquor Control Commissioner. They also were ordered to pay a $1,000 fine.

The charges against Marty's, 1666 Fourth St., stated they allowed three underage people to enter the licensed establishment and allowed the sale of alcohol to two underage persons on Sep. 26.

The charges against Mother's, 506 Monroe Ave., stating they allowed a minor to frequent a licensed establishment, were dismissed by Cougill at the hearing.

Steve Ryan, the attorney representing Marty's and Mother's, contended the counts, saying the minors allowed into Marty's had used false identification. Those contentions were not strong enough for a dismissal of the charges based on the testimony of the minors and doormen working at Marty's that night.

Ryan, during the course of the hearing, addressed the issue of "pass-through's," a procedure in which one person enters the bar using false identification and gives his or her false identification to someone over 21 to hold.

Dave Kinniard, manager of Marty's, said he believes this is becoming the preferred method of underage bar entry because of the penalties for being caught with a false ID.

Proof of a reasonable reliance upon a false ID card is the only affirmative defense currently accepted under city code.

The charges against Mother's were dropped because of the questionable credibility of those who testified, including the doorman and the minor who allegedly entered Mother's in October.

Cougill said in a notice of decision, it is true the minor was in Mother's but "his inability to recall his friend's name who allegedly helped him enter the bar brings doubt to his credibility."

Kevin Niehaus, junior computer management major, walks past Marty's Tuesday afternoon. Marty's will be shut down for four days resulting from charges of allowing underage people to enter and serving to minors.

Spring break is rewarding for students

Volunteer Eastern students help less fortunate families

By Mercedes Sowder
Staff writer

Students from all over the country, willing to lend a helpful hand, had a unique spring break vacation this year.

Eastern students who volunteered for Habitat for Humanity International visited Battle Creek, Mich. and Omaha, Neb. to help less fortunate families by building them new houses.

This year students enrolled in Habitat's Collegiate Challenge have pledged to raise more than $700,000 to build these houses.

Brian Erickson, senior special education major, volunteered in this program and also was a site leader in Michigan.

"I was responsible for getting the people in my group to their destinations to do their work," he said.

Erickson said he has been participating in Habitat for Humanity for five and a half years and became interested because he enjoys construction work and likes to help those less fortunate than him.

"The lady we had (to build the house for) had three kids," he said. "She was there and actually worked with us. It was nice to know who we were helping."

Frances Nelms, a freshman early childhood education major, also volunteers for Habitat for Humanity and went to Nebraska in March.

Nelms said the trip was not only enjoyable because of the people they were helping, but because she also had fun.

"We went to the zoo, Boystown, Market Street and we even went out dancing one night," she said. "I would definitely do it again. It was a very good experience and a great way to save money on a spring break trip."

"The group really bonded and everyone got involved and helped. I think we all came away with a sense of accomplishment," she said.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian organization whose purpose is to eliminate poverty housing worldwide, a press release said.

The organization was founded in 1976 and has currently built more than 70,000 houses that have sheltered 350,000 people all over the nation, the release said.

Habitat for Humanity welcomes new volunteers at any time. For further information or to participate in any of its programs, call (912) 924-6935.

Man accused in fatal hit-and-run incident pleads innocent

By Christy Kilgore
City editor

The man accused of January's fatal hit-and-run accident in Charleston pleaded innocent Monday to charges relating to the incident.

John R. Warner, 23, of Lerna, is accused of being the driver in a fatal hit-and-run accident that killed Stephen A. Grigsby, 22, of Bloomingdale, in the 1300 block of Fourth Street late Jan. 16 or early Jan. 17.

Warner, who is currently free on bond, was scheduled for trial July 13 on charges of failure to report an accident with involving personal injury or death. He reported the accident on Jan. 18 and allegedly told Charleston Police officers he was the driver of the car involved. He said at the time he wanted to consult an attorney before turning himself in. In February a grand jury indicted him of charges stemming from the accident.

There are two counts filed against

Warner, both accusing him of failing to report an accident within an hour of its taking place.

The charge surrounding the death of Mr. Grigsby carries a prison sentence of three to 14 years upon conviction and the charge surrounding injuries sustained by Eastern student Elena M. Garza, 20, of Chicago, could carry a prison term of between one and three years. Probation is also a possibility for either charge.

Mr. Grigsby, Garza and two other students were struck from behind while walking in front of 1316 Fourth St. Garza was treated and released from Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Systems the morning of Jan. 17.

Shuttle discussion

The Student Senate tonight will discuss whether to recommend an increase to the existing $2.50 shuttle bus fee.

The increase, which would typically have gone through the tuition and fee review committee, will go directly to the Student Senate.

Although students voted on the original fee, they will not have a say in the increase, except through the Student Senate.

The proposal states that the fee be raised to $5 per semester per student. According to Student Senate bylaws, all fee increase proposals must be tabled for one week before a vote is taken. Senate members will use this week to talk to students and Recognized Student Organizations to find out student opinions.

If the fee increase is passed by the Student Senate, it will be forwarded to Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs. After he reviews the proposal it will go on to Eastern President Carol Surles who will present it to Eastern's Board of Trustees.

Panther Express

The Student Senate should not vote for the doubling of the shuttle bus fee increase.

Although Shuttle Bus Coordinator Jeremy Ruppel said he thinks students have the final say, the final vote will actually be made by the BOT.

Ruppel said, "When all is said and done, students will have the final decision on what goes on here at Eastern."

Because students do not get to vote on this issue, it is important Student Senate and Board of Trustees members listen carefully to their feedback. That is the only way students will have a voice on the issue.

The senate should vote not to double the fee to $5 per semester. This service is one that is not widely used and appreciated by Eastern students.

A small percentage of students actually ride the bus on a regular basis. Students do not need to pay for another fee increase, especially for a service they don't really use.

The Student Senate should look into other avenues of funding the Panther Express or remove it from service, and students can go back to walking across the small campus as they did before the bus.

Portfolios assess skills more efficiently

After a month of sweating it out and wondering what kind of beastly exam would be waiting for me, I walked in to take the dreaded Writing Competency Exam. But oh, not to worry.

After taking the exam, I wholeheartedly encourage and would support the Council on Academic Affairs to replace the writing competency exam with a writing portfolio.

Currently, the writing competency exam is taken after a student has 60 semester hours of credit, including C's or better for English 1001C and 1002C, or the substitution. Students are given a "common knowledge topic" and are asked to write about it "in complete sentences with good punctuation." Not to mention, a passing grade on the exam is required by all students to be eligible for graduation.

I took the exam Saturday, for the first (and last) time, a mere six weeks before the date I am scheduled to graduate from this fine institution. And I have not a fear in the world that I did not pass the exam. I would be surprised if anyone failed the exam, but I must admit, I think I may have had an unfair advantage, being the news editor for the Daily Eastern News, not because I write frequently, but because one of the essay questions involved a fictional search for a new vice president for student affairs.

The question required the test-takers to compose a letter to the chair of the search committee telling the chair what qualities the search committee should be looking for in a candidate for the position.

I don't believe many students know or fully understand what the requirements and job responsibilities of a vice president for student affairs are. So how could they realistically be able to write a letter explaining to someone else what to do?

Justin Kmitch
News editor

"After taking the exam, I do not believe the exam was an appropriate way to measure anyone's writing skills and abilities."

The second essay question was much more tester-friendly as it asked for the students to write a letter to the local legislator explaining why they were either in support of or against the state's decision to discontinue artistic and athletic scholarships for college students. And the 50-question objective section also seemed fairly easy, but I'm sure there were a few trick questions I missed.

And now, after taking the exam, I do not believe the exam was an appropriate way to measure anyone's writing skills and abilities. That is why I think the idea of a writing portfolio is a wonderful one.

At the Feb. 25 CAA meeting, Linda Calendrillo, director of writing across the curriculum, presented the idea to CAA members and said campus groups have been trying to change the writing assessment plan for several years.

The writing portfolio, for which students would be required to submit four writing samples during their time at Eastern, would then be used to assess students' writing abilities.

If ever implemented, the portfolio would replace the exam. This means students would then be able to choose their best work from either a two or four-year span and submit them for analysis. This gives the students the best chance for them to be satisfied with the work they submit and also allows them to watch how their writing has progressed.

So members of the CAA, please do not sweep this proposal under the rug, as I believe it is a much better way to critique our skills. It also would let us sleep in a little while longer on any given Saturday.

UPI offers stability; vote yes to retain union

I urge the faculty of Eastern to vote to retain the UPI as the faculty union and negotiating agent. I write as a faculty member who has served in the UPI-EIU successively as chair of the membership committee, vice president, president and member of the first negotiating team. I subsequently served as chair of the speech communication department. I have been a member of the faculty for 29 years.

As one who grew up in the South, which is and certainly was at that time non-union (if not anti-union), it was not easy for me to join the union at Eastern. However, after experiencing the reality of Eastern's situation without a union and the way higher education is organized and supported in Illinois, I came to the conclusion that

Your turn

Letters to the editor

Eastern had to have a union. Thus I joined in 1973 and have been a member since, except for a stint as chair of my department.

I will be voting to retain the UPI for the following reasons:

■ I remember how the tenure vote was conducted before the union contract – secret ballot by the tenured faculty with no reasons given for a negative vote.

■ I remember how the raises were determined before the union contract – the administration allotted a number of units (representing $5) to the department with a set amount to go for base increase to each faculty member and the rest to be decided by the department personnel committee. Newer faculty members did not fare well under this system because they generally did not have much clout the first few years and the reasoning went if they left for another position or were not granted tenure, that money was "lost to the department." While there may have been variations of the administrative model over the years, it was unpredictable, arbitrary and unilateral.

■ I remember how grievances were handled before the union contract – no contractual grievance procedure, due process, set time schedule, faculty grievance officer, etc.

For these reasons and many more, I will cast my vote to retain the UPI as the faculty union and faculty negotiating agent.

Friday is deadline for RSO nominees

Nominations can be placed in the Union Student Activity Center

By Chris Sievers
Student government editor

Recognized Student Organizations interested in submitting nominations for the annual RSO banquet must have the nominations in by 4 p.m. Friday. RSO's can turn in nominations to the Student Activity Center located on the second floor of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Victoria Markley, coordinator of the RSO banquet and student vice president for student affairs, said many awards will be given to students involved in leadership roles.

"(The RSO banquet) is sure to be a huge success," she said. "I hope many organizations apply for the awards."

Awards will be given in two categories; organizational awards and individual awards.

Organizational awards include: Campus recognition award, co-sponsorship in programming, most creative marketing or promotional campaign, most improved organization, most creative philanthropy, most cost effective program, outstanding community recognition, outstanding cultural program and outstanding education program.

Organizational awards also include: outstanding new organization, outstanding new program, outstanding organization of the year, outstanding program of the year, outstanding service and school spirit award.

Individual awards include: outstanding adviser award, most promising freshman leader, most promising sophomore leader, most promising junior leader and Lou Hencken award for leadership.

Student Senate to discuss fee increase

By Chris Sievers
Student government editor

Student Senate members Wednesday will discuss a $2.50 fee increase to cover costs of operating the current shuttle bus.

Senate members will meet at 7 p.m. in the Arcola/Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Speaker of the Senate Bill Gruen said the proposal will raise the shuttle bus fee to $5 a semester which will cover the operating cost for next year.

In other business, senate members will discuss a motion that will change the procedure for write-in candidates for the spring Student Government elections.

The motion will only require a write-in voter to write in on the ballot. The only requirement to cast a write-in vote is to spell the write-in candidate's name correctly, Gruen said.

Currently, a write-in candidate must file a nomination petition and a grade release form to be initialed by the Director of Eligibility and Registration.

Write-in petitions are to be made available seven days prior to the elections and must be filed by 4 p.m. the Monday preceding the elections.

A motion also will be discussed to change the way candidates are punished for violating election rules.

The proposed motion states that no returning members to Student Government, the Student Government adviser and the Executive Director of Elections Commission will determine the severity of the violations and sanctions to be imposed on candidates in question.

Currently the Judicial Affairs Board is in charge of handling the sanctions against candidates in question.

CAA not to meet this Wednesday

The Council on Academic Affairs will not meet this week because of a lack of business.

CAA Chair Bill Addison said there will not be a meeting this week because there were no items on the agenda for discussion and there was only one item to be put on the agenda for week's next meeting.

He said that item can be put on the agenda at the next meeting because it is not an item that needs immediate attention.

"There were no items for discussion basically," Addison said.

MCAA offers scholarship

By Erin Signall
Staff writer

The Multiple Sclerosis Association of America (MSAA) is sponsoring a nationwide essay contest for high school and college students with a chance to win a $5,000 scholarship.

The national competition, called PROJECT: Learn MS, is in its sixth year and was originated to help educate students about the crippling disease MS, which affects young adults.

The essay must contain 500-1000 words on how multiple sclerosis affects the individual and his or her family on a daily basis.

It must be typed and double-spaced and can take the form of a letter, feature story, or poem.

"PROJECT: Learn MS is a great way for students to receive a scholarship, while learning about a disease that affects so many people," said Andrea Borkowsky, assistant public relations director of MSAA.

A total of six scholarships will be awarded this year. One $5,000 scholarship and five $1,000 scholarships will be given out.

Last year more than 1,000 applicants were entered in the contest, Borkowsky said.

Only high school juniors and seniors and college freshman and sophomores are eligible for the essay competition. The essay must be postmarked no later than June 5 and winners will be contacted by late August, Borkowsky said.

MSAA is a national non-profit organization providing direct patient care programs and serves those affected by MS.

Students may obtain an application by calling 1-800-LEARNMS, or e-mailing to msaa@msaa.com.

Students play legislators

By Laura Irvine
Campus editor

A campus team whose purpose is to learn about the way Illinois state government works recently participated in its annual simulation.

The Model Illinois Government team traveled to Springfield March 3 and 4 to participate in the simulation, which involved the students playing out their assigned roles as part of the Legislature.

Chris Maley, a senior political science major and head delegate for Model Illinois Government, said he thinks being in the group is a good way to learn about government firsthand.

"We learn things that students can't learn in books," he said. "It's a very positive thing."

Maley said the 18 students who are involved in Model Illinois Government participate in a number of roles, including legislators, lobbyists, attorneys, budget analysts or journalists.

Maley said the students involved in Model

Illinois Government, which also is offered as a political science course, begin meeting in September and usually meet as much as needed to learn what they will be simulating at the capital.

He said students with any major can participate in the simulations but the main focus is politics.

"Politics involves everyone. If you want to know what the Legislature goes through, you learn and do what they do," he said. "It's very interesting and informative."

Jason Smith, a senior political science major and member of Model Illinois Government, also said he thinks being involved in the group helps individuals learn about the government.

"You learn how the government works on all levels," he said. "It's pretty interesting. I would recommend it to anyone."

About 30 other universities, colleges and community colleges also participate in Model Illinois Government.

Buczowski's rivalry with Butler baseball

After stint with Bulldogs, Eastern assistant has inside scoop for today's doubleheader

By Bill Ruthhart
Staff writer

When Eastern takes on Butler in a doubleheader today at noon, Panther assistant coach Matt Buczowski will be facing off against his alma matter for the first time.

Buczowski, who played at Butler for four years and was an assistant coach there last season, says it will feel strange facing off against former teammates and coaches.

"It's going to feel weird," Buczowski said. "I developed some pretty good relationships with those coaches and players over the years."

Buczowski said making the transition to being Eastern's assistant wasn't easy.

"It was hard at first, coming to a new town, living by myself and not knowing anyone," Buczowski said. "I left a great group of friends, and a I really consider Indianapolis my home."

"It was hard," he said of the adjustment. "But I've met some people and found my niche, and things have been good so far."

Besides adjusting to being away from home and coming to a new program, Buczowski has also had to adjust to his new role as head coach Jim Schmitz's assistant.

"Here I have a lot more respon-

Eastern pitcher Joe Giarrante fires a pitch during a game last week. The Panthers play host to Butler in a doubleheader today starting at 1 p.m.

sibility," Buczowski said. "At Butler, I was the second assistant, and I kind of followed the other assistant's lead. There I was more of a mediator between the coaches and players."

Despite the many changes, Buczowski feels being at Eastern has made it easier for him to get the most out of his players.

"At Butler, it was hard to yell and scream at someone you played with," Buczowski said. "But when I yell and scream here, it's to make our guys better."

Today's matchup will mark the first time since 1994 Eastern has taken on the Bulldogs, who are coming off an outstanding 1998 season.

"Last year they were a very good pitching team," Buczowski said of Butler. "They were seventh in the nation in ERA, but now they've lost half of their pitching staff and their best hitter from last year."

Both teams got off to a slow start, but Buczowski feels Eastern's tougher schedule will factor into the result of today's games.

"This year they've been a little slow out of the gates and have a similar record to ours," Buczowski said. "But they haven't played the competition we have."

The first-year Panther assistant feels he will have some distinct advantages in playing against his former team.

"I definitely know how to defend them and where their hitters hit the ball," Buczowski said. "I know which guys hit well and which ones don't."

For Schmitz, the strategy for today's doubleheader will be one of pitching by committee. With the conference series against Murray State starting on Friday because of the holiday, Schmitz wants to make sure all his pitchers are well rested for conference play.

According to Buczowski, Butler is a good fastball hitting team, so probable starters Andy Hoffman and Doug Steinkuehler will look to get ahead in the count against the Bulldog hitters with a variety of off-speed pitches.

Schmitz stresses how prepared his pitchers are to take the mound could make the difference in the two games.

"The key is when you play a game when you're pitching by committee, the pitchers really have to be ready," Schmitz said. "You've got to be ready to go, especially if you're only throwing one or two innings."

Schmitz has been pleased with how his starting pitching has kept the club in games early, but believes an improvement needs to be made in the team's situational hitting.

"We had a couple situations against SEMO (Southeast Missouri) with runners on third and less than two outs where we didn't score," Schmitz said. "We've gone from not hitting, to hitting, and now it's clutch hitting we need to work on."

Schmitz knows that wins during the week not only build his team's win total, but their confidence level as well.

"We went into SEMO last week feeling good after three wins," Schmitz said. "So winning during the week is always a good confidence builder."

As for Buczowski, he's had this date marked on his calendar since he arrived at Eastern.

"I've been waiting for March 31st," Buczowski said. "It's going to be weird, but I really want to get after it against them, and two wins would be sweet."

Intramural softball roundup

Men's league Sig Pi 22, Delta Chi 7

The Sig Pi's beat the Delta Chi team by a score of 22-7 and the game was halted in the bottom of the fourth inning because of the slaughter rule.

The Delta Chi's jumped out to a 7-2 lead in the top half of the second, but things would go south from there for the Delta Chi's as the Sig Pi's would go on to score twenty unanswered runs.

After the Delta Chi's went down in order in the top half of the third inning, the Sig Pi's took the lead for good when a mis-played fly ball to right field resulted in two runs and a 9-7 lead.

The game's most spectacular play came in the form of a diving grab by Sig Pi shortstop Marc Helm, who after making a diving catch to his left, fired the ball to first base to double up the runner. Helm also hit a home run in the game.

In the bottom half of the fourth inning, the Sig Pi's exploded for twelve runs. Mike Brisco drove in four runs in what looked like a bases loaded single but turned out to drive in four runs as the ball went through the centerfielder's legs.

An errant throw allowed Brisco to score from third, making the score 21-7. The game's final run came on a bases loaded walk in the bottom of the fourth capping off the scoring at 22-7.

John Velchek also hit a grand slam for the Sig Pi team and Matt Moss and Brian Newman had three hits apiece for the victors.

Women's league Alpha Phi 6, Toppers 5

With the game tied at one in the top half of the third inning, Crystal Randall singled and drove in the go-ahead run for the Alpha Phi team, making the score 2-1.

Another RBI single off the bat of Sri Mead made it 3-1 in favor of the Alpha Phi team.

In the top of the fourth inning, a single by Meg McNicholls made the score 5-1 and it looked like the game was in the bag for the Alpha Phi's.

But in the bottom half of the fourth inning, the Toppers scored twice narrowing the margin to 5-3.

The Alpha Phi team got a run back in the top of the sixth to make it 6-3, but the Topper team had one more chance in the bottom half of seventh and they almost pulled it off.

With one out in the bottom of the seventh, Krista James hit a line drive over the leftfielder's head, scoring Sarah Garrison, who had doubled earlier in the inning.

James would then score on a single, closing the gap to 6-5, but that was all they would get as the Alpha Phi team held on for the final out.

Softball team drops two Panthers drop to 0-5 on season against Southern

By Kristin Rojek
Staff writer

It could have been because of the full moon, but the softball team's home doubleheader was almost deja vu as they dropped both games 3-0, 2-1, dropping its record to 4-13.

Until the sixth inning of the second game, the Panthers had managed to hold onto their early 1-0 lead, but with the bases loaded after two Panther errors, Saluki Jen Feldmeier was sent to first on a walk by senior pitcher Stacy Siebert, sending home Andrea Harris to tie the game 1-1.

Following the walk, senior Amanda Perjenski took over at the mound for the last out. The Panthers came up empty in their half of the innings.

Three consecutive hits to center field again loaded the bases for the Salukis. Harris came through with a sacrifice fly to center to send Jaymie Cowell across home as the Salukis pulled ahead 2-1.

"Stacy pitched a tremendous game for us; she would have finished the game if it wasn't for a few bad calls at the end," Searle said. "If we play every game like we played the second game, we'd win."

"We were able to come back and hold them no matter what the situation was," Searle said. "With the bases loaded, the team was mentally tough and got out of that situation."

Eastern's Lindsay Klockenga swings through a pitch Tuesday afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader against Southern Illinois.

After three quick outs for the Salukis in the first inning off of Siebert's pitching, the Panthers pulled together to score their only run after she singled in the bottom half of the inning and was eventually driven in by Carissa Friedewald.

"We are preparing for the OVC right now," Searle said. "We did better than in any other game we've played."

Although both of Tuesday's games were played better than any of the other three against the Salukis, Searle said the nightcap was the best played game of them all.

In the first game, after Southern jumped out to a 3-0 lead, the Panthers were able to hold the Salukis off throughout the remaining three innings, but were unable to put themselves on the scoreboard.

"(Southern) has two good pitchers and we tried to hit the ball and get things generated," Searle said.

"Any time you hold your own, it's anybody's ballgame," she said.

national sports in brief

Baldwin gets starting nod for Sox

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The decision on an opening day starter for the Chicago White Sox turned out not to be much of a decision at all.

James Baldwin, whose 10-3 record in the second half last season was one of the best in the majors, will start opening day in part because left-hander Mike Sirotko is experiencing a "dead arm," manager Jerry Manuel said Tuesday. Sirotko would start the second game of the season if his arm is better.

"Mike looks like his arm is a little tired, a little fatigued, so we'd rather be cautious," Manuel said before the White Sox game against Colorado.

Sirotko was scheduled to pitch Wednesday in Chicago's exhibition home finale, but Manuel said he might be scratched to give him some extra rest.

"If we do (pitch him), it'll be a very short stint," Manuel said. "The more time we can give him, the better he'll feel."

Sirotko, who led the White Sox in victories last season with 14, probably would have beat out Baldwin for the opening day start based on their performances this spring. Baldwin, who was pitching against the Rockies, is 1-1 with a 5.40 ERA, while Sirotko is 3-0 with a 3.18 ERA.

But the White Sox don't want to take any chances with Sirotko. There have already been enough serious injuries to pitchers this spring.

"You have to be real, real careful," Manuel said. "We don't want to push him at all or rush him."

Notre Dame hires basketball coach

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Matt Doherty was hired Tuesday as basketball coach at Notre Dame with hopes the long-time Kansas assistant can return a lackluster program to national prominence.

"It's a very proud moment in my life. Everything that Notre Dame stands for represents how I try to live my life," Doherty said.

"Growing up Irish Catholic in New York, you couldn't help follow Notre Dame, football and basketball."

Terms of Doherty's five-year contract were not disclosed. He replaces John MacLeod, who resigned under pressure March 9. Doherty, 37, passed up a chance to play at Notre Dame after he was lured to North Carolina by then-Tar Heels assistant Roy Williams.

Loyal Duke fans welcome team home

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — It was supposed to be coronation day at Duke. Instead, stunned Blue Devils fans were left to cheer two record-setting basketball teams for seasons that ended in painful disappointment.

A crowd of about 3,000 mixed with bleary-eyed students and starry-eyed children gave the men a vigorous standing ovation as they entered a blue-carpeted stage set up in Cameron Indoor Stadium less than 15 hours after a 77-74 loss to Connecticut in the NCAA championship game in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The loss took some luster off a school record-tying 37 victories, an unprecedented unbeaten run through the Atlantic Coast Conference and the team's fifth Final Four appearance of the decade.

The ovation was loud but not to the usual standards of the notoriously rowdy arena.

"The saddest thing that happens to me is when you can sometimes focus on what has to happen or what doesn't happen or what didn't happen and you lose focus on what did happen," Krzyzewski told the crowd. "You're all disappointed about what didn't happen. We're disappointed. But what did happen was unbelievable."

The women's team also set a school record for victories (29), captured its second straight ACC title and reached its first Final Four by beating top-ranked Tennessee, the benchmark program of women's basketball.

About 500 fans welcomed the women's team, which lost to Purdue in the national championship game in San Jose, Calif., on Sunday.

"There were not many people who believed we could do it," Duke coach Gail Goestenkors said. "When we started 1-3, people were shaking their heads. Now a lot of people are still shaking their heads but they're wondering, 'What happened? How'd we make this turnaround?'"

Senior guard Trajan Langdon, who lost the ball on the final play of Monday's loss, led in the men's team clad, fittingly, in black warmups.

In her time at Eastern she made her way to the top of the statistics in nearly every individual basketball category.

Metcalf is the school's career leading scorer (1,865) along with boasting the highest career scoring average (15.9 ppg). She is also the career leader in steals and assists.

She also played a little bit of softball in her time at Eastern. Enough to earn the fourth spot on the career batting average list and the third spot on the stolen base list.

"I am really surprised," Metcalf said of her achievements still standing today. "At the time, I was doing my job. To this day, I couldn't tell you any totals. I was just doing what I was supposed to do. I am surprised because there are other athletes that operate the same way."

After leaving Eastern, Metcalf was not quite ready to give up her athletic career. She was a silver medalist for the 1987 United States Olympic Sports Festival team handball squad and softball team.

Even now Metcalf has trouble letting go of her sports background. She is now in charge of cardiac rehabilitation at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville.

The hospital does about 13,000 cardiac treatments a year, which Metcalf said is comparable to many larger hospitals.

She now works with diets, stress management and exercising - all things she learned about as an athlete.

"I knew I wanted to do something with physical activity," Metcalf said. "After graduate school it was just a natural progression."

Netters sweep Bradley

Men and women take different paths to victory

By Kyle Bauer

After both the men's and women's tennis teams narrowly defeated Bradley in doubles competition, the two teams headed in different directions on their way to a win.

The men split their six singles matches with the Braves and used the double's point to secure the 4-3 win.

The women left no doubt by taking all six singles matches from Bradley and cruised to a 9-0 win.

"There were some real close matches," head coach Marla Reid of the women's competition. "In doubles every match was close, but they battled back later, stepped it up and got the job done."

The women started the competition off by sweeping the doubles matches and earning three hard-fought points.

The No. 1 team of Adeline Khaw and Jill Cochran edged Bradley 9-8. The No. 3 team of Sarah Stork and Barb Wolfe followed their teammates' lead and won 8-6.

Eastern then rolled through singles competition, winning all six matches.

"They were more consistent," Reid said. "They got their focus and won every match."

Missing from Eastern's line-up was freshman Linda Stakic.

After missing two matches at Hilton Head last week, the team's No. 1 player sat out Tuesday's match with a foot injury.

Stakic will stay out of practice the rest of the week in hopes she will be ready for the Panther's first Ohio Valley Conference match Friday, Reid said.

Although the men also earned a victory and improved their record to 4-3, they had a harder time doing it.

The Panthers took 2-of-3 doubles matches and then split the singles competition.

The No. 1 team of Brad Cook and Andy Baker won 8-1, while Sargy Letuchy and Ryan VanDonselaar took a 9-7 decision.

"They got that doubles point and that makes your job much easier," Reid said. "You only have to win three singles matches then."

And three singles matches are all the Panthers would win.

Senior Brad Cook attempts to return the ball in the Panther's 4-3 win over Bradley Tuesday. The women also won, by a score of 9-0.

Cook and Baker followed up their doubles win by winning both of their singles matches. Jason Braun earned the other Panther victory.

"After doubles, they carried the momentum into singles," Reid said. "Cook won very decisively and Braun beat a young man he lost to in the fall.

It was a good win for him and a boost for his confidence."

Baker also avenged an earlier loss by beating his opponent 6-4,7-5.

"He lost to the same player in close matches," Reid said.

"To beat this kid in two sets shows his improvement."

An athlete for all ages

Kassebaum used to have heart-stopping moves; now she works on hearts

By Kyle Bauer

Her figure will stand for the ages on the Eastern campus. Literally.

Nancy Metcalf (formerly Kassebaum) is the model used to create the bronze statue that stands in front of Lantz Gymnasium, and it isn't going anywhere anytime soon.

Metcalf is one of the most successful athletes in the history of women's athletics at Eastern.

She was a two-sport athlete and a three-time Academic All-American.

After being a fourth team Academic All-American in 1982 for basketball, she made her way up to the third team in the 1983 basketball season and finally the first team in the '83 softball season.

Metcalf is the only Eastern athlete to achieve the honor three times and the only one to do it in two different sports.

Of all her achievements, Metcalf said her most treasured were the ones that came off the field.

"The academic aspect meant a lot," she said.

"Being on the road and keeping up with course work was tough."

Although the academics may be the most important, the athletic part of it will not go unnoticed.

On the basketball court, Metcalf was a three-year starter for a Panther team that won three-straight AIAA Division II state championships. She was a three-time All-State selection and a two-time All-Midwest selection.

Chump don't want no help, chump don't get no help

Jerry Reinsdorf has done it again, and this time it is not the dismantling of the Bulls that irks me. Reinsdorf has managed to destroy what was left of a decent White Sox team. The Sox come into the baseball season as one of the worst teams in all of baseball. I'll admit that the Sox were not the greatest team last season, but they played decently at the end of the season.

Amid all of the trade rumors, the Sox chose to keep productive third baseman Robin Ventura, only to let him go as a free agent. Speaking of free agents, the Sox also let Albert Belle go after spending a buttload of money on him for three seasons. Not only did the Sox blow out the salaries of all players, but now let Belle go to Baltimore, where he will hit around 65 home runs.

The Sox have recently been complete morons when it comes to the free agent market. Look at our man Jamie Navarro, the over-weight bust went 8-16 last season, with the highest ERA among American League starters. Now he is trade bait for overpaid reliever Randy Myers.

Let me get this straight - we have money for Myers but not Ventura, or Scottie Pippen, sorry let's just stick with baseball.

Reinsdorf has failed to sign any decent free agents for the team this year - as the saying goes, "Chump don't want no help, chump don't get no help."

So the team has to go with what it currently has.

The Sox's new promotion is "The Kids Can Play." Well, they are going to have to. The average age of the starting lineup is younger than that of Charleston's favorite underage dance club which shall remain nameless. In fact, Navarro and Frank Thomas are the only White Sox players that were not born in the 1970's.

This just in, Mike Sirotko may be the opening day starter for the club. This is the same Mike Sirotko who was 14-15 last season with a 5.06 ERA. That ERA is good enough to be the ace pitcher for IUPUI or Chicago State.

Another potential ace is 27-year-old James Baldwin. He emerged last season as a quality starter with a 13-6 record. His 5.32 ERA makes him fit right in with the staff however.

The rest of the staff are just young pups out of the minors, and are just happy to be there. They will be susceptible to getting rocked this season. The combination of young pitchers and young catchers breed a formula for more scoring than Bill Clinton.

The lineup in the field is also extremely young for a major league team. My favorite pastime this season will be calculating the average distance Mike Caruso is short and long on his throws to first base. The 21-year-old shortstop recorded 35 errors in the field last season, and the word from spring training is that he can top that total this year.

The one problem the Sox did not have last season was scoring runs, in fact they led the Central Division in runs scored. But a lot of their punch was lost when Ventura and Belle left.

After playing on pace to make it to Cooperstown, Frank Thomas played like a Sally last year. Thomas only hit .265 with 29 home runs. The good thing is that he can't do worse this season.

The Sox have a lot of potential on their team, but that won't come out for another couple of seasons. Hell, Ray Durham was supposed to hit 25 homers and steal 60 bases for the last three seasons....that's all potential though.

The Sox will win only around 65 games this season, but manager Jerry Manuel will still be a great mainstay for the team.

Like Tim Floyd of the Bulls, Manuel is a find, and is underrated because of the crap for a team that they've been "blessed" with. To steal a line from Cubs fans...wait till next year for the Sox.
