Paper shortage prompts cutback

by Leanna Coopridner

Due to a serious newsprint shortage the Eastern News will reduce the number of pages to eight per issue until Thanksgiving, the editor said Monday.

Eastern News editor Tom Keefe said the News has enough newsprint to finish out this week running eight pages per issue instead of the usual average of 15 1/2 pages.

The News also will cut the entertainment page and put ads on the editorial page to save space, Keefe said.

Keefe said, "Students should understand that it is not our fault. We are not doing this to make money. Either we do these steps or cease publication."

Bowater Paper has always supplied the newsprint to the News, Daniel Thornburgh, head of the journalism department said.

The purchasing department said it sent an order for more newsprint to Bowater but the company did not accept it because it did not have enough paper to fill the order.

Thornburgh said a question of where to store the paper when it came delayed the order.

Vice President for Administration and Finance George Miller said Ken Hesler, director of University Relations, was asked to look into a place where the 40 rolls of newsprint could be stored.

Hesler said the paper must be stored in a large place that has a loading dock where humidity and temperature can be controlled.

Thornburgh said John Checkley, director of purchasing, had been "most helpful in understanding the problems of purchasing newsprint."

The order went through various channels including the business department, the vice president for administration and finance's office, the university relations office and the purchasing department.

Spokesmen from all of these offices denied having caused any significant delay in forwarding the order.

The 13 issues of the News remaining before Thanksgiving will consume approximately six or seven rolls of paper, Thornburgh said.

Pressman Mark Turk said the News uses approximately 1/2 ton of paper per day.

Efforts are being made to borrow newsprint from other papers in the area, Thornburgh said. He said two papers have already agreed to loan the newsprint but that more newsprint will probably be needed to continue printing until the order of newsprint arrives.

The paper is ordered three or four times a year, Thornburgh said. The last order came in August and the current order should have arrived around the first of November.

The lack of pages will mean a decrease in the amount of advertisements in the paper. Thornburgh estimates this decrease will be around thirty percent of the News' current advertising rate.

Keefe said there would be a "lot of tough editorial decisions made" concerning what stories will go into the paper since space will be limited.

Thornburgh said this has happened once before. Then the problem was that the News used more paper than it had anticipated and the order did not come soon enough.

He added the News has never been guaranteed paper by Bowater.

The newsprint shortage is not just at the News, however. "This is a nationwide problem," Thornburgh said.

Thornburgh said, "We are taking care of the problem and will not cease publication."

No action to be taken against accounting prof

by Laura Rzepka

No formal action will be taken against accounting instructor Carl Morgan who inspected the books of students in search of a missing test on Oct. 22, Ted Ivarie, dean of the School of Business, said Monday.

Ivarie met with students enrolled in the class and held two meetings with Morgan about the situation.

"I asked the students for a response to the dilemma and they thought an apology was satisfactory," Ivarie said.

"Morgan volunteered to apologize for infringement of their rights and any inconvenience he caused them," Ivarie said.

Morgan said he "talked" to the class Wednesday about the situation but has not received any feedback from the students.

"I'm sitting in suspense. I don't know if any students are pursuing the situation," Morgan said.

Ivarie said the situation is resolved.

Junior Guner Karatekin, a member of the class, said Morgan apologized Wednesday to the class and explained why he was concerned that the test was missing.

"I didn't mean to search anyone. If you were offended, I apologize," Karatekin reported Morgan as saying.

Don Sopko, another student in the class, said Morgan apologized to students who were offended, but he never said he was wrong.

Ivarie said Morgan has developed a new method of handing out tests in the future. The exams will be numbered and each student will receive an exam as he enters the classroom, Ivarie said.

OVC to decide Eastern entrance

by Marc Pacatte

The expansion committee for the Ohio Valley Conference will meet Nov. 9 to decide whether or not to accept Eastern as a member.

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin told the Intercollegiate Athletic Board recently that even though the expansion committee will meet soon, the results of the meeting probably will not be known until December.

The expansion committee will make a recommendation to the full membership of the OVC which will vote on it at the regular December meeting.

Six of the eight OVC members must approve Eastern's admission to the conference.

Marvin said that if Eastern is accepted it will join the conference in 1982.

Marvin said Eastern is committed to the Mid-Continent Conference through the 1980-81 calendar year.

Youngstown State, Eastern's opponent this weekend, has also applied for admission to the OVC.

Marvin cited the "instability" of the MCC as one reason to join the OVC.

Most of the members of the MCC are applying for membership in other conferences, which has created a scarcity of Division II schools in the area, Marvin said.

CIA accused in Park slaying

by The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea - The assassination of President Park Chung-hee may have set the stage for a softening of the iron rule that has held down opposition in this country for years, informed political sources said Monday.

The government may have signaled its intentions by allowing publication of an opposition appeal for democratic reforms in South Korea.

But North Korea charged that the Park killing was actually aimed at preserving the "fascist regime." And the Soviet Union accused the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of having directed the death plot to protect American interests, an allegation denied by the Carter administration.

The helicopter carrier USS Blue Ridge, meanwhile, was cruising toward the South Korean port of Pusan in a demonstration of continued American support for the Seoul government. It was scheduled to arrive Tuesday.

South Korea's acting president, Choi Kyu-hah, and Cabinet ministers met in hours-long sessions behind closed doors Monday, presumably discussing the leadership crisis and possible replacements for Park.

At the Defense Ministry, top generals were reported to have begun meeting at 10 p.m., when a martial-law curfew went into effect.

No information was available on the gathering of the military chiefs, who have long been the real power base in South Korea.

Zion nuke plant closed Monday

CHICAGO — Commonwealth Edison Co. said today it has shut down a nuclear power generator at its Zion plant to check for possible cracks in nozzles which spray non-radioactive water.

A spokesman said the utility stopped Unit 2 generator Saturday after an inspection revealed the possibility of cracks in nozzles on the other generating unit at the site.

The spokesman, Jeff Kratz, said there was no radioactive danger posed by the possible cracks.

He said Unit 1 already had been stopped for refueling and is expected to be back in service later this week. Unit 2 should be back up next week, he said.

Technicians are taking radiographs, similar to X rays, of the nozzles in both units.

Kratz said other generating stations, which do not use the same kind of nozzles, compensated for the loss of power from Zion and there was no shortage of electricity.

News shorts

Drinking alcohol may help heart

CHICAGO — A beer or two, a tippie of wine, even a couple of highballs may be good for the heart even if the head throbs a bit.

So say a group of Boston doctors, although a heart specialist says he hopes people don't get carried away with the news.

Moderate consumption of beer, wine and liquor may reduce the risk of heart attack, a study of drinking habits of more than 1,100 men has shown, according to a report in the Nov. 2 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

People who drink about three beers, three glasses of wine or two highballs a day may be less likely to die of coronary disease than people who abstain from alcohol, the report says.

But an editorial printed in the Nov. 2 issue says doctors should look cautiously at the finding.

Chicago schools may face lawsuit

WASHINGTON — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare formally recommended today that the government sue the Chicago school board because of its failure to end racially segregated and overcrowded conditions in the school district.

HEW officially turned the case over to the Justice Department with the recommendation that legal action be taken to improve conditions in the schools. It said the agency's attempts to reach a negotiated settlement had failed.

Teacher recounts life in Africa

by Holly Headland

After living in Africa for more than six years and working on an environmental program for the United Nations, John Snaden is now teaching several classes at Eastern and planning an African seminar for spring.

Snaden first lived in Africa for six months in Nigeria in 1966, he said. After being caught in the Biafra civil war, Snaden left the University of Nigeria where he was teaching cartography (map making) and returned to the U.S., he said.

"The U.S. government got my family out," he said. Snaden added he had to escape on his own without help from the government, "walking or however else I could go."

Snaden taught at Western Kentucky University from 1966 to 1968 and then returned to Africa, this time to Zambia, he said. "I worked with the Ministry of World Development on the ecology of the lechwe (an antelope) in the Bangwaulu Swamp. That is where Dr. Livingston died," he said.

While working on the study of the lechwe, Snaden was also a professor at the University of Zambia, he said. He taught cartography and was an adviser for projects, he added.

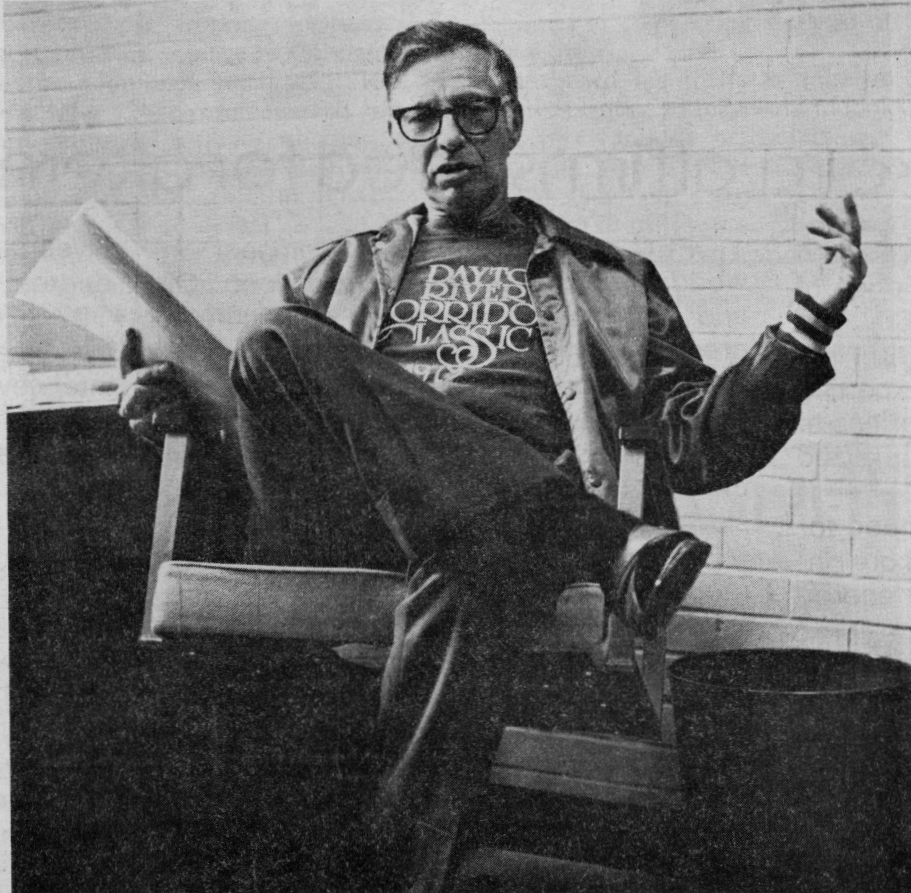

From 1970 to 1973 Snaden again taught at Western Kentucky, he said. He then returned to Africa taking the position of department head of geography at Kenyatta University College, Nairobi, Kenya, he added.

"While I was working I was also doing a study on lions and cheetahs, their habitats and ecology," Snaden said. "I did the study on my own because I was interested in it," he added.

When he was in Kenya, Snaden also helped organize the African part of the United Nations-sponsored international environmental programs, he said.

"In 1972 there was a UN meeting in Stockholm, and they decided there was a need for an international environmental program to be established. I was the professor of education (in Africa) for it," Snaden said.

It was through the World Council of Teaching Professions Conference, which was sponsored by the UN, that the need for the centers of environmental education was decided,

Geography instructor John Snaden taught and studied for six years in Africa. Snaden is now teaching at Eastern and is planning an African seminar for the spring semester. (News photo by Rich Bauer)

Snaden explained.

Snaden organized the center and its programs, some of which included pre-school children and old people, he said.

Snaden is giving a public lecture at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Science Building, Room 332, on his life in Africa, he said. It will be a general talk about Africa and his travels while he was there, Snaden said.

Snaden is planning to teach a seminar titled Vanishing African Wildlife geography 3950, he said. The class will be offered once, spring semester, and will cover many environmental aspects of Africa and its wildlife, he added.

Snaden is "looking forward" to teaching the African seminar this spring, he said. "I've never really had a chance to organize my thoughts on it," and the seminar will give him a chance, he said.

CGS will discuss grad financial aid

The Council on Graduate Studies will hold a special session Tuesday to discuss financial requests for graduate assistantships, CGS member Patrick Lenihan said Monday.

The session will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Vice President for Academic Affairs Thomas Bond's conference room. The session will replace the regular CGS meeting and will be open to all CGS members and department Chairmen.

OPEC price hike re-affirms need for alternative energy

A leading Arab economist has predicted that Saudi Arabia will increase its price of crude oil by 40 percent by 1980. The Saudis, the price trendsetter for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, can increase the possibilities of disrupting the economies of industrialized countries.

This speculation re-affirms the need for the United States to become more independent from OPEC as a major energy producer.

The industrial nations that totally depend on OPEC oil would once again have to adjust to paying higher prices for petroleum products. But the increases in higher oil prices also fuels an inflationary spiral.

Inflation, which has been a long running problem, can lead to more serious economic conditions, namely a recession or a depression.

OPEC prices have a major impact on world prices of goods and services. Oil and petroleum by-products constitute a great proportion of the basic components of Western business and products.

Price increases and other political moves by the Arabs like the first "energy crisis" in the early 70's can start an economy to slowdown.

Economist Arthur Okun said the mild recession of 1974, caused by the skyrocketing price of oil, did not break the inflationary trend. This increasing inflationary trend has a few economists speculating on the possibilities the economy will go beyond a recession into depression in the future.

Okun believed that it was possible but not probable that this could happen.

"I think as long as (inflation) is the case, there is a new dimension that can flare up to a degree. I don't think to a degree that gives us a repetition of the 30's, but to a degree that could give us a repetition of 1974-75, which is not a pleasant experience," Okun said in a Chicago Tribune interview.

World-wide concern should be made to ministers at the December meeting of OPEC's when they will decide the fate of the price of a barrel of crude oil.

The Arabs can avert a major economic collapse by moderating its pricing policies.

Also, the U.S. has to continue to develop solar, wind and water power to offset external circumstances (like OPEC prices) and the effects these circumstances have on the economy.

The best way to stabilize the economy is balancing the external problems with a country's internal solutions. Alternative energy sources are the best way to offset Arab pricing policies.

Letters to the editor

No real search

Editor,

This is a letter presenting "the other point of view" in the "search" incident that occurred in an accounting class.

As a student who was in the class (sitting directly in front of the instructor at the time the incident took place), I was very disappointed to learn about the exaggerated claims made by some students against the instructor. Those students who took the complete negative side of the issue claiming that their rights were violated, missed the whole point.

Instructor Carl Morgan did not even mention anything about searching the students. He expressed his concern about the missing test and in a very controlled, calm manner he said, "I will be the one carrying this test out of this room, not you."

He did say, "Nobody is leaving the room till the test is found" but he never mentioned about searching the students. Then a girl, on her own volition, walked up to him with her books and put them in front of him to show him she did not have the test. She had a smile on her face and did not seem offended at all for there was no reason to be offended.

Morgan obligingly looked through the books and left. Then without a single word students lined up in front of the instructor to have each of their books checked.

If the students did have a right not to be searched they gave up that right voluntarily by standing in that line without even being told so. No complaint was raised to the instructor at that time.

During the entire incident the instructor stood far away from the wide open door and had no intentions of blocking it.

The inconvenience caused by the incident as stated in the Eastern News article of October 25 was not due to any fault of Morgan who was trying to protect himself, his students and the department.

If those "inconvenienced" students need someone to point a finger at, maybe they should look among their fellow students—namely the one who took the test.

Guner Karatekin

Seat switch

Editor,

The ignorance and lack of organization shown by the athletic department on Homecoming Saturday very nearly ruined a perfectly enjoyable day for my wife, myself and two friends.

Although we had purchased reserved seat tickets for the game more than six weeks in advance of the Homecoming date, the department decided, for whatever reason, to let the queen and her family sit in our seats.

I couldn't believe it. Talk about taking paying customers for granted. Talk about callousness. It is unbelievable that someone thought they had the right to give away our seats.

It wasn't the thing to do, even if it was for the queen. I almost felt sorry for the queen because the seats weren't that good.

Fortunately, the story has a happy ending. After wrangling with a husband and wife who looked like they could appear as a tag team on all-star wrestling about who was going to sit in the seats next to where ours had been, an usher was summoned. He straightened out the mess by giving us very good seats.

That, however, is not the point. The point is that the heads of the athletic department are trying to build an empire and you can't do it by pushing around the paying customers like they don't matter.

Give me the good old days when if you wanted to be alone with your girl on a Saturday afternoon, you went to O'Brien Stadium to watch the Panthers play.

Jim Lynch

Boycott products

Editor,

As a teacher of mass media, I appreciate Bill Bukowski's sensitive comments on Saturday Night Live's vulgar jokes regarding Mother Theresa.

In our Intro to Mass Comm (Speech-Communication 2520) we try to educate our students how to deal with offensive programs. Do not write to the FCC. Your letter is merely filed with thousands like it.

The First Amendment generally precludes FCC action on program content. List the products of the sponsors. Go to a retail store where the products are sold; copy down the names and addresses of the sponsors; write a letter to each sponsor, state your objections; inform them that you are boycotting all their products and urging your friends to do the same.

As more people learn to respond to the mass media, the fare will get better. For more information, may I recommend "Media Monitor" by Joe Heumann in the Times Courier weekly.

Class conflicts

Editor,

This letter is in regard to the time limit set for conferences between transfer students and representatives from their junior/community colleges.

Dean Taber has asked that those students who received a letter concerning this matter to, "Please make a special effort to come to the Union Grand Ballroom anytime between 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The point I want to make is this, what about students who have classes at these times? Some of us cannot afford to cut classes. Why couldn't someone have set up a time in the afternoon, say, between 1:00-3:00 p.m.?

Sure, I have 20 minutes with the representative from my junior college:

How about it Dean Taber? Will you give those of us who cut classes to go an excused absence? At least one of the classes I would miss, I would need an excused absence.

How about equal time for students who enjoy their classes too much to miss them? Will this same thing happen next semester or next year, as it has happened in the past year?

Debbi Hefling

Miah inspiring

Editor,

This note is in regard to Mohammad S. Miah's column in Wednesday's issue of the Eastern News.

I thought that was one of the most inspiring things I've ever read! Mohammad expressed himself so well and the column was so well written!

I'd like to thank Mohammad for sharing his feelings with us and I'd also like to thank the Eastern News for printing it!

Carman may get more washers — BOG study

by Dru Sefton

A study is now underway which looks into an estimated $40,000 project to supply additional washers and dryers at Carman Hall.

The Board of Governors approved the study Friday which would give the hall 18 new units.

"We made a recommendation to the BOG for new washers and dryers in Carman because we feel that 12 washers and 12 dryers are not enough for 900 people," Louis Hencken, director of student housing, said.

Hencken said Andrews and Lawson halls each have 16 washers and dryers for 500 people.

"We've been working for several months to find a place in Carman to put the additional machines," Hencken said. "We even looked into constructing a separate building to house them. The assistant director of the physical plant (Martin Ignazio) finally helped us decide to add the extra washers and dryers to floors eight, nine and 10 in the women's and seven, eight and nine in the men's side. We are hoping to install the machines in the rooms which are now used for ironing."

John Grant, student representative to the BOG, said the board approved a study that would look into "the capabilities of engineering and cost of the total project.

"The board felt this was quite an expensive project, so they want to look into it very carefully before acting," Grant said. Grant added the same engineers that built Carman Hall are being called in for the study, and they will look into the plumbing and drainage systems and mechanical feasibility of the project.

The mechanical and engineering costs for the project are estimated at $40,000, Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said at a BOG meeting last week.

Creative students given chance to demonstrate their artistic talent

by Katie Broeren

Creative students and faculty gathered on the library quad Monday to prove "that anyone can draw," art department instructor Paul McDowell said.

The secondary art education class members held a "Halloween Happening" Monday stopping passer by and asking them to draw an image of Halloween on the sidewalk.

McDowell, instructor of the class, said the purpose of the project was "putting art in a place where it normally is not and getting people to draw who say that they don't know how."

A piece of candy was given to each person who drew a picture. Music was played to stimulate amateur artists and to "change the space to add to the environment," McDowell said.

Other events planned in the department are trips to Chicago and Washington this week, McDowell added.

About 15 students will attend the Art Education Association of Illinois Conference from Wednesday through Saturday. The students will be touring museums and art galleries in the Chicago area as part of the trip, McDowell said.

Other students will attend an Art Therapy Association meeting in Washington Thursday through Sunday. The meeting will consist of various speeches on "the future directions in the field of art therapy," McDowell said.

'Lovers' staged today

"The Lovers," a play written by Harold Pinter and directed by Randy Haege, will be presented in the playroom of the Fine Arts Building at 5 o'clock Tuesday.

Admission to the play is free and Haege said it will feature Peter Samuel, Kris Salamone and Chris King in the main roles.

'Lord Jim' to show

The Eastern Film Society's Tuesday movie is the English film "Lord Jim."

The film will be shown at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Booth Library lecture hall, EFS adviser Frank Stokes said.

Admission is $1.

3 Missouri schools fall to spikers

by Dan Brannan

WARRENSBURG, Mo. — Eastern's volleyball team chalked up three more victories for the season with wins over three Missouri teams at Central Missouri State on Saturday.

In the first match Eastern defeated Central Missouri State 8-15, 15-10 and 15-13.

Eastern's coach Lynette Nevins said Central was the toughest competition in the quadangular meet.

Central was rated No. 1 out of AIAW Division II teams in the state of Missouri in the latest rankings.

Eastern fell behind in the opening game 13-1, and eventually lost 15-8.

"We were not ready physically or mentally for the game," Nevins commented.

The Panthers then regrouped and won its next two games against Central 15-10 and 15-13.

"It was good for the team to get behind, because it showed us we can come from behind and win," Nevins remarked.

In the next match Eastern defeated Southeast Missouri State 15-4 and 15-3.

In the following match Eastern defeated Northwest Missouri State 15-9 and 15-8.

"We played very, very well against Northwest," Nevins said. "Our passing broke down in the first game, but we settled down in the next two games."

Nevins again credited Kathy Shoene with a good individual performance.

"Kathy served tough and put the ball through the blocks, especially in the third match," commented Nevins.

Nevins also said Maryann Siewert and Mary Martello performed well in the meet.

"Seiwert finally came around in the second and third matches, and Mary Martello hit the corners with good line shots," Nevins remarked.

Eastern will be competing in the Division II state tournament in two weeks.

Nevins said Eastern should be ranked either first or second in the tournament.

Nevins also said Lewis should be Eastern's toughest competition in the tournament.

"Lewis in a very strong team and they have won many tournaments, including the Wright State Invitational a few weeks ago," Nevins remarked.

Eastern will take a 26-2 record against Missouri-St. Louis at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at McAfee Gym.

"UMSL is a consistent team, but we have beat them twice out of the two games we played," Nevins commented.

Booters tie Quincy 0-0 in two overtime periods

by Kathy Klisares

Monday's Eastern-Quincy soccer bout totaled 24 shots, 32 saves, 20 corner kicks and two overtimes, but not one goal.

Drawing a 0-0 tie at the end of the second overtime, Eastern "should have won," coach Schellas Hyndman said. "The first half we played slow down ball and the second half we really took the game to them."

Citing poor officiating as an interfering factor, Hyndman explained, "The whole thing was just sad. It was disappointing for us and for Quincy, because it was a rough, physical game and it got out of control."

Although six yellow cards were distributed throughout the game, one in particular was crucial. Just before the end of the second half, Quincy's Brennan was issued a yellow card for unnecessary roughness and was ordered off the field by one referee who claimed it was his second offense. Brennan then reported to the other referee, who argued that it was his first offense, and he should be allowed to continue playing.

Opposition to the call from Eastern's co-captain Ross Ongaro resulted in a yellow card for him, and the Quincy player was allowed to resume his position.

"It was just bad because one ref said he was out, and the other said no. If he (Brennan) had left the field like he should have, Quincy would have played 10 players in overtime, and we would have dominated," Hyndman said.

From the Panther perspective, "I think our players played well as far as putting the ball in the goal," Hyndman said, considering Eastern's 15 shots on goal as compared to Quincy's nine.

Making 20 goalie saves for the game in contrast with Eastern's 12, nationally ranked Quincy "didn't play as well as they could have," Hyndman said. Taking on two big games back to back, Quincy lost to Evansville Sunday before traveling to Lakeside Field for Monday's game.

"They (Quincy) were tired from the day before, and that hurt them," Hyndman said. "But they still have to play UMSL and Western (Illinois) before they're through."

With Eastern's decision-making games behind them, Hyndman said, "We gave a good effort and I think we're still in the playoffs."

The Panthers will travel to Carlinville to play Blackburn College in its final regular season match at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Robin Smith leads Panther harriers to state title

by Dave Claypool

CARBONDALE—Although Eastern's women's cross country team ran what coach John Craft termed "a poor race," the women harriers were still able to capture the AIAW Division II state title Saturday.

Robin Smith led the Panther charge finishing first at 20:02 for the 5,000 meter course, 22 seconds ahead of her nearest competitor, Loyola University's Elizabeth Shack.

The Panthers, whose only team competition was Loyola, finished with 21 points while Loyola had 35.

"I expected a full team from Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville and Chicago Circle but they only brought a few runners each," Craft said. He said the result of the lack of runners was no competition.

Smith's twin sister, Ruth, finished third in the field with a time of 20:09.

Following Ruth was Panther freshman Gina Sperry, who crossed the line in fourth place at 20:48.

Linda Lomax and Sonia Olsson closed the Panther scorers finishing sixth and seventh with times of 23:01 and 23:17 respectively.

Rounding out the Eastern lineup were Irene Houdek in 10th place with a time of 24:27 and another freshman Patsy Scheer, who finished 12th at 25:31.

"We are a much better team than what the times show," Craft said. "There was no reason for it, we just didn't run well at all."

Next Saturday the women travel to Lansing, Mich. for their regional meet which will determine the teams and individuals to travel to the AIAW Division II finals.

Craft said that the top three teams and the top 15 individuals of the regional will compete in the finals.

"Of course we will be trying to qualify the entire team next week," Craft said. "But I feel that Robin has a good chance to be in the top, maybe even win it."

Craft also stated that he had been working the women hard, but would try to take it easier this week in practices.

"We're physically ready, we just have to get mentally prepared," Craft said.
