Spooky Haunted hall strikes fear into visitors

By LAURA DURNELL
 Features editor

Blood dripped from her face as she sat up, trying so hard to remove the only memory of her senior prom.

Suddenly, "Carrie" let out a piercing howl that broke through the darkness. And all around her, people flinched and shivered and stared in terror at the only survivor of the hellish 1978 prom.

This was just one of the scenes as I walked, crept and crawled through the basement of Thomas Hall for "EIU Skeleton Crew, We'll Bring Out the Stephen King in You." The Residence Hall Association's haunted house continues at 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday for $1 per person.

The doors opened as a line near the other end of Thomas Hall began to enter the transformed basement.

The tour started off with a view of "Stephen King" asleep on his couch watching various horror movies in a black room. A tour guide dressed in black with deathly colored greasepaint applied on his face, explained that our group would now, "Take a walk through Stephen King's dreams."

Various rooms contained scenes from several of King's best-selling books that were made into films. Yet when one was touring these rooms they didn't just walk through and admire the scenery.

Through leaves and amidst deranged individuals, my group was asked to crawl on hands and knees in certain places in order to make our way toward the outside.

Upon entering the Pet Sematary room, it looked like any ordinary cemetery: Until beings from behind the tombstones popped out and tried groping for visitors in front.

A month of work went into presenting the haunted house and even minutes before the vision of terror opened, members of RHA were rehearsing and adding ghoulish last minute touches.

"We started at 1:30 p.m. and finished at about 6 p.m. tonight," said Belle Walker, an RHA representative from Lawson Hall who came up with the Stephen King theme.

Shirley VonBokel, a member of RHA, said she has "a blast," scaring people toward the end of the haunted house. She scared people so much that a even little boy scout tried to fight her Tuesday.

"There was this one guy who was complaining how he wasn't scared, but then I jumped out at the end and scared him," VonBokel added. "He jumped back and screamed! It was great because he was not expecting it."

Amidst all of the screams that night, Darcy Royster, chair of the haunted house, said it wasn't difficult for them to do at all.

According to Royster, almost 300 to 400 people attended the haunted house Tuesday night, and she said she expects more Wednesday for Halloween.

Senate has more hiring questions

By CAM SIMPSON
 Senior reporter

In a surprise move Tuesday, Eastern's Faculty Senate went public with new allegations regarding what members say are questionable hiring practices in areas under Verna Armstrong, vice president for administration and finance.

Included among the new allegations are questions related to the hiring and employment of three other individuals who are or will apparently be related to Armstrong. All of the employments questioned by the senate apparently fall within areas beneath Armstrong's jurisdiction.

The allegations came on the heels of a deadline from Eastern President Stan Rives, who asked last week that senate members submit a list of all of the hirings they want investigated by Tuesday. Acting on a request from Rives, the Board of Governors, the governing body for Eastern and four other Illinois universities, is investigating allegedly unethical hiring practices in areas under Armstrong's jurisdiction.

The investigation was originally sparked by concerns surrounding the controversial hiring of Scott Walker, who is Armstrong's son. He was hired on Oct. 2 as assistant director of planning and institutional research, a post paying him $32,700 per year.

The screening, interview and hiring processes were carried out by one of Armstrong's direct subordinates, although Armstrong is said to have personally withdrawn from the process. In addition, university officials have maintained there was no wrongdoing involved in the Walker hiring.

However, senate members made clear Tuesday that the BOG investigation now will extend far beyond Walker, encompassing as many as 20 positions, according to one senate member. Senate Chair David Carpenter, however, would not publicly reveal the total number of employment decisions being questioned.

Luis Clay-Mendez, a senate member who teaches in the foreign language department, started the ball rolling Tuesday when he said the senate should continue pursuing its own investigation regardless of the BOG inquiry.

"Regardless of what the outcome of the BOG investigation is ... it is the appearance of impropriety that we should be concerned about," Clay-Mendez said. "At best, the issues involved express a lack of good judgment."

Clay-Mendez went on to question the employment of others related to Armstrong.

Carpenter then read what appeared to be a prepared statement, inviting several university officials to appear before the senate and explain the "appearance of impropriety" related to several employment decisions.

Among those decisions publicly questioned by Carpenter and other senate members Tuesday, is the hiring of Stan "Jay" Armstrong, who is Walker's brother. He works in the university's telecommunications office as student help, an office under Armstrong's jurisdiction.

Said Carpenter: "I invite Joy Robeson (head of telecommunications) to come before the senate and tell us how many students she interviewed before choosing to hire Stan 'Jay' Armstrong as a student helper in telecommunications in 1988."

Contacted late Tuesday, Robeson said, "I have not heard from him (Carpenter), and I want to know why he's asking these

Saddam preparing for urban warfare in Kuwait City

By the Associated Press

Saddam Hussein said Tuesday that Iraq was making final preparations for war and expected an attack in the next few days by the United States and its allies.

The United States has more than 200,000 troops in the gulf region and has announced plans to send at least 100,000 more. It is the largest U.S. military deployment since the Vietnam War.

Saddam summoned his military commanders to a meeting in Baghdad to complete "preparations for urban warfare and necessary measures to be taken in the event of combat in (Kuwait)," the Iraqi News Agency reported.

"We must be prepared with all that God has given us of potential to thwart perfidious intentions by the United States and its allies to launch an attack in the next few days," the report quoted Saddam as saying.

The agency did not explain why Saddam believed an attack was imminent.

While he talked of possible hostilities, his foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, struck a more cautious note. Aziz told the Iraqi News Agency that Iraq is prepared to talk with "any Arab or international party" provided it is not "prompted by premeditated hostile designs."

• Bush urged to exercise patience to prevent war with Iraq. Page 9

There was some speculation that Saddam's warning may be a propaganda ploy by Iraq to drive a wedge between the United States and those of its allies who seek to avoid hostilities.

Diplomats in the Middle East, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Saddam was reacting to statements Monday by Secretary of State James Baker.

Baker told a gathering in Los Angeles: "Let no one doubt: We will not rule out a possible use of force if Iraq continues to occupy Kuwait."

The State Department said Baker on Saturday will begin a weeklong visit to Arab and European countries to consult on future steps in the gulf. The visit will include a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Congressional leaders emerging from their meeting with Bush said they had urged the president to explore all other avenues for resolving the crisis.

Panel yields shared learning experience for men, women

By KYLA REYNOLDS
Staff writer

It was a learning experience for both men and women Tuesday night as Lawson Hall sponsored a panel discussion titled "Everything You Wanted to Ask a Man."

"Guys aren't as macho or unemotional as they appear to be," said Lawson Hall Resident Assistant Ginger Donovan following the hour-long discussion.

The program, which was held in the lobby of Lawson, had an audience of approximately 50 women who asked questions to a panel of seven men.

The panelists included Bill Unruh, a counselor from McKinney Hall; David Lindquist, editor in chief of The Daily Eastern News; Bob McKee, city editor of The Daily Eastern News; Tony DelAlcazar, a resident assistant in Taylor Hall; Ralph Stewart, a senior psychology major; Mark Monge, a member of Delta Tau Delta; and Todd Hefner, a Taylor Hall counselor.

"We had a bigger panel this year," said Michelle Martin, also an RA in Lawson. "Some of the guys I knew (from the panel) on a professional level I saw a more relaxed side of."

organized the event. All three agreed the panel was worthwhile.

"I was excited about the turnout and I think the girls asked really good questions," Donovan said. "The panel answered well also."

The men were confronted with questions on subjects that ranged from sex to how they meet girls.

"If they're attractive on the first beer, they're going to be just as attractive on the seventh," said McKee when asked if girls get prettier at closing time at the bars.

On a few instances the men answering the questions all had a majority opinion, such as not cheating on their girlfriends even if given the opportunity. The men also believed that it's not expected to kiss on the first date, but it's OK. The guys also agreed on wanting to be in the delivery room, and the pain and suffering women go through isn't quite fair.

"If I'd created man, I'd make guys go through it too," DelAlcazar said.

Even the men admitted they got a better understanding of women and relationships from the program.

"I found out what a lot of girls think," DelAlcazar said.

Monge added, "I got as many questions answered as the girls did."

questions."

Robeson confirmed that Armstrong's son did work for her in telecommunications. She then said, "The president has asked that no comments be made until the (BOG) investigation is completed, so I have no further comment at this time."

Carpenter invited several other Eastern officials to appear before the senate to discuss other employment moves, including the hiring of Walker's wife, Jane E. Walker, in the human resources office this summer.

In addition, Carpenter said he was concerned about Stan "Jay" Armstrong's fiancée working as a student employee for Richard Pyles, who is Armstrong's top assistant in administration and finance.

"I invite Richard Pyles to come before the senate and tell us how many students he interviewed before hiring Laura Robinson, Stan 'Jay' Armstrong's fiancée, as a student helper in his office."

Pyles, reached Tuesday night, also said he would prefer not to comment on the issue because of the investigation. He did say, however, that Robinson worked in his office.

But when asked if he knew whether she was Armstrong's fiancée, Pyles said, "I can't really make any other comments. These things will all be aired in the investigation, I am sure."

At the meeting, Carpenter also invited Armstrong herself to appear before the senate, saying: "I invite Verna Armstrong to come before the senate and explain to us why — when her two sons, a daughter-in-law and a prospective daughter-in-law are all employed in areas under her jurisdiction — the senate and Eastern's entire community shouldn't perceive an appearance of impropriety as emanating from the most recent appointment of her son, Scott Walker, to a $32,700-a-year administrative post."

Clay-Mendez said, "All of this points to a pattern that appears to speak of very poor judgment."

Armstrong has already said that she also would respect Rives' request that no university officials speak publicly about the hiring allegations until the BOG investigation is completed.

Senate members also questioned other issues related to Walker Tuesday, including what may have been a violation of a President's Council regulation in his 1988-89 graduate student contract.

In a story published last week in The Daily Eastern News, it was revealed that Walker was working in Eastern's physical plant while also on a graduate assistantship in the Lumpkin College of Business.

The dual employment is prohibited under the President's Council prohibition, which is included in each graduate contract. Payroll employees told the News last week that Walker did not appear on the physical plant payroll when a standard check was made during the processing of the graduate payroll.

The check is meant to insure that no graduate students are holding other university positions, according to payroll officials and Larry Williams, dean of graduate studies.

Records from the Illinois Comptroller's office confirmed that Walker disappeared from the physical plant payroll for about a one-month period in 1988 and was then reinstated after his first graduate assistant check was processed.

Senate member Bill Addison said he saw the recent Walker hiring as related to the dual employment issue of the 1988-89 school year. But he said that even if the two are viewed separately, the dual employment issue raises "serious questions" regarding Walker's current employment in the administration.

"We are recommending (to Rives) that the search be re-opened," Addison said. "And (Walker) could then reapply (for his current administrative post), and that bothers me."

CAA deadline extended for core proposals

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Managing editor

Eastern's Council on Academic Affairs was granted a nearly three-month extension Tuesday beyond its Nov. 18 deadline to consider course proposals for the new general education program.

Robert Kindrick, the vice president for academic affairs, announced the extension, which the CAA approved, at the council's Tuesday meeting.

"I believe this is an unusual year," Kindrick said. "I'm very pleased with the way this committee has gone about its deliberations."

The CAA originally requested a monthlong extension from the Nov. 18 deadline to consider all of the proposals for the new program, which takes effect in the fall of 1991. All new courses originally needed approval by the November date to make next fall's student course catalog.

However, Kindrick noted even a month's extension may not be enough time to consider all the course proposals submitted to fit into the segments of the new general education program, which was designed to abolish the cafeteria-style selection of courses students currently choose from.

The new general education program was approved in early January by Eastern President Stan Rives, raising all students' general education graduation requirements from 39 to 46 hours.

The CAA's function with the new program has been to consider and approve an integrated core of courses that emphasizes writing across the curriculum and cultural diversity and replaces the menu of courses now offered.

To meet the November deadline, the council members had been meeting twice weekly, on Tuesdays and Thursdays. However, coupled with approval for the Feb. 1 deadline, the CAA members also decided to return to its once-a-week meeting format.

"I think certainly the matter of two meetings (each week) has been on my mind," Kindrick said. "But I also know that's a burden. I think everyone is sensitive to both the pressure and exhaustion factor that can weigh on anyone's deliberations over a period of time."

CAA Chair Larry Bates retained the option of increasing the meeting frequency to twice a week, though, after CAA member Kathlene Shank raised concerns that even a Feb. 1 deadline would be difficult to meet.

Shank said reducing the CAA's meeting frequency would leave only six meetings to consider the remaining course proposals.

The CAA's remaining deliberations must include not only new course proposals, but 15 courses recently approved for the Human Behavior, Social interaction and Well-being segment of the new program.

After reviewing the courses approved for that segment, Rives responded with a letter and a request that the CAA trim the courses to 10. The CAA members decided Tuesday to appoint a committee headed by CAA member Kenneth Sutton to study the courses and make a recommendation on their fate to the rest of the council members.

That committee will decide the feasibility of clustering the courses together or perhaps leaving them as is, rather than the entire CAA revoting on the courses.

The CAA also decided to push back with the deadline its response to Rives concerning a course that would promote cultural diversity.

The course suggestion came about after the Minority Task Force issued its report on the overall state of minority affairs at Eastern.

All students would be required to take the three-hour course if the CAA members decide such a course would be in order. The members decided to respond to Rives' inquiry about the course by Feb. 1.

Also related to the Minority Task Force, the CAA discussed expanding the Affirmative Action Committee's duties to include some of the suggestions made through the task force report.

Bates said the possibility of appointing a liaison from this committee to each of the major boards and councils on campus was discussed at a recent meeting with Rives.

That move would be in contrast to appointing members who represent minority groups to each board and council.

Shank voiced concern, though, that the burden placed upon these cultural diversity committee members would be too great. In addition to attending their own meetings, they would be required to attend others', also.

Leaf burning not a problem if done right

By KIMBERLY McCLEARY
Staff writer

The arrival of the fall season brings with it cold weather, high winds, sometimes rain, but always leaves.

And since leaf burning ordinances differ from town to town and change frequently, many residents are left out in the cold as to what to do with their leaves.

"We permit leaf burning as long as there is no problem with it," said Charleston Fire Chief Tom Watson. He added the weather conditions for leaf burning have to be suitable.

According to the Charleston city ordinances, it is permissible to burn limited amounts of dry leaves as long as the material does not create an offensive odor or fire hazard.

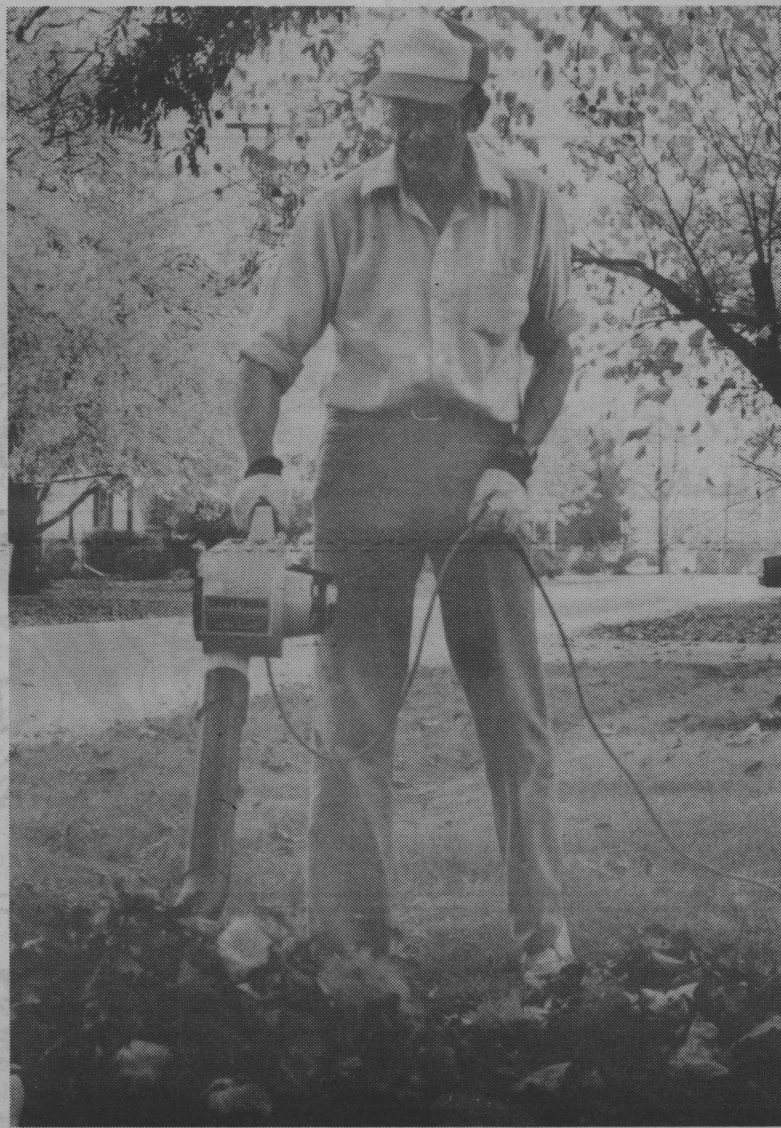

Residents are able to burn leaves on private property during daylight hours," Watson said. "It can't be on sidewalks or streets."

Watson added a small amount of wind, provide an ideal weather condition to burn leaves, as the wind helps clear smoke.

Charleston has not had many problems concerning leaf burning, Watson said. But the majority of complaints concern smoke.

However, if any serious complaints do arise, "We put the fire out or ask the owner to extinguish it," he said.

Watson added some alternatives to leaf burning include the starting of a compost pile or finding some garbage collectors who will still pick up leaves.

High school grads on downswing

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Staff writer

Glenn Williams, Eastern's vice president for student affairs, informed the Faculty Senate Tuesday that the available pool of high school graduates has reduced noticeably since 1988.

Williams distributed a copy of a page from the 1988 Joint Publication of Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education, Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association, and the College Board to the senate members. This report projects the number of annual high school graduates up to the year 2000.

The report indicates there were 125,714 high school graduates in Illinois in 1988. In one year, that figure has dropped more than 14,000 graduates to 111,278.

Williams said this means that all institutions of higher learning will be competing for a more restricted pool than ever before.

"As for Eastern," Williams said, "There are a number of things plaguing us. Some dastardly and some not so dastardly."

In addition to a lower-birth rate in the 1970s for would-be college students, Williams added that some of the direct inhibiting factors are the $25 application fee, the college readiness program that he described as four years of English, three years of social sciences, two years of math and two years of science. The fee was implemented in July and the new admissions requirements will be imposed for incoming freshmen next fall.

This fall was also the first time in 16 years that Eastern's did not close admissions early.

When asked if this upward movement in standards will eventually boost enrollment, Williams said if there were a downward movement in standards, there would be a positive short-term effect, but there would also be a negative long-term effect because of a lesser quality of student population.

"It's like if you got an A on a test and you looked around and everybody else got an A too, it would kind of take away from your success," Williams said.

Williams favors trend to alter greek rules

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

In response to the recent death of a Western Illinois University student as a result of a hazing incident, Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams has issued a statement in favor of the trend toward the modification of greek rules.

The incident involved a member of a lacrosse team, who, as a first-year player, was forced to drink an alcoholic beverage called "rookie juice." As a result of drinking the concoction, Western student Nicholas Hagen died from hindered breathing.

Williams said Eastern is fortunate that many of its greek organizations and social clubs have modified their rules to safeguard against hazing incidents.

"They've been modifying their rules for the past two or three years. It used to be wide open," Williams said.

"I think it's unfortunate (the incident) and I know no one set out to do it, but those kinds of things get out of hand. And the guy is dead and there's nothing that can be done."

Eileen Sullivan, assistant director of student activities/greek adviser, said greek organizations have been modifying their rules on a national and campus level.

"They are reversing their rules — basically shortening the pledge period," Sullivan said even the nationally historic black greek organizations have shortened their pledge periods.

Much of the change centers around the greek organizations' analysis of why the pledge period exists, she said. "The active chapters put some thought into what they do. They're looking for a reason behind what they do," Sullivan said.

Williams said the university just wants greek organizations and social clubs to be more aware of what hazing incidents — particularly those involving alcohol — can lead to.

"We're trying to alert people that things do get out of hand," Williams said although these incidents continue to occur, the trend is

They don't think it's as macho as they used to.

Glenn Williams
vice president,
Student Affairs

toward responsibility. He said the irresponsible attitudes toward alcohol no longer exists, but are being replaced within these groups.

"They don't think it's as macho as they used to," Williams said. "Even on TV, there is less drinking. It's cut down."

Members of the Eastern fraternity Sigma Tau Gamma had their chapter taken away by their national headquarters following a hazing incident in September. The hazing incident occurred Sept. 7 when a Sigma Tau Gamma pledge was found inebriated outside McAfee Gymnasium. He told police officers he had been at a party with his fraternity and that he had been forced to consume large quantities of alcohol.

Sullivan said although the Western incident involved a lacrosse team, greek organizations are typically considered to be instigators of hazing incidents. She said the reason this idea exists is because fraternities and sororities are the only organizations allowed to practice sexual discrimination.

"They're the only ones exempt." However, Sullivan said "hazing is not limited to greek letter organizations. They are the groups likely to be pro-active (against hazing)."

One Eastern fraternity, Tau Kappa Epsilon, has taken a proactive stance by abolishing its system of pledging. The fraternity made plans to implement a two-week program that will focus on interviews with prospective members. Also, instead of spending a semester as a pledge, the participants will become active after the two-week program.

Patience needed to resolve crisis in Persian Gulf

Are the American people ready for war in Kuwait? Most likely not. But we've already committed our troops to it. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says there is a good chance that we will send 100,000 more during the next few weeks. He says that there is a chance that Hussein "might lash out at the Saudi oil fields." Like there wasn't that chance before.

Is the United States capable of fighting a war in the Middle East without having a bloodbath on its hands? Iraq has 430,000 troops dug-in in Kuwait. With an additional 100,000 troops, U.S. totals would only exceed 300,000, 300,000 troops with limited experience primarily limited to an invasion of Panama. Iraqi experience is derived from years of war with Iran.

Another concern is how well do the troops know who to shoot at? If you see a Soviet tank, is it theirs or someone on the U.N. side. If a French plane is coming at you, what do you do? The French are on our side, yet they've sold planes to Iraq. Mistakes will surely be made that will be devastating to our side. Expect a high body count against a dug-in enemy.

Why do we continue sending troops to the Persian Gulf? Sure, we only have 210,000 troops there, but add that to the thousands of troops other nations have committed and the sides don't look so lopsided.

Secretary of State James Baker keeps saying that every diplomatic avenue will be explored, but adds that military action could be taken if Iraq does not withdraw its troops.

Are the U.N. sanctions not working as well as everyone says? The sanctions are effective and the U.N. forces in Saudi Arabia have the capabilities to outlast the Iraqi forces.

We should continue to have patience without committing more troops to the Persian Gulf. With the sanctions, U.N. forces can wait much longer than Iraq, without the needless spilling of blood.

Postal Service destroying literacy

Believe it or not, the United States Postal Service has just done its part to worsen the war against illiteracy.

If you have received a flier from the Postal Service in your mailbox lately, you'd know what I'm talking about. The month of October you see, is "Complete Addressing Month," and the Postal Service is using it to promote a newer, more improved (allegedly) address campaign. But it won't improve our reading or writing skills.

The Postal Service just spent a ton of money to buy some new sorting machines. These machines, according to Postal Service public relations officer Mike West, will sort our mail at the rate of 30,000 pieces an hour. When the sorting is done manually, only 800 pieces of mail are sorted every hour. On a daily basis though, the Postal Service circulates more than 500,000 pieces of mail daily. (Too bad none of us ever see it while it's still timely).

But these machines are a little feisty – in fact, they're mechanically illiterate. They can't make out punctuation marks or small letters. In fact, the Postal Service is now promising us that we'll get our mail faster if we address it with all capital letters and no punctuation.

"The most efficient way is to use all capital letters and no punctuation," West said. "It can decipher some punctuation, but that complicates things."

The Postal Service honchos seem to think the new addressing style is ingenious. After all, West said the Postal Service has improved its productivity rate by 3.3 percent and it has saved more than $700 million – thanks in part to these new ingeniously illiterate machines.

In fact, the Postal Service is marketing the new addressing style to all of the clerical and secretarial schools throughout the nation.

And by the end of the month, every American household will have one of those fliers, explaining that to get your letters faster, you should only use black ink, all capital letters, and no punctuation marks – not one.

So much for the English language and the basic rules of grammar. Just think, we may be teaching this in classrooms pretty soon. We're sacrificing illiteracy for efficiency. What would Barbara Bush think?

When I was in the first grade, the kid who sat across the lunch table from me had a red, white and blue mailbox, I mean lunchbox. The letters U.P.S. were scrawled on one side of it. For about a week, I just stared at his lunchbox and wondered why the hell he carried a lunchbox that said "UPS" on it. What did that mean! To me it was pronounced "ups," like a direction. I had a Scooby-Doo lunchbox – at least I knew what that meant.

One day, while we were all sitting around after lunch, I asked "What does it mean if your mailbox says UPS?" The kid, (his name was Mike Baker) looked at me like I was stupid. After all, there we were in the first grade.

"What does it say?" he asked defensively, almost like his dad was Cliff Clavin, the loyal postman on Cheers.

"UPS," I said matter-of-factly.

"You dummy," he said, breaking into laughter. "That stands for United States Postal Service."

Now when I see the Postal Service trying something like this, I can't help but to wonder whether today's first graders will grow up thinking that HI is an everyday greeting, not the abbreviation for Hawaii.

Or that COD is a kind of fish, not the acronym for cash on delivery.

Book purchasing is best for education

Dear editor:

The Student Senate should be commended for its willingness to pursue a study of student's attitudes regarding the Textbook Rental Service (TRS). As a member of the Faculty Senate's ad hoc committee appointed to examine the textbook rental policy, I am aware of the amount of work involved in such a study. From an information-gathering standpoint, I am also interested in the student's views on this issue.

However, I have some difficulty with the implication that a decision concerning the TRS be based on what the students would like to do. In general, I believe that faculty members are in a better position than students when it comes to evaluating the functions and ramifications of university policy. And the results of the faculty survey clearly indicate that the majority of faculty members are not satisfied with the current system.

On the other hand, I can certainly understand the generally negative reaction of the students to the idea of purchasing rather than renting textbooks. It is likely that a textbook rental system does indeed save students some money over the short run (although the magnitude of the savings is unclear.) My concerns, however, have more to do with what I see as the long term benefits (for students as well as faculty) associated with a textbook purchase system. Given that the mission of the university is to "provide high quality, affordable public higher education," the financial aspect must necessarily be considered in conjunction with issues of quality. When all facets of the TRS are examined, it seems to me that quality issues have been slighted in favor of economic considerations.

For faculty members, the constraints associated with the TRS are certainly problematic. Restrictions concerning the selection of a textbook, the changing of texts, and the use of identical texts for multiple sections of a course result in what I view as a major obstacle in the pursuit of a quality educational experience for faculty as well as students. In addition, the policy also gives what I think is a negative impression of the university to new faculty members, who are of course obligated to use textbooks selected by someone other than themselves.

From the student's point of view, the rental system also has its drawbacks. The TRS policy that penalizes students for writing in the books is understandable, but I think it probably discourages students from taking notes on assigned reading material. In addition, although the TRS does permit students the option of purchasing the books they are currently using, it is noteworthy that the purchase price is equal to the "replacement value" of the book. That is, students purchase the text at the price of a new book, but what they actually receive is a used text. And no matter how many textbooks a student purchases in a given semester, he/she is still required to pay the full rental fee. In such a case, the student is simultaneously buying and renting the books.

In sum, the purchase of textbooks by students is clearly an investment on their part. But rather than an investment in a collection of words on paper that may or may not be useful several years from now, I see it as an investment in the quality of education provided by the university. Although a textbook purchase system is likely to result in some increase in expenses for students, the educational benefits far outweigh the costs.

Convenience store under construction

By TIM SHELLBERG
Staff writer

Come January, Uptown Charleston residents will no longer have to trek to Lincoln Avenue to purchase food or gas, as early this month, construction began on a Huck's Convenience store.

According to the Coles County Assessor's office, the land, located behind the U.S. Postal office, 320 Sixth St., was purchased by Martin Bayley, Inc., the corporation which owns the Huck's chain, for $95,000.

The convenience store is scheduled to be completed "by the first of '91," said Ron Macnulty, spokesman for Martin Bayley.

Aside from selling food staples, Macnulty said self-service gas pumps will be available.

"All the gas comes out of the same pipeline," Macnulty said. "We'll be selling Amoco gas, Shell gas — whatever comes out of the pipeline."

The business expected to be generated by Huck's can be viewed as a blessing to several uptown merchants.

"Anytime we can have increased activity and increased business, it'll help the other uptown merchants," said Bob Inyart, owner of Inyart Shoe Store, 603 Monroe Ave.

"I think it will be a good draw," Inyart added. "I think it's great. It's a very desirable thing."

According to Macnulty, eight to 11 full- and part-time employees will be needed to successfully operate the convenience store, and that a local supervisor, who has yet to be assigned, will oversee the hiring process when the building is near completion.

Macnulty also said an advertisement will be run in a local newspaper announcing the positions available and that employee applications can be mailed upon request.

The convenient store chain, founded in 1974 and based out of Carmi, covers areas of Illinois south of Peoria as well as Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri.

Additional emergency phones requested

By MATT CAMPBELL

Eastern's campus will get an added measure of security if University Police receive funding necessary to install additional emergency phones on campus.

Eastern's University Police Department announced in a memo a desire to acquire funding to install two additional emergency phones on campus. One phone would serve the area encompassing Ninth Street Hall, Carman Hall and Greek Court, while the other phone would serve the University Court area.

Currently, Eastern has four emergency phones in service. The phones, installed during the fall semester of 1989, are located by McAfee Gymnasium, the Life Science Building, Klehm Hall and O'Brien Stadium.

The four emergency phones, which allow students to contact campus police with the push of a button, cost the university approximately $2,348.

University Police are pushing for the additional phones despite numerous prank calls made on the four current phones.

Between Aug. 30, 1989 and Oct. 10, 1989, University Police reported 21 prank phone calls on the emergency phones. One arrest resulted during a sting operation conducted by University Police.

Crime Prevention Officer Mike Ealy said the additional security provided by the phones will outweigh the problems now associated with their operation.

Square Arts Expo slated for weekend

By MIKE CHAMBERS
Staff writer

This weekend Charleston merchants on the Square may look forward to more activity in the downtown area than usual with the opening of an Arts and Craft Expo by the Downtown Business Committee.

The Expo starts Nov. 1 inside the old Frommel's Hardware Store, 618 Jackson St., and will include local artists selling paintings, woodworking, ceramics, leather goods and pottery, said Brian Nordin, a member of the Downtown Business Committee.

So far, 18 booths have been rented for the event.

"What you're seeing here is what the city has done," said committee chair Fred Preston, citing the city's cooperation with the committee.

Preston is one of seven members who comprise the committee, which is appointed by the mayor to study the problems the downtown merchants have been experiencing. The problems include limited parking availability, aesthetics, merchandise selection, and in some cases, store hours.

Preston said the Expo was planned as a result of the committee's work and observations of other nearby communities.

"We hope this is the first in a series of new ideas," Preston said.

Nordin said the committee has studied the success of expos in other cities and thought it would be successful in Charleston as a way of attracting people to the Square. He said another long-range goal of the committee will be to get involved with a National Main Street Program, a successful consultation firm established in 1980 that helps revamp downtown businesses in small towns.

The Expo will run from Thursday to Jan. 1. An official grand opening will be announced later.

"We would like to seek out new events to take place on the Square on a regular basis. This square is neat and really pretty. We need to preserve (its historical atmosphere)," Preston said.

"We would like to have this place (the Square) look so good people would like to come up here just to stroll around," he said.

calls, the emergency phones also have been plagued by problems of poor sound quality as well as occasional failure.

The phones have since been replaced by Illinois Consolidated Telephone Co. with models of a higher quality, which have had a better record of service.

In other police business:

- The University Police Department will display illegal drugs and drug paraphernalia between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union Walkway.

"Students will be able to see what real drugs look like and smell like up close as well as seeing what some drug paraphernalia looks like," said Ealy, who is in charge of the display.

Written information on drugs and drug abuse also will be provided at the display table.

- A Carman Hall resident reported a sapphire ring surrounded with four diamonds missing from her room on Oct. 22.

The 14 karat gold ring, valued at $400, was found missing when the student went to show it to a friend. The owner told police she hadn't looked at the ring in about one week.

- A student parking permit was reported stolen from a parked car on Oct. 22. The passenger-side door of the car had been left unlocked.

- A $15 jean jacket and a $50 pair of Reebok high-top tennis shoes were reported stolen on Oct. 27 from the rugby field where the student was playing at the time.

Hartigan adds wrinkle to pledge of budget cuts

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrat Neil Hartigan said Tuesday he wouldn't seek re-election as governor if he can't make good on his campaign pledge to cut 2 percent from the state budget, but Republican rival Jim Edgar said the claim means nothing.

"We can't cut 2 percent? Every family is doing it, every business is doing it," Hartigan said. "I'll do it, and if I don't do it, by the way, I won't run for re-election. You won't have to throw me out. I won't run."

After making the pledge in a live radio interview, Hartigan clarified that it applies to his budget proposal. It's up to the Illinois General Assembly to fashion the actual state spending plan. The pledge put a new twist in the linchpin of his campaign, a plan to cut the state's current $26 billion budget by $573 million while still increasing education funding.

Hartigan said he would veto any legislative attempt to restore the 2 percent worth of cuts he would propose. But the legislature has the power to overrule such a veto and enact a bigger budget despite Hartigan's proposal.

Edgar said proposing a 2 percent cut "doesn't mean anything."

Hartigan won't have to worry about re-election if he wins and tries to stick to his plan to live without an extension of the 20 percent temporary income tax increase set to expire in June, Edgar said.

"It's not going to happen because we're going to have some real big problems in this state and I think people are going to hold him accountable for it," Edgar said. "It's easy to make those promises before the election."

With one week to go before the Nov. 6 general election, both candidates on Tuesday sought to shore up their support in Chicago's black community.

Edgar picked up an endorsement from the Rev. Herbert Martin, a prominent black minister who was pastor to the late Mayor Harold Washington.

Senate to consider textbook referendum

By ANITA MAIELLA
Staff writer

The Student Senate will vote on a bill which would place a referendum on the ballot for the Student Government fall elections to assess whether students are in favor of Eastern's Textbook Rental Program.

If the senate bill is approved at Wednesday's regular meeting, the referendum will ask students if they are in favor of the current rental system, or if they are in favor of replacing the system with a textbook purchasing system, senate member Curtis Cline said.

Eastern's rental service allows students to rent rather than purchasing the textbooks.

Fall elections for Student Government are slated for Nov. 14.

The outcome from the referendum will give an idea to the Textbook Investigative Committee on what their goal should focus on, Cline said.

The purpose of the committee, which consists of senate members, is to investigate how students view the Textbook Rental System.

If students vote in favor of the current rental system, the committee would write a counter proposal to a recent Faculty Senate proposal, which calls for abolishment of the rental system, Cline said in an earlier interview.

Cline said if students react favorably to the textbook library, the committee will draft a counter proposal to the Faculty Senate. The Faculty Senate proposed to ban the rental service to allow a greater selection of books.

In other business, the senate is planning to send care packages to American troops in Saudi Arabia.

"The purpose is to show that Student Government is thinking about them and wishing them the best of luck," Cline said.

Professor confronts the causes of stress

By LISA INMAN
Staff writer

Stressful situations are so common in a college environment that it is impossible not to deal with them directly, Eastern psychology professor Bill Kirk told a crowd of students Tuesday in the Arcola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Interpersonal issues, including boy/girl relationships, roommate problems and family relations, are usually the biggest cause of stress, Kirk said during a noon seminar titled "Students Coping with Stress."

He added academic pressure, financial problems and the newfound freedom of college life also can cause stress.

According to Kirk, there are three categories for stress symptoms - physical, psychological and spiritual.

Physical symptoms include headaches, stomach problems and fatigue, while psychological symptoms include irritability and high levels of anxiety, Kirk said.

He defined spiritual symptoms as an "inability to define or live out one's philosophy." In other words, students who really don't know why they are in school or what they want to do in the future could have a higher level of stress than those who do, Kirk said.

Kirk believes all students must learn to accept a certain amount of stress in such a stressful environment.

In trying to relieve stress, Kirk said, "It is important to recognize the stress and deal with it healthfully.

"Change your perception of the stressors from a negative to a positive and quit 'catastrophizing' about it," he added.

Water monitors installed

By CHRIS ENSTROM
Staff writer

Charleston water treatment plant personnel hope to have three new water monitors, which will check for traces of chemical waste and other pollutants in the water supply, installed by Friday.

The water monitors, which cost the city $40,000, were originally purchased because of a new metal recycling facility located in Newman, a town upstream of Charleston, water treatment plant supervisor Dick Sherman said.

Recontek, a metal recycling company, recently built a $20 million facility expected to process 50-60,000 tons of hazardous waste a year into usable products.

"They didn't build the holding ponds we would have liked to have seen them build, and we got the monitors as a safeguard for any potential spills," he added.

"The monitors will help in case of a (Recontek) spill or any accident on the highway, but also help as far as our treating of the reservoir. This will just give us another set of parameters so we can get the best quality of water over into the reservoir," Sherman said.

The monitors will be located at Brushy Fork Creek between Newman and Oakland, at the pumping station and on Illinois 16 bridge crossing the Embarras River.

Water is pumped from the river, which flows east of the city, into the Lake Charleston Reservoir and supplies two-thirds of Charleston's water supply.

If any unusual chemicals are detected by the sensors, pumping operations will be shut down until the chemicals disappear, Sherman said.

The monitors will contain a series of sensors that will check the water for pH balance, dissolved oxygen levels, temperature and conductivity.

A total of 22 parameters can be added to detect other forms of contamination.

"We will add other tests as we go along," Sherman said. "I'm not sure how many or when. The cost of new test will be minimal. The equipment is all set up, and now it's just a matter of seeing how things run and seeing what we need."

Haunted Hut raising cash for MS

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

Members of the Sigma Pi fraternity hope to frighten the pants off people participating in their third annual "Haunted Hut."

Darren Altadonna, president of the fraternity, said the "Haunted Hut" will take place from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Hut House, located on the corner of Sixth and Harrison streets.

The Haunted Hut will feature about eight or nine rooms with different characters including Freddie Krueger, Jason from Friday the 13th and Dracula, Altadonna said.

The cost for entering the haunted hut will be $1 for children 12 years of age and younger and $2 for adults. Altadonna said proceeds from the program will benefit multiple sclerosis.

"Last year we raised $550 and our goal this year is $1,000," Altadonna said. He added during the first night of the "Haunted Hut" the fraternity raised between $100 and $150.

"And that usually is the slow night," Altadonna said. "Once the grade school and high school students and campus students realize it's here, we expect much more."

Altadonna boasts the "Haunted Hut" show put on by fraternity members is very scary.

"Last year it was voted by the Charleston Times-Courier as the most scary haunted house in the area," Altadonna said. He added fraternity members had to physically drag a trio of frightened girls through the Hut.

"It's a very frightening experience," Altadonna said.

Halloween no treat for Freddy Kruegers

By the Associated Press

Freddy Krueger hates Halloween.

In fact, Oct. 31 is a nightmare for five Fred Kruegers who live in Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina and Illinois.

It's particularly tough for the Fred Krueger who lives in Tobyhanna, Pa.

His house is two blocks from Elm Street.

No kidding. Fred Kruegers, men with the same name as the star of screen, scream and gore, are alive and well but unenthusiastic about the holiday that is descended from the medieval All Hallows Eve.

The prank calls and weird stares, they say, will be relentless.

None of the Freds is maimed by scars, has pop-out claws or even dons a fedora. None has been accused of even one grisly murder, unlike the prolific maniac featured in the never-ending movie saga, "A Nightmare on Elm Street." But these disparities do not ward off pranksters.

"I got some regular customers on the phone," said Fred Krueger who lives in Olivers Mills, Pa., and works for Liberty Mutual Life Insurance Co.

"It's best to go along with them," he said, noting that kids will just harass him if he sounds mad or hangs up.

Fred Krueger, a retired banker from Charlotte, N.C., also plays the demonic role but said he tries to keep it simple because he once scared a little girl.

"She wanted to know if I was the Freddy and I said, 'Yeah' and gave her the laugh," said the 75-year-old retiree. "And then I said several other things and said I would be over to see her."

"There was silence on the phone," he recalled. Followed by a dial tone.

An understandable reaction. In his most recent movie, "A Nightmare on Elm Street: Dream Child," Freddy Krueger - created by Wes Craven and played by actor Robert Englund - invades the semiconsciousness of an unborn child, torturing her mother and killing off her teen-age friends.

Probably not the kind of guy you'd want to have over to the house.

Unless, of course, you're Mrs. Krueger.

Ellen Krueger, who is married to the Charlotte Fred, said her husband doesn't look anything like the star.

"I got a good-looking husband with blue eyes and dimples," she said. "There's no resemblance." Another Mrs. Krueger, Florence, lives in Tamaqua, Pa., and gets a lot of silly calls.

It bothered her at first, she said, because she thought someone was playing a cruel joke by asking for her husband. He died 28 years ago.

After she and a friend figured it out, Florence decided to counter with a trick of her own.

"Is Freddy Krueger there?" a caller will ask.

"Yes, he is. Hang on," she'll reply.

"Then I just put the phone down and walk away," Florence said, with a sinister laugh.

Abortion debate begins in Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court began scrutinizing a ban on abortion counseling at federally subsidized family planning clinics Tuesday in arguments punctuated by pointed questions from new Justice David Souter and fellow members.

Souter voiced doubts about regulations that bar doctors and family planning counselors from discussing abortion even with women whose pregnancies are endangering their health.

"You are telling us the physician cannot perform his usual professional responsibility," Souter told Solicitor General Kenneth Starr, the Bush administration's top courtroom lawyer.

"You are telling us the secretary (of Health and Human Services) in effect may preclude professional speech," Starr, conceding the ban "tilts against abortion," defended its validity.

Although fueled by the continuing struggle over abortion, the legal dispute over the regulations centers on free-speech rights.

The court must decide whether the regulations comply with a 1970 federal law and, if so, whether they violate the Constitution.

A decision is expected by July.

The argument is over information available to the 5 million low-income women who depend on family planning clinics and similar health care providers.

Last year, some 4,000 family planning clinics nationwide received about $140 million in federal assistance.

Enforcement of the regulations, issued by the Reagan administration in 1988, has been blocked virtually everywhere by legal challenges.

None of the justices indicated any interest Tuesday in using the case to alter the court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion.

Roe vs. Wade was not mentioned at all by Starr or Harvard law professor Laurence Tribe, representing those who challenged the regulations.

"This is strictly a First Amendment argument," Tribe told the court.

Four justices have criticized the 1973 ruling, and the court last year gave states greater leeway to make abortions more difficult to obtain. Souter, whose views on the issue are unknown, is considered a pivotal vote for the future of legalized abortion.

Souter's comments to Starr followed a series of questions in which the newest justice focused on a hypothetical case of a pregnant woman whose health is endangered by continuing her pregnancy.

Starr said a woman, if so diagnosed in a family planning clinic receiving federal assistance, could be told about her health problem but should not be given any advice regarding abortion.

Economy grows faster; analysts still concerned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at a faster-than-expected 1.8 percent rate in the third quarter, the government said Tuesday, but the report failed to dissuade many analysts who believe the economy is entering a recession.

The Commerce Department report on the gross national product showed that consumers buying cars and other items had continued to drive the longest peacetime economic expansion in U.S. history through September. Whether the expansion reaches its eighth anniversary in November was a matter of debate.

"This release contradicts those who believe we are in a recession or are about to enter one," Commerce Undersecretary Michael Darby told reporters.

His boss, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, added in San Antonio. "I hope all the doom-sayers and nay-sayers and cluck-cluckers go back in their holes for a while."

But economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets in New York said, "I believe we're in a recession. I think that most of the things showing strength in the third quarter will be weak in the fourth, particularly consumer spending."

Robert Dederick, chief economist for the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago, also believes the economy is declining this quarter. He contended that much of the GNP strength "was concentrated early in the quarter. It is by no means certain that it was growing 1.8 when the quarter ended."

3 Palestinians killed

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli forces shot and killed a Palestinian on Tuesday after he stabbed a civilian security guard, and another Arab was killed during a clash in a refugee camp.

Also Tuesday, one Palestinian was killed and two were injured when a bomb they apparently were preparing went off in an ultra-Orthodox Jewish suburb of Tel Aviv, police said.

Angry Jews gathered in the market in Bnei Brak after the blast and demanded that Arabs be barred from working in the community, Israel's army radio reported.

The violence was the latest in a series of assaults by both Arabs and Jews following the Oct. 8 blood bath on the Temple Mount in Jerusalem. Police opened fire on Palestinians on the mount after they had stoned worshipers at the Western Wall below. Twenty Palestinians were killed and 140 wounded.

Meanwhile, the Waqf, the Moslem religious council that oversees the holy site, issued a report Tuesday on the killings, calling the incident "the day of the martyrs."

The report accused Israeli police and paramilitary border police "of shooting intensively with live ammunition, as if they were in a real war."

It blamed police for setting off the incident by firing tear gas at women worshipers outside a mosque without reason. Palestinians responded with stones, and the police with gunfire, it said.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's office responded to the Waqf report by denouncing it as "superficial, one-sided and non-objective," Israel television reported.

"Several members of the Moslem council participated in some of the incidents themselves, and this reflects the degree of the report's credibility," the office reportedly added.

Two earlier reports, released by Palestinian and Israeli human rights groups, accused Israeli police of indiscriminate fire on the mount and urged Israel to seek non-lethal means of dealing with rioters.

A report by the Israeli government last Friday blamed Palestinians stone throwers for setting off the rioting and said police fired live ammunition in self-defense. But it also blamed police commanders for being inadequately prepared.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens said, meanwhile, that the continuing violence could mean that Israel will have to drop its 1988 peace plan calling for elections among Palestinians as a step toward negotiations.

Arens told a parliamentary committee that "it is difficult to see how free and democratic elections can be held ... in an atmosphere of violence," according to his aide, Danny Neveh.

One of the Palestinian deaths Tuesday came in the West Bank city of Nablus, where an Arab stabbed an Israeli armed guard on a gasoline tanker truck, the army said.

Israel army radio said the guard was stabbed three times in the back and a plainclothes Israeli security man who was passing shot the attacker to death. The guard suffered moderate wounds.

Three masked Palestinians announced through a loudspeaker that the slain assailant, identified as 18-year-old Haitham Jamla, was a member of Islamic Jihad.

Thousands of Soviets march to KGB offices

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Soviets, many holding photographs of relatives who died in labor camps, marched to KGB headquarters Tuesday for the unveiling of a monument to victims of repression.

They held candles against a bitter wind, exchanged stories of loved ones who disappeared, and left piles of red and white carnations on the monument outside the Lubyanka, the security police headquarters and notorious former prison.

"This building is a symbol — a symbol of lawlessness, inhumanity and illegality," historian Yuri Afanasyev told the crowd, estimated at 3,000 to 6,000 people.

The monument is simple but eloquent: a rough piece of rock, about 3 feet wide and 8 feet long, hewn from the harsh Solovetsky Islands in the freezing White Sea.

Those islands were the site of one of the first and most famous labor camps for political prisoners, established in the early 1920s. Until President Mikhail Gorbachev came to power in 1985 and began releasing political prisoners, dozens of such camps dotted northern Russia, forming what author Alexander Solzhenitsyn called the "Gulag Archipelago."

Bush urged not to leap into Gulf War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush discussed the possibility of war in the Persian Gulf with leaders of Congress Tuesday and was urged not to let impatience lead to combat with Iraq.

"There's concern on Capitol Hill ... that this is somehow a prelude to immediate military action," said George Mitchell, the Senate Democratic leader.

But the White House tried to dampen fears that fighting was imminent.

The attitude was "play it down — be calm," said presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

"I would say that it's pretty much steady as she goes," Bush promised to continue consulting with lawmakers but pointedly added, "We must all understand, however, that any such commitment must be hedged, given the unpredictable and dynamic circumstances of this crisis."

The president met with congressional leaders after talking tough about the Persian Gulf for two days and warning that the United States would not hesitate to use force if provoked by Iraq.

The lawmakers said they support Bush's current actions but underscored to him that only Congress can declare war. Yet, they acknowledged the president has authority to take action in emergencies.

"Many of us told him to make sure we don't use the military option out of impatience, that we try the embargo, the sanctions, the United Nations resolutions, our allies' efforts first and foremost," Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said as he left the White House.

Fitzwater said the administration hopes the economic sanctions will drive Iraq from Kuwait. But he also said, "It is a process that requires patience. We have to keep watching it. We have not seen a lot of impact at this point."

After consulting lawmakers, Bush also met with senior national security advisers. Bush has sent more than 200,000 forces to the gulf, and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said last week that 100,000 more may be deployed.

"The administration is considering further augmentation of our gulf forces and will be consulting with the allies on this matter," Fitzwater said.

Meanwhile, in an announcement at a Republican political rally, Bush assured Americans there will be plentiful oil supplies despite the cutoff from Iraq and Kuwait. He said any shortages had been made up by increased global production and other steps.

"Under current circumstances," Bush said, "consumers can count on adequate supplies of petroleum products. And that is good news for all Americans."

Participants in Bush's meeting with lawmakers described it as lively and frank — terms frequently used to mask sharp differences of opinion.

U.S. military death toll at 43 after ship mishap

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A boiler pipe ruptured Tuesday on the USS Iwo Jima, spewing out super-heated steam that killed 10 sailors.

The accident aboard the amphibious assault ship and the death of a Marine when his jeep overturned in Saudi Arabia boosted the number of U.S. military deaths to 43 during the nearly 3-month-old Operation Desert Shield.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the families of those who have departed us," said the Iwo Jima's commander, Capt. Michael O'Hearn.

The accident was the worst for the Navy in the U.S.-led air, land and sea mobilization that followed Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. In the only other Navy fatality during Operation Desert Shield, a sailor was electrocuted in August aboard the USS Antietam.

The Iwo Jima, part of the amphibious task force and U.S. naval armada supporting Operation Desert Shield, left Bahrain an hour before the 8:15 a.m. accident.

"It was only a couple of miles from the pier when the accident occurred," said Lt. Kevin Wensing, a spokesman for Command Naval Forces, Central Command.

Wensing, who visited the ship after it returned to port, spoke of the "heroism" of a well-trained crew who quickly "secured the ship's" two boilers, anchored the ship, evacuated the injured after their condition was stabilized, and collected the remains of the dead."

He said because the boilers were shut off, and although the vessel had emergency diesel generators for backup, it was towed back to port with the help of Bahraini tugs.

He described the mood of the rest of the 685-man crew and 1,100 Marines aboard as "somber but very determined."

Six sailors died immediately after the accident.

The Iwo Jima, which played a major role in evacuating the 241 Marines killed by a suicide bomber in Beirut in 1983, used its own helicopters to transport four injured sailors to the hospital ship USS Comfort.

Two of the injured died aboard the hospital ship, the Navy said.

The last two survivors were reported in very serious condition, and late Tuesday afternoon the Pentagon in Washington confirmed they also had died.

Names of the dead were withheld until their relatives could be notified. The Iwo Jima is based in Norfolk, Va.

The Marine who died was with three others from the 1st Battalion, 3rd Marines when their jeep overturned and went down a 20-foot embankment, a military statement said. His companions were in stable condition.

In a related development, officials said three American sailors were injured when their pickup truck was hit Monday by two .50-caliber machine-gun rounds fired accidentally by a Marine sentry.

Ex-hostages: Care worse for Americans

PARIS (AP) — Frenchmen freed after nearly three months as hostages in Iraq said today the worst part for them was isolation and lack of news. For American hostages, they said, life is tougher.

"Baghdad was a prison without bars," said Denis, 27, a computer technician who could move about Baghdad freely but couldn't leave. "It was a part of my life I won't forget."

The Americans held in Baghdad were under much tighter controls, said Denis, who asked that his full name not be used.

"They were watched over much more than us," he said. "They were only allowed to go out two hours a day. We couldn't count them or approach them. Plainclothes police controlled everything."

Denis was among 262 French citizens and 19 other foreigners who arrived in Paris early Tuesday after Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein decided to release all French hostages from Iraq and Kuwait.

Saddam's move was seen as an effort to split the international alliance against Iraq.

None of the returnees reported any physical mistreatment, but they complained of being cut off from the world.

"Our guards were always courteous, but never gave us a bit of information," said Marc, 25, who along with about 60 other Frenchmen was shifted from site to site as "human shields" to forestall a possible attack on Iraq.

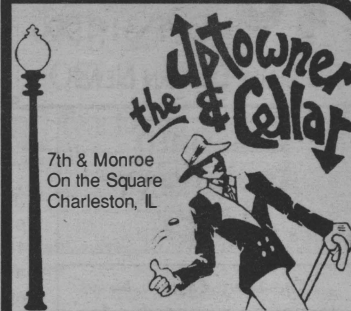

"One day we were near a chemical factory, another day at a petroleum refinery," said Marc, who like most of the ex-hostages would not give his last name. "Our only links to the outside were the messages from our families on RFI (Radio France Internationale)."

One man held in Kuwait who identified himself as Father Sanchez said conditions were especially difficult for Western captives held at the strategic sites.

Bears-Tampa game features two Carriers

LAKE FOREST(AP) – Rookie safety Mark Carrier of the Chicago Bears has never met his namesake and third cousin, wide receiver Mark Carrier of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. But it's inevitable the two will cross paths Sunday.

"Something will happen and a Carrier will win," said Mark Carrier of the Bears, who has sealed a starting job after being the No. 6 player chosen in the draft last spring.

Carrier's interception Sunday led to a touchdown in a 31-21 victory over the Phoenix Cardinals. He has been outstanding, something that hasn't surprised coach Mike Ditka, who likened Carrier to Ronnie Lott, the All-Pro safety of the San Francisco 49ers when the Bears made their selection.

Carrier has not disappointed Ditka.

"I'm happy the way I'm playing, but I can do better," said Carrier, who has 51 tackles, 29 assists, two interceptions and six deflected passes in helping the Bears compile a surprising 6-1 record. "I haven't reached the level I want." Carrier thinks attending camp from the start has helped him succeed.

The Bears made sure that Carrier had agreed to sign when they drafted him. They also had linebacker James Francis and defensive end Ray Agnew in mind as their top pick in the draft. But Francis and Agnew refused to terms and were bypassed. Agnew was drafted 10th by New England and Francis was the 12th choice and went to Cincinnati.

"I made the right decision," said Carrier. "It took away a lot of pressure. There were no negotiations and it let my teammates know that I was ready to play right off the bat."

"Starting in camp from Day One was the big factor. I learned the system and had a chance to grow with the other players. I got familiar with them and they with me." The adjustment from playing at Southern Cal to the NFL has been a big one. Carrier made the AP All-American team and decided to go to the pros, although he had one year eligibility left after sitting out the 1986 season because of a broken foot.

"Besides all the work, you are under duress and stress," said Carrier. "... You are constantly challenged and you have to learn to handle all the pressure. The toughest thing is learning the system. The system in the pros is so complex. But everybody helps you, the coaches and the veteran players. They help you relax and keep your head into the game." Carrier said he was somewhat overwhelmed at first.

"I started to lose a little confidence because all the players up here are so good. ... The field is a lot bigger than it is in college because of the difficulty of having to cover outstanding receivers." Carrier said his best games at Southern Cal were against Notre Dame and UCLA.

"I guess you could make a highlight film of my games against those teams. Notre Dame because of its tradition and UCLA because of the great rivalry." He is not surprised at his success with the Bears.

"I didn't think a lot about being a starter. I didn't want to put extra pressure on myself. I just made sure I was prepared to play when the opportunity came." It came when he was ready.

Zorich may miss season

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame nose tackle Chris Zorich injured his right knee against Pittsburgh and could miss the rest of the season, an Irish official said today.

"That may sound drastic, but it's not out of the realm of possibilities," said sports information director John Heisler.

Zorich, a 1989 All-American, suffered a partial dislocation of the right knee cap Saturday during the third quarter of No. 2 Notre Dame's 31-22 victory at Pittsburgh. The kneecap slipped back into place but left the knee sore and swollen, Heisler said.

"It's something that's going to go away, it's just a question of how long it's going to take," he said.

Zorich is undergoing daily ice treatments to relieve the swelling. He will not practice this week or travel with the team for Saturday's game against Navy.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said on his weekly syndicated television show that Zorich might have to sit out the remaining three games as well, including a Nov. 10 road game against No. 11 Tennessee.

Trainers nevertheless hope Zorich might be able to play against Tennessee, said Heisler.

"I'm not sure we'll know much more for the next couple of days," he said.

Zorich, a senior, anchors a Notre Dame defensive line that has been shaky at times this season but held up well enough for the Irish to have a 6-1 record. A similar injury forced him to miss spring practice his freshman year.

Kimball's jail term reduced

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Former Olympic diver Bruce Kimball will serve less than five years of a 17-year sentence for a 1988 drunken diving accident that killed two teen-agers, the Florida Parole Commission decided Tuesday.

The commission voted Tuesday to release Kimball Nov. 24, 1993.

That date is firm unless the case is brought back to the commission for disciplinary action by the Department of Corrections, parole spokeswoman Ruth Anne Reese said.

Kimball, who pleaded guilty to two manslaughter charges, has served about 22 months of his sentence for the Aug. 1, 1988 drunken driving accident that killed Robbie Bedell, 19, and Kevin Gossic, 16. Three other teens were seriously injured when Kimball crashed into a crowd of teen-agers on a dead-end road in Brandon.

The mother of one of the dead youths was disappointed by the decision to reduce Kimball's sentence.

"They have to be aware what they decide affects people," said Terry Bedell. "It affects me, it affects my family, it affects Robbie's friends." A silver medalist in 1984, Kimball was in training for the 1988 Olympics. At the time of the accident, he had a blood-alcohol level twice the legal limit.

Parole Commissioner Anabel Mitchell noted that Kimball has expressed remorse, undergone treatment programs and received public support for an immediate release.

Shaping up

Football Notebook

Eastern running back Jamie Jones dropped to second in the Gateway Conference rushing race, just six yards behind Indiana State's Derrick Franklin. Jones has 938 yards rushing — needing just 62 yards against Western Kentucky Saturday to reach the 1,000-yard mark in the Panthers' last home game of the year — while Thompson has 942. The two rank eighth and ninth, respectively, in the nation...Jones, though, still leads the Gateway in all-purpose running and is fourth in the country with 1,368 rushing, receiving and return yards.

Mike Rummell leads all Eastern receivers with 20 receptions for 329 yards, almost 70 yards more than the Panthers' No. 2 receiver, tight end Mark Grady, who has 18 receptions for 260 yards. Rummell was quarterback Lee Borkowski's main target in the team's 16-10 loss to Northern Iowa Saturday, catching three passes for 77 yards, including one for 37 yards.

Northern Iowa's Jay Johnson barely stayed ahead of Southwest Missouri's DeAndre Smith in pass efficiency rating. Johnson threw for 149 yards after completing seven of 12 passes against the Panthers Saturday but also threw two interceptions. Smith completed 11 of 18 passes for 152 yards and a touchdown and also ran 23 times for 55 yards and a two-yard TD. He broke SMSU's total point record with 224 in his four-year career and has compiled 5,787 yards of total offense, also a school record.

Smith's performance earned him the Gateway's offensive player of the week award, while the top defensive player honor went to Western Illinois' Thad Trump, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound linebacker. Trump broke a WIU all-time record for tackles in a game in the Leatherneck's 35-14 loss at SMSU. He recorded 27 total tackles, including 15 solo, and sacked Smith once.

Eastern students who have not purchased reserved seats for the Parents Weekend football game will sit in the first 10 rows of section A, B and C at O'Brien Stadium Saturday when the Panthers host Western Kentucky. This has been assigned as student general admission seating for this game only. Tickets cost 50 cents. Student all-sports passes are not valid for the Parents Weekend game.

Soccer team faces SMSU in last road contest of year

By R.J. GERBER
Staff writer

Two teams that had high expectations at the beginning of the soccer season but have fallen on hard times meet Wednesday when Eastern travels to Southwest Missouri State to take on the Bears.

Eastern will be making its final road trip of the year before ending its season at Lakeside Field Sunday. Eastern, 4-10-2, is 1-8-1 away from home this year.

SMSU is 6-8-1 after jumping out to a fast start. Bears assistant coach Jan Stahle, who was head coach last season, said that his squad has been struggling of late, however.

"We started out with a bang," Stahle said. "But after we met North Carolina and lost in overtime, we have struggled."

Stahle said that the Bears had anticipated a better record than where they stand right now.

"We had high expectations," said Stahle, who gave way to Thomas Howe as head man this season. "But we ran into some tough competition and things haven't been going our way."

Stahle said that SMSU is hoping to end the season on a high note and reload for next year.

"We thought that we could compete with the top competition this year," Stahle said. "But we are not at the point that we wanted to be."

Stahle said that he realizes that Eastern is having a down year, but that records don't mean much at this point.

"We know that Cizo (Mosnia) has a quality team," he said. "We expect a tough game from Eastern. Of course, we have a little revenge factor because they beat us last year at their place. We have heard nothing but good things about Eastern."

Eastern defeated SMSU 2-0 at Lakeside Field last year when the Bears were a fellow member of the Mid-Continent Conference. SMSU has since left the MCC.

The Bears are led by freshman forward Kevin McDonough and senior midfielder Matt Meyer. Both players have scored four goals and assisted on two others. Bears freshman goalkeeper Kevin Beaudry has a goals against average of 2.01 this season.

Last season, SMSU was led by Jimmy Thwing, who set a school record with 14 assists. He also scored eight goals during his freshman campaign. This year, however, Thwing has had a "frustrating" year. He has only three goals and two assists.

Thwing will not play against Eastern because he received a red card in the Bears' previous game against Texas Christian University. Under NCAA rules a player must sit out the following game after receiving a red card. Thwing has two red cards this year.

"Thwing has had a disappointing season," Stahle said. "He is a bit frustrated."

Mosnia said that he isn't sure what to expect from SMSU when the Panthers invade Springfield, Mo.

"Last year, we had a tough time," Mosnia said. "They were a big, tall team. I really don't know much about them."

Mosnia said that the three Panthers that were suspended indefinitely will not play for the remainder of the season. The players are senior forward Mario Mihalic, and junior Dave Middleton and freshman John Gouriotis, both goalkeepers.

Hull slaps in 15th as Blues win

DETROIT (AP) — Brett Hull snapped a second-period tie with his NHL-leading 15th goal as the St. Louis Blues extended their unbeaten streak to seven games with a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Red Wings on Tuesday night.

Dave Lowry added two goals for St. Louis (8-3-1), which posted its fourth straight victory while snapping the Red Wings' (6-4-3) six-game home-ice winning streak.

After Gerard Gallant tied the score 2-2 midway through the second period, Hull, left unattended in front of the Detroit net, converted a centering pass from Rod Brind'Amour for his 11th goal in the last six games.

Lowry netted his second of the game at 11:54 of the final period and Geoff Courtnall added his seventh of the season less than three minutes later to clinch the victory.

Kruto digging her way into record books

Diane Kruto didn't even know the Gateway Conference had a Newcomer of the Year award for volleyball until she won it her freshman year.

"I didn't even know they had that kind of an award," said Kruto, now a senior and one of the Lady Panthers' tri-captains. "But an honor like that gives other coaches high expectations about you."

Kruto was recently given another honor by being named to the Eastern Classic all-tournament team this past weekend and then was voted MVP by the participating coaches. The Lady Panthers won the tournament in the three-match sweep of the participating teams.

"I felt pretty good about it because I've never been chosen for an award like that," Kruto said. "I was glad to see other coaches think I'm good, too."

Kruto chose Eastern after visiting the university on a volleyball recruiting trip and was impressed with the players on the team and the campus. But coming out of Chicago Lane

Tech High School, Kruto did not think she would be an immediate impact on Eastern's team.

"I didn't think I'd play for a couple years — I thought I would be a bench warmer," said Kruto, who did make an impact as a starter her freshman year.

Kruto suffered a knee injury her sophomore year and only played half of the season and then re-injured her knee during preseason and sat out all of the non-conference season her junior year.

"She missed so much time because of the injury but this year shows that it was no fluke she won the freshman award," head coach Betty Ralston said. "But it's just one of those things. It would have been great to have her all four years instead of about two-and-a-half years at full strength."

"I just want to make it through the season," said Kruto. "I don't want to jinx myself though."

Kruto had a school-record 28 kills against Wisconsin-Milwaukee last weekend and then became Eastern's single-season leader with 464 digs this year during a match with

Diane Kruto

Northeastern Illinois. She also leads the Lady Panthers with 353 kills and 51 service aces.

Last week, Kruto was 13th in the nation in digs per game and first in the Gateway Conference. She is also tied for seventh in the conference in service aces per game and eighth in kills per game.

"Diane and Deanna (Lund) are getting close to getting some records, but I think all the seniors would say they would rather have a better season than the records," said Ralston, whose team is 14-16 overall and 1-3 in conference action.

"We're doing pretty well this season," Kruto said. "We started the season out OK and then got into a slump. We played really well over the weekend and it came at a good time because we're going into our last two weeks of conference."

The Lady Panthers return to action Friday in Peoria against Bradley in a Gateway Conference matchup.

"Diane is technically the strongest passer we have, but only coaches notice things like," Ralston said. "She always seems to be in the right place at the right time and she reads defenses and hitters very well. She thinks like a coach out on the court and that helps out a lot."

"Some things you can just pick up, I can't really explain it," Kruto said. "I'm not afraid to say things (on the court) as a freshman or a sophomore might be. I saw things when I was a freshman but wouldn't say anything. I guess I was just being a freshman."
