Swine flu cases probable in state

Cases found in Chicago, Chicago suburb areas

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The swine flu outbreak reached into Illinois on Wednesday with the state reporting its first probable cases, shutting down at last three schools as public health officials warned people not to panic but asked them to take simple measures to prevent the spread of the virus.

The initial nine likely cases were mild and included three children and six adults in northern Illinois. The state awaited final confirmation from federal health officials, but early testing indicated a 99 percent chance the cases were swine flu.

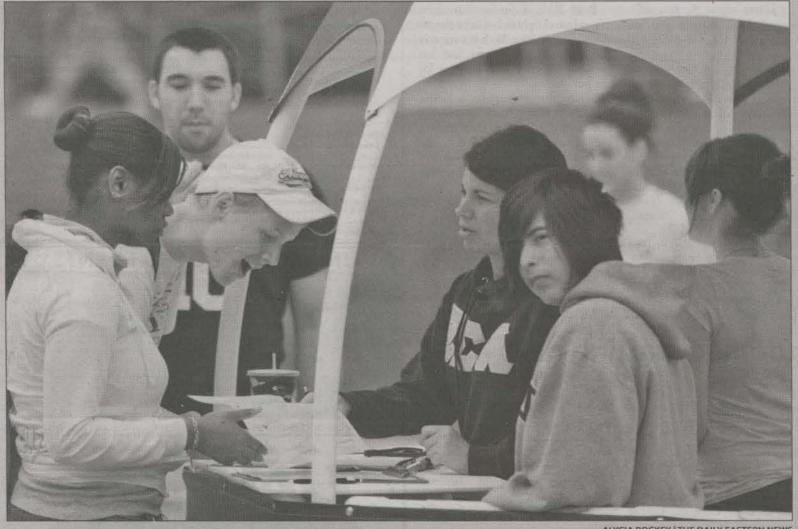

"Ninety-nine percent is a hard number to beat," Illinois Department of Public Health Director Dr. Damon Arnold said at a news conference where Mayor Richard Daley, Gov. Pat Quinn and other officials stressed the state was working hard to prevent more people from getting sick.

A swine flu outbreak is spreading across the country and the world, where it is suspected of killing more than 150 people in Mexico. The first U.S. death was confirmed Wednesday when a 23-month-old child died in Texas.

Women's studies looking for more students

No major is currently offered in program

By JENNIFER BROWN Staff Reporter

Jeannie Ludlow, coordinator for the Women's Studies Program, is looking for students to develop women's studies into their minor at Eastern.

She's been teaching at the university since August, and is currently the only full-time professor in the program.

"We tend to look through the world of how women experience it," Ludlow said. "If you take an English class, you might read two books by men and two books by women and for a long time humanity was based by men."

"The (women's studies) minor makes you hyper-aware of all kinds of issues."

- Alaina Morales, senior English major

She said women's studies centers on teaching students critical thinking skills

While this is a major at other universities, it is not one at Eastern.

Ludlow said she only knows of 15 students who have officially declared it as their minor.

Alaina Morales, a senior English major, became interested in the minor when she took the introductory course Women, Men and Culture last spring.

Morales became interested by the ideas of gender and race.

"The minor is also very practical," she said. "The things we discuss aren't hard to understand – they apply to everyday social issues and anyone can relate to the topics we discuss."

Morales said she would see the world become a better place, and declaring this as a minor has given her the tools she needs to make this possible.

She declared women's studies as her minor for personal reasons. She plans to work in a university library, and wants to use her minor to outreach out to the students and the community.

"The (women's studies) minor makes you hyper-aware of all kinds of issues," she said. "That will be an advantage when I'm developing collections in the library, or developing professional relationships with coworkers."

Declaring a minor in women's studies broadened Morales' experience as a college student and she found the issues that are covered in the classes relevant in all her classes.

"The minor really makes you reexamine your habits, beliefs and lifestyle," Morales said. "I'm just aware of the different issues people face every day. I'm aware of how we have to change as a society to include everyone."

President veto stands

By KAYLEIGH ZYSKOWSKI

Staff Reporter

The Student Senate had its work cut out for it, with seven proposals under emergency legislation during Wednesday night's meeting.

The Student Government allowed the veto of the University Board marketing proposal to stand.

The proposal was for $300 for software to aid in the making of fliers for advertisement.

The proposal originated during the Apportionment Board meeting on April 16 as additional allocations, after a misinterpreted e-mail called for $40,346 in additional allocations.

Student Body President Levi Bulgar vetoed it after last week's meeting.

"I vetoed the bill because the (proposal) was brought up without chairs of the board being aware of the situation," he said.

In other business, the UB proposal for new productions equipment passed with a vote of 23-1-1. Orion Buckingham, UB productions chair, spoke to the Student Senate about the need for the equipment.

"We have done 36 events this year for 22 (Registered Student Organizations) on campus, and that is not including any of the events we do for UB," he said.

Last week, the Student Senate members voted to send the proposal back to committee for the AB to look at again. The AB approved the proposal after adjustments had been made, and it was sent back to the Student Senate.

The senate approved the $6,253, including the funding for new Public Address speakers, six radios and a CD player.

To allow Student Senate to advance its technological ability, the Student Senate passed three proposals for a scanner and hard drive, a camcorder, and nine flash drives. The scanner and hard drive proposal passed at $498 with a vote of 22-3-0.

The members of Student Government hope to use this equipment to save the pieces of legislature stored in the Student Activities Center as digital copies.

With hopes of filming meetings and lectures, the camcorder and tripod proposal for $225 was passed 12-8-5.

Senate member Isaac Sandidge said he was against this because they should take advantage of the technology they have now, such as the Web site, before they try to take on something new.

A proposal for nine flash drives to be used by the nine committees of the Student Government was also passed. This will cost about $90.

The University Development and Recycling Committee asked for $150 to plant a Japanese maple tree on campus.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Happy the hippo could soon be a lot hap-

The National Zoo's solitary male Nile hippopotamus is heading to the Milwaukee County Zoo, where his new home will include a pool, a sandy beach and two potential girlfriends, Puddles and Patty.

Zoo officials say they're sad to see Happy go, but that Milwaukee will offer him a great life.

Happy is 28 and weighs about 5,500 pounds.

He has to leave the National Zoo because his home is being eliminated for the expansion of the zoo's elephant exhibit.

The Milwaukee zoo, meanwhile, is beginning a roughly $10 million expansion of its hippopotamus exhibit, part of which will allow visitors to watch hippos swimming underwater.

Happy is expected to move to Milwaukee this summer.

With the majority of tests, quizzes and homework in the past, how a student studies for his finals can make or break his grade.

Faculty members usually take time to prepare students as the finals close in at the end of the semester.

"In order to bring a safari effect, we decided we would add some exotic animals," Seawood said.

Along with exotic animals, the event will have an inflatable climbing wall and obstacle course.

Photo key chains and photo magnets will be handed out, and students can play bingo under a tent or create spin art.

Students can take a plain Frisbee and shoot paint on it with a paint gun during spin art.

The bingo prizes include a television, a Brookfield Zoo package with hotel and parking passes for Seawood said Spring Fling is usually one of the bigger UBhosted events, with a total cost of about $10,000.

This number is a little higher than the cost of the Up All Nites during the year, he said.

Ceci Brinker, director of Student Life, said the "Spring Fling: Wild Safari" is a large event for students to end the year on a good note before studying for finals

"It is a chance for students to

Brinker said the event should be a fun way for students to unwind with entertainment, games, food and prizes before the end of the school year.

A highlight of having live animals is that students will get an educational experience.

They will learn some new things, such as the native habitat, behavior, species, interaction with humans," Brinker said. "Students should take advantage of the opportunity because they would not get a chance to see these exotic and tropical animals unless they were at the zoo or studying abroad."

Mike Usher, UB chair, said students will enjoy the petting zoo and the bingo prizes.

The monkey is usually out all day," he said.

Usher said people could take pictures with the animals with their own cameras or phones for their keepsake.

Handbook for the procrastinator

I am a procrastinator, and I know I am not alone. I've seen you at the library cramming every last piece of knowledge until your head explodes. This, the last week of school, is the season for procrastination as everyone waits until the last minute to get everything done. How do you know it's the season of the procrastinator? Wal Mart runs out of energy drinks, nobody is in a good mood and 90 percent of Facebook statuses have a statement followed with the three letters "FML."

All semester, the projects we were assigned, the term papers we were given and the books we had to read seemed so far away. Now the clock is ticking. Being a certified procrastinator myself, here are some tips on how to get things done on time without winding up in a physch ward.

All nighters

Let's face it. In this final week of school, sleep is overrated. I'm pretty sure it's a proven fact that the mind is at its most alert when it has not been rested in 28 straight hours. Next week, we will be free from lab reports and books by boring French writers no one has ever heard of. Summer is for rest so we can sleep then.

The key to the all nighter is really simple. Just drink as much energy drinks as possible, play your music really loud and, within a few days, you'll wonder why you have ever felt the need to take a nap in the first place. Just make sure you stay away from heavy machinery.

Wikipedia

There is not enough time left in the semester to finish that 1,000-page epic you were assigned in January, so there is only one place to go that has all the answers at the tip of your finger. Wikipedia. The site is God's gift to procrastinators. For those not familiar, Wikipedia is an online encyclopedia that allows anyone to add information. What could go wrong there? Need to find who won the War of 1812? United States. Boom, found it in 12 seconds. Need to know who played Gunnar Stahl in "D2: The Mighty Ducks?" Scott Whyte. Bam, three seconds.

See, Wikipedia has everything and can always be trusted (Note: Never trust Wikipedia).

Procrastinate procrastination

Anyone can procrastinate, but it takes a real warrior to wait until the very last second. Situation: You were assigned a term paper two months ago. It is the day before it is due. What's your move?

Wait until the last possible second. Everyone knows it's our human instinct to react with our utmost finest performance when we are trapped into a corner. It's basic human nature we inherited from evolution. So wait until 3 a.m. the day before the paper is due to start it. With panic and fear as motivation, you are bound to produce your finest work. You can't argue against science.

So for all you procrastinators out there, good luck with whatever assignment was not important enough to start on when it was assigned months ago. As for myself, I'm going

Don't abandon your pets when moving out next week

Let's turn the clock forward to next week.

Finals are over. Your parents have pulled up with a trailer to gut out your house and take you and your possessions home.
You didn't forget anything, did you?

You've loaded up box after box full of various possessions, from CDs to books, assured you hadn't left anything behind.

But what about that puppy chained up in the back yard? You love that puppy, right? You wouldn't want anything bad to happen to it, would you?

So why leave it behind?

Some students with pets seem to think after school, it's time to start over; it's time to get rid of everything from the college years.

Books, notes and even futons routinely bite the dust at the end of the spring semester, and sometimes pets are left behind with the twisted remains of the former foldout.

What causes this?

Do students' parents not allow pets in their homes?

Has the student run out of money or patience with the pet? Has the student simply underestimated the responsibility involved with taking care of a pet?

If a student's parents won't allow pets in the house, or if the student decides the pet can no longer be cared for after college for whatever reason, the student shouldn't have even had a pet in the first place.

If you find yourself in this position when moving out, consider giving the dog to a new home where it will be cared for properly instead of just leaving it behind and expecting it to work out on its own.

LACK OF POISE DOOMED PAGEANT CONTESTANT

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Carrie Prejean, Miss California USA, learned this week that if you find yourself starting to say, "No offense to anybody" in front of a big crowd of people, the next thing out of your mouth will make someone mad. Prejean, the first runner-up at the Miss USA 2009 pageant, caused a stir earlier this week when she stumbled her way through a trap question from judge Perez Hilton.

The Miss USA Pageant is a competition known for celebrating answers like "I would change my feet. I hate having a size nine," for questions like "If you could change one part of your past, what would it be?"

Hilton broke the mold and asked an insightful, hot-button question that far surpassed the contestant's preparation.

"Vermont recently became the fourth state to legalize same-sex marriage," Hilton asked. "Do you think every state should follow suit? Why or why not?"

Prejean has claimed her answer, which has been bashed by liberal bloggers like Hilton for its conservative tilt, lost her the crown. Hilton has confirmed that he would not have let her win the pageant following her answer. However, it was not what Prejean said that lost the crown, but how she said it.

She was obviously caught defenseless. If a Miss USA contestant choked on her words that much while talking about how much she loves puppies, she would have lost. Beauty pageants judge based on style and poise. Prejean showed little of either in her answer.

Perhaps she should have known the judge she was talking to better and pandered to him. Perhaps she should have shown a little better understanding of states' rights. Perhaps she should be respected for sticking to her beliefs despite being given a loaded question.

'You have to have a consistent number of faculty, and there's just one," Ludlow said. "I can't do a whole major by myself. We have faculty that teach courses, but they can't do it consistently."

She said it is getting easier to change this, because the university is hiring more faculty who are interested in women's studies.

The only thing the university would need to have a major is more introductory courses, Lud-

"If we developed a major, we wouldn't develop one until we could offer students the best opportunities of work and scholarships," Ludlow said. "We would want it to be top-notch before we propose it."

Currently faculty in the program comes from many different departments, including English, history, sociology and polit-

Freshman wins final Open Mic, wins $200

Original pieces, impromptu freestyle, playing guitar with teeth, featured at Open Mic

Manifest Destiny guitarist Jared "Ziggy" Chuck said performing is like a therapy session for the soul.

Chuck, a freshman biology major, said this just before his band's instrumental performance of "Apologize" by One Republic at the Open Mic Night Finals Wednesday night in 7th Street Underground.

Chuck was one of about 10 people to perform throughout the finals. Despite a crowd of more than 30, Manifest Destiny members said their nerves werent' an issue.

"I am used to big crowds, but it can be challenging having everyone stare at you, waiting for you to mess up," said Darius Logan, pianist for Manifest Destiny.

The band's main goal at Open Mic Night was to have fun, and share its musical energy with the crowd in hopes of having that energy returned back to the music,

"I feel more nervous now than I did on stage."

Chuck said.

Chuck entertained the audience by playing his guitar raised over his head, and then plucking the strings with his teeth.

"Echo" was about getting a girl to echo their names. The song was strewn with comical innuendos making the audience

Jeneice Mitchell, a freshman special education major, won the final Open Mic with a prize of $200 to Ticketmaster.

Open Mic was a way for students to display their original works. Performing on stage is the ultimate free-

STATE | POVERTY RATES

24 counties on poverty warning list

The Associated Press

CHICAGO - The recession likely has pushed hundreds of thousands of Illinoisans into poverty, according to a study released Thursday, and two leading indicators use of food stamps and emergency food assistance - appear to support that assertion.

More than 400,000 people have fallen into poverty statewide since 2007, an increase of about 27 percent, the Chicago-based Heartland Alliance Mid-America Institute on Poverty projects.

The most recent Census data on poverty are from 2007, so the projections were based on the relationship between unemployment and poverty, established during the last three recessions, said Amy Rynell, executive director of the poverty institute.

"The magnitude of our projection is very upsetting," said Rynell. "We've never seen an increase in poverty over a two-year period that is anywhere near this large, and important mechanisms to address it are not strong enough."

The state's jobless rate was 9.1 percent in March, the highest in more than 23 years, and the number of unemployed was at a 25-year high of 596,000.

Food banks are seeing a big surge in individuals and families requesting assistance, and the Illinois Department of Human Services says the state's emergency food program has distributed 36 percent more food in the first three quarters of the state's 2009 fiscal year, which began

"We've never seen an increase in poverty over a two-year period that is anywhere near this large ..."

Amy Rynell, executive director of the poverty institute previous year.

More than 672,000 households used food stamps last month, up 14 percent, or an additional 82,300 households, since December 2007, DHS data show.

The report placed 24 counties on its poverty warning list and 46 on its watch list, based on four indicators: unemployment, poverty, high school graduation and teen birth rates.

Suburban areas outside of Chicago are among those most at risk, and have seen "an exponential growth in poverty" as people move to the suburbs and work in lower-paying jobs, Rynell said.

Teesha George, a single mother of five who also cares for a 3-year-old grandchild, said she was barely getting by on an $8-an-hour custodial job. But since being laid off in August 2007, the Rockford woman - who said she didn't qualify for unemployment - and her family are surviving on $500 in food stamps each month.

"It's very depressing," George, 36, said Wednesday from the Rock River Valley Food Pantry, where she picked up groceries to tide her over until Friday, when May food stamp allocations are released. "You want last July, than it did in the entire to buy your kids clothes, maybe take them out to dinner, but you can't."

Dennis Smith, executive director of the Northern Illinois Food Bank, which serves food pantries, soup kitchens and shelters in 13 counties, said he does not doubt the institute's

'My wife volunteers at one of the food pantries ... and just about every story she told me was about people who never went to a pantry before, never had help before," but now they lost their jobs, Smith said. "The stories are unending."

Despite the rise in aid, Rynell said an estimated 79 percent of residents eligible for welfare assistance are not receiving it, and the state budget crisis has hurt the government's ability to help those in need.

She said the state Department of Human Services has fewer staff to do outreach and process applications. Since December 2007, the number of families receiving temporary assistance from the state has declined by 3 percent, according to state records.

DHS spokesman Tom Green said the agency has fewer caseworkers because of budget reductions and is "always looking to add more direct service staff when possible."

But the agency has made it easier or e-mail: decrews@eiu.edu or call: 217-581-2113

hosted by the college of arts and humanities for more information visit: www.eiu.edu/-festival for residents to apply for food stamps and temporary assistance by phone and online, Green said, giving caseworkers more time to process cases.

Smith, from the Northern Illinois Food Bank, said 11 of the food pantries served by the agency are participating in a pilot program to help people get food stamps automatically when they come in for help.

Workers help recipients apply online, a process that takes about 20 minutes. If they qualify, they get a LINK card on the spot.

Last month, 82 percent of those who applied were approved, and about 75 percent of those who've qualified in the past six months were first-time recipients "which tells you you're really getting people there who are legitimately in need," Smith said.

EPA raids city accused of using tainted water

CRESTWOOD — Federal agents have raided city offices in the Chicago suburb of Crestwood, Ill., which has been accused of knowingly drawing drinking water from a contaminated well for more than two decades.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says 15 agents from the EPA and other agencies entered the Crestwood village hall and public works department Wednesday. EPA spokeswoman Anne Rowan says they produced search warrants related to the tainted-water allegations.

The Chicago Tribune recently reported that Crestwood officials covered up the presence of chemicals in the water. It said state officials in the 1980s found the well contained chemicals linked to cancer.

Plane reports flames, lands safe in Seattle

SEATAC, Wash. — A Boeing 777 has landed safely at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport after reporting flames shot out of one of its engines.

Airport spokesman Perry Cooper says the Asiana Airlines Flight 271 turned around soon after takeoff Wednesday afternoon. Witnesses on the ground reported hearing explosions.

Cooper says it's unclear what might have caused the flames. The plane dumped fuel over Puget Sound before landing. The flight was headed to Seoul.

Kansas death toll from storms rises to 5

WICHITA, Kan. — The death toll from days of heavy rain in Kansas rose to five Wednesday when authorities found the bodies of two people in a car submerged in a flooded creek.

A 26-year-old Parsons man and a 22-year-old Springfield, Mo., woman were found by Labette County sheriff's deputies in Pumpkin Creek in southeast Kansas, the state Division of Emergency Management said.

The couple had been reported missing Tuesday evening. Authorities believe they were traveling west on a local road and were swept into the creek at a low-water crossing.

The five storm-related deaths have occurred in northeast, southeast and south-central Kansas since Saturday.

He said instead of keeping it to himself, he came to talk to coaches about his concerns.

"It is always difficult to train by yourself, but luckily he had a good supporting cast to help him through," Tobler said. "I am glad he came in and talked to us, because it is so easy to be lackadaisical when you are by yourself again."

Smith, Boey's roommate, said he tried to help him as much as possible last season.

"I always wanted to make sure he was practicing and everything," Smith said. "Although he was practicing every day, if he could, he would be right there beside us."

But Boey kept improving. When he finally got his chance to compete for Eastern the next season, he excelled.

Boey qualified for the 200-meter dash at the NCAA National Indoor Championships and shattered personal bests, propelling his way up the Eastern school record books with each and every meet.

At his first nationals, Boey was disqualified for a lane violation. For only the second time all season, Boey raced on a bank course which has a different turn than he is used to.

Akers said although his time even without the violation would not have been good enough to qualify for finals, his performance was a great experience for him, which will help him in the future.

Boey did not stray away from the fact, but took it head on.

"It was a bad race," he said. "No

He did not let it bring him down. When he was on the big stage again last weekend, he excelled. Eastem competed in the Drake Relays, one of the top outdoor track meets in the country.

In front of a sold-out crowd against and the best runners throughout the country, Boey again showed why he is so good. Boey finished second in the 100-meter dash in 10.38 seconds, .08

Harts was the 2009 indoor champion in the 200-meter dash.

"It was great," Boey said. "There were thousands of people there watching you, including top pros. I just wanted to go out there and perform."

For all of his personal accomplishments, Boey will always put his team first. He said his proudest accomplishment so far in his running career has not been his records or his trip to nationals, but his team's indoor championship title.

"Winning a conference title as a team was always my goal," Boey said. "My accomplishments did not mean anything to me unless we got a conference title ring. The best part of this year has been being a part of EIU track and field, running for Coach Akers."

With the outdoor season still undecided and Boey's three years of eligibility still remaining, the ceiling for his career is endless.

'We always say you are limited only what we think we can do," Akers said. "He can still make some gains and strength and explosiveness. There is no lid you can place on how good he can be."

Tobler said with Boey's work ethic it is hard to say how good he can be.

"The one thing he can keep on doing is getting faster," Tolber said. "He will start to plateau, which means he'll start getting the same times. But once he gets higher training with age, the more he runs, the more trains, the more of a technician he'll become.'

OTHER MALE ATHLETE OF THE YEAR CONSIDERATIONS

Brett Nommensen, senior -Baseball

The center fielder has helped lead the Panthers to 37 wins in their last 50 games.

He was leading the country in on-base percentage (.649) and slugging percentage (1.021) and led the Panthers to their first national ranking in program history and at the end of last season, a spot in the NCAA Regionals.

Pierre Walters, senior - Football

The senior defensive end/linebacker was a Second Team All-American and signed an undrafted free agent contract with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Walters earned his second straight All-Ohio Valley Conference honors at the end of the season. He also played in an all-star football game after the season ended.

David Holm, senior - Cross Country, Track

The senior from Canada qualified for the NCAA Indoor National Championships in March. He won the 800-meter run at the Ohio Valley Conference Indoor Championships for the third-straight season. He helped the Panthers take the indoor title and has the second-best 800-meter indoor time in school history.

They surpassed Tennessee Tech (944 strokes) on the second day, and then the Panthers surpassed Tennessee Martin (936) on the final day.

"The first day was uncharacteristic," said Eastern senior Matt Davis. "We were so far behind. We were going to play better than that."

This was the third day in a row a different Panther led the team.

Davis led the squad with an evenpar 72, a far different situation from his previous two days. Davis shot a 10-over-par and a six-over-par in his previous two days, respectively.

He finished with a 16-over-par to finish tied for 24th overall.

Davis said he wanted to finish his career strong.

He said he did by hitting the ball well on his drives and finally hitting

The third round of the tournament was halted by two rain delays.

Davis said the delays were annoy-thing," he said. "You just got to keep it together."

Davis said the rain delay helped him on the 12th hole because he had an easy par, but bogeyed on the 16th hole after the second rain delay.

On day one, sophomore Francisco Cherizola fired a three-overpar. Junior Matt Bird and freshman Gino Parrodi led on day two with a one-over-par 73.

Cherizola had the team's secondbest score on the third day and shot a two-over-par to finish with a 16over-par mark to finish tied for 24th overall.

Parrodi finished tied for 24th overall and fired an eight-over-par 80 to finish with a 16-over-par mark for the tournament.

Bird rounded out Eastern's scoring with a six-over-par 78 to finish the tournament with a 19-over-par showing. Bird finished 32nd.

Murray State was unable to hold off Austin Peay on the final day of the tournament. The Governors won to earn the automatic bid to the NCAA Regionals. The Racers led by five strokes heading into Wednesday, but shot a five-over-par as a team, and Austin Peav shot a one-underpar to earn the OVC Tournament Championship.

Jacksonville State sophomore Gonzalo Berlin won the individual title with a two-under par 214stroke count. Berlin won by one stroke and edged Morehead State senior Lee Chaney.

The Panthers return three of their four top golfers for next season with Davis being the only senior.

TOP CAT | CARRIE RIORDAN

Senior's past helps toward tourney title

Staff Reporter

Eastern senior Carrie Riordan was first motivated to play golf by her brother Corey. Corey had drawn an interest in golf when Riordan was in the eighth grade and soon she followed in her brother's footsteps by going out for the golf team.

Spring Valley High School, her high school, didn't have a girl's golf team, so Riordan joined the boy's team. Adding to the experience was the fact that Riordan had to adjust from shooting a total of 5,300 yards per match on the girl's team, to shooting 6,100 yards per match on the boy's team.

Riordan said the difference in yardage helped her prepare to play golf at the college level.

"Playing in high school (on the men's team) helped me prepare for (Division I) competitions by allowing me to understand the distances," Riordan said.

the boy's golf team helped Riordan develop strength in her swing as well as develop her work ethic, which she carried with her to college.

"I always like to work on things until the point that I feel comfortable with it," Riordan said. "If I'm not hitting the ball well, then I will keep practicing until I feel good about it. I wouldn't call myself a perfectionist, but I'm close."

Riordan's determination and strong play have shown this season, especially at the recent Ohio Valley Conference Championship, where she became the first Eastern golfer to win the tournament.

The event was held at Crooked Tree Golf Course in London, Ky.

At the tournament, Riordan came out on day one and posted a strong opening round, shooting a 2over-par 74. Riordan's first day score was good enough to land her in first place in the tournament. She then displayed her determination by finishing the final round of the tournament with a 5-over-par 77, which was good enough to finish the tournament with a final score of 14-over-par, 230 total strokes.

Senior golfer Carrie Riordan won the Ohio Valley Conference Tournament. Riordan slipped to second on the second day, but rebounded to win.

Riordan said winning the tournament was a goal when the season started.

"Me and (head coach Mike Moncel) had been talking about this since the beginning of the year," Riordan said. "My goal coming into the year was to win as many tournaments as possible, and right now it just feels like I'm on cloud nine."

Moncel said he was especially proud of Riordan's performance at the OVC Championship.

"She has worked her butt off for four years, and she certainly has earned it," he said. "Quite honestly, I expected her to win this tournament because we had talked about it for so long."

Moncel said Riordan's main strengths include her ball striking ability as well as her strong putting teammate Michelle Senior Anderson said another one of Riordan's strengths has been her competitive nature.

'She is always out there trying to work to get better, which shows the rest of the team how competitive she is," Anderson said.

NEIL SCHNEIDER

No rest for weary

What was supposed to be a final tune-up for next week's Ohio Valley Conference Championships turned out to be a successful day for the Eastern men's and women's track and field

Eastern finished with eight top-three performances in individual events and posted a topthree finish in a relay event at Saturday's Southern Illinois Edwardsville Twilight meet.

So much for taking it easy before the big OVC Champion-

Top performers for the Panthers included junior Ian Winston, who posted a second place finish in the high jump, with a jump of 6 feet, 9 inches. Fellow junior, pole-vaulter Dorrian White, also had a strong performance for the team as he posted a new season-best pole vault of 15 feet, 7 inches.

Continuing the success for the men was freshman Sean Wiggan, who placed second in the 800meter with a time of 1 minute, 54.68 seconds. Junior runner Aaron Iaun also placed second in the steeplechase with a final time of 9:57.66.

Sophomores Ryan Hoklas and Preston Smith also had strong performances at the meet. Hoklas was awarded the bronze medal in the 5,000-meter with a final time of 15:55.11. Smith also received a bronze medal with a time of 52.84 in the 400-meter hurdles event.

As a team, the Eastern men placed second in the 1,600-meter relay in 3:16.72.

On the women's side, senior Nicole Walcott finished third in the shot put with a throw of 45 feet, 2.25 inches, which was the only top three field event posted by Eastern. Walcott was the lone female winner for Eastern.

MALE ATHLETE OF THE YEAR | ZYE BOEY

AMIR PRELLBERG | THE DAILY EASTERN NEWS

Eastern red-shirt freshman Zye Boey competed at the NCAA Indoor National Championships and helped the men's indoor track team to a conference title.

Room for improvement

Year off gave sprinter time to prepare

By DAN CUSACK

Staff Reporter

When red-shirt freshman Zye Boey entered Lantz Fieldhouse Jan. 21, he was another talented runner with a lot of potential.

When he walked out, he was already one of the fastest college sprinters in the entire country.

It was the Illinois Intercollegiate Invitational. Boey was entering only his third college track meet of his career with solid results at Eastern's previous two meets.

But no one could have expected what he would do that day.

His first race was the 60-meter dash. Boey lined up, the gun went off and 6.66 seconds later he was across the finish line.

Sophomore sprinter Preston Smith said his jaw dropped when he saw that number, but Eastern track and field coach Tom Akers said Boey was not familiar with the 60meter, and was asking people if 6.66 was a good time.

Little did he know it was the fourth fastest time ran in the country at that point in the season, and the best time in Eastern indoor track history.

Later at the same meet, Boey would run a personal best 21.52 seconds in the 200-meter dash, which was third in school history.

"He was more excited about running the 21.52 in the 200 (meter dash)," Akers said. "We had talked before about him running in the (1,600-meter) relay. I told him it would make us better and he wasn't opposed. He ran a great leg of it later in the meet, and it made him a believer.'

Boey qualified for nationals in indoor track and continued his solid performance in both the indoor and outdoor track seasons.

Boey was one of many athletes who led Eastern to the Ohio Valley Conference Indoor Track Championship and his continued excellence on the track is why he was named the 2008-2009 Daily Eastern News Male Athlete of the Year.

Despite his success this season, last year did not go as well.

Boey could not practice with the team, and it was tough for him to train by himself.

"I came down here and had to train alone and got a little down on myself," Boey said. "But I talked to coaches and teammates, and they kept my head in it and my mind on being successful."

Jumps coach JaRod Tobler said it is always hard to train alone, but the difference with Boey is that he always kept his eyes on his goals.

SOFTBALL | SOUTHEAST MISSOURI 8, EASTERN 3

By KEVIN MURPHY

Sports Editor

The Eastern softball team continued its late-season slide, losing its 11th game in a row with an 8-3 loss to Southeast Missouri Wednesday in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Panthers (24-25, 8-12) moved into a tie for sixth place with Tennessee State in the Ohio Valley Conference, the last spot for the OVC Tournament.

"It hurts every time we lose," said Eastern head coach Kim Schuette. "Somehow, you've got to get through. I think they're really hurting right now."

The Panthers got on the board first with an RBI single by sophomore first baseman Melinda Jackson in the top of the second inning.

'It's the first time in awhile we've led," Schuette said.

The Redhawks (24-19, 13-8) responded in the fourth inning with two runs, but those runs could have been prevented if not for an error, Schuette said.

Eastern took its last lead of the game thanks to a two-run home run from junior right fielder Dence' Menzione. Menzione's eighth home run of the season ties an Eastern record for home runs in a season and gives her 19 for her career.

She led the Panthers with two of the six hits.

Eastern sophomore Amber May (17-16) pitched six innings, giving up eight runs on eight hits. She walked three and struck out one.

Schuette said May was ahead in the counts, but gave up two home runs.

SEMO freshman Giana Zimmerman (15-8) pitched a complete game, allowing only six hits and three unearned runs. She walked one and struck out seven.

"We need to put the ball in play," Schuette said. "We're striking out too much. We need to take the pressure off ourselves. That's what got us our record (to start out)."

The Panthers have scored 2.45 runs a game in the 11-game losing streak. They have scored only four runs in the past four games.

"I expect a lot more," Schuette said of the offense.

The Panthers return to action against Austin Peay to close out the regular season. All three games will be played in Clarksville, Tenn., with a doubleheader at 1 p.m. Saturday and the final game at noon Sunday.

They're trying to relax," Schuette said. "They're putting their hearts on the line. That's all you can ask as
