FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SLIDE PRESENTATION ON "SEARCHING FOR HUMAN ORIGIN IN AFRICA"

CHARLESTON, IL--The public is invited to a free slide presentation, "Searching for Human Origin in Africa," at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3, in Eastern Illinois University's Life Science Building, Room 201.

Presenter Glenn Conroy, professor in the Department of Anatomy and Neurobiology and the Department of Anthropology at Washington University in St. Louis, is an expert on South African Australopithecus, a genus of extinct apelike men from Africa who made tools and walked erectly.

In 1991, he was featured in Newsweek for the discovery of a 10-15 million-year-old pre-human ancestor fossil jawbone and has been published in Science, Nature and American Journal of Physical Anthropology.

The presentation is sponsored by the Eastern's Zoology Club.
