ENGLISH 3001
ADVANCED COMPOSITION
PROFESSOR M. LEDDY
FALL 2014

We will practice the art of writing—sentences, paragraphs, essays—with as much room for improvement as a semester allows. Some writing will be on assigned topics; some, on topics of your devising. Some writing will be practical; some will involve the mind at play. All work in the course will emphasize revision as a necessary practice in writing. (I've made fifteen small revisions in writing this description.) The possibilities for our writing will come from reading: about culture, education, and writing.

In the world beyond college, you'll be the one responsible for the shape your writing skills are in. This course provides a great opportunity to get those skills in better shape now.

TEXTS
Diana Hacker and Nancy Sommers, A Pocket Style Manual
Michael Harvey, The Nuts and Bolts of College Writing
Verlyn Klinkenborg, Several Short Sentences About Writing
Richard Lanham, Revising Prose
Virginia Tufte, Artful Sentences

Other reading will be available as PDFs or photocopies.

You should have access to a collegiate (college-level) dictionary when reading and writing.

REQUIREMENTS
The course will require dedicated daily work (reading, writing, sharing work, talking), several essays, and several conferences.

ATTENDANCE
Be here, on time, every time. You're responsible for all assignments, whether or not you're here when they're announced.

Frequent absences will affect your grade, not through a system of points and deductions but simply because not being here will make it difficult to do the work of thinking and learning that the course is meant to involve. If you must miss a class, you should get in touch with me beforehand to find out what you will miss.

Photocopied pages to go with our reading will be available from an envelope on my office door.

LATE WORK, MAKE-UP WORK
Missed work cannot be made up. Late work is acceptable only if you have my okay in advance.

OFFICE HOURS
Talking to professors is one of the smartest things a college student can do. Please, come in to ask questions and talk about your work in the class. If office hours don't work for you, make an appointment.

If you feel uneasy about talking to professors, read "How to talk to a professor" for potentially helpful advice: goo.gl/VYSkv.

E-MAIL
Please read and follow the guidelines in "How to e-mail a professor": goo.gl/4n6EH. These guidelines are read all over the world and will serve you well in e-mailing any professor (assuming that your professor answers e-mail).

One guideline that you don't need to follow: you need not add your class number and meeting time to your signature. I'll know who you are.

DECORUM
The atmosphere in our class should be serious—not somber or pretentious, but collegiate and genuinely intellectual. No eating, sleeping, talking, texting, or doing work for other classes. No headphones, iPods, or phones. Electronic devices should be off and out of sight before class begins. Please show proper respect for our community of learning.

DISCUSSION
Consider what the writer Thomas Merton says about a teacher he admired (Mark Van Doren, Columbia University):

Most of the time he asked questions. His questions were very good, and if you tried to answer them intelligently, you found yourself saying excellent things that you did not know you knew, and that you had not, in fact, known before.

I like to ask questions that invite thinking. I also like it when people ask me such questions. Try to think of an in-class question not as having an answer you're already supposed to know but as an invitation to think. I know that this suggestion might go against the grain of much of your experience in classrooms. You should be asking relevant questions too, of me and perhaps of one another. That helps to make the class less like a quiz show and more like a conversation.

One more observation on discussion, from the cultural critic Randolph Bourne:

A good discussion increases the dimensions of every one who takes part. Being rather self-consciously a mind in a group of minds means becoming more of a person.

As you can see, I'm optimistic about discussion. For more on questions and discussion, read "How to answer a question": goo.gl/DizA6.

GRADING
Your grade will be based on your essays (60%), day-to-day work (20%), and participation in class and conferences (20%).

Essays receive letter grades. Other assignments receive numerical grades, from zero to 100. Missing work receives a zero. Participation and conferences receive a numerical grade, an overall evaluation of the extent to which you’re prepared and contributing: 100 (always), 85 (frequently), 75 (usually), 50 (sometimes), 0 (rarely or never).

To calculate semester grades, I use numerical equivalents for letter grades:

- A 95
- A− 92
- B+ 87
- B 85
- B− 82
- C+ 77
- C 75
- C− 72
- D+ 67
- D 65
- D− 62
- F 55

Sometimes when I grade writing I’ll give a grade that falls between two grades—e.g., B+/A− (89.5).

For semester grades, 90 or above is an A; 80 or above, a B; 70 or above, a C; 60 or above, a D; below 60, an F.

EWP
You may include work from the course in your Electronic Writing Portfolio. Please make sure that you understand the requirements for the Electronic Writing Portfolio and that you fulfill them in a timely way. For more information: www.eiu.edu/~assess/

DISABILITIES
If you have a documented disability and need accommodations to participate fully in our class, please make an appointment with the Office of Student Disability Services, Ninth Street Hall, Room 2006, 581-6583.

STUDENT SUCCESS
Students who are having difficulty achieving their academic goals are encouraged to contact the Student Success Center (www.eiu.edu/~success) for assistance with time-management, test-taking, note-taking, avoiding procrastination, setting goals, and other skills. To make an appointment, call 581-6696, or go to Ninth Street Hall, Room 1302.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
The University’s statement on academic integrity:

Students are expected to maintain principles of academic integrity and conduct as defined in EIU’s Code of Conduct (www.eiu.edu/judicial/studentconductcode.php). Violations will be reported to the Office of Student Standards.

The English Department’s statement on plagiarism:

Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism—“the appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author, and the representation of them as one’s original work” (Random House Dictionary of the English Language)—has the right and responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignment of a grade of F for the course.

And my statement concerning academic integrity:

Any breach of academic integrity—from a single sentence cut and pasted into a dinky little assignment to a stretch of “reworded” prose to a wholly unoriginal essay—is a serious matter and will get you a serious penalty. The Office of Student Standards recommends an F for the course. You will also be required to take a course in ethics administered by Student Standards, whose staff will keep your misconduct on record and notify your other professors that one of their students has violated academic integrity.

You should be familiar with Eastern’s statement on academic integrity and should ask if you have any questions about quoting from and/or documenting sources. But because the work of the course is to be an expression of your ideas in your words, aside from words and ideas from properly acknowledged sources, questions of plagiarism and collusion should never arise.

Do not “borrow” work or give your work to anyone (allowing someone else to make use of your work is also a breach of academic integrity and will also get you a serious penalty, up to and including an F for the course).

PROVISIONAL OUTLINE (WEEKS)
1: Thinking about writing, Flowers and Zinsser on good writing
2–3: Harvey, Lanham
4–5: Paragraph work; readings on writing, high school, and the workplace
6: Conferences
7–8: Punctuation work, readings on trigger warnings, second essay
9: Conferences
10–11: Readings on college, third essay
12: Conferences, readings on academic integrity
13: Sentence work, fourth essay
14: Conferences
15: Fifth essay, last things

Essays should run three to four typed pages. Provisional due dates: 9/26, 10/15, 11/5, 11/21, 12/20. Other written work, one to two pages, will be assigned as in-class writing or on a due-next-class basis.

THREE THOUGHTS
We learn to write well, if we ever do, by reading good prose, paying close attention to our own words, revising relentlessly, and recalling the connections between written and spoken language.

Writing requires a high degree of inner alertness, especially when things are going wrong.

職人気質 shokunin katagi in Japanese culture, the spirit of the craftsman or artisan, a dedication to work for the sake of work, a devotion to getting things right for the sake of getting them right.
As of Fall 2014, syllabi must include catalogue descriptions and a statement of Eastern Illinois University Learning Goals:

ENG 3001 - Advanced Composition.
(3-0-3) On Demand. Advanced study and practice of writing in public, professional, and discipline-specific genres. This course is open to all EIU students, but the online version of ENG 3001 is restricted to off-campus students in the Fall and Spring semesters and open to all EIU students in the Summer. WC

Prerequisites & Notes:
