EASTERN SELECTS HOLLEY DISTINGUISHED PROFESSOR

CHARLESTON, IL.--Dr. Stephen L. Payne, Professor of Management at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, has accepted Eastern Illinois University's offer of appointment as the first Bertrand P. Payne is a scholar of national prominence in the area of business ethics and social responsibility, said Dr. Ted Ivarie, Dean of the Lumpkin College of Business.

The endowed professorship was established in 1986 in honor of Bertrand P. Holley, EIU Associate Professor Emeritus of Management, in recognition of his 41 years of dedicated service as teacher, counselor and mentor.

It was initiated by a group of alumni who wanted to recognize the importance of continuing Holley's emphasis on business ethics and social responsibility. The professorship is funded in part through donations from alumni, friends, associations and businesses.

Recognized for his research activities, Payne has authored numerous articles on the subject of management values/ethics that have appeared in such publications as Supervisory Management, Personnel Administrator and Academy of Management Review. He has also made presentations on business ethics and social responsibility.

"We are pleased that someone of Dr. Payne's reputation is joining our faculty to continue Professor Holley's emphasis on business ethics and social responsibility--a very timely topic," said Ivarie.

Payne, who will officially begin his duties next fall, will teach, lecture, provide leadership in curriculum and faculty development and publish and consult on business ethics and social responsibility.

Payne, who received his doctorate degree at Arizona State University, has taught at the University of Southwestern Louisiana since 1981.

His instructional interests include business ethics, business and society, organizational behavior and fundamentals of management. He has also had experience teaching management in technological organizations and production/operations management.

He is a member of The Academy of Management, the Better Business Bureau's Consumer Arbitration Program and Society for Business Ethics.

In 1988, he was appointed as a member of the Academy of Management's All-Academy Task Force on a Code of Ethics and as an editorial review board member of the Journal of Management Systems.

His wife, Paula, holds a Ph.D. in English from the University of Southwestern Louisiana.
