FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

GRAVES RECEIVES OASI AWARD

CHARLESTON, IL.--Pat Graves of Tuscola, Assistant Professor of Business Education and Administrative Information Systems at Eastern Illinois University, is the recipient of the Office Automation Society International Grace M. Hopper Award.

Graves received the award for presenting the best paper, entitled, "Facility Management--A Blending of People/Workflow/Equipment," at OASI's recent annual conference in Falls Church, VA.

GRAVES

Her paper, co-authored with two colleagues at California State Polytechnic University, was one of two papers selected for special recognition at the conference.

The award is named after Grace M. Hopper, an early leader in the computer industry who developed the first programming language handling symbol manipulation in the 1940s-50s.

OASI is a non-profit association for both new and experienced professionals concerned with integrating new technologies into the office environment.

Graves is certified by OASI as a Certified Office Automation Professional and is currently serving on the Professional Certification Council.
