FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHARLESTON, IL.--`Global Interdependence: Traditions and Transitions' is the special theme of Eastern Illinois University's 1986 Summer School program.

Summer `86 will feature its eighth series of Distinguished Visiting Faculty workshops and lectures related to the theme.

The seven visiting professors are Fred Luthans, Sang Lee, Judy-Arin Krupp, Richard Farmer, Dominic Murray, Joan Embery and Dennis Pirages. All are scheduled to teach week long or weekend workshops.

"In addition, each visiting faculty member will present a public lecture/performance providing students, faculty and the community an opportunity for cultural enrichment through a summer lecture series," said Dr. Charles Switzer, director of Summer School.

Joan Embery, International Goodwill Ambassador for the San Diego Zoo and Wild Animal Park and frequent guest on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show, will highlight the summer's activities.

She will direct a workshop the week of July 21-24 on wildlife survival. She has hosted 130 half hour episodes for the television series, `Animal Express', spoken to over 900 educational, business, religious and civic organizations and authored three books.

Luthans and Lee, both from the University of Nebraska, will co-teach a workshop, June 23-26, on global perspectives concerning the changing roles of modern management.

Luthans, Regents Professor of Management, is current president of the Academy of Management and author of over 100 journal articles and 14 books. Lee is past president of the American Institute of Decision Sciences and chairs the Department of Management. He has written 21 books and over 140 research papers.

Krupp, a nationally known consultant in adult development and education, staff development and stress management, will teach a workshop July 7-10 on understanding and dealing with major life transitions and changes.

Farmer will teach a July 11-12 weekend workshop on international business and the midwest. He is professor of international business at Indiana University and former president of the Academy of International Business.

Murray, statutory lecturer for the National University of Ireland and senior faculty member of the Department of Education at the University College at Cork, has written nine books on various topics in education. He will present a workshop, July 14-17, on education and social conflict.

Pirages, who served in the United States State Department from 1982-84, is a world wide recognized authority on international ecopolitics. He will teach the final workshop, August 4-7, on new patterns of technology and resource interdependence.
