Anderson to California

Eastern President Stan Rives said, "I am pleased to see Dr. Anderson have the opportunity for professional advancement. While we shall miss her at Eastern, she is qualified for greater responsibility, particularly as a result of her recent fellowship experience with the American Council on Education. She leaves Eastern with our best wishes."

In her new position she will be responsible for the University's government relations, long-term planning, and assisting the President in administration of the athletic program.

The University has 25,000 undergraduate and graduate students and is one of 20 in the California State University System. She will hold the faculty rank of Associate Professor in Psychology and will begin her duties in August.

Anderson said she's looking forward to the new challenges and opportunities at California State University, Fullerton.

She said she has witnessed a tremendous amount of change and progress in Eastern's Affirmative Action Program over the past ten years. "I've had the opportunity to work with a number of good people, and I'll miss Eastern." Anderson also noted that she and her family would miss the Charleston community. "It's been a great place to raise a family."
