

Brief Author Bio

Nicholas DiGiovanni, Jr. is a partner in the Boston law firm of Morgan, Brown & Joy, a firm exclusively devoted to the practice of labor and employment law representing management. Throughout his career of almost 40 years, Mr. DiGiovanni has specialized in representing institutions of higher education on labor and employment matters and is currently counsel to numerous institutions, including Harvard University, Brandeis, Tufts, the University of Vermont, University System of New Hampshire, and the Vermont State Colleges, among many others.

Among the many aspects of his work, he has served as a Chief Negotiator on behalf of various college and university administrations in numerous rounds of faculty and staff collective bargaining

He is an active member of the National Association of College and University Attorneys and served as a member of its Board of Directors from 2008 to 2011. He has spoken many times at NACUA conferences on a full range of labor and employment issues. For many years, he has also been a regular speaker at the annual conference of the National Center for the Study of Collective Bargaining in Higher Education and the Professions, and he has spoken at many other conferences and workshops on labor issues involving higher education.

Mr. DiGiovanni has a number of publications to his credit, including numerous articles on collective bargaining and labor relations; guides for practitioners; and a book on age discrimination for college administrators.

Mr. DiGiovanni holds a B.A. (summa cum laude) from Providence College where he majored in English, and he received his J.D. from Cornell University Law School in 1973. Further biographical information can be found on his firm's website.

www.morganbrown.com