AN EVENING OF D.H. LAWRENCE

Artistic Staff

Directed byW. Evan Mannakee
Settings byJames F. Fluck
Costumer Marjorie Stevens

Director's Notes

"There seems nothing which Lawrence's imagination cannot enter into, either in nature or in the instinctive life of men and women. It recoils solely before most of the things in which the imagination has till now found its inspiration: the conscious life of mankind, ordinary relations and problems, the tragedy and comedy of life as we know it. Mr. Lawrence has deepened these for us, but he has also dived beneath them so far that in effect he ignores them. And that is because he is on the side of the instincts, and against all the forms, emasculated or deformed, in which they can be manifested in a civilized society. His view of life is one-sided in a magnificent and obvious way, like the instincts, or like nature."

Edwin Muir, 1926
