Fall 2014

Revolutionary Decade: Reflections on the 1960s

Booth Library

Follow this and additional works at: http://thekeep.eiu.edu/revolutionary_decade_program

Recommended Citation
http://thekeep.eiu.edu/revolutionary_decade_program/1

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the 2014 – Revolutionary Decade: Reflections on the 1960s at The Keep. It has been accepted for inclusion in Revolutionary Decade: Exhibit Booklet by an authorized administrator of The Keep. For more information, please contact tabruns@eiu.edu.
REVOLUTIONARY DECADE | REFLECTIONS ON THE 1960s

SEPTEMBER 9 - NOVEMBER 20, 2014
EASTERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
BOOTH LIBRARY
An exhibit and program series
produced by Booth Library, Eastern Illinois University
September 9 - November 20, 2014

www.library.eiu.edu
Dear Friends,

Booth Library welcomes you to our latest exhibition and program series, Revolutionary Decade: Reflections on the 1960s. This comprehensive project is the culmination of months of planning, research and implementation by all levels of library staff.

The series is designed to provide students and citizens of our region with insights into a wide range of aspects of life in the United States during this eventful, turbulent decade. The library is filled with staff-produced exhibits on topics including visual arts, literature, fashion, music, science and technology, political and social movements, and other broad themes. In addition, a wide range of programs will be presented, including scholarly presentations, discussion panels, film screenings, performances and a fashion show.

Revolutionary Decade came about thanks to grants provided by the Illinois State Library and the Illinois Humanities Council. The Illinois State Library awarded Booth Library a Back to Books grant, which allowed us to purchase a wide range of library materials from and about the 1960s to strengthen existing collections. The Illinois Humanities Council supplemented our programming by bringing a member of its Road Scholars Speakers Bureau to Eastern’s campus.

We are proud to work with our community partners, the Mattoon Arts Council and the Mattoon High School Art Department, to bring 1960s programs to an audience beyond our campus. Special thanks also to our other sponsors: Tarble Arts Center, WEIU Radio, EIU Center for the Humanities, Coles County Arts Council, and the Charleston and Mattoon public libraries.

Best wishes,

Allen Lanham, Ph.D.
Dean of Library Services
Opening Reception
Tuesday, September 9, 2014, 7 p.m.
Booth Library West Reading Room

Welcome
Allen Lanham, dean of library services

Greetings
Blair Lord, provost and vice president for academic affairs

Recognition of Faculty Presenters and Curators
Robert L. Martinez, assistant professor of English and chair, Library Advisory Board

Closing
Dean Lanham

Light Refreshments
Tastes of the 1960s
Opening Program

7:30 p.m., Booth Library West Reading Room

“No Problem of Human Destiny is Beyond Human Beings”: John F. Kennedy and the Spirit of the 1960s
Presented by Dr. Edmund Wehrle, professor of history

For many, President John F. Kennedy remains synonymous with the youthful, activist spirit of the global 1960s. Yet most historians view the 35th president as an aggressive, cold warrior who endangered the world and a conservative Democrat who proved painfully slow to respond to the challenge of the civil rights movement. In truth, Kennedy was barely a liberal and certainly no radical. International communism, he believed, presented a grave, existential threat, and he showed little real interest in domestic reform. Nevertheless, Kennedy’s rhetoric and carefully cultivated image inspired many — especially young people around the world. To some extent, in fact, Kennedy grasped the aspirations for positive change enveloping youth both at home and around the world. While he had no patience with revolutionary activism, he recognized and sought to respond to yearnings for change swirling throughout the world. In that sense, he did, in fact, help inspire the tumult and even the revolutionary spirit of the 1960s.

Edmund Wehrle is professor of history at Eastern Illinois University, where he has taught since 2000. He is author of “Between a River and a Mountain”: The AFL-CIO and the Vietnam War (Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 2005) and coauthor (with Lawrence Peskin) of America in the World: Ideas, Trade and Warfare (Johns Hopkins Press, 2011). He is working on a manuscript exploring the experience of Vietnamese employees of associated U.S. contractors during the Vietnam War.
Programs

The Spirit of Motown

Sunday, Sept. 14, 2 p.m., Tarble Arts Center Atrium
Presented by José Sandoval, Illinois Humanities Council Road Scholars Speakers Bureau

In the early ’60s, Detroit was Motown U.S.A. and the automobile capital of the world. In 1959, Motown records founder, Berry Gordy, gathered the best musicians from Detroit’s thriving jazz and blues scene to form his studio band, the Funk Brothers. Together, they played on Motown hits such as “My Girl,” “I Heard It Through the Grapevine,” “Just My Imagination,” “Baby Love,” “The Tears of a Clown” and “Ain’t No Mountain High Enough.” The sound they created bridged racial divides and produced more number one hits than the Beach Boys, the Rolling Stones, Elvis and The Beatles combined. This program allows the audience to experience the sounds of Motown and discover the story behind the legend. This presentation was made possible by a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council.

José Sandoval is a performing musician and music educator. He started studying the violin at age two with Betty Haag’s Suzuki Academy. At age four, he began studying classical piano with Radcliffe graduate Carol Stein. In high school, Sandoval began his jazz piano training and continued to study jazz and classical piano with professors from Harvard University, Berklee School of Music, New England Conservatory and Longy School of Music of Bard College. Sandoval graduated cum laude with a master’s and a bachelor’s degree in physics from Harvard University in 2002. Currently, Sandoval is an Illinois Humanities Council Road Scholar Speaker, teaches private piano lessons and is a science instructor for the Center for Gifted in Glenview, IL. He performs regularly with many different bands in Chicago. This winter, he will complete an M.A. in teaching secondary science education from National Louis University.
The Other Side of the ’60s: Hidden Dimensions of One of America’s Most Significant Decades

Tuesday, Sept. 23, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Lynne Curry, professor of history; Dr. Debra Reid, professor of history; and Dr. Charles Titus, assistant professor emeritus of history

The 1960s were a remarkable time, an extraordinary era that saw events ranging from the emergence of the civil rights movement to the tragedy of the Vietnam War to the appearance of the Beatles to the fulfillment of President John F. Kennedy’s challenge to place a human on the moon before the close of the decade. But there were other, less-known aspects of this noteworthy period as well, for the 1960s were also a time when there was a resistance to the expansion of civil rights, when there was an intrusion by states into the private lives of citizens, and when the national government exerted a little understood but powerful influence on American public education.

In The Other Side of the ’60s: Hidden Dimensions of One of America’s Most Significant Decades, three members of EIU’s history department will share some of these less visible facets of this pivotal time in our nation’s past. In Sex, Drugs, and the U.S. Supreme Court, Dr. Lynne Curry will show how state governments at the time were remarkably intrusive into the everyday private lives of American citizens. In Between Cairo and Chicago: Resistance to Rights Expansion During the 1960s, Dr. Debra Reid will explain how, in the midst of a national expansion of civil rights, there was resistance to that expansion in our own state of Illinois. In Cold War Classrooms: How American Education Served the National Security State, Dr. Charles Titus will describe how American education in a variety of ways served national security interests during the Cold War.

Lynne Curry is a professor of history at EIU. Her research addresses the intersections of legal and medical history in the United States. Her publications include The DeShaney Case: Child Abuse, Family Privacy, and the Dilemma of State Intervention (University Press of Kansas, 2007), The Human Body on Trial: A Sourcebook with Cases, Laws and Documents (ABC-CLIO, 2004), and Modern Mothers in the Heartland: Gender, Health, and Progress in Illinois, 1900-1930 (The Ohio State University Press, 1999). She is also the co-editor, with Christopher R. Waldrep, of a four-volume series of primary source documents in U.S. Constitutional History, The U.S. Constitution and the Nation (Peter Lang Publishing, 2003). She is working on a book examining the role of the law in balancing parents’ religious freedom with children’s rights to receive medical care at the turn of the 20th century.
Charles Titus is an emeritus member of the EIU history department, where he taught U.S. history, Illinois history, U.S. military history and social science teaching methods classes. He received a Ph. D. from Indiana University at Bloomington.

Debra A. Reid grew up on an Illinois farm 77 miles north of Cairo and completed a B.S. degree at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, 33 miles north and across the Mississippi River from Cairo. Her research has focused on rural southern history, i.e. Reaping a Greater Harvest: African Americans, the Extension Service and Rural Reform in Jim Crow Texas (2007). She has explored issues of race in upland southern borderlands, and in rural and urban context [see Beyond Forty Acres and a Mule: African Americans Landowning Farm Families since Reconstruction (co-edited by Reid with Evan P. Bennett, 2012) and “The Whitest of Occupations’?: African Americans in the Rural Midwest, 1940-2010,” in The Rural Midwest since World War II (edited by J. L. Anderson, 2014)]. She also investigates the past in popular or collective memory. From that vantage point, the “other side of the 1960s” remains palpable.

John Lewis, future chair of the SNCC, and others demonstrate in 1962 at the Cairo, IL, pool, which did not allow blacks.
Student Research Panel

Global Diplomacy in the 1960s

Wednesday, Sept. 24, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Moderated by Dr. Edmund Wehrle, professor of history

In the 1960s, the world often appeared to be spinning out of control. Amidst rapid global transformation, international relations changed forever. Old sources of power receded, and new forces swiftly rose. In this panel, three EIU graduate students explore variations on this theme of revolutionary change. Participating will be Kimberly Jones, who will present No Place Like Home: Robert F. Williams — World Exile; Michael Ludwinski, presenting The Kennedy-MacMillan Affair: The Making of a Special Relationship; and Adam Mohebbi, who will present Inaction, Not Indifference: Rhodesia and Postcolonialism in the 1960s.

Film Screening

Dawn of the Dead: The Grateful Dead and the Rise and Fall of the San Francisco Underground

Tuesday, Sept. 30, 7 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Bill Schultz Jr., assistant professor of library services

This 138-minute film, produced by Sexy Intellectual/Prism Films, 2012, details the origins and very early years of the Grateful Dead in the context of the closely knit and experimental San Francisco music scene of the middle to late 1960s. From a fascinating insider’s perspective, it tells the parallel story of the unique musical development of the Grateful Dead, as well as the development, rise and eventual fall of the Haight-Ashbury counterculture in general between 1965 and 1969.

Bill Schultz Jr. is a cataloging librarian at Booth Library and subject specialist for anthropology, sociology and psychology. He received an M.L.S. from Indiana University-Bloomington and an M.A. in Appalachian studies with a focus on sustainable development from Appalachian State University. He is an amateur musician and cellist with the Eastern Symphony Orchestra. He is also a longtime fan of the Grateful Dead, having seen them live 30-plus times between 1988 and 1994. He maintains a large personal collection of the band’s live recordings.
Neglected Promises Realized:
The First Amendment Comes of Age in the ’60s

Wednesday, Oct. 1, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Les Hyder, professor of journalism

Many of the freedom-of-expression rights that Americans take for granted today were largely unavailable to most citizens before the 1960s. In a series of landmark rulings during the ’60s the Supreme Court finally began to interpret the rights specified in the First Amendment as being guaranteed to all American citizens. This presentation will discuss the cases that changed the course of history and consider the implications and effects.

Les Hyder is professor of journalism at Eastern. Before coming to EIU in 1994 as chair of the journalism department, he taught at Southern Methodist University and the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. He has been a broadcast and print journalist and manager. His numerous awards include induction in the College Media Adviser Hall of Fame. He has taught in Great Britain and led Study Abroad classes. He has taught regular, online and honors sections of Journalism and Democracy, Public Relations and Society, Mass Media and Society, Journalism Ethics, and Freedom of Expression.

Screening and Discussion

“Fantastic” Sitcoms of the 1960s: “I Dream of Jeannie” and “Bewitched”

Thursday, Oct. 2, 3:30 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Melissa Ames, assistant professor of English, and Dr. Malgorzata Rymsza-Pawlowska, assistant professor of history

Although television historians and critics generally see the 1950s as the decade of the domestic sitcom, commercial television in the 1960s was characterized by several programs that combined elements of science fiction and fantasy with the basic sitcom format. Close readings of such programs reveal the way that they reflect changing gender relations, a growing ambiguity regarding postwar modernism and tensions about the Cold War. Television is arguably the most important medium of this period; the mid-1960s are a transitional moment in the American political, social and cultural scene; these programs help us see how. Episodes from two such programs, Bewitched (1964) and I Dream of Jeannie (1965), will be screened, followed by discussion about the issues raised by both the sitcom format and specific storylines, and the ways in which these programs (and television in general) can help us understand some of the shifts taking place in the mid-1960s.

Malgorzata J. Rymsza-Pawlowska is assistant professor in the Department of History and the graduate program in historical administration. Her research and teaching interests include 19th- and 20th-century U.S. history, media history and theory, critical theory, museum studies, public history and digital humanities. Her work has appeared in the Journal of Popular Film and Television, Film & History, and Technology and Culture. She is working on a manuscript on historical consciousness in the postwar U.S. At Eastern, she is chair of the digital humanities committee at the Humanities Center. She has a Ph.D. in American studies from Brown University, and M.A. degrees in public humanities from Brown University and communication, culture and technology from Georgetown University.

Student Research Panel

Then and Now: Remembering the 1960s

Wednesday, Oct. 8, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Moderated by Dr. Sally Renaud, interim chair of the journalism department

As iconic events of the 1960s are being remembered and celebrated to commemorate their 50th anniversaries, it is interesting to discover how American sentiments about those events have evolved, and sometimes changed. To that end, students in HIS 3940: History of American Journalism examine how events of the 1960s were reported initially in the pages of predominant newspapers and magazines of the era, and through television. They then compare the coverage with how these events are remembered today. Three undergraduate journalism students, Katelyn R. Ifft, Danielle Swindel and Gina L. Volk, will share and discuss their findings.
Extravaganza of 1960s Fashion, Music and Dance!

Thursday, Oct. 9, 7 p.m., Grand Ballroom, Martin Luther King Jr. University Union

Join us for an evening of 1960s fashion, music, costumes and dance! Dress up as your favorite 1960s personality, watch a runway fashion show accompanied by popular music of the 1960s and participate in a ’60s dance lesson/competition. WEIU Hit-Mix Radio will provide the music. Surprise guests and impersonators will make this a real fun “trip” through the 1960s.

Film Screening

Free Radicals: An Exploration of Experimental Film

Tuesday, Oct. 14, 7 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. David Gracon, assistant professor of communication studies

This presentation and discussion provides an overview of experimental film from the 1960s and beyond. It explores the various motivations behind experimental filmmaking as an oppositional and radical departure from conventional filmmaking practices. Experimental film is daringly non-commercial, non-narrative and low-budget cinema. The program also addresses the various aesthetic techniques utilized by avant-garde filmmakers such as Stan Brakhage, Jonas Mekas, Peter Kubelka, Hans Richter and Maya Deren. These techniques include painting on or scratching film, exploring abstraction and surrealism, along with other unorthodox and free-form methods. The presentation features Pip Chodorov’s 2012 playful documentary essay Free Radicals: A History of Experimental Film. Come and learn, or unlearn, what you know about film.

David Gracon is a media activist, video maker and scholar. He is a native of Buffalo, N.Y., and has since the mid-’90s invested in post-punk, indie, experimental music scenes, zine communities and college radio, as well as activist-orientated experimental film, video and documentary communities and collectives. Since 1997, his documentary and experimental film and video works have screened at the Chicago Underground Film Festival, Seattle Underground Film Festival, Pittsburgh Independent Film Festival, Hallwalls Contemporary Art Center (Buffalo, N.Y.), Squeaky Wheel: Buffalo Media Resources, Pacific Cinematheque (Vancouver, Canada), Sarah Lawrence College Experimental Film and Video Festival and many others venues. Gracon completed a Ph.D. in communication and society at the University of Oregon and an M.A. and B.A. at the University at Buffalo (SUNY) in media studies and sociology. He is an assistant professor in the department of communication studies at Eastern, where he teaches classes in critical media studies and digital media production.
Panel Discussion

Looking Toward the Future:

Math and Science Curricula in the 1960s

Thursday, Oct. 16, 3 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Peter Andrews, chair of the mathematics and computer science department; Dr. Steve Daniels, chair of the physics department; Dr. Katie Lewandowski, assistant professor of geology; Dave Linton, instructor of physics and astronomy; and Dr. Peter Wiles, associate professor of math

Mathematics and science school curricula changed focus in the 1960s. Following the launch of Sputnik by the Soviets in 1957, there was the fear that the U.S. was starting to lag behind the Soviet Union in mathematics and science. In reaction, scholarships and loans helped sponsor the education of academically gifted students, particularly within science and mathematics. The “New Math” curricula drastically changed the content of mathematics for many school children. Finally, the creation of NASA generated increased emphasis on the space program in secondary education. In addition to changes in the school curricula, there was also a big change in the public’s approach to the environment. With the publication of Rachel Carson’s Silent Spring in 1962, the environmental movement took root. Central to that was concern over pollution in the waterways and air. This was a grassroots movement.

Peter Andrews was born in Toronto, Ontario, in 1950, so his teenage years, all of his high school education and much of his college experience took place in the 1960s. After graduating from the University of Toronto in 1971, he received a Ph.D. in mathematics from the University of Maryland in 1975. Since then he has taught mathematics and/or computer science at a variety of colleges and universities in the United States and Canada before coming to Eastern in 1992. He is currently chair of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

Steven Daniels is chair of the Department of Physics at Eastern. His academic interests include optics and lasers. He earned a B.A. from Swarthmore College and an M.S. and Ph.D. from the University of Maryland. In addition, he is an alumni of Eastern with an MBA degree.
Katie Lewandowski, Ph.D., is a geologist in the Department of Geology/Geography. She has been at EIU since 2009 and regularly teaches courses within the geology major, general education classes and the science teaching methods class for pre-service science teachers. Her research focuses on paleontology, paleoclimatology and paleoceanography. She also has an interest in science education. In her free time, she enjoys traveling and spending time with her husband, two dogs and cat.

Dave Linton is an instructor of physics and astronomy at Eastern. He has an M.S. from the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque. He was the recipient of the 1988 Illinois Professor of the Year award, sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Peter Wiles is an associate professor of mathematics at Eastern, where he teaches courses in elementary, middle level and secondary mathematics education. He received a bachelor’s degree in mathematics from Pacific Lutheran University and a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Readings from “Nam: Things That Weren’t True and Other Stories, Some Funny — Some Sad,” by Robert McGowan

Thursday, Oct. 16, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by John Whisler, professor of library services

This is not another collection of macho battle-action war adventures. Rather, this is a reflective look at the Vietnam War from a distance of nearly 40 years, showing the many ways the tentacles of the war reached laterally through society and longitudinally through time to affect the lives of the soldiers, their families and their friends. These stories are from the emotional war and deal with such themes as going into war, injuries, loss, guilt and innocence, and homecomings. Many of the stories are written in the voices of soldiers, and McGowan notes that in his experience soldiers did a good bit of cussing, and so some of the stories presented may contain language not suitable for everyone.
John Whisler has been on the faculty of Booth Library since 1981, serving most of that time as head of cataloging services. “My own Vietnam experience, like that of many of us, was limited to the nightly news. The war was an event happening somewhere else to people I didn’t know — an abstraction. With these stories, McGowan has brought that major event of the 1960s, which for decades I thought I’d escaped, into vivid personal focus.”

Book Power: 1960s Multicultural Children’s Literature

Tuesday, Oct. 28, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Fern Kory, professor of English, and Ann Brownson, professor of library services, Booth Library

Picture books published in the 1960s illustrate the many ways that this decade was a turning point in American children’s literature. Many people know The Snowy Day (1962) by Ezra Jack Keats, the first Caldecott Award-winning picture book about an African-American child. But later milestones by African-American writers are less familiar today, though Stevie (1969) by John Steptoe was featured in a Life magazine story about its young author titled “Realism in a Book about Black Children.” Using books from the Ballenger Teachers Center and her own collection of African-American youth literature, Kory will highlight the efforts of African-American writers, artists and activists to transform what was rightly described in 1965 as “the all-white world of children’s books.” Brownson will talk about the impact of the transformative work begun in the 1960s on the children’s literature available in the Ballenger Teachers Center.

Fern Kory is a professor of English whose research centers on African-American youth literature. She has published and presented on The Brownies’ Book (1920-21), a magazine for African-American children published by W.E.B. DuBois; Call Me Charley (1945), a ground-breaking novel about school integration; and (with Tim Engles) Walter Dean Myers’ award-winning young adult novel Monster (1999).

Ann Brownson is a reference and education librarian and professor who also coordinates collection development and other activities of the Ballenger Teachers Center. She has two master’s degrees from the University of Iowa, one in library and information science and one in postsecondary student development. Her interests outside work include gardening, home improvement, pets and travel.
Panel Discussion

Revisiting the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s: Any Lessons for a New Social Movement?

Tuesday, Nov. 4, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Moderated by Dr. Felix Kumah-Abiwu, instructor of Africana studies

The Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s to a large extent transformed the consciousness of the American society on the struggles by African-Americans against racial segregation and discrimination. Although some successes (civil and political) have been achieved, some observers argue that the current/worsening socio-economic conditions facing many blacks in America should necessitate a new social movement. This panel of students from the African-American Social Movements class will explore the dynamics of this emerging debate.

Felix Kumah-Abiwu received a Ph.D. in political science from West Virginia University. He also studied at Ohio University and the Legon Center for International Affairs and Diplomacy, University of Ghana. He teaches Africana studies at Eastern.
Panel Discussion

Talking ‘Bout a Revolution: Scientific Research Development in the 1960s

Wednesday, Nov. 5, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Steve Daniels, chair of the physics department; Dave Linton, instructor of physics and astronomy; and Dr. John Stimac, associate professor of geology

The 1960s were a turbulent time. Within scientific research, it was also a revolutionary time. The 1960s saw numerous breakthroughs and paradigm shifts within many science sub-disciplines. In this presentation, we will focus on research developments within physics, astronomy and earth science. With the Soviets’ launch of Sputnik in 1957 and the ongoing cold war, the U.S. pumped money into math and science both to explore the “final frontier” and create NASA, as well as for defense purposes. The 1960s in earth science and geology was also a ground-breaking time of paradigm shift. In 1912 Alfred Wegener proposed the theory of continental drift but had essentially failed to be taken seriously, especially within North America. Technological developments tied to the world wars and exploration of the oceans led to the theory of sea floor spreading, discovery of the mid-ocean ridges and ultimately, the theory of plate tectonics.

John Paul Stimac, associate professor of geology, grew up overseas until he finished high school in Virginia. He received a B.S. degree in environmental sciences from the University of Virginia, then an M.S. in geology from Fort Hays State University. His doctorate in geology is from the University of Oregon for his work on using large-volume ash-flow tuffs of the Western United States to understand the tectonics of the region. Subsequent work has focused on tectonic fluvial geomorphology and paleomagnetic analysis as applied to regional tectonics in the western United States and Sichuan, China. While at Eastern he has served as chair of the Department of Geology/Geography and interim dean of the Honors College.

War on Poverty: Social and Political Conditions

Thursday, Nov. 6, 7 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Michael Gillespie, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson initiated a “War on Poverty,” stating in his State of the Union address: “This Administration, here and now, declares unconditional war on poverty in America…It will not be a short or easy struggle, no single weapon or strategy will suffice, but we shall not rest until that war is won.” This war was targeted at any front against which individuals and families might confront the challenge of impoverishment.
From health care to higher education, job training to food stamps, the “War on Poverty” was a widespread effort to empower impoverished persons and communities to overcome economic inequalities and enhance their life chances. Yet, the history and legacy of this “war” is complicated and often misunderstood; in other words, it is to ask the question, “Has the ‘War on Poverty’ been won?” To address this question, but not necessarily answer it, this presentation will provide a brief overview of major “War on Poverty” initiatives, their tenuous history and their connection to the modern-day social safety net.

Michael D. Gillespie is assistant professor of sociology at Eastern, which he joined after completing his Ph.D. at Western Michigan University. His research focuses on the historical and contemporary circumstances of poverty and food insecurity at the national, state and local levels. His work compares trends in assistance programs for poor persons and families with other social, economic and political conditions over time, and follows how policies and procedures generate and perpetuate social inequalities. As a scholar activist, he is looking at such conditions in the East-Central Illinois region, using government data and geographical mapping techniques to educate stakeholders about the incidence of poverty, inequality and food insecurity in Coles County and the area. This has led to the development of the Coles County Poverty Data Project, a repository of data and information on poverty in Coles County.

Jazz in the 1960s: Divergence of Styles

Wednesday, Nov. 12, 3 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Andrew Cheetham, assistant professor of music

A period of intense cultural change in the United States, the 1960s left their mark on the development and reception of jazz styles. This program will explore the development of new pathways in jazz style, particularly that of “free jazz” and the avant-garde. We will consider both the popular and critical reception of this music, its relationship to the more traditional jazz of the same period, and the larger context of social and political activism in which this music was often associated.

Andrew Cheetham is assistant professor of trumpet at EIU. A native of Columbia, Mo., he attended the University of Texas at Austin and has a doctorate in performance and literature from the Eastman School of Music. As a classical and jazz trumpeter, he has performed with numerous artists in many genres throughout the United States and is an active arranger, composer and supporter of new music. Cheetham also served in the U.S. Army Band, in which he was often a featured soloist, and formerly taught at Oklahoma State University, Nazareth College of Rochester, and in the Austin public schools.
Reflections on ’60s Music

Wednesday, Nov. 12, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Global Influences on the American Pop Charts of the Sixties
Presented by Dr. Newton Key, professor of history
Influential British Film Scores of the 1960s
Presented by Dr. Jemmie Robertson, assistant professor of music

Global Influences on the American Pop Charts of the Sixties: In early 1964, The Beatles, Dusty Springfield, the Rolling Stones and other British groups repackaged American soul and blues and dominated the top of the U.S. charts for several years. The “British Invasion” was a phenomenon on both sides of the Atlantic and internationalized the rock scene and provided the model for Americans to dominate international popular music for years to come. But the invasion began earlier. “Telstar” and “Stranger on the Shore” from England (1962-63), “Sukiyaki” from Japan (1963) and “Dominique” from Belgium (1963) were all best-selling No. 1s. Other international hits from the decade include “My Boy Lollipop” (1964, No. 2) and “The Israelites” (1969, No. 9), both from Jamaica; the Zulu “Mbube” covered as “The Lion Sleeps Tonight” (1961, No. 1); and South African trumpeter Hugh Masekela’s “Grazing in the Grass” (1968, No. 1). In fact, the ubiquity of the British rock sound crowded out some of these diverse sounds from the top of the charts in the mid-’60s. How did these transnational cultural borrowings occur, who benefited and how did such international one-hit wonders (at least in the USA charts) affect mainstream culture?

Influential British Film Scores of the 1960s: In this presentation we will go beyond the widely acknowledged pop music influences of groups like the Beatles and the Rolling Stones and explore the influence of a variety of British composers and filmmakers of the 1960s on American cinema and culture. We will sample and discuss the film scores of various composers, including: Malcolm Arnold (Whistle Down the Wind – 1961); John Addison (Tom Jones – 1963); The Beatles (A Hard Day’s Night – 1964; Yellow Submarine – 1969); Gerald Fried (Dr. Strangelove – 1964); Stanley Kubrick, compiler, (2001: A Space Odyssey – 1968); Lionel Bart (Oliver – 1968); William Walton (Battle of Britain – 1969); and John Barry (On Her Majesty’s Secret Service – 1969).
Newton Key is a professor of history at Eastern Illinois University, focusing on British history and early modern history. He has advised students on research from 17th-century print culture to London murdereresses to 18th-century riots to race and rock in Britain during the 1950s and ’60s. He co-authored a text and sourcebook on early modern England (now revising both for third editions) and has published articles on various aspects of the period and on digital technology. In the ’60s he drew images of imaginary pop bands he named and kept his own weekly pop charts.

Jemmie Robertson is assistant professor of trombone and euphonium at Eastern Illinois University, where he performs with the Faculty Brass Quintet and the Faculty Jazz Combo, and directs the Eastern Crossbones. He is an active musician in the Chicago area and, in 2006, completed a D.M. at Northwestern University. He also holds degrees from Yale University and the University of Northern Colorado. In 2014, he released his second solo CD, The Conditions of a Solitary Bird, featuring unaccompanied works by Lawrence Borden, Frigyes Hidas and Phil Snedecor. His first solo CD, A New Day Dawning, was released on the MSR Classics Label in 2008. Dr. Robertson is organizing the first Mid-West Trombone Euphonium Conference (MTEC) to take place Oct. 31-Nov. 2, 2014, on the EIU campus. MTEC is conceived to promote pedagogy, research and performance for low brass instruments. Robertson also enjoys lecturing on the evolution of jazz and rock and is developing a new film music course for EIU.

Exhibit Reception

From Pop Art to Op Art

Thursday, Nov. 13, 6:30 p.m., Lone Elm Room, Mattoon Depot

Mattoon High School art students under the direction of Janahn Kolden have researched and explored various art styles of the 1960s, from pop art to op art to ceramic funk art. Armed with ideas of change, they have created visual imagery that reflects the changing ideas about art and its place in American culture. This artwork will be on display and the artists will be honored at a reception co-sponsored by the Mattoon Arts Council.

Reflections on ’60s Music

Thursday, Nov. 13, 7 p.m., Lone Elm Room, Mattoon Depot

Dr. Key and Dr. Robertson will repeat their program at a free community event co-sponsored by the Mattoon Arts Council.
1960s Restaurant and Food Trends: Modern Day Influences

Tuesday, Nov. 18, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Lisa Brooks, assistant professor of family and consumer sciences

This session examines how restaurant and food trends in the 1960s have helped shape the food industry today. We will explore popular brands of the ’60s including Howard Johnson’s, McDonald’s and Kentucky Fried Chicken. Moreover, we will look at American food preferences such as the shift from classical French cuisine to nouvelle cuisine, a lighter cuisine based on simpler preparations. Menu trends in 2014 will be presented.

Lisa Brooks, Ph.D., R.D., has been teaching hospitality management courses in higher education for 16 years. She began her restaurant career in Boca Raton, Fla., where she worked for James Beard award-winning chefs. As a registered dietitian and “foodie,” she believes strongly that the restaurant industry is one of the best ways to improve the quality of life for individuals, families and communities. She has been the faculty-director for the family and consumer sciences’ Study Abroad Italy tours since 2004.

---

A Phoenix Rising: American Indian Activism in the 1960s

Thursday, Nov. 20, 4 p.m., Witters Conference Room 4440, Booth Library
Presented by Dr. Don Holly, associate professor of anthropology

In the 1950s the United States government implemented a series of social programs and legislative actions that aimed to put an end to Native American tribal identity and political autonomy. These efforts had some success, particularly in encouraging young American Indians to leave rural reservations for urban areas. They also had the unintended consequences, however, of fostering a pan-Indian identity movement and fueling a generation of political activism. This presentation charts the consolidation of American Indian identity and the rising tide of Indian activism in the 1960s and early 1970s.

Don Holly, although an archaeologist by training, teaches a broad range of courses at Eastern, including Native American Cultures. His research focuses on hunters and gatherers and the archaeological history of the island of Newfoundland and the Eastern Subarctic. In 2012 he was the Fulbright research chair in native studies at the University of Alberta. He is co-editor (with Ken Sassaman) of Hunter-Gatherer Archaeology as Historical Process (U. Arizona Press, 2011) and the author of History in the Making: the Archaeology of the Eastern Subarctic (Altamira, 2013).
1960s Library Resources: Year by Year

Booth Library’s book and media collections contain thousands of items from and about the decade of the 1960s. Below is a selected list of books and films released during each year of the decade. All of these, and much more, may be borrowed from the Booth Library collections. Bibliographer: Marlene Slough.

1960

Books:
Goldwater, Barry M. The Conscience of a Conservative .............................................................................JK271 .G668
Gombrich, E.H. Art and Illusion: A Study in the Psychology of Pictorial Representation ......................N70 .G615

Films:
Inherit the Wind ................................................................................................................................................PN1997 .I5797x 2001 .DVD
La Dolce Vita / The Sweet Life (Italian with English subtitles) ...............................................................PN1997 .D644x .DVD
Psycho .........................................................................................................................................................PN1997 .P78x .DVD
Spartacus ....................................................................................................................................................PN1997 .S625x .DVD
The Apartment .........................................................................................................................................PN1997 .A7983x .DVD

1961

Books:
Salinger, J.D. Franny and Zooey ..................................................................................................................PS3537.A426 F7 2001x
Stone, Irving. The Agony and the Ecstasy ........................................................................................................PS3537.T669 A34x

Films:
Breakfast at Tiffany’s .....................................................................................................................................PN1997 .B83x .DVD
Splendor in the Grass .....................................................................................................................................PN1997 .S698x .DVD
The Hustler ....................................................................................................................................................PN1997 .H87x .DVD
West Side Story ............................................................................................................................................PN1997 .W454x .DVD
1962

Books:
Baldwin, James. Another Country ................................................................. PS3552.A45 A9x
Carson, Rachel. Silent Spring ................................................................. SB959 .C3
Kesey, Ken. One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest .......................................... PS3561.E667 O5 1996

Films:
Dr. No ........................................................................................................... PN1997 .D63745x .DVD
Lawrence of Arabia ...................................................................................... PN1997 .L396x 2008 .DVD
The Music Man ........................................................................................ PN1997 .M875x .DVD
To Kill a Mockingbird ................................................................................. PN1997 .T6513x .DVD

1963

Books:
Le Carré, John. The Spy Who Came in From the Cold ................................. PR6062.E33 S64x 1964

Films:
8 1/2 (Italian with English subtitles) .............................................................. PN1997 .E56x .DVD
Il gattopardo / The Leopard (Italian with English subtitles) ...................... PN1997 .G3876x .DVD
It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World ............................................................ PN1997 .I756x .DVD
Lilies of the Field .................................................................................... PN1997 .L548x .DVD
The Birds .................................................................................................. PN1997 .B575x .DVD
1964

Books:
- Bellow, Saul. Herzog .......................................................... PS3503.E4488 H5x
- King, Martin Luther Jr. Why We Can’t Wait ......................................................... E185.61 .K54 2000x

Films:
- Dr. Strangelove: or, How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb .................. PN1997 .D6376x 2004 .DVD
- Goldfinger ...................................................................................................... PN1997 .G645x .DVD
- Mary Poppins ............................................................................................. PN1997 .M3792x .DVD

1965

Books:
- O’Connor, Flannery. Everything That Rises Must Converge ................................. PS3565.C57 E8x

Films:
- Cat Ballou ................................................................................................. PN1997 .C3472x .DVD
- Doctor Zhivago ............................................................................................ PN1997 .D6378x .DVD
- Giulietta Degli Spiriti / Juliet of the Spirits
  (Italian with English subtitles) ........................................................................... PN1997 .G523x .DVD
- Obchod na Korze / The Shop on Main Street
  (Czech with English subtitles) ........................................................................... PN1997 .S532x .DVD
- The Sound of Music ....................................................................................... PN1997 .S676x .DVD
1966

Books:
Barth, John. Giles Goat-boy ................................................................. PS3552.A75 G5x
Capote, Truman. In Cold Blood .......................................................... HV6533.K3 C3 2002
Gass, William H. Omensetter’s Luck .................................................. PS3557.A845 O4x

Films:
A Man for All Seasons ........................................................................ PN1997 .M35x .DVD
Au Hasard Balthazar / Balthazar (French with English subtitles) ............. PN1997 .A8512x .DVD
Blowup ................................................................................................ PN1997 .B66x .DVD
The Good, the Bad and the Ugly ........................................................ PN1997 .B8662x .DVD

1967

Books:
Wilder, Thornton. The Eighth Day ..................................................... PS3545.I345 E4x

Films:
Bonnie and Clyde .............................................................................. PN1997 .B74x .DVD
In Cold Blood .................................................................................... PN1997 .T766x .DVD
The Graduate .................................................................................... PN1997 .G85x .DVD
1968

Books:
- Cleaver, Elridge. Soul on Ice ........................................................................ E185.97 .C6 1968x
- Dubos, René. So Human an Animal ............................................................... HM206 .D87
- Hailey, Arthur. Airport .................................................................................. PR6058.A43 A7x

Films:
- Funny Girl ....................................................................................................... PN1997 .F856x .DVD
- Night of the Living Dead ................................................................................ PN1997 .N546x .DVD
- Planet of the Apes .......................................................................................... PN1997 .P625x .DVD

1969

Books:
- Angelou, Maya. I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings .......................................... E185.97.A56 A3 1969x

Films:
- Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid ............................................................ PN1997 .B885x .DVD
- Easy Rider ....................................................................................................... PN1997 .E34x .DVD
- Le Chagrin et la Pitié / The Sorrow and the Pity (French & German with English subtitles) .. DC397 .S67x 2001 .DVD
- Midnight Cowboy .......................................................................................... PN1997 .M516x .DVD
- The Wild Bunch ............................................................................................. PN1997 .W542x .DVD
Related Exhibits at Booth Library

Timeline of America in the 1960s
North Lobby

So many important events occurred during the 1960s: inventions, social movements, artistic achievements, political upheavals, sporting triumphs and heartbreaks, scientific breakthroughs, entertainment milestones, military interventions and far too many deaths — often associated with one or more of the aforementioned. Sadly, the decade was also marked by a number of high-profile assassinations, and human tragedies played out both here at home and around the globe. Altogether, the 1960s are memorable as a time when America came to terms with its power and potential on the world stage — and when many aspects of daily life as we now know it began to take shape. Approximately 50 years later, the events on this timeline still reverberate. Curators: David Bell and Robert Hillman

EIU in the 1960s
Marvin Foyer

Overriding all events that took place at Eastern during the 1960s was the phenomenal growth of the campus physical environment itself. This exhibit focuses especially on this fast-paced development activity. Also featured in the exhibit is the rich cultural life to which Eastern's burgeoning student population was exposed — a wide array of nationally and internationally known musicians, thespians, comedians, dancers and other entertainers brought to campus. Also highlighted are the homegrown activities and significant happenings that together created a stimulating campus experience. Curators: David Bell and Robert Hillman

Fashion in the ’60s: From Jackie O. to Janis Joplin
Marvin Foyer

The 1960s were marked by dramatic changes in the world of fashion. In the past, fashionable attire had traditionally been marketed only to the elite and wealthy. As the ’60s got underway, new synthetic fabrics made clothing more affordable, and styles gradually became less form fitting and more casual. Fashion designers soon realized that young members of the “Baby Boom” generation had far more disposable income than previous generations. All of these factors fueled dramatic shifts in fashion throughout the decade. Curator: Johna Von Behrens
1960s Art Scene
Marvin Foyer

This exhibit looks at artists of the 1960s, including Andy Warhol and the Chicago Imagists, who depicted the era’s stylistic movements: pop, minimalism, new realism, color field, psychedelic, optical, kinetic and 1960s-style commercial art. Curators: Sally Van der Graaff, Joe Hall-Ingram and Jeanne Goble

Music in the 1960s
Marvin Foyer

Music in the 1960s immediately brings to mind some of the most iconic performers and events in 20th-century music history, including Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, The Beatles and Woodstock. Rock ‘n’ roll trends of the 1950s evolved dramatically through the 1960s, leading to the counterculture of psychedelic and folk rock of the second half of the decade. The 1960s also saw the rise in popularity of funk and soul, with internationally recognized girl groups of the time such as Diana Ross and the Supremes. This exhibit highlights key figures and musical events of this highly influential decade. Curators: Bill Schultz Jr. and Allen Lanham

Literature and 1960s America
Marvin Foyer

Literature reflects its times. The 1960s were unusually turbulent times. As a result, the literature of the 1960s was very experimental and groundbreaking. A wide range of new authors and genres appeared as a result of this restless atmosphere in American culture. Curators: Janice Derr and David Bell

The Pill
Third-floor Reference Hallway

The first birth control pill, Enovid, was approved for use as an oral contraceptive in early 1960. It quickly became one of the most widely prescribed pharmaceuticals in American history. It allowed women to have choice in regard to timing and numbers of pregnancies and thus was one of the things that ushered in the second wave (after women’s suffrage) of the women’s movement. The exhibit highlights the development of the pill and controversies, both medical and societal, in its use. Curator: Ann Brownson
Biocide: Rachel Carson and the Environmental Movement
Third-floor Reference Hallway

Rachel Carson’s Silent Spring was published in 1962, destined to be cited as the book that sparked the modern environmental movement. This exhibit includes the story behind the writing of Silent Spring, a sampling of Carson’s key foundational concerns, as well as the subsequent support and scathing criticisms of the book’s content and of Carson as a female writer. The flip side of this exhibit highlights countercultural environmental beliefs and actions that flourished under post-scarcity ideologies played out by student protests and those striving to “go back to the land.” Curator: Lee Whitacre

The Birth of a Theory -- Plate Tectonics: The Revolution of Geology
Third-floor South Hallway

Wondering about the Earth and how it was formed and operated has intrigued people at least as far back as 300 B.C. While people had been pondering the overarching physical mechanisms that shape the Earth for this entire time, it was not until the 1960s that a series of studies led to the theory of plate tectonics. This theory unified the scientific community as to how the Earth works. From this point forward, geology was a modern science and understanding of the planet has leaped forward with outstanding bounds. Curator: Diane Burns

The Vietnam War
Third-floor South Hallway

The Vietnam War formed the ongoing back drop for the decade of the 1960s. This poster exhibit presents an illustrated timeline of the American political and military involvement in the Vietnam War. Curator: Bradley P. Tolppanen

Novels of a Changing World
Third-floor South Hallway

Experience the spirit of the colorful, volatile and transformational 1960s by reading novels set during this decade. Topics include the civil rights movement; the Vietnam draft and protests; second-wave feminism; the counterculture of drugs and rock ‘n’ roll; and the glitzy world of art, fashion, and film. Some of the works in this exhibit were written during the ’60s, while others are historical novels that look back on and re-imagine the era. All are available for checkout from Booth Library. Curator: Sarah Johnson
1960s Children’s Educational Television Programs
Ballenger Teachers Center

With episodes that were both entertaining and educational, The Shari Lewis Show, Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood and Sesame Street were popular television programs geared for a preschool audience. Come by the Ballenger Teachers Center to see what character traits you could learn from these programs. Curator: Jeanne Goble

Best-Selling Children’s Books of the 1960s
Ballenger Teachers Center

A group of children’s books has been selected as representations of the best sellers of the ’60s era. Additional images are featured in a display housed in the Ballenger Teachers Center.
Curator: Jeanne Goble

Social Movements of the 1960s
Atrium

The 1960s were a decade of great social change across the nation. Many different segments of society, discriminated against because of their race, gender, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status, found a voice to protest their unfair treatment, often modeling their struggle on the successful civil rights movement of African Americans. This exhibit, detailed below, showcases several related but distinct social movements.
Curators: Steve Brantley, Ann Brownson and Todd Bruns

The Women’s Movement: The second wave of the women’s movement gained steam through the ’60s as part of the civil rights and anti-war movements. The approval of the pill and the consequent change in the number of women employed in the job market; the publishing of The Feminine Mystique (1963) by Betty Friedan, which described the simmering dissatisfaction felt by middle-class women; and the founding of the National Organization for Women in 1966 all provided grounding for the actions that would take place in the 1970s and beyond.
Civil Rights Movement: While the American civil rights era encompasses the latter half of the 1950s through the late 1960s, the decade of the ’60s marks a time of increased use of nonviolent resistance to combat racism, tactics promoted by Martin Luther King Jr. These tactics proved to be powerful tools to change the minds of Americans and force action in the federal government.

Student Antiwar Movement: The Students for a Democratic Society began in 1960 organizing support for social issues and working for civil rights. In 1965 SDS came out in opposition to the Vietnam War. There were many facets of society involved in the antiwar movement, including veterans of the war. But young people, “baby boomers” disillusioned with the leadership of the nation, were especially vocal.

Drug Culture: “Turn on, Tune in, Drop out,” the phrase made famous by counter-culture guru Timothy Leary, encapsulates a counter-culture movement in the ’60s that embraced experimentation with drug use. Psychedelic drugs such as LSD were particularly in vogue, and the use of such drugs heavily influenced some of the art and music of the era. These influences can still be heard in songs of the times, such as Jefferson Airplane’s “White Rabbit.”

LGBTQ: Inspired by the black civil rights movement, gay rights activism in the 1960s became much more visible and politically active than it had been under the 1950s organizations the Daughters of Bilitis and the Mattachine Society. Self-identified as the “homophile” movement, activists picketed government agencies to protest discriminatory employment practices.

Migrant Worker Rights: Led by migrant worker César Chávez, the migrant worker rights movement modeled itself on the civil rights movement. Chávez organized the National Farm Workers Association (later renamed the United Farmworkers Union), and launched campaigns to organize grape farm workers and a boycott of grapes. These protests of the harsh working conditions that migrant farm workers experienced led eventually to the Californian Agricultural Labor Relations Act.

Inspired by the 1960s - Painting in a Time of Expanded Possibilities
First-floor Periodicals Hallway

The 1960s was an exciting period for painting; many important innovations occurred within a short amount of time. In the spirit of this time frame of change, students of EIU art professor Chris Kahler have created works that expand possibilities and encourage broad definitions of what makes an interesting and challenging work of art.

Curators/Bibliographers

David Bell is a reference librarian at Booth Library. He earned an M.S. in library and information science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and an M.A. in English literature at Northern Illinois University.

Steve Brantley is an associate professor and the head of reference services at Booth Library. He joined Booth in August of 2013. He is the bibliographer for communications studies and develops the library media collections, with a focus on world cinema and film history. He has an M.L.S. degree and an M.A. degree in media and cultural studies, both from Indiana University.

Ann Brownson is a reference and education librarian and professor who also coordinates collection development and other activities of the Ballenger Teachers Center. She has two master’s degrees from the University of Iowa, one in library and information science and one in postsecondary student development. Her interests outside work include gardening, home improvement, pets and travel.

Todd Bruns is an assistant professor and the institutional repository librarian for Eastern. He is responsible for The Keep (http://thekeep.eiu.edu), EIU’s institutional repository, which is one of the largest institutional repositories in the Midwest and the second largest in Illinois. Professor Bruns also chairs the Booth Library Web Resources Committee, and provides reference and bibliographic instruction services. His outreach event, the Edible Book Festival, is held every year as the kickoff program for National Library Week.
Diane Burns has degrees in geology as well as English and fine arts, having proficiency in sedimentology as well as watercolors and 17th-century authors. Her geological interests range from investigations into paleotectonism (Pennsylvanian/Permian of the Rocky Mountain region), geomorphological evolution of river channels and their impact on land use (mid-Illinois region), and outreach/education. She is an associate professor of geology at Eastern.

Janice Derr is a reference librarian at Booth Library and subject specialist for business. She received an M.L.I.S. from the University of Missouri-Columbia and an M.A. in English literature from Eastern.

Jeanne Goble is a senior library specialist at Booth Library’s Ballenger Teachers Center. She has English, education and library science degrees from Eastern. She has interests in the arts, children’s literature and international folklore and customs. She has an appreciation for 1960s history, arts and culture.

Joe Hall-Ingram is a library specialist in both the circulation and technology services departments at Booth Library. He earned an M.A. in painting and drawing from Eastern in 2004.

Robert Hillman is a professor at Booth Library, serving as university archivist and as a reference librarian. He has a B.A. degree from Principia College, an M.A. degree from the University of Illinois at Springfield and an M.L.I.S. degree (library science) from Brigham Young University. He served four years in the Air Force during the Vietnam War era, and he was a close observer of national and world events during the 1960s.
Sarah Johnson is a professor and reference librarian at Booth Library and has been at Eastern since 2002. She oversees many aspects of electronic resources and serves as the subject bibliographer for economics, mathematics and computer science. She earned a B.A. in French from Drew University, an M.A. in linguistics from Ohio State University and an M.I.L.S. from the University of Michigan. Her most recent book is Historical Fiction II: A Guide to the Genre (Libraries Unlimited, 2009).

Allen Lanham is dean of library services at Eastern Illinois University. He has degrees in library science and music from the University of Rochester, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, Arkansas State University and Murray State University. He is a trustee of the Charleston Carnegie Public Library, past president of the Consortium of Academic and Research Libraries in Illinois and Illinois Library Association, and past officer of the Lincoln Trail Libraries System. He was named the 2008 Illinois Academic Librarian of the Year.

Bill Schultz Jr. is a cataloging librarian at Booth Library and subject specialist for anthropology, sociology and psychology. He received an M.L.S. from Indiana University-Bloomington and an M.A. in Appalachian studies with a focus on sustainable development from Appalachian State University.

Marlene Slough is a professor and acquisitions librarian at Booth Library. She serves as subject bibliographer for the areas of art, and family and consumer sciences. She received an M.L.I.S. from the University of Missouri-Columbia and an M.A. in English literature from Eastern.
Bradley P. Tolppanen is a professor of library services at Booth Library and serves as subject librarian for history, Africana studies and military science. He has graduate degrees from the University of New Brunswick and the University of Alberta.

Sally Van der Graaff is a senior library specialist in the reference department at Booth Library. She has bachelor’s degrees in journalism and French from Eastern and a master’s degree in library and information science from the University of Illinois. She is nearing completion of a master’s degree in English from EIU. Her research interests include history, language and culture, and one of her favorite pastimes is visiting art galleries to explore visual representations of humanity.

Johna Von Behrens is an archives and repository librarian at the Stephen F. Austin State University’s R.W. Steen Library in Nacogdoches, Texas. She previously served as a senior library specialist in university archives and reference services at Booth Library. She has a B.A. and an M.S. in educational administration from Eastern, a certificate in special collections from the University of Illinois and an M.L.I.S. with a concentration in archival studies from Drexel University.

Lee Whitacre has a B.A. degree in English with a minor in creative writing from Eastern. She serves as senior library specialist in acquisitions at Booth Library. She is working on an M.A. in English literary studies.
Credits

Revolutionary Decade: Reflections on the 1960s, an exhibit and program series, has been made possible partially through a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council. In addition, a Back to Books grant from the Illinois State Library provided funds for the purchase of materials related to the topic. These materials have become a part of the Booth Library permanent collection.

Local Sponsors and Partners:
- Eastern Illinois University
- Booth Library
- Charleston Carnegie Public Library
- Coles County Arts Council
- Dan Crews
- Department of Music
- Department of Theatre Arts
- EIU Center for the Humanities
- Kinesiology and Sports Studies Department
- Mattoon Arts Council
- Mattoon High School Art Department
- Mattoon Public Library
- Tarble Arts Center
- WEIU Radio

Booth Library Project Team:
- David Bell, project director
- Allen Lanham, dean of library services
- Beth Heldebrandt, editor, publicity
- Beverly Cruse, photographer, exhibit support
- Joe Hall-Ingram, cover and graphic designer
- Marlene Slough, proofreader and bibliographer
- Arlene Brown, library administration
- Christine Derrickson, library administration
- Peggy Manley, library administration

Image Credits:
Unless otherwise noted, all images in this brochure were submitted or are from materials held in the Booth Library collection.

Coming Soon to Booth Library

Quanah and Cynthia Ann Parker - A Man in Two Worlds and a Woman of Two Worlds: The saga of Cynthia Ann Parker, born circa 1827 near present-day Charleston, and her son Quanah Parker, the last Comanche chief in America, is well-known in Texas history. But the Parker story has its roots right here in East Central Illinois. Join Booth Library during the spring semester of 2015 to learn more about this fascinating family through a variety of related exhibits and programs. Scholars from all disciplines and community members interested in participating or proposing a program for this series are asked to contact Beth Heldebrandt at emheldebrandt@eiu.edu or 581-6064.

Quanah Parker, photo courtesy of National Anthropological Archives/Texas Lakes Trail.