ENG 5010-001: Studies in Twentieth-Century American Literature: Poetic "Schools" and "Movements"

Michael Loudon

Eastern Illinois University

Follow this and additional works at: http://thekeep.eiu.edu/english_syllabi_summer2004

Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

Recommended Citation

http://thekeep.eiu.edu/english_syllabi_summer2004/14

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the 2004 at The Keep. It has been accepted for inclusion in Summer 2004 by an authorized administrator of The Keep. For more information, please contact tabruns@eiu.edu.
English 5010.001-- Studies in Twentieth-Century American Literature: Poetic "Schools" and "Movements"

Course Description: We'll begin briefly with the rambling exuberance of Whitman and the precise compression of Dickinson. Then we'll venture into modernists such as Frost, Crane, Eliot, Pound, H.D., Moore, Hughes, Williams and Stevens among others; we'll consider what usefulness movements such as Imagism, Objectivism, Vorticism and Surrealism have in grasping the complexities of modernism. We'll explore the Agrarian and the Confessional poets, the Beat and the New Black poets, the Deep Image and the Black Mountain poets—in short we'll pursue the explosion of poets and poetry in the single century that comes to dominate many of the global perspectives on poetry. We'll read a number of poets and poems but always with questions about their affinities with various schools and movements.

Course format: We'll seek a seminar discussion; read as much assigned work as possible before class, but do make a focused effort for those poems or essays that we'll take up in conversation. Feel free to draw upon previous work—indepently or formally undertaken—that will illuminate your contributions. I assume some familiarity with poetry as such, but I also encourage you to pursue your responses to readings from your own point of view while remaining open to the "takes" of others.

I'll assign a good number of poems, but I'll hold you accountable for a select few for our consideration in each class. With respect to those, especially, but also to the selections from anthologies for the particular poet at large, explore the following basic questions:

What's my response to this? What do I think and feel about this text? How does the text—the poetics of the language therein—evoke that thought and feeling? What use, privately and/or publicly, might I make of this emerging current between the poem and me? Of what use is this poet to my understanding of other poets, other literature? How do considerations of "school" or "movement" or "manifestoes of poetics" deepen my understanding?

Course requirements: Discussion (20%), short essay (3-4 pgs; 20%) and long essay (12-15 pgs, including prospectus and oral presentation, 60%).

Course texts:
English 5010.001-- Studies in Twentieth-Century American Literature: Poetic “Schools” and “Movements”

Course syllabus:

Read all selections by the poet, but focus on those specified. You can also check http://www.english.uiuc.edu/maps for commentary and background. Further links can be found at this site, and that of the Academy of American Poets, http://www.poets.org, which also has links and a useful audio component.

June
T 15: Course introduction
Founding Directions: Expansion and Contraction
The segments of the trip swing open like an orange. There is light in there, and mystery and food. Come see it. Come not for me but it. But if I am still there, grant that we may see each other.

Think of Dickinson boring a hole in the top (or bottom) Knifing the pulp in circles, squeezing lonely flesh and sucking out juices that lift her tides to heaven.

Think of Walt ripping it apart, segments all squashed splayed out open, seeds squirting into grey beard and scent now sight in the rising orange globe.

R 24: “What do we mean when we say modern?” (lecture)
Realism, Naturalism and Regionalism:
In Nelson, Hartmann (21); Johnson (31); Dunbar (37); “We Wear the Mask”; Frost, “Mending Wall,” [L. Roll] “After Apple-Picking,” “Birches.”
Imagism: Lowell, (44-48); High Modernism: Stein (54)

In Gioia, pp. 1-26.

[x. JJJJJ] Discussion leader: for these poets/poems, be especially sure to have read well, be prepared to raise two or three questions of the seminar, and don’t hesitate to offer your point of view, if you have one, even tentatively, on the text.
T 29: High Modernism (continued):

In Gioia, pp. 18-81.

---

July

R 1: High Modernism (continued):

In Nelson, Jeffers (244) [J. Milne]; Moore (250) [S. Krukenberg]; Eliot (277) [E. Bevel]:

In Gioia, pp. 82-116.

---

Harlem Renaissance:

In Gioia, pp. 146-151.

---

T 6: Continuations... High Modernism (continued):

In Nelson, Williams (167-170) [B. Bolin]: The Descent of Winter [A. Lenaghan]; "Asphodel, That Greeny Flower..." [K. Mitchell]; Pound: (202-218) [R. Pratte].

R 8: H.D.: (233-235) [M. Rankin]; Jeffers (244) [J. Milne]; Moore (250) [S. Krukenberg]; Eliot (277) [E. Bevel]:

In Gioia, pp. 18-116.

---

Harlem Renaissance:

In Nelson, Hughes (502) [M. La Zier]: "The Negro Speaks of Rivers," "Christ in Alabama" and "Let America Be America Again."

In Gioia, pp. 146-151.

---

Recommended: In Nelson, Grimke (145); McKay (314) [J. Schroeder]: "America"; Toomer (352) [L. Roll]; Brown (473): "Memphis Blues"; Cullen (530): "Heritage."

Listening: WCW, "To Elsie" (168) and "The Red Wheelbarrow" (170); Pound, Canto XLV "With Usura" (handout); H.D., from Helen in Egypt (218; handout); Jeffers, "The Day Is a Poem (September 19, 1939)" (handout); Eliot, "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock" (278); Hughes, "The Negro Speaks of Rivers" and "The Weary Blues" (503-504).
Harlem Renaissance:
In Nelson, Hughes (502) [M. La Zier]: “The Negro Speaks of Rivers,” “Christ in Alabama” and “Let America Be America Again.”

In Gioia, pp. 146-151.

Modernist Alternatives:
In Nelson, Agrarians: Ransom (312) [D. French]; Warren (575) [K. Mitchell]; and Romantics: Bogan [J. Milne] (378); Crane (384):
from The Bridge [R. Pratte]; Bishop (631-638; 643-647) [L. Roll]; Hayden (691) [A. Crandell]: “Middle Passage”; Lowell (751) [A. Lenaghan]: “For the Union Dead.”

In Gioia, pp. 117-139; 186-191.

Recommended: Tate (409); Berryman (721-728).

Listening: Ransom, “Bells for John Whiteside’s Daughter” (312);
Bogan, “The Dream” and “Song for the Last Act” (handouts);
Bishop, “The Fish” (631) and “Crusoe in England” (643); Lowell, “Skunk Hour” (757); Berryman, from The Dream Songs, #4 (722) and #22 (723).

R 15: “What do we mean when we say postmodern?” (lecture)

Open Form: Objectivists
In Nelson, Reznikoff (354-364) [E. Bevel]; Niedecker (536-541) [J. Schroeder]: “Poet’s work”; Rakosi (547) [L. Roll]; Zukofsky (551-556) [M. La Zier]: “A Song for the Year’s End”; Oppen (603-607) [B. Bolin] “Image of the Engine.”

In Gioia, pp. 152-158.

T 20: Open Form: The Black Mountain School
In Hoover, Olson (3-16) [D. French]: “I, Maximus of Glouscester, to You”; Duncan (29-38) [A. Lenaghan]: “Often I am Permitted to Return to a Meadow”; Levertov (86-92) [K. Mitchell] “The Wings” and “Williams: An Essay”; Creeley (143-155) [J. Milne]: “For Love” and “The Language.”

In Gioia, pp.172-181; 225-240; 276-279.
In Hoover, pp. 626-628; 638-640.

Listening: Duncan, “Often I am Permitted to Return to a Meadow” (785) and “Poetry, A Natural Thing” (handout); Levertov, “The Secret” and “Her Sadness” (handouts)

Open Form: The San Francisco Renaissance
In Hoover, Ferlinghetti (42-51) [A. Crandell]: “I Am Waiting”; Spicer (103-111) [R. Pratte]: from Imaginary Elegies.

In Gioia, pp. 159-171; 255-258.

Recommended: In Nelson, Rexroth (562); Everson (648); Kees (709).
In Hoover, McClure (253).
R 22: Open Form: The Beat Generation Poets
   In Hoover, Kerouac (75-80); Whalen (80-85); Ginsberg (130-138); Corso (208-213); Snyder (214-221); Di Prima (272-277); In Allen, Welch (206-216).
   In Hoover, pp. 635-637.

T 27: Divergences: New Regionalism, New Formalism and the Language poets
   In Nelson, Knight (968); Baraka (997); Oliver (1023); Harper (1043)
   In Hoover, Eigner (161); Rothenberg (221); Antin (221); Kelly (301); Howe (346); Palmer (420); Davidson (439); Silliman (489)

R 29: Post-War Formalism, Feminism and the Confessional Mode
   In Nelson, Wilbur (792); Kumin (821); Rich (934-945); Plath (973-987)
   Internationalism: Surrealism, Deep Image Poets and the New York School
   In Nelson, O'Hara (827-833); Bly (881); Wright (890); Ashbery 894-899); Kinnell (906); Merwin (912-917); Levine (925-933)
   In Gioia, pp. 259-275; 280-295; 310-322.

August
T 3: Oral reports
R 5: Oral reports (if necessary)