Objectives: English 1001C is a writing course which involves the reading, writing and critiquing of both professional and student essays. By using different essay development strategies, the student should be able to write a clear, well supported essay. Also, students will be required to conduct research activities throughout the semester as a means of critically supporting their own ideas in relationship to the assigned reading.

Required Text and Student Materials:

The Student Writer: Editor and Critic, 4th ed.

Connections: A Multicultural Reader for Writers, 2nd ed.

Research handbook.

A large notebook for in-class writing activities and journal*

Course Description: Since this is a writing intensive class, you will be expected to write regularly. In addition to writing often, you will read essays composed by both professional writers and your classmates, taking note of their struggles, ideas, and experiences. Therefore, this class will run much like a workshop in which you regularly take part in writing groups, discussion, and in-class writing. It is not unusual for me to photo-copy a student’s essay to share with the class, ask a student to read aloud from their own essay, or even to share writing of my own. You see, this is not only a writing class, but an arena of higher education where your opinions and voices are vital tools for acquiring a meaningful experience. By the end of this class I hope that you not only improve your writing abilities, but also learn about the world around you, how it affects you, and how it influences your ideas, writing, and educational career far beyond this semester.

Assignments and Grading System:

Diagnostic Essay 500 words Not graded
Journal 100 points
Four 1,000 word essays (4 pages, typed) 100 points apiece
One research project (7-10 pages) 200 points
Quizzes over reading assignments (rarely announced) 100 total points
Participation in peer evaluation 100 points
Extra Credit TBA

My grading scale is very easy to understand. Your grades will be based on cumulative points. I will add all of your points at mid-term, again at finals, and divide by the total number possible. With this scale, you should be able to keep a record of your own points. Letter grades for essays are assigned points as follows: A= 90-100; B=89-80; C=79-70; D=69-60. Each writing assignment will have its own criteria with each aspect worth a specific number of points.

Revisions: I whole-heartedly believe that students become better writers by revising their writing. Even professional writers rework their compositions numerous times. (I revised this syllabus 4 times!) Therefore, you may revise your 4 page essays for a higher grade. If you want to revise, do so within a week and attach the original, while noting the revision number and the type of paper. Remember: revising does not entitle you to a higher grade.
Late Work: Essays are due at the beginning of the class unless otherwise noted. If you miss due dates, your essay or work will be docked 10 points or one letter grade for each day that it is late: this includes Saturdays and Sundays. However, if you are having trouble understanding an assignment or finishing your essay, I might be persuaded to negotiate once or twice for an extension, but only in certain circumstances: I am fair, but not gullible.

Make-up Work: You may not make-up quizzes unless you have an excused absence. Students are responsible for all material covered in class, which includes but is not limited to all lecture material, writing groups, due dates, and any changes made in the syllabus.

Plagiarism: Eastern Illinois University English Department’s policy on plagiarism: Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism---”The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author, and representation of them as one’s original work” (Random House Dictionary of the English Language)---has the right and the responsibility to impose upon the student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignment of a grade of F for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs Office.

Journals: All students must keep a journal which will be collected on the penultimate day of class. In the journal will be responses to literary essays read and student essays evaluated as well as in-class free-writing and pre-writing exercises. As the journals will act as a record for your participation in this class, each entry should be dated. Please do not keep your journals in a three-ring binder. A spiral bound notebook is sufficient.

MANUSCRIPTS: All essays must be typed and double-spaced. The student’s name, the date, the essay assignment, the instructor’s name, and the title of the essay should appear on a separate title page, not at the top of the first page of the essay. All essays will be given a number grade, a letter grade, critical comments, revision advice, and an explanation of the grade. Any essay and essay’s grade may be discussed at length during office hours or a scheduled conference.

ADA POLICY: If you are a student who has a documented disability and wishes to receive academic accommodations, please contact the coordinator of the office of disabilities services (6583) as soon as possible.

Conferences: Throughout the semester I will hold at least one writing conference with each student, maybe more, time permitting. While at this time we will discuss successes, problem areas, and other facets of the student’s performance, I encourage every student to approach me with any difficulties at any time this semester. MISCELLANEOUS
1. Note the requirements for turning in a revision.
2. Make sure you understand the expectations for each writing assignment. Ask questions!
3. Essay manuscripts are due at the beginning of class.
4. Provide titles for all of your writing.
5. Hand papers directly to me; do not expect the secretary, your friends or anyone else take responsibility for your essay.
6. Don’t fall behind. It could prove disastrous, especially around mid-term.
7. Invest in a dictionary and thesaurus; you will find a use for them after this class.
8. Make hard copies of your work or make a back-up copy of your writing on another disc.
9. If you are having trouble, talk to me.
10. We have a great writing center with tutors who are more than happy to help you with writing problems.
Wise Words of Advice:

“A writer...is someone who has found a process that will bring about new things...”
William Stafford

“Writing keeps me from believing everything I read.”
Gloria Steinem

“Don’t tear up the page and start over when you write a bad line--try to write your way out of it. Make mistakes and plunge on...Writing is a means of discovery, always...”
Garrison Keillor

“I have rewritten--often several times--every word I have ever published. My pencils outlast their erasers.”
Nabokov
