Spring 1-15-2012

ENG 3009G-002: Myth and Culture

C Wharram
Eastern Illinois University

Follow this and additional works at: http://thekeep.eiu.edu/english_syllabi_spring2012
Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

Recommended Citation
http://thekeep.eiu.edu/english_syllabi_spring2012/75

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the 2012 at The Keep. It has been accepted for inclusion in Spring 2012 by an authorized administrator of The Keep. For more information, please contact tabruns@eiu.edu.
English 3009G-002: Myth and Culture

The Truth about Lies, or, Myth at the Foundations of World Literature

Spring 2012 / M 15:00-17:30 / Coleman Hall 3150

Professor: Wharram
Email: ccwharram@eiu.edu
Office: 3010 Coleman, 217-581-6318
Office Hours: MW 13:30-15:00; 17:30-18:30
Mailbox: 3155 Coleman

“The truth begins in lies. Think about it.”
– Dr. Gregory House, House M.D.

Course Description
This course is designed as an introduction to the methods and possibilities of the study of literature as a planetary phenomenon with myth at its foundation. We will attempt to think the planet through the relationship between myth and culture. Though the course will offer an introduction to mythology, it will not be a survey of myths from around the globe. There are some 6000 languages spoken on the earth today, each of which constitutes a relation between a people and their world, a “culture,” if you will. This number, however quickly it may be decreasing, is far too large to imagine covering in this course.

Instead, we will engage with the study of myths as a means to recognizing both the profound differences between cultures and their uncanny similarities. Reading myths allows us to experience this paradox of human cultures: the radical diversity of ideas, social relations, and expressions that exist and have existed on our planet, along with the capacity to understand these tremendous divergent aspects of culture.

Myth, as a specific form of storytelling, was central in the development of what we now call “cultural studies” in the Western tradition. We will trace this development in the thought of a few thinkers: Ernst Cassirer and Claude Lévi-Strauss (with a smattering of Sigmund Freud thrown in, just to keep things interesting). We will also examine how contemporary writers incorporate the concept of myth in their works.

The other set of texts we will trace stems from the “Western” literary influences of myths about cyborgs and zombies. We will think about how these myths created meaning, how they mean, and, perhaps, how they may come to evolve in the future. The fact that the meaning of myth can change over history implies that culture can define myth in much the same way that myth can define culture. Along the way, we will question some of our received notions about myth—the “myths” about myths—allowing us, I hope, to think about the possibilities for myth in our technology-driven universe. And sometimes we will reflect on why it is that we don’t much think mythically anymore—or, perhaps, why it is that we think we don’t think mythically anymore.

I expect that our class dialogue will be extensive and productive, and that you will come to class having read fully, carefully, and repeatedly (more below, in “Participation”).

Texts

Austen, Jane and Seth Grahame-Smith, Pride and Prejudice and Zombies.
Cassirer, Ernst. Language and Myth.
Damrosch, David. What is World Literature?
Diamond, Jared. Guns, Germs, and Steel.
Shelley, Mary. Frankenstein.
Venuti, Lawrence. Translation Studies Reader.

Requirements

First Paper, on Cassirer 10%
Participation 15%
Tests 20%
(5% each for 4 Tests)
Midterm Exam 25%
Final Writing Project 30%

ALL ASSIGNMENTS AND EXAMS MUST BE COMPLETED TO PASS THE COURSE

First Paper (10%)

For the second week of the semester, I will ask you to turn in a short paper that draws similarities between the film Avatar (shown in Week 1) and the readings from Ernst Cassirer. The assignment will be distributed in Week 1.

Tests (20%, 5% each for four tests)

The tests will verify your ability to retain important facts about course material—for example, names of significant historical and literary figures, and dates of important events—through identification and short-answer questions. The questions will be of two types: those that ask you to demonstrate that you have retained facts that 1) one should know (e.g., When did Gutenberg invent the printing press? What was the “Copernican Revolution”?); and 2) have been significant in our readings and/or class discussions (e.g., What is a geological “foundling”?). This latter set of questions may not be important as “cultural capital,” but they do indicate your level of engagement with the written and oral aspects of the course. All tests are cumulative.

Midterm Exam, March 19 (25%)
The midterm will consist of an in-class exam, which will require you to explicate and analyze passages from our early-semester readings.

Class Participation (15%)
There will be a number of required, yet ungraded assignments throughout the quarter, constituting a substantial portion of your class-participation grade. I will expect you to come to class having read the material, and with questions or comments on the readings. While reading the course material, you should pinpoint specific moments of difficulty, and come to class with questions about them. If you attend class without reading the texts carefully and completely, you are unlikely to do well on the tests and your class-participation grade will suffer immensely.

Final Exam, required (5%)
This exam will have the same format as the tests, above, and is required of all students in this class.

The Remaining 25%

Option #1: Final Exam
You may choose to write a final exam, which will take a form similar to the midterm, and include essay questions asking you to draw significant connections between the course readings.

Option #2: Writing Project (minimum five pages)
Well before the end of the semester, I would like you to select a passage from one of the larger texts in this course on which you would consider writing a detailed close reading. You will thoughtfully select a brief section of the larger work—perhaps one or two paragraphs of prose—in order to analyze closely the significance of your chosen passage as it aids in understanding the larger text from which it is taken. You will use this close reading as a jumping-off point for a larger examination of the text at hand in conjunction with critical enquiry into concepts of myth and/in culture. You may provide evidence of secondary research for this project. More detail is, of course, forthcoming.

Jane Austen

TESTS AND EXAMS: You cannot make up a test or exam after the class period in which it is administered.
Academic honesty: Students are responsible for knowing Eastern Illinois University regulations and policies regarding academic honesty. Plagiarism will result in your failing the course and in further action by the university. Here is the English Department’s statement on plagiarism:

Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism — “The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author, and representation of them as one’s own original work” (Random House Dictionary of the English Language) — has the right and the responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignments, of a grade of F for the assigned essay and a grade of F for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs Office.

Paper Policies

Papers—and all other assignments—are due at the beginning of class. Late papers will not be commented upon, and be given a failing grade. Essays turned in a week past the deadline will be given a “zero,” but must nevertheless be submitted in order to pass the course. Your paper should be stapled and include page numbers. Format: 12-point Times New Roman font, double-spaced, with one-inch margins.

Absence Policy

This class meets only once a week. This fact means that being absence for one class meeting equates to three missed classes on a MWF schedule. Since missing three class meetings in this course is equivalent to missing 20% of the class, I will allow for only two (2) missed class meetings in this class. That is, you will not received credit for this course, if you miss three or more class meetings.

When you are absent—especially when you are frequently absent—two things happen. First, your participation grade drops substantially. Second, you naturally fall behind in understanding course material and neither the class nor the professor can catch you up on everything missed in a day’s class. YOU need to decide when it is absolutely necessary to miss class. Be wise. It bears repeating: you cannot make up missed work and late assignments will be penalized. Whether these are excused or unexcused absences does not matter for this course. Being late for class will be counted as an absence.

Emailing Policy

I want to get to know you and your work this semester. Thus I ask that you stop by my office during office hours (or scheduled times) so that we can talk. DO NOT EMAIL ME TO ASK FOR AN "UPDATE" ON MISSED ASSIGNMENTS, OR TO EXPLAIN AN ABSENCE. If you would like to discuss your absenteeism, please come to see me. You should exchange telephone numbers and email addresses with other students in the class so that you can contact someone for notes, handouts, and/or other missed messages.
Wharram / English 3009.3: Schedule of Classes—subject to revision

The intention lying behind the following selection of texts is to provide a mesh, a set of readings that forms a curious series of interconnections and that resonates within a planetary textual framework.

For each class period, you need to have carefully read and be prepared to discuss the assigned selections in their entirety.

WEEK ONE

W 1/9  Avatar, dir. James Cameron
       (Assignment #1 distributed)

WEEK TWO

W 1/23  INTRODUCTION: “myth”; “culture”
        Cassirer, Myth and Language (17-43; 62-73)
        (Assignment #1 due)

Monday 1/23—Deadline to drop course without a grade

WEEK THREE

W 1/30 “The Death of Bilgames” from the Sumerian fragment of Tell Hada
       Sigmund Freud, “The Uncanny”

WEEK FOUR

W 2/6  Tablet XI of The Epic of Gilgamesh (the Akkadian story of the Flood)
       Diamond, Guns, Germs, and Steel (“Prologue,” 13-32; Chapter 3, 67-81)

WEEK FIVE

M 2/13  Test #1
       Joshua 4: 1-24 (crossing the Jordan River)
       William Wordsworth, “Resolution and Independence”
       Lévi-Strauss, Myth and Meaning, “Introduction” and Chapters 1-5
       Erdoes and Ortiz, “Rabbit Boy” and “The Good Twin and the Evil Twin”
       (handout)
       Prologue” from The Arabian Nights (3-16)

WEEK SIX

M 2/20  “Prologue” and “Nights 1-28,” from The Arabian Nights
       Walter Benjamin, “The Storyteller”
       Borges, “The Translations of The 1001 Nights,” (Venuti, 94-108)
       The Clash, “Straight to Hell”
WEEK SEVEN

M 2/28  Test #2;
Austen and Grahame-Smith, Pride and Prejudice and Zombies (7-103)

WEEK EIGHT

W 3/5  Austen and Grahame-Smith, Pride and Prejudice and Zombies (103-198)
White Zombie, short excerpt (1932, d. Victor Halperin)
Wade Davis, brief selection from The Serpent and the Rainbow

WEEK NINE

M 3/19  Test #3; MID-TERM EXAM (in-class exam)

WEEK TEN

“Appendix” (264-275)

WEEK ELEVEN

W 4/2  Mary Shelley, Frankenstein (175-244)

Friday 3/30—Deadline to withdraw with a “W”

WEEK TWELVE

W 4/9  Mary Shelley, Frankenstein, “Appendix” (245-263)
John Milton, from Paradise Lost (293-4)

WEEK THIRTEEN

W 4/16  Test #4;
Roman Jakobsen, “On Linguistic Aspects of Translation” (Venuti, 138-143)

WEEK FOURTEEN

W 4/23  Michael Pollen, “Johnny Appleseed” (e-reserve)
Damrosch, What is World Literature? (TBA)

THURSDAY, MAY 3rd—12:30-14:30: FINAL EXAM, Final Projects Due