Special Note: this spring we celebrate the 450th anniversary of Shakespeare’s birth: check out http://www.shakespeareanniversary.org/. Here at EIU, we will celebrate this event in conjunction with professors and students in the other Shakespeare classes at the panel hosted by Sigma Tau Delta, “How to Do Things with Shakespeare,” in April.

Course Focus
As we move through the second decade of the twenty-first century, interest in the works of William Shakespeare shows no sign of abating. Shakespeare studies are still one of the most vibrant and exciting areas of English Renaissance literature, in part because Shakespeare had the good fortune to be a great synthesizer of the most popular trends in Renaissance literature, philosophy, and drama. This semester we will consider the Shakespeare of the English Renaissance, as well as the Shakespeare(s) of the present. Our primary goals will be to familiarize you with the categories of Shakespeare’s plays and to introduce you to the techniques that Shakespeare uses, the historical, political, and cultural backdrops to the plays, and ways of analyzing character, theme, and structure in them. Ultimately, this class is meant to prepare you to read Shakespeare on your own and to enjoy the plays in performance in an informed manner. To facilitate these goals, we will examine a few representative plays in great depth. Also, I will ask you to keep an eye on Shakespeare in popular culture and report your findings to the class.

Please remember that class participation is critical. It will include reading parts aloud on nearly a daily basis, and everyone should strive to have turns reading. It is a crucial first step to learning to “hear” Shakespeare’s plays.

Policies
--The English Department statement on plagiarism stipulates that any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism—"The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author and representation of them as one's original work" (Random House Dictionary of the English Language)--has the right and the responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignment of a grade of F for the assigned essay and for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs Office.
--Have assignments prepared on time. Papers more than a week late without a University-approved excuse will not be accepted. If you miss an exam, and you have a university-approved excuse, you may make up that exam. You will have no more than one week to do so, and the make-up exam may be different from the one given during class.
--If you have a documented disability and wish to receive academic accommodations, please contact the Coordinator of the Office of Disability Services (581-6583) as soon as possible.
--Be prepared for class. You'll get more out of class discussions if you are participating in them, and I'll notice if you do not seem prepared to participate.

Requirements
--Two exams .................. 40% (20% each of final grade)
--One 7-10-page research paper .... 20%
--Preliminary research report with annotated bibliography .... 10%
--Final presentation .............. 10%
--Two response papers ............ 20%
Total: 100%

The two exams will cover the two units of study.

The paper topic will be chosen from the assigned plays and issues related to them. The paper will be 7-10 pages long. You will use at least 3-5 outside sources to support your arguments, and they should consist of scholarly books and journal articles. One website of good scholarly repute may be used if necessary. You will use MLA Parenthetical Style, with a Works Cited page, for documentation. For MLA Style, see the Writing Center’s web site, specifically, under Resources for Writers, http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/.

Just after midterm, you will have a research report with an annotated bibliography due to show the progress that you have made regarding your research project. Do not worry if we haven’t yet covered the topic that interests you in class by the time you start your research—this portion of our study is meant to be an independent exploration of a topic that may be completely new to you. The goal is that your independent study will augment what is covered in class and will broaden the scope of the course as a whole for you. You, in turn, will share with the class what you have learned in your research near the end of the semester.

The research report and annotated bibliography will cover the preliminary research that you do for your research paper and presentation. It will essentially be your paper proposal. The report will address the topic, why you chose the topic, and the avenues of research that you chose to explore. (You will no doubt do more research by the time you write the paper itself, thus this report is “preliminary.”) The annotated bibliography will consist of bibliographic citations using MLA Style of at least five sources with your notes on each work that describe the document, summarize why it may be useful to your project, and include possible quotations that you might use in the paper.

The final presentation will be a 7-10 minute oral report over your research project, due near the end of the semester. After conducting your research and writing your paper, you will present to the class what you have learned. The goals are to provide, via your and your fellow students’ reports, a “big picture” look at the subjects we have covered over the course of the semester, as well as to introduce specialized information that you have focused on during your own independent study.

The 2 response papers will be researched essays concerned with specific reading assignments. Just as for the research paper, you will use scholarly books and articles for your sources. One web site of good scholarly repute may be used if necessary. You will use MLA Parenthetical Style documentation.

The Writing Center
Please make use of EIU’s Writing Center, located at 3110 Coleman Hall, this semester. The consultants there can help you with brainstorming, organizing, developing support for, and documenting your papers. One caveat: the Writing Center is not a proofreading or editing service. It is a place where you can learn how to become a more thoughtful, independent, and rhetorically effective writer. To schedule an appointment, drop by (3110 Coleman Hall) or call 581-5929.
