Rhys, Voyage in the Dark (1934)
Winterson, Oranges Are Not the Only Fruit (1985)
Woolf, Mrs Dalloway  (1925)

Goals:
In Making Peace: The Reconstruction of Gender in Interwar Britain, anthropologist Susan Kingsley Kent notes that after World War I, part of the effort to lure women out of the workforce and back into the home involved publicizing the sexual pleasure women could gain from marriage. Starting with Marie Stopes’s 1918 Married Love, a barrage of marriage manuals glamorized marriage as a source of sexual fulfillment and stigmatized the spinster as a sexually frustrated old maid. For many twentieth-century women writers, however, this picture of societally sanctioned marital pleasure was troublingly simplistic and potentially oppressive. In their fiction and poetry, these writers insisted on the pleasures of same-sex as well as heterosexual love, the complexities of gender identity and sexual desire, and the delights of celibacy. This class will focus on works by twentieth-century British (for the most part) women writers, focusing on their efforts to rewrite traditional marriage plots and challenge oppressive notions of women’s sexuality.

More specifically, goals include:
--understanding the late-nineteenth century origins of sexology and its permutations during the course of the twentieth century
--understanding modern British women’s poetry and fiction as part of an ongoing cultural conversation about gender and sexuality.
--understanding modern British women writers in the context of literary, women’s, and cultural history.
--This class is particularly supportive of University learning goals related to critical thinking, writing and critical reading, speaking, listening, and responsible citizenship.

Policies:
Academic Integrity. Students are expected to maintain principles of academic integrity and conduct as defined in EIU’s Code of Conduct (http://www.eiu.edu/judicial/studentconductcode.php). Violations will be reported to the Office of Student Standards.

English Department statement on plagiarism. Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism—"The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author and representation of them as one's original work" (Random House Dictionary of the English Language) --has the right and the responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignment of a grade of F for the assigned essay and a grade of NC for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs Office. Respect for the work of others should encompass all formats, including print, electronic, and oral sources.

If you are a student with a documented disability in need of accommodations to fully participate in this class, please contact the Office of Student Disability Services (OSDS). All accommodations must be approved through OSDS. Please stop by Ninth Street Hall, Room 2006, or call 217-581-6583 to make an appointment.

Students who are having difficulty achieving their academic goals are encouraged to contact the Student Success Center (www.eiu.edu/~success) for assistance with time management, test taking, note taking, avoiding procrastination, setting goals, and other skills to support academic achievement. The Student Success Center provides individualized consultations. To make an appointment, call 217-581-6696, or go to 9th Street Hall, Room 1302.

Late work: will not be accepted except in cases of documented illness/emergency, or if you have consulted with me ahead of time. Brief writing and on-line assignments must be done for the assigned class to be acceptable. Essays a week or more late will not be accepted under any circumstances.

Attendance: Attendance at every class is expected. Note that a portion of the grade is based on class participation, in-class writing, and on-line postings, all of which require keeping up with the reading and being in class. Excessive absences will result in a grade of 0 for the participation portion of your grade. If illness or personal emergency keeps you from class, let me know; when you return, ask about hand-outs and reading assignments you may have missed.

Requirements/grades:
Two essays: 10% and 20%
Midterm and final: 10% and 20%
D2L postings: 20%
In-class writing/involvement/participation/oral presentations: 20%
Essay grades will be based on Guidelines for Evaluating Writing Assignments in EIU’s English Department. I plan to use number rather than letter grades; this will convert into your final grade as follows: 91-100=A; 81-90=B; 71-80=C.

Responses: Each week, you’ll be required to write responses to a reading assignment on D2L. Your response must be posted at least 60 minutes before the class for which the assignment is due, and you must be present in that class to receive credit. Plan on writing a thoughtful 1-2 paragraph response in the course of which you: 1. respond to the comments of at least one other student (unless you’re the first to post); 2. make some observation about what you’ve read and develop your idea; and 3. quote directly from the reading (providing p. number in parentheses after your quotation).
