IV. Communications
A. Discussion with Dr. Robert Chesnut, Director of the Office of Grants and Research, re: Grants and Research web page. Dr. Chesnut began the discussion stating that the Office of Grants and Research (OGR) would like to publicize the research and creative activities taking place at Eastern Illinois University. One method being considered is by making more extensive use of OGR’s web site (http://www.eiu.edu/~grants). Under the subheading, “Research and Creative Activity at EIU” are three subheadings: Departmental Pages, Press Releases, and Quarterly Newsletter. Departmental Pages links to web pages that individual departments have created that highlight research and creative activities. Links are not made just to faculty biographies. The Quarterly Newsletter links to the quarterly newsletters, in Word and PDF format. The newsletters list current news at OGR, external awards made during the last quarter, and in the Campus Spotlight section, has short biographical sketches of a few researchers and creative activity people. Sketches typically include scholarship, grants received, and service. Press Releases, made in conjunction with the Office of External Relations, are made to when significant awards or achievements are announced. Senator Wilson stated that the number of grants and their amounts are impress, but is that number increasing. Dr. Chesnut replied that the dollar value has not been increasing over the last few years. Senator Pommier told Dr. Chesnut that he is doing a great job, especially considering that he has only had the position for approximately one year. Senator Ashley asked that since the primary mission of Eastern Illinois University is teaching, would lack of research and creative activity awards being publicized on the web hurt individual departments. Senator Kilgore added that such publicity might foster too much competition between departments and might result in just compilation of results. Senator Ogbomo stated that research is a strong component of teaching so it should be publicized. However, teaching efforts such as workshops should also be publicized. OGR might include links to teaching, research, and service. Dr. Chesnut replied that the biographic sketches do include aspects of teaching, research, and service. Senator Ashley agreed, but stated that teaching or service aspects need not be reduced in importance. Senator Benedict stated that it is both beneficial and positive to have an electronic outlet that showcases research and creative works being done at Eastern Illinois University.

Senator Kilgore agreed with Senator Benedict, but stated that pressure should not be placed on certain departments to produce. Senator Fischer stated that the Department of Biological Sciences view research as teaching being done at its best. Senator Ashley replied that he will not argue that teaching and research are essential, but that some departments lends themselves to research more than others. Senator HaileMariam stated that the Psychology Department has an External Relations Committee that publicizes such research to its alumni and graduate students. Senator HaileMariam added that research supports teaching. Senator Monipallil stated that first, and foremost, faculty at the university level are teacher-scholars, not just teachers. There is not anything we can do to sway outside opinion and that we need to publish our accomplishments in any form. Senator Wilson added that Dean Augustine has published a list of research and creative activities in the past. Senator Brownson stated that Booth Library publishes an annual report of library faculty accomplishments. Senator Brownson added that she would like to see what others in the different colleges are doing. Senator Kilgore asked what form this publicizing should take. Senator Allison stated that the listing is a good step and that parents of potential students may see this and it may help with recruitment. Senator Stimac stated that during the recent NCA visitation, one graduate student from the Washington state, Elise Tulloss, told the visitation team that she chose the Department of Biological Sciences based on research she found online. Senator Ashley stated that since we already have research and creative activities online, would this lead to additional competition. Senator Ogbomo stated that considering outside questions being asked of Eastern Illinois University concerning teaching versus research, we should emphasize the research and creative activities that we do. He stated that departments have individual identities and these are not being threatened. For example, the African American Studies Program, which is not a department, has had very positive comments from the local community and from those who have moved away concerning an exhibit on local African Americans that they have placed online. Senator Allison (Wilson) moved that “The Faculty Senate encourages the Office of Grants and Research to continue to publicize campus research and creative activity achievements at Eastern Illinois University to the campus and public by means of a website, an annual report, and in other appropriate ways.” During discussion of the motion, Senator Kilgore asked if this isn’t already being done on departmental web pages. Senator Ogbomo stated that OGR is just asking departments to do their job better. This will not be compulsory. Senator Ashley asked how will the motion differ from what is already being done. Yes: Allison, Benedict, Brownson, Carpenter, Fischer, HaileMariam, Kilgore, Monipallil, Ogbomo, Pommier, Stimac, Wilson, and Wolski. Abstain: Ashley. Motion passes 13-0-1. Dr. Chesnut informed the Senate that he will propose a specific format for the annual report and will bring before the Faculty Senate, Deans Council, and Chairs Council in the fall.

B. Motion by Allison (Pommier) to move into Executive Session and invite Provost Lord. Yes: Allison, Ashley, Benedict, Brownson, Carpenter, Fischer, HaileMariam, Kilgore, Monipallil, Ogbomo, Pommier, Stimac, Wilson, and Wolski. After discussion, the Faculty Senate moved back into General Session.

Senator Wilson requested that a question on potential disabilities of the child be included in the survey. Senator HaileMariam stated that the questionnaire needed to be piloted before general distribution and asked that comments be made on it at the next meeting.

EMPLOYMENT OF INTERNATIONAL FACULTY WITH NON-IMMIGRANT VISAS

In order to ensure access to a broad base of potential faculty talent and to foster the diversity of the University community, Eastern may assist with the employment of individuals with non-immigrant visas as follows:

Support for an H-1B (Speciality Occupations) visa

Non-immigrant candidates for faculty positions who are eligible to apply for an H-1B visa may be assisted with their visa petitions as required by the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services Department (or its successor agency). When hiring faculty members in the H-1B category, the University must first satisfactorily submit a Labor Condition Application (LCA) to the Department of Labor. As required by federal law, the H-1B application must include evidence that the proposed employment qualifies as a specialty occupation, evidence that the non-immigrant has the required degree for the position, and a copy of the employment contract. Required documents may be executed and provided to the applicant at the discretion of the Provost/VPAA but only upon the written recommendation of the employing department chairperson and college dean and only for candidates for full-time employment who hold the appropriate terminal degree. The Office of Civil Rights (or other such office designated by the President) shall process the institutional paperwork associated with such application. Renewal of an H-1 shall be handled in the same fashion.

Should the services of an immigration attorney become necessary, the potential employee, not the hiring department or the University, shall be responsible for the filing and legal fees. Employment under an H-1B visa is not a guarantee of obtaining permanent residency status nor is the University obligated to assist in obtaining permanent residency status (see below).

Sponsorship for a Permanent Residency Application

Eastern Illinois University may consider formal sponsorship of a currently employed, full-time, tenure-track faculty member for permanent residency subject to the following stipulations:

The faculty member shall have completed at least three years one semester of full-time employment as a faculty member at Eastern Illinois University.

The faculty member has been determined to meet the federal standards required for sponsorship by the employing department’s chairperson (who shall be assisted in this assessment by at least one other full-time faculty member in the department) and the dean. Written summaries of these evaluations shall be provided to the Provost.

The faculty member is recommended for institutional sponsorship by the department chairperson and the dean. If the chairperson and the dean both recommend such support, the chairperson shall provide a letter to the Provost detailing the processes used in the recruitment and selection of the faculty member as required by the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services Department (or its successor agency).

The faculty member shall be responsible for the application fees and attorneys' fees. The Department Chairperson shall recommend that the faculty member retain a private immigration attorney to represent her/him.

The Eastern Illinois University Office of Civil Rights (or such other office designated by the President) shall serve as the formal point of contact for the faculty member and external counsel on all administrative matters pertaining to the processing of a permanent residency application.

In no case shall University sponsorship of a permanent residency application imply or obligate the University to favorable action on future retention, promotion or tenure applications.

Subject to these stipulations, the Provost has the discretion to accept the recommendation of the chairperson and dean and may execute the documents necessary for an applicant’s permanent residency application.

Should it be deemed appropriate to consider the employment of a non-immigrant in another visa category or for a non-faculty position at the University, the President may approve the necessary procedures for the relevant employing unit.

President
January 2004
(Revised) February 2005

Monitor: President
Governor Blagojevich:

We write to express our deep concern with the proposed attack on the state pension systems. While we understand that the systems are grossly underfunded and pose an obstacle to closing the budget gap this year, we believe that the best interest of the state is not being served by avoiding the fiscal obligation and short-changing future employees. Given the economic and social dividends that accompany both K-12 and higher education, one would hope that the state would like to attract the best qualified teachers as is possible. Changes to an already weak pension system will likely hinder our efforts to maintain a high quality system of public education. There are three areas of concern that require elaboration:

The first area of concern is to reduce the benefits for future retirees. If anything, the state should be looking to increase benefits rather than reduce them. A 2000 study found that Illinois ranked 48th out of 50 states in terms of benefits as a percentage of salary (In fact, only Nevada ranked below Illinois in this study). Given the fact that nothing has been done to improve this situation, it is apparent that any cuts will likely drive us to the bottom of all states in the nation. As we attempt to address teacher shortages and attract college graduates into education, offering them benefits which lag significantly behind neighboring states such as Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin (17th, 18th, 19th, and 23rd respectively) will not help. This is especially problematic when we consider that many states offer social security in addition to any state pension system. Since we do not, any cut to the one-legged retirement system can only magnify and aggravate the situation.

The second area of concern is regarding the end of career salary increases. While it is certainly true that some districts or university administrators receive large boosts which require no additional work, yet change their retirement benefits, many people in the system are allowed smaller increases that are associated with additional work such as summer teaching. Given the known fact that educators are underpaid, such a modest increase at the end of a career is something many look forward to when they choose to devote their life to educating young people. Retirement security is something that many hold onto and changes to this will likely add to our recruitment and retention problems.

The final area of concern centers around the proposal to limit post-retirement benefits to the consumer price index (CPI) or 3 percent – whichever is less. While we understand that the 3 percent increase has been slightly above the CPI in recent years, it is still below the long-term average rate of inflation which is 3.5 percent. In fact, since 1913, inflation has very rarely dropped below 3 percent and has sometimes hovered close to 10 percent. Capping the increase at 3 percent but allowing for a lower amount will take away any minimal inflation protection state employees currently have and will be incredibly detrimental to state employees as they enter into their so-called “golden years.” Once again, such a change will hinder our ability to attract quality people to state employment and will ultimately harm the growth and economic vitality of the state of Illinois.

We understand that the state is facing a difficult fiscal situation, but we urge you to reconsider the proposed changes to the state pension systems in light of the concerns we have raised.

Respectfully yours,
