Our primary goal is to familiarize ourselves with fiction written by Americans during the 1920s so we have a basis for understanding and assessing the validity of various paradigms that have been used to describe the era ("Harlem Renaissance," "Jazz Age"), the fiction ("modernist"), the writers and their characters ("lost generation").

Research Projects DUE
RESPONSIBILITIES AND POLICIES

1.) You must complete all major assignments to pass this course. Late work will be penalized unless we come to an understanding before the due date. If you are experiencing temporary difficulties, contact me as soon as possible.

2.) Plagiarism is the act of taking someone else’s words or ideas and using them in your own work (written, oral, visual) without giving credit to their author. This is a serious academic offense and could result in a failing grade for the plagiarized assignment or this course, and could also incur other university penalties. At the very least, any work with problematic citations will have to be revised or amended before it can receive a grade.

3.) Formal writing assignments should conform to MLA style and documentation.

4.) Students with documented disabilities should contact the Office of Disability Services (581-6583) so we can work out appropriate accommodations.

5.) Attendance Counts. If you have more than one unexcused absence, you will not receive any points for participation.

GRADES

Your final course grade will be based on the percentage you earn of the points available. I will adjust these point values if we add, cancel or revise any assignments.

Web CT Posts (30 points: 15 at mid-term and 15 after week 12) ~ Each week, you will post on WebCT a (minimum) 250-word informal analytic response to the reading. This post should be focused on a question or issue of interest, and developed through analysis of specific passages in the text. You do not need to come to a firm conclusion, but can instead open up possibilities for discussion and begin to forge connections between texts.

Critical Perspectives (10 points) ~ A presentation and handout (2 page max) that introduces us to two interesting critical perspectives on the text under discussion

Magazine Presentation & Handout (15 points) ~ A presentation and handout (2 page max) that provides us with information and observations about from a 1920s magazine

Book Report (10 points) ~ A presentation and handout (2 page max) that introduces us to your self-selected novel and allows us to see what it adds to our discussion of this era

Final Project (25 points) ~ A research project TBD related to your interests and goals

Participation (5 points) ~ Attentive, respectful, informed questions and comments

The bottom line... grades are not curved. 91% (91+ points) = A

81 - 90% (81-90) = B

71 - 80% (71-80) = C

61 - 70% (61-70) = D
