The academy of the future is opening its doors.

John Ashbery

Postmodern is a word that wears many hats. In the name of this course, it serves as a broad characterization of a variety of exciting possibilities in American poetry, possibilities that develop from the more radical innovations of modernism and that challenge familiar understandings of form, "voice," narrative, and representation. We'll begin with work from some of the "other" modernists (Guillaume Apollinaire, Gertrude Stein, William Carlos Williams) and go on to read work from the Objectivists, Black Mountain, the San Francisco Renaissance, the Beats, the New York School, and recent developments in and out of language poetry. (I put very little stock in these labels—they're here merely for convenience.) The course offers a chance to see the gradual work of canon formation in progress (the academy of the future is indeed opening its doors) and to recognize that the possibilities of poetry (how to write) and criticism (how to read) are always under construction. Above all, the course offers a chance to become acquainted with some of the most extraordinary poetry of the past half-century.

REQUIREMENTS

Dedicated participation in the work of the course (reading, thinking, talking, and leading part of a discussion), a number of short writing assignments, a longer written project, a final examination.
POLICIES

Attendance
Attendance is essential: you should attend class at least as often as I do. You will be lost otherwise.

You are responsible for all assignments, whether or not you are in class when they are announced. If you must miss a class, you should get in touch with me right away to find out what you will miss.

Late Work
Late writing is acceptable only if you have my approval in advance.

Disabilities
If you have a documented disability and wish to receive academic accommodations, contact the coordinator of the Office of Disability Services (581-6583) as soon as possible.

Office Hours
Feel free to come in to talk—about a question that you didn’t get to ask in class, an idea that you want to talk about, etc. If the scheduled times aren’t workable, don’t hesitate to arrange another time.

Grading
Your grade will be based on your short writing assignments (30%), final examination (30%), longer project (30%), and participation (10%).

Written work receives letter grades. Participation in the course receives one of five grades: 100 (consistent well-informed participation), 85 (frequent well-informed participation), 75 (less frequent participation or less well-informed participation), 50 (only occasional participation), 0 (little or no participation). You may check on participation at any time. If you have qualms about participating in class discussion, please talk to me as soon as possible.

To calculate semester grades, I use the following numerical equivalents for letter grades:

A 95  A- 92  B+ 87  B 85  B- 82  C+ 77  C 75  C- 72  D+ 67  D 65  D- 62  F 55

For semester grades, 90 or above is an A; 80 or above, a B; 70 or above, a C; 60 or above, a D; below 60, an F.

English Department Statement on Plagiarism
Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism—"The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author, and the representation of them as one's original work" (Random House Dictionary of the English Language) has the right and responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including immediate assignment of a grade of F for the course.

Academic Integrity
Any breach of academic integrity is a serious matter and will get you a serious penalty, up to and including an F for the course. You will also get a file in the Judicial Affairs office and be required to participate in an ethics workshop organized by Judicial Affairs. You should be familiar with Eastern's statement on academic integrity (posted in classrooms) and should ask if you have any questions about quoting from and/or documenting sources.
